Classical Guitarist At College Next Week

Miguel Rubio, classical guitarist, will make his fourth appearance at Manchester Community College Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Bidwell St. campus auditorium.

The concert will be free to MCC students. There will be a nominal admission charge to others. Seats may be reserved by calling 646-4900, Ext. 259.

The first half of the program will consist of works by classical composers - Sanz, Weiss, Bach, Scarlatti, Corcassi, Giuliani, Carulli, and Sor.

After intermission, there will be pieces by 20th century South American and Spanish composers, including Lauro, Bortolozzi, Cordero, Borges, Granados, Torroba, and Albeniz.

Born in Spain in 1934, Rubio began his musical studies at the age of 14, with Daniel Fortes. Later, at the Royal Conservatory of Music in Madrid, from which he graduated with honors, Rubio was a prize-winning student of Sanz de la Masa. From 1968 to 1969, Rubio studied with Andres Segovia, who is regarded as the world's greatest classical guitarist.

Best known for his versatility and great skill in exploiting the guitar's orchestral colors, Rubio covers the entire scope and range of the instrument in his repertoire. His music is the product of remarkable dexterity, a lifetime of dedicated training, his Spanish heritage, and a great love for the instrument.

TOO MUCH SCENARIOS MAY BE HANDICAP By Alfred Sheinwold

One of the troubles with scientific bidding is that your partner may become confused. Another hazard is that an opponent may become confused.

The most important moral of today's hand, however, has to do with media. When they're getting ready to pin a medal on you, just smile modestly. Even a single word may queer the whole business.

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes. You hold: Spades, K-J-8; Hearts, A-K-7; Diamonds, A-Q-4-3; Clubs, 10-4-3.

What do you say? This is a difficult hand to bid because you have fine strength in high cards but terrible distribution. You must mark time until you find out more about your partner's hand.

Few Protest Increase In Social Security Cost

By JOE HALL Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) - Social Security taxes are taking their biggest bite ever out of paychecks, but congressmen say they've heard relatively few protests.

They add, however, that some complaints persist about the way the whole Social Security system operates. Liberals dislike the formula used for apportioning the tax; some conservatives say that the system is underfunded, benefits are subject to the whims of Congress and taxpayers bear the burden of future taxpayers.

Any assurance that a worker has "diverse assets" to himself would have his own Social Security taxes but also the duplicate amount paid for him by his employer.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., chairman of the Finance Committee which handles Social Security legislation, said in an interview that his staff recalls no letters protesting the big jump in the withholding tax.

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Me., said "a nation that is fair cannot tolerate a tax which makes no allowance for real differences in ability to pay."

Campus Beer Sales Urged

HARTFORD (AP) - Much support has been voiced at the state Capitol for a proposal to allow the sale of beer on the campuses of all accredited colleges and universities in Connecticut.

The bill would bring to Connecticut campuses that which has been an aspect of college life "for the past 2,000 years," Lewis Hyde, executive director of the Connecticut Conference of Independent Colleges, said at a hearing Thursday.

He said that the first campus riot at Harvard University, in 1839, occurred because of a "cutback in the quality and quantity of beer served at meals."

Last year the legislature passed a measure to allow the sale of beer only at the Storrs campus of the University of Connecticut.

Several members of the Manchester High School Round Table Singers, directed by Miss Martha White, will provide the entertainment.

PTA Schedules Italian Night "Italian Night" will be the theme of the Highland Park PTA's annual potluck Wednesday. It will be held in the school cafeteria at 6:30 p.m.

New Budget Inflationary

President Nixon has put the case: Either Congress hews closely to his proposed budget for fiscal 1974 or there will be more inflation or higher taxes or both.

Urging Americans to support those congressmen and senators "who have the courage to vote against higher spending," he said "it is time to get big government off your back and out of your pocketbook."

Funny thing, though. Even with the President's hold-the-line budget, government will continue to dig into everyone's pocketbook. This is because, according to time-honored economic theory, any time federal expenditures exceed federal income, an automatic tax increase is enacted in the form of cheaper dollars which eventually translate into higher prices.

The President proposes a 1974 budget of $268.1 billion, some $12.7 billion more than he estimates the government will collect in that period. It is $18.7 billion, or 7.5 per cent, higher than the $250-billion limit he said was the most Congress should spend in fiscal 1973 (Congress actually authorized $261 billion), a limit he proceeded to enforce by imposing appropriated funds.

This 7.5 per cent increase in federal spending, contrasted with the 6.5 per cent real growth expected for the economy in the coming year, represents—on paper only, not in real life—a built-in inflationary factor of about 1 per cent.

The administration gets around the deficit, or the inflationary factor, by figuring on the basis of a "full employment budget." That is, the government would take in that extra $12.7 billion in taxes if the nation enjoyed full employment.

"Full employment" itself is postulated on the basis of 4 per cent unemployment in the work force, an arbitrary figure that is hardly a universal constant like the speed of light or the boiling point of water.

In other words, if we had full employment, which we don't, and if Congress stuck to the President's budgetary guidelines, which it won't, there might be some hope of a diminishing of the rate of inflation.

About all we can look forward to with certainty is a continuing battle royal between the President and Congress and another year of that "unlegislated" form of taxation called inflation.

Nixon 50 Per Cent Right

WASHINGTON — President Nixon is 50 per cent right in his position on draft dodgers and deserters. As he says, there is no ready reason why the ideas of total forgiveness should be more palatable now than "the war is over."

Nixon is reminding us that those who refused induction into the armed forces or donned the uniform and then fled its responsibilities broke the laws. The laws may be bad, in which case they should be repealed by Congress, but while they are on the books I will not join those who say violators should be rewarded for unilaterally deciding that respect for government by statute is for other people.

