Many Senators Favor Shield Law Concept

HARTFORD (AP) — At least 26 of Connecticut's 36 state senators favor some kind of shield law to protect newsmen from revealing their sources, according to an informal poll.

The bill, which is similar to one passed last year by the Connecticut Council on Freedom of Information, would protect professional journalists and newsmen from being compelled to reveal their sources to a court, grand jury or state agency.

The council, which is made of representatives of daily newspapers and the broadcast media, has been working for some time to bring about a shield law.

Two Recitals Played By Gruber in Germany

BY JUNE TOMPKINS (Herald Reporter)
Readers of John Gruber's weekly column "The Way It Heard It," in The Herald know that he recently returned from a holiday visit in Germany. Gruber, the Herald's music critic, described some of his impressions while he attended a couple of opera productions. Gruber also gave two piano recitals during his visit. — one in Teubingen-Lauterbach at the Friedrich Zundelschloss, a 300-year-old castle and one in Munich at Redoutensaal in der Herdend, a large manor type dwelling of the high renaissance period. His programs included works by Beethoven, Chopin, Liszt, and Debussy.

Gruber, although German, is somewhat of a pianist. He also appeared with the Boston Symphony Orchestra as piano soloist in the MacDowell Piano Concerto No. 2 in 1963. According to Gruber, the period between Christmas and New Year's is one continual holiday with people busy attending parties and all sorts of musical and theater programs. That is why there are only open half days during the holidays.

Game and food, cooked in wine, seem to be the main dining fare during the holidays. Gruber feasted on wild herb, venison and pheasant during the holidays. For Christmas dinner, he dined on roach with potato kaiserschmarrn, translated, are rolled thin beef slices with potato dumplings.

A big haul of groceries costs a lot more in Germany, says Gruber, than it does here. For instance, he says, coffee over there costs $2.62 per pound, and live lobster costs $9 per pound. The bakeries carry a variety of breads, mostly dark breads. And, of course, at holiday time, there are all kinds of sweet cakes and fancy cookies.

There may be strings of electric colored lights to put on Christmas trees, but the common decorations, out-moded and unpractical in our country, are still the real lighted candles. Gruber says, however, that a bucket of water is always nearby.

The weather in the areas Gruber visited, near Munich and Stuttgart, was similar to ours in this part of New England. Everyone appears to be well dressed and, says Gruber, although German styles follow the German tradition, which is somewhat conservative, there are quite a few shops that feature Italian and French fashions. Italian shoes for men are very much in vogue, says Gruber.

American associate the name Loden-Frey with warm coats and jackets of sturdy design and material. L. Munich, Loden-Frey's is a store not only in New York, but also in New York, says Gruber, and carries a full line of men's and women's clothing. "You can pay $1,000 for an evening gown there without batting an eyelash," he says.

Although he made his recent trip by air, he prefers travel by boat. "I always feel like I'm being transported when I go by plane," he says. Gruber says he is fortunate to have relatives "all over Europe" which gives him a legitimate reason for an occasional visit abroad.

Lumber Imports Higher
Portland, Ore. — The United States exports more than a billion board-feet of lumber annually, but imports seven times that amount.

That "insane" play of the ace of diamonds would work it out. East should overtake your queen of clubs and return a club for you to ruff, thus defeating the contract.

Daily Question
Partner opens the bidding with one heart and the next player passes. You hold: Spades, 8-3; Hearts, 8-6-4; Diamonds, 9-5-2; Clubs, A-10-9-8-4.

What do you say?
Answer: Pass. You need at least one additional point for a response to partner's opening bid.

WARNING PLAY SHOWS PROBLEM
By ALFRED SHEINWOLD
It isn't always necessary to tell a good partner the exact nature of your problem. Just find a way to let him know that you have a problem, by the bid or play that you make. He may be able to work out what puzzles you, and may even find a solution to your problem.

South dealer
East-West vulnerable
Opening lead — King of Clubs
As West, you open the king of clubs. Your partner plays the encouraging ten of clubs and gathers the first trick in.

What next?
If you continue with the queen of clubs, your partner has a very difficult problem to solve.

There is no way for East to know what is necessary, so he will play a low club at the second trick. Now there is no way for your side to get a third club trick. You have only two clubs and a diamond.

Spot Problem First
Your first step in solving such a problem is to notice that the problem exists. Otherwise, you'll lead the queen of clubs before you even notice that there's anything to think about.

Next, you must find some way to warn partner that he must be on the alert. It isn't at all obvious that you should speak or ring a bell or look desperate.

Just lead the ace of diamonds at the second trick. This play will startle your partner. Then you lead your queen of clubs and the wheels should start to go around in your partner's noggin.

That "insane" play of the ace of diamonds would work it out. East should overtake your queen of clubs and return a club for you to ruff, thus defeating the contract.

Laser Waves Move In Same Direction

Los Angeles — Laser light, unlike light from lamp bulbs or the sun, is essentially of one wavelength, or color. The waves all move in the same direction each reinforcing the other. The term, laser, is an acronym formed by the initial letters of the instrument's function—light amplification by stimulated emission of radiation.

While all of the reports are written in the fanciest of handwriting, those writing them were not the best spellers in the world but they did go into great detail on most of the arrests. A great contrast to the concise reports of today's log books.

In those "good old days" they practiced discrimination to the most extreme degree. Beside each arrest was written whether the person charged was black or white, their nationality, whether they could read or write and their occupation. Quite different from these days when, for the most part, you have to determine whether the arrested person is male or female, rarely it is noted whether a female is Miss or Mrs.

Even though horse and buggy traveling was the prime mode of transportation at the turn of the century the log books do contain some reckless driving arrests and also arrests for "abusing team."

Arrests for just "drunk" were also numerous and although one can be sure the log books were written up in all seriousness, at that time, one can't help but smile at the detailed comments accompanying most of the arrest reports.

Strangely enough, the log books contained very few arrests for any serious charges such as breaking and entering, larceny, or drug-related arrests. Young people in those days started to work at a very early age and therefore arrests of teen-agers were not too numerous and rarely for anything serious.

One entry, concerning the arrest of a teen-aged boy explained that the boy had broken some windows and was accompanied by the comment, "This is the young fellow that did not go on automatically at dusk and off at sunrise. They were usually turned on after dark and turned off at midnight and on nights when the moon was shining they did not bother to light them at all. Now why don't they do that now?"

Oh, the arrest logs were very colorful, they not only contained the life history of the accused but a very descriptive report of the arrest accompanied by "editorial" opinions of the police officers. Some of these reports just as they were written, follow.

"I had a complaint from that darn H-I-I family again he wanted his wife arrested he swore she was drunk. James and myself went down there and she was purty drunk but only for one thing I would put her under arrest but James will be down this morning and give you particulars in full. He claimed he would pay her fare home to Ireland next Monday and we have to fix it somehow so as to make him do it."

'He Got Ugly But He Was To Fur Gon To Fite'

By BARBARA RICHMOND (Herald Reporter)
Complaints about violations of the "Blue Laws" are not unique to the 20th century...they also existed in the 19th century. In one of the old log books at the Vernon police station it reads "A Rockville minister complained to the police because the owner of a candy store kept it open on Sunday."

Checking The Old Police Log

Vernon Police lieutenant, Clarence O. Neff, circa 1973, puzzles over some of the police reports of circa 1890 as he examines one of the original log books from that period. Lt. Neff said the books were given to former department member Lt. Robert Kjelquist who in turn gave them to him when he left the department. (Herald photo by Richmond.)

Many Nations Now Use Geothermal Energy Sources

By WILLIAM N. OATIS
Associated Press Writer
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The heat of molten rock deep within the earth is being harnessed to help meet the energy needs of 18 nations. This source is called geothermal energy, from Greek words meaning earth-heat power.

"I believe that we are witnessing the birth of a vast new source of energy," says Joseph Barnea, U.N. director of resources and transport.

He addressed a seminar here on the development and use of geothermal energy, attended by 250 people from a dozen countries.

Barnea told newsmen the participants agreed that this type of energy was making a breakthrough and was widespread, clean and cheap.

Nobody really knows what keeps the rock molten. Scientists theorize that it is friction in the broken crust of the earth and the radioactive decay of materials underneath.

In most places the molten rock, or magma, is 15 to 25 miles underground. In some places, where there are fissures in the earth, it pushes closer to the surface.

The magma heats other rocks and these turn underground water into hot reservoirs, six miles or less from daylight.

If the hot water can find a way, it comes out as steam or geysers. If not, it can be tapped by a well drilled down to where it is.

The wells bring up steam or hot water, or both. The steam can be fed straight through a turbine to run an electric generator. The hot water can be used to boil some volatile liquid, like isobutane, which vapor, and the vapor will spin the turbine that runs the generator.

Two officials of the U.N. Resources and Transport Division speculated that eventually hot underground rocks could be tapped for more than double the energy in all the world's estimated coal, oil and gas deposits.

He put it rather broadly: "We believe that the stored geothermal energy in rocks at depth reachable with present technology is a few orders of magnitude greater than the energy contained in the estimated world fossil fuel reserves."

Meidav listed 18 countries where geothermal energy is now being used or developed — the United States, Mexico, Nicaragua, El Salvador, Chile, Iceland, France, Italy, Bulgaria, Hungary, Turkey, the Soviet Union, China, Japan, the Philippines, Indonesia, New Zealand and Kenya. Barnea said U.N. studies showed Chile had enough geothermal energy potential to provide all Africa with electricity.

Italy has been producing electricity from underground heat since 1904 at the Larderello steam field, which helps light Rome.

San Francisco gets electricity from the Geysers, a 12-year-old steam field 55 miles north of there run by the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. Near Niland in Southern California's Imperial Valley, the San Diego Gas and Electric Co. is building a hot-water electric plant, after investigations by the Bureau of Reclamation, on a design developed by the Magma Power Co. of Los Angeles.

Geothermal energy has other uses.

In the Imzrial Valley, the hot water used to generate power will afterward be flashed into steam in low-pressure chambers and the steam will be condensed to fresh water.

