

Steel Strike Averted But Prices Hiked

PITTSBURGH (AP)—U.S. Steel Corp., the industry pacesetter, hiked prices on virtually all products today, a little more than 12 hours after the steel industry and the United Steelworkers agreed on a strike-averting contract.

The move by U.S. Steel came as most of the nation's steel mills remained shut down by the steel companies in anticipation of a strike over the weekend by the 500,000 union members.

U.S. Steel said the new five-month price schedule, calling for an 8 per cent increase on carbon and alloy products, would help offset the cost of the new three-year contract.

The pact gives steelworkers an average 30 per cent pay hike. Settlement was reached Sunday night, three hours before a scheduled midnight nationwide walkout.

Meanwhile, union leaders said they would look into reports of steelworkers being turned away when they reported for work late Sunday night and early today.

After Sunday's contract settlement, some companies began calling maintenance and production employees back to work. But at other plants, workers reported they were being turned away, saying they would be informed when to return to work.

The hike will apply to virtually every product turned out by U.S. Steel, a spokesman said, including sheet and strip products used in the manufacture of autos and appliances, structural steel used in the construction industry, raw pipe and conduit steel, railroad products, and plate steel used in the construction of water towers, shipbuilding and other large-scale projects.

Most of the country's other major steel producers said they were "studying" U.S. Steel's announcement and would have no immediate comment. But if past history is followed, most of the other companies probably will follow U.S. Steel's lead within the next several days.

Senate Set For Vote On Lockheed Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—A vacation-minded Senate has agreed to vote up or down today a bill to rescue the financially tottering Lockheed Aircraft Corp. with a $250-million loan guarantee.

The outcome is uncertain. The Lockheed verdict topped a crowded, controversial congressional agenda on get-away week from Friday until Sept. 8. But Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said if Congress is forced to step into the spreading rail strike situation, the vacation schedule might have to be pushed back.

"We just can't go on like this," he said. After nine days of debate, the Senate has dropped a $2-billion bill authorizing loan guarantees for financially ailing businesses, and agreed to act instead on a House-approved bill to aid only Lockheed.

That $250-million measure clearly is in trouble. Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., the sponsor, would say only that the outcome will be close. Sen. Lowell P. Weicker, R-Conn., a leading opponent, said: "The chances of beating it are good."

Sponsors had fashioned the broad corporate-rescue bill to lure Senate votes for the aid that Lockheed and the administration insist is vital before mid-August to ward off bankruptcy. But the House voted Friday night for the $250-million Lockheed guarantee, 192 to 189, and Speaker Carl Albert said it would go no further.

That led to a hasty round of Senate negotiations Saturday, and the bill was scaled back to $250 million with approval of Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally. "It looks like it's going to be that or nothing, and I'm not sure they can get that," said Mansfield. "We're in a time crunch" (See Page Nineteen)

Pact Settles Rail Strike

WASHINGTON (AP)—Negotiators announced today a contract settlement providing 42 per cent wage hikes over 42 months for about 200,000 trainmen, and said pickets would be removed from 10-strike-bound railroads.

Settlement of the 18-day old strikes in the dispute involving all of the nation's major railroads came after a 17-hour marathon bargaining session at the Labor Department. It averted a possibility of congressional intervention to halt the crippling strikes.

The agreement also included changes in ancient railroad work rules which the industry had demanded in order to increase efficiency, and which will probably result eventually in some loss of jobs. "I am happy to announce an agreement has just been reached on a new labor contract that would end the railroad strike," Asst. Secretary of Labor W.J. Usery said.

"It has proved once again that if negotiators will be honest with one another and be fair with each other, collective bargaining will work," said (See Page Ten)

House Recoils From Override, Backs Vetoes

By SOL E. COHEN (Herald Reporter) The Connecticut House of Representatives adjourned at 1:50 today after it failed to override Gov. Thomas Meskill's veto of eight bills. It will reconvene Wednesday.

The House set a pattern in its first roll call vote which indicated that all 173 of Meskill's vetoes will stand. At 11:30 a.m., with the State Senate standing at recess the House took up the laborious task of debating and taking roll call votes on 38 of the 173 bills.

