Vigilante Group Proposed

HARTFORD (AP) — Crime in Hartford's South End has gotten so bad that a vigilante committee may be necessary to keep it in check, a group of businessmen told Mayor George Athanasios Sunday. Phil Champagne of the Aged Auto Parts and Antiques Store said he was leaving today for New York City and then to Alabama and Georgia to gather information on vigilante committees with the view toward setting one up in the South End. Other men at the meeting of some 20 South End businessmen complained of repeated break-ins by the same individual, lack of police protection, and harassment by protection racketeers. Major Frank Kellher, of the Hartford Police Department, welcomed cooperation from businessmen, but he said the police "cannot tolerate any person or group inflicting corporal punishment on anyone in Hartford."

Staff Increases Planned At State Schools

HARTFORD (AP) — Gov. Thomas J. Meskill said today there will be "some" increase in the staff at the state training schools for the mentally retarded in Southbury and Mansfield. However, the governor, at a news conference, did not indicate how many new jobs would be created at the two institutions. Superintendents at the two schools have complained recently of serious under-staffing. Meskill released data indicating that there are more staff employees per resident at Mansfield and Southbury now than there were before he took office in 1971. On other subjects, Meskill said: "I don't think it is possible to change the relationship between the governor and the secretary of state. The relationship is not the type that creates any problems," he said. Asked how he felt about Lt. Gov. T. Clark Hull's public disagreements with him on issues such as the death penalty, Meskill said, "I don't think it does any good. I don't think it does any particular harm, either."

Meskill said his legislative proposals will be released from time to time during the General Assembly session, "some in the budget message, some independently." There may be some special messages sent from the governor to the legislature during the session, he said. Public Utilities Commission last Friday, has been rejected by the legislature. Meskill said he will have no comment on the recommendations of his Tax Reform Commission until it issues his budget message next month. The commission's proposals are interdependent and its report, to be issued Wednesday, must be considered as a whole, the governor said. "It's not like going down the grocery store aisle and picking packages off the shelf," he added. Meskill said he still favors a constitutional amendment shortening the state ballot and making the offices of attorney general, treasurer and comptroller appointive rather than elective. However, he said he saw no reason to change the relationship between the governor and the secretary of state. The relationship is not the type that creates any problems," he said. Asked how he felt about Lt. Gov. T. Clark Hull's public disagreements with him on issues such as the death penalty, Meskill said, "I don't think it does any good. Bus Deficit Ratio Not Negotiable

HARTFORD (AP) — Gov. Thomas J. Meskill says he will act to remove one problem local officials say stands in the way of forming transit districts to cope with the current bus shortage. But the main difference between the state and localities over who will bear the brunt of operating deficits still "is not negotiable," Meskill said Sunday. Meskill has contended for some time that $3 million allocated by the General Assembly last fall for roads could be spent by localities on mass transit. But local officials say they are afraid to take on the money because it is earmarked for highways and because of a pending court challenge of Meskill's line-item veto of another part of the same bill. The governor said on WTIC-TV's "Face the State" program that he would ask the General Assembly to amend the law so as to allow municipalities to use the funds for either mass transit or highways. But Meskill and the local officials made it clear that there is no immediate prospect of compromise on the issue of deficits. There hasn't been any bus service in New Haven, Hartford and Stamford since the Connecticut workers struck The Connecticut Co. in late November. The Connecticut Railway and Lighting Co. stopped running buses in Bridgeport, New Britain and Waterbury in October. Both companies claim they can't operate without deficits. Meskill said the deficits could not be a stumbling block to negotiations. Local officials, he said, "shouldn't assume there's going to be a deficit, there will be a deficit only if the local district wants it."

Meskill defended his formula under which the state would pay 25 per cent of deficits incurred by local transit districts by repaying the position that the district would have power to prevent a deficit through fares and scheduling. Povinelli Named To State Post

HARTFORD (AP) — Henry A. Povinelli of Milford, who ran unsuccessfully for Congress last year, has been named as a temporary additional unemployment compensation commissioner in the Third Congressional District. Povinelli was appointed by Gov. Thomas J. Meskill for a six-month term beginning last Thursday. The appointment was announced today. A former state representative, Povinelli ran on the Republican ticket against Democratic congressman Robert N. Giaimo of North Haven last year. Meskill also announced today the reappointment of three alternate members of the State Board of Mediation and Arbitration. They are Frederick W. McKone of Rockville, Joseph E. Arborio of Wethersfield and Raymond A. Mann of Danbury. Their terms expire on June 18.

Congress To Seek Better Control Of Federal Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is preparing to begin its organized effort to get better control of the budget—and in the process to regain some of the power which, its members contend, has slipped over the years to the White House. The 16 House members of a special committee created by the last Congress to devise effective legislative budget machinery have set their first meeting for Wednesday. Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., said. Ullman is author of the provision creating the committee, enacted when Congress turned down President Nixon's request for sweeping authority to cut back funds the legislators had already authorized. Ullman said he will propose establishment of permanent committees in both the House and Senate, composed of senior members of the two parties. The committees would be charged, he said, with examining the president's spending proposals and developing recommendations. "It's a question of basic use of power. The only way we can get it back is to hit the bullet, take the responsibility, and limit ourselves —" "It's a big bite."

