O'Neill Penalizes Refuse Collectors

Director of Public Works William O'Neill, after meetings with representatives of three private refuse collectors charged with dumping out-of-town refuse at Manchester's landfill area, has informed them of the following penalties:

General Sanitation of Newington - A 30-day suspension of permit and a $200 fine.

Tobacco Valley Rubbish Removal Co. of South Windsor - A 45-day suspension and a $100 fine.

Anthony Battelle of Manchester - A 15-day suspension and a $200 fine.

In addition, each will be in a 15-day probationary period, following the suspension, when their refuse trucks will be checked regularly for violations.

Private refuse contractors receive permits at no cost to the town, and their trucks are paid for in the lives of nearly 40,000 men and billions of dollars.

Separate documents were set aside for signing later in the day by the United States and North Vietnam.

Outside the old Majestic Hotel demonstrators booed the U.S. and South Vietnamese envoys and cheered the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong as they arrived and left.

The demonstrators waved North Vietnamese and Viet Cong flags and sang the "International," the anthem of socialism.

This prompted an official protest from the South Vietnamese to the French government. The demonstrators were asked to sign a statement of support for the school expansion program.

The first time the plans were presented as a single package with a price tag of $8.6 million which included a pool and additional gym facilities. The second time the question was broken down into three separate questions but was still defeated in a narrow vote.

Board chairman Joseph Powers said, last night, "Without some type of additional building, double sessions will go into a long-term situation."

Because there is a space shortage at the Middle School level as well as at the high school, the board voted a few weeks ago to put the high school on double sessions next fall.

The Middle School and the High School will be housed there, back at the regular high school.

By architects William McHugh and David Evelett, the board discussed the possibility of constructing an annex to the present high school facility (on adjacent land already purchased) to accommodate 600 students. This is the number now housed at Sykes.

The proposed building would house 600 students, a small library and a small cafeteria, urban estimated cost of $1.7 million.

Interpol Unlike TV

OTTAWA (AP) — Interpol, the international Criminal Police Organization, has been tracking down international smugglers, counterfeiters and killers for nearly half a century.

But its function is over-dramatized and misunderstood by the public, says the first Canadian ever to lead the world agency which links police forces in 114 countries around the globe.

Commissioner W. Leonard Higgitt of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, the first non-European president of Interpol, says the colorful image that has grown up around the organization is both misleading and inaccurate.

"Contrary to what the television series say, Interpol doesn't have high-level investigators flying around the world. There are none of these guys out making arrests, telephone calls from phone booths and so on. This is straight fiction."

Interpol itself has no investigators, although it does have an administrative staff of about 150 at its headquarters in St. Cloud, outside Paris.

Investigative work, and a lot of it, is done for Interpol, but it is carried out by police forces in member countries, none working under the label of Interpol.

The agency exists to help countries hunt down international lawbreakers and to aid in law enforcement within participating countries, particularly smaller and less-developed nations.

Commissioner Higgitt, elected president last September at the annual Interpol general assembly in Frankfurt, Germany, said he regards the agency as a world of the finest world bodies in existence.
Day-to-day Interpol operation is run by a general secretary-general. There is also an executive committee composed of the president, three vice-presidents and nine delegates.

South led the nine of hearts next. This, he cannot be worse off and the deep finesse may improve his chances.
As the cards lie, the finesse with the eight would force out East's queen. South would then have nine trump tricks.
Daily Question
You have opened the bidding with one club, and partner has responded one spade. It is now up to you again, holding: Spades, A-K; Hearts, 9-8; Diamonds, A-K-Q-7; Clubs, Q-J-10-5-3.
What do you say?
Answer: Bid two diamonds. The "reverse" bid shows your strength. You cannot afford to bid notrump when you lack a stopper in one of the unbid suits. This is a straight finesse with the jack of hearts.

News for Senior Citizens

By Wally Fortin
Hello there. Well now, how do you like this kind of weather? Isn't it really something? I was telling one of the members that I'm a little afraid that this Florida weather won't last too long, and the old me that we naturally expect it to, but here it is already the end of January; and that means we won't have had weather for too long. Sure is hard to believe January is only just past. We were celebrating New Year's.