Vietnam was a tough one for the men who served. Far from being heroes, they were aware they were engaged in a war that was unpopular at home, and that therefore they were served paid their price. Those who deserted must pay their price, a criminal penalty for disobeying the laws of the United States. But it is not quite that simple, and shouldn't be.

Surely, the Republic can forgive. That's one of the things the system is all about. It's why we parole convicts and try to rehabilitate them. Salvation is no one's personal property, not even the President's.

So, although Nixon's indignation is understandable, he also is wrong when he says "The price is not a junket in the Peace Corps, or something like that." The price, in fact, should be "something like that." Not a junket in the Peace Corps or anywhere else, but public service for a couple of years at a buck private's pay, as several members of Congress already have proposed.

Sweden and Canada and the servicemen who went over the hill were having none of that morality. They were determined to fight, not to heal the sick, nor to sweep a floor. What they wanted was out, man, and none of the jazz about carrying bedpans.

Now, having safely—and often profitably—sat out the war, these men seek forgiveness. Indeed, we are told by various peace action organizations that the draft dodgers and deserters are heroes because they had the courage to take it on the lam. Both Sen. George McGovern and New York's Mayor John Lindsay "admitted" them during the late, unimpaired Presidential campaign. It is sick-making.

Yet, Richard Nixon is wrong when he says "We cannot provide forgiveness for them." He noted that "those who were served paid their price. Those who deserted must pay their price, a criminal penalty for disobeying the laws of the United States." But it is not quite that simple, and shouldn't be.

The End Of Jud Joad's War

Jud Joad bobbed up the path to his ramshackle cabin down the road a piece from Appalachia Corners as fast as his old legs would carry him. "Maude! Maude!" he called. "I got all-fired great news!" His wife pushed through the torn screen door and came out on the porch, rubbing her arthritic shoulder. "Oh, Jud," she said happily, "don't tell me you at last got me them gingham curtains I been hankering for all these years?" "Better'n that, old girl," said Jud. "The President has gone and ended the war."

"Not that war," said Jud patiently. "Our war." "Our war?" said Maude, blinking. "What war's that?" "The War," said Jud triumphantly. "On Poverty!" "Well, you sure got to hand it to the President, ending two wars in less'n a week," said Maude. "How'd he do it, Jud?" "Well, that I don't rightly know," said Jud. "The boys heard it over the radio down at the store. The President said over every war. A grateful Nation's going to reward us veterans who fought so long and hard. Don't that make sense?" "I sure do hope you're right," said Maude thoughtfully. "But there's one thing you didn't tell me about the end of this here war."

"What's that, Maude?" Maude gazed over across the weedchoked garden, the red dirt road, over the dry, scraggy hills to the future beyond. "Who won, Jud?" she asked.

Thank You

To the editor: We would like to express our thanks to the Bolton Volunteer Fire Department. Friday evening, Feb. 2, our car caught fire when parked only a few feet from our home. The firemen arrived within minutes after they received our telephone call. They pushed the car away from the house and extinguished the fire very quickly. I was very grateful. All totaled, about an hour elapsed from the time we placed the call until all of the firemen had gone.

Support Little Theatre

Dear Sir: Each year at this time a group of local citizens come to the Little Theatre. They have been privileged to watch this organization grow in numbers as well as in talent. And we are proud of the arts in our town and their contribution to our lives. Although there are many who believe only the professionals can provide top notch entertainment, I can point with pride to the quality work of Little Theatre as an example of amateurs who consistently perform the best.

Vote No

To the editor: The following open letter is to the town Board of Directors. I call your attention to the move to combine the Capitol Regional Planning Agency, CRPA, and the Capitol Regional Council of Governments, CROCG. A meeting will be held in the near future where the appointed officials of each of the 29 towns in the Hartford area will have a chance to vote for or against the merger. For some strange reason this has been a pretty much hush-hush, with little or no publicity in most area newspapers. I wonder why.

Herald Yesterdays

25 Years ago: Boy Scouts in town raise $2,300 in house-to-house canvass during annual financial campaign. 10 Years ago: The Rt. Rev. Msgr. John P. Rosen, pastor of St. James' Church, dies in St. Francis Hospital nearly a week after he was stricken in church rectory.

Sincere Thanks

To the editor: I wish to express my sincere thanks to the Democratic Town Committee for their endorsement to fill the seat vacated by William Fitzgerald who did such an outstanding job as a member of the Board of Directors for the past five years. I know that it will be a monumental task to fill this vacancy, but, I hope with hard work and dedication that I can justify the faith and confidence placed in my ability by this endorsement. I will follow the philosophy established by the Democratic members of the Board of Directors for the general welfare and the best interest of the people of Manchester.

Give Them Their Funds

Dear Sir: I am writing to take exception to the letter of Ms. Ruth Abbott as published in your edition of Feb. 6. I should think the wrath of the Almighty may come down on Ms. Abbott for even thinking that a parishioner of the Holy Trinity Church could be a questionable item. Certainly she has by now heard of the great and infallible wisdom of the Pope.

Bolton Town Votes Thursday On Raffles, Bazaars

JUDITH DONOHUE Correspondent Tel. 649-8409

Bolton voters will go to the polls Thursday to decide whether or not raffles and bazaars will be legalized in town. Town Clerk Catherine Leiner announces that the polls will be open to all registered voters Thursday from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. at Community Hall and the procedure will be the same as that used in all municipal elections.

Those that absentee balloting will not be allowed. If the majority of the voters are in favor of legalizing raffles and bazaars, the statute will be effective immediately. Sponsorship of such events will be limited to non-profit, charitable and educational organizations.

