Legislators Would Tighten Rules on Use of Capitol

Although rules regarding use of State Capitol facilities already are spelled out on paper, there are no penalties for violators. Consequently, legislative leaders are considering drafting a bill which would prevent occurrences similar to one of two weeks ago.

At that time, a group of welfare demonstrators took over the Hall of the House of Representatives and earned the corridors of the State Capitol. They created a disturbance during which one legislator received a bloody nose and had his eyeglasses broken, another fell or was pushed to the floor, and a third missed possible injury by slipping into the safety of the press room.

The rules spell out the procedure for requesting the use of any facility in the state Capitol and list the reasons that shall serve as a refusal for permission.

Tolland State Historical Marker To Be Installed Saturday

An official state historical marker will be installed in front of the town administration building Saturday, according to Tolland Historical Society President Edward Patapas.

Appearing at last night's Selectmen's meeting, Patapas described the sign and the society's gratitude both to First Selectman Charles Thifault and to Atty. and Mrs. Harold Garrity for their efforts in obtaining the sign for the town.

The sign measures 45 by 34 inches. It is of heavy cast aluminum set on concrete posts which are sheathed in aluminum.

The lettering is white, on a background of blue, heavy-based enamel and the state seal is shown in full color.

The marker, worth several thousand dollars, was furnished by the State Historical Commission as authorized by the legislature. Several of these markers have been erected in other towns.

Mrs. Garrity was appointed by Thifault to submit the proper wording for the historic marker to the state commission.

The marker describes the town's history. "Tolland, formerly a part of Windsor and named after Tolland, England, was settled in 1713 and received a charter in 1715. The first houses were built in 1719 on Ombit Hill Rd., a highway named after ancestors of President Ulysses S. Grant."

Tolland became prosperous with many industries and was named county seat in 1786. The county courthouse built in 1822 on the green now used as a library, is recognized as one of Connecticut's outstanding buildings of early American civic architecture.

"The century-old Tolland County Jail is now preserved as a museum by the Tolland Historical Society."

Parents Night
Tonight's Parents Night event at Tolland High School is being held in conjunction with American Education Week, and school principal Richard Olson anticipates a large turnout.

He described the evening's activities as "an opportunity for parents to be in conversation with their education program on a one-to-one basis."

The evening's program will open at 7:30 in the cafeteria, with a welcome from the principal. Following the program, a social hour will be held in the cafeteria, ending at 10.

New England Music
"American Music, New England Style," will be featured during Monday night's open meeting of the Tolland Historical Society, slated for 8 p.m. in the United Congregational Church sanctuary.

Local residents as well as members of historical societies in surrounding towns are invited.

The program will be presented by Aaron P. Pratt Jr., a former student of Miss Marietta Pritch, a noted Rockville piano teacher for many years. A graduate of the Eastman School of Music, Pratt has been a member of the Hartford Conservatory of Music's piano department for 25 years, and has made frequent appearances in recitals and concerts in the Hartford area.

Pratt has served as chairman of the Music Department of Loomis School for 17 years.

Interested in the development of American music, Pratt has lectured often on the subject to various groups, including historical societies. His most recent such appearance was at the fall meeting of the Connecticut League of Historical Societies, Inc. at Stonington.

Your Options in Voting

When you cast your ballot in Tuesday's election, you can vote for any six candidates for the Board of Directors, REGARDLESS OF WHERE THEIR NAMES APPEAR ON THE MACHINES IN RELATION TO ONE ANOTHER.

You can vote for any two candidates for Selectmen, REGARDLESS OF WHERE THEIR NAMES APPEAR IN RELATION TO ONE ANOTHER.

You can vote for any four candidates for Constable, REGARDLESS OF WHERE THEIR NAMES APPEAR IN RELATION TO ONE ANOTHER.

You can vote for any two candidates for the Board of Education, REGARDLESS OF WHERE THEIR NAMES APPEAR IN RELATION TO ONE ANOTHER.

The same is true for candidates for the Board of Education term beginning in 1972.

You can vote for either of two candidates for Town Treasurer and either of two candidates for an unexpired term on the Board of Education.

There is only one candidate for Town Clerk, whose name appears in both the Republican and Democratic columns.

You can vote a straight party ticket by pulling either the top or bottom party lever.

You can split your ticket by pulling a party lever, then turning up the pointers over the names of candidates for whom you do not wish to vote, and turning down the pointers over the name of candidate for whom you do wish to vote.

You can ignore the party lever, and vote by pulling down the pointers over the names of candidates for whom you wish to vote.

The machines are geared so that you can not cast more votes than you are entitled to.

Rogers Asks Speed In Okinawa Treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers today called for the Senate to ratify quickly the treaty returning Okinawa to Japan in 1972, saying such action will protect and promote U.S. security interests in the Far East.

Chairman J. W. Fulbright of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, who opened hearings on the treaty, said it was being considered against a backdrop of strained relations between the United States and Japan. He also cited the signing of the People's Republic of China in the U.N. General Assembly and the situation in Nationalist China as something that must be considered.

Fulbright said these developments would have "substantial effects" on U.S. security interests in the Pacific.

Rogers was the first witness to appear before the committee.

Fulbright told Rogers while he regretted the U.S. position at the U.N. General Assembly that for whom you do not wish to vote, and turning down the pointers over the name of candidate for whom you do wish to vote.

Rogers said the return of Okinawa provides for reversion of an area historically associated with Japan. And Fulbright called it "the end of an era in U.S.-Japan relations."

"It settles the last major issue arising out of World War II and removes the last vestige of American occupation," Fulbright said.

Rogers noted Japan has agreed to pay $200 million for the physical assets of Okinawa and that the treaty reaffirms the pledge of Japanese Prime Minister Eisaku Sato to President Nixon when the two signed a formal communique last year covering terms for future security relations.

Some believe a full-scale review of U.S.-Japanese relations may result from the two days of hearings on the treaty to return the island to Japan after 27 years of American rule.

The Nixon administration expects to win both committee approval and Senate ratification of the treaty signed last June but not without some controversy.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., has expressed the view of some conservative quarters that Japan—not mainland China—constitutes the greatest potential threat to the United States in the Far East and that caution should be exercised in returning strategic military bases to a former enemy.

The recent textile agreement between the United States and Japan was expected to remove latent opposition to the reversion treaty on the part of senators from Southern textile states.

Rogers told newsmen Tuesday the textile agreement and Japan's efforts to keep the Nationalist Chinese in the United Nations "are going to help a great deal" in the administration's drive for ratification.

Called to testify with Rogers at today's hearing were Under Secretary of State P. Alexis Johnson, a former ambassador to Japan, and State Department Japan experts.

Deputy Defense Secretary David Packard and Lt. Gen. James B. Lampert are scheduled to testify Thursday on military security questions raised by the treaty.

The Diet, Japan's parliament, also is considering the Okinawa reversion and legislation necessary to put it into effect. Although the measure is expected to win ratification there, sharp debate may arise over legislation permitting the United States to continue its use of some military bases on the island for the life of the U.S.-Japan security treaty.

Weather Modification: Who Owns the Clouds?

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — "Who owns the clouds?" The question was posed by Dr. Louis Blount of the University of Arizona's Institute of Atmospheric Physics.

"If I take my share of rain from a cloud and you don't get yours, what happens?" Blount asked Monday at a meeting of the National Biological Congress.

"These are questions that become real as weather modification becomes real."

During a discussion of man's attempts to control the weather, Blount said there were some forms of weather modification to which no one would object.

"As far as I know, the tornado does no good whatsoever, and it kills a lot of people," the Arizona meteorologist said.

"But even in hail suppression research, there are differences of opinion."

"The wheat farmer doesn't want hail on his crops, but the cattle rancher doesn't care if it falls in 200-pound blocks as long as it doesn't hit his cows. He bridges, formed by the erosion of wind and water on sandstone. Just wants the water."

Dr. Cecil Genney of the National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration also ment.

provided a question with a potentially sticky answer. In Project Stormy which he heads, scientists have succeeded in reducing the strength of hurricanes by bombing them with chemicals, but they are wary that their efforts might cause the big storms to change direction, Genney said.

Then he asked: "If a hurricane headed for New Orleans was needed and then headed for Galveston, Tex., who pays the bill for the damage, who comforts Galveston?"

The right to make rain became a real problem for residents of South Florida during a prolonged drought last winter and spring.