This fresh water will be dumped into the Colorado River to lower its salinity and help the United States keep a treaty pledge to Mexico to limit the salt content of the river.

Geothermal energy heats houses, and in some places greenhouses, in Boise, Idaho; Burns, Klamath Falls, and Lakeview, Ore. There is need for ground is used in manufacturing pulp and paper in New Zealand, and in breeding fish, eels and alligators in Japan. It is a source of various useful minerals.

Generation of electricity doesn't amount to a great deal yet. The installed geothermal electric generating capacity of the whole world is only about a million kilowatts, a mere 15th of the total installed capacity from all power sources in New England.

But it is building up. Under a 1970 act of Congress, the U.S. government is about to issue leases for development on 58 million acres of federal land in 13 states.

An Interior Department panel estimated last year that geothermal energy in the United States could, by the year 2000, be supplying 36 million kilowatts, more than all the U.S. electric generating capacity today.

Barnea says it requires less capital investment than other power sources: $100 to $150 a kilowatt now, against estimates of $200 to $300 for a coal or oil-burning power station and $500 for a nuclear power station in 1975.

A geothermal electric plant takes only two years to build.

Barnea sought to knock down the energy barrier to geothermal energy in a 240-page report, "The United States and the World: Geothermal Energy." He said the United States had found such energy whenever it had drilled for it — the Americas, with the balance coming from Asia and Africa.

Although immigration from the West declined the past year, immigration from the Soviet Union has increased and now about 70,000 applications for immigration here are awaiting action by Soviet officials, the Israelis said.

Four main centers of world Jewry still remain outside Israel: the United States and Canada, 5 million; Western Europe, 1.25 million; Latin America, 1 million; and the Soviet Union, 3 million.

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals agreed Tuesday to rehear full arguments on a school desegregation plan for Detroit and 52 suburban school districts.

The court ordered its previous opinion in the case vacated, pending oral arguments scheduled for Feb. 8.

The appellate court on Dec. 8 upheld findings of racial desegregation in Detroit area schools but ruled that all 52 suburban school districts involved must have their day in court before a school desegregation plan could be implemented.

Judge Stephen J. Roth of the U.S. District Court in Detroit, who ordered the massive busing, was last told month to re-open hearings on the plan and make sure each of the suburban districts was included in the proceedings. Roth is recovering from a heart attack and no action has been taken since the appellate court's Dec. 8 ruling.

Tuesday's court action, in effect, restores appeals of the case to active status. It also halts any further district court hearings pending rehearing of oral arguments.

Mr. Albano has studied and performed with leading professional ballet companies in the United States and in Europe. He is an international Teacher, Performer, Choreographer, and Inventor of "The Law of Centers and Theory of Rotors" in dance education.

Bernard S. Holland, 36, of Hartford, was taken into custody by Vernon Police Tuesday afternoon on several charges stemming from alleged offenses in the last part of 1972. Gardiner was arrested on four different court warrants, police said. He was held on a $1,000 bond, and was to be presented in court at East Hartford Tuesday.

Holland is charged with larceny (three counts); issuing a bad check (three counts); operating a motor vehicle while his license was suspended; evading responsibility; disorderly conduct; intoxication; and non-support.

John C. Thomas, 28, of Hartford, was charged Tuesday afternoon with disorderly conduct, third-degree criminal mischief, and intoxication, Vernon Police reported.

The charges stem from a disturbance at a Ward St., Rockville, home, police said.

Thomas was held overnight on a $100 surety bond, and was to be presented in court Tuesday.

Richard G. Weller, 18, of Echo Dr., Vernon, was issued a summons Tuesday night charging him with improper passing on Rt. 30 near Hillside Ave. in Vernon, police said. Court date is Feb. 6.

Robert Saucier, 20, of 132 High St., Rockville, was charged Tuesday night with breach of peace, in connection with a disturbance on Brooklyn St., Rockville, Vernon Police said.

Saucier was released on his written promise to appear in court at Rockville Feb. 6.

Cattanach Asked To Outline Junior High Space Needs

The Regional District 8 Board of Education Monday evening asked Dr. David Cattanach, superintendent of schools, to draw up educational specifications for a new 7th and 8th grade facility to alleviate overcrowding at Rham High School.

Drawing up of the specifications for a facility to house approximately 800 students with core facilities to allow expansion to at least 1,200 students, was the first of ten steps outlined to the board by Dr. Cattanach.

The next step would involve a district meeting to designate a building committee and to authorize funds for architects to present and to investigate an option and/or acquire a site.

In this connection, Dr. Cattanach explained that normally a building committee is comprised of members from the boards of education in the district.

Also, the amount of money to be requested would depend on whether the board holds the referendum after preliminary plans are drawn up or waits until the final plans are completed and gone out for bids.

After the district meeting, an architect would have to be chosen, a site acquired and preliminary plans and final plans completed and sent out to bid.

The referendum, as mentioned above, would be held at the board's discretion.

The final step would be the construction and acceptance of the building.

The new addition, according to Dr. Cattanach, with its expansion to at least 1,200 students, would be sufficient to house any increases in enrollment up until 1980's. At that time a re-evaluation could be made considering such possibilities as moving the 9th grade into the junior high facility.

Dr. Cattanach felt that the educational specifications should be ready for the board's February meeting.

Present Overcrowding
The board also requested the administration to present at the February meeting concrete proposals for solving overcrowding which is a certainty the next two years.

Already, with 1,111 students, the school has exceeded maximum capacity, which according to the State Department of Education is from 1,010 to 1,000.

Assistant principal Glen Frank explained that all 29 general classrooms, as well as the 22 specialized areas, are 100 per cent scheduled and the 10 small classrooms are 94 per cent scheduled. In addition, non-teaching areas such as the auditorium and two cafeterias are already 79 per cent scheduled.

Classes are not the only problems of overcrowding that exist, according to Frank. There is insufficient space for lockers, cafeterias, full school assemblies and the library.

Suggestions
Suggestions made to help alleviate the situation next year were for double sessions, the eliminating of any classes not having more than 12 students and the temporary housing of the 7th grades in the respective towns.

Dr. Cattanach felt that eliminating classes would not help as students would still have to be housed somewhere in the building.

He also felt that the towns would not have the space for their 7th graders as well as not having the departmentalized programs.

Board Members
The committee authorized by the board upon the request of the Town of Hebron to study the possibility of four year terms for board members instead of the present two year terms presented recommendations received from the State Department of Education for the transition.

The towns will be contacted regarding these recommendations and a public hearing will have to be held by the board prior to any referendum authorizing the change.

St. Peter's Elects Officers
The parishioners toured the new addition to Phelps Hall which is presently in its rough construction. When completed, will house the nursery and the rector's office.

Historical Society
An important business meeting, vital to the progress of our town, according to president Mrs. Elaine Stockwell, has been called for the Hebron Historical Society for this evening at 8 at the Old Town Hall in Hebron Center.

Matters to be discussed concern the historical areas to be established in the town.

Welfare And Tax Reform Necessary

The Democratic leadership in the Congress has apparently abandoned any serious effort toward welfare reform in 1973. Rep. Wilbur Mills has indicated he prefers to concentrate on tax reforms and others are relying quite heavily on the impasse which occurred in the closing days of the last Congress between administration and congressional versions of welfare reform legislation.

It would appear the Congress is coping in two) to speak.
Tax reform, while vital, is politically charged loaded since any extensive change are bound to cause reactions which if done this year hopefully will have abated by the 1974 elections.

Welfare is equally politically loaded but provides a greater chance for political opportunism in that welfare payments and programs reach many people directly and if timed, like the increased social security benefits of the last session, can be touted just prior to the election.

Tax law changes are indirect and complex with the impact more difficult to pin down since most federal taxes are paid by withholding and the voter rarely notices tax cuts in his paycheck because usually some other publically financed program on a national or state levels comes along to offset it.

We realize that both welfare and tax reform are complicated and far-ranging in their implications.

However, we also feel that much research and effort has been done by the Congress and administration on welfare reform in the last session so it would seem logical to pick up where it left off rather than to wait a year and have to all the ground work over again.

Maybe, by coordinating efforts, both reform programs can be advanced in 1973. This seems logical to us in that whatever welfare reforms are finally instituted there is found to be direct relationship to the nation's tax revenue needs to finance them.

It is our hope the administration and the congressional leadership will reconsider the present priorities and give the nation both welfare and tax reform which almost all agree are long overdue.

A Time For Restraint

While the nation has made considerable progress in its battle against inflation, it still has a tiger by the tail. Now, President Nixon is hoping to rely upon the common sense and restraint of the American people, industry and labor in his efforts to reduce the rate of inflation to 2.5 per cent by the end of 1973.

Spiraling costs forced Nixon's wage price freeze in 1971, followed by mandatory controls in effect since November of that year. Phase 3 of Nixon's economic program now abolishes mandatory controls except in two problem areas, food and health, and substitutes voluntary compliance with a system of guidelines.

Industries and unions freed from mandatory controls will not be free to indulge in excessive wage and price boosts that jeopardize anti-inflation goals. If the guidelines are broken, the government can roll back unreasonable increases.

Nixon promised "special vigor" in enforcing controls over food processing and retailing, where consumers have directed most complaints about rising prices. A government committee will renew federal policies affecting food prices and a non-government advisory panel will study ways of stabilizing food costs, which take about 16 per cent of the average take home pay.

Guidelines state price increases should not exceed increases in costs and "even where costs have increased, prices should not be increased if the firm's profit margin exceeds the firm's base profit margin." Or a firm may raise prices to reflect higher costs without regard to its profit margin if the increase would not exceed 1.5 per cent a year.

Americans have accepted controls over the past 17 months as necessary, with minimum complaint. Although the rate of inflation has been slowed to about 3.5 per cent, unemployment remains a problem along with continuing deficits in our balance of trade.