Copies of the statute are available at the town clerk's office and a copy is also posted on the signboard in front of Community Hall.

Homecoming Service: An article in Wednesday's Herald said that the Manchester Homecoming Service has helped more than 150 families and has served more than 15,000 hours in the eight years of its existence. In fact, the statistics above are only for 1971, not for eight years. In 1972, the organization helped more than 200 families, serving over 15,000 hours, according to its director, Hyalie Hurwitz.

The service, which provides trained, supervised nurses to assist families during periods of illness or other household emergency, has recently expanded its area to include Bolton.

Holiday Monday: All town offices will be closed Monday in observance of Lincoln's birthday. Town schools will also be closed.

CCW to Meet: The Council of Catholic Women of St. Maurice Church will hold its regular meeting Monday beginning with Mass at 7 p.m.

The program scheduled is "An Evening with Father Cronin," an opportunity for members to question the pastor on any subject.

Bulletin Board: There will be a meeting of persons interested in running for the Democratic ticket in the town's May election tonight at 8 p.m.

Two Inmates Found Guilty Of Assault: Two Somers prison inmates were convicted Thursday of charges stemming from an altercation at the prison last May, but a Superior Court jury in Rockville acquitted a third inmate accused in the same incident.

Allan N. Best, 20, of Bridgeport was found guilty of three counts of first-degree assault and six counts of second-degree assault. Tommie La, 32, of Nashobee, was convicted on two counts of first-degree assault.

The six-man jury found Clarence Roberts Jr., 23, of Hartford, innocent of two charges of first-degree assault.

The three were among six inmates held in Somers charged after several guards and inmates were struck with baseball bats during a fight that broke out just prior to a softball game at the maximum security prison on May 22, 1972. The remaining three inmates still are awaiting trial.

Slate's Atty. Donald B. Caldwell said the maximum penalty for first degree assault is a 20-year prison term on each count while the maximum sentence for second-degree assault is five years in jail. No date has been set for sentencing Best and La.

VIVA has also pledged families of men missing in action to an accurate accounting will be obtained, Mrs. Mahon said. To assist in this effort, she said, the Ellington club has written to President Nixon, urging him to use the letters to convince the Hanoi government to return the remains of the Geneva Convention agreement.

The following freshmen were named to the honor roll: Carol Anderson, Christopher A. Carpenter, Debra Carr, Kathleen Dooley, Kathleen Dyer, William E. Gagnier, Robert Giglio, Paul Landrey, Donna Manegia, Philip Manning, Nancy Osterlund, Todd Redden and John Varca.

High School Principal Norman Shaw has announced the names of those students named to the honor roll at the end of the second marking period. Those attaining high honors were Richard Allen, senior; Douglas Fish, a junior; and Ann Bates, Rebecca Smith and Agnes Thornton, freshmen.

Seniors on the honors list include Robin Addison, Robyn Iselb, Beth LaFrancis, Diane Leiner, Sharon Manegia, Renee Myette, Jeanette Paggioli, Carl Press, Fay Sherwood, Susan Tomaszewski and Susan Wright.

Spring Is An Attitude—Not A Season

If it gets too warm for ice skating, there's always the basketball courts at Charter Oak Park. And sometimes it warms enough to toss off the jacket, even in early February. If you're not in the game, you find a comfy spot to watch, like sitting on a ball as does Shawn Ierland, 9, of 176 Charter Oak St. Maybe you're content to lean against the marbled backboard pole, like Pierre Thivierge, 10, of 116 Charter Oak St. Looks like your hoop could use new cords, fellas; no SWIIISHH there! Court Cases

CIRCUIT COURT 12 Manchester Session

Arthur J. Chenot, 64, of 22 Crestwood Dr., pleaded no contest to a reduced charge of failure to show his operator's license at Thursday's session. He was fined $50.

He was originally charged with evading responsibility in connection with the Dec. 27 death of a pedestrian. The body of Henry Dzedzinski, 52, of East Hartford was found at 6:30 a.m. at Hillstown Rd. and Wetheress St.

He died at 7:40 a.m. at Manchester Memorial Hospital. An autopsy showed that he sustained a skull fracture, crushed chest, and possible broken back.

Six days after the accident, Chenot surrendered himself to police through an attorney, was charged, and released on a $5,000 non-surety bond.

Allen R. Roberts, 18, of 181 Autumn St. pleaded guilty to a charge of possession of marijuana. He was fined $50.

Other cases disposed of or nolle prosequi were: James T. Donlon Jr., 24, of Garnet Dr., Tolland, breach of peace, fined $200.

George H. Cataldi, 24, of East Hartford, breach of peace, pleaded guilty and was fined $100.

Roy H. Goding, 27, of 96 Wells St., breach of peace, nolle. Leonard H. Lacey, 40, of William St., Rockville, was intoxicated, nolle; pleaded guilty to a charge of parking without lights and was fined $10.

Frederick Howard, 62, of West Hartford, operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, pleaded guilty and was fined $150. The court remitted $50.

Police Report

MANCHESTER Raymond E. Myette, 47, of 32 Cornell St. was charged Thursday night with intoxication, operating a motor vehicle while under suspension, misuse of markers, and failure to drive right. He was released under a $100 non-surety bond. Court date is Feb. 26, 1973.

Dorothy C. Yaszczak, 43, of 32 Earl St., Rockville, was charged with fourth-degree larceny Thursday night at K-Mart. She was released under a written promise to appear in court. Feb. 26, 1973.