The 38 bills were chosen by Democratic leaders as the ones most likely to receive bipartisan support. However, when the first roll call was taken it lost by an 81 to 84 vote, and it was obvious that none of the 38 bills would get the 119 votes (the two thirds required) for passage. The first bill, Public Act 209, concerned exempting municipalities from liability for damages done by mobs.

One of the vetoes which the House failed to override was a bill introduced by State Rep. William O'Neill, D, of the 82nd District. The bill, which had passed both houses unanimously, concerned the establishment of Drug Dependency Unit at the Rocky Hill Veterans Home and Hospital. The bill failed on an override (See Page Ten)

JFK Push for Civil Rights Seen Encouraged by LBJ

WALTHAM, Mass. (AP)—Douglas said Kennedy described Secretary of State Dean Rusk as an "errand boy." "The (Kennedy) told me he took Rusk because he was a good errand boy," Douglas said. "Jack was his own secretary of state and he knew what he wanted to do. Rusk was never the great formulator of policy, the great thinker."

Kennedy, the records showed, considered the ill-fated Bay of Pigs invasion in Cuba as his greatest mistake. "I think that the hopeless invasion of the Bay of Pigs is looked upon by President Kennedy as the Achilles heel of his brief term as president," Roman Catholic Archbishop Richard Cardinal Cushing of Boston said in a personal note. "The President felt very, very sad about it all... It was the first time in my life I ever saw tears come into his eyes."

Another document in a letter to Kennedy from Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., written about a week after the invasion. Goldwater urged Kennedy to invade Cuba, but conceded that the Soviet Union might retaliate with an invasion in Berlin, Iran or elsewhere. But the senator said he felt the Strategic Air Command could handle the invasion quickly and be able to counter any Russian threat. "Because of this," Goldwater (See Page Nineteen)

Astronauts in Lunar Orbit After Blastoff from Moon

These photos, shot from a television screen, show the lunar module blastoff of Falcon this afternoon.

Rock Discovery Deemed 'High Point' of Moon Trip

By BILL STOCKTON AP Science Writer SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP)—Lunar scientists are intrigued by the unusual rocks collected by Apollo 15 at the base of the moon's Apennine Mountains. They're eager to get them into the laboratory and find out if they might be as old as the moon itself. "The rock is definitely the high point of the traverse," Dr. S. A. Zlot of Massachusetts Institute of Technology said Sunday after astronauts David R. Scott and James B. Irwin collected two rocks Scott excitedly described as anorthosites. The description was followed immediately by cautious speculation the moon explorers might have found pieces of the original lunar crust formed more than four billion years ago when the moon was a molten blob beginning to cool. "Guess what we just found," Scott said. "As a matter of fact... oh boy, I think we might have ourselves something close to an anorthosite." Anorthosite is a rock that contains almost 90 per cent plagioclase—a mineral composed of calcium, sodium, aluminum and silicates. Finding pieces of anorthosite—especially pieces with large crystals as Scott and Irwin indicated their samples contained—is significant because of a popular theory that the original lunar crust might be composed of such rocks. The anorthosite, the theory says, was carved out of the moon's primordial surface when great objects from space struck the earth satellite. The chunks rained down on certain regions of the moon forming the lunar highlands. Apollo 15, which landed on the edge of the lunar highlands, didn't yield any large rocks that could definitely be identified as pieces of crust. Pieces of anorthosite were found on earlier missions, but they were so tiny and their origin so uncertain that no one could be sure if they were from the crust. What is needed is a large piece of anorthosite that can easily be studied and passed around to many scientists. The lunar experts hoped anorthosite would be more abundant on the slopes of the Apennine Mountains because more of it would have been thrown there when a 50-mile wide object struck the moon and created Imbrium Basin to the north. The astronauts had been carefully schooled to look for it. "That's why they got so excited. We've taken them on field trips on earth to see bodies of anorthosite so they would be familiar with it," explained Dr. Robin Brett, chief of the geochemistry branch at the Manned Spacecraft Center. Anorthosite, while rare on earth, does exist in several areas including Wyoming and the Adirondack Mountains. "It has been the notion of most of us that anorthosite is old," said Dr. Harold Urey of the University of California at San Diego. "Of course, finding out will have to wait until we get it into the laboratory." Most rocks on the moon that have been carefully studied to determine age are less than four billion years old. Scientists say a piece of the original lunar crust would have to be (See Page Ten)