Nixon's surprise move indicates his faith in the restraint of industry, labor, and landlords, and in his ability to enforce reasonable limits on government spending, a major inflationary pressure. And it hedges against a rush for higher wages and prices, while allowing for reasonable flexibility.

Orderly transition from government control to self-control can achieve the reasonable stability the country so urgently needs to dismount the tiger of inflation. That tiger is still very much alive.

Our 'Friends'

To the editor:
For those who would heary the woe of our "friends" in South Vietnam on the event of immediate American withdrawal of forces, I would like to pose the question of exactly who these friends are. Are the people of South Vietnam our friends—those whom we bomb in the South as well as the North—day after day of "protective" strikes which have the nasty habit of "accidentally" destroying villages, farms and civilians?
Are the political prisoners in South Vietnam our friends—those estimated 200,000 who have been torn from their families on the suspicion of being in cahoots with NLF, or harboring Viet Cong, or speaking of freedom from foreign aggressors? or just being halfway intelligent and seeing through Mr. Thieu's lies of democracy?
Are they relatives of the 40,000 suspected NLF sympathizers who fell victim to the CIA-backed Phoenix program—40,000 dead—tortured for their political beliefs under the "benevolent" democratic government of Mr. Thieu?
Perhaps our friends are the 120,000 men who make up Mr. Thieu's secret police (does anybody remember the Nazi Gestapo?), who draw their paychecks from U. S. tax dollars to terrorize their fellow citizens (or we are to believe that only Communists are capable of terrorism)?
Or how about the students—those who are still being held in South Vietnamese prison camps as suspected NLF sympathizers—those students such as Le Cong Giun who must fight for their life from the tortures inflicted by Thieu's police (or is the Communists who torture people—certainly not friends of the U. S. of A?). Are they our friends?

Mr. Wojtki, who would be loathe to see us "abandon" our "friends" (as opposed to killing them all outright), I defy you to find a friend of the U. S. in South Vietnam other than the supreme friend himself Mr. This-Country-Has-Too-Much-Democracy Thieu and his little family of secret police and army.
I defy you to find many countries who continue to look upon the U. S. as the protector of defenseless little nations from foreign aggressors, while the U. S. aggresses a land which at one time was one country until we split it in two? I defy you to find many countries who can support Mr. Nixon's policy of bombs until they meet their own demands.
Count them—Australia, Sweden, Italy, Canada, etc. who have deplored U. S. Christmas bombing.)
And I defy you to find some of that "face" and "honor" Mr. Nixon is trying to save by obliterating a country. I've been to Europe and know some of the opinions Europeans have of those Americans who can allow such an outrage to continue year after year.
If I could truly believe that the South Vietnamese really needed a "democracy" such as Thieu has to offer, then I might not be so vociferous in my objection to current and past policy of the U. S. in Indochina.
But Mr. Thieu and his "friends" have nothing to offer but tyranny, oppression and death to the spirit of Vietnam and the unity of their country.

Hi Neighbor

Burl Lyons, Publisher

The Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce has a new logo, thanks to Marcom Inc., Manchester public relations, marketing and advertising firm, which designed the emblem free of charge. It's a dandy and you will probably see it widely displayed shortly.
While we are on the chamber, a short push for new members is under way this week, and they'd like to add your firm's name to the growing membership roll. It is a little difficult to conceive of a firm doing business in Manchester not joining an organization, such as the chamber, which looks out for the businessman.

At The Herald we have started calling attention to the big event with this postage meter note on all envelopes: Manchester Sesquicentennial 1623-1973, June 23-30. It's an ideal way to bring recognition to Manchester from all parts of the country. So Mr. Businessman, if you do a lot of mailing, why not investigate this promotion?

A reader sent us a letter with four or five questions, he or she we don't know for sure, said they would like the answers in this column so we'll do our best to oblige.
"I understand a patient can have his name omitted from the hospital column if he wishes, so your reasons that having the column in the paper was an invasion of privacy isn't seem to be valid. I think the complete list could be printed. You publishing a discharge list isn't any good. You print the complete Rockville hospital list, why not Manchester?"
We would love to print the complete Manchester hospital list. It was the hospital that wanted the column dropped, not us. We told hospital officials awhile back that we don't believe that publishing just the discharges will be satisfactory to our readers. We'd like to print the full column.
"Other papers are still using male and female headings in their want ads, why don't you instead of a general help wanted column?"
There have been suits filed against newspapers too charging discrimination in such practices. No two attorneys can give you the same interpretation of the broad Civil Rights Act. As a side point, though, we don't think the general help wanted column is an inconvenience to those that might be seeking employment.
"Regarding the Open Forum, other papers publish letters as long as the name and address is given to the paper but the article can be signed by just a name or phrase such as 'concerned citizen.' Why can't you do the same thing?"
This apparently is a sore point with some of our readers and we can't really understand why. If the mayor, town manager, school superintendent or anyone else, is being criticized in the public media, why shouldn't he at least have the courtesy to know who authored the article?
It doesn't take any interesting article, in fact they are gutless wretches, to write a letter finding fault with someone and then not have the courage to sign his or her name.
It's our new policy that all letters must be signed and they will be published as such.
"Your editorials aren't signed, and the person can express whatever he wishes because of free speech and freedom of the press. If you're going to be fair, the name and address of the editorial writer should be printed."
All editorials are the responsibility of the publisher whose name and address appears on the editorial page daily. Though editorials are often composed by other staff members, no editorial appears in print without first having come across the publisher's desk. Therefore, he and he alone, is responsible for all of them.
"When you print your 'High Neighbor' column you do not list your address."
True, but I carry the title of publisher in the column so you can find my address by looking elsewhere on the page.
"Shortly after you took over the paper, didn't you make the statement there would be more state and national news? Since the holiday season is over and there aren't so many ads, the paper has been very little."
All papers, including metropolitan newspapers, are smaller this time of the year because advertising is what enables us to turn out a newspaper each day.
The statement was made that we would turn out the best editorial product that we could in Manchester and still live within a budget that brings us the necessary advertising and circulation funds to deliver a strong newspaper.
Now that we are putting the final touches on our new equipment and building program, we will give heavy concentration this year toward improving our editorial product.
"If this paper is to be for the public, can't we have some of the items we like?"
You'll have to be more specific. I don't understand the reference.
"Haven't noticed you smiling in any of your pictures. Try it." We'll smile when we get out of the construction and equipment conversion business. Hopefully, that will be soon. The letter was signed, B. Smith, whoever that is. We would have much rather explained the policy of our newspaper and answered the questions in a 15-minute personal chat.
For what it's worth:
Just before a decision was made to cease publication of Life magazine, the magazine's management had requested an increase in its circulation and advertising rates based upon anticipated increases in postal rates. The Price Commission turned it down since only increased costs could be used to justify an increase, not anticipated costs.
Now the Government Printing Office, which wasn't subject to Phase 2 regulations, has ordered a sweeping price increase on all government documents. According to the acting superintendent of documents, the average price increase would be about 80 per cent.
If you are taking a good look at your first pay checks this year, you'll notice that Social Security is taking a deeper bite.
Last year the system took 5.2 per cent of most wage earner's pay checks up to $9,000. This year, the rate has jumped to 5.8 per cent and is paid on the first $10,000 that an employee draws.
What many workers don't know, though, is that employers are socked the same amount. Thus the employee who makes at least $10,800 this year pays $631.80 for Social Security and a like amount is contributed by his employer.
And there's one thing for certain. You can expect the wage base to be increased each year as workers retire earlier, live longer, and require more dollars to meet inflated living expenses.
At any rate, we can recall that in the old days the man who saved money was a miser, today he's a wonder.

Join the Party

To the Editor:
Mr. Kohler's letter (Herald, Jan. 4) revealed that he is a Democrat with strong opinions on national and state issues. There are many Democrats as distressed as he is with the policies and attitudes of the President and Governor. I agree that the Democrats are not going to be handed any victories; national, state, or local.
In order to gain victories at the polls, Democrats will have to unite, and that means that they must take every opportunity to communicate with each other. In Manchester, we have a Democratic Club where Democrats can do just that. The club is open to Democrats of all ages and provides a forum where they can exchange ideas freely and openly. A program of invited speakers affords an opportunity for club members to question public officials on issues of importance.
We at the Democratic Club of Manchester invite Mr. Kohler and any other Democrat who would like to become still better informed and also have an opportunity to have his or her ideas heard to attend any meeting of our club.
Sincerely,
David S. Paris

Today in History
Today is Wednesday, January 17, the 17th day of 1973. There are 348 days left in the year.
Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1945, in World War II, Soviet Troops and Polish patriot forces liberated Warsaw after five years of Nazi occupation.

Bolton Approves IGE School System

JUDITH DONOHUE

Tel. 649-8409
The Bolton Board of Education has unanimously approved implementation of the Integrated Guided Education (IGE) for Bolton Elementary School effective March 1st.

The board has also approved employment of a teacher aide to assist with the program 15 hours per week.
Elementary school principal George Patros appeared at the meeting with unit leaders to explain the groundswork which has been laid in preparation for introduction of IGE.
Patros explained the program as "highly structured" and one that should help each student progress according to his needs and abilities. He noted that programs are being planned to provide the parents and community with a complete picture of what IGE is all about before the program is started in March.

IGE is being introduced on a very limited basis in Bolton, restricted only to one area of the reading program, that is, word attack skills.
The possibility of offering Spanish at BHS was also discussed at a recent Board meeting although no decisions were made.
Carl Stokes, head of the foreign language department, said he will research the program to determine what the possibilities are. Both he and Susan Murray, Latin teacher, appeared concerned that introduction of a third language would cause the present offerings of Latin and French to suffer.
Board members said they were not advocating cutting either of the languages at this point, but only wanted the

Students will move in and out of small groups as they master each skill, and if necessary, will return to a small group for reinforcement. Students will be continually evaluated to determine whether they are placed in the best group for their particular needs.
The program relies heavily on paid and volunteer aides, as there will be extensive parent work on resource files, testing, and re-grouping, Patros said.