Michael F. Choman, 22, of 24 McCabe St. was charged Thursday afternoon with failure to grant the right of way.

At about 1:30 a.m. today, South Windsor Police arrested John Murphy Jr., 18, of 91 Birch Hill Dr., South Windsor, and charged him with driving while under the influence of liquor and failure to drive in a proper lane.

He was released under a $50 non-surety bond and ordered to appear Feb. 26 in Circuit Court 12, East Hartford.

Police report that Murphy, while traveling east on Valleyview Dr., crossed out of his lane onto the front lawn of 55 Valleyview Dr., struck a car parked in the driveway belonging to John DeMartino of Rockville on March 6.

Gregory Steward, 21, of 147 High St., Rockville was arrested yesterday on a Circuit Court 12 warrant charging him with third degree assault in connection with an alleged domestic disturbance. He was released on his promise to appear in Circuit Court 12, Rockville on March 6.

Susan Welch of 5 Maple Trail, Coventry and Shirley Drew of 17 River St., Rockville, were arrested by Vernon Police last night in connection with a disturbance near Center Park in Rockville. Miss Welch was charged with disorderly conduct, and interference with a police officer and Miss Drew with interference with a police officer.

Police said the charges against Miss Welch stemmed from complaints that she was tipping over garbage cans, jumping in front of passing cars and tampering with the fire phone. She was to be presented in Circuit Court 12, East Hartford, today. Miss Drew was released on her promise to appear in Circuit Court 12, Rockville on March 6.

Other cases disposed of or nolle prosequi were: James T. Donlon Jr., 24, of Garnet Dr., Tolland, breach of peace, fined $200.

Hebron Sixth Grades Going To Gilead

ANNE EMT
Correspondent
Tel. 228-3971

Because of overcrowding at Hebron Elementary School, the Board of Education last night approved a proposal to house all sixth grades next year at the Gilead Hill School, thus opening up two classrooms at the Hebron School for arts and crafts and a resource-speech center.

The Gilead Hill School presently has an enrollment of 380 students and four unused classrooms, whereas the Hebron School, with an enrollment of 474 students is overcrowded.

The situation at the Hebron School, according to its principal, Paul A. White, will continue to worsen with the addition of many new homes going up in the south end of town.

The proposal which was accepted by one of three subcommittees to the board for consideration by the two principals and the superintendent's office. It will not affect the budget in any way as the present shuttle bus can handle the 50 students in the sixth grades who will be moving to Gilead. Two teachers, not necessarily the present two sixth grade teachers, also will move to Gilead.

This proposal also includes moving six children from the fifth grade at the Hebron School to Gilead and placing the transitional kindergarten at first grade (preprimary) at Gilead.

Other Proposals
The proposal also leans slightly towards the possibility of separating one school as primary and the other as intermediate, which was not as drastic as the one which next year would have moved the three fourth grades to Gilead; the following year moving the fifth or fifth and sixth grades to Gilead with that school's kindergarten and first grades moving to Hebron, and the third year all of Hebron's third grades moving to Gilead and Gilead's second grades going to Hebron.

If the second proposal were followed Gilead would be the intermediate school and Hebron the primary school, and there would also have been additional expense for transportation.

However, three additional classrooms would be opened up at the Hebron School.

The third proposal would continue to worsen with the addition of many new homes going up in the south end of town.

Andover Missionary To Speak

ANNE EMT
Correspondent
Tel. 228-3971

The Rev. Dr. Reginald H. Hefferich of Andover will speak Sunday on "Mission Impossible" at the 11 a.m. worship service of the Andover Congregational Church.

Dr. Hefferich was recently appointed Interim Minister of Missions of the Connecticut Conference, United Church of Christ, a World authority on the problem of refugees, relief and rehabilitation work for his responsibilities have taken him to 120 countries of the world in the last 25 years.

Dr. Hefferich has set up church-sponsored programs of relief and rehabilitation for the victims of natural disasters as well as for victims of war, political uprisings and for people in underdeveloped countries.

He served for 17 years as vice president of Church World Service and was chairman of the Material Aid and Services Committee in the Division of Overseas Ministries.

In 1960, Dr. Hefferich was awarded the Commander's Cross of the Order of Merit by the president of the Federal Republic of Germany for his work in alleviating human misery in post-war Germany.

Dinner
Following the morning worship service, at 12:30 p.m., there will be a potluck dinner in the social room. Persons attending are requested to bring a casserole or salad, table service and $1 per family to cover costs. Desserts, beverages and rolls will be served.

After the dinner, Dr. Hefferich will lead an informal meeting and discussion concerning the ways to improve the outreach of the local church.

All are invited to come and hear Dr. Hefferich, join the members of the church in dinner, and attend the meeting. Chairman of all boards and committees in the church are especially urged to attend.

Picked Wrong Bank Teller

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP) — When a young man walked up to Denver National Bank teller Harry Willis and handed him a check, Willis thought the name on the signature line looked suspicious.

It was his.

Willis tried to stall the youth, who became suspicious of the delay and fled. Police picked him up a few blocks from the bank Thursday. His identity was not released because of his age, 16.

Hospital Worker Wins Big Drawing

CORNWALL (AP) — A hospital worker from Willimantic who fled from behind the Iron Curtain in 1950 walked away $75,000 richer Thursday after the weekly drawing of the Connecticut Lottery.

Liguori, 59, and his wife, Amelia, are employed as housekeepers in the Maintenance Department at Community Memorial Hospital in Willimantic. They did not attend the drawing in Cornwall because of the long trip. Liguori said he had no plans for the money but added he did not intend to change his life style.

Liguori was born in Latvia in 1910 and was a displaced person after World War II.