Federal scientists succeeded in producing rain with cloud seeding operations. The rain eased drought conditions, but it also drew complaints from tomato growers that it could destroy their ripe crops.

On Half Time Propaganda

Out in Ann Arbor, Michigan, some of the students of the University of Michigan are circulating a petition in support of a proposal to put on an anti-war show during the half-time of the homecoming game against Indiana Saturday.
 The anti-war show would feature the students and the school band marching in peace symbol formation while members of the local chapter of the Vietnam Veterans Against the War would be reading the names of the school's war dead over the stadium public address system.
 While this petition is being circulated, University President Robben W. Fleming, who happens to be against the war in Vietnam himself, has deplored the student effort.
 He said this:
 "The coalition of local peace groups organizing the petition drive is showing just terrible judgment. I think people come to the stadium on Saturdays to see the football game and to enjoy themselves. This, we think, ought to be enshrined as one of the great statements of the year.
 It was a statement which would have been at least equally appropriate during the football season a year ago, when, in response to support for the Vietnam war by making an issue out of the alleged mistreatment of our prisoners, one football half-time program after another was given some artificial and unnatural twist in order to work the prisoner issue into the program and into national television.
 But either the pro-war propaganda sought by the White House or the anti-war propaganda sought by activist peace groups is, to our taste, out of place in the football stadium. People pay to see football, and should not be asked to become spectators for demonstrations for anybody's particular version of the war in Vietnam.

What Manchester Cares Most For

Question 2, Question 3, and Question 4 on the Manchester voting machines next Tuesday concern new school construction for Manchester.
 Question two covers the authorization of a $200,000 bond issue for the construction of a new elementary school in the northeast section of town.
 Question three covers the authorization of the expenditure of $8,870,000 for the site for and construction of a new junior high school in the Kenney St. area.
 And Question 4 asks the voters to decide whether the new junior high school project shall include a $500,000 swimming pool.
 There are two problems which concern the voters of Manchester as they prepare to deal with these questions.
 The first problem is that of the need. Is there a need for them?
 There are some glib answers using glib potential statistics which try to argue that the need is not real and now, but something that can wait.
 We do not buy this argument.
 What we buy, instead, is the great and weighty argument of present enrollment which is already close to emergency.
 And what we buy, beyond statistics, is the idea that Manchester is going to continue what has been its remarkable and praiseworthy record of being one community which has managed to keep current with its developing educational needs, and has never allowed itself to slip distastefully and ruinously behind.
 We have, in this town, kept faith with the children we have produced, and built them the schools they needed as they needed them.
 The need is piling itself up again. Unless we keep pace, now, we will, for the first time, fall behind in a way which punishes the children.
 The need is real, and the need is now.
 The second problem which concerns Manchester voters trying to deal with these school building program questions is that of cost.
 The cost is shocking.
 It is quite obvious that the cost of building schools has more than doubled over what it was when we first began dealing with our postwar school building needs.
 Merely to look at that figure over that junior high school is to feel a paralysis setting in one's tax nerves and to begin reaching for the no never.
 But we must try, before we yield to that impulse, to be honest with ourselves.
 What is there that has not doubled, or tripled, in price and cost, over the past 20 years?
 The answer is that the price and cost level which we sometimes like to pretend as so unreasonable is, nevertheless, the level upon which our whole commerce and economy are based. This is the system by which we all manage to live, somehow. We cannot arbitrarily separate school construction costs from the general trend.
 In the past, Manchester's pride in what it has felt able to do for its children has been amply repaid by a further pride in what these children have turned out to be, as they take their Manchester education into adult life.
 We have no justifiable reason to place less hope in, or give less opportunity to, the new generations now coming into our school system.
 This is the one big thing all Manchester cares most about, from generation to generation, and from need to need. Surely we are not going to betray ourselves next Tuesday.

Reapportionment Still A Mess

Reapportionment continues to be one holy mess.
 Though a judges' panel has prepared a plan of redistricting for Connecticut's State Senatorial and Assembly Districts, it is in such form that Secretary of State Gloria Schaffer has been issuing cries for help to translate the plan into workable terms of procedure rather than abstract, bureaucratic language.
 Mrs. Schaffer, who at first had balked at the need to redraw the state's districts with the publication of the new redistricting plan, the final step that makes it real and in effect the next election.
 But she still insists - and not without reason - that some authority will have to undertake the responsibility of defining the new districts, which the judges' panel based on U.S. Census tracts, into specific political entities with streets, roads, buildings and other physical characteristics that make up the boundaries clearly identified.
 The supposed foolproof machinery written into the State Constitution for mandatory reapportionment of the General Assembly every decade, has proven to be not so foolproof after all. The state, once a neat package of clearly defined, 180 towns, is now beginning to represent a hatched-up butcher's block.
 It shouldn't be forgotten that division of the state into new legislative districts is just the beginning of the redistricting mess; still hanging fire is the question of congressional redistricting, and coming up in New Haven will be ward redistricting.
 When all this is accomplished, confusion is certain to abound. It is not surprising that any of the redistricting efforts pays attention to the others, with the result that there is no noticeable attempt to sense, reason, and order into the hierarchy of political divisions, from ward to congressional district.
 Voters in New Haven who found themselves being shunted from one polling place to another, depending on the type of election held, are not likely to find any relief in the isolated approach of each of the three major political boundary-drawing efforts. More so, they are likely to be joined in their confusion by suburban voters whose towns are being sliced and quartered by the plans.
 The Supreme Court's plan, one man, one vote rule opened a trapdoor to chaos. The pit seems bottomless. Still, some attempt at rationality in reapportionment procedures can and should be made, and the responsibility for this lies with the General Assembly. Our legislators could not rise above politics, however, and instead of rescuing legislative and congressional reapportionment from the nightmare of confusion, their failure to act responsibly this past spring plunged both deeper into the pit. - NEW HAVEN REGISTER.

How Not To Pacify Ulster

If one thinks of the complex tragedy of Northern Ireland it is that the abrupt withdrawal of British forces would be quickly followed by a bloodbath of almost unimaginable dimensions. Yet that is exactly what Senators Kennedy of Massachusetts and Blawie of Connecticut, along with Representative Hugh Carey of New York, are demanding. Their resolution urges the Nixon Administration to call for an immediate British troop pullout and for unification of Ireland.
 Such an arrogant demand, bravely launched from the halls of Congress, 2,000 miles from the scene, is more than interferred in the internal affairs of another country. It is also self-defeating. A move that can only make life more difficult for Ulster's Protestant majority never relevant to the resolution is essential to head off civil war.
 The resolution is being introduced in Britain as a cynical move to interfere in Senator Kennedy's Presidential chances. What it does in fact is to raise anew the question of the British role in Ireland, about which the British are not going to have any say next Tuesday.

"Truly Ironie!"
 To the Editor,
 If the current campaign will be remembered for little else, it will at least be remembered by me at the time the arrogant attitude of those who possess political power reached a new height. I refer specifically to a statement by Mr. James Farr at the League of Women Voters' "Meet The Candidates" hearing held on Wednesday, Oct. 20. Mr. Farr was responding to Mr. Fitzgerald who had criticized the process by which the town's budget was practically established. It seems that in the past it had been the practice of the majority party, whether Republican or Democratic, to work up specific political entities with streets, roads, buildings and other physical characteristics that make up the boundaries clearly identified.

Inside Pre-War Democrats

By Rowland Evans Jr. and Robert D. Novak
 The real reason the White House again mustered enough votes to pass the Mansfield amendment in the House last week was that moderate Democrats, displaying their previous support of the anti-war effort, had joined the anti-war forces in last June's Vietnam vote had second thoughts.
 Coaxed along by the White House (including a private session with President Nixon), some 100 Democrats dropped their previous support of the anti-war effort, and joined the anti-war forces in last June's Vietnam vote had second thoughts.
 A footnote: Although House Democratic leaders did not so much as mention the Mansfield amendment, Majority Leader Hale Boggs of Louisiana displayed courage in voting against it, backing a 2-to-1 sentiment in his own party.