Spanish at BHS
The possibility of offering Spanish at BHS was also discussed at a recent Board meeting although no decisions were made.
Carl Stokes, head of the foreign language department, said he will research the program to determine what the possibilities are. Both he and Susan Murray, Latin teacher, appeared concerned that introduction of a third language would cause the present offerings of Latin and French to suffer.
Board members said they were not advocating cutting either of the languages at this point, but only wanted the Teachers to study the feasibility of adding Spanish to the present system or to suggest viable alternatives.

Stokes will appear at the February board meeting to present his findings and recommendations.
Staff Addition
In other business conducted at Thursday's meeting, the board ratified the appointment of Carla Carroll of Rockville as part-time creative arts teacher for the Center School.
Mrs. Carroll is a graduate of Orlando High School and Arizona State University where she received a Bachelor of Arts degree in 1971 and a Master of Arts degree this month.

VoEd Meeting
There will be a meeting of local employers interested in learning more about the proposed work-experience program for Bolton High School students Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the cafeteria of the elementary school.

Dems Meet
Several items are on the agenda for Friday's meeting of the Democratic Town Committee, according to chairman John Mahon. The committee is expected to accept resignation of two committee members and to recommend a candidate to fill a vacancy on the Public Building Commission.
Plans for the May town election will also be made, Mahon said.

Red Cross
An advanced course in first aid training will begin Thursday from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. in the Red Cross office at 345 East Center St., Manchester. Instructor will be Durwood Miller.
There is no charge for the training which will include instruction in anatomy, traction splinting, transportation of injured, handling shock, stroke and heart victims.
Persons wishing to take the course must have a standard first aid certificate, and may register at the Red Cross office.
Teenage Dance
Bolton teenagers are invited

Holiday Thank You
John Nichols, Bolton's welfare director, expresses his thanks to the many Bolton residents who helped make the recent holiday season happy for those less fortunate.
Special thanks was extended to Jeannette Sumner and the Salvation Army, Gordon Moores and Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Bosworth of Bolton Congregational Church; Mary Radon and Girl Scout Troop 68; members of the Bolton Volunteer Fire Department and Polly Comoli, public health nurse.

The woman's club has "adopted" Walters residents as one of its special community projects and has helped the young people celebrate birthdays and holidays during the year.
Proceeds from the dance will be used to purchase a music system for the cottage, according to Rochelle Hiccombe, project coordinator.
Fireman's Ball
Tickets are now available for the 8th annual Fireman's Ball to be held March 3 at 8 p.m. at Fiano's Restaurant.

The evening's entertainment will include a roast beef buffet followed by dancing to the music of Stan Kimble's orchestra.
Residents are advised to buy their tickets from firemen soon, as seating is limited and the affair is always a sellout.

4-H Will Hold Food Show Feb. 3

"Know The Magic Formula" will be the theme of the 4-H food show to be held Feb. 3 starting at 1 p.m. at the Tolland County Agricultural Center, Rt. 30, Vernon.
All 4-Hers enrolled in the food and nutrition projects are eligible and encouraged to participate in the show. Those participating may exhibit as an individual or as a member of his or her foods club.
The exhibit should be a prepared food, using a recipe from a foods and nutrition project book or a similar recipe from a standard cookbook. An appropriate table setting will be a part of the exhibit and a menu containing the food being exhibited should be submitted typed on a 3 1/2 x 5 1/2 inch card. Exhibitors will each be allowed 30 inches of table space.
4-H members who are 12 years of age or older may volunteer to serve as hostesses. Members of the foods committee are Kay Vanberpoel, chairman; Debbie Buckley, reporter; Mrs. Lynn Brown, Willington; Mrs. Ronald Aronson, Coventry; Barbara Brown, Willington; Jean Connor, Vernon and Anne Aronson, Coventry.

Warm Engine By Driving
Chicago—Idling a car engine for five minutes or so in the driveway is not the best way to warm up the motor on cold mornings, auto experts say. Driving the car at moderate speeds immediately after start-up will warm the engine faster and with less corrosive condensation and fuel consumption.

Points which will be considered will be menu, food preparation and table setting and knowledge of the basic four food groups will be emphasized. Exhibits must remain in place until 2:30 p.m. After they have been evaluated participants may leave their exhibits to participate in the "Supperclub".

Each 4-H member will discuss their exhibit with an evaluator. Points which will be considered will be menu, food preparation and table setting and knowledge of the basic four food groups will be emphasized. Exhibits must remain in place until 2:30 p.m. After they have been evaluated participants may leave their exhibits to participate in the "Supperclub".

AFS Students Guest Speakers

Two American Field Service exchange students will be guest speakers at the meeting of Gamma Chapter, Alpha Delta Kappa, Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Pauline Straight, 109 Coleman Rd.

Miss Pamela Horton will tell of her experiences last summer as an exchange student in Turkey. Miss Mary Nnajembe, who is attending Manchester High School, will tell about her homeland, Uganda, East Africa.

The business session will be held after the program. Mrs. Eleanor Willey will assist the hostess.

Driver Education Rules Changed

Driver education is now permitted on limited access highways in Connecticut, according to the State Traffic Commission.

The commission, after a review of the regulation prohibiting this activity, which include proper techniques of expressway driving, the commission said.

"Driver education should include proper techniques of expressway driving," the commission said.

The action corrects a situation which resulted in licensed motorists driving on limited access highways without prior experience of instruction on these highways.

The State Traffic Commission, composed of State Police Commissioner Cleveland Puessenich, Transportation Commissioner A. Earl Wilson and Motor Vehicles Commissioner Robert Leuba, reviewed the regulation at the request of State Education Commissioner William Sanders.

A driver education program for expressway driving will be developed by the State Department of Education, according to the commission.

About Town

The service will be made by calling the Red Cross office, 237 E. Center St. Walk-in donors are welcome.

Resolution Cites Town Anniversary

A resolution commemorating Manchester's 150th Anniversary was introduced in the state House of Representatives yesterday by Manchester State Rep. Francis Mahoney.

Speaking for it, in addition to Mahoney, were State Reps. Donald Genovaesi of Manchester, Muriel Yacovone of East Hartford and Warren Westbrook of South Windsor. The last two represent districts which include parts of Manchester.

The resolution passed the House unanimously and was sent to the Senate for action, where State Sen. David Odegar of Manchester will speak in its behalf.

Mahoney and his wife, Lucille, have accepted an invitation to a brunch, Jan. 23 at the Hartford Hilton Hotel, when these highways.

Ribicoff will meet with top Democrats of Hartford County. On Feb. 3, Mr. and Mrs. Mahoney will attend a social hour and dinner at the University of Connecticut, being sponsored by the UConn Alumni Association. The request of State Education Commissioner William Sanders.

A driver education program for expressway driving will be developed by the State Department of Education, according to the commission.

Auckland—A strain of housefly that could breed itself to extinction because it produces few males has been raised in an Auckland laboratory, according to the New Zealand Journal of Science.

Intern Program Planned

GREENWICH (AP)—U.S. Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr. is organizing a program to get senior citizens "off the curio shelf" and into a busy internship program in Washington.

The program will take 84 older persons to the nation's capital for meetings with congressmen and government officials, briefings at government agencies and tours of the congressional galleries. In addition, the senior citizens will see historical sights in Washington and attend cultural activities at the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts.

There will be two internship sessions, each lasting five days. The first session will begin Feb. 26.

"What I'm saying is we must get the old people off the curio shelf and into the cockpit where the action is," Weicker said in a statement announcing the program.

"I'm not talking about makework projects or stitching leather wallets," he said. "I'm simply talking about getting our senior citizens involved in the active, lively things we offer everyone else."

Participants in the program will be selected by a committee appointed by Weicker and headed by Mother M. Bertollette de Lourdes, O. Carm., Connecticut commissioner on aging.

School Nurse Reports Increase in Illness

Public Health Nurse Mrs. Jean Mosher reported to the Board of Education last week that 375 visits by students in the elementary schools were made to the health rooms during December. In addition, there were 45 health counseling visits by parents, students and school staff.

During the month, Mrs. Mosher stated that there has been a significant increase in the number of children seen for respiratory infections, particularly in the primary grades. Parents have been urged to help control the spread of these diseases by keeping their children at home when they are ill. Individual discussions have also been held to promote good health habits among the children.

Tuberculin testing, with parental permission, has been started on all new students and kindergarten children who have not previously been tested. Physical examinations, according to Mrs. Mosher, were completed at the Hebron school. Before the examinations, Mrs. Mosher conducted a cursory analysis and blood pressure check on each of the 25 students scheduled for examinations, which were conducted by Dr. Christopher O'Connor school physician. Dr. O'Connor also held consultations with parents when further evaluations were deemed advisable.

Also during December, the revision of various health forms used for the registration of new students and for compiling immunization and disease data on all students was completed.

Mrs. Mosher hopes that these revisions will eliminate many of the difficulties arising from incomplete information supplied at the time of registration and to evaluate the need for an immunization program.

Plans for this month include a presentation by Paul Goodrich, D.D.S. for the introduction of a dental prophylactic program in Regional District 3 elementary schools. The present dental program of cleaning and prophylaxis will begin at the Hebron Hill School this Friday.

As has been done in previous years, Mrs. Mosher stated that parents will be invited to preview the growth and development program to be held for the sixth grade boys again.

A similar program geared to the maturity level of fourth and fifth grade girls will be scheduled later in the school year.

Rham Group To Perform At UConn

Twenty-one Rham High School students have been selected to perform in the All-Eastern Connecticut Music Festival Jan. 26 and 27 at the University of Connecticut.

Chose to perform with the chorus are Betsy Anderson, Laura Bell, Bonnie Massey, Beth Horton, Melinda Fish, Judy Jose, Paula Bergenholz, Tom Fisher, Bob Vornell, Jon Donahue, Jon Horton, Jon Ross, Gian Bagdonis, Bob Moore and Brian Keefe.

Representing Rham in the band will be Lorna Johnson, Dave Ransom, Coleen Shannon, Ruth Copas, Kathy Wirth and Cheryl Dixon.

