

You Should Know

Miss Marion Jessemann

It is natural to use a reference from books as a person when profiling a librarian. While any one of hundreds could be selected for Miss Marion Jessemann, children's librarian in the Anna Caroline French Junior High School, it is Miss Chesney Library, a not-to-be-missed one from literature seems appropriate.

In his satirical pose subtly attacking the loss of individualism, W.H. Auden ends "The Unknown Citizen" by asking: "Was he free? Was he happy? The question is absurd. Had anything been wrong, we should certainly have heard." Although Auden assumes a hesitant reply at best, or a scolding "No" at worst, Miss Jessemann unreservedly answers "Yes" to the poet's queries.

"Manchester can be proud to have such a beautiful area for its children and young people as the Anna Caroline French Junior High School. It is a joy to work in an area such as this."

Defines Library

Miss Jessemann defines a public library as a place that, by means of all its resources, offers the best of the past, the pertinent of the present, and the promise of the future to be ready to meet new needs. Her role in attempting to make the library vital and significant community institution, she is constantly striving to build a fine collection of books and, increasingly, audio and video tapes for the child, student, parent, young worker; in fact, the entire community.

"Further, I hope the library will help to enrich the life of the world of ideas, in all its facets. The library is a happy and congenial place where one spends minutes or hours, knowing all this is his."

South Windsor Town Officials Working To Avert Mill Rate Rise

Town Councilman Robert Sills last night told the council that South Windsor's grand list is like the ship in Samuel Taylor Coleridge's poem "The Rime of the Ancient Mariner." Sills pointed out that the town will lose $2 million at the start of this year, according to the published grand list figures, with little or no chance for additional funding. However, he added that town officials are working to keep the town mill rate from rising more than three mills for the coming fiscal year.

Sills cited the diminishing capacity of the people of the town to pay bills because of the financial crisis and called for an immediate meeting with all those town officials charged with the expenditures or the recommendations for expenditures of money in the town.

Sills first put in a motion for a meeting as soon as possible to discuss the town's financial crisis. He said he was faced with the fact that the town's mill rate is rising more than three mills for the coming fiscal year.

Hard Rock Is Softening Along the Grammy Trail

NEW YORK (AP) — Hard rock is hardly in the running this year, in the nomination for Grammy Awards, those "On Cars" of the record industry, awarded annually by the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences.

The awards ceremony will be held this year, for the first time, on March 18, from Los Angeles.

The first program is, in fact, reflected in the five melodic selections nominated Monday for the year's top award, Record of the Year: "Bridge Over Troubled Water" by Simon and Garfunkel; "Close to You" by the Carpenters; "Everything Is Beautiful" by Ray Stevens; "Fire and Rain" by James Taylor; and "Let It Be" by the Beatles.

Album of the year nominees feature three of the same performers: "Bridge Over Troubled Water" by Simon and Garfunkel; "Sweet Baby James" by Carole King; and "The Concert for Bangladesh" by a large band of performers, including Eric Clapton, Jimi Hendrix, and many others.

Bolton Ice Hockey Under Way

The hockey program in Bolton got under way yesterday at Herriot Memorial school with approximately 30 boys turning out for the initial registration and practice session.

Coach Jim Marshall expressed pleasure with the first meeting. He said the boys have a great deal of enthusiasm and some considerable promise. The first practice was devoted to some basic exercises and drills, including foot-coasting technique, stopping and skating backward.

The boys were also instructed in the correct manner of holding the hockey stick. Marshall noted that many of the boys did not know the proper size stick. The stick should come to the boy's chin (with his arms extended) and be determined whether a left-handed or right-handed stick should be used.

The boys have little or no experience with the sport, and an occasional helmet or over-protected bench served as a deterrent to more aggressive play.

Seaport Idea Is Vetted In Study by State Unit

HARTFORD (AP) — Citing both economic and ecological problems, a state-financed study said Monday there is little justification for a major seaport development in Connecticut.

"New London stands alone as a thing of a vicious cycle," said the report, which noted that already adopted to most major waterfront commercial requirements, it has been on the increase; truck traffic has increased; and the New London area is the most favored of shipping products out of state—many of them to other seaports.

"Connecticut shippers will be commisioned to study the environmental aspects of a seaport and more efficient facilities, and the ecological climate is best near the eastern limits schedules, the report said. New London is situated in an active river, the Thames, where stronger current would sweep silt into the open sea.