The best news I've heard all week and in years was when President Nixon addressed the world last Tuesday night to tell us our prayers have finally been answered, for that country it will be all over and most of all the POW's will be home with their loved ones once again. Really wonderful news, and let's keep praying for a continued peace, and let's take a good look at our own country's problems, and let's see if the government can soon take a big look at our Senior Citizens, and let's see if they can and will do for you.

Sweetheart Dance
Before the movies, we made an announcement that tickets are now available at our office for our gala Valentine "Sweetheart" Dance to be held here at the Center on Wednesday evening, Feb. 14, starting at 7:30. The ball will pick up members starting at 12:30 p.m. to 10 p.m. set-back. Nescio and his orchestra to play for us, and like always some nice goodies to munch on with a tasty beverage, and door prizes. So if you're looking for action and a night out on this one. Our bus will make its regular rounds for this affair.

Friday Bus
Speaking of the bus, Gloria has been receiving calls by members who would like to attend our Friday night set-back games. If they could get transportation. So she talked it over with smiling Jim Nesco, our bus driver, and he agreed to give it a try. He'll make the regular route this coming Friday night to see just how many will take advantage of the bus. I told both Gloria and Jim that they could try it, however, if we can't get at least a dozen passengers, then it really wouldn't be worth the bus. It has been out so far for a night out, and wheels to get you where your friends are, then plan on taking the bus. I've been reminded also that in February we will have an English Night dinner, and that they could try it, however, if we can't get at least a dozen passengers, then it really wouldn't be worth the bus. Bowling Results
Tuesday afternoon all the noise was centered around the Senior Bowling League at the Parkade Lanes, after they had dropped off the following results:
In the women's Class A group, Etta Wilson took both the high triple of 446 and the high single of 149.
In the men's Class A group, Charles Tarpinian took both honors with a high triple of 518 and the high single of 196.
In the Class B group, Clifford Hammond took the high triple with 498 and the high single with 176.

Dance Class
Wednesday we started off with arts and crafts, and Gloria had some 11 members all busy as beavers. Then at 10:30, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Burton appeared on the scene for lesson number two. We had 45 members on hand to review the basic steps for the fox trot, waltz and also the cha cha, and then went into the basic moves for the cross-over and the cha cha. It was lots of fun and this is really a popular program. Even your truly is getting into the act.
After a tasty delicious chicken dinner, we all went to the movies, but didn't have far to go as we had the film and projector up in the main hall. The movie "Golden Age of Comedy" turned out to be a very funny and enjoyable film which brought back many memories for the members.

Chief Sees Winter Driving Not Over

By PHIL PASTORET
Hard hats were designed to protect soft brains, a fact some have known to overlook, in several ways.

"There's a long winter still ahead," Manchester Police Chief James Reardon mentioned today, adding that "new car's preparation for winter."

The chief released a list of simple checks, recommended by the International Association of Chiefs of Police and the National Safety Council:

1. Visibility. Make sure all lights on your vehicle are working and that lenses are clean. Also check your windshield wipers and washers — streaking wipers are dead wipers and should be replaced. Windshield washers should be kept full of anti-freeze solution.

2. WINTERIZE. Check back last fall's preparation for winter driving. Make sure your car is tuned up and running properly. Check your brake fluid; make sure the brakes aren't pulling to one side or the other. Check the tires — if they're worn, replace them.

Snow tires help in loose snow, Reardon said, but you should carry tire chains in your trunk for deep snow or glare ice conditions.

3. TOWING A TRAILER. Motorists must remember that pulling a snowmobile trailer is different than driving a car alone. Reardon said it takes much longer to start and stop; cornering is slower; and backing and parking is more difficult. The chief said all lights on trailers should also be checked. Reardon said that one of the police department's functions is to keep traffic moving, but motorists can help by being prepared and driving carefully.

