Town Unveils Seal and Officially Greets

Coventry

The dedication of the new town seal was witnessed last night by some 116 visitors from Coventry. England, and members of 77 ost families from Coventry,

The dedication was the ceremonial portion of "Welcoming Night "

Wesley Lewis, chairman of the Town Council, explained that the new coat of arms was a combination of features from Coventry, Conn., and Coventry, England. Lowis designed the seal and Mrs. Barbara Goodin did the sculpture.

The arms consists of a shield livided vertically, half red and half green (the seal is not yet in color, but soon will be) representing Coventry, England; on the left side of the shield are three arrows representing the Nathan Hale family and on the right side, three early brand marks for Coventry, Conn.

The crest is a gold elephant carrying a castle with three towers which is a device taken from he shield of Coventry, England. The left side of the shield is supported by the American Bald Eagle, which replaces the Engish's phoenix and the right side is supported by a black eagle symbolic of ancient Coventry. The motto "Altiora In Votis" translated means "Desire Greater Things."

Coventry, England's young Trevor Wiggins and Coventry, Conn.'s Tim Pesce were participants in the dedication ceremony. The two boys stood under the coat of arms, representing the two towns, after it was unveiled by Town Manager Dennis Moore. A copy of the arms in color will be sent to England in care of Trevor to be placed in the town Guild Hall.

Each visitor was given a color reproduction of the new seal. Lewis extended a "warmest welcome to the people", lescribing their visit as an extremely wonderful visit for us." He introduced members of the Town Council, the Chief Adninistrator, and Chief of Police Robert Kjellquist. "I hope you will know all these people before you leave Coventry." Lewis said. The scenes in the high school varied; most of the people con-

Hanoi And The Trip

Wednesday, July 21

reason Hanol is lacking in imenthusiasm for President Nixm's trip to China is that the mere news of the trip has taken Mr. Nixon out of he possible trap Hanoi had so carefully set for him with its new "seven point" proposal toward peace in Vietnam.

Before the President dazzled the world with the announcement of his future trip to China, the President's chief worry was supposed to be that of how he was going to evade Hanoi's offer to swap elease of American prisoners for American withdrawal from Vietnam, Hanoi, it seemed, had caught him off-base in his own over-emphasis of the prisoners issue, and, by offering to give him what he had made seem so very important on that issue, made it difficult for him to bargain effectively for other conditions of peace, such as some guarantee about the military and political conditions which would exist after American troops had been withdrawn.

The announcement of the President's trip to Peking has not answered Hanoi's seven point proposal, but it has overwhelmed it from the propaganda point of view. With that proposal Hanoi had the initiative; now President Nixon has taken the ball. No wonder Hanoi burns. here is a second reason Hanol is un happy, and finding this reason requires no analysis. Hanoi tells the world itself what it doesn't like about the President's What Hanoi doesn't like, and we can't say that we blame it, is the possibility that the United States is "trying to achieve a compromise beween the big powers in an attempt to make smaller countries bow to their arrangements."

"It is the traditional practice of the imperalists," says the Hanoi newspaper editorial in question, "to impose their will on others by force and to rely on their strength as big powers to bully smaller countries. Now they want again to resort to this ridiculous practice." But, it said, "the time when a big power could bully a smaller country has' ended for good."

e . The Hanoi editorial doesn't mention China by name the way it does mention the United States, but the history of the region is clear enough, Although we are currently fighting North Vietnam and China is currently helping North Vietnam, China is the "big power" North Vietnam has been fighting and resisting for centuries, as against only one decade's experience with us.

If United States policy makers could have realized and believed this, way back when the post-war independence movement in Vietnam was exploring the possibility of imitating Yugoslavia, and looking to the United States for at least a benign neutrality, there might have been peace in Indo-China, all this time. Instead American policy seems to have decided that Hanoi was inevitably a menacing extension of the Chinese-Russian arm, and that, consequently, South Vietnam, whether it itself had any particular will in the matter or not, had to play the role of the small country which would take our help and provide the spot for us to "halt Communism." There might have been peace all this time in Indo-China if the big powers could have kept out of playing their own games in Indo-China. Now, however displeasing it may be to Hanoi, there is at least one thing the big powers do have to contribute to any future peace in the region. They have to agree to keep their big hands out and off, except in a joint guarantee that no small nation-Hanoi papers please copy-shall take over the role of bully.