 "Outstanding Democrat!"
 To the Editor,
 William E. Fitzgerald, incumbent Democratic member of the Board of Directors, is an achiever with courage. I have watched him. He has stood alone through several years as the only outstanding Democrat in Manchester. He has served his post against the Republican candidate that sweeps all before him. His unfailing opposition against these odds to make his voice heard in areas where he is so few.

 believes to be in the best interest of the people of Manchester has indeed been heard. For example, his stand regarding C. I. D. Mid-Town Redevelopment, taxes and expenses, and enforcement of the law.
 To do with Mr. Fitzgerald in regard to the budget-making process recently demonstrated by his counterparts. The budget committee's apparent "railroad" tactics of holding "informal discussions" out of which policy-making decisions are concluded where Mr. Fitzgerald has not been invited shows we need - right now - a balance of partisan representation. This must be achieved before this one-sidedness does damage. The two-party system is beat only when it is allowed to function. I, as a Republican, must express my disapproval for my party's unacceptable performance.
 Mr. Fitzgerald has dedicated himself to the proposition of "More for Less". This can only be realized with help. Elect a balanced Board of Directors. Vote for William E. Fitzgerald and the outstanding Democrat of Manchester.

 "Statesmanlike!"
 To the Editor,
 The citizens of Manchester have been fortunate to have James F. Parr as town director and mayor. Jim Parr has checked Manchester from his youth. While attending Manchester High School he was active in sports and student activities. He has since become a successful businessman in our town.
 Jim Parr has always been motivated by his desire to contribute to the welfare of our community and its citizens and has done this at great personal expense and sacrifice. His decisions have never been based on political expediency but rather on personal convictions. We are fortunate to have such a statesmanlike public servant.
 He is a man to be proud of. Exercise your franchise Nov. 2nd and return James F. Parr to office as mayor.
 Sincerely,
 John J. Cronin
 "Admire Their Courage!"
 To the Editor,
 There has been much written about the "Book Store" on Main Street. I am not sure what I, as a parent, should be doing about it. Some teenagers have been picketing - others say this does no good. Perhaps, but I must say I admire their courage for taking firm action even in face of all the criticism.
 I hope other teenagers of this area will react to the store and show the adults who criticize them that they are ready to stand up and be counted.

 "Like Children!"
 To the Editor,
 I believe that the Democratic candidates for the Board of Education; Eleanor Colman, Paul Greenberg, Allan Thomas, Dave Winer and John Yavis are the finest group that can be offered our town. These people have varied backgrounds in teaching, social work and psychology, law, planning and engineering. The expertise gathered in these fields will be of incomparable value to the Manchester educational system. The candidates have a deep commitment to the children of Manchester. They are willing to study and implement changes in the school system where these changes are needed. They have new thoughts on mass purchases of supplies, and on teacher and administrative accountability that could produce great savings to the Manchester taxpayer. The people of Manchester should expect the members of the Board of Education to give long hours and great dedication to their position. The aforementioned Democratic candidates will accept these responsibilities. The candidates like children and wish to help both children and parents to realize their future potential.

 Please vote for Eleanor Colman, Paul Greenberg, Allan Thomas, Dave Winer and John Yavis for the Board of Education on Nov. 2nd. Thank you.

 I was pleased to learn that Robert Maltempo has become a candidate for a town office. As a neighbor and friend for many years I have come to regard him as a responsible and intelligent young man. He has demonstrated great capability in private enterprise and his general viewpoints appear to be fundamentally progressive but also conservative.  To the Editor,
 In the past weeks we have been witnessing one of the most intensive propaganda movements the Board of Education has ever known. The Board of Education has a quiet and thoughtful approach to the problems she addresses herself to. Harriet Haselet is young, energetic and has children in our area. We recognize that she has a genuine interest in the Manchester school system and I worked with Harriet as a co-editorial on the Board of Education and then to take decisive action. He has demonstrated genuine concern for the town of Manchester.

 I sincerely urge my fellow voters to return Mr. Zinzer to the Board of Directors on Nov. 2, we need men like this to keep Manchester a better place to live for ourselves and our children.
 Respectfully yours,
 Thomas C. Funderburk

Muskie, Kennedy Lead Nixon In Opinion Poll

PROVIDENCE (AP) - A public opinion poll released Tuesday night shows President Nixon trailing Sen. Edmund S. Muskie and Edward Kennedy in Rhode Island by identical margins.
 The copyrighted poll, conducted by Becker Research Corp. of Boston for WTEV-TV of Providence and New Bedford, Mass., shows Nixon leading Hubert Humphrey, 39 per cent to 32 per cent; George McGovern, 48 per cent to 27 per cent, and New York Mayor John Lindsay, 40 per cent to 34 per cent.
 Muskie and Kennedy lead Nixon by 43 per cent to 38 per cent.
 In the poll, conducted last Saturday, Becker questioned 100 Rhode Island adults who said they were at least fairly certain they would vote in the 1972 presidential election.

Nixon Hails Helpful Group

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Nixon has met with 10 Vietnam veterans who returned to a South Vietnamese hamlet as civilian volunteers to build houses for disabled Vietnamese soldiers.
 "We really appreciate what you've done," the President told the group Tuesday. They said they built 20 housing units without pay or guns.
 "We wanted to show we still supported the South Vietnamese people in their fight against communism," said group member Armand Jones Maupin, Jr., of Raleigh, N.C.
 The Air Force flew the group to Vietnam for the two-week project. The Navy provided most of the material and a private group, "Operation Helping Hand," supplied food.

Hebron Center Business Zone Action Tabled Again

The Planning and Zoning Commission last night again tabled action on Donald W. Robinson's request to rezone the Central Business Zone on Rt. 85 in Hebron Center to include all the land which is located across from the Town Office Building.

The majority of the commission members felt that being in the center of town Robinson's property would be one of the most logical areas for business. However, as they said at the public hearing two weeks ago, this was not the time to rezone any area while the new town plan is being worked on.

Member Roy Wirth felt that the request should be rejected on the basis that "a business zone in this area definitely would contribute to more traffic around Kean High School."

The traffic problem had been mentioned at the public hearing by Everett Jewett of Abey Dr. Hebron's board member on the Regional Board of Education.

Robinson To Work

Commission members suggested at first that Robinson withdraw his request and bring it up at a later date, but he was reluctant to do so.

Robinson said, "I have to think in terms of my own welfare at this point. I don't feel I can sit on this property and just wait. So you can expect it will be developed."

Commission Chairman Richard T. McDonald questioned John Coladonato, director of the Northeast Development Group who is working on the town plan, as to whether the group would be coming up with any definite suggestions for business zones.

Coladonato said they plan to do "actual business zones within the next month but do not know to what extent."

Robinson then agreed to taking any action until the next commission meeting, rather than withdrawing his request.

Other Action

In other action, the commission rejected a request from Anthony T. Bywater to subdivide the remainder of the Farview Heights property in East Side Road on Burnt Hill Rd. based on a recommendation from State Health Inspector Paul Schur.

The commission had tabled action on this request at its Oct. 12 meeting pending the report from Schur in spite of zoning Agent Richard A. Keefe's recommendation that "these lots appear to meet the requirements of the public health code and are presently suitable for on-site sewage disposal systems."

Keefe also recommended at that time that any approval of the subdivision be contingent on the provision that "the sewage disposal systems be designed for each lot by a registered professional engineer and submitted to this office for approval before a building permit or sanitary permit is issued."

According to Wirth, Schur inspected the lot and "reported them due to poor soil conditions." Wirth said a letter from Schur to this effect is forthcoming.

Commission member George Allen said he had looked at the lots himself and "it did not appear to be a problem."

He questioned the way Keefe "conducts his business" in that Keefe had approved them.

He said "unless he (Keefe) can come up with some better decisions than that last one, I think we had better get another zoning agent."

Member Charles Eaton also questioned what Keefe had to report on the commission request two weeks ago to investigate a small business on Rt. 85 operating in a residential zone. McDonald informed him that to date no report has been submitted to the commission.

Trailer Zone

Eaton also mentioned that there was a trailer on Old Colchester Rd., for which the zoning board has just issued a variance, that is clearly visible from the road.

He said regulations state that any trailer should be at least 200 feet from the road or 100 feet if not visible. Eaton was informed that the zoning board has given the owner 30 days to move the trailer.

Commission members agreed to table any further discussion until after the 90-day period. If at that time the trailer has not been moved they will request the zoning agent to investigate.

McDonald Halted

Prior to adjournment, Wirth thanked McDonald, whose term expires next month, for his years of service on the commission. Wirth said, "Even though we have not always agreed at times, it has been good for the board."