An East Hampton man and a resident of a Baltimore suburb each won $15,000 prizes in the drawing.

Budget Battle Begins

HARTFORD (AP) — Two Democratic members of the legislature's Appropriations Committee opened the "battle of the budget" Thursday by asking state agencies for more fiscal information.

The information requested includes payroll and job status of current employees in each department, contracts for services performed by private firms, and any new state services planned for the coming year.

It remains to be seen whether the commissioners will provide the date requested in the form requested, but the two Democrats—Sen. Joseph I. Lieberman of New Haven and Rep. John Groppo of Willimantic—said the information would help to prevent "the partisan and futile wrangling that marked the last two sessions."

Unlike the last two sessions, however, the Appropriations Committee is now controlled by Republicans.

Lieberman and Groppo, the two leading Democratic members of the appropriations committee, recalled that the committee had subpoenaed Finance Commissioner Adolf G. Carlson last year in its quest for budget information.

Nine Judges Nominated

HARTFORD (AP) — Gov. Thomas J. Meskill has nominated nine judges, five of them new appointees, to succeed retiring judges or those moving to higher courts.

He named Angelo G. Santaniello of New London, currently a judge of the Court of Common Pleas, to Superior Court. He would succeed Judge John C. Fitzgerald of Woodbridge who retires Aug. 1.

John M. Alexander of Windham was named to succeed Superior Court Judge Michael Radin of Avon, who will be 70 years old on Oct. 12. Alexander is a Common Pleas judge.

To the Common Pleas Court, Meskill named William C. Bielch of Hartford to fill Santaniello's vacancy. Bielch is a Circuit Court judge.

Also named to the Common Pleas Court is George E. Kimmon Jr. of Mystic, to succeed Alexander. Kimmon is a Circuit Court judge.

Five new Circuit Court judges were named by the governor.

Edward F. Stodolnik of Stratford is to succeed Judge Searis Dearington of Danvers who reaches the retirement age of 70 April 4.

John V. Casidonio of New Haven, a Democrat, former state representative and assistant U.S. Attorney was nominated to succeed retiring Judge Alfred Toscano of New Haven on March 2.

Circuit Court prosecutor Milton A. Fishman of Cheshire was named to succeed Judge Stapleton of Cheshire, who turns 70 on May 20.

Sen. Weicker On Watergate Committee

WASHINGTON (AP) — Connecticut Sen. Lowell Weicker Jr. was named Thursday afternoon to the senate committee to investigate the Watergate bugging affair.

Weicker is one of three GOP senators on the Select Committee on Presidential Campaign Activities which is to report its findings within one year.

The Republican senate leadership also chose Sens. Howard Baker of Tennessee and Edward Gurney of Florida to sit on the panel.

"The great opportunity of this committee is to gain for the American political system the respect and credibility it deserves of all the American people," Weicker said in a prepared statement.

"My goal is to insure that a thorough and objective investigation is conducted and that no one in this nation can brand its findings the result of either a witch-hunt or a whitewash," he added.

PUC Chief Favors Plan For Consumer Complaints

HARTFORD (AP) — The chairman of the Connecticut Public Utilities Commission has endorsed a proposal to establish a consumer complaint division in the PUC.

"Internal handling of complaints needs improvement," the chairman said. "PUC head Howard Hausman told the legislature's Appropriations Committee.

The concept was proposed by Toby Moffett, director of the Connecticut Citizen Action Group.

"With the PUC, as with other state agencies, the handling of complaints is pretty terrible," Moffett said. He proposed a complaint division with two investigators and an engineer to handle complaints on a fulltime basis.

Hausman said his agency was satisfied with the Gov. Thomas J. Meskill's budget proposal of $1,027,000 for the PUC, although the governor eliminated two positions currently vacant. Hausman said the PUC had yet filled positions for six engineers and four accountants approved last year.

The legislature Wednesday passed a bill ensuring that legislators, judges and court personnel will receive the full pay increase authorized by the Federal Pay Board.

The bill, approved 138-8 by the House and 64-7 by the Senate, clarifies the pay raise approved in 1972 to remove any question about the effective date of the increase. Under the bill, the increase will clearly be effective as of the beginning of January.

Rank-and-file lawmakers will receive the entire $5,606 salaries which the federal Pay Board approved.

Members of the previous legislature received only $2,000 a year base pay.

In other legislative action Wednesday:

Minority House Democrats drafted a bill to force the Republican-dominated committee to draft Democratic bills and hold public hearings on the House Democratic leaders said the newly created petition process should be used selectively to require public hearings on major state platform planks, not on every bill sponsored by a Democrat.

The Legislative Management Committee squashed bills that would require General Assembly committees to open all their meetings and to take roll call votes on all bills they act on.

Meskill's budget proposals for fiscal 1973-74 were condemned by Council 18, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO. The union said the governor took a "state workers be damned" attitude by not recommending any pay raises for state employees.

Center Closed

CHESHIRE (AP) — The town of Cheshire has temporarily closed its Youth Center as a result of a series of problems, topped by vandalism and trouble with two youngsters last weekend.

Park and Recreation Director Richard Bartlem said Thursday that the arrest of a boy for drinking and disorderly conduct at the center Friday and an altercation involving a pick-up of the "straw the camel's back."

After the incident involving the girl, "the kids took her side and did physical damage to the building besides giving verbal abuse," Bartlem said.

Labor Department Cuts Confirmed

HARTFORD (AP) — State Labor Commissioner Jack A. Fusari has confirmed reports of new inter-changeable job descriptions for several employee classifications and the retirement of several employees.