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP)—Apollo 15 astronauts David R. Scott and James B. Irwin blasted off safely from the moon today after three days of historic lunar exploration. A television camera gave earthlings their first look at a launching from the moon. As the bug-like Falcon blazed into the lunar sky, Scott and Irwin started a tape recording of the Air Force song: "Off We Go Into the Wild Blue Yonder." Both are Air Force officers. They immediately began the intricate maneuvers required to chase and catch astronaut Alfred M. Worden, orbiting 68 miles high in the orbiting command ship Endeavour. The two ships were to link up at 3:04 p.m. EDT. Worden passed over Hadley Base 90 seconds before liftoff and told the moon explorers he had them in sight. Packed with the moon explorers in the lunar module Falcon was a treasure chest of 230 pounds of rocks and soil that might include primeval rock and evidence of volcanoes on the moon. Before leaving, the astronauts parked their moon buggy so its color television camera was pointed to transmit the pictures of the blastoff. The three astronauts plan to spend two extra days in lunar orbit conducting scientific and photographic experiments before heading toward earth late Wednesday. A burst from the engine at the base of the cabin section of the lunar module vaulted Scott and Irwin on the first step toward home. They left the descent stage of the Falcon behind on the dusty (See Page Twelve)

U.S. To Back Seat in U.N. For Peking

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State William P. Rogers announced today that the United States will favor seating of Red China at the United Nations General Assembly this fall and will oppose any move to oust the Chinese Nationalists. "We think the realities of the world require that both be represented" in the world body, Rogers explained in issuing a long-awaited Nixon administration announcement. He noted that Communist China has some 700 million people and Nationalist China some 14 million. He said of the Peking regime: "After all they represent about one-fourth of the people on the surface of the earth." The Rogers announcement marked an historic switch from U.S. efforts over the past years to prevent Peking's entry into the United Nations. (See Page Ten)

Experiment Reminiscent Of Galileo

By BILL STOCKTON AP Science Writer SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP)—If Galileo Galilei were alive he probably would be tugging at his beard with pleasure about the elementary physics experiment Apollo 15 astronaut David R. Scott performed today on the moon. Scott dropped a hammer and a feather from waist high to illustrate that both objects are accelerated equally by the moon's gravity and that both would hit the surface at the same time despite their differences in mass or weight. The experiment, similar to those Galileo did 300 years ago from the top of the Leaning Tower of Pisa in Italy, was performed on color television beamed live from the moon as Scott and James B. Irwin were finishing up their final lunar excursion. "In my left hand I have a feather. In the right hand a hammer," Scott said, standing (See Page Nineteen)

For a long time, the fellow who tried to pay cash was made to feel some kind of outcast, almost as if he were violating the law.

Now there is a movement on foot to make paying cash a respectable practice.

And, even more, to make it profitable. But here is where the fantastic, unbelievable contortions come in.

In order to realize a saving by paying cash instead of charging things, the consumer is going to have to join an organization just like a credit card organization, except that it is a cash discount organization.

This cash discount organization not only issues identity cards to its members, but it persuades and organizes the merchants who will agree to give such cash discounts.

By such intricate and laborious means, then, we may be able to step back toward that yesterday in which those who wanted credit paid for credit, while those who wanted to pay cash saved themselves money.

As it has been, during the interim, the cash customer has been paying the same price for goods as the credit customer. This has meant, in effect, that the cash customer has been helping pay the credit fees, the bookkeeping expenses, and the losses from purchases made with fraudulent or stolen credit cards.

We wouldn't believe any of this if we hadn't just read it in the Wall Street Journal.