He said that even though McDonald is in the real estate business, "it has never entered into the commission's business." He thanked McDonald for his "honesty and fairness" he has given to this board.

McDonald said "there has never been a place on this Planning and Zoning Commission for partisan politics. I have served with some very nice people and I would have nice recollection if I were in

Witchcraft Plays Role In South African Law

GRAHAMSTOWN, South Africa (AP) — When witchcraft comes into the courtroom, criminal law in South Africa admits to it.

Supreme Court Justice Donald Kameyer says this sometimes results in lenient sentences in murder cases which would amaze other parts of the world.

His comments were made in a speech on "Superstition, witchcraft and the law."

The majority of people that called thought Saturday evening would be the best time to celebrate the holiday and I agree with them," Thifault explained.

Noting the official declaration is being made also for the safety and welfare of town residents, the first selection said he has contacted Captain Joseph Nelwood of the South African police regarding the decision and that special patrol precautions will be instituted for the weekend.

The incumbent Board of Selectmen held their first meeting before the Nov. 2 local elections last night. The meeting was quiet despite the fact that the town had had two sessions during the past two years.

The first session of any administration prompts participants to ponder on previous meetings and last night was no exception.

Thifault wound up his term with 100 per cent attendance at meetings. Also attending last night was Selectman Robert Dumont, but Selectman Charles Ramonzo was absent.

Town Treasurer Mrs. Eleanor Weston attended her final meeting after 10 years of service as treasurer under the Republican banner. Also on hand as usual was Mrs. Ruth Lettice, bookkeeper and the Selectman's secretary Mrs. Bonnie Dombeck.

The townspeople were absent although most sessions have attracted a varied audience.

The meeting was relatively brief, and aside from a report on the federal unemployment grant, concerned mostly with closing the financial books of the present administration to leave a clear slate for the incoming board.

Remodeling work at the town administration building has been completed by Walter Palmer, Thifault stated, and he will make a final inspection today before authorizing release of the funds to the contractor. Price tag for the completed project is $2,477 off of $1,864 for the second floor office.

Completed are the judge of probate office, the all-purpose building formerly the State Jail. The present administration was responsible for renovating the facilities to make them usable as town offices.

Democrat Thifault is seeking reelection to the post of first selectman, but Dumont and Ramonzo are dropping out of the picture. The Republican candidate for selectman, Luce sat on the board of selectmen four years ago under GOP First Selectman Ernest Vlk. Thifault's running mate is Charles Regan.

state, known as "mutinyana," as a defense plea in a murder trial. It is now accepted an extenuating circumstance. A murder charge also might arise out of an actual intention to cure. Kameyer gave as an example a woman herbalist who, after years of practice, had a patient who died. It was found that the patient had not followed her instructions.

She had been acquitted as a doctor had been in another South African case when a patient, contrary to instructions during a series of injections, had eaten cheese.

Supernatural explanations for inexplicable disasters were not mentioned by the judge, said in cases of sickness, drought, floods, the death of children, it was the explanation which was important to the man in the street.

Unlike Britain, South African criminal law has recognized extenuating circumstances in murder cases since 1935.

"In South African criminal law we look at a man's intention subjectively and not objectively in terms of a mythical 'reasonable man'."

"If the court can accept that the accused really believed he was not killing a human being but a likelihood (evil spirit) he will be found not guilty of murder although he will be found guilty of a lesser crime such as culpable homicide (manslaughter)," Kameyer said.

There are three kinds of murder arising out of a belief in witchcraft. A man might kill someone believing him to be a witch who would endanger either him or, more probably, members of his family.

There was a kind of hypnotic trance, believed to be caused by witches when the sufferer killed someone he thought was not a human being.

The judge said he had been the first to use this hypnotic train and stagecoach bandits.

Tolland Saturday Night Designated Official Trick-Tree Time

Saturday night will be the night for trick and treating goblins and ghosts, according to an official declaration made last night by First Selectman Charles Thifault.

Thifault officially designated Saturday night as Halloween in response to many inquiries both to his home and office.

Both Thifault and Dumont stressed that tomorrow night's meeting with Greater Hartford Process is no cause for any "hubbalooboo or excitement."

No commitment has been made, other than an invitation for the firm to present its ecological study of the town as requested by process planner Ted Kretzner.

Conservation Vacancy

Thifault noted he has received three inquiries for the vacancy on the Conservation Board which he will announce his appointment within the next few days.

For the position are John Niedzwiedz of Curtis Dr.; Rudy Kowalski of Grubner Road; and Ted Pederson of Woodland St.

Unemployment Act

Two 30-minute developments in the hiring of a civil engineer on a four-town basis under the federal unemployment act, have caused complications in the original plan.

Thifault reported on a meeting he attended Monday with the first selection of Bolton, Canton and Marlborough at which three mechanical engineers were interviewed for the post by the selectmen.

At the end of more than three hours of interviews the first selection was made by the selectmen. They are considering changing the job to one for a surveyor with construction or background. Thifault felt there may be a few unemployed who were just not employed by the post.

Further complicating the problem however, is a letter this week received from King yesterday, but which had been mailed Friday.

Citing the "vagueness" of the town's liability if it agrees to the project, both Thifault and Dumont were hesitant to proceed with signing the contract until more specific information is received.

In his letter King stated, "The responsibilities of the post by directly keyed into the provision of the act which as you know is a complicated and technical piece of legislation. If you sign the contract you bind the town to comply with the act."

"To this extent you are signing a blank check. At this point I am not able to advise you in every instance of the obligations the town could incur under the act."

The first selectman said he will check with King for more specific information regarding the town's liability before signing the contract.

2,600 Appeal Cutbacks In State Welfare Check

HARTFORD (AP) — About 2,600 welfare families have filed appeals to appear before the Committee on Corrections, Welfare and Human Institutions if it means "a screaming match" for an audience.

The commissioner claimed that during a rowdy hearing he disregarded a subpoena to testify during a rowdy hearing a week ago in Waterbury.

Rep. Otha N. Brown, D-Norfolk, House chairman of the committee, said Monday another subpoena would be issued for White to appear Friday at another public hearing at the State Capitol.

However, Sen. Anthony Charboneau, D-New Haven, said he would prefer to have a closed-door meeting with White and invited spokesmen for social agencies, church groups and welfare organizations.

In Bridgeport Tuesday, unless the appeals on proper forms. As a result only 2,600 persons will continue to receive assistance at the current level pending hearings of their appeals.

The Nov. 1 action calls for an average of 15 per cent reductions in aid to most families on the state welfare department. They were charged with dis-

More Beef, Veal

CHICAGO — U.S. per capita consumption of beef and veal climbed to a record of almost 117 pounds in 1970. This was a growth of about 7 pounds in three years. The projection is that per capita consumption of beef and veal will rise to about 120 pounds by 1980.

White announced Tuesday he would not honor a legislative subpoena to appear before the Committee on Corrections, Welfare and Human Institutions if it means "a screaming match" for an audience.

Rewards Given Stagecoach Raid

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Legislation taking away the governor's authority to post rewards for stagecoach bandits was sent to Gov. Ronald Reagan's desk Tuesday.

The measure actually expands the governor's authority to post rewards—extending it to airplane hijackers, bombers and arsonists for the first time and increasing the maximum reward from $1,000 to $10,000.

But floor debates focused on the portion of the bill by Assemblyman Leo McCarthy, D-San Francisco, that deletes a 100-year-old section spelling out rewards for capture of wagon, train and stagecoach bandits.

Utilities Group To Sell Two State Gas Services

HARTFORD (AP) Northeast Utilities, an umbrella corporation of five utilities in Connecticut and Massachusetts, announced Monday it will sell off the gas properties and business of two of the utilities.

The firm said it was doing this to comply with a 1953 law that requires a registered holding company to "limit its utility operations to either electric or gas service."

The companies divesting themselves of gas service are Connecticut Light & Power Co. and the Hartford Electric Light Company, Northeast said.

The company didn't say why it was only now getting around to selling off the gas properties. It has been in existence for several years.

The Northeast Utilities announcement also said that "it is not now possible to tell how much time will be required to effect such a sale," but added "it is expected that at least one to two years will be required."

Earlier this year, CL&P told customers not to install major new gas appliances because of a shortage of gas at normal prices. The Public Utilities Commission, however, directed 1970 reports to Japan exceeded $1.3 billion—more than the combined amount sold to Great Britain and the United States. Minnesota made up nearly half the sales to Japan — $627 million.