Fusari has reported the department is faced "with an acute budget problem as a result of about $975,000 in federal funds being withheld from the department for the fiscal year ending June 30."

"This reduction in federal funds has brought about changes in the department and may contribute to others," Fusari said in a statement.

Fusari said the changes "result in the retirement next month of 11 managerial employees from among the 80 who are eligible for immediate benefits."

He said the "overriding consideration throughout the deliberative process has been to accomplish changes, wherever possible, with the least amount of overall impact."

Forced retirement of employees and the inter-changeable-position policy were condemned Tuesday night by the executive board of Local 269, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO.

The union represents about 400 of the 800-1,000 department employees.

Michael Sorrentino, local president, said the policy on inter-changeable positions would be a disservice to the public. He said people in employment service with experience and contacts with personnel managers would be "unable to perform his job duties with the greatest amount of skill."

Forced retirement before the mandatory retirement age of 70, he said, was "contrary to the spirit if not the letter of the law."

He said the forced retirement could affect males over age 55 and women over age 50.

The executive board hired a lawyer to decide what "specific legal action should be initiated" against the new policies.

Movie Preview To Benefit Box Project

The current annual membership drive of the Box Project is being coordinated with an advance preview showing of the movie "Sonder" at Cinema 1 in Newton Saturday at 10 a.m. The Box Project is a national organization with main offices in Plainville for the purpose of promoting welfare communication between poverty stricken black families in the deep South and those families throughout the country who wish to help them. When a family wishes to join the organization and become a benefactor, they are matched with a black family of similar number and age factors. The benefactor family then is on its own to send a box regularly with clothing or other needed supplies to the black family. Correspondence is encouraged not only to promote a friendly relationship but also to inform the recipients of the benefits due them of which they may be unaware, such as food stamps. The relationship also serves to let the black family know that there is someone who is interested in its welfare and who cares for them. A member of the Box Project pays regular dues and sends periodical reports to the national organization on the number of contacts they have made with their "sister" family and how many boxes have been sent. Mrs. Lucy Higgins of 26 Green Rd., a 4-year member of the organization, has a "sister" family with whom she and her family have been sharing for about four years. The "sister"

Dental Health

This is the fifth in a series of six articles on dental health published by The Manchester Evening Herald in cooperation with the Manchester Dental Society, in observance of National Children's Dental Health Week, February 4-10.

You've mentioned sugar as a major source of the acid that creates decay. Are there any special rules about diet a person should follow to help preserve dental health?

Certainly, cutting down on sweet or sugary foods is an important part of dental nutrition. We know that very few people can—or will—entirely eliminate sweets from their diet, but limiting the amount that is consumed will go a long way to keep the acid attacks down to a controllable level.

Generally, nutrition in relation to dental health follows the same rules when applied to overall health. For example, eat less and eat often. Making sure you meet the daily requirements for basic nutrition is a critical step.

Become acquainted with the four basic food groups: Milk, meat, vegetables and fruits, and breads and cereals. At minimum, you should make certain your daily diet includes a representative food from each of these groups.

Your dentist may suggest you keep a daily diary of everything you eat. If you are honest as well as accurate, this will be a big help to you and your dentist in evaluating your diet to determine just what type of diet is right for you to maintain both dental and general health.

Since we've agreed that sugar consumption is directly related to decay, the kinds of sweets you eat and how often you eat them is important. For example, avoid between-meal snacks, particularly if they are

Pre-Cana Conference

A Pre-Cana Conference for engaged persons will be conducted Feb. 18 from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. at St. Bartholomew's School Hall, 25 Ludlow Rd. The program is sponsored by the Manchester District Committee of the Marriage and Family Apostolate of the Archdiocese of Hartford.

A team of speakers will present thoughts on Catholic teaching and the experience of Catholic couples. The discussion portion of the program will encourage the engaged to respond to the material offered and will conclude with an engagement blessing.

Taste Goes, Nutrition Stays As Navy Trims Food Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — With food prices rising, the Navy has ordered mess cooks to substitute hamburger for steaks and chops. Army troops will be eating more pot roast. The armed services—like many housewives—are cutting their grocery bills by substituting lower-priced items in their menus.

"Menus will be just as nutritious but not as delicious," explained a military food-service officer. Adm. Elmo R. Zumwalt Jr., in a message to all commands, noted a 20-per-cent rise in Navy food costs over the past six months.

The Agriculture Department Tuesday reported a 5 per cent rise in food prices from mid-December to mid-January, a 21-per-cent increase over last January's prices.

Zumwalt, the chief of naval operations, ordered food managers Jan. 11 to "suspend

Workshops For Vision Screening

Several workshops to train volunteers in the pre-school vision screening techniques used by the Connecticut Society for the Prevention of Blindness will be held during March and April at the Glaucoma Detection Center, 589 Jordan Lane, Wethersfield.

Club women who have been working in pre-school vision screening may attend for a "refresher course" or interested women new to the program may attend for a more complete orientation.

Workshops will be held March 2, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.; March 16 to 11 a.m.; April 6, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.; and April 13, 9 to 11 a.m. For registration call 84-5700 if you are in the Greater Hartford area, or call 101-Free if outside Greater Hartford, 1-800-942-0892.

Masons Plan Dinner-Dance

Roger S. Athor, senior warden, has been named general chairman of the annual dinner-dance of the Manchester Lodge of Masons to be held March 10 at Willie's Steak House.

John Nelson, senior deacon, will serve as secretary-treasurer for the event. A social hour will start at 6:30 p.m., followed by dinner at 7:30 p.m. Those attending will have their choice of either broiled hip steak or baked stuffed shrimp. Dancing to the music of Dave Kennedy will ensue from 9:45 p.m. to 12:45 a.m. Attire for the evening is semi-formal. All proceeds will be applied to the Widows and Orphans Fund of the Manchester Lodge.