Boycott Ends — The two-week-old boycott protesting the American bombing of North Vietnam was called off today by the Australian Maritime Union. Two other unions involved in the boycott are expected to follow suit. Maritime Union Secretary Elliott V. Elliott said the boycott was stopped at the request of the Australian Council of Trade Unions, but that members had the right to resume it. He said the ban was worthwhile because of the worldwide reaction it provoked. One of the results was a retaliatory boycott of Australian ships by longshoremen on the U.S. East Coast. Nine Australian ships carrying meat and wool have been tied up. Only two are designed for export by the Australian boycott. Protest Bombing — The executive committee of the World Council of Churches appealed today to all American churches to "do everything in their power" to protest the bombing of North Vietnam. The committee also pledged support for antiwar efforts in the United States, including resistance to the draft and student demonstrations. The resolution was adopted at the end of an 11-day conference on "Salvation Today" sponsored by the World Council. Board Given $11.4 Million School Budget For Review

By JOHN A. JOHNSTON (Herald Reporter) Dr. James P. Kennedy, superintendent of schools, last night submitted, for the Board of Education's review over the next month and a half, a recommended school budget of $11,425,912 for the 1973-74 academic year. In a four-page rationale preceding a dual presentation of the recommended budget by program and traditional state code, he said that "An exact comparison with this year's budget is impossible at this time," inasmuch as the board has requested the Board of Directors for an additional appropriation of $208,000. However, Dr. Kennedy added, if the directors restore a minimum of $115,000 for four programs that were reinstated last fall, his recommended budget would represent an 11 per cent increase of $1,136,000. That is the figure on which he based his recommendation. If the complete $208,000

Area Departments Battle Flames For Many Hours

By DOUG BEVINS (Herald Reporter) A general alarm fire, fought by firemen from at least ten departments, completely gutted one of the buildings in the old Bon Ami manufacturing complex on Hilliard St. Monday. The blaze, considered "definitely suspicious" by Eighth District Fire Chief Granville Lingard, was apparently confined to a three-story concrete building and an attached three-story frame building at the northwest side of the former industrial complex. More than 250 firemen from Manchester and surrounding towns battled the spectacular blaze, starting in mid-afternoon and continuing throughout the night. The fire was reported to Eighth District fire headquarters, by police, at 2:45 p.m. Monday. Firemen were getting apparatus set up, smoke was billowing from upper-floor windows and the fire was spreading. At 2:54 p.m. the second alarm was sounded, and two minutes later the Eighth District headquarters started calling for mutual aid from other towns. The Town Fire Department and the Rockville department's Surt were among the first outside-the-district help arriving. Also called to the scene during the afternoon were equipment and/or men from Tolland, North Coventry, Bolton, Ellington, South Windsor, Glastonbury, East Hartford, Vernon, and Rocky Hill (not in that order). Smoke billows Thick clouds of black smoke billowed from the burning building during the afternoon and evening. The smoke was occasionally flames, could be seen in Hartford. As firemen began fighting the fire, they concentrated on containing the fire to the three-story concrete building, the blaze did get into the frame structure attached, but apparently none of the other half-dozen buildings in the complex were touched by flames. Firemen first attacked the fire from the north side of the building, firemen said, but men and equipment were fighting the blaze from all sides within minutes. The building hit by the fire is owned by Stuart Carlson of Manchester, under the corporate name of S.H.V.C. Inc., according to the town assessor's office. Carlson was seen at the site, firemen said, but he could not be reached for comment. Carlson leased about a third of the concrete building's 30,000 square feet to the Iona Manufacturing Co. of Manchester. Iona Vice President Leonard Barbato said that large amounts of corrugated cardboard packaging material was stored in the building. Barbato said Iona's loss, in the building's contents, would probably be between $100,000 and $150,000. "Ted" LaBonne, whose insurance firm handles the insurance for the complex, declined comment. Soon after firemen started fighting the blaze, the Penn Central railroad company moved several freight cars along tracks on the north side of the burning building, as a heat shield to protect the nearby W.G. Glemey lumber yard. Firemen, striving to prevent the blaze from spreading, hosed down adjacent structures in the area. "I'm really amazed by the five other buildings (in the complex) are still standing," said Lingard. "If this fire had prevailed then, 'the rest of the complex would've been.'" Lack of Water — Lingard said firefighters Monday afternoon and night were hampered in their efforts by "lack of an adequate water supply." The privately-owned Manchester Water Co., which serves the area, experienced a mechanical failure while the blaze was being fought, and

Enigma Shrouds Hotel Murders

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Police Supt. Clarence Giarrusso says a sniper involved in the slayings of six persons slipped through a 200-man cordon from his hotel rooftop perch Monday either through "police negligence" or because he was super smart. Giarrusso said Monday night he was convinced more than one sniper was responsible for killing the six and injuring 17 others in a two-day battle. But when pressed by newsmen, Giarrusso admitted there could have been just one sniper — the man killed by police gunfire Sunday night. A floor-by-floor search of the 18-story Downtown Howard Johnson's hotel was made by 100 officers Monday night. They found no one and all but about a dozen officers left the scene. The central business district, which was cordoned off by police Monday, is to be opened to normal activity today, Mayor Moon Landrieu said. As the floor-by-floor search of the hotel began, Giarrusso said, "If they don't turn up anyone, then he got away. How could he have filtered to freedom through the scores of officers surrounding the hotel? It's a mystery." Giarrusso replied. The sniper of two or more persons was based on "some" evidence, Giarrusso said, stressing that after a sniper was killed on the rooftop Sunday night, there were reports of gunfire coming from the surrounding district were taken down Monday night, although the immediate area around the hotel was still cordoned off. "It's my cop's intuition," Giarrusso said. When asked what evidence he had to back up his statement, Giarrusso declined to elaborate. The police barricades around a 50-block area of the central business district were taken down Monday night, although the immediate area around the hotel was still cordoned off. However, the superintendent admitted the possibility that the