Party Switches Candidate Nod

WEST HAVEN (AP) — Town Committee switched candidates in a General Assembly race Tuesday—one week before election day.

The group, tangled in parliamentary questions that were finally settled by the Democratic State Committee, decided to switch its support from Gerald LaMonica to Robert Johnson.

It happened this way: LaMonica was "nominated" Oct. 13 for the 24th District House seat, in a session that featured a tie vote finally broken by town Chairman Louis S. Votto. But Votto had earlier disqualified himself from presiding at the meeting, and Johnson's supporters protested.

The party's state Central Committee sided with Johnson's supporters, and ruled this week that Mrs. Rosalie Kingsbury, vice chairman of the town committee, should have cast the deciding vote.

Which is what she did Tuesday night for Robert Johnson. LaMonica said he was taking it all in stride and would support the Democratic ticket. But he said, "I have my doubts as to whether it will unify the party."

Import Car Sales Floodtide Eases Off on U.S. Market

By CHARLES C. GAIN
AP Business Writer
DETROIT (AP) — The flood tide of import car sales has eased off a bit but whether it is a temporary condition or a permanent one is anybody's guess.

Some say it is because of the additional 4.5 per cent tax which was tacked onto the price of new cars imported after President Nixon's Aug. 15 economic program. They previously had been assessed 3.5 per cent.

Still others say the slackening in demand for autos built overseas came after the Nixon wage-price freeze which meant the new 1972 domestic cars were selling at 1971 prices—at least until mid-November when a price increase is anticipated.

Tolland Democrats Map Out Plans On Conservation, Business

The establishment of a land conservation plan should also be in the planning and zoning commission more interested in planning to meet the present and future demands of the town.

In a statement reflecting the Democratic concern with the areas of conservation, planning and zoning enforcement, Democratic First Selectman Charles Thibault, seeking re-election and to maintain it free of pollution wherever possible.

"Sanitary regulations must be stringent for the protection of the town's residents and the state, receiving the support of the Planning and Zoning Commission."

"Wherever possible, suspected sanitary or pollution problems should be anticipated and steps taken to head off the problems before they become serious and expensive to the town," they say.

They call for full attention to the preparation of a comprehensive town plan which will reflect a realistic picture of Tolland in the coming years.

To accomplish this, the Democratic PZC committee wholeheartedly support the appointment of a lay candidate of the interested citizens to work with the consulting planner and the PZC.

The committee should include people from town boards and commissions, including the school board and at least one member of the Selectmen's advisory committee.

All possible resource agencies such as the Tolland Agricultural Center and community organizations should be consulted.

Bank Head in Alabama An Extraordinary Woman

By BOB INGLE
CENTVILLE, Ala. (AP) — While other bank presidents sit in their plush, carpeted offices, sip coffee and ponder interest rates, Mary George Waito stands in the lobby of her bank and greets customers with a cheery, "Hi, how 'ya'll."

"No ordinary woman by any means," Mrs. Waito—president of the Farmers and Merchants Bank here—claims to be one of the first women in his advocates.

"I just libbed a little quieter," she says.
Since 1967 when her father died and she became president of the bank, her libbing has brought her to the presidency of the Alabama Bankers Association, making her the only woman in the U.S. to serve as head of a state bankers group.

But don't get the idea Mrs. Waito is pushy, or unfeminine. She answers her phone with, "This is Mary George." And she speaks in a soft Alabama drawl. "You should come on over and see the little office branch I just opened up. It's done in red and blue. We even sprayed the telephone red—we had to, the telephone company wouldn't give us a red one. This phone company here is independent."

Then, with a hint of a little more libbing up her sleeve, she goes on, "Then then, the phone company president has been added to my board of directors."

Hash Smugglers Face Sentencing in New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Six men arrested Morland and West, pleaded guilty in U.S. District Court on Tuesday to taking part in a scheme in which 1,000 pounds of hashish were smuggled into this country and sold.

The government charged that last April, Francis David Morland, 38, and Harvey Bramham, both of London, bought the drug in Morocco, then sailed it to the British Virgin Islands aboard their 47-foot ketch, Beaver.

Bramham and William Heerwagen, 19, of Little Rock, Ark., arranged for two other defendants, William Lynas, 28, of New York, and George C. West, 29, a wood carver from West Yaugettes, N.Y., to distribute the drug.

The government charged that the four other defendants pleaded guilty to conspiracy to import and sell the drug. Besides Lynas and Heerwagen, they were Kenneth Wainwright, 24, of Stamford, Conn., and James Gledhill, 28, of New York.

South Windsor School Board Members Defend Wapping Decision

Harry Anderson, in his final report as chairman of the board of education last night took time to clarify his role and to reply to criticisms made by board members.

In a letter read by board member Robert Everede, Anderson requested that the board somewhat find time to study the high school overcrowding problem. He charged that the reason for this was "political expediency."

Anderson said Mercurio is entitled to his opinions, but that he (Anderson) did not agree with these conclusions.

He said that his job is not to read the thinking of the board but primarily to clarify issues.

He stated that he was not obliged to vote in the case of a tie, but he stressed that he would have voted against the Wapping Plan.

Several Approaches Seen To Individual Education

The individualized, ungraded teaching method now being used in two of Manchester's elementary schools is only one approach to further instruction.

Dr. Donald J. Hennigan, superintendent of schools, said last night.

Speaking at a Buckley School panel discussion on "What's Happening in Education in Manchester," Dr. Hennigan said "individualization will require many different approaches."

He emphasized that the introduction of IGE to Nathan Hale and Green Schools is a small start, and there is no timetable for introducing the system to other schools.

At the same time, Roche and Cole said that all segments of society stand to benefit from the new economic programs.

"The administration has done an excellent job of identifying the problem of Phase 2 and working out methods to resolve them," they said.

While no element of society likes controls of any kind, and we would all prefer to have a completely free economy, the program is a clear necessity if we are to reduce inflation, increase employment and return to a free market environment as soon as possible.

Roche and Cole also predicted that new economic policies will strengthen consumer confidence leading to general economic recovery and continued strength in auto sales.

For the first nine months of the year, GM's profits were $1.4 billion, or $4.84 per share, on sales of $21 billion.

During the corresponding period last year, GM profits were $744 million, or $2.27 per share, on sales of $17.8 billion.

GM reported factory sales of cars and trucks in the United States during the third quarter of 1971 were 1.1 million, compared with 997,101 in the same period of 1970.

Worldwide sales were 1.5 million, compared with 1,071,001 in the same period of 1970.

New York Forum To Hear Berdon

Top leaders in investment banking and municipal finance will be briefed tomorrow on the "Fiscal Program of the State of Connecticut."

The Fiscal Program of the State of Connecticut will be discussed by Robert L. Berdon, Governor of New York City.

Berdon will deliver a formal address before the Municipal Forum at New York City.

He will discuss Connecticut's revenue and bonding programs, as well as other matters concerning the state's fiscal program.

Previous Forum speakers have included Gov. Ronald W. Reagan of California and Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, as well as other major figures in municipal finance.

Hot Pants Sag NEW YORK (AP) — Hot pants will be out of style in the near future, say students at the Trappagen School of Fashion.

Students feel they are too impractical, pointing out they are too hot when worn with boots in freezing weather.

Allen Cox, principal of Bennington Junior High School, reported on new course offerings in the junior high level, and called for more flexibility in teaching.

"Kids are different than five or ten years ago," he said, "and the classroom job is infinitely harder."

Cox said that in planning for the proposed school year, he found that Manchester had become very traditional in its teaching approach, and thought that we should "move from a teacher-directed to a child-centered approach."

Elgin Zaturky, head of the social studies department at Manchester High School, said the "day of the lay teacher is dead."

Although the high school is not entirely "open," a young man can go in almost any direction he chooses.

Recently, he reported, the high school has begun work-study and independent study programs, and a number of other new approaches in Manchester education.

Dr. Hennigan, in an apparent effort to stifle rumors about the new approaches in Manchester education, told the audience of about 100 that "We are not a group of plotters, planners or schemers."

He emphasized that the introduction of IGE to Nathan Hale and Green Schools is a small start, and there is no timetable for introducing the system to other schools.

