Land Valuable Tolland's land is far more valuable than any of its average residents imagined. Ten years ago at the time of the last revaluation, Tolland was a "little town," Tinkham explains. Construction took place at a pace of about six homes a year and buildings and land had a low value on the market. The town's rapid growth durland values to the point where Tolland is considered one of the prime areas for develop-

The town's population has in-creased from 2,950 to an estimated 8,200 people in the ten-year period, and commercial development has reached the point of one of the highest per-centage increases in the state. Industry has come into the town and has enjoyed the luxury of a 1969 property valua-tion as have the homeowners and the land owners. What little commercial development existed in 1960 was admittedly "grossly underas-sessed," according to Tink-ham, particularly gas stations. At that time the town didn't even have a system to assess these buildings, a situation now rectified according to the as-Commercial buildings and property will be assessed and revalued at "a rate consistant with its use," although the assessments may not nec-essarily reflect the purchase price of an individual piece of property, but rather an average rice paid for all such land. Fear Consequences Many knowledgeable residents fear the possible conse-quences of the high value placed on open land. They foresee serious ramifications which could result in a building boom even surpassing that of the sixties. At first glance the average homeowner-taxpayer may think it is a pretty good idea to tax the land heavily, and is satisfied with his home assessment but slightly quizzical about his

A second look shows the seriousness of the problem. A majority of the large landowners in town are residents, not developers. In many cases they have lived here most of their lives and often are retired or lving on fixed incomes, If unable to meet taxes on increased land values, they put their land up for sale , . . but so do their neighbors all over town.
The result is a glutted market place where the land is sold for less than it is valued, based on the basic rules of supply and demand. Many of these people have been holding onto their land, not wanting to see it become developed, placing great value in the town's appearance of large stretches of wooded, hilly and open space land. Talking to many of these peo-ple however indicates they don't see how they can hold

As with the H-bomb, it is possible for ociety to learn how to live with unemoyment. That is the frightening thing about each month's successively worse unemployment figures. After all, 96 per cent of the country is not out of work For the majority it is all too easy to re duce the unemployment problem to a estion of statistics. Traveling the ountry - even in the areas of high unemployment — the picture does not seem to resemble George Orwell's Wigan Pier. But the modern housing esates and busy shops disguise much sociai misery among those reduced by unployment to social security payments. The social barm may not becom apparent for some years. But having allowed so many young school leavers no option but enforced idieness, society just expect to pay a price. Persistent employment can embitter even the losest personal relations. How many nomes are being divided at present as a esult of the breadwinner's inability to It is possible even at this late stage for ne Government-and the community as a whole—to shut its eyes, cross its fingers, and hope for the best. After all, the long-awaited economic boom may be just around the corner. And when it arrives it may bring down unemployment to a civilised minimum. But appeals to teadfastness and trust in the face of the present unemploy-blizzard ring too much of the platitudes of politicians in the 1930s for comfort. The situation is fast approaching the dimensions of a major risis. On the merest political account ing no Government can expect to survive any prolonged period of unemployrecognises this. The Government's di lemma is just what can it do? There is genuine intellectual baffiement in Whitenall (and elsewhere) at the persistence the unemployment, its coincidence with a worrying level of inflation, and the fact that one country after another seems to be catching the disease. The economy obviously needs a stimulant in both comsumer demand and investment. To minimise future balance of payments troubles the Government wants to lead the boom with investment spending. But in spite of generous incentives the investment is simply not happening and perhaps will not until the denand is present to justify it in company coardrooms. Consumer demand is les asy to encourage than it used to be cople are so worried for their jobs and he future that they are saving rather han spending. But since much of the saving is not matched by investment the economy is suffering from a mild economic haemorhage. This is a situation for which Keynes proposed remedies 40 years ago. To follow Keynes today would avolve the Government's supporting or, tiating economic activity which might not be justified commercially in the short run but which would give the economy a boost. But can you have Keynesanism in one country-in the era of the multinational firm and ferocious international competition? The world needs a new Keynes. Where is he? - MAN-

Some years ago the weight of the Minster's history appeared to be almost too much, and since 1967 it has been the object of a rescue operation which will eventually cost some five million dollars. A survey had found that it was in real danger of collapse: its fabric revealed serious defects, particularly in the foundations. An urgent appeal for help went out, donations started to come in and it was possible for repair work to begin in time to insure that the structure could be saved. There's still much to be done, and extensive restoration of stonework, timbers and roofs to be completed. But, as these photographs show, the Minster is being painstakingly prepared for its next few historic centuries.