Major Blaze Damages Homes

By BARBARA RICHMOND (Herald Reporter) While firemen were still wearily battling a general alarm fire on Hilliard St., early this morning, they were called to another major fire on W. Middle Tpke. that destroyed a two-story building under construction and extensively damaged an occupied house next door. The alarm was sounded at 4:10 a.m. from the corner of W. Middle Tpke. and Hawthorne St. where the house was under construction. Units from the town and Eighth District responded and by the time the fire-fanned flames had spread to the house next door which is owned, and was occupied by Tony Vernali his wife and six-year-old daughter Lucy. A four-year-old son, Sal, is patient at Newington Children's Hospital. The entire west side of the Vernali home was charred and the windows in that side of the house were smashed from the severe heat of the flames from the burning building. Vernali said he is a sound sleeper and did not realize the fire was raging next door until he was awakened by the police. The heat was so severe that it laminated the plastic window shades to pieces of the broken windows which were scattered around the two bedrooms on that side of the house, one occupied by the Vernalis and the other by their daughter. Downstairs the living room and dining room suffered the most damage. The rooms on the other side of the house were in tact except for smoke damage. According to a nearby neighbor, John Carmichael of 4 S. Hawthorne St., the house under construction appeared to be only a few weeks away from occupancy. According to wrapping Lingard, the eighth District fire chief, the fire is of suspicious origin. The three-family house was being constructed for Nicholas and Phyllis Jackson by the Norman S. Hohenbhal Co. of 141 Center St. Value of the house alone, when completed, was $141,017; attendance service, $41,433, up $6,222. (See Page 18)

The limp, charred frame of a building under construction on W. Middle Tpke., is all that was left after an early morning fire of "suspicious origin" gutted the nearly completed building and caused extensive damage to the house next door owned by Tony Vernali. The destroyed building was being constructed for Nicholas Jackson by the Hohenbhal Co. of Center St. The owner set the value of the building at $60,000. The damage to the Vernali home has not yet been estimated. (Herald photo by Pinto.)

turn out that West had the ace and jack of spades, and then South wouldn't win a spade trick at all. This was just what East wanted to force South to win the first spade trick instead of holding up. Declarer went after the clubs, and East took the ace. Now he could cash the ace of spades and return his low spade, allowing West to defeat the contract with the rest of the long spade suit.

Conservationists Seek Noise Law

By BETTY RYDER The Manchester Conservation Commission voted unanimously last night to submit proposed noise ordinance, similar to the one in effect in the Town of Farmington, and present it to the Board of Directors with the commission's recommendation that it be adopted.

It was further decided that Roger Price, commission member who originally initiated the proposed ordinance, would contact the board for an appointment to present that ordinance for consideration. Joseph Lawler, chairman of the Save Case M. Committee, spoke briefly and explained the various access routes to the property, which would allow for public parking close to the base of the mountain. Deadline for the purchase of the property is March 31, and the committee is hopeful its application for $149,000 filed with the state Department of Environmental Protection as an open space grant, will go before the Bonding Commission for approval soon.

A grant of $300,000 has been secured from HUD toward the purchase of Case M., and the Town of Manchester has to appropriate approximately $150,000 to pay for the 25 per cent balance of the purchase. Over $6,000 has been raised by the commission through glass and paper recycling programs. A matching grant of $5,000 has been received from the Ford Foundation for the purchase of other costs of the purchase. Commission chairman Mrs. Theresa Parla reported on the success of the recycling program, and discussed initiating a curbside newspaper pick-up program as a means of obtaining more funds toward the Case M. purchase.

Mrs. Parla proposed future publication of a pamphlet setting the areas throughout Manchester that the public could use for outdoor recreation such as walking, hiking, and bicycling. Use of the land around the reservoirs was also discussed, and it was decided to contact town officials as to the possible use of these areas for outdoor recreation. Commenting on the Globe Hollow Reservoir, Mrs. Parla

Hotel Fire Forces Guests To Leave WATERBURY (AP) — Fifteen guests were evacuated from the fourth floor of the Holiday Inn in downtown Waterbury Monday night when fire erupted in one of the rooms, officials said. Flames were confined to Room 410, where the fire originated, firemen said, but the rest of the floor sustained smoke and water damage. Mrs. Mary Ann, 47, of Naugatuck, occupant of the room, was taken to St. Mary's Hospital where she was reported in fair condition with first and second degree burns to the arms, face and neck. Cause of the blaze, which began about 6:45 p.m. and was $5,000 has been received from the Ford Foundation for the purchase of other costs of the purchase.

Stiffer Welfare Fraud Penalties Urged By Meskill HARTFORD (AP) — Gov. Thomas J. Meskill has called for stiffer penalties for welfare fraud. Welfare fraud brings relatively light penalties, "even when the degree of welfare fraud is quite serious," Meskill said during the weekend. "The threat of a stiff penalty would greatly assist those attempting to root out fraud," he said.

Pass Needed For Taking Late Bus Rham High School principal J. Colin Pushee has announced that beginning this week all students taking late buses must have a late bus pass signed by a teacher. Students involved in activities that meet after school, on a regularly scheduled basis, will be given a permanent pass from their advisor. However, students who stay after for teacher detention, extra help, make-up work or to help a teacher must have a pass signed by that teacher. Bus drivers have been instructed not to provide transportation to anyone not presenting a pass, and in order to insure that buses are not overloaded, Pushee stated that students will have to continue to sign up for late buses in the office.

He said that this procedure became necessary after repeated pleas for cooperation from students who were staying after school fell on deaf ears. Many of these students, he added, were staying only to socialize, and that the school cannot provide proper supervision. The administration agrees that a certain degree of socializing is an important part of school life, but it must be at the same time provide adequate supervision for these activities. Pushee hopes that together with students and members of the community, some alternatives may be developed for students who want to socialize.

Airport Security

The institution of tougher and more thorough screening of airline passengers at the nation's airports—including Bradley International—apparently is meeting with passenger acceptance despite the inconvenience and some delay.