New Labeling Urged By FDA

WASHINGTON (AP) — The special assistant to the President for consumer affairs, Virginia Knauer, has called for public support for proposed mandatory labeling of ingredients in cosmetics.

The Food and Drug Administration outline has proposed labeling requirements. All ingredients in cosmetics, except for trade secrets, would have to be listed on the product label.

Mrs. Knauer said the action would bring "welcome relief to the many men and women plagued by allergies or who are sensitive to certain ingredients."

"I urge every woman who asked for this regulation to support it so that the proposal does not come into harm's way," she said.

The National Commission of Product Safety estimates that 60,000 persons suffer harmful effects from cosmetics each year, ranging from skin irritation and burns, to loss of hair and severe allergic reaction in the eye.

The FDA said it would not require specific label identification of flavor, color and fragrance.

A 60-day period is allowed for comment on the proposed regulations, and they would not take effect for another three months after that.

POW's Diet Pretty Tricky

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Reading former American prisoners of war to the American diet is going to be "pretty tricky," a Navy dietitian says.

"They're going to be amazed at what we're eating now. We have a lot more convenience foods, frozen and packaged, and there are a lot more fat foods," Lt. Georgiana Banellis of Memphis Air Station said Tuesday.

The 25-year-old Logan, Utah, native will be in charge of reconstructing diets for a group of POWs from mid-South states who are scheduled to stay at the base hospital.

"We've missed all this stuff, this fat food. They're going to have it rough adjusting to the United States again. They will not remember what the food tastes like," she said. "I really don't think we'll allow food from relatives, at least not at first. Maybe after a month or so. Relatives might bring in sweets, high carbohydrate foods, and that's not what's important."

"What's really important is building the body, building the resistance to infection, regenerating the body's organs, cells and tissues. Homemade sweets would spoil their appetites too."

"We will give them 1,200 calories intake and six light meals a day to begin. The main criteria is that you don't push them into it."

"We might start with one of two of the foods they particularly like and build from there. They will get meat, liver, dark green vegetables, oranges, tomatoes, and other foods with plenty of iron and vitamin C."

"They probably will have shrunken stomach capacity and probably will not have been used to coarse foods. We think their diets have been soft foods, like rice or gruel, but really it's just conjecture. We just don't know yet."

Girl Scouts Seek Funds To Curtail Price Hike

MANCHESTER EVENING HERALD, Manchester, Conn., Fri., Feb. 9, 1973 — PAGE NINE

Field with the approval of the Greater Hartford Community Chest, the Sustaining Membership Enrollment Drive in Manchester will help raise funds to offset the rising costs of camp maintenance, leadership training, special activities, like camperships and office operations.

Families with daughters in Girl Scouting and other friends interested in helping to maintain the present full Girl Scout program will be asked to become Sustaining Members. The campaign goal this year is $25,000 for the council.

There are 1,387 Girl Scouts in Manchester, and 201 adult volunteers. The Connecticut Valley Council maintains three Day Camps and a large resident camp, Timber Trails for the use of its registered Girl Scouts as well as non-Scouts. Last year alone, almost $1,000 in camperships funds from the council helped disadvantaged Manchester Girl Scouts to enjoy a summer camping experience. More than 200 Manchester girls in all participated in camp activities, and a record 65 per cent of all Manchester troops enjoyed year-round troop camping.

Miss Joan Stasiak, daughter of Mrs. Alice Stasiak of 350 Hillstown Rd., has been named to the fall semester dean's list at the University of Connecticut School of Education, where she is a senior mathematics major.

Susan Stickle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Stickle of South Windsor, formerly of Manchester, has been named to the dean's list at Stonehill College, North Easton, Mass., for the first semester. She is a freshman.

Idle Stock Rolls Today

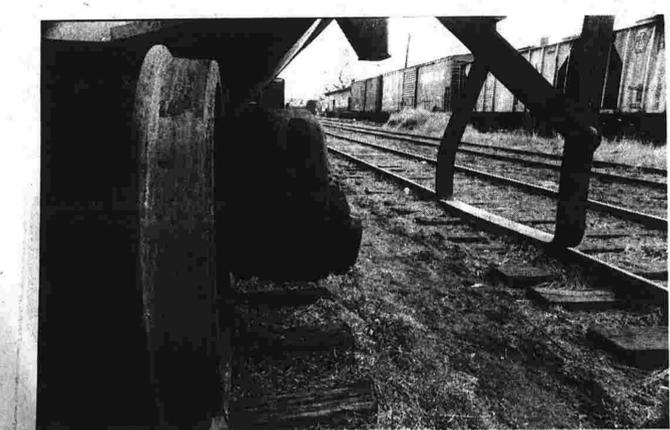

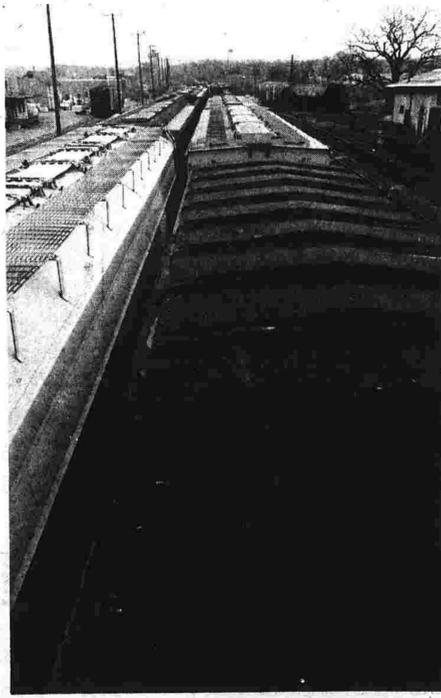

Penn Central Railroad workers were back on the job today, and rolling stock was again on the move after a short-lived strike by the United Transportation Union (UTU) against the carrier.