The festival concert will be performed the evening of the 27th at the Jorgensen Auditorium, 8 Robert Clowes, music director at Rham and president of the Eastern Division of CMEA, is coordinating all activities of the festival and Bernard Hartshorn, Rham's choral director, is chairman of the festival chorus.

Bowling

The semi-annual Rham intramural bowling banquet and awards ceremony was held last Thursday at Will's Bowling Center with all bowlers being treated to pizza and beverages. Receiving trophies for their performance in the first half of the year were David Strickland and Mary Lynn Christopher for high average; Chuck Lewis and Chris Michaud for most improved.

The second half of the year bowling will be held on Thursday afternoons except for Feb. 1 when it will be on the Wednesday before.

School Roles Decrease

Figures taken in September of previous years show that in 1967 there were 339 students in 1968, 363; in 1969, 375; in 1970, 369; and in 1971, 332.

Immunization

Parents are requested by the school administration to please return all slips pertaining to their children's immunization. The school nurse, according to Libby, is in the process of setting up a polio clinic and needs accurate a count as possible to determine the scope of the clinic.

All children are required to have polio immunization

and permission slips will be sent to parents for their approval prior to the clinic.

Susan Finds New Home

By June B. Tompkins

A very special imported present from half way around the world arrived just in time to make one couple's Christmas perfect. It was a baby - a Vietnamese baby girl. Accompanying the baby was its new father who was bringing it home to its new mother in Tucson, Ariz.

This strange tale began last summer when Maj. Ronald Gambolati, who is serving his second tour in the Mekong Delta as an advisor, decided to adopt a child.

After discussing the matter with an army chaplain, he visited a small Catholic orphanage near Can Tho in the Eastern Delta during November. When he told the sister there that he wanted to adopt a baby girl, he was led to a room where there were about 15 or 20 baby girls. Certain formalities were waived so that he could bring the baby home in time for Christmas.

When he stepped off the plane at Tucson after a 40-hour flight, with a bundle of swaddling clothes in his arms, his wife Mary saw for the first time the wee baby girl who had been abandoned only two months before at a hospital located deep in the Mekong Delta.

Named Susan Elizabeth Gambolati, she is the 49th orphan to be adopted by an American serviceman since the Vietnam conflict began, and the Gambolati's first child.

Although Maj. Gambolati returned to the Delta after a two-week leave, this was a Christmas when it was especially great to be home.

Maj. Gambolati is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gambolati of 16 W. Center St. His present tour of duty in Vietnam will end in June, and then he will be assigned to Germany for two years.

He has been decorated with the Bronze Star and the Combat Infantryman's Badge.

MHS Plans Second Annual Career Day

The Manchester High School planning committee announces that the second annual Career Day will be held Jan. 26 in the school gymnasium. Hours for consulting with representatives and viewing exhibits will be 10 a.m. until noon, and 1 to 2:30 p.m.

The purpose of the program is to acquaint students with opportunities available to them after graduation. To date, approximately 30 organizations have agreed to have representatives present to talk with interested students of the junior and senior high school levels.

Thomas Rodden, Cooperative Occupational Education Program teacher coordinator at MHS, is chairman of the planning committee. Other members are Mrs. Howard A. Fichtel, representing the Junior Women's Club of Manchester; Mrs. Edward Colman, coordinator of the new careers program at Manchester Community College; and Mrs. Sara Robinson, MIS guidance counselor. Dr. Richard Lindgren, Illing Junior High School principal; Mrs. Cynthia Marler, business teacher and advisor to the Future Business Leaders of America at MHS; and Mrs. Roberta Waltram, career education counselor for COEP. Persons interested in additional details and any business, industry, or other organization that would like to be represented at Career Day is asked to call Rodden at his MHS office, 643-1912.

MCC To Hear Pratt Programs

Students, faculty, and staff of Pratt Institute, Brooklyn, N.Y. will offer a multi-media presentation Thursday, Friday, and Saturday in the fine arts building on the Manchester Community College Biwell St. campus.

The presentation, titled "Pratt: The Creative Experience," reviews programs offered to students at the institute. Faculty, students, and administrative staff will be present to discuss the work and answer questions about Pratt's academic programs.

The following schedules will be in effect on the three days: Thursday, noon to 3 p.m., open to students interested in graduate studies; Friday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., and Saturday, 9 a.m. to noon, both open to secondary school juniors and seniors.

Rec Dept. To Offer Mini-class Series

The Manchester Recreation Department's women's day classes held at the West Side Rec. 110 Cedar St., will offer a series of mini-classes beginning the week of Jan. 22. This is in addition to the 20 regular classes taught at the West Side Rec. Mini-classes are designed for women who want to learn a new subject or craft but don't have the time to spend nine weeks in a class. Mothers are welcome to bring their children to the free pre-school play program while taking any classes at the recreation department.

Classes include: Tuesday, from 1:15 to 2:15 p.m., How To Buy a Home. Tips on what to look for in a home, legal procedures, contractual agreements and other information pertinent to home buying.

Duplicate Bridge

Also, East-West, first, Mary Warren and Betty Lanni; second, Eleanor Crafts and Margaret Danfield; third, Penny Skenderian and Joan Gagne.

Results of the Manchester Bridge Club duplicate game played Friday are as follows: North-South, first, John Desoy and Louis Halprin; second, Joe Toce and Suzanne Eggleston; third, Norma Fagan and Al LaPlante.

Results of the Andover Bridge Club duplicate game played Friday are as follows: North-South, first, Donald Weeks and Bob Cooper; second, Mrs. Paul Barton and Mrs. Mollie Gworek; third, Burt Smyth and Bill Radzewicz.

Also, East-West, first, Dr. and Mrs. Tanush Aoyanatan; second, Carl Welman and Tom Crockett; third, Mrs. Howard Boyd and Mrs. Lawrence Moe.

Fashion Tips Sweater Weather Winter sweaters, those angora-blend pastels, should be kept out for warmer weather. Thin sweaters make a good replacement for jackets and shawls for spring and summer evenings.

Hat and Hairdos Fuzzy hats or any snug-fitting hats require an appropriate hairdo underneath. Be sure you have a good cut and clean, shiny locks, so when the hat comes off, hair isn't limp and flat.

Recycled for Evening An inexpensive evening dress or an old, soiled one can be recycled into a beautiful fashion accessory. Buy gold or silver braid or strips of velvet and either sew or glue onto a simple, flat clutch bag.

Heralding Politics

By Sol R. Cohen

It will be up to the voters to supply answers to the questions, "How important are the recommendations by the Charter Revision Commission?" and "Was the creation of the commission even necessary?"

The answers will be known after a townwide referendum is held on the proposed changes and just as the 15 members of the commission did in voting for or against the proposals, so will the individual voters vote — according to their personal interest or involvement, or for no other reason than because they seem like good ideas.

True — the CRC completed its scope of inquiry to examine and evaluate the town's present form of government. It concluded that the council-manager government is the best for Manchester and rejected a change to a strong-mayor government, as well as a much milder change — for electing a mayor-at-large.

But then, one must ask, "Was it necessary to name 15 top-flight persons to a commission which spent hours and weeks and months — just to tell the people no change in government is needed and then to recommend some insignificant changes — changes which, if not made, would not significantly affect the government which they insist needs no change in the first place?"

And, one can't help wondering also whether or not a better name than "commission" would have been "omission." With only two or three exceptions, the 13-member commission consists of former and present elected and appointed officials. The "omission" enters when one considers the many ordinary, every-day citizens — never appointed or elected official, and yet, just as vitally interested in Manchester's charter and future as the people

Governor Discusses School Equalization Plan

HARTFORD (AP) — The governor's tax reform commission plan to equalize the financial burdens of supporting local public schools may not be the answer to the school funding problem, but "we've got to do something," says Gov. Thomas J. Meskill.

In an interview with The Associated Press, Meskill said the unequal tax resources of the 169 Connecticut towns and counties have produced "frighting" disparities in the education tax burdens on taxpayers in different communities.

In order to support his local schools, a taxpayer in a property-rich town presently does not need to pay nearly as high a tax as his counterpart in a town with a slender grand list, the governor said.

"He pays a hell of a lot less in Greenwich than he does in Voluntown, even though they spend a lot more in Greenwich," he said.

"It's really kind of goofy," Meskill said, "and I think this where we're going to get killed in the courts... This is how we finance education. By making the municipalities rely largely on local property taxes on unequal resources, "You're not providing by law for equal education," the governor said. "The Constitution provides that we've got to provide a free elementary and secondary education and the courts are going to hold us to that. If they strike down our use of the property tax — and, the more I read that report, I think they might very well..."

"Some people say, 'If it isn't constitutional, it ought to be,' the interviewer said.

"That's about it," said Meskill. "As I look at that (report), number to number, it's frightening. I just think that the court (the U.S. Supreme Court) is going to make us do something, and rather than wait and have them say, 'October first of this year you've got to do something about the assessment thing, you've got to have a new system in effect.'" themselves to it. I'm glad they came up with a solution. Whether or not I'll recommend it, or whether or not it's politically palatable... "Something has to be done in this area. Whether this is the thing or not, I don't know. We have to do something."

The governor indicated that "political problems" would arise because richer communities would have to share their tax revenues with poorer towns in order to equalize the school tax burden.

But even aside from this so-

Community College Site Recommended

HARTFORD (AP) — A New Haven site has been recommended for South Central Community College by the board of trustees for regional community colleges.

Mrs. Beryl Strout, board vice chairman, said the decision was opposed by only one board member, Mrs. Dorothy C. McNulty.

The site is at the Seamless Rubber Co. on Hallock Ave.

The resolution didn't entirely quell the controversy over location of the college. Mrs. Strout said it would have to be approved by the state Department of Finance, the Commission for Higher Education and the Department of Public Works.

The proposal last fall to locate the college on a state-owned former rifle range on North High Street in East Haven brought protests from minority groups in New Haven.