As one passenger phrased it, "It is better to be held up 15 minutes here than spend 10 hours in Havana."

The new measures are costly and despite the relative effectiveness of present detection devices and the promise of more sophisticated ones in the future, the screenings, although necessary, do not really resolve the problem which is central to aircraft hijackings.

The ultimate deterrent to aerial hijackings still is the elimination of havens for hijackers. While there is no doubt such havens can be readily eliminated for "criminals" who hijack planes; the issue becomes more complex because of hijackings allegedly motivated by "political" refugees.

The ultimate question to be resolved is the price we, as a free people may be willing to pay to assure "political asylum" to those who commandeer aircraft or ships to flee political persecution.

The present investment in personnel and equipment and the more intensive screening and searching of passengers boarding aircraft in the United States indicates to us a reluctance on the part of our government at the present time to engage in international agreements to end hijacking havens for both "political" and "criminal" hijackers.

Until there is a willingness to negotiate in both areas, it appears unlikely that nations like Cuba, Algeria, and others which favor or disfavor "political asylum" on principle will agree to a shutting of the doors to criminal hijackers alone. In the case of Cuba, which has many seeking to leave by almost any means possible, the issue of "political asylum" becomes a major bargaining point.

Whether the United States, which has opened dialogue with Cuba through the Swiss, will be willing to compromise the political issue remains to be seen. In fact, it would appear the new stringent measures at our airports is an effort to avert such a compromise unless passengers, after the system is fully implemented and has been in operation for some time, object too much to its inconvenience and added costs.

The screening, to be effective in eliminating hijacking, will have to be permanent; whereas, international agreements eliminating havens for hijackers eliminates it at little or no cost since the hijackers would have no place to go.

The ultimate solution then may well be the extent to which we as taxpayers and airline users are willing to pay extra in money and inconvenience for the principle of "political asylum." In effect we are surrendering a portion of our right of unrestricted travel to keep open a last desperate avenue of escape for thousands now suffering political and other forms of persecution.

Airport security is not only a test of our patience; but of a principle as well.

The Mystery of the Secret Signal

In keeping with the spirit of the times, we have for you today one of those tough, hard-boiled detective stories. Its title: "The Mystery of the Secret Signal."

The strong, silent hero's name is Dick. He is very silent. His fun-loving comical sidekick's name is Henry. He is very comical lately.

Our story opens in the eerie, fog-shrouded Oval Office. Henry is lounging in a chair, sipping Mumm's and leaning through Playboy while making notes in a black address book. Dick is silently pacing the floor. Suddenly, he whirls on Henry.

"Hark!" he says. "Did you hear a faint beep-beep-beep-beep?"

"Nein," says Henry, "not even van little bip."

"Strange," says Dick, frowning. "If I have made one thing perfectly clear, it is that I cannot stop the bombing until I hear the Secret Signal. Are you sure you got the message to them at those last negotiating sessions in Paris?"

Henry nods. "I told them. Yee haf says of making you talk peace."

Dick resumes his pacing. "I know my sensitive, finely-tuned ears will recognize The Secret Signal when it comes. After all, how long can they hold out? My B-52s are flattening their cities."

"Ah," says Henry, "the power of your bombs vill..."

"Not my bombs, you idiot," snaps Dick, "my B-52s. If I have made another thing perfectly clear, it is that the damage to their cities is caused by my B-52s falling on them. They can't support the weight of all those B-52s falling on them much longer. First, they'll release my POWs..."

"And ven they do," says Henry, "your triumph will be doubled."

"It vill?" says Dick. "I mean, it vill?"

"Ja wohl!" says Henry. "They vill have twice as many to release."

"Good thinking," says Dick. "Listen! The phone! Answer it, Henry. Maybe it's The Secret Signal."

"Hello!" says Henry, picking up the receiver. He scowls. "I told you never to call me at the office."

"Was it The Secret Signal?" asks Dick eagerly.

"Not yours," says Henry hanging up.

"Humm," says Dick. "Hand me the paper. Maybe they put

James McVeigh

To the editor:

Jim McVeigh was a soldier. He looked like a soldier whether in the uniform of his rank or in citizens clothes on the street. He was also a gentleman at all times, under any conditions to everyone he met.

The army quickly recognized his qualities and promoted him to high rank. When he came to us after the wars we found we had in him just the talents required a credit manager. With us this position is most important as this officer can create or cancel thousands of dollars worth of sales by the way he handles people.

Jim knew how to handle the delicate question of credit with new customers skillfully and quickly. Courteous and sympathetic to those in need he could show himself the warmest stiff backed officer to any who attempted fraud.

Call for Connally

DALLAS — The same Texas Republican leaders who in 1970 cursed the alliance between President Nixon and their ancient foe, former Democratic Gov. John B. Connally, are now prayerfully calling for his early conversion to Republicanism and a Connally drive for President in 1976.

The process began early in 1972. Republican Dallas oil executive (now Deputy Secretary of Defense) William Clements, chairman of Mr. Nixon's Texas campaign, told Connally the President's victory could be assured if the rural county courthouse machines did not produce their usual landslide of Democratic votes.

The Republicans were awestruck by Connally's performance. In more than 100 telephone calls, Connally talked the courthouse politicians into neutrality or a Nixon endorsement. Thus did Connally open the prospect of the Republican party, strong in the big cities for nearly a generation, finally breaking through in rural Texas.

Democratic politicians here who have talked to Connally recently fear he may soon formally embrace the GOP. They describe him as deeply hurt that Democratic National Chairman Robert Strauss—his college roommate, close personal friend and political protégé—read him out of any official party role.