Coventry Realignment Of Council Work Asked

In a statement issued last night, Democratic incumbent Town Council candidate Albert Bradley said there "is a need to realign council responsibilities."

Bradley said that, in addition to the finance and steering committees of the council, the town council should "tentatively assign one member to be responsible for each of three major areas of town government."

The function of these members would not be as department heads, but rather as liaisons.

The three areas Bradley proposed are public health, public safety and public works.

Under public health, according to the candidate, "The council member assigned to this area would coordinate efforts to gather data on pollution problems, as well as other public health needs. He would assemble an advisory committee and make recommendations and designate a liaison to the health department."

The public safety assignment "would place a councilman on the scene to assist in developing day-to-day as well as emergency plans for the fire, police, and other agencies and to coordinate safety-oriented units."

As for public works, "this assignment would involve bringing in the needs of the town in the area of roads, recreation, cemeteries and land use."

Bradley stated that in assigning a councilman the responsibility for these areas, he could then concentrate his efforts on coordinating with the administrator and his staff problems in his particular field.

"In addition," Bradley said, "the council would have a direct liaison between agencies and the council itself."

"The council would wind up with a specialist in each of the main areas of concern to citizens, and the agencies would have a direct line to the council."

Bradley said that with this plan, the council "would have one man who could work with the administrator in presenting data to the council on specific problems, and would in no way dilute the responsibilities of the administrator or any town agency or board."

Retirement Pay Raise for Thant

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers said today that Thant is in line for an increase in retirement pay.

A resolution introduced in the U.N. General Assembly's Budgetary Committee on Tuesday would raise Thant's annual retirement pay from $18,800 to $21,200—less tax.

Thant, who is 82, will retire at the end of this year after two five-year terms. His current net salary is $23,600 a year, out of a gross salary of $60,000.

The existing rules would give him a yearly retirement allowance of half the net salary, or $15,800.

The resolution would raise his gross salary, effective Dec. 1, 1971, to $62,000, with a net of $47,800, and would change the rules to make his retirement allowance half the gross salary, or $21,200.

Any salary increase for Thant also would benefit his successor, who is yet to be chosen.

Retiring Episcopal Bishop Believes in Involvement

By HOWARD ULMAN
PROVIDENCE (AP) — The Right Rev. John Seville Higgins, who is retiring after 41 years as a churchman, says it is good for church-goers and religious leaders to be involved in social issues, "that they better hold on to their religion, their faith, while doing it."

The 66-year-old Episcopal Bishop of Rhode Island has not been reluctant to raise his voice on social issues, particularly in the welfare field. He serves on the Ecumenical Committee on Basic Human Needs.

Bill four years ago of the mandatory retirement age for bishops of the Episcopal Church, last week he said he would step down next June 1. The Rt. Rev. Frederick Healey Holden, who was consecrated bishop coadjutor on his 62nd birthday Sept. 25, will become the 10th bishop of the 15-year-old diocese.

Seated in his modern spacious office, Bishop Higgins gave his views on the church of yesterday, where the church stands today and his hopes for tomorrow in a conversation with The Associated Press.

Should the church involve itself in social issues? A. I think the church can do a great deal to help people who are in need. It is not a matter of whether or not we should, but of how we should do it.

Q. How do you deal with the argument that many people use the church as an escape, a way not to have to face up to social problems? A. A lot of people use the church as an escape, and this is an awful thing. The wrong religion is a very dangerous and a very ghastly thing. It lets people worship at the altar and go out and forget that people are starving.

Q. Do you feel church leaders should be more persistent in speaking against injustices? A. I would think the real leaders are doing a fairly good job in the community. The Roman Catholic Church, through Bishop (Bernard) Kelly, who is . . . I have increasing sympathy for people who see we've resigned several months ago, saying "frustration" with the

Scheme Set To Revitalize Thames Area

LONDON (AP) — A scheme to revitalize a decaying part of Thames riverbank was unfolded for Londoners this week. The plans go through a seedy stretch of crumbling wharves between Tower Bridge and London Bridge, south on the river, will be replaced with stores, hotels, restaurants, pubs, tourist attractions, offices and homes.

The designers estimate the leisure-living business complex will provide jobs for 20,000. The land is 40 acres of Dickensian "alleysways" and cavernous Victorian warehouses.

Development is planned for stages, with cash coming from big financial institutions like insurance companies and pension funds.

The plans provide for 330 homes in buildings of up to 10 floors, stepped back from the river and interspersed with gardens to avoid any "canyon wall" effect.

The office buildings will have more than two million square feet in floor area and rise up to 30 floors.

There are plans for a sports center, arts center, movie theaters and underground feeder roads.

Partly closed Friday and Saturday. Temperatures will be above normal with daily highs around 70 and overnight lows ranging from the upper 40s in the interior to the middle 40s along the coast.

Newfound Premier Sets Last Contest

ST. JOHNS, Nfld. (AP) — Joseph Smallwood, the only premier Newfoundland has had since it became part of Canada 22 years ago, says Thursday's election will be his last.

Smallwood will be 71 Christmas Eve. He has made similar retirement announcements in the past, but says "nobody believed me." Even his opponents admitted the provincial legislature would lose much of its color without "Joey," as he is known here.

If Smallwood's Liberal party wins Thursday he will remain premier for a term of up to five years. The man who wants his job, Frank Duff Moore, is campaigning on the slogan, "The time has come."

Moore's sole aim has been to become premier since he won a Conservative party leadership race in May 1970. He entered politics in the 1966 federal election. He formerly headed a major fish business.

Smallwood, a former journalist, labor organizer and farmer, led the campaign in 1949 for Newfoundland to become part of Canada. It was for many years a British colony.

Newfoundland was formally accepted as Canada's 10th province on March 31, 1949. Newfoundland was formally accepted as Canada's 10th province on March 31, 1949.

Newweek Faces $7,200 Loss In Libel Judgment
PARIS (AP) — Four executives of Newweek magazine were fined a total of $7,200 in a libel judgment handed down by a Paris court Monday in a defamation suit brought by American publisher Jean Seberg and her former husband, Roman Gary, a French writer.

Newweek was also ordered to pay a total of 60,000 francs (about $10,000) in civil damages and publish the court's judgment in its own publication plus eight newspapers.

The suit followed Newweek's story that said Seberg was expecting a baby fathered by a black militant she knew in California.

In two separate suits, Gary and Miss Seberg contended that the actress was so shocked on reading the article that she gave premature birth to a baby—a white child on Aug. 23, and the baby died two days later.

The court said it did not agree that the article in question was the direct cause of the death of the baby.

Volpe Asks German Help In Building Safe Auto

STUTTGART, Germany (AP) — U.S. Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe called on the automobile industry yesterday to help stop road deaths through the development of safer vehicles.

Volpe said the United States wants extensive competition in the seeking of solutions for safer automobiles. He added that lives will be saved when the lessons learned from these international efforts can be incorporated into mass production cars.

Problems facing safety car designers include crash protection, brakes, vehicle weight and cost. Constructors are seeking a car that will afford its occupants survival in an 80 m.p.h. crash.

The United States and West Germany agreed last November to cooperate on the design and construction of such vehicles. Since then other nations, including Japan, Italy, France and Great Britain, have signed similar agreements with the United States.

Blue Book on the Scene With New Faces, Absentees

By DON MEHLER

HARTFORD (AP)—The herald of publishers' cocktail parties or authors' autographing sessions, one of the most valuable books in Connecticut appeared on the scene in the past few days.

The volume is the 1971 edition of the "State Register and Manual," colloquially known throughout state government as the "Blue Book," and despite its unimpressive title, it's well worth a review.

This year, the Blue Book took on overtones of the famed so-called "Wanted" list of the Connecticut Register.

Secretary of the State Gloria Grasso, now a congresswoman, is in charge of the "Blue Book's" editing and publication—praised her own record in the state Senate and called herself "a recognized leader in the fight for educational advancement" who, as a one-year banishment are the co-chairman of the Education Committee for six years, had spearheaded virtually every important advance in the area of education at state and local levels.

In this sketch gave the Blue Book some of the flavor of the year's events.

The energetic 32-year-old congressman made it known that he would make almost enough room for the control industry earned him national recognition as one of the investment community's leading political action analysts.

and that he had also focused the nation's attention on the epidemic addition rate among U.S. troops in South Vietnam.

U.S. troops in South Vietnam revealed the first comprehensive statistics ever compiled on Connecticut's staggering heroin addiction crisis.

