apers is having an immediate effect

The C.L.A. Analysis publication of the Pentagon

n the way the Nixon Administration is andling its own role in Vietnam. First, we should all notice that we are eing given a much more intimate glimpse into the kind of debate and disussion the latest Hanoi peace proposals s receiving inside the Nixon Administraon than we have had of any previous liplomatic event in the long war.

There has been a careful effort, on the art of Administration spokesmen and olicy makers, to pay public attention to he potential hopes as well as to the potential false lures in the new proposals from Hanol. We have, so far, seen the American responses taking shape.

econd, it is a very special part of this new openness of discussion of policy that-a tead role in such discussion has been assigned to, and been made public or, the C.I.A.

The C.I.A. is the often maligned and always suspected agency which, in the entagon Papers, surprised everybody by coming out better than all the braintrusters of either the Defense or State departments as an expert on what could be done and what was likely to happen

Now, perhaps on the strength of that new reputation, the C.I.A. seems to have been given the special task of appraising the new peace proposals at Paris, and is credited with having produced "perhaps the most pessimistic -but also the most realistic" of all the appraisals being studied at the San Clemente White

What the C.I.A. has concluded is not being held secret for future historians, but has been provided to the press immediately, and the organization's main conclusion about the July 1 peace proposals reads as follows:

"The Communists doubtless hope that their initiative on the prisoners coupled as it is with a restatement of their basic position on United States withdrawais - will make things awkward for the United States Government both at home and overseas.

"They may also believe that their political proposals will appeal to many in the United States who are looking for a face-saving way out of the war. They probably are also hoping that the new proposal will fuel worries in Saigon

"The new formula for a political settlement in South Vietnam, by its fuzziness and air of reasonableness, is designed both to encourage individuals in South Vietnam whose support of the war is wavering and to give some ammunition to those who are already working to build an anti-Thieu, anti-war con-

about Washington's longer-term support.

This C.I.A. analysis is quite in line with other less expert conclusions, which have credited Hanoi with a clever attempt to trap President Nixon out in his own unwise emphasis of the prisoner of war issue. It is to be noted that not even the most persistent doves on the political scene have become overnthusiastic about Hanoi's proposals, which may mean that even they see ter this but Miss Goolagong's service these proposals as more of an embarrassment of the President than - a sound basis for peace in Vietnam.

In Recognition Of Chafers

It may be that one of the reasons why the ancient Egyptians held one of its Scarabeidae cousins sacred was what it seemed inevitable there must be something supernatural about anything so stinctively inimical to the very heart beauty, so completely devoid of any pos sible claim to redemption. It is pure evil raised to the highes point which we think of, at any rate, whenever we encounter the chafer on the rose. We don't know whether it is directly related to the particular beetle which, as the scarab, became sacred to the

All we know is that it is ugly to look at, and even uglier to see at work. We know that it flies about only to seek the inner most petals of the loveliest bud on the healthlest bush, and that, with such selective appetite, it can ruin in a morning what may have taken a year's loving

There is something perversely perfect about such total villainy, such instinctive expertness of destruction. We think we must admit, in a kind of perverse praise, that the rose chafer is far and away tops among pestilences. There is, next to the doveliness of a perfect rose, nothing else so clearly and completely the ugly opposite.

Springtime Of A Great Talent

In a little more than an hour the whole world of women's lawn tennis was turned upside down at Wimbledon on Friday ast week. Margaret Court, the top seed, the reigning champion, and last year the second woman in the history of the game o achieve the grand slam of the four major singles titles, fell by 6-4, 6-1 to Evonne Goolagong, her 19-year-old chal lenger, playing in only her second Wim-surprise, although Miss Goolsgong had beaten the senior Australian at Melbourne earlier in the year and had run her close in the national championships at Sydney, but the manner in which it was accomplished. The margin of victory was the widest since Althea Gibson beat Darlene Hard in the 1957 final and she is the youngest champion since Karen Susman in 1962. It is also true to say that she is the most exciting champion Wimbledon has known since Maria Bueno another 19-year-old, who won in

She lost only one set—a bad beginning to her fourth round match against Lesley Hunt on the windy first Saturday-on her way to the title and, in her splendid sec-ond week, she beat Nancy Gunter at a cost of five games Billie-Jean King 6-4, 6-4, and then ended with a brillian flourish of graceful courage against Mrs Court. The tougher the matches, the be ter she plays. Her nerves held. While more experienced players struggled for accuracy, took deep breaths, and tried conquer their inhibitions, she continued her serene, progress through the Roughly translated "Goolagong means "tall trees and cool water" in the Aboriginal language. That summons up the right kind of image. Calmly, natural ly, she flowed through this tournament. Scarcely a squeak has been heard from the "Women's Lib" (was that winter tour of the United States too long and too taxing for those who took part in it? Everyone has been busily looking a Miss Goolsgong and wondering she could go on hitting beautiful shots in y situations. Instinctive tennis is the easiest of all tennis to appreciate. Her attack was simple ando direct. Nor did she heap on herself the burden of overmuch expectation. She did not expect to win the title this year.

