Plastic Project
ELGIN, Ill. (AP) Robert W. Laver Jr., architect who is active in environmental activities in the Fox Valley area, is experimenting with ground plastic as an ingredient in concrete.

Involved in a research project sponsored by the Society of the Plastics Industry, Laver mixed 150 pounds of ground polyethylene scrap plastics as an experiment.

The scrap was used as partial replacement for sand. Tests showed the plastic-concrete mix was 10 to 15 per cent lighter in weight. Although still under development, the material was still workable with a trowel and subject to vibrations from machinery and heavy equipment. It did not crack.

Laver said the mixture is known as "plasticrete" and will remain in the public domain because he and his fellow scientists do not seek a patent on the substance.

HOLMES Funeral Home

400 MAIN STREET - MANCHESTER, CONN.

HOWARD HOLMES ARTHUR HOLMES NORMAN HOLMES

Why has the idea of a "cut-rate" funeral home seldom, if ever, met with great success? One reason, quite possibly, is that families don't want their final tribute to someone they loved to be publicly labeled as "cheap." Another reason, certainly, is that all traditional funeral directors — even though they may not blatantly announce the fact — offer dignified, high quality services at prices which everyone can easily afford.

Besides the theater, the Sibuns are active in community affairs. He is a member of the Republican Town Committee and the Planning and Zoning Commission. Mrs. Sibun is a member of the Regional District 8 Board of Education and a troop leader in the Girl Scout Program in town.

Manchester Evening Herald Hebron correspondent, Anne East, telephone 328-9711.

"Death of a Salesman," "Famed Oak" and "Krupp's Last Tape" He is presently in the field of directing his own acting troupe, "My Fair Lady."

Sibun started his own acting class at the age of four in England but most of his efforts have been in the field of directing. In the past, he has directed the Aetna Players and various community troupes throughout the Greater Hartford area.

Each Christmas he also directs a WPTV special Christmas program and last April directed the filming of a television documentary on drugs, "You're Going To Be The Death of Me Yet."

Recently Sibun was mentioned in Albert W. Cooke's book, "Four Vintage Decades." The just released book is a biography and history of the performing arts in Hartford from 1850 to 1970.

The book refers to Sibun's association with the Aetna Players. The Aetna Players have been performing off and on since 1850 when the handsome Colonial home office was occupied by the Aetna Life and Casualty Company," the book states.

John Sibun, who headed the Players in the revival year of 1969, and who has directed all productions since then, is an informal historian for the troupe. He has strong opinions on how an amateur company should proceed in order to develop standards of excellence.

The Podium Players are also mentioned in Cooke's book. He stated that "One of Tolland County's little theater troupes, the Podium Players, Inc., performs in Hebron. The contact for the group is listed as (who also?) John Sibun, R.D. 1, East Street, Hebron.

Cooke also added the following footnote after Sibun's name: "Sibun, long active with other theater groups, has been drama

Director for the Greater Hartford Council of Churches. He has been writing a history of his community, Hebron. Founded early in the 18th Century this is the second oldest of Tolland County towns.

Sibun's wife, Katharine, is also active in the theater. She recently worked with an East Hartford group in a Gilbert and Sullivan production as well as in past Podium Players productions.

His two daughters, Penelope, age 11, and Barbara, age 8, show their talents in local school and television productions. Barbara, last spring, appeared in a television commercial on Channel 8 on road safety.

The estimated value of Manchester construction for which building permits were issued last month was about three and a half times as high as in September of last year, according to a report by Thomas Monahan, chief building inspector.

The totals were $1,218,786 for this year, compared to $336,036 last year.

This year's increase was entirely attributable to two large building permits—$687,963 to the builders of the Beacon Hill Apartments, on W. Middle Tpk. at the East Hartford town line; and $530,823 to the builders of the town's Secondary Sewage Treatment Plant, off Olcott St.

The building permit for the Beacon Hill apartments was in the form of an addition to the original estimated cost.

Although September 1970 building permits were far ahead of those for September of 1969, for the year.

Defying National Trend Book Borrowing Up, Says Library Report

"We are defying the national trend" (of declining library circulations), said John F. Jackson, Manchester head librarian. And he wasn't just whistling "Gone With the Wind" when he made the statement. He has figures in the recently released annual report to prove it.

From July 1, 1969 through June 30 this year, Mary Cheney Library, Whiton Memorial Library, and the West 8th Branch circulated 331,956 books, an increase of 11,056 over the comparable 1968-69 period.