But there it is, in that newspaper's responsible black and white. It may get to be some day, that you are silent and not just a man. If you pay in cash, it may get to be that sales personnel will deal with you cheerfully, and not make signs behind your back announcing what a queer you are. It may get to be that, practicing an ancient, sound, puritanical process, that of not buying until you can pay, you will come out ahead of all those smart, fashionable financiers who measure their prosperity not by what they own, but by what they owe.

We Had A Secret
The announcement of Henry Kissinger's secret mission to Peking, coming so soon after the disclosure of the Pentagon secrets, is not expected to be the last secret offered to a waiting public.

It is felt that an American audience judge by the fictions of TV and movies may demand more and more secrets along with increased government support for cities and towns and off-track betting.

Even now 44 rural weeklies are supposed to have been let in what Rep. Bella Abzug really said when told of reports that President Nixon and other administration officials had cracked jokes about the new National Women's Political Caucus. The next wave of revelations will contain the jokes themselves.

It is recognized that such disclosures may be no more earthshaking than the anticipated power: Labor union support and the Jewish vote.

This contrasts sharply with the carefully orchestrated program of leaks from the White House about how formidable would be as Democratic nominee. One high-level Presidential aide avowing great respect for Kennedy's process, even places suitably modest bets that he will be the Democratic nominee.

Such talk derives from Her Rabbit and the briar patch. In truth, the President and his closest advisers feel Kennedy would be the easiest foe they could possibly come up against and are acting to see him nominated. Their reasoning: Instead of Mr. Nixon's economic failure, the campaign would revolve around Chappaquiddick. Moreover, Democrat-watchers at the White House believe Mr. Nixon's opponent most likely will be either Kennedy or Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota. They continue to downgrade front-running Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine, viewing him as a Democratic version of George W. Romney. As for Jackson, the White House is certain that the Democratic party has gone much too far to the left to ever nominate him.

A footnote: Although his public opinion ratings continue to be microscopic, Jackson is gaining with Democratic pros. The continuing poll of the party's state chairman, National Committeeman and Governor conducted by Martin Hagan of Oklahoma City shows Muskie slipping 17 percentage points to Jackson picking up 4 percentage points to 15 per cent. The next highest possibility has 8 per cent.

Displaying the increasing velocity of the Muskie bandwagon, his political operatives now have close to a firm commitment from Bob Moretti, powerful Speaker of the California Assembly, to endorse Muskie sometime this fall.

At the same time, Moretti has delivered an ultimatum to his close friend, Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana. Unless Bayh's spurring campaign can show some tangible accomplishments by mid-October (a highly unlikely prospect), Moretti has told Bayh, he will have to abandon him and support Muskie.

Nixon Fears Scoop

By Rowland Evans Jr. and Robert D. Novak

WASHINGTON — Despite all the propaganda pouring from the White House about how much Richard M. Nixon fears another Nixon-Kennedy race in 1972, the truth is that the Democrat the President believes would run best against him is Sen. Henry M. (Scoop) Jackson of Washington.

In private conversations with top political aides, President Nixon makes clear he feels Jackson's combination of broad-anti-Communism and hard-line anti-Communism would be toughest for him to defeat.

While generating defections on the Democratic left, the President feels Jackson would eat heavily into Republican strength and retain two pillars of Democratic power: Labor union support and the Jewish vote.

This contrasts sharply with the carefully orchestrated program of leaks from the White House about how formidable would be as Democratic nominee. One high-level Presidential aide avowing great respect for Kennedy's process, even places suitably modest bets that he will be the Democratic nominee.

Such talk derives from Her Rabbit and the briar patch. In truth, the President and his closest advisers feel Kennedy would be the easiest foe they could possibly come up against and are acting to see him nominated. ## League On Tax

The members of the League of Women Voters of Connecticut, representing all income groups and all areas of the state, are continuing to urge the General Assembly not to repeal the state personal income tax. Any proposed changes in it should wait until they can be considered through the orderly, proper procedures of the next session of the legislature, only six months away.

The League of Women Voters favors a progressive state personal income tax as part of a balanced tax package which also includes a state sales tax no higher than the present 5%.