The $100,000 study was sponsored by the Connecticut River Commission and the State Department of Transportation. The study, commissioned by the legislature, was headed by Charles A. McGuire of Westfield.

The study said that new modes of marine shipment are physically adaptable to the Connecticut River. Three major ports—New London, New Haven and Bridgeport—were added. The study also noted that the economic justifications for taking such action are tenuous at best.

It predicted that any major port development in the state would have to operate at a deficit and under a subsidy, which "should not be dismissed out of hand, since it is common occurrence for many existing major ports."

By A.H.O.

Shortly after the beginning of work hours in the State Capitol building this morning, the woodworkers will take a quiet look about to see whether the sun of Legislative Management is beaming brightly on the building.

If it is, the woodworkers will resign themselves to another six weeks of basic emergency pounding and hammering, cutting and fitting.

But if, this morning, the woodworkers can't see their own shadows upon the wall, there is no longer any corner of the Capitol open enough to accept the projection of a shadow, they will melt quietly into the partitions they themselves have just erected, pass free to other endeavors, and leave the good old building quiet enough for the legislators to hear themselves and the birds of spring, any moment now.

When we ourselves last visited the building, the woodworkers were busy building a magnificent new wing, which was to be a temporary expedient in the permanent new features of Capitol architecture even as it was being pounded together.

The partitioning was being built out into the open corridor floor space in front of the chamber and around the perimeter of the chamber.

On the third floor, the woodworkers were busy building a magnificent new wing, which was to be a temporary expedient in the permanent new features of Capitol architecture even as it was being pounded together.

Inside Report

WASHINGTON - The dangerous prospect that the Soviet Union may soon have a Soviet-controlled naval base on the Mediterranean coast of Egypt is now being taken here with utmost seriousness.

Equally foreboding, pro-Western Arab leaders themselves are now saying privately that Israel does not seem to agree to withdraw from the Egyptian Sinai Peninsula - a key objective of the United States.

Yas, but what a flexible limit, with a built-in upward bias. Using the full employment formula, spending in the fourth quarter is estimated at $29.2 billion. That is not only a staggering sum; it is also a by no means modest increase over the $27.5 billion in the fiscal period that ended only last summer.

Now suppose that, partly under the impetus of the new expansionary full employment budget, economic activity does pick up considerably in the second quarter. If so, revenues will go up without change in the tax rates. The more they rise, the more the deficit is reached, the better the bill for still higher spending. And so on and so on. This is the fiscal trap.

Another argument for the new approach is that it would help to achieve economic stability by automatically imposing restraint during periods of boom and providing stimulus during periods of slack.

First of all, if you can always spend as much as "full employment" revenues permit, there is the restraint during periods of boom. Moreover, the statement bluntly shows how far a supposedly relatively anti-interventionist Administration has gone toward accepting the idea of a managed economy - managed from Washington, that is. In a comparatively free economy, such as ours, has been thought to be, full employment would hardly be the criterion of Government budget-making.

Full employment is itself a slippery notion, of course, even though economists increasingly agree that the rate is reached when the unemployment rate is reduced to 4 per cent or so. Still, much is misleading; it is downright erroneous, about the whole business of employment statistics; it is a false foundation for fiscal policy.

Finally, there is an unescapable sum of pluses about this talk of a full employment budget. Surplus from the real life budget, in its deficit. For fiscal 1972 the real deficit is projected at $11.6 billion, following an awesome $18.8 billion deficit in the current period, but the full employment budget for 1972 boasts a surplus, albeit tiny, of $100 million.

Such doubling in illusion could well be a powerful incentive for relentlessly higher spending year after year, that prospect seems only too likely to be self-fulfilling. - WALL STREET JOURNAL.

One month ago most of us made New Year's resolutions. Now that a month has gone by, perhaps we should ask ourselves how well we have done on them.

Most of us have probably forgotten and ignored most, if not all, of these resolutions. Perhaps the reason is that these promises we made ourselves were not based on the right reasons. Everything we do should be based on the teachings of Christ in the Gospels. Christ should be an important, integral part of our everyday life.

Perhaps some will smirk and say, "You've fashioned this in." But, perhaps it is just this attitude that has caused so many evils in our life today.

If we are going to make any resolutions and keep them - in January, February or any month of 1971, then let it be Christ and His Gospel will be the ruling factors in our lives.

The Cumberland Farms Store at Center and Tucker Sts. was held up by two shotgun-wielding men last night, who fled with an undetermined amount of cash.