Steele even went so far as to claim he was not only the youngest Republican in Congress but "the senior Republican from Connecticut in the House."

overlooking the fact that U.S. Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr. had served a term in the House before him. Only a few days after being elected to the Senate last year, and can call Steele "Junior."

Connecticut's old Congressional state boards and commissions, Rep. Robert N. Sims.

Somebody suggested that an "addendum" picture also be merely updating the photograph of the governor's mansion around the property.

The Blue Book is available free of charge to the citizens of Connecticut. There are 20,000 copies being published.

The bill on which the legislature completed action Tuesday combines collision and property damage insurance and makes such coverage mandatory. It requires insurance companies to settle claims within 15 days.

Failure to do so could mean the companies might be forced to pay double if a motorist brought suit and won it.

He would have been 52 Thursday.

Benda was director of Yale's Southeast Asia Studies graduate program from 1960 to 1966. He wrote a book and contributed to other works on Indonesia and Southeast Asia, and was frequently called on to voice his criticism on the U.S. role in Vietnam.

In 1966 he wrote a policy paper on Vietnam that was used by supporters of Eugene McCarthy's unsuccessful bid for the Democratic presidential nomination.

A native of Czechoslovakia, Benda went to Indonesia as a young man to serve in the Dutch consulate, and later worked there for a Dutch importer and possession with intent to sell.

The narcotics involved were methadone pills, according to authorities. Methadone is a synthetic drug commonly associated with helping to treat heroin addiction.

Benda leaves his wife, Eva, and two children.

Sargent Signs No-Fault Bill

BOSTON (AP)—The Massachusetts Legislature sent to Gov. Francis W. Sargent Tuesday a bill extending the no-fault automobile insurance concept to property damage coverage.

A limited no-fault plan covering compulsory liability insurance for bodily injury went into effect in Massachusetts Tuesday. According to state officials, it has resulted in a dramatic reduction in such claims.

Hangings From Stained Glass

By MARGARET HAYDEN (Herald Reporter)

Mrs. Ann Madson wraps a strip of metal around a piece of stained glass for a window hanging. A two-color bird and other partly-finished hangings are in the window.

"With a large box of handbags and the materials,"

That was Mrs. Ann Madson's response when she was asked how she started making stained glass window hangings. Light sparkles through hangings in the Madson windows producing intricate patterns that vary as the position of the sun changes and its rays hit the glass at different angles.

The summer before last Ann bought sheets of stained glass and grooved strips of lead (came) and taught herself the craft. She places a pattern on the glass and cuts it with a pencil-size cutter. Too often she also cuts her fingers.

She edges each glass piece with a came and solders the ends together. The metal overlaps the front and back of the glass. If two pieces are to be connected, an H-shaped came is used so it overlaps both places. She uses wire for hangers, grays stems and tuckery antennas.

For her designs Ann draws paper patterns of candles, angels, fruit, animals and geometric. She can reuse patterns to make almost identical hangings and enlarges them to make similar ones in different sizes.

When her supplies got low, the Madson family, Ann, her husband, Edward, and their three children, drive to Haverhill, Mass., to a company which sells stained glass and repairs windows. It also sells glass salvaged from buildings that have been torn down, antique dolls' eyes and etched clear glass.

Lamp Shade Next

Tiffany lamp shades, which are also made of stained glass, and window hangings are becoming more popular, Ann said, with the growing interest in Victorian interior design.

The late 1900's window hangings were used especially at Christmas time.

Ann plans to make a Tiffany lamp shade for her dining room at the Madson home at 13 Northfield St. reflects Ann's skill in many art forms. Artistically speaking, painting on wood is her first love. She works on new wood she makes look old by pounding holes and making scratches in it with an ice pick and staining it with food coloring or ink. With acrylics or the oils she paints pictures of lions and turtles and recites, realistic wild flowers.

While on a family camping trip in Maine she tried to paint on an old piece of wood but was displeased with the results. Her children, who had seen painted rocks in a gift shop, brought her some rocks to paint. "I painted one for everyone on the camp grounds," she said.

Ann uses a triple O brush on stones to paint detailed miniature landscapes depicting the beauty of New England. For a recent PTA fair she painted round similar faces similar to the ones seen on pins and posters; animals with definite personalities and exquisite wilder customers, too. In fact, all her rock miniatures have been sold.

The Madson's well-kept but children-oriented home displays some of Ann's earlier work. Her oil seascapes of Maine, her pens and ink from high school days and an arrangement of dried weeds collected during a family walk are reminders of pleasant times. But it is with her stained glass decorations, and painted rocks and plaques, that she hopes to change an enjoyable hobby to a profit-making venture in the near future.

Extended Forecast

Fair and cool Saturday and Sunday. Daytime highs will average between 60 and 65. Overcast with light rain or drizzle in the afternoon. Highs will range from the 40s in interior sections to the 50s along the coast.

Jaycees Favor All Questions On Referendum

The Manchester Jaycees have voted to support the proposed town acquisition of the Manchester Water Co. and the building of the proposed North-east Elementary School, South-west Junior High School, and junior high school pool. All four proposals are scheduled as referendum items Nov. 2.

Approval of the water company purchase (Question 1), the Jaycees feel, would be in keeping with other on-going projects of the Jaycees, including clean water and activities at Union Pond. "It is also felt that it would provide a good acquisition of open land as well as a consolidation of services," the Jaycees say.

The Jaycees agreed that the Northeast Elementary School (Question 2) would help to maintain the town's neighborhood school system, and "would replace an existing school which has outlived its usefulness and

Control Data Plant Officially Opened

Brief ribbon-cutting ceremonies were held yesterday at the new Control Data Corp. plant in the Manchester Industrial Park off Parker St. Company employees and officials and several town and state dignitaries attended.

Cutting the ribbon at the main entrance were Mayor James Farr and Thomas G. Kamp, vice president of the Control Data Business Products Group, assisted by Richard Helland, general manager of the business forms division.

Mayor Farr welcomed the company to Manchester, and Edward K. Donovan, divisional vice president of the firm, also spoke briefly.

Guests included General Manager Robert E. Weiss, and State Comptroller Nathan G. Agostinelli of Manchester.

A tour of the plant facilities followed, and a catered luncheon was held for the guests and employees.

Control Data moved its regional business forms printing plant and sales offices from Bloomfield to a new 60,000 square foot building in the industrial park this summer, as part of a long-range expansion program.

Donald Souigny of 249 Kennedy Rd. is the plant manager, and Frank A. McLaughlin of Farmington is manager of sales.

The firm presently has 67 employees. When it reaches full operation it will employ about 85.

Duffey Tells Committee State Employee Morale Low

By SOL R. COHEN (Herald Reporter)

Joseph Duffey charged today that "state employee morale is low" and that the legislature would do much to remedy the strained relationship that now exists between the state and its employees.

Duffey had two suggestions for possible legislation: first, "that the state employee organizations be given exclusive recognition of bargaining units"; and second, "that the state employee be considered by the February session of the General Assembly."

He said that grievance procedure, in his opinion, one of the top priority items for 1972 should be the establishment of a collective bargaining for state archy to act as prosecutor, judge and jury."

Father Barry To Address Mothers Circles

The Rev. Thomas J. Barry, former assistant pastor of St. James Church, will be guest speaker tomorrow at the annual banquet of the Combined Catholic Mothers Circles at Willie's Steak House. His topic: "The Catholic Church of 1971—What's Happening in It?"

The banquet will open with a social period at 6:30 p.m. and dinner will be served at 7. Father Barry served at St. James Church from 1967 until last July when he was assigned to the Chancery office in Hartford, preparing legislation to give the right to take his case before the State Board of Mediation and Arbitration.

He was principal and later director of St. James School. He studied at St. Bernard's Seminary in Rochester, N.Y., before being ordained in 1967 in Hartford.

Court Sentences 2 Broadcasters

NEW YORK (AP) — The young men who operated an unauthorized radio station in New York were given suspended sentences Tuesday in U.S. District Court and put on probation for one year.

The broadcasters, Joseph Paul Ferrero, 23, and his friend, Alan H. Weiner, 18, had been charged with violating the communication Act of 1934, which makes it a crime to operate a station without a government license.

The "Falling Star Network" broadcast out of their homes in Yonkers both in AM and FM frequencies. The rock music broadcast over the illegal station was monitored from as far away as Canada, the government said.