Making A Peace

"At last we are on the way out of it."
This phrase seems to summarize the relief and feelings of most Americans as the cease-fire is about to begin in South Vietnam.
But the way out, like the way into it, may be longer and more trying than we would like to admit.
Making a peace work will require of America a unity of purpose it lacked in waging the war.
Making a peace work will require of America a tolerance it lacks so often in its dealings with other nations. For just as we tragically found it impossible to win that war by going it alone; the road to lasting peace cannot be made by America alone.
Making a peace work will demand some sacrifices, some even more demanding than those of a guns and butter war, like continued heavy expenditures for foreign aid and defense; not because we are committed to sustain Saigon indefinitely or to rebuild North Vietnam, but because keeping the peace, if it can be kept, must be based on reasonable strength.
Making a peace work will increase our responsibility as world leaders because as much as we might prefer to do so; our presence in the days and months ahead as the goals of the Paris Accord are implemented is necessary.

The guns may become silent but this tragic war was a political, as well as military misadventure, and many political battles are yet to be fought. The peace, if we are to make it lasting, will not be one that is imposed on one side or the other but one that is mutually accepted just as the tenuous cease-fire is neither a victory nor a defeat but virtual acceptance of the fact that military victory was impossible.
No, America, is not out of it and won't be for some years to come.
The question which each of us must ask of ourselves and of our countrymen as the guns hopefully begin to go silent is quite simple.
Are we prepared to get involved in making a peace?
Or do we continue the course of disunity, partisanship, self-seeking emotionalism that marked the war.
Will Rogers once said America never lost a war nor won a peace. We didn't win this war but maybe we can win the peace. It will take renewed collective dedication, a patience of Job, and a willingness to trust not only our fellow Americans and allies but our former enemies as well.

Blacks Do Not Really Get Equal Break In Sports

Since the late Jackie Robinson became the first black major league baseball player back in 1947, black athletes have not just broken the color line in sports but have smashed it to bits.
In sports today, it is said, the only thing that counts is whether you can play the game.
Not necessarily, object two sociologists, Norman Yetman and D. Stanley Eitzen of the University of Kansas.
For the superstars, the Hank Aaron and Willie Mays and others, the doors are wide open. But for the journeyman black athlete, the one who needs two blocks to leap over tall buildings, it's a different world.
The sociologists studied college and professional basketball and baseball teams to reach their conclusions, which are summarized in Psychology Today magazine.
While on the surface the figures show a sharp rise in black participation, a closer examination reveals a curious fact: Most of the black players in both collegiate and professional basketball are starters; few are second stringers. They should be randomly distributed throughout an entire team.
In baseball, the situation is even more striking. The mean batting average for blacks has remained 20 points greater than the average for whites for nearly two decades, backing up an earlier claim that not only do blacks have to outperform whites to get into baseball but they must consistently outperform them to stay in.
While it is clear that the superior black athlete will win a starting role, say Yetman and Eitzen, the undistinguished one is still likely to lose out to his white counterpart for a spot on the bench.

JOHN 3:16 and KEY 73
A woman met a young man who seemed to be very blue. When asked what the trouble was, he replied, "I'm worried about being drafted into the army."
"I wouldn't worry if I were you," she said. "You've got two chances. You may be drafted, and you may not. If you do pass the medical examinations, you've got two chances - you may get into battle, and you may get a nice desk job. Even if you do get sent into battle, you've got two chances - you may get killed, and if you do get killed, you've still got two chances."
The woman was right until she got to that last sentence. The world may think, or at least hope, that there are, at two

My Rose
On Finding a Rose on Rockville Hospital's Doorstep
16 January 1973
Who has left you on the doorstep to weep? To let the eyes only of winter hold. The crimson leaves curled back, reverend in keep. A lone soul to transpire most life in cold. Orphan, rest in the pocket of my palm. Sleep under the calloused yellow blanket. This hospital must chant a water psalm. May death not find pleasant your fresh dust. There, at the receptionist's desk, a vase. Where eleven rubies, an emerald stem. Bring income and recall not your calm place. A paper cup will lift your requiem. My rose, eyes cradle one gem at one time. And to its single sparkle are thus confined.

