formerly of Manchester received his jacket last week, just before he returned to Missouri. He spent eight days as a counselor while on a visit to Manchester. "He did such a terrific job, that we just had to give him a jacket," Smith said. The water repellent jackets, some yellow and some tan, were purchased with funds left over from a 1969 Brotherhood in-Action grant. plus some funds from the Camp Kennedy Patch Fund. This marks the third year that jackets have gone to outstanding counselors. (Herald photo by Leggitt)

Apollo 15's Chores

The astronauts of Apollo 15 are scheduled to dig a hole eight feet deep on the moon and then lower into it a thermometer. From this vantage location, readings may make possible some more definitive pronouncement on the moon, together with a determination of the rate at which the moon's interior is cooling off, all of which may lead toward more certainty about the origin of the Right now, on the basis of what moon exploration to date has revealed, our scintists are inclined to think that he moon was born out of the same cloud of gas the earth was, at the same time. Besides obtaining more accurate easurements of the moon's temperature, the Apollo 15 mission will also be aiming at more precise reports on the seismic activity on the moon, with a view to determining what causes it. Such seismic activity has been recorded, and "moonquakes" seem to occur regularly. One explanation may be that the high temperatures in the core of the moon are still generating volcanic activity of the type that obviously, in the past, played its part in shaping the outer sur-

Another explanation of seismic activ ty on the moon may be that it results, from inner heat, but from some inner instability which is subject to the pull and haul of the earth's gravity. Just as moon exerts tidal action on the waters loose on the surface of the earth, so the earth, it is speculated, may cause tidal action on the possibly molten interior of the moon. What will we do with such knowledge, if we succeed in making it firm? What difference will it make in anything we do or plan to do? We don't know, and we never really know the results of the pursuit of knowledge, even when we organize pursuit with some definite, tangi-We only know that something usually

Fledgling Time

After spending a half an hour intermittantly watching an adult robin and her offspring, we concluded that human mothers are not the only ones upon whom duty and diligence sit heavily.

This is the period when the season's fledglings are venturing into the world. It is an anxious time for the mother birds, whose responsibilities are increas-ed many times beyond what they were when the maternal task was chiefly con fined to incubating the eggs.

Young birds, like young children, can be such a care. They can never get enough to eat, and this alone keeps mother bird busy particularly when the brood, having left the nest, are sufficiently dispersed to make parental feeding chores more difficult and unremit Mother and offspring were in the azalea bush near the wall when we first observed them. The young robin, fully fledged, but unsteady of wing and leg, rousing when the parent arrived on sev eral occasions with a white moth to be stuffed down the gaping mouth of the young bird. The parent made several trips. If the interval between feedings grew too long, the bird, with the im patience of the young, uttered several piping cries. We fancied that these protests drew a parental rebuke, not merely because the parent did not enjoy being harassed, but more importantly, because the cries o juvenile distress might alert a maruding from the shelter of the bush into an open of the youngster, denoting the robin's kinship with the thrush family, came in-

of an ornamental plum tree, we descried town had 19 more births, 74 three young bluejays and a solicitious more marriages, and 37 fewer parent who was striving to keep them all under control. They were more venturesome than the young robin, either be-cause they were older or were more forward in temperament. The parent bird found riding herd upon the growing generation a demanding task. But she never gave up, and, like the parent robin, she stuck to her post despite weariness and anxiety which only a mother, human or Middle Toke, from Adams St. avian, can feel. - MERIDEN RECORD. to Hilliard St. is reopened.

A Play on Problems of Staging Play

Confusion and consternation reign backstage in this scene from "The Torchbearers," a comedy about the problems of staging a play, to be presented Tuesday and Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. at East Catholic High School by the Manchester Community Players Summer Teen Theater group. Here Mrs. Ritter Wendy Piero) swoons after coming offstage, as Mr. Spindler, the director (John Aubin) clutches his clipboard in a gesture of "last straw" frustration. Other cast members, trying to revive her, are from left, Mr. Twiller (Mary Alice Dwyer), Mr. Hossefosse (Ron Hindle), and Mrs. Pampinelli (Reges Mc-Keough). Proceeds will benefit the Drug Advisory Center.

Notes -:-

Suzie Kaye Stone of "Love Is a Many Splendored Thing" on the CBS Television Network acted in movies nine years, played leading roles in West Coast stage productions, sang and danced at Las Vegas nightclubs.

William Demarest of "My Three Sons" on the CBS Television Network saw the handwriting on the wall for vaudeville when a theater manager asked him to cut his headline act to allow extra showings of a Mae West movie.

Mary Tyler Moore, CBS Television Network star, asked to be released from her first regular television role after weeks. She was Sam in "Richard Diamond"; all viewers saw of her was her shapely legs.

Peggy Sears, young singer on "The CBS Newcomers" on the CBS Television Network, holds the title Miss Teen-age Dallas.

J.B. Connally To Face Nation

Treasury Secretary John B. Connally Jr. will be the guest on "Face the Nation" this Sunday on the CBS Television Network. The broadcast will originate in Washington.

Connally, a former governor of Texas and close associate of Lyndon B. Johnson, is the only Democrat to hold a cabinet post in President Nixon's administration. He has been the administration's leading spokesman on economic affairs.

Connally will be interviewed by CBS News Correspondent George Herman, moderator of the weekly broadcast, and two other reporters to be named.

"Face the Nation," a presentation of CBS News, is produced by Prentiss Childs and Sylvia Westerman. Robert Vitarelli is