Most of the students would come from New Haven, and the East Haven site would be too far for them to travel, said Donald Ogilvie, president of the New Haven chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

State Grant Wanted By District

BRIDGEPORT (AP) — The chief executives of Bridgeport and Fairfield said Tuesday that the Bridgeport Transit District should request a direct state grant of $50,000 to establish a full time staff to work on local transit problems.

The transit district, which has overseen interim bus service in the Bridgeport and Fairfield areas since the CH&L New Haven chapter operations on Oct. 10, is now composed of a volunteer staff.

"It has become clear that the only break in the transit problem will be on the local level," Bridgeport Mayor Nicholas A. Panuzio and Fairfield First Selectman John J. Sullivan said at a Bridgeport City Hall news conference.

"All attempts to get a statewide resolution of general problems have failed because of the inherent prestige of the local people know best what their problems are and no one solution reaches all parts of the state," they said.

Today's Thought

I read a parable about love recently. A piece of iron needed to be broken. The axe said, "I'll master you. I'll break you into pieces." But the axe was blunted by every blow on the iron until it became useless.

The saw came along and said, "I'll take care of you." It swayed back and forth across the iron but succeeded only in breaking its own teeth.

Then the hammer tried. But after many vain attempts the head fell off, and the iron remained intact.

Finally a soft flame said, "I shall try." So it began to curl gently around the piece of iron with quiet hot intensity until the iron finally melted under the irresistible influence of the flame.

Love is what it is doing; it beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things.

Love never fails.

Are you facing a hard situation? Have you tried love?

BOOK REVIEWS

McGraw-Hill Encyclopedia of World Drama. Four volumes. 2,126 pages. $19.50.

McGraw-Hill can enlist an impressive aggregation of cultural scholarship when it attempts to chronicle man's creative aspirations. It did it in its encyclopedia on music and it did it again in its latest, an encyclopedia on the mimicry of life we call drama.

These four volumes, in the claim of the editors, bring "into focus the accomplishments of the world's major dramatists." Actually, it is more precisely a work on dramatists and their dramas since it follows mainly, in alphabetic order, the leading authors in this field from the Greeks and Romans to the 20th century. True, there are also about a hundred non-biographical articles, inserted alphabetically among the biographies, on what the editors describe as "dramatic terms, theater movements, theories, anonymous plays." It is unfortunate that the limitations of the encyclopedia format did not permit an expansion of this category.

The dramatists are divided "roughly" into "major" and "lesser." The former — such as Shakespeare, Moliere, Shaw, Ibsen, O'Neill, Strindberg, and the most formidable contenders, the format for each is a brief biography, a critique which the publishers say represents a consensus of reputable critics, and synopses of all their plays. For others whose names editors consider short of a biographer's, the space is less, but they are not less important plays are synopsized.

Greatly enhancing the value of the whole work, some 2,000 illustrations recall old and recent productions. These facsimiles and records of critical efforts; several Hamlets or Juliets force comparisons and, despite stylized poses, tell us something of the evolution of acting.

Surprises in criticism are not so great for the "classics," the Greeks, Shakespeare, Marlowe, Moliere, Shaw, Ibsen, Strindberg, Goethe, Schiller. We are jarred a bit when we come to Eugene O'Neill, generally considered America's greatest playwright, and are told of his "inability to sustain dialogue," that his experimentalism frequently "wasted material which otherwise would be exposed as shoddy and poetic." And that much of what we cherish as poetry was mere sentiment.

There are interesting sections on opera and musical comedy — wisely separated as European and American inspiration, respectively. But one will look in vain for specific treatment of, say, Konstantin Stanislavski and his seminal Moscow Art Theatre, the Method School of acting, great directors, stage designers, critics, or even actors.

With drama departments flourishing in most universities, this encyclopedia should be in every serious library, both collegiate and public, even though it is aimed at the general public. Such private devotion of the drama, who want to splurge a bit, will might pinch a bit elsewhere and make themselves a gift of the set.

THE CATSKILLS. From Woodstock to Woodstock. By Bill Evers. Doubleday & Co. $21. Pages: 312-50.

The Catskills have always been New York City's closest, and hence favorite, mountains. On a clear day, they say, you can see the Empire State Building tower from the nearer slopes. No matter that the Catskills' name derives their early Dutch nomenclature meaning "Tomcat Creek."

Now comes Bill Evers, native New Yorker who boasts of having been born in Ulster County in the Catskills, to chronicle their story from Indian times and before to the Woodstock Festival. His publishers tell us that he has been a farmer, landscape gardener, composer of greeting-card verses and author of more than 50 books for children. In addition, he is a most thorough researcher and recorder of something he loves as much as the Catskills.

Those mountains are smaller and much less dramatic than their wild geological cousins, the Adirondacks, but softer, gentler and more friendly.

Stepping over the prehistoric and almost historic Indian times, the Catskills figured prominently in the early Dutch settlement of New York. Later, when the English took over, there were great grantees and landholders, most conspicuous the actions of Robert Livingston, a true lord of the manor, whose descendants included Founding Fathers and a signer of the Declaration of Independence.

One of the quirks of history that amuses Evers is the fact that the mountains, which should have been remembered best for their association with the lordly Livingstons, instead became identified for most of us non-New Yorkers with the fictional creation of a famous writer, Rip Van Winkle, of Washington Irving.

Now, when Jewish resorts have engulfed old Rip's mountain retreat and Sleepy Hollow, another Catskill area has won a controversial fame as the site of the Woodstock Festival. It is interesting that Woodstock has been building as a refuge for artists and folk musicians and an escape from pollution at least since the turn of the century.

In recounting the story of his beloved mountains, Evers has assembled an impressive sheaf of facts and photographs that should please admirers of upstate New York.

Bandit So Busy Playing He Forgets The Woods

Kim Offers Bandit Some Goodies...

...But Bandit Wants To Play...

Bandit Much A Part Of Hadden Home

The only wild life this animal knows is within the confines of a house with a little girl and a dog as playmates. Bandit, a year-old registered raccoon lives in the basement garage at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hadden at 188 Hilliard St. Although he is very muscular and weighs about 35 pounds, he has never hurt any member of the family, according to Mrs. Hadden. Every evening after supper, Bandit joins the family upstairs for a play spell. Neither Kim, the Haddens' 3-year-old daughter, nor Heidi, the dachshund, seem to object to the raccoon's playful antics. Bandit thrives on kibbled dog food and any table scraps that come his way, plus a daily ration of vitamins. Next summer, he will live in a large cage in the back yard. There will be a dog house inside the cage where he can be protected from bad weather. The Haddens hope to keep him for a long, long time. (Herald photos by Buccievicius)

Union Says Tax Reform Favors Rich People

HARTFORD (AP) — Recommendations by the Governor's Commission on Tax Reform favor the rich by placing the heaviest tax burden on the poor, the United Auto Workers union said Tuesday. State industries could be made more competitive with other states through property sales, and use tax relief, but the loss in revenues should be made up by increasing taxes on profits of industries, the union said in a statement. Profits of state firms are at an all-time high, and industries should bear at least part of the increased burden, said the statement by Anthony J. DeLorenzo, regional director of the union, and Leonard F. Dube, president of the union's Community Action Program. The union has in the past endorsed a progressive state income tax as a key element in tax reform, but no mention was made of it Tuesday. The tax reform commission said an income tax was not necessary and that property taxes could be made equitable by equalizing assessments at 100 per cent of property value. The commission suggested a one-half per cent drop in the 7 per cent sales tax this year, but coupled the reduction with an inclusion of many items now exempt.

The UAW said the drop would present only an illusion of savings for working people because of the expanded coverage. The union also attacked the commission's proposed repeal of the tax of dividends. The House vote completed the confirmation of Norton's appointment by Gov. Thomas J. Meskill, which required the approval of only one house of the General Assembly.

Blue Law Repeal Given Support

NEW HAVEN (AP) — Five members of New Haven's nine-member legislative delegation said Tuesday they would support efforts to repeal Connecticut's Blue Law, which prohibits most businesses from opening on Sunday. Only Democratic Rep. Thomas O'Dea said he was definitely against repeal, and the other three legislators expressed reservations and mixed opinions in a survey conducted by the New Haven Journal Courier. New Haven's sole Republican state legislator, M. James Canall, said he favored broadening the scope of what can be sold on Sunday. "I think the specialty store, such as drug stores, should be allowed to remain open on Sunday without threat of violating the law," he said. "I don't think it's sound for department stores to remain open on Sundays. That would make it just another day in the week."

Currently, drugstores are allowed to open on Sunday, but they are permitted to sell only essential items. Several bills have been filed in the current session of the General Assembly affecting the Blue Law, at least one of which would repeal the Sunday closing statute. Supporting repeal were Sen. Anthony Clarone and Reps. Mary Griswold, Albert R. Webber, Irving Stolberg and Bruce L. Morris. "I find it very strange that you can't buy baby diapers, but you can buy a ticket to a double-X pornographic movie," said Webber. Mrs. Griswold said the Blue Law is "an anachronism and discriminatory to various religions as well as restraint of trade."

Sen. Joseph Lieberman said the rights of employees figured into his reservations about total repeal of the Blue Law. He said he questioned whether employees should be forced to work on Sunday against their will. Rep. William Ambrogio said he was "lukewarm" in favor of repeal, but that he wanted to hear both sides before making up his mind.

Rep. William Ambrogio said he was "lukewarm" in favor of repeal, but that he wanted to hear both sides before making up his mind.

Man Slays Wife, Two Children

STAMFORD (AP) — A 37-year-old man apparently hacked his wife and two small children to death with an axe and then hanged himself in the garage of their ranch-style home, police said Tuesday. Officers said they believed the incident occurred either Monday night or early Tuesday at the home of the George Christian Jr. family on Cook Road in the exclusive Southfield Point area. Police said that Mrs. Christian's father discovered the bodies Tuesday afternoon. Officers said that upon arriving at the home they found the bodies of Mrs. Mary Lou Christian, 34, and her two children, five-month-old Mark and four-year-old Scott, in the blood-spattered kitchen. Mrs. Christian's body was found slumped in a wooden chair, while the children's bodies were sprawled nearby on the floor, police said. All three were dressed in bedclothes. Police said they discovered Christian's body hanging from a rafter in the garage adjacent to the kitchen. Officers said he was wearing blood-stained pajamas. Neighbors said Christian was a teacher at a Greenwich school.