Such tidings have panicked old-style Texas Democrats, desperately trying to keep their party in the mainstream of this conservative state. Longtime political comrades of both men, they feel, however irrationally, that Strauss should have welcomed all Democrats—Nixon back to the Democratic fold as prodigal sons. They are beside themselves that Strauss predicts Connally's imminent conversion to Republicanism.

Their nightmare: a Texas where being a Democrat is somehow disreputable, not only in the country clubs and executive suites of Dallas and Houston but in small town cafes and churches.

A portent is George Christian, President Lyndon B. Johnson's last and favorite press secretary and since then top political professional for Texas establishment Democrats. Christian's job as executive director of Connally's Democrats for Nixon was considered a business proposition. But when he accepts a personal invitation to Mr. Nixon's inauguration that is read here as an omen of changing loyalties.

If Connally himself converts, he can bring along his followers with little competition. Texas Democrats look to their governor for political leadership, but millionaire Gov.-elect Dolph Briscoe seems more interested in getting through his term and back to the ranch than combat with Connally.

Had Republican Sen. John Tower lost his reelection campaign last fall, all this would be moot. Connally endorsed Tower's opponent and would have been blamed for Tower's defeat. But because Tower won, it is absurd to believe a Republican future for Connally will be undermined by his home state Republicans. To the contrary, nobody is calling Connally a traitor.

U. N. Subject Of Filmstrip

The United Nations was founded in 1945 with its avowed goals in including a determination "to save succeeding generations from the scourge of war."

After nearly three decades of existence, to what extent has the United Nations accomplished these aims? Can it fulfill its founding visions? What will its future bring?

The United Nations, its successes and failures, its peace-keeping efforts and its less well-known activities—such as the World Health Organization and UNESCO—are the subject of The Associated Press sound-and-color filmstrip.

Among those interviewed for the provocative program are U. N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim, and U. N. representatives from the United States, Syria, Saudi Arabia, Israel and the United Kingdom.

It is the fourth in the 1972-73 series of "Special Report" filmstrips provided to schools by The Herald and produced by The Associated Press in cooperation with Scott Education.

South Windsor Rec Area Proposed For Town

The Capital Goals and Improvements Commission (CGIC) will consider a request made last week by the Park and Recreation Commission for a town recreation complex.

Members of the CGIC were asked to consider the appropriation of $80,000 of the capital reserve fund for planning and engineering work on the complex that would provide an all-purpose ice skating rink; roller skating, basketball, and dancing areas; a swimming pool; four tennis courts; a paddle court; a community building similar to that planned by the Youth Council two years ago; a music shell using the ice rink as part of the audience area; two softball fields, one with lights; two baseball diamonds; and handball courts.

The proposal had previously been suggested to the Town Council in a workshop session, and Mayor Abraham Glassman said the council is considering approving $4,000 of the reserve fund for a feasibility study to determine the exact cost of the proposal.

Suggested town-owned locations for the recreation complex are the 90-acre recreation site on Rye St.; the 10-acre former Pudin property on Barber Hill; some 40 acres of land across from the high school; and the Avery Brook Watershed area, a project currently being mulled over by the council members.

State and federal funds and former Youth Council funds, plus private contributions would be considered in the price of the project.

The project is fashioned after the Okil Farms Complex in West Simsbury.

Seek Highway Fund

Town Engineer Emil Lucek last week told the Capital Improvements Committee that he would recommend the establishment of a highway fund for South Windsor. The proposal called for use of revenues collected to rebuild main thoroughfares in the town which do not meet present day standards.

According to Lucek, main town roads will need repair and rebuilding soon, and, unless some method is devised to meet the costs, the town will be forced to act. This could mean substantial bonding and would result in increased taxes.

Lucek appeared before the committee as part of its format this year to hear all town agencies and suggestions in order to prepare for a capital goals report to the Town Council. Currently the fund, a two-mill tax levied annually has a balance of $48,822.

Lucek suggested the annual appropriation of "from one to two mills annually" to cover reconstruction costs. He said priority street repair projects would be at a discretion of the council in office, a year-by-year outline, rather than by long range planning.

Trees Recycled

The town will again go into the Christmas tree recycling chipping program, Town Engineer Emil Lucek said today.

Residents are asked to bring the trees to the Strong Rd. Sanitary Landfill area and place them in the "Charlie's Place" near the dog pound.

Lucek said regular rubbish removal company employees will not separate the trees from the trash, therefore it is best to take the trees to the town dump and pile them in the special area.

Once the collection is complete, the town will chip the trees and residents may pick up the clean pine wood chips which may be used as mulch around bushes, Lucek said.

Thrift Shop Sale

The Community Thrift Shop will hold a half-price sale this month.

The shop is manned by volunteers and is open Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and the second and fourth Saturdays of each month from 1-4 p.m. The store is located in the Sullivan Ave. Shopping Plaza.

Proceeds from sales are used by the club to benefit local scholars, "The Listening Post", and other community organizations.

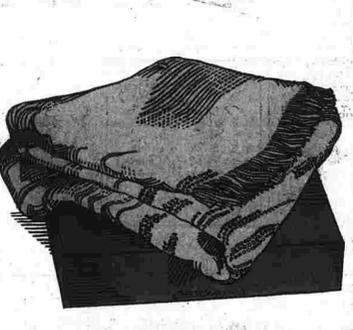

Donations of clothing and other household items are welcome and may be left at the store or will be picked up if notification is given to Mrs. Edmund Sirebel of 84 Palmer Dr. Persons who received gift certificates are asked to redeem them at the shop as soon as possible.

Bon Ami Once Giant

By JUNE TOMPKINS

(Herald Reporter)

Thirteen years ago last September, the Bon Ami Manufacturing Co. plant began an unimpressive long and slow demise at 75 Hillard St. The plant, which at one time employed as many as 70 persons to manufacture a household cleanser with the most modern machinery of the day, had become a financial burden. Maintenance of an aging building, use of obsolete equipment, and oversized operation area which made the Bon Ami plant a monarch among Manchester's early industries, made the venture a costly one.

