Already the administration has moved in the direction of more actively its abilities to communicate with and educate the public in the battile with inflation but it has stopped far short of committing its power.

In the eyes of many, mainly the advocates of wage - price guideposts or rigid controls, the President remains in the postition of a very concerned special tor rather than a participant.

The Double Talk War Both the language and the tactics being employed by the administration in the course of its activities in North Vietnam are such as to inspire uneasiness and uncertainty, even more here at home, perhaps, than in Hanoi.

The language includes more and more flourished throughout this particular war, and which once produced, as its supreme height of logic, the statement of the American officer that he had to destroy a certain village because that was the only way he could save it. the double talk phrasing has included such gems as "protective reaction" and "self defense attack" and the "inherent right of self defense," all used to cover and justify a process in which we, finding the enemy resisting our encroachfield of domestic sociology rather than ments into his territory, claimed the in that of international world law. right to punish him in retaliatory fashion for his unreasonableness.

Under the cover of such language, our tactics have also been developing a specinating latitude of option.

We have claimed, for instance, that we have the right, as part of the understanding by which bombing of North Vietnam was originally halted, to conduct unarmed reconnaissance flights has, however, involved something more order to see that no harm comes to our unarmed reconnaissance planes, we send armed planes along with them as the first of its kind apparently, but the first specifically reported - the American pilot of a fighter-bomber which was in the air along the demilitarized zone was able to detect, by his scientific devices that a ground defense crew over in North Vietnam was setting its radar whim and getting ready to launch an attack on him. The American pilot therefore crossed the border and, in a "self defense attack" went right to the radar site and bombed it.

So, by that tactic, the claimed right to conduct unarmed reconnaissance becomes, in reality, an exercise in armed

we do not consider it a violation of our agreement to halt the bombing of North Metnam if the bombing we do is done in conjunction with an attempt to land troops in North Vietnam in an effort to rescue American prisoners.

If this new device of logic should now be given the same extension of interpretation and tactic which has been invoked for the "protective reaction" and "self defense attack" style of bombing, we could expect an increasing number of armed forays into North Vietnam, all of them inbeled prisoner rescue missions. In fact, under the brand of logic now being employed by us, it might even be considered justifiable to launch a special attack on the North Vietin moving our prisoners out of the camp we intended to rescue them from.

All this stretching of language and logic might be considered merely a fascirating art in itself if it were not such a potential accommodation to the possible hard extension of the war into the same open-ended status where President

Johnson once had it. The domestic un easiness comes from the fact that such administration language and logic seems to invite the American public to play along with the game of incredibility from one extension to another, with no guaranteed limit of any kind.

On Proper Gifts

This is the age of kidnaping, hijacking, combing, and protest, and a clear need has arisen for a new kind of toy that is relevant to the needs of today's children. Would you, for example, give the daugh-ter of a Women's Lib advocate a tiny stove that really cooks a tiny waffle? Of course not. But what would you give

Thinking the problem over, we have come up with a few ideas that might well serve the nation's toy manufac turers as they prepare for another Christmas, To wit: The Young Revolutionary's Kit, to be displayed on the same shelf as the old Nurse's Kit and the new Doctor's Kit (of which more later), and to contain one Che Guevara button, a black beret, a rifle that shoots out a flag with the word PIG written on it, a credit card entitling the bearer to bail in any amount any where, and the unlisted telephone number of lawyer William Kunstler. A model airplane kit with instructions

A build-it-yourself plastic bomb kit. The new Doctor's Kit, including, along with the standard stethoscope and aspi rin bottles, a three - month supply of birth-control pills and 25 prescriptions each for tranquilizers, pep pills, sleeping pills, and illegal narcotics.

A Young Lawyer's Kit, containing copy of the welfare regulations. Also for would-be lawyers, we suggest Monopolylike game called Courtroom, in which the players draw cards telling them where and how far to move their men. Sample cards:

"Your client's conviction has just been reversed by the Appellate Court. Move forward three paces." "Your client wounded the judge and three witnesses in an escape attempt.

Move back 10 paces." "Your client has just skipped the country while out on bail, Forfelt $150.00." 'Go to jail. Go directly to jail. You are in contempt of court." The possibilities, as you can see, are ndless. For the children of parents who to adopt the new communal life tyle of the hippies, the appropriate gift light include a shovel, a spade, a hoe, a ckage of marijuana seeds, and a piece he children of protesters, miniature proest signs bearing such legends as:

'Jerry Rubin is alive and well and livng in our hearts." And there is no reason why older children should feel left out. For their enjoyment and edification, a number of books might soon be published, including "A Defendant's Guide to the Courtroom and Emily Post's Etiquette for the Occupation of Buildings," written in colaboration with Mark Rudd.

Surely, in this age of affluence and unlimited imagination, no child should go ates this fall "sobered." "They without the toy of his choice. -MARION are still radical in their view-& RAYMOND GARMEL IN THE NA-