Frustrated Young Turks

WASHINGTON—A series of smashing defeats for pragmatic young Republicans behind closed doors of the old guard-dominated House Republican Caucus has gravely deepened the depression brought on by haughty and inattentive treatment from President Nixon's Oval Office.
These caucus decisions systematically cut off new blood from flowing into critical power slots, both on the Ways and Means Committee as ranking Republican members on other committees. With the old guard in iron-fisted control of the Republican cloakroom, the most powerful figure shaping the party's posture there is almost unknown away from the Capitol's inner sanctum: 78-year-old Rep. Les Arends of Illinois, House minority whip since the third term of Franklin D. Roosevelt.
The consequence is less ideological than tactical. Arends-style Republicanism, though indisputably conservative, is most concerned with maintaining the institutional status quo, especially the rigid seniority system. It seeks accommodations with the Democratic leadership and avoids confrontations with the White House. Not surprisingly, it has driven many ambitious young Republicans out of the House after a few terms of frustration.
Arends' dominance stems from control of the House Republican Committee on Committees, an unwieldy 46-member body which determines the party makeup on legislative committees. As a Congressman from Wisconsin and chairman of the House Republican Caucus, Melvin R. Laird championed the Republican Young Turks before moving to the Pentagon in 1969. Since then, Arends has been unchallenged.
In this year's secret sessions of the Committee on Committees, Arends disagreed with, and stole the show from, the Young Turks, representing the House Republican Caucus. Steiger, representing the Young Turks, argued that Rep. John Erlenborn, 46, of Illinois should jump one notch in seniority over New York's Rep. Frank Horton as ranking Republican on the Government Operations Committee. Erlenborn is a moderate conservative and Horton a pure Eastern liberal, but again ideology was not the issue.
The same players struggled in the House Republican Caucus. Steiger, representing the Young Turks, argued that Rep. John Erlenborn, 46, of Illinois should jump one notch in seniority over New York's Rep. Frank Horton as ranking Republican on the Government Operations Committee. Erlenborn is a moderate conservative and Horton a pure Eastern liberal, but again ideology was not the issue.
No wonder it is a depressing time for the Young Turks. They have lacked a patron in leadership ranks since Laird's departure and their own ranks are steadily depleted by frustrated young Congressmen running for the Senate or entering the administration. Worst of all, Mr. Nixon has made it abundantly clear that he could not care less.

Report Lauds Rham, Recommends Repair

The New England Association of Schools and Colleges' evaluation report on Rham High School, received and released by the regional board, commends the school for excellent rapport between the staff and students and for the generally high level of professional training of the staff.
Areas studied in the evaluation, which was conducted last November by 28 educators from throughout New England, were the school and community philosophy and objectives, the curriculum, student activities, the library, guidance, adequacy of school facilities and the school staff and administration.
In all areas of the curriculum, the report commended the school on its philosophy and the active participation by the staff and students in the development of the school's philosophy.
Receiving high praise were the industrial arts, reading and business education departments. Several times the committee referred to bringing other departments up to the standards of these.
An adequate total student-teacher ratio, realistic limits in class size in some disciplines and the awareness of the majority of the staff of the strong points and weaknesses of the curriculum program were also commended.
Throughout the report, however, it was mentioned that the community should become more involved in an effort "to improve school-community dialogue" perhaps starting by instituting a regularly scheduled series of formal parent-teacher conferences.
The educators concluded in the report that there was a "definite need for rekindling the broken working relationship between the building, returning Rham to its original status of Pride and Achievement."
Needs
The vision committee recommended that immediate decisions be made and implemented to provide facilities to accommodate increased student enrollment, a step the regional board has already taken.
Additional staff needs recommended were for another assistant principal, additional classroom teachers in business education, reading (2), homemaker and industrial arts, music, physical education (woman) and social studies; three aides for English, science and library.
Also, two additional counselors to bring the student-counselor ratio up to 250 to 1; a library teacher; a full-time social worker; and a work-study coordinator.
The following staff increases were also recommended: "to increase the health teacher to full time; to provide psychological services; to increase staff on advisory and hearing services; and to release time for English and social studies coordinators (one before the spring meeting of the New England Association of Secondary Schools).
In the meantime, a copy of the report is filed in each of the town clerk's offices in Hiram, Andover and Marlborough.
Accreditation
Accreditation of the high school, which is of particular importance to students who wish to attend college, will come before the spring meeting of the New England Association of Secondary Schools.
The committee strongly supported "immediate action in all areas of safety neglect" noting that "the broken working relationship between the building doors have been in this condition for too long a period of time."
"High priority" the committee recommended, "should be given to the daily cleanliness of the building."
Officers and committees of Scandia Lodge will meet Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Rodney Anderson, 75 Numblerook Dr., South Windsor.

