It would be easy, but probably mistaken, to dismiss the projected personal meeting between President Nixon and Emperor Hirohito as a superficial bit of showmanship which will have little to do with the fundamental problems between the two countries.

On the cynical side, one can indeed doubt that the meeting will lead to any real easing of difficulties over President Nixon's new diplomacy toward Communist China or his new economic game plan against Japanese industrial com-

But there is a third element -an intangible element -which is now beginning to cast its ahadow into these two problems and therefore increase the difficulty both sides may have in maintaining sanity and rationality in their relationship with one another. The United States and Japan are beginning, once more, to think bitter thoughts about one another. The United States is beginning to think that Japan has not the slightest intention of exercising restraint in its invasion of American markets. Japan is beginning to think that the United States is reverting to an earlier determination not to understand and cooperate with Japan's inescapable nation-

The two countries, after two decades in which the United States was cheered by Japanese economic recovery, have reverted to conditions near to those of open economic warfare.

And the two nations, after two decades of diplomatic and power politics partnership, have reverted to at least the beginning of a new rivalry in which each is becoming suspicious of the other's potential relationship with Communist

In such circumstances, it is probably better to have heads of state have a meeting, even such a thinly contrived meeting as that now scheduled for Alaska next Sept. 26, when Emperor Hirohito will be making a refueling stop on his way, not to Washington, but to Europe, than it would be not to have them meeting at all. The heads of state brand of amenities can't do very much, really, to thwart the drive of history determined to try to repeat itself, but they shouldn't be neglected.

American story tries to repeat itself, let us at least try to realize, now and then, that this and other repetitions now beginning to darken the world scene are the direct result of our continuing failure to really make, after World War II, the new kind of history we thought we intended when we organized the United Nations. The situation still is that if we don't make that kind of history there is nothing, not even our dread of our nuclear capabilities , which will keep the old brand of history from repeating it-

Further, the behavior of the government of Israel with respect to the Holy places has been exemplary. It has achieved the main pur-pose of internationalization, which is to rovide protection and free access to the loly places for all. Moreover, internationalization proposals go far beyond this protection and free access — the chief goal of religious groups — and therefore must be considered political rather than a religious concern. the Christian-Arab population is dimin ishing in Israel is incorrect, Since the end of the 1948 Arab-Israel war, the Christian and Muslim population of Israel has more than doubled.