1. Yield from the income tax will be adequate and dependable. Since estimates based on increased sales taxes tend to be overly optimistic, an unrealistic tax estimate will create an even greater deficit than at present with a correspondingly greater tax hike next time around.

2. The income tax is based on ability to pay. Sales taxes are based on levels of consumption which do not increase proportionately with increases in income. Neither are they discretionary, as proponents claim.

Spacemen Blast Off: In Orbit of Moon

surface where they had collected more than 200 pounds of samples that may hold secrets of the creation of the solar system.

On their third and final excursion today, Scott and Irwin drove to the edge of a deep canyon and climbed part way down the wall to gather rocks that could tell scientists if it was carved by ancient lava flows.

The whole Mission Control team congratulates you on a job well done," flight controller Gerald Griffin radioed to the astronauts as they concluded their exploration.

Mission scientist Dr. Joseph Allen said the fact that the astronauts reported layering in the walls of the canyon is evidence that the lava flows were formed by several lava flows. Other lunar geologists said they would not be able to tell until they examine the pictures and rocks being returned.

Scott and Irwin: 4th orbit 6:09. Scott and Irwin spent 4 hours 45 minutes outside today on one hour 15 minutes less than originally scheduled. They fell about 30 minutes behind yesterday because of minor equipment problems, and that they carried over to today.

On the three excursions, they totaled nearly 19 hours outside and drove their 20-wheeled lunar rover car about 15 miles. The car today cut off nearly five miles of planned distance.

They drove the runabout a mile today through a desert-like field of dark, jagged rocks to the rim of the boulder-strewn canyon, one mile across and 1,200 feet deep.

They had not intended to climb down into the canyon, but they found the upper 40 feet was a gentle slope and they walked down easily that day.

Scott and Irwin brought back more geological treasure, hoping to equal what they collected Sunday when they discovered what some scientists believe may be rocks dating back a billion years to the birth of the solar system.

The astronauts were based on the fact that the prize rocks, found in a crater, contain several of the large crystals of the type that may have made up the lunar crust.

The thing Worden may have added to the growing evidence that volcanoes once existed on the lunar surface, however he reported he could see cinder cones in the southeast corner of the Sea of Serenity.

Before leaving the moon with more than 200 pounds of rocks, Scott and Irwin captured a special U.S. Postal Service stamp depicting the astronauts in the lunar rover on the moon with the landing craft beside them.

In a final tribute to science, Scott stepped back to the television camera and told earthlings: "In my left hand I have a feather. In my right hand I have a hammer. I have these here in this because of Galileo's objection over falling objects in gravity fields.

What better place to confirm his findings than on the moon. The feather is a falcon feather for our Falcon. I'll drop the two of them and hopefully they will hit the ground at the same time.

"We're ready to start home," Scott said as they entered the lunar module for the last time. "It's been fabulous up here."

Scouting ahead the rover earlier, Scott exclaimed of the surrounding mountains: "They're all white today. Just beautiful."

The visit reminded Irwin of one of his favorite Biblical passages from the Psalms—I look unto the hills from whence cometh my help, but of course we get quite a bit from Houston, too. The reference was to Psalm 121, Verse 1.

They missed a chance to gather other possible volcanic evidence when Mission Control told them to skip a planned drive to a series of craters about two miles to the north because time was running out. The astronauts started late in the morning while trying to extract a drill from the surface, a factor which irritated the rover. He had expressed a desire to get on with the buggy ride to the hills.

When Mission Control told them to head back from the hills, Scott was disappointed when he said: "The North Crater. The really big surprise was up there."

At the canyon they parked the buggy and turned on their television camera to once again transmit a remarkably clear picture to earth.

They were able to walk about 100 feet down a steep slope to a terrace just below the rim and collect more rock samples.

"There's a bear," Irwin said, scooping it up with a rake.

"We see a lot of blocks on the rim," Scott told scientists listening intently at Mission Control. "On the far side of the crater, there are many craters of all sizes. There is no difference in color. However, some of the exposed units look a little gray."

"The blocks that have fallen down seem to have more tan or reddish tint to them," Irwin looks like a crater on the far side."