It is ironic that the history of the Bon Ami business in Manchester was climaxed in April 1959 on the occasion of the celebration of the beginning of a year-long observance of the company's 75th anniversary, which was on the eve of the company's sale. The occasion traced the history of the industry to when J.T. Robertson took over the family kitchen in his Glastonbury farm house and there, made, molded and wrapped by hand the first lot of his own devised cake cleanser which he then peddled in a market basket from door to door. First called "Robertson's Mineral Soap," it was the original of what was soon to be named Bon Ami.

Robertson's one-man business flourished to the extent he had to expand, and he moved to Manchester. His product and sales won over a group of businessmen who, in 1891, formed the J.T. Robertson Co.

The company acquired Robertson's formulas, trademarks and good will for $500. One stockholder at the organization meeting expressed doubt the investment would ever earn profits. He was proved wrong in 1920 when the controlling member of Bon Ami turned down an offer of $3 million for the trademark, the famous one of a newly hatched chick just out of its shell with the accompanying slogan, "hasn't scratched yet."

The new two-story building with its imposing front-ported towers provided 210,000 square feet of operation space. Seventy-five years later, the same operation in a modern plant would be reduced to 40,000 square feet.

The occasion of the 75th anniversary also noted the introduction of new cleaning products. The industry, by this time, had grown to include manufacturing and distribution operations in Canada and Australia.

However, in September 1958, five months after the anniversary celebration, announcement was made that the plant would be put on the market and the equipment would be removed. Operating and shipping losses of $375,000 a year were given as the primary reasons to close the plant. Because little had been done to bring the plant and equipment up-to-date over a 30-year period, machines here were turning out 70 cans of Bon Ami a minute while competing firms were producing 300 or more cans in the same time.

Two large storage and warehouse on Hillard St., part of the Bon Ami plant, were sold to Gregg and Sons, Inc. The main block of factory buildings was sold to S.H.V.C. Inc. Much of the old equipment was sold to companies in Mexico and South America.

In the heyday of Bon Ami's manufacture, the company came up with a unique advertising promotion which involved a torchbearing lady who "hasn't had a bath in 75 years." As part of the company's 75th anniversary celebration, a sufficient supply of the company's product was offered free to clean the outside surface of the Statue of Liberty. Also ironic is the fact that J.T. Robertson's original mineral soap was so-called because of the content of feldspar, an igneous mineral - igneous meaning having the nature of, or containing fire.

Smoke pours from burning three-story warehouse as fireman on town ladder truck, on west side of building, directs water at flames.

Bon Ami Fire

water pressure dropped considerably for a short time. One fireman said that normal pressure of 200 gallons per minute dropped to 30 gallons per minute at one point. Because of the water pressure problems, several pieces of fire apparatus could not operate at their capacity, firemen said.

Fred Thrall, general manager of the Manchester Fire Department, said mechanical failure Monday afternoon put one pump out of operation for a short time. Repairs were made and the apparatus was back in operation by 10:30 a.m., Thrall said today, but water pressure has still not yet built up to normal.

For some time during the struggle against the blaze, firemen laid hose and ran water from the town's system, via a hydrant at Main St. and Middle Tpk.

Controlled Late Monday
The blaze was declared under control at 8:07 p.m. Monday, nearly six hours after it was discovered. Many out-of-town men went home when the fire was brought under control, but firemen continued to pour thousands of gallons of water into the building up until about 3 a.m. today.

This morning, the building was still smoldering and occasionally flames were breaking out in scattered areas. One Eighth District truck was at the scene today, setting down the building, Chief Lingard said wetting down and cleanup would probably continue for several days.

As water was poured into the building during the night, below-freezing temperatures caused lines to freeze up temporarily. Sheets of ice covered walls of the building as the fire subsided.

After firemen had the blaze under control — when shooting flames from upper windows could no longer be seen — the area around the building was iced everywhere, and many firemen suffered minor injuries slipping and falling on the ice-covered ground.

Town highway department crews sanded roads in the area, as they were covered by snow from rain-out. Police had blocked off streets in the area, and Hilliard St. was still closed to traffic today.

The monumental cleanup job began before midnight, even as some men were still fighting scattered fires in the building. The Hartford Fire Department sent steam jennies to haul out hose and equipment from volunteers from the Rocky Hill Fire Department arrived to assist at about 9 p.m.

Hundreds of spectators jammed the area in late afternoon, and police were busy trying to keep youngsters away from the burning building. Problems were reported by police.

The Salvation Army's canteen truck from Hartford arrived at the fire scene early, serving coffee and refreshments to weary firemen. Many area residents opened their doors to the men, offering food and warmth.

Fire companies gathered at the scene in the early stages of the fight were probably there the longest. They included not only the Eighth District volunteers, but also men from the Town of Manchester, Vernon, Rockville, and South Windsor.

Dramatically fighting the fire were the Town of Manchester's ladder truck, the Rockville Surt (an aerial boom), and South Windsor's "cherry-picker," an aerial snorkel with a platform.

The town ladder truck was positioned on the west side of

IRS Backs Off On 'Invention'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of the Internal Revenue Service says he regrets that someone in his agency invented and used the mythical name of Hubert H. McGovern in a sample income tax return.

The mythical citizen has as his mythical address, 1599 Pennsylvania Ave., Washington, D.C., which would be in Lafayette Park, directly across the street from 1600 Pennsylvania Ave. which is the White House.

The name and address showed in an IRS publication called "Fundamentals of Tax Preparation" in a section that deals with income averaging. The agency said the publication is designed for college and adult education course in tax preparation.