Bobby Fischer, world champion chess player, appears on NBC-TV's "Dinah" Place" Thursday (Feb. 1) at 10 a.m.

Chorus To Install Officers

Robert J. Morrissey, 230A New State Rd., will be installed tonight as president of the Silk City Chorus in ceremonies during a dinner-dance at Flano's in Bolton.
He succeeds Robert C. Staiger, South Windsor, who will continue as a member of the group's board of directors.
The 46-man chorus is entering its tenth year as a chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America, Incorporated, and currently reigns as champion of Division III (Connecticut) of SPBSQSA's Northeastern District.
The chorus will appear in "Snowflakes in Harmony," beginning at 2:30 p.m., Feb. 4, at East Catholic High School, sponsored by the Manchester Education Association. The group is also preparing to defend its championship title March 17 when 13 other Connecticut barbershop choruses meet in competition at Poughkeepsie, N.Y.
Other officers to be installed for one-year terms tonight include Peter H. Taylor, administrator; Joseph R. Halloran, programs; James G. Dunn, secretary; John M. Bonnell, treasurer; and, as terti, Daniel J. Hayes and Ronald E. Perusse.
Music for dancing will be provided by the Sounds of the Forties, a 28-piece orchestra from Rockville that features music from the era of the big bands. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Franx, Converse Rd., Bolton, are in charge of arrangements.

Nelson Waits Decision On Truck Strike Suit

Decision was reserved in U.S. District Court this week on a motion filed by Nelson Freightways of Rockville and South Windsor, against the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Warehousemen and Helpers of America, Local 671, calling for the issuance of a preliminary injunction and compensatory damages of $150,000.
The plaintiffs claim that the union violated a collective bargaining agreement between it and the trucking company by instituting a strike at the South Windsor terminal. According to the legal papers, the union violated Article 46 of the agreement which states that "there shall be no strike, lock-out, tie-up or other legal proceeding without first using all possible means of a settlement as provided in the agreement."
Nelson charges that Richard Robidoux, secretary-treasurer of the union, acting in his official capacity and using William Barile, union steward, as a site agent, called or instituted a strike. The legal documents also state that in informing Nyles Irving, terminal manager for Nelson at South Windsor and Charles Chilberg, company president, that the South Windsor terminal might be struck, no grievance or wrong was claimed under the existing collective bargaining agreement.
The documents further state that on Jan. 15, 1973, at 8:45 a.m., Warren Seftel, inbound supervisor for Nelson, was informed by two drivers who were returning from a trip, that they were forced to abandon their truck and freight at the terminal gate and that drivers were scheduled to leave were told if anyone left terminal they would have to deal with Barile.
"The court papers also say that Robidoux telephoned Barile about 8 a.m. that morning, sanctioned the strike and directed the activity and as of this date 'the Local 671 terminal work force (all classifications) continue to strike under union sanction, despite the 'No strike' proviso of their contract.'"
Nelson further states that "at the time the defendant took strike action against the plaintiff, and at the present time, the plaintiff was in full compliance with its contractual responsibilities toward its employees and the union."
Nelson is claiming "irreconcilable loss of revenues, customers and prestige because of its inability to make timely deliveries."

Home of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Gottier, Main St., Talcottville.

Heralding Homes

A Fairy Tale

This home could well be called the house on the other side of the door. As a child, Mrs. Warren Gottier used to visit her aunt who was in the employ of the late Charles Dennison Talcott, original owner of the stucco mansion opposite the Talcott mills on Main St., Talcottville. She recalls peering through the dining room door from the kitchen side in wondering awe at the massive expanse of dark paneled rooms beyond.