Budget Message Date Set

HARTFORD (AP) — Gov. Thomas J. Meskill is going to deliver his budget message in prime television time this year, taking an opportunity which was once denied him when the legislature was Democratic. The Republicans who control the new General Assembly agreed at a caucus Tuesday to invite Meskill to speak at 7 p.m. on Feb. 6. The governor will present his spending and taxing proposals at that time. No television station said immediately whether it would carry the address. Meskill sought permission from the General Assembly in 1971 to deliver his first budget message in the evening, but the legislature refused. The speech is traditionally delivered to a joint session of the House and Senate.

NEW HUD HEAD is James T. Lynn of Cleveland. The Housing and Urban Development secretary moves to the top Cabinet post from undersecretary of Commerce.

Welfare Appointment Confirmed

HARTFORD (AP) — Nicholas Norton, former deputy commissioner of the state Welfare Department, was confirmed by the House of Representatives Tuesday as the department's new commissioner. He replaced Henry C. White, who resigned after two years of service to return to private business.

Veterans Day Hearing Set

HARTFORD (AP) — Should Veterans Day return to its traditional place on the calendar? The question will be aired at a public hearing Jan. 24 at the state Capitol. The General Law Committee is holding the hearing because of many complaints by veterans groups who objected to changing Veterans Day from Nov. 11 to the fourth Monday of October. Nov. 11 is the anniversary of the armistice which ended World War I, and Veterans Day used to be called Armistice Day.

77,000 Get Subsidies

Canberra — Wool growers were paid more than $80 million by the Australian government in fiscal 1972 to bring their returns up to the guaranteed minimum. More than 77,000 growers received payments that ranged from nearly $80,000 to less than $120.

LIRR Strike Impasse To Be Aired In Court

NEW YORK (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge Orrin G. Judd has ordered the Long Island Rail Road and 19 unions to court Thursday for an injunction hearing that could force an end to the 49-day strike against the line. Judd acted Tuesday on an application filed by Nassau County Executive Ralph G. Caso as a class action on behalf of 99,000 commuters inconvenienced by the walkout. Caso based the suit on a 1971 U.S. Supreme Court ruling that an injunction could be issued under the Railway Labor Act if the parties had failed to "make every reasonable effort" to reach an agreement. "The only practical way to enforce the relevant provisions of the Railway Labor Act is to direct the striking employees and the members of the operating unions to return to work until such time as an agreement is reached," the suit contended. If the preliminary injunction is issued, the suit asks that negotiations continue under the supervision of the court. Twelve unions representing 5,000 nonoperating employees struck Nov. 30 after rejecting a presidential emergency board's recommendation of a 6 per cent annual pay increase for two years. Seven operating unions that have refused the cross the picket lines were also directed by Judd to appear in court Thursday. Why Seas Are So Salty United Nations, N. Y. — Throughout the world, rivers carry about 4 billion tons of dissolved salts to the oceans annually. Probably about the same tonnage of salt from the ocean water is precipitated on the ocean bottom or otherwise extracted from the water.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Fire Insurance on Cigars?

Once upon a time a man tried to collect fire insurance on a box of cigars. Having smoked them all, one at a time, he argued that they had been "destroyed by fire" and were therefore covered by his policy. But the court pointed to a rule which is followed almost everywhere in the field of fire insurance: that damage done by a "friendly" fire is not covered. A friendly fire is one that is burning where it belongs—in an oven, in a fireplace, or at the tip of a cigar. "In common parlance," a court explained, "one has not had a fire" so long as it has burned only in the place where it was intended to burn.

This rule has generally been applied not only to things burned on purpose, like the cigars, but also to things burned by mistake. Consider two examples: 1) a housekeeper threw an envelope into the family furnace, unaware that it contained a valuable time; 2) a man unwittingly tossed his wife's dentures, wrapped in tissue paper, into a trash fire. Both the ring and the dentures were ruined in the flames, and claims for fire insurance were filed in both cases. But both claims were later denied in court, since the furnace fire and the trash fire were friendly—burning where they belonged. Of course, a fire may change its character from friendly to unfriendly. Suppose that some red hot cinders jump out of a crackling fireplace and set fire to nearby draperies. For this kind of damage, you could indeed collect compensation under the ordinary fire insurance policy. For, as in any court pointed out, most of the fires that eventually do cause damage are fires that were friendly when they began. #### Shield Laws Said Not Necessary

AMHERST, Mass. (AP) — A Pulitzer prize-winning journalist says he does not believe there is a need for shield laws to protect newsmen. Reporter Seymour Hersh of the New York Times who won the Pulitzer in 1970 for breaking the story of the My Lai massacre, told the week-long Copeland Colloquium at Amherst College that the first amendment protects newsmen. Hersh addressed the colloquium along with two former administration officials. Hersh said the lack of a shield law giving newsmen the right to protect unnamed sources did not handicap him in uncovering the My Lai massacre. He pointed out that American people, especially those involved in controversial matters, like to talk. Hersh said his first information on the massacre started in a bar over a couple of beers. Richard Whalen, former aide to President Nixon, said he left the Nixon administration because of a group of "mediocre people." William Lake, a former aide to presidential adviser Henry Kissinger, said the administration's October peace forecast was not a fraud. Lake said it is impossible for Nixon to guarantee the future of Vietnam, but that in the latest rounds of peace talks the administration has tried to get the best terms possible for America. Brig. Gen. Robert Gard told the colloquium he supports Nixon in his plans to form an all-volunteer service even though he personally opposes the concept. Also speaking at the colloquium was David Billich of the U.S. Foreign Office, who discussed working in Washington and why government employees stay or leave. More than 25,000 amateur radio operators in the United States crisscross the world every day and night with short-wave messages.

Social Security

Q. I started receiving widows' benefits at age 62 when my husband died. Will I now be entitled to 100 per cent of his amount instead of 82 1/2 per cent I'm now receiving?

A. No. The only widow who will receive 100 per cent of her husband's amount will be those who started collecting widows' benefits at age 60 or later.

Q. I am now receiving widows' benefits must I contact the Social Security office to be entitled to any increase due me?

A. Most widows will receive some increase. The amount of the increase could range from a fraction of 1 per cent up to about 21 per cent.

Q. Are there any widows that will not receive an increase under the new law?

A. Yes. About 11 per cent of the widows will not receive any increase. This group represents (1) widows who started to receive benefits in September 1972 thru January 1973 at age 60; (2) some widows who remarried after age 60.

Have a question about Social Security and its retirement, survivors, disability or Medicare benefits? Write to Contact, Answers, Social Security office, 607 Main St., East Hartford 06108.

Benefits Rise for Widows
"Until now a widow's benefit could be no more than 82 1/2 per cent of the amount her husband would have received at age 65," according to Joseph Mucciaro Jr., Social Security manager in East Hartford.

"However, under the new law, a widow who started getting benefits at age 60 or later will qualify for the same benefit that her husband would have received at 65 had he lived. If the husband was receiving Social Security benefits when he died, the widow would be entitled to 100 per cent of his benefit," according to Mucciaro.

Why Settle For Just A Code In The Node

By HAL BOYER, NEW YORK (AP) - The trouble with winter ailments is that they are too commonplace and conventional.

Well, is there a winter disease that does? Is there any malady that can make a person of real sensitivity and social standing feel it is worth his time to be ill?

For example, what is the most common thing in winter? Is it not snow? And does not snow annoy you, bore you, or fill you with feelings of nervous dread? Ergo, you have your disease.

Yes, you are suffering from chionophobia the fear of snow. And if some lazy teen-age kid shoved out your driveway and you're all worn out from doing the job yourself, you've automatically picked up two more attention-winning cold weather afflictions. They are pedophobia, the fear of children, and kopophobia, the fear of fatigue. The chances are, if you are middle-aged, that you are out of breath and your chest feels tight. In that case you also have cardiophobia, the fear of heart disease.

When you go to the theater or opera or a dress-up ball, do you sometimes feel you will be smothered in a sea of women's mink coats? Put yourself down for doraphobia, the fear of contamination, aerophobia, the fear of being alone, and claustrophobia, the fear of being closed in, lysophobia, the fear of being driven insane, and get so restless you start talking to yourself. Right? Ah!

You are also susceptible from now until spring to chemophobia, the fear of cold, molysmophobia, the fear of contamination, aerophobia, the fear of being alone, and claustrophobia, the fear of being closed in, lysophobia, the fear of being driven insane, and get so restless you start talking to yourself. Right? Ah!

Do you know what you've got? You've got a triple-breasted, wind-eremphobia, the fear of all these, merinthophobia, the fear of being tied up or tied down, or uroraphobia, the fear of northern lights.

The nice thing about all these winter ailments is that none of them will make you cough, sneeze or sniffle.

When you go to the theater or opera or a dress-up ball, do you sometimes feel you will be smothered in a sea of women's mink coats? Put yourself down for doraphobia, the fear of contamination, aerophobia, the fear of being alone, and claustrophobia, the fear of being closed in, lysophobia, the fear of being driven insane, and get so restless you start talking to yourself. ### Anti-Porno Bill Filed

An anti-pornography bill, similar to the one introduced and defeated last year, has been filed in the current General Assembly session by two Manchester lawmakers — State Sen. David Odegar and State Rep. Donald Genova.

The bill, called "An Act Defining the Definition of Obscenity," would make it easier for persons to bring suit against what they believe is an obscene performance or the dissemination of alleged pornographic material. It would delete from the state's 1971 penal code that clause which requires that obscene material must be defined to be "utterly without redeeming social value."