The Peace Of Rain

One forgets, until a long enough d rivation freshens the senses. Then, when it rains, it is something nore than the actual descent of water from the skies.

It is a message to lawns, a whisper to the corn, a reversal of form as striking and as welcome as the original rain-

The tension of the long spell without rain eases slowly, warily, drop by drop, afraid, for a long time, that there will not be fall enough to do some good. Finally, when a drenching is guaranteed beyond doubt, there is a feeling of reorientation.

It looks and feels like a different kind world; one has a sense of starting some new cycle of things with different houghts; the dominant sensation is one of peace, a peace in which there is nothing more important or pressing or pleasant to be done than to sit at the edge of the fall, if one can arrange it, and watch and listen and let the good sense of it seep into the roots of one's being.

Disclosure In A Democracy

The United States Supreme Court's decision to allow publication of the Penta gon papers is of profound importance. n effect, the majority of the court have preferred the First Amendment to the American Constitution, which forbids the Government from making any law "abridging the freedom of speech, or o the press." to the widely drawn prohibitions of the Espionage Law, This latter, ike Section 2 of our own Official Secrets Act, leaves journalists and others open o prosecution or other legal process for shing almost anything that authorty holds to be inimical to the national Public opinion, in Britain as in the United States, is understandably confused about relations between Government and the press. Both claim to be its watchdogs, yet each is deeply - and rightly - suspicious of the other. Whom trust? The answer, of course, is that he citizen cannot trust either all the time. His best safeguard is their mutual

The Nixon Administration does have case against publication. First, it can point to its political disinterest, for on he evidence available the publication vill be more damaging to Democratic istrations and to their party unity han to the Republicans. Secondly, it can argue that many of the documents pubished are advocate papers, and that taken out of context they give a mialeading mpression of the original authors' real positions. Thirdly, it can maintain-and many British as well as American pubc servants will echo this-that frankness in Government will become impossible if the minutiae of internal debat are susceptible to detailed and selective eaking. Fourth, they can argue that historical truth is unlikely to be served by leaking done with a missionary purpose, tedly in this case.

There is some validity in all thes points. The State does have a duty to protect its servants from tendentious disclosure of their private positions Newspapers have a duty not just to puband be damned, but to publish and be fair. But what the supporters of secrecy do not squarely face is the enormcus bias which already exists in government-and more gravely so in Britain than in America-against giving the public information at a time when it can still influence decisions. This law of life appears to apply to officials whether their concern is the war in Vietnam o the bus fares in a small tofn. The business of governing becomes more difficult when the public insists on taking

This mood is measured in the number of documents which are stampted "top secret," "secret," or "confidential" in Administrations round the world. In the Pentagon there are apparently 31,000 officials who can classify a paper as con fidential. Their labours fill six million cubic feet of file cabinets. One expert says that "putting 'top secret' on a doc-ument, to some, is like putting a period at the end of a sentence." It is not surprising that Mr. Nixon has initiated process of rolling declassification though it will probably take years. All that the law, in Britain as in America, ought to be concerned with is genuine national security. Preeminently this means hardware. The leaking of detailed informaton about weapons which would help an enemy is and ought to be an offence, whether it is committed by a spy or a newspaper. The leaking of plans which put people's lives in danger must also be covered. Newspapers already exercise a self-denying ordinance when such information comes their way. The Guardian recently could have published army instructions to soldiers in Northern ireland. It refrained from doing so be cause some of the information might have made it easier for the IRA to ki or wound soldiers. The Pentagon papers are somethin quite different. So was the Biafra report which led to the notorious-and unsuc cessful-prosecution of the Sunday Tele graph. Where the State exceeds its proper function in such cases is in seeking to extend the legitimate protection of nasecurity to something called the national "interest." Too often the national interest is a synonym for anything which embarrasses a politician or offi-cial in Washington or Whitehall,

Mr. Justice Caulfield, in a notable summing-up of the Telegraph trial gave warning of the dangers to a free society if the press were muzzled in such cases. so that it became "no more than a pawn of the political power." He asked whether Section 2 of the 1911 Official Secrets Act ought not to be pensioned off. Lord Franks and his committee are now considering this. The American Supreme Court decision surely points the way. The abuse arising from the use of the aw as an instrument of censorship is greater than the undoubted problems reated within government when the leak becomes a way of life and of politics. - MANCHESTER (ENGLAND) GUARDIAN