The TV picture showed the rim littered with many large rocks.

"I see some outcroppings on the far side at about the 40 percent level. They look like boulders with rounded fragments."

Geologists believe the rim was carved by lava flow, which would be the first concrete evidence that volcanoes erupted on the moon.

Some scientists believe the surface of the moon is a desert planet. Some scientists contend, however, that there never was any water on the moon. They believe the lunar rilles were formed by giant gas eruptions that released by the impact of large meteors.

Scott and Irwin over one rock and fell to his hands and knees at one point. His second fall in two days, Irwin said, he was startled by the sound of the command ship R-21 to a surface.

Scott and Irwin worked the ground around the news that the third Apollo 16 astronaut, Alfred M. Worden, had successfully changed the orbit of the command ship R-21 to a surface.

Homes Built Upon Stilts In Malaysia

By MORT ROSENBLUM Associated Press Writer KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP)—Malaysia along the east coast's long-lying waterways are built where they were when the floods hit in January. With their no-drip-to-return houses, it's easy.

They put up wooden stilt houses on stilts, exactly the way those swept away by raging water. Homes are mainly on the same spot as before.

January's floods killed at least 10 persons around Malaysia, causing many millions of dollars damage. They were far worse than usual, but for Malay villagers, they were no surprise.

"It happens every year to some degree," explained one Malay resident. "When the flood rises, you just pick up your belongings and go to higher ground. The water keeps rising, you just look at this. Often houses are washed away, so Malays build disposable houses."

"What else is there to do?" asked an east coast Malay. "We set up a 25 million nuclear power station for washing, communication, fishing, everything..."

In bigger towns the problem is greater, but it's the same approach. First the electricity is cut off. Then hospital patients are carried up to dryer quarters. And the town floods in what is called "low water" (playing in the water).

When water subsides, residents sweep up and start all over.

This year whole towns were deep under water. Thousands had to be evacuated by boat and helicopter. Many went for days without food, suffering from exposure.

British, American and Singaporean relief help, with emergency relief in large-scale airlift operations.

When it was over, authorities renewed with vigor their yearly plea for residents to leave low-lying areas to move to higher ground.

One program offered government equipment help with the building farther from the water. It had little success.

The people, according to local and foreign experts, prefer to stay where they are, even if it means losing a house or two occasionally.

Most have already forgotten the January floods, despite their anguish at the time.

Road signs along the highways show the level of flooding. Occasional water marker poles in the road tower high in the air.

Towns and villages which were under 80 feet of water are now back to normal, with a sign there was any difficulty.

At the government rehouse on one of the highest hills in the island town of Kuala Lipis, a painted notice 15 feet high marks the level of a 1958 flood.

Vanity Mars Wife Salute

Wilson had color photographs taken of each city councilman's wife last week. But there will be a delay before the portraits decorate the mayor's office walls, as scheduled. Two of the five wives insisted on having their picture retaken.

TOKYO (AP)—Communist Chinese Premier Chou En-lai conferred in Peking on Sunday with Le Duc Tho, special adviser to Xuan Thuy, North Vietnam's chief delegate to the Paris peace talks.

Communist China's official New China News Agency, reporting the meeting, did not say what was discussed.

Bridgeport Man Sought in Death

BRIDGEPORT (AP)—Police were seeking Sunday the man allegedly involved in an argument with Joseph Brodie, a local resident, before Brodie was shot to death here Saturday night.

Brodie, 31, was pronounced dead at a house on Bunnell Street after officers said he and Rudolph Wright, also of Bridgeport, had a disagreement. They said they wanted Wright for questioning.

Sea Urchin Hit In Clearout Of Pacific Shores

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Scuba divers say they killed about 100,000 purple sea urchins in a project designed to make the sea safe for seaweed.

Ecologists say the urchins created a seaweed shortage in the Pacific off southern California by killing too many sea otters, which live on urchins. The urchins multiplied unhindered and have eaten most of the kelp that is the habitat of many other marine creatures.

"There's nothing down there any more but the urchins," said one diver. "They've driven away the abalone and the lobster and just about everything."