Johnnie M. Walker, the IRS commissioner, sent letters of apology to Sen. George McGovern, the Democratic presidential candidate, and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, who contained the McGovern name and some name combinations. "We deeply regret the use of the name and address which some individuals may associate with you in an uncomplicated way," Walker said.

Walker said "It is safe to say that the mythical name of Hubert H. McGovern has been removed from the publication."

WINTER SPORTS

would have been about $60,000, according to Jackson.

Jackson said while the rough wiring was in and some of the plumbing work had been done, nothing had been connected that would cause a fire.

Workers used power from a nearby house to operate their power tools.

All that was left of the structure was a few leaning wooden beams and the shells of some air-conditioning units hung precariously on these charred beams. "Because the basement did not seem to be severely damaged, it appeared that the fire started in one of the upper floors. The roof had been completed and the contractor who could not be reached today, had started to put on the aluminum siding.

The cause of the fire is under investigation.

President 60 Years Old Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, observing his milestone 60th birthday today, says he "hopes to do great things" in the first four years of his seventh decade.

He doesn't feel old, he says. And to keep feeling young he suggests looking to the future, not the past, and staying in contact with younger people.

Nixon granted a birthday-eve interview to two news-service reporters, provided the discussion was limited solely to his birthday reflections. He took time out from working on his inaugural address for a 25-minute talk in his Executive Office Building hideaway.

The President said he doesn't like observing birthdays annually anymore and prefers to make note of them only on the decades—"every 10 years."

He cited his 10-year milestones starting at age 20 when he was "a junior in college, majoring in history and English, going out for football," but never made the team.

At 30, he was in Bougainville in the South Pacific in World War II. At 40, he had just been elected vice president. At 50, he was just defeated for the governorship of California and at 60, just re-elected for a second presidential term.

Never in those decades, he said, had he had just been elected vice president. At 50, he was just defeated for the governorship of California and at 60, just re-elected for a second presidential term.

The President plans to celebrate his birthday tonight with his wife, Pat, daughters Tricia Cox and Julie Eisenhower, his long-time personal secretary, Rose Mary Woods, and close Florida friend C.G. "Bebe" Rebozo.

Laurel Lake Referendum To Be March 13

By FLOYD LARSON
(Herald Staffer)

On March 13, the voters of Manchester will be asked to approve a referendum authorizing the town to purchase the 110-acre Laurel Lake property for a sanitary landfill site.

The town directors at a meeting Tuesday night voted with one exception to go ahead with plans for developing the tract into a sanitary landfill and set the date.

The exception in the 6-1 vote was that of Director Anthony Pietroniro, who said he could not support the referendum in good conscience because of the date. He said, "I think it will be better if we wait until after we have a chance in May."

Director Jon L. Norris was absent and the seat vacated by William W. Weber, who took over this new duties of the office of probate has not been filled on the nine-member board.

Major John Thompson summarized the board's majority feeling which was echoed by the others. He urged referring the issue to the voters and stressed the need for the directors to push the proposal to the people.

The property in question is owned by Wells C. and Robert C. Dennison who have given the town a "no strings attached" option to buy until July 1. The action authorizing the referendum will, if approved, allow the town to buy the property for $449,000 and expend an additional $200,000 for site preparation and landfill operating equipment. A total authorization of $1,391,000 in

Town Schools Given $115,000

By FLOYD LARSON
(Herald Staffer)

Four Manchester school systems which have been operating under deficit financing since September are in the black today.

The Manchester Town Board of Directors Tuesday night approved the appropriations to the system of $115,000 from the town's surplus.

The action was substantially less than the $208,000 originally requested by the Board of Education and explained at a public hearing on the matter last week.

The appropriation was approved after only some clarifying discussion between the directors and Superintendent of Schools James P. Kennedy over the difference between a $93,000 request for the four reinstated programs, funds in teaching supplies, repairs, etc., of approximately $115,000 had been set aside. These now can be applied to the programs which they were budgeted.

In addition, the board also approved additional appropriations for the schools from state grants (at no cost to local property taxpayers or use of surplus funds) $68,108 for fiscal year 1972-73, and $20,000 for renovation of Hilliard-Broad St. intersection reconstruction. The funds are part of an already approved referendum.

Ordinances approved included the amending of the sidewalk assessment statute to permit the town to pay the costs where sidewalk need was based primarily on public safety and necessity such as use by school children and elderly pedestrians; sale of Town of Manchester Water Department property to the Town of Glastonbury; and establishing a

Tax Reform Proposed

HARTFORD (AP) — The Governor's Commission on Tax Reform told Gov. Thomas J. Meskill today that Connecticut doesn't need a state income tax at this time, but urged instead a comprehensive overhaul of the state's present revenue system.

The commission's long-awaited report noted that while future revenue needs might necessitate a state income tax eventually, "the existing state tax structure will be sufficient to meet Connecticut's needs in the foreseeable future."

Having its position on anticipated revenue increases of 6.7 per cent a year and a 5 per cent per year increase in state income tax, the commission said new taxes would not be needed.

In fact, the panel suggested several areas in which existing taxes could be cut, including a recommendation that the state's seven per cent sales tax be reduced to 6 1/2 per cent, effective July 1. The sales tax rate reduction should be coupled with elimination of the present exemption on children's clothing and the application of the 6 1/2 per cent levy on personal services, the commission said.

The report also urges property tax reductions for increased business and corporate taxation, the commission recommended that corporations taxes be carried forward where there are capital or operating losses, that corporations be allowed to deduct from corporate taxes 100 per cent of the interest paid starting in 1974, and that in 1976, banks be allowed to deduct interest paid to depositors from their bills.