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. -- Among all the other angles, the Nixon trip to Peking needs to be viewed historically from the Chinese

Peking has been a capital city or roughly a thousand years, and foreign potentates or their envoys have turned up there practically every year as regularly as the winter solstice or the fall equinox. They have come for a great variety of motives, usually to present tribute in order to profit from trade, some to get their legitimacy confirmed, others to ask for military help and still others to demand payoffs to keep them

Some chiefs of state have come unwillingly, like the King bination in today's dramatic nar-1215 or the Manchu Regent Dor-Ch'ien-Lung Period, we can exrative. Abraham sets out to gon in 1644. But in nearly every pect Chou En-Lai to be equally obey an unusual command. As case the trip to Peking has been dared chiding their big brothers to the north. Nevertheless tory just as much as we do. 1 of Malacca in the early fourteen our press and courts have rehundreds, and some as con- cently been quoting a bill of querors like Genghis Khan in rights which dates from the latconcerned about principles inherited from China's long experience in dealing with foreign visitors.

The foreign visitor is a guest of the state and like any guest should follow the rules of proper decorum not for him to wag his finger argumentatively under the chairman's nose. There will be nothing like Vice Presiden Nixon's kitchen-exhibit debate with Chairman Khrushchev

Dignity precedes advocacy. Just as personal conduct reflects character so the state ceremonies symbolize the social order. Whether the Nixon visit inaugurates state-to-state relations or is still covered by a stretched-out "peoples diplomacy," it will stress his personal quest for peace. He must com committed and live up to his promise.

This creates a crucial burden of advanced preparation and negotiation. In the days of the Chinese Empire which did business with the Taft Administration western dignitaries in Peking sometimes found with dismay that words translated into Chinese changed their meaning in unfortunate ways. Persona "liberty" (tzu-yu) turned into "license." What do "sejf-determination" and "sovereignty" mean in Chinese today? How are they related? Russian ambassadors of the 17th century went through long hasales over the kowtow because it directly affected the basic structure the state (t'ichin).

China's state structure toda is very different but still new and a bit amorphous, still evolving. One of its major compo "Mao Tse-tung" nents, Thought," has room in it for "American capitalistic imperi alism" but it is not the seat of honor due a guest. Montmartre...A Way of Life

The serious artist keeps a certain detachment

You may come to Montmartre after visiting a museum housing rows of masterpieces of the centuries past. Here in the Place du Tertre you are surrounded by living painters at work. You may just have paid homage to the Mona Lisa in the awesome plendor of the Louvre. Here in this cobbled square you can sit down and have your own instant portrait lone in charcoal.

The ancient village of Paris known as Montmartr is more than a place, it's a way of life. And at the heart of its life, among labyrinthine streets where writers and artists and nightclubs and workers flourish, is the Place du Tertre.

In a city with riches, elegance and cultural treas-ures to offer the visitor, tourists still flock to Montmartre. Perhaps the charm of Montmartre is indeed the piquancy of its contrast with that other Paris. On one hand is the city of wide boulevards, grand avenues and spacious squares. Above it rises Montmartre, a jumble of steep, winding streets on a hill dominated by the white basilica of the Sacre-Coeur. The streets which Utrillo loved to paint are probably familiar to you even if you've never set foot in an art gallery, so recognizable and so imitated is his style. In fact, there's almost invariably an example of it being labored over somewhere in an open-air Montmartre studio, any day of the year.

Inspiration of the artist carries through to selling her art with conviction.

Lconomy Surging In Saudi Arabia By ELIAS ANTAR

Associated Press Writer JIDDA, Saudi Arabia (AP) Fueled by a whopping increase

n oil revenues, the Saudi Arabiin economy is surging ahead. Estimated increases in proiuction and higher oil prices are ikely to result in revenues of at least $1.7 billion this year, compared to $1.2 in 1970, knowledge able sources estimate. Thus the government is exected to have $500 million more in oil income this year. 'Although we have all this extra money, we are not going to it," said an official informed on government fiscal planning. "We are going to spend it very carefully indeed." hough heavy defense ex penditures are reportedly planned, the government aims to insure that this will not slow down growth. The budget for the Saudi fiscal year, which begins in August, is now being prepared. The various ministries have sked for allocations totaling $2.66 billion compared to allocations of $1.44 billion, in the present financial year. "The Finance Ministry is looking closely at every projec and every request," said one official. "There will be an easing of the past squeeze and substan tially more spending, but the government is also keen on improving reserves." Oil brings in about 85 per cent of government income. This year the government is expected to benefit from an increase in production as well as the higher prices negotiated last