But, oddly, once she had moved ahead in the second set, we had the oddity of hearing sympathetic applause for Mrs. court—a sound which hadn't been heard Billie-Jean King beat her in the first match in 1961 when the Australian girl had been seeded number one. Mrs. Court had steam-rollered her way through, losing a set only to Judy Daltor and otherwise looking as formidably efficent as ever. She had won seven successive matches against Miss Goolagong there was no particular reason hink the pattern would be changed this ime— except that Miss Goolagong was responding to pressure in a way which was quite different from any other player in the women's events. The tide seemed to be flowing for her. At deuce she would go for her shot in a way nobody else did. Mrs. Court can't erestimated the task. She was p against an athletic player with great peed and the power to hit clean, fierce ts with absolutely nothing to lose.

beginning was daunting. Mrs. Court served her way to a 40-15 in the first game, and then was beaten by a couple of forehands. The capture of the game was followed by a surge of aggression from the young player. She was gentle between points, smiling shyly t and sharply resolute when she had hit the ball. That is the way Wimbledon likes its players, not snarling with fury all the time but somehow managing o walk the awkward tightrope between oughness and feminity. She went to 4-0 and then at last Mrs. Court began to move with a little of her majesty. She won the next three games and reached 40-15 on Miss Goolagong's service for four-all Suddenly Miss olagong, whose service was always a oringboard for attack when it worked operly, counterattacked. A couple of orehand volleys, a rally in which she was lucky to get away with a dropshot to Mrs. Court's backhand, and that most deadly of all volleys, a couple of mishit carried her to 5-3. Both held service af-carried her to the set. When Miss Goolagong stood at the umpire's chair at the end waiting for Princess Alexandra to present her with the championship shield, she looked over where Vic Edwards and his wife were sitting and grinned. We almost felt we had watched a piece of brilliant impudence: The new queen had caught everyone offguard and nipped away with the crown. She will wear it modestly. It is good to see a player who manages to win great tournaments and still feels tennis is a joke that has just began. - MAN-

The shoestring catch is no more than his glove aloft with the ball tucked the name implies. An outfielder moving in on the ball grabs it off his shoetops. It is probably the most exciting play an outfielder can make (with the possible exception of catching the ball over his shoulder) because inherently he has to be off balance at the moment the glove makes contact with the ball, since he's coming at full speed and yet has to be bent low enough to scoop it up before it bent low enough to scoop it up before it hits the ground. The shoestring catch also leads to some spectacular acrobatics as the fielder strives to maintain a bona fide shoestring catch on a wind-

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) - Trouble flared in Belfast early today when a crowd threw stones and nail bombs at firemen battling a blaze started by an explosion in an empty house. British soldiers replied with a volley of rubber bullets.

Shots rang out as troops tried to clear the way for firemen, but no one was injured seriously, an army spokesman said. Four persons in the crowd received minor injuries and a civillan was arrested. In a similar incident Friday

Lee Majors: Lawyer Learns to Tie Tie

By JERRY BUCK

HOLLYWOOD (AP) - Lee Majors, who's played almost exclusively in Westerns, says it's tough making the adjustment to contemporary young lawyer. He was in "The Big Valley" series for four years and made his movie debut with Charlton Heston in "Will Penny." In the past season he was one of "The Men from Shiloh."

In the fall, Majors will costar with Arthur.Hill in the new ABC Thursday night series "Owen Marshall, Counselor at Law."

"I can't get used to these suits," said Majors, touching the lapels of his conservatively cut, dark blue suit. He laughed and said, "I've been practicing tying ties all week, When I walk on the set I think I'm visiting on someone else's stage."

Majors, a dark blond 6-footer who turned down a pro football draft because of a college injury, plays a gridiron hero who earned his law degree between seasons. When he's finally benched by a burn knee his Marshall.

The show was cocreated by David Victor, who also created "Marcus Welby, M.D." The similarity does not end there. Marshall is a general practicioner of law in Santa Barbara, just as Welby is a general practitioner of medicine in Santa Monica. And each has a young and eager assistant who chafes

Majors is not in the two-hour pilot movie, which will be shown on ABC a few days before the series premiers in September. After the network put the show into the schedule he was offered the part, along with several other projects, by Universal Stu-

"I wanted to get into something contemporary," he said.
"I've missed some good film parts because producers don't think of me."

He did play a lawyer in the movie "The Liberation of L. B. Jones," and suggests, "I guess somebody took a look at that and decided I could help 'Owen Marshall' a little bit."

After six years of mostly Westerns, Majors said it "feels different" to be on the set with-out the familiarity of saloons and bunkhouses.

"In a Western you have a habit of pushing your way through saloon doors, ' he said. "I had a scene where I had to go thorugh the swinging doors of a police station and I almost pushed them open like I was going in for a shootout." Majors said, "The dialogue and the attitudes and the pacing are different, but I just play it as before. I just do it my way."

TV Notes

Richard Denning, who plays the governor on "Hawaii Five-O" on the CBS Television Network, lives on Maui in Hawaii, where he moved after a career of more than 150 movies and 300 television shows

Tom Pedi of "Arnie" on the CBS Television Network appeared in such pioneer television shows as "Omnibus" and 'Mr. Peepers."

Action Opens On 'The D.A.'

Production has started on "The D.A.," a half-hour drama which will premiere on the NBC Television Network Sept. 17. Stories are based on true incldents which have been processed through the Los Angeles district attorney's office.

Robert Conrad and Harry Morgan star as Los Angeles County Deputy District Attorney Paul Ryan and Chief Deputy H. M. "Staff" Stafford, respectively. Julie Cobb, daughter of Lee J. is featured as Deputy Public Defender Katherine Benson. Ned Romero co-stars in the recurring role of district attorney investigator Bob Ramirez.

Alan Crosland directs the first segment to be filmed, "The People Versus Gayda,"

The series, filmed at Universal Studios, is a Jack Webb Mark VII Production in association with NBC-TV.