A team of conservationists started the Purple Urchin Underwater Restoration Project, which began operations Sunday on a boat from Santa Monica and hatches. Divers reported that urchins lay so thick on the ocean floor that a single hatchet stroke sometimes killed eight or ten pin-cushion-like creatures.

Head Back After three stops, they felt they had sufficiently sampled the foothills and decided to head back toward Palcon, in an effort to find craters along the way.

The added maneuverability of the Rover enabled them to climb a 15-degree slope which gave them a spectacular panoramic view of the Hadley Basin.

"That's the biggest mountain I ever looked up at," Scott exclaimed as he looked up at Hadley Mountain and surrounding peaks.

It was while they were on the way down this slope that they came upon Spur Crater and found the crystalline rocks that had come from the original crust.

Back at the landing site, Scott tried to complete the drilling of the second hole, but only managed a depth of about five feet because of the hard rocks, craters and desolate, desert-like terrain, Scott said with wonder in his voice.

"As I stand here in the wondrous unknown Hadley, I sort of realize there's a fundamental truth to nature. Man may explore. This is exploration at its greatest."

It's breathtaking out here," Irwin remarked. "Boy, this is beautiful."

The astronauts had trouble at first removing the Rover from its compartment in the lunar module. When they finally got the Rover out, they discovered it was covered in the footprints of their first exploration with us.

Lifted from the moon was set 15 feet down a steep slope to a terrace just below the rim and collect more rock samples.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP)—A Springfield, Conn. firm has been named a defendant in the $100,000 lawsuit of a Rome, Ga., man who claims the firm's negligence caused the death of his son, who crashed near here.

Lined in the suit of Arthur R. Miller in addition to Looming Division of Avco Inc., are the Piper Aircraft Corp., Lockheed, Inc., Skyway Aviation, Corp. of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., and Audrey Elvis Glorie of Waverlyville, Mo.

Miller asks for damages for permanent injuries he allegedly sustained in the crash of a small plane at Belle, Mo., on April 12, 1970. He says the defendant's negligent faulty parts and failed to use proper care in determining the defects in them.

Catcher's Interference, Balk, RBI on Same Play

NEW YORK (AP) — Catcher's interference, a balk and a run batted in are not unusual in a baseball game... but all on the same play?

The Dodgers had tied the score 4-4 with one run in the bottom of the 11th, had the bases loaded with two out and the count was one strike on Willie Crawford.

The Dodgers had tied the score 4-4 with one run in the bottom of the 11th, had the bases loaded with two out and the count was one strike on Willie Crawford. On the next pitch by Cincinnati reliever Joe Gibson, third base runner Manny Mota broke for the plate. Catcher Johnny Bench grabbed for the ball and put a tag on the sliding Mota. However, home plate umpire Harry Wendelstedt did not make a safe or out call on Mota. Instead, he ruled that Bench prevented Crawford from being free to swing the bat—thus the catcher's interference call.

St. Louis and Philadelphia played a 10-inning game in a game called by rain.

Wilbur Wood's Plans Spoiled by Red Sox

Wood twice was planted two weeks ago when the scoutmaster told he could work Wood both ends of a twin bill. Wood had been the warhorse of the White Sox bullpen for the last three years, during which he appeared in 81 games. His peak performance came in 1968 when he set a league record by pitching in 80 games.

Wood's transition from the bullpen to a starting berth this year had resulted in a 12-10 record with a 3.17 ERA. He was the opener and lasted seven innings of the nightcap before leaving for a pinch-hitter. Actually, Wood's sendoff Sunday wasn't all his fault. The White Sox kicked in three errors in the opening game for Boston. Wood lasted seven innings, giving up all the Red Sox runs and 10 hits before being lifted for a pinch-hitter.

MINNEAPOLIS (ST. PAUL AP) — Manager Bill Rigney became a little leery about the greeting his Minnesota Twins gave New York right-hander Mel Stottlemyre Sunday. Before Stottlemyre, who had ebbed, Tony Oliva and Rich Reese sprayed out singles and Twins could get a man out, and the Twins led 4-0.