In 1970, oil production averaged a record 3.8 million barrels a day. Most of the oil-31/2 million barrels a day-was pro duced by the U.S.-owned Arabian American Oil Co., Aramco. Judging by performance i the first quarter of this year, sources say, production by Aramco and other companies i 1971 may average 4.3 million barrels a day. The relative slowdown in the economy in the past two years was due to high defense and se-curity expenditures plus cash payments to help Egypt and Jordan. Saudi Arabia has been paying the two countries $150 nillion a year since the 1967 war with Israel.

Initial government spendin will probably be on such pumppriming activities as municipe works, expansion of the road, telephone and electric power networks, and on improved war distribution systems. This is expected to result in a ausiness upswing. Saudi Arabia imports every from shoes to equipment for water desalting plants, plus most of its food requirements. The United States is still leading as the country's chief source of imports but there is growing competition from Britain, France, other European countries and Japan. Provided that the Middle East does not go to war again, most knowledgeable sources here agree that Saudi Arabia's longterm economic prospects are good. Government planners are now using as a guide a five-year plan prepared with the help of the Stanford Research Institute.

Bike Tour Offered By Amsterdam

By JOYCE VAN MEER MSTERDAM, Netherland (AP) - The city is offering a new type of tour this year-b bicycle. For $5 a tourist can join group of no more than 15 under the leadership of an attractive guide in a yellow costume. The price includes, insur ance, use of a bright yellow bi-cycle, lots of food, drinks and

The tour begins at mid-morning at De Drie Fleschjes tavern near the royal palace on the Dam. Participants get a brandy while being fitted to their bikes. Everyone receives a yellow lke bag to be slung over a shoulder. This "survival kit" is one of the souvenirs. It contains maps, tourist material including the paperback book, "Surpris nig Amsterdam", a miniature of gin or a liqueur, moist paper owels, sugar cubes for energy plus pipe tobacco for men and mints for women.

From a small cart attached to their bikes the leaders provid yellow slickers and hats in case the weather turns bad. The cart also holds a big bottle of gin and glasses which may be used to while away the time during any traffic jams. The cart serves as repository for jackets, hand bags and cameras.

The first stop is the Tobacc Museum where visitors learn a lot about the history of smold and each gets an old-fashion clay pipe

Riding along canal street lined with 16th century houses the next stop is for a wine cheese and pate lunch just of the Leidseplein. Later, the 17th century almshouse, the Begijnh of, has a peaceful courtyard of fering repose. It is a popula place for the Dutch on their unch hour. Protestant and Catholic churches are open for risitors.

The path then leads the oldest part of town to the 15th century Weeping Tower where Henry Hudson set sail for the New World. The building is being reconstructed into a tay ern, cafe and diamond museum It's called the Weeping Tower since the wives o fDutch sailors are supposed to have waved goodby there as the old mer traders sailed for the East Indies.

F. Buckley Jr., editor of the National Review, says his magazine perpetrated a hoax with fictional Vietnam papers to show that such forgeries "would be widely accepted as genuine provided their content was inherently plausible." Buckley revealed the elaborate spoof Wednesday after a large segment of the American news media had carried stories on what the magazine called highly classified government uments relating to the Vietnam war."

"We admit we proceeded in something of an ethical vacuum." Buckley told newsmen with a broad grin, but he suggested that somewhere in the government archives were real documents similar to the forg eries printed in the magazine "The point is that the papers, or something like them, must have been written," he said. Therefore, one concludes that the difficulty was not that the Pentagon and the CIA gave LBJ bad advice, but that LBJ didn't take good advice." Another aim of the hoax, he said, was to demonstrate "that the Pentagon and the CIA are not composed of incompetentsthe unwarranted conclusion to which many were led by the fragmentary revelations of the New York Times and The Washington Post." Appearing under the title, "The Secret Papers They Didn't Publish," the National Review "documents" included dispatches attributed to former Secretary of State Dean Rusk, the OIA and others, Most were dated in the early 1960s. Suspicions of a hoax grew