The 1972 bill passed the House of Representatives in a close voice vote. It was defeated in the State Senate by a 14 to 21 vote, following a two-hour debate.

The bill was drafted by Manchester Town Counsel David Barry, at the direction of

College Will Evaluate Occupational Curricula

By JOHN A. JOHNSTON (Herald Reporter)

Manchester Community College will start to evaluate its occupational curricula, Dr. Frederick W. Lowe Jr., MCC president, reported to the Regional Council on the Transfer Resource Group for the State of Connecticut, and a student representative on the Transfer Resource Group for the State of Connecticut.

Dr. Lowe announced that the College Senate has proposed four events to commemorate the college's tenth anniversary. A carnival in the undeveloped area near the upper parking lot, May 25; a May open house in the college's buildings, both at Bidwell St. and Hartford Rd.; a campus tree-planting ceremony, with individuals and organizations requested to make donations; and a May 12 dinner-dance.

Enrollment

Dr. Lowe reported that as of Dec. 13, more than 1,000 applications for the 1973-74 academic year were being processed by the data processing department. Acceptance of 501 students has been made. He also said that 399 students have been admitted to the spring semester of the current school year.

Heads HRC

Francis J. Keefe of 2 W Center St., Tuesday night was elected chairman of the Human Relations Commission at its meeting at the Municipal Building.

Keefe, a Democrat, succeeds Mrs. Barbara Goldberg, who declined reappointment to the commission.

Other commission officers elected are the Rev. Robert Assumption, a Democrat, vice chairman; Mrs. Judy Dennison, Republican, secretary.

The newly elected chairman is business and industry consultant to the Greater Hartford Council on Alcoholism and Capitol Region Drug Information Center of Hartford.

New York Sees Progress In Nine-Town Housing

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — The president of the state Urban Development Corp. says progress in nine-town housing plan in Westchester County has been simmering for four months, but says he hopes to break ground on some projects this spring.

Edward J. Logue, the agency president, made public Tuesday responses from most of the nine towns that had been given four months to devise their own plans for increasing low and middle income housing.

The nine towns involved are Bedford, Greenburgh, Hawthorne, Harrison, Yorktown, New Castle, Cortland, North Castle and Somers.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller declared a four-month moratorium on UDC construction after the plan drew stiff opposition from many of the communities. The moratorium expired Jan. 15.

"I'm very pleased at the positive results of this four-month period of thought and discussion," Logue said. He said many of the towns "are taking a more conciliatory attitude."

He said several towns had indicated a modified UDC project would be acceptable. A few wrote that they had proposals for privately financed housing to discuss with the agency. One said it was trying to work up a plan using federal interest subsidies and another said it was

Capitol Corridor

By Sen. David Osgard
(Fourth District)

This is the first in a new series of "Capitol Corridor" articles. I will be bringing you my impressions and information every other week throughout the 1973 session of your State Legislature. Read them.

I hope to follow the same format as the last two years, discussing what the legislature has been doing, will be doing, or ought to be doing. I will not be propagandizing for myself or the Republican Party, nor will I rewrite the major news of the day which is well treated by the various news services. I do appreciate the space given by the Manchester Evening Herald to provide this informal information "from the inside."

The legislative activity so far has, of course, been limited to organization. Activities of this sort have no immediate effect on the public law, but they do organize—that is, the rules under which we do the public business—does have a direct effect on the quality of public law that will eventually be written. If you recall 1971, it would be true that the public law at least as upshot with the way its legislature behaved as with the specific actions that were taken.

Unheard of steps have been taken to modernize your legislature. Votes in the Senate this year will be taken by roll call in essentially all cases, allowing a record of positions taken and attendance. In the past, 80 to 90 per cent of the bills passed on a "voice" vote and an individual legislator's vote was not available for public scrutiny.

Individual bills have been

Business Always Being Analyzed

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — American business is always analyzing itself in its past performance, its intentions, its customers, its trends. And if a particular business declines to do so, someone else will do it and make a profit in the process.

That Arthur Lipper Corp., an investment banker, reports some figures that the mutual fund industry might shrink from publicizing the average gain of 537 funds last year failed to match any of the popular indices.

Land-Fill Pollution Reported

NEW HAVEN (AP) — Nine out of every 10 land-fill dumping areas in Connecticut violate state regulations, according to Environmental Protection Commissioner Dan W. Lufkin.

In addition, about half of all the dumps are polluting nearby bodies of water. Lufkin told a gathering of business people at a luncheon.

"Over 90 per cent of Connecticut's so-called 'sanitary landfills' are in violation of one or more of my department's regulations," he said.

The state is formulating a plan with General Electric Co. and other companies to collect solid waste at regional points throughout the state for conversion into useable materials.

The plan is expected to be unveiled by July.

Lufkin said Connecticut residents now dispose of more than 50,000 tons of trash each day. He said that "this figure will double in the next 28 years."

CHAMBER OPERA ANNOUNCED BY MET
NEW YORK (AP) — Opera at the Forum has been announced for three weeks, Feb. 10 to March 10, in the 200-seat Forum Theater in Lincoln Center which will recently be operated as an off-Broadway theater.

There will be 25 performances, alternating a double bill of Puccini's "Dieci and Andrea" and the American premiere of Maurice Ohana's "Sylphaire pour Phedre" with Virgil Thomson's "Four Saints in Three Acts."

Jupiter's Big Red Spot Is So Much Hot Air

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The planet Jupiter's mysterious great red spot apparently is just so much hot air — a huge, hurricane-like spiral of air, a California Institute of Technology astronomer says.

But weather features on Jupiter — the largest planet in the solar system — do last that long, he explained.

"The reason may lie with the huge mass of Jupiter's atmosphere which is probably thousands of miles thick," he said.

The earliest recorded sighting of the spot was in 1664, although scientists believe it may have been detected as early as 1664.

Even through the most powerful telescopes, Jupiter appears only as a dense layer of clouds with light and dark bands encircling the planet.

"We don't know yet what the surface of Jupiter is like," said Ingersoll. "In fact, no one has yet been able to establish that the planet has a solid surface."

"Because of its long life, a lot of people would believe that the great red spot is associated with a solid object floating in the atmosphere of a plateau attached to the planet's surface," said Ingersoll. "It bothers people to think of an atmospheric feature lasting for hundreds of years."

But weather features on Jupiter — the largest planet in the solar system — do last that long, he explained.

"The reason may lie with the huge mass of Jupiter's atmosphere which is probably thousands of miles thick," he said.

The light and dark bands, also are made up of circulating air masses.

"It is important to understand atmospheres on other planets because of the insight this knowledge gives into weather patterns on earth — questions like why the wind blows as hard as it does, for example, or why large storms on earth frequently have a circular structure with a characteristic dimension," Ingersoll said.

Emission Hearing Detection Delay Set

HARTFORD (AP) — A public hearing set for Feb. 15 on a proposal to delay from April 1 to Oct. 1 requirements for industries to install detection devices for smogstack emissions, state Environmental Protection Commissioner Dan Lufkin announced.

He said the proposal would amend the state's clean air act and noted that one reason for the postponement was to allow factories to install the equipment during summer layoffs.

Also, specifications for the smoke monitors were drafted only recently and details must be worked out for the units to be tested in independent laboratories, Lufkin said.

The Feb. 15 hearing will be at 10 a.m. in Room 221 of the state office building.

Devil's Island, once a notorious penal colony, is enjoying a modest tourist boom.

Town Manager Terry Sprekel this week asked residents to be especially careful in filing out income tax forms and to pay particular attention to questions referring to Revenue Sharing. According to Sprekel, a loss could result to the town if improper answers are given on the revenue sharing question as population and mass income factors are used in the formula to determine the final amount to be received by South Windsor next year in the federal grant.

Residents Asked Spending Views

Two public informational meetings will be held in the Town Hall this month in an effort to allow residents a voice in determining what should be done with Federal Revenue Sharing funds received by the town, and to explore ideas for funding a proposed new library for the town.

Henry Jaskolski, chairman of the Public Building Commission, said the new building would cost $1,190,000 to construct 25,000 square feet of library space. The current library fund has $86,051 in stocks, $29,563 from the sale of the Sudd Memorial Library building two years ago, and $66,800 in grants. The council has also appropriated $10,000 for preliminary plans for the new building, bringing the total library cost to $1,214,414.

Tax Assessments

The Board of Selectmen last night appointed an 11-member Study Advisory Committee to review local tax assessments. Recommended by the Democratic Town Committee were Kevin Cavanaugh, Robert Moskey and Dale Tower, all homeowners. The Republican recommended Alan Brooks, Jim Cummings and Atty. John McGinn, also homeowners.

Jaskolski said a March 31 referendum date has been considered, and if agreed to by the council, and if voters approve the new building, the town Hall at the referendum, construction could begin by June 15 and a target date for completion by Nov. 15, 1974 is possible.

Both meetings are scheduled for 8 p.m.

HARTFORD (AP) - The city's plan to build a new transit station is being completed by next year.

Warm Weather Changes Plans
The January thaw created some problems for these Manchester youngsters. As can be seen, they fully intended to go ice skating in the city's rink. So what to do? Like young people everywhere, they found substitute recreation scampering among the rocks in Charter Oak Park. Although it is not certain they may have been looking for the first flowers in the Spring since the weather is certainly more spring-like than normal. (Herald photo by Pinto)

Haig Returning To Washington

SAIGON (AP) - Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr. left Saigon today after two days of talks with President Nguyen Van Thieu on the new peace agreement draft worked out last week by Henry Kissinger and Le Duc Tho.

Before returning to Washington, Haig was visiting Phnom Penh, Vietnam and Bangkok to brief the governments of Cambodia, Laos and Thailand on the present status of the peace negotiations.

Haig's conferences with Thieu appeared to clear the way for another round of meetings in Paris next week between Kissinger and Tho, possibly followed by the signing of the peace agreement.

Haig's return to Washington was expected to be followed by a withdrawal of all American forces from Vietnam within 60 days of signing.