Now, years later—as in a fairy tale—Mrs. Gottier finds herself with her husband and four of her five children living on both sides of that dining room door.

About five years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Gottier were awaiting a spring thaw so they could break ground for their new home. A chance invitation from a realtor friend that they "must see this house" changed their plans completely.

As Mrs. Gottier tells it, "We woke up the morning after having gone through this house and we both knew, without any discussion, that this was where we wanted to live." So the Gottier family moved in, and with new furnishings and decor, have brought light and life to a decaying manse of a former era.

(See Page Nine)

The dining room, though formal, is used daily by the Gottier family. The rubberized wall covering is the original green and gold material that was put on when the house was first decorated.

Story by June B. Tompkins

Indoor swimming pool, complete with lounge deck, is enjoyed the year round by the Gottier children, as well as the rest of the family, and guests.

Carpeted stairway with curved balustrade, uniting three floors, lends a dramatic background for Mrs. Gottier.

Todd, sitting on his mother's lap, in a family setting with his father and brother, Eric, in the formal living room.

Parkay floor, suspended dome ceiling lights and wood paneling make this a regal, yet comfortable, family room.

Ruby red shag carpeting unites the master bedroom-sitting room combination.

Fairy Tale House

The front entrance is rarely, if ever, used. Instead, the entrance under the porte-cochere and the rear entrance are the more frequently used.

The door from the porte-cochere entrance at the side opens into the dining room. Antique furniture with flowers painted on the china closet and buffet, a crystal chandelier and gold deep swag drapes add to the air of formality in an eating room, elegant with its large fireplace faced in green marble. Carpeting in a subdued green and langleine pattern, matches the dark green wall covering, and appears in hallways and stairways.

A door at the opposite end of the dining room leads to the indoor swimming pool, the only addition which the Gottiers have made to their home.

Dark walnut cupboards in the kitchen made by the Quakers in Pennsylvania, combined with pale beige stippled plaster walls are set off by a plate rail on which Mrs. Gottier displays some of her plates which come from all over the world. She occasionally changes them around, and she prefers using them for buffet parties instead of matched china.

An informal dining area, the other side of the counter range, is bright with emerald green carpeting. An antique oak table with matching original rush seat chairs is in keeping with the extensive use of oak throughout the home. A handsome Spanish cloth woven in gold, green and purple covers the table. Built in, under the range counter, is a garden setting of artificial greenery set in white stone. Wide lace bordered curtains from Holland adorn the bay window. Time ticks away from a German pendulum clock on the wall.

Mrs. Gottier calls the large room leading from the dining area to the rear entrance the "muddy" room. It has been decorated to look very un-muddy with green paneled walls, green patterned indoor-outdoor carpeting and sheer green window curtains. Each member of the family occupies his own green cupboard with outer wear, boots, skates, etc. And there is a small bathroom papered in bright green stripes.

An auxiliary kitchen and laundry room adjoin the regular kitchen.

The very formal living room with vaulted ceiling was known as the French music room when the Talcotts lived there. There used to be a grand piano in the reception room inside the front entrance has been converted into a gold carpeted office with embossed red and gold wall covering where two desks face each other. A hint of the Orient has been added with an Himalayan tilt-top table and an antique teak and tapestry folding screen. Mr. Gottier's framed collection of foreign money hangs near shelves containing other family memorabilia. French windows are dressed with pale gold swags over full length patterned sheer curtains.

The master bedroom and adjoining sitting room, separated by tied sheer drapes, are a study in black, white and red. Black moire drapes over sheer curtains, tied back with gold ropes, dramatize the two wide ceiling-high windows. Two-tone gold floxed wall covering and a black and white patterned bedspread continue the bold, dramatic look.

The marble framed fireplace does not burn wood. It contains an electric unit, probably one of the first of its kind in the area when it was installed by Mr. Talcott, which is controlled from a switch panel in the hall. Lights near the divan, in the alcove, and the candelabra over the fireplace are also controlled from a switch panel in the hall.