Conferees Chop Tax Bill
To Meet Nixon Objection

WASHINGTON (AP)
House and Senate conferees have chopped from the tax bill $12 billion worth of tax-relief amendments that caused a presidential veto threat, but the conferees apparently are at odds over a provision to finance presidential campaigns with federal income taxes.

Trimmed from the bill Tuesday were what President Nixon called "budget-busting amendments" including ones providence in come tax deductions and tax credits for ghetto businesses and for parents who pick up the tabs for their childrens' college education.

These, plus the campaigns in the provisions to increase personal in proportion.

who fear change.

This has caused a split in the ruling party. Many people thought that Echeverria would continue the conservative trend established in Diaz Ordaz term, which included repression of the left after the 1968 disturbances. But Echeverria has called a "democratic opening" to allow political opposition. He wants to lower the age minimums for members of Congress. He plans to reduce the requirements for forming political parties and immediately unloaded a bag of surprises. He talked about redistribution of income, an end to corruption, better health facilities, democratic unions, liminary work to form parties

Yortymobile Due To Debut

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) -Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty will get a glimpse of his new Yortymobile Thursday when he arrives for a speaking engage-ment at Drake University. Forest City Millworks of Forest City, Iowa, made the Yortymobile for the mayor's campaigning for the Democratic presidential nomination. The vehicle, a modified motor home, has a custom-designed observation platform and a rear platform which Yorty plans to use after the first of the year for whistlestop campaigning around the nation.

Direct Ballot Idea Advanced

HONOLULU (AP) - A resolution calling for scrapping the electoral college in favor of di-rect election of the president and vice president was de-feated Tuesday in the Resolutions Committee of the 48th annual congress of the National League of Cities. The resolution, sponsored by Mayor Carlos Romero-Barcello of San Juan, P.R. also would have extended presidential voting rights to residents of U.S. possessions—Puerto Rico. the U.S. Virgin Islands, American Samoa and Guam.

Duty of a Wife

"Whither thou goest, I will and where thou lodgest, I wil kind of biblical loyalty to her husband? Under today's law, in she still obliged to let him choose the family home? Almost everywhere, that cor tinues to be the basic rule. By and large, it is the husband who has the last word as to where they will live. If the wife refuses to follow his lead, she is guilty o desertion-grounds for divorce.

To cut expenses, a man pre pared to move to a smaller apartment. But his wife decided it was "not stylish enough" for her, and went home to her parents. Afte a long impasse, the man finally sued for divorce and won a decree. The judge said the wife's refusal to live with him, for no good and sufficient reason, made her a deserter in the eyes of the Nevertheless, the husband's authority is far from absolute. He rangement which is simply not fair to his spouse. For example, one man decided to move in with his mother, even though he could well afford separate lodgings-and even though his mother and his wife did not get along with each other. A court held, in these circum stances, that the wife had a legitinate excuse for not joining the

Furthermore, when a man in vites his wife to join him at a new location, he must really mean it — not just be going through the motions. One cantankerous husband, having jour-neyed alone to the West Coast, sent back the following "invitaion" to his wife: "I have completely gotten ov my regard for you, if I ever had any. However, I am doing what I must do, even though you have ruined my life. I ask you to come and make your home with me, as he law requires." When she held back, he tried to divorce her on the grounds of desertion. But the court ruled against him. The judge said this was the kind of an invitation that no self-respecting wife could Brian's Song Does anyone agree with me that las Brian's Song" was the most moving since President John Kennedy's assassi nation follow-up? It's just one man's opinion, but "Brians Song" was the best video show seen in years and was so

The acting was superb, by Billy Dee Williams as Gayle Sayers and James Caan as Brian Piccolo, two hard-running backs of the Chicago Bears of the Na tional Football League. Piccolo, stricken with cancer at the height of his career, died at the age of 26.

A point it made was that blacks and vhites could get along like brothers, Piccolo and Savers being the first ever with the Bears to wind up as roommates. It was far more than a fcotball story although the film shots of Bears' games and Sayers and Piccolo were great. "Brian's Song" featured it all, humor, love, thrills and death. The chances are good that it will be repeated at a later date. The film should enrich the lives of everyone who had the opportunity to view the full 90 minutes last night. 8 "Brian's Song" was the talk of the office today.

Here 'n' There When Willie Mays said "I Do" over the weekend it was the second marriage for the star outfielder of the San Francisco Giants. . .