At about 11 p.m. two young white males came into the store and asked for a pack of cigarettes. When the clerk turned back toward them after getting the cigarettes, he found a sawed-off shotgun pointing at him and was told to empty the cash register. Police are unsure whether the men were on foot or in a car.

Once the armed bandit had the money, they ordered the clerk to crouch down in front of the counter and they disappeared from the store.

Manchestera Area

The per pupil educational costs for Manchester area towns ranged from a high of $697 in Bolton to a low of $456 in Columbia for the 1969-70 fiscal year, according to a report just released by the Connecticut Public Expenditures Council.

The figures described by the report are based on the 1969-70 fiscal year. The report represents the operating expenses of administration, instruction, attendance and health services, operation and maintenance of plant, fixed charges, and other costs for food services and student body activities and tuition payments to other towns and regional school districts.

The CPEC has discontinued the annual survey of town expenses for pupils in each of the state's 169 towns, due to the new state law providing for lump sum payments for that service, since this makes it difficult to compare town-to-town expenditures on this basis misleading in many instances.

Although Bolton's 1969 per pupil cost is considerably higher than the average of $509 for the area towns, it is well under the top figure of $1,207 in Vernon, also achieving a 20 per cent increase in enrollment during the past five years, compared to an average 10 per cent increase in the other area towns.

Other area towns in the $1,000 plus per pupil category are Tolland and Coventry, Manchester and Bolton. Bolton's 1969 per pupil cost is $697, compared to $456 in Columbia.

Population Gains - Reported in previous year patterns of enrollment increases, Bolton and Tolland registered a 20 per cent increase in enrollment last year.

Over a five-year period Vermont's 1,468 student increase outdistanced Tolland's 454 students, on a percentage basis, Tolland's 30 per cent student enrollment increase far surpasses Vermont's 1969-70 to 1969-70 increase of 20 per cent.

Hebron shares honors with Vermont, also achieving a 20 per cent increase in enrollment during the past five years, compared to an average 10 per cent increase in the other area towns.

CPEC Study of Per Pupil Costs

The per pupil educational costs for Manchester area towns ranged from a high of $697 in Bolton to a low of $456 in Columbia for the 1969-70 fiscal year, according to a report just released by the Connecticut Public Expenditures Council.

The figures described by the report are based on the 1969-70 fiscal year. The report represents the operating expenses of administration, instruction, attendance and health services, operation and maintenance of plant, fixed charges, and other costs for food services and student body activities and tuition payments to other towns and regional school districts.

The CPEC has discontinued the annual survey of town expenses for pupils in each of the state's 169 towns, due to the new state law providing for lump sum payments for that service, since this makes it difficult to compare town-to-town expenditures on this basis misleading in many instances.

Coventry Housing Code Approved

The Town Council passed the housing code last night, and confirmed that March 9 is now the definite date for the referendum.

A proposed omnibus ordinance was put back to the steering committee for further review after considerable discussion.

The agenda was so lengthy that there was no time left at the end of the meeting for a report on the sewers.

The March 9 referendum will give the townpeople a chance to decide whether or not they want a municipal system for the lake and village areas.

The housing code that was adopted last night was the subject of a public hearing at last Monday's council meeting at which several residents voiced their concern over the enforceability of the code.

There have been problems in this area with the previous code. A lack of time regulation in the use of lawn mowers or motor-cycles.

Councilman Albert Bradley said that his chief concern was safety and that he "would hate to see someone get killed."

He urged the council to submit a list of general rules to the legislature in the newspapers and it was agreed that this would be done.

There was also considerable discussion as to what the state legislature will do. City, in terms of omnibus regulation, and ultimately it was agreed that this would be an important factor.

Glaciers president, Joseph Quinn, pointed out that the omnibus code already regulates omnibus use in speed, regulation, and noise control, and provides fines and penalties.

Quinn questioned whether or not any more than this is needed, particularly since enforcement is so difficult.

Heardings and approval are provided for, as well as suspension of permits of rooming houses.

Several members of the Glaciers Snowmobile Club attended to hear the council discuss possible regulations relating to the snowmobile use and to offer their comments.

There was general agreement that snowmobile complaints being lodged by citizens are the necessary action.

Members, but against out-towners who are coming to town on weekends to use their vehicles.

Several councilmen said they felt the ordinance as it stands now is not ready for passage and needs more work.

Members of the audience offered several comments including the fact that many feel the ordinance is designed solely for the lake area rather than the entire town. One resident pointed out that this doesn't make sense since almost all of which several residents voiced complaints have centered on areas other than the lake.