The family room, across the hall from the living room, unique for its extensive woodwork, features the Talcott coat of arms centered over the carved oak mantel above a large fireplace. Firewood is kept in high back-bench seats on either side of the fireplace.

A flower cage from Tangiers hangs over the gold crushed velvet cushioned window seat in a corner with windows that overlook the swimming pool, a circular oak table is all set for chess, and in another corner is an electric organ.

A dark blue and red Persian rug defines the lounge area where two olive green velvet chairs face each other. The pictures grouped on the wall are reminders of the Gottiers' travels. (Mr. Gottier owns his own travel agency in Rockville.) A stairway beneath the pictures leads to a downstairs recreation room with fireplace where the family, including five sons and one daughter at home, can play billiards, ping-pong and other games.

The bath adjoining the master bedroom suggests a Roman bath. Black tile walls and floor, a full mirrored wall with lighted colonnades, and a crystal chandelier above a sunken tub, would have pleased Venus. The tub, incidentally, is the original long, oval bathtub with legs, but set in the floor. When it was discovered that there was ample space under the floor, it was decided to keep the original tub and just set it lower. A memento of a bygone era is the wire soap holder hanging over the edge of the tub.

This comfortable mansion-home with tennis court is in a setting of shopping lawns, and large shade trees overlooking the once industrious Talcott Mills.

French window alcove. Now there is a grouping of Victorian furniture. A curved gold painted niche in each corner of the room holds an object d'art such as an ornately carved olive wood vase, a delicate vase of Venetian glass, an Egyptian vase, and a vase of Italian marble.

The most green carpeting is a neutral background for the gold divan and langleine crushed velvet chairs grouped around a gold circular table. Green plants and an arrangement of orange and green feather flowers on a side console make attractive accessories.

A ruby velvet tasseled circular pillow from Rumania, a French table-telephone on a carved ivory box from Switzerland, a Mexican painting of a red sunset on black velvet, and a Portuguese urn with a large green fern, all decorative accessories in the bedroom suite, are a few of the many items in the home that the Gottiers have collected from their world travels.

The servants' quarters have been appropriately converted into a bedroom apartment for the four younger Gottier boys: Ricky, 14; Guy, 12; Eric, 8, and Todd, 5. They have their own bathroom.

Bristol Eastern Easily Tops Tribe

By Dean Yost
Losing the ball repeatedly to Bristol Eastern on a well-disciplined full court press, Manchester High suffered a crushing 84-43 defeat last night at the Clarke Arena in a CCLL.

Eastern instituted its press the moment the ball came inbounds and the Tribe had trouble moving from that point. Matching hoops early in the opening quarter, the tempo seemed like apiece until things quieted down a little in the next eight minutes.

Eccentric Heir Takes Own Life

KINGSTON, N.Y. (AP) — Three years after setting off a dollar fever with a promise to give away his fortune first-come, first-served — oleomargarine heir Michael James Brody Jr., 24, has shot himself to death.

His promise in 1970, when he was 21, lured hundreds of persons to a rented mansion in Scarsdale, N.Y., where Brody wrote thousands of dollars in checks to people he didn't know. The checks bounced.

Brody said the idea came to him while "tripped out on drugs."

On Friday, Brody was found dead in the home of his father-in-law, Robert Dubois, 10 miles west of here in Shokan, N.Y. The Ulster County sheriff's office said he had fired a shot into his head from a high-powered rifle held between his knees.

Brody burst into the news in January 1970 when he returned from a Jamaica honeymoon aboard a 140-seat jetliner chartered just for him and his bride, Renee. They were separated a year ago.

He announced he would give away $26 million, setting off a wild rush to the rented mansion. Telephone lines were jammed with calls from as far away as California, and police blocked off the street.

"Peace is what I want," he said then. "When everyone is as rich as I am, I'll go to a desert island and leave the world alone and make love to my wife."

Brody said he wrote $60,000 in checks that day, but the Scarsdale National Bank and Trust Co. refused to honor them for lack of funds in the account.

