The other side of the same experience offers the consolation that at least, during these four decades, we weren't turning back toward that extreme kind of protectionism which, in much economic theory, helped pin the whole world to depression in 1929.

Ranger Station To Feature Tale By Area Author

A yet-unpublished children's book, "White Tails and Green Clover," will be featured on Channel 3 television's Ranger Station program next week, together with its creator, authorphotographer Yolla Niclas of East Hartford.

Miss Niclas will appear on the program Monday to tell how the story came to be written. The show is aired daily at 4 p.m.

On Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday afternoons, program host Jim Thompson will relate the story, using Miss Niclas' original photographs and text.

The story, a true one, is about a family of wild rabbits which the company of th lived in Wickham Park across from the author's apartment on Burniside Ave., and which she photographed over a period of several months.

Miss Niclas has appeared on the program before. Two of her published works serialized on the show last spring were "The Flower of Vassiliki, a Story of Greece" and "David and the Seagulls."
The latter, set on Maine's

Monhegan Island, won a Book of the Year award from the Boys Clubs of America.

The author has been an area resident for about two years. She is the wife of Rudolph Sachs, a teacher at Manchester Community College.

Scare 'Saved'

WASHINGTON (AP) - Antismoking broadcasts, required since 1967 to counteract ciga-rette commercials, must continue after the commercials end in January, says a top federal communications lawyer.

"We will have to have some transitional period," said Henry M. Geller, general counsel of the Federal Communications Commission, in an interview.

Geller declined to estimate how long the "transition" might take but indicated antismoking broadcasts might be required as long as smoking-versus-health remains a public issue.

Television and radio broadcasters say this leaves them with a curious puzzle.

When he carried cigarette commercials, the broadcaster was required by the FCC to add announcements under its "fairness doctrine" requiring balanced presentation of controversial issues.

How can he now carry only one side of the issue—this time the antismoking side—without perhaps jeopardizing his broad-cast license?

Geller suggested a way. Smoking may be so widely seen as a health hazard, he said, that the subject is no long-er "controversial" and therefore no longer subject to the FCC "fairness doctrine."

"It's an issue," he said, "but we're not so sure a licensee (broadcaster) couldn't reach a judgment that it's no longer controversial. I don't know that we'd upset his judgment. "He might not be obligated to present two sides of this issue." Nevertheless, said Geller, the broadcaster may be required to continue presenting the antismoking side "under the general public interest standard."

"He has a duty to inform the public," said Geller. "If cigarettes continue to cause death, that can't be ignored."

"It could be through public

Modesty

"I'm not mercenary, and when the fun had gone out of the game, I was bored, and I didn't want to play just for the money." Williamson had played for the Kansas City Chiefs, the Oakland Raiders, the Pittsburgh Steelers and the San Francisco 49ers. He combined his acting and football to play the football player in the hit film "M*A*S*H" and subsequently was seen with Liza Min-nelli in "Tell Me That You Love Me, Junie Moon.'

Explaining his seeming im-modesty in describing himself as the handsomest fellow around, Williamson said, "I never believed modesty was a virtue, I function best under pressure. I created this image to help keep me on my toes all the time. In football, I was my own personal publicity man. I didn't care what they said, as long as they said it."

Smiling, he added, "I was a devastating fellow in football." Regarding his essaying acting and competing with established names, Williamson said, "I'm very confident about what I do. announcements To me competition is very the cigarette strong motivation. I never said I couldn't do something until I Geller said broadcasters need tried it. I take a negative and