Varied Ideas Offered For Sontay Raid

count on using the prisoners as hostages for a political settlement embarrassing to the United States, that he would take steps as drastic as invading North Vietnam to secure their freedom.

A corollary to this idea is that Mr. Nixon was trying to demoralize the North Vietnamese with one quick, decisive blow in the same way that Ho Chi Minh demoralized the French with the edge of Dien Bien Phu in 1953. Militarily, the French could have carried out an operation like Dien Bien Phu but the operation broke their will. Similarly Mr. Nixon would have demoralized the North Vietnamese leadership, this thinking goes, if he were to capture the prisoners actually being held in Hanoi and would have induced Hanoi to make a settlement with the living, the United States and the South Vietnamese.

Agostinelli Fete Said Sold Out

The Feb. 13 testimonial dinner for Agostinelli at the State Theater on Main St. is a complete sell-out, Thompson said today.

The testimonial is being sponsored by "Friends of Agostinelli," to honor Manchester's Italian hero. The first person in Manchester's history to be elected to an office on the state ticket.

Agostinelli was mayor from November 1966 to January 1971. He resigned as mayor and a town director on Jan. 5 the day before being sworn in to his state controller job.

The Feb. 13 testimonial dinner will be attended by about 400 persons. It will be at the State Theater, 100 State St., Glastonbury Hills Country Club.

ANASHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The National Aeronautics Association awarded certificates for two world helicopter speed records here Tuesday to the Sikorsky Aircraft Division of United Aircraft Corp. in Stamford, Conn.

The certificates were presented to Sikorsky president Wesley A. Kuntz at the Helicopter Association of America convention.

One award was for test pilot Byron Graham, who piloted the company's new helicopter in a loop at a speed of 216.7 miles an hour over the three-kilometer distance Dec. 14. The second went to Kurt Cannon, who flew the same helicopter over the 15.2-kilometer distance at a speed of 220.8 miles an hour on Dec. 15.

Nixon's 'Full Economy' Finds Inflation Off Stage

By JOHN O'NEILL
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Now that the shooting starts and while the number of jobless rose no did wages.

Now, with all Americans assured that the administration will be seeking a surge of economic growth in 1971, a new pattern is expected from business and labor. It's a large order without an incomes policy.

Another area in which the President's expansionary plan must free the money for the President's expansionary plan? It would appear that some indication of cooperation has been received. Maybe not.

Following are the words of Alfred Hayes, president of the powerful Federal Reserve Bank of New York, delivered to bank Macon. The appointment was made by Mrs. P. Sturud, master of the lodge.

Ferguson is the senior warden of the lodge and is a past high priest of Delta Chapter, Royal Arch Masons, and a past three illustrious master of Adoniam Council of Royal and Select Masters.

The lodge's senior deacon, Roger S. Abner of 18 Esplanade St., has been appointed as secretary-treasurer of the event.

The dinner-dance will be Saturday, March 6, at the Glastonbury Hills Country Club.

Hostesses are Mrs. John Hughes Jr., Mrs. Alfred Pantioli, Mrs. John Ziemack, Mrs. Alfred Ritter, Mrs. Stanley Baldwin, Mrs. Charles Lathrop, Mrs. Francis Mahoney, Mrs. Carroll Hawtherne, Mrs. Oliver Cromwell, and Mrs. Gertrude Hawthorne, guest book.

Doocking Overcome

TOPPERA, Kan. (AP) — The Republican leader of the Kansas Senate kidded Democratic Gov. Robert Doocking a little Monday in connection with space activities.

Sen. Glee S. Smith, Senat's president pro tem, said in the senate he felt encouraged about the future success of the legislature.

He held up a newspaper bearing a headline which appeared to read "Doocking Problem Overcome."

He handed over the word "Apollo" at the beginning of the banner.

Divorce Rate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Census Bureau says the divorce rate in the United States jumped 38 per cent in the past 10 years.

The bureau, in a report released Monday, said its findings were based on interviews with 50,000 households. It said it found of divorced persons for every 1,000 married couples last year compared with 300 divorced couples 10 years ago.

Bird Toll High

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The oil spill in the Golden Gate two weeks ago has taken the lives of nearly 3,500 waterfowl, the California Fish and Game Department says.

"By actual body count," said a spokesman for the agency which has been coordinating efforts to save oil-damaged birds, some 2,400 birds have died other being picked up alive.

He estimated 800 birds still survive in the various rescue and washing centers. The spokesman could not say how many birds were found dead.