Elizabethan Sicily is as far geographically, culturally, and linguistically from early 20th century small-town America as Shakespeare is from ragtime.

But in Joseph Papp's production of the Bard's "Much Ado About Nothing," the two remote areas meet. And the result is a unique production that has evoked "golden opinions from all sorts of people."

The "thous," "haths," and "yeas" of that 16th century period become part of the Teddy Roosevelt era, where the characters step into high-button shoes, spats, and Donald Saddler dances, amid post-Shakespearean inventions such as the Model T Ford.

And the color, ebullience, and optimism of Middle America, circa 1910, blend with the language, structure, and plot of the Bard's witty, ageless original.

Happy Birthday, Susan B. Anthony, Happy Birthday to You!

Susan B. Anthony was born February 15, 1820, in South Adams, Massachusetts. During her busy life of 86 years, she was a leader in the fight for women's rights.

She believed in women's suffrage (SUF-ridge) or the right for women to vote in political elections.

She also believed that women should have the same business opportunities as men. When she was teaching school in Rochester, New York, she noticed that while she got a salary of $8 a month, a man, doing the same job, got $30 a month. She thought this was unfair.

Miss Anthony traveled throughout the country giving talks. At that time in our history, it was unusual for women to speak in public. She was even arrested in 1872 for voting in a national election. True to her fighting spirit, she refused to pay the fine of over $100.

She was active in many causes, including the anti-slavery movement.

"Aunt Susan", as she was called by her friends and co-workers, died in 1909. She did not live to see the Nineteenth Amendment to the Constitution become law in 1920. This amendment gave women throughout the country the right to vote. But she and many other dedicated women paved the way. Even today, she is remembered for her contribution to the history of women's rights in our country.

Girls have stepped into the boy's world by playing Little League Baseball. Some are delivering newspapers. Some serve as football girls and give first aid and advice. Many serve as presidents of their school's student governments. Today's girls are taking a more active part in leadership than in years gone by and can look forward to better business opportunities when they grow up.

A Little Leaguer in action! It's a girl!

Edison believed in hard work. He said genius is: "One per cent inspiration and 99 per cent perspiration."

Happy Birthday to One of the World's Greatest Inventors

Thomas Edison was born in Milan, Ohio, February 11, 1847. He was the youngest of seven children. He quit school at the age of seven after going for only three months. His mother taught him at home. He was always asking questions. When he was nine years old he read his first chemistry book. He had his first job at the age of 12, selling newspapers and food on a train. One time a conductor boxed his ears. Another time a conductor tried to help him get on a train by pulling him by his ear. He was never completely deaf, but he did have trouble hearing. During his lifetime he patented over 1,000 inventions. His most important invention was the electric light. He also invented the phonograph and the mimeograph. He improved inventions made by others, such as the electric train, the stock ticker, the generator and the motion picture. He was known as the "Wizard of Menlo Park." Many of his inventions were made in his laboratory in that New Jersey town. He died in 1931.

Animal of the Week: The Ground Hog

The second of February is Ground Hog Day. There is an old but untrue story that if the ground hog comes out of his home under the ground and sees his shadow, then winter will last for six more weeks. If he does not see his shadow, then spring is on its way and the weather will be better.

Another name for the ground hog is the woodchuck. The ground hog is closely related to the squirrel. He hibernates during the winter months. He eats a lot in the fall and gets very fat and then he goes to sleep. He does not put away food to be eaten later. The baby ground hogs are born in the spring.

1850's Paper Doll

Amelia Bloomer worked very hard for women's rights, too. She made history in 1851 by wearing "bloomers" that came below her knees under her skirt. Susan B. Anthony wore bloomers for a short time, too. This was a shocking idea back then.

How did the custom of men walking next to the street curb start?

This custom started hundreds of years ago when people living upstairs threw their dirty water and garbage into the street. Since the man walked on the outside, the trash hit him, not the lady who was close to the building.

Why do men have buttons on their coat sleeves?

Buttons were first put on men's coat sleeves to keep them from wiping their noses on their cuffs. Of course, they are not there for that reason now, but that's how the custom started!