The Federal Communications Commission had warned the two to shut down their stations. Ferrero and Weiner were arrested on charges of operating an unauthorized radio station in violation of the communication Act of 1934.

Missing Law 'In Custody' Of Democrat

HAMDEN (AP) - Legislative reapportionment records missing from the State Capitol are intact and in the possession of Rep. Rollin W. Mettler Jr., House chairman of the Reapportionment Committee.

The Hamden Democrat made the disclosure hours after Rep. Robert S. Orcutt, R-Guilford, one of the chief architects of the reapportionment plan, said Tuesday the records had been "stolen."

The state police have been asked to investigate the "prosecute," said Orcutt, "because stealing public records is a criminal offense."

Mettler said he took the records "for security reasons" on the day after a welfare demonstration invaded the Capitol.

The records have been under study, not only to review the plan, but also to determine if mapping of the six congressional districts, Mettler said.

Mettler said he has found defects in the plan, including several spots in Connecticut which were not included in any legislative district and one House district which is in two pieces.

Orcutt said he suspected the Democrats were "poring over" records in a desperate attempt to discredit the bona fide plan of the board of judges.

Mettler said the removal of the records from Room 10 at the Capitol was done with the knowledge of House Speaker William Ratchford, Senate President Pro Tem Charles T. Altano and Sen. James Murphy, D-Franklin, co-chairman of the Reapportionment Committee.

The reapportionment plan, which favors the GOP, will not become law until it is published, Secretary of the State Charles Schaffer, a Democrat, is awaiting formal legal advice from Atty. Gen. Robert Killian, also a Democrat, before going ahead with publication.

Mrs. Schaffer has said she would prefer to microfilm the reapportionment plan, if Killian agrees that it will meet the constitutional requirement of "publication."

Laird, Ministers Study N-Weapon Attack Plans

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) - Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird and defense ministers from six West European nations today ordered new studies of how battlefield nuclear weapons could be used against a mass Soviet attack in Europe.

The studies were ordered after the ministers discussed two papers: One by Laird and West German Defense Minister Helmut Schmidt on what would happen after a Soviet invasion of southern Germany was met by an allied tactical nuclear response.

Another by Gen. Andrew J. Goodpaster, the top commander of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in Europe.

A joint statement said the military procedures developed since 1969 on tactical nuclear weapons.

It was in 1969 that the alliance adopted guidelines on the use of tactical nuclear weapons, and to attempt to maintain important lines of communication with as many countries as possible.

Items Some Consider Junk Called Treasure by Others

By VIVIAN BROWN AP Newsfeatures

"Operation: Junk" might be a big solution to the community rubbish problem in the United States.

Objects discarded would merely change hands, and at a typical town collection of large items that couldn't be removed by the refuse collector because of the town's overburdened dumping grounds, everything from refrigerators to stoves is unloaded by towns and sent to the dump.

A man drove up with a couple of wicker chairs, and one girl said to another, who was maneuvering toward the door, "Sorry, I saw them first," and then, as the man removed the first of two wicker chairs, she turned agreeably and said, "You're in luck, he people, and in most instances, they are in good luck, as well.

One boy had a table taken out of his room while looking for a place to put it. Another boy reported that a man picked up the old electric power saw with the 20-year-old rusted pot had snatched up at once. A refrigerator was carried away, but would make a fine flower container.

work. "We will soon find out," he replied. "If it doesn't sell, we'll put it in the spring cleanup."

Such an object might circulate 20 or more times. But most things are useful for something, even if they don't perform in their original fashion, one girl pointed out, and "eventually someone will get it who will convert it into a storage cabinet or something."

That girl explained she had furnished an entire room from last season's pickup. What she needed now was an area rug, "but they must disappear right away," she said. She had been scavenging for five days.

The town's fathers were pleased with this pickup and there were comments that perhaps the town had been cleaned out, at long last. Did they realize that the "rubbish" was still in town and should it still be referred to as "rubbish."

As one girl settled for some bottles to be recycled, regretting she was too late for anything of value, she predicted that next time around there might be a waiting line, and perhaps we should have town cards to restrict junk-digging to the immediate area.

Some people may regret discarding of some things and others may have delegated the garage clean-up to others as indicated by one advertisement in the local paper a few days after this town's pickup was over. The black bordered advertisement read: "Reward for return of old straight-back chair with a broken seat. Left at long last. Did they realize that the 'rubbish' collection by error."

LOVER'S NETWORK

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Henry Mancini has been signed to compose original theme music for a television series on all three major networks. The shows are "Cade's County" on CBS, "Mystery Movie," and ABC's "Chill Out."

There are several spots in Connecticut which were not included in any legislative district and one House district which is in two pieces.

After assuming the duties of superintendent on July 1, he felt that because of budgetary arrangements he has made through certain shifting in personnel, he could come up with the non-reimbursable portion, and since he was selected with the program under way, he would like the go-ahead on hiring the personnel director.

Arthur Tourmas moved that Hart's request be approved, but it failed for lack of a majority vote. The council has itself held over a decision on this until the next council takes over on Nov. 1.

Harty also noted that he has lightened up the current budget considerably. As he began, and that after assuming the duties of superintendent on July 1, he felt that because of budgetary arrangements he has made through certain shifting in personnel, he could come up with the non-reimbursable portion, and since he was selected with the program under way, he would like the go-ahead on hiring the personnel director.

Harty also reported on the progress of the early childhood program, which has been given the backing of the board in concept. He said the committee, composed of kindergarten teachers and elementary school principals Robert Bratton and Joseph Tripp, has been meeting and is operating on a tight budget of time in which to meet "due to the different hours of school closing."

But, Harty said, the committee is attacking its work, which is considerable. He said he felt he was being realistic about the program, noting "there are options," but that the current contract aspect of the program "is the most important." It is too early to judge cost for such a program, which in these planning stages would encompass four through-seven-year-olds, but some federal or state money may be forthcoming.

Timetable

According to the proposed timetable for the program, the committee will be ready to meet with parents of children eligible for the program in January, with further development of the program to follow, then into meetings with the community residents in general.

The superintendent also reported in City Council on the improvement of Teacher Evaluation (presently "far behind" according to Harty), development of a student instrument for teacher evaluation, and examination of a salary differential and rating index forms for use in conjunction with the administrative and student evaluation forms.

Two committees are at work: One on the first objective, one on the second, and both together on the third. Harty noted that many teachers have expressed doubt about the use of student evaluation,

Coventry School Board Defers Action On Adult Education Director

The Board of Education held its regular meeting Monday night and deferred action on the appointment of an adult education director.

Dr. Donald Harty's resignation was not present at the session, but all three received the thanks of other members for their hard work over the year.

The board decided to hold over Superintendent of Schools Dr. Donald Harty's resignation and hire a part-time director for the proposed adult education program.

Harty had returned to the board with the resignation letter that there were good indications that the Town Council will approve the $1,200 stipend, a desirable portion of the total $3,000 expense of the adult education program.

The council has itself held over a decision on this until the next council takes over on Nov. 1.

After he was jailed, Juan's Pedro said he wanted to let the way.

Fine Print

The large print given, and the small print tucked away... That old joke about insurance policies...

But in recent years, the size (sometimes even the color) of the print in insurance policies has been widely regulated by statute.

For example, a common requirement in the field of health insurance is that the exceptions must be printed in at least as large a type as the benefits.

Another case involved a life insurance policy in which the words "Double Indemnity For Fatal Accidents" had been inserted by typewriter.

Later, double indemnity was held to be payable, even though there was conflicting language in the printed portion of the policy.

Accordingly, it makes good sense to examine a policy at the time you buy it, rather than waiting until you have suffered a loss.

More Power To Vermont For Winter

Ernest W. Gibson, chairman of the Public Service Commission negotiations with a power company that serves Connecticut...

Gibson said Monday that firm arrangements have been made and production and purchase of electrical power up to about 50 megawatts short of the projected peak needs...

He said negotiations with Northeast Utilities were for 60 megawatts, enough to give the state a slight reserve.

Gibson said if the proposed contract with Northeast should fall through, the state would have to purchase power during the winter's coldest months...

Gov. Davis went before the Atomic Safety and Licensing Board last Friday and made a personal plea for a quick decision on a loading and low level operating license for the Vermont Yankee Nuclear Power Plant...