As for insurance companies, the commission suggested their corporate taxes be brought under the same provisions as other business taxes and that the current levy on interest and dividends be eliminated in the present statute expires at the end of this year.

To compensate the cities and towns for revenues lost because of the commission's other tax proposals, the report argues that block grants be increased.

It also suggested that tax-exempt property be assessed for services taxes, but not regular property tax rates.

Also recommended by the commission is a complicated reworking of the system for financing local education. It would involve equalization of financial support for public education, a format once described by Gov. Meskill as the "Robin Hood principle." Essentially it would redistribute education funds so that wealthier communities would help poorer towns carry the burden on school financing.

Part of the plan includes establishing a State Board of Assessment and Supervision and a uniform assessment date of Oct. 1 by which all property in the state would be assessed on the same criteria once every five years.

The commission's findings were contained in a three-volume report submitted at the close of a study of the state's tax system begun last summer.

Firemen Seek Cause Of Bon Ami Blaze

By DOUG BEVINS
(Herald Reporter)

Preliminary investigation of the general alarm fire Monday which gutted one of the old Bon Ami buildings on Hilliard St. has determined that the fire apparently started on the third floor near the center of the concrete building.

The intense fire, fought by more than 250 firemen from Manchester and surrounding towns, is still being investigated. The blaze was "definitely suspicious," Eighth District Fire Chief Granville Lingard said, noting that there were several smaller suspicious fires in the same building in the last year.

Meanwhile, another major fire which occurred early Tuesday morning has been classified as of "unknown" origin, Lingard said today.

That fire, which destroyed a three-family house under construction at W. Middle Tpk. and Hawthorne St., was reported at 4:10 a.m., and heavy firemen were still battling the warehouse fire on Hilliard St.

Chief Lingard, the State Fire Marshal's office, and local police are investigating both fires to see if any connection exists between them.

Lingard said today that there was "nothing to point to anything out of the ordinary" at the house fire. The nearby completed dwelling was a complete loss, Lingard said, noting that it is very hard to prove anything when a fire entirely destroys a building.

The fire is still considered suspicious, Lingard said. He mentioned that there was an arson attempt at another dwelling just a few homes away on W. Middle Tpk.

The old three-story concrete building on Hilliard St. gutted by a fire which took about six hours to bring under control, is owned by Stuart Carlson of Manchester, under the corporate name of S.H.V.C. Inc.

Early estimates of the fire damage were set at about half million dollars, including the building and packaging material stored inside by the Iona Manufacturing Co. of Manchester.

Lingard said today that a "miraculous" that the fire was contained to the concrete building and an attached three-story straggler. There are several other attached buildings in the industrial complex which was once the home of the Bon Ami Manufacturing Co.

Water pressure problems at a critical time and failure of the concrete building's sprinkler to stop it from going further, Lingard said, but at no time did firemen fight the blaze from within the three-story concrete building. "It was much too dangerous to go inside," Lingard said.

Lingard criticized problems with water pressure, although he emphasized that the privately owned Manchester Water Co. did the best it could.

The major part of the fire subsided early Tuesday morning, but there are still critical points in the building. The Eighth District men were still pouring water into the building today.

Lingard said the blaze could have easily gone into and destroyed the other buildings in the complex, because all of the buildings are connected by either direct contact or castwells and conveyor tunnels.

Fire Calls

At 3:06 p.m. Monday town firemen answered a call to 691 Main St. to investigate a report of the malfunction of an electric engine.

Town firemen were called to Wickham Park on the report of a brush fire there at 3:57 p.m. Monday. The party who turned in the alarm had seen smoke from the fire at the Bon Ami factory and mistaken it for a fire at the park.

A similar incident occurred at 4:10 p.m. when an alarm was turned in at Box 139, near House Dr. and Carver Lane, town firemen reported.

At 9:36 p.m. Monday, town firemen were called to Niko's by police when a transformer on a utility pole exploded, backing out the power in the area. A HELCO service crew was called in to restore power to the 14 customers affected by the transformer blowout. The power was restored in 53 minutes and the transformer was replaced in 3 hours and 15 minutes, HELCO reported.

Why are vitamins popular?

Some people believe that vitamins relieve sluggishness and fatigue. There is no foundation for this. Others believe that vitamins prevent colds. Again there is not the slightest bit of evidence to support this contention. But the man who has been taking vitamins and has been fortunate enough to avoid a cold during the winter will be a vitamin consumer for life.

People are more health conscious than they used to be and this is probably why the vitamins are so popular.

Self-dosing with vitamins is not justified. However, there are times when supplementary vitamins are truly useful and necessary and sometimes lifesaving.

John Sullivan proposes new charter drop ban on holding political office by firemen.

John Sullivan, Manchester Fire Department superintendent, has proposed a new charter provision that would prohibit firemen from holding political office.

Sullivan said the proposal was necessary because of the "overwhelmingly defeated" last year's proposal to pay the manager more money than the town.

He conceded that, under state statutes, neither the charter nor the directors can control the salary of the superintendent. However, he insisted, "they can control the salary of the manager. The manager is on the firing line seven days a week, twenty-four hours a day. He's even responsible for raising the taxes which go for the school budget."

Frank Stamer commented, "It's not so much that town managers are underpaid. It's just that we've got to admit that school superintendents, all over the state, are overpaid."

Agostinelli's recommendation, "School salaries all over the country are bordering on insanity," he said, noting that some educators are paid more than a governor.

"However," he added, "I'm not sure this is the right way to approach the problem. I'd hate to see the power to control the manager's salary slip away from the Board of Directors."

Stamer added, "Possibly, by approving the proposal, an onus could be created here for the town council boards to control the continual hike in salaries for superintendents of schools. Let's realize that just saying we'll