That state consultant is the authority for the statement that one-third of a town's population holding library cards is considered good, and 40 per cent is excellent.

Manchester, with 23,142 borrowers, is approaching 60 per cent. The number is a growth of 242 over last year. At Mary Cheney adults borrowed 68,076 fiction, up 3,869; and 23,728 non-fiction, up 4,022. Juvenile fiction circulation was 65,102, up 729; and non-fiction 20,597, up 828. Total circulation was 244,132, up 1,889.

The West Side branch is on the plus side all down the line: Adult fiction, 3,702, up 88; non-fiction 801, up 87; juvenile fiction 7,512, up 1,000; and non-fiction 4,126, up 205. Total circulation was 16,821, an increase of 1,897.

At Whiton Memorial Library, non-fiction showed a decline in both age groups. Among adults, it was 16,370, down 137, and among juvenile readers, 22,549, down 1,268. Adult fiction circulated 21,775, up 1,850; and juvenile fiction 20,597, up 828. The net increase was 1,290 to 71,281 volumes.

As a further breakdown, in all three libraries, adults borrowed 93,457 fiction, up 4,008; and 100,900 non-fiction, up 4,922. Juvenile fiction circulation was 63,601, up 2,696; and non-fiction was 45,966, down 1,601.

During the year, 8,607 books were added, of which 6,748 are new titles, bringing the libraries' holdings to 119,919 volumes.

Wichita State Crash

Probers Call 'Death Plane' Aging, Just Out of Storage

WASHINGTON (AP) — The West Texas State the previous government says an aging airplane on its first passenger flight after coming out of mothballs may have been 40,000 pounds overweight when it crashed in the Rocky Mountains killing 30 persons on a Wichita State University football trip.

A second rented plane used by the ill-starred football team was strapped with an emergency grounding Tuesday after the Federal Aviation Administration said it found 16 maintenance defects.

The two-engine aircraft that smashed into a mountain side en route to a Utah State game last Friday was making its maiden trip with the football team after having been parked in a hangar in Las Vegas, Nev., for three years, its owner said.

The same plane veered off a runway and bent a propeller when a landing gear collapsed as it tried to take off from Wichita State team for a flight to

The plane, a propeller-driven Shrike, was downed Tuesday in Thru Tien province, in the northern part of the country.

The cause of the crash was not known, the FAA said.

FAA spokesman James R. Greenwood said preliminary figures showed the plane weighed an estimated 40,000 pounds upon its takeoff to climb the towering Rockies after a refueling stop in Denver Friday. The maximum takeoff weight listed in specifications for the Martin 404 plane is 44,000 pounds.

A spokesman for the National Transportation Safety Board, which is spearheading the probe, said the plane may have flown into a blind canyon, where a wall of mountain rises abruptly.

In a Denver hospital, co-pilot Ronald Skipper, 37, was wounded in the mortal and infantry attack at Taing Kruk.

The Cambodian force there is engaged in a ridge at the foot of the Continental Divide, where a attempt to open the highway between Phnom Penh and Kompong Thom, 50 miles north of Taing Kruk, was made.

Ten miles to the rear of the group's main force, enemy troops drove off an assault by Cambodian soldiers trying to maintain an attempt to the forest take off.

Victory in Bolivia Claimed by Leftists

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — Leftist forces claimed victory today over rightists in the struggle for the presidency and their leader, Gen. Juan Jose Torres, marched into La Paz in triumph.

People poured into the streets after the announcement of a new government, and some groups occupied the building of the Bolivian Institute of Social Studies, run by Roman Catholic priests of the Dominican Order of the United States.

The priests were accused by leftists of foreign espionage being in the service of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency.

Torres came to power from his air base headquarters along a side of the capital and was cheered by the people along the way. Air Force planes flew low overhead along the line of march.

Over the night one member of Miranda's three-man junta, Fernando Sattler, the air force commander, went over to Torres. The two other members drove out to confer with Torres, whose planes had bombed the presidential palace during the night, but caused little damage.

The two remaining leaders of the junta, proclaimed after President Alfredo Ovando Candia resigned under army pressure Tuesday, went into conference with Torres early today. They met after Torres planes had carried live on radio and caused little damage.

The two, Gen. Efraim Guachalla and Rear Adm. Alberto Albaracini, arrived at Torres' headquarters at the military base of El Alto 12 miles outside La Paz and told him: "We come in peace."

Torres showed them some conservative newspaper. He said he expelled Bolivian and foreign technicians of the Military Corp. of Bolivia, known as Combol.