This afternoon, crews began moving box and hopper cars from the through tracks in the North End yards to sidings to facilitate unloading by local receivers.

The strike began Wednesday at midnight and tied up commuter and freight shipments on the nation's largest railroad, which operates in a number of states and two Canadian provinces.

Congress acted Thursday to send the railroad's employees back to work for a 90-day cooling-off period, and at the same time, give Congress and the administration time to provide a permanent remedy for the financially troubled Penn Central. President Nixon had left Washington for the San Clemente, Calif. White House when Congress acted. The legislation was flown there for his signature this morning.

Below, Al Chesser, left, president of the UTU, has some private words with William Moore, Penn Central president, outside the Senate Labor Committee meeting Thursday. The committee later approved a bill to halt the strike.

There doesn't seem to be so many turtles now as there were when O.C. was a kid. It was not rare to find box turtles in the woods. When they pull back into their shells and close the doors tight they are quite safe. They were never known to bite a person.

They must emit an odor very similar to game birds because well trained bird dogs point on them same as on quail or partridge. They do not point on other kinds of turtles.

O.C. DOES NOT KNOW WHERE THEY HIBERNATE. He has never seen one in winter. They seem to prefer dry uplands over swamps. Often someone carved their initials and date in a turtle's shell. It evidently didn't hurt.

Some were found still travelling and wearing quite old dates. Some had a series of dates indicating they were caught several times.

Another turtle, or perhaps tortoise, that was only found on dry land in warm weather was flat. O.C. did find one in the bottom of a brook in the winter. Among the stones he passed one of them until accidentally pried up with a probing stick. It also seemed friendly and never attempted to bite. It was amusing to put them on their backs and watch how they turned themselves upright with their heads and necks.

There were several kinds of strictly water turtles that were only found in or very near water. Once when we boys were camping at Coventry Lake we had most all of the lake to ourselves.

One morning when we woke up and looked out of the tent there were a lot of little black specks on the surface of the water. We went to the shore but there was nothing near enough to identify it. So we shot at one with the rifle and 22 short shells. The spot disappeared and it seemed that the bullet struck in the exact spot.

After trying many times without being able to determine if we were hitting anything, we quit and got breakfast. The wind was blowing toward shore and kept the lake surface so rippled that nothing showed up on it.

Before the day was over turtles about the size of tea saucers began washing ashore all shot in the head. Next day or two the sun shone bright and hot.

The camp was becoming not livable until we picked up all the dead turtles and buried them back in the woods.

There used to be a huge land turtle in Bronx Park Zoo. His shell humped up in the middle more than a foot high. It was said to be more than 300 years old.

Long's Restaurant on State St. in Hartford used to buy big sea turtles. After being chained on the sidewalk for folks to wonder at, they would be taken to make soup. They might weigh a couple hundred pounds. That turtle soup was good.

Dear O.C., We all know "Depot Square" has had its face lifted. It is a thing of modern beauty with its broad expanse of concrete, its traffic lanes and lights, and, I might add, its traffic jams.

It has its homes for the elderly with such a pretty name, Mayfair. The elderly sure must have happy thoughts of spring and summer when they say the word.

An old North Ender feels lost and confused when he revisits the area. Gone are all the old landmarks.

The Depot itself, Balch & Brown's Drug Store, Dan Curran's barber shop, Buckland's Furniture Store, and most important of all the old Post Office.

Yes, in the old days the North End had a Post Office, which it does not have now. I was a grade-school kid then attending the old Union School. Children then, were not allowed to loiter around the Post Office.

However, I had the privilege of picking up a newspaper that came in the mail and delivering it to an elderly couple, who lived a short distance down the street from us.

That paper was the "Irish World" it put sunshine into those old hearts to read the news from their beloved homeland.

There was a reward in it for me, too, because there was always an apple, some cookies or a slice of homemade bread and jam. But most precious of all was the Irish blessing that they said for me.

Today, the grandson of those people is one of, if not the most successful, businessmen in Manchester. I'm sure that he must have received that blessing many times, also.

Now, I am sign onto 75 years old. Living in the country, where at times it is difficult for me to walk out to the paper box to get a paper.

But, I am fortunate. I have four wonderful little children who bring it to me. They are the great-great-grandchildren of that old couple that I used to bring the paper to when I was a little girl.

They are the children of Michael Lynch and the late Mary Margaret Moriarty Lynch, namely, Sharon Mary, Michael, Frank and Matthew.

And for them I will say the Irish blessing that was so often said to me.

"May the road come up to meet you
May the wind blow always at your back
May the sun shine warm upon your face
And the rains fall gently on your fields
And until we meet again
May God hold you in the palm of His hand."

Bradley Runway Project Delayed

HARTFORD (AP) — An application for federal approval to extend the main runway at Bradley International Airport has been withdrawn by the Connecticut Department of Transportation.

A DOT spokesman has confirmed that the state withdrew the application to the Federal Aviation Administration "without prejudice," pending further work on the state's master plan for development of all state airport facilities. The action means the state retained the option of resubmitting the application at a future date.

The proposal to extend the main runway at the Windsor Locks airfield by 1,000 feet has drawn sharp opposition from residents in the Town of Suffield. Town officials said the extension at the northeast end of the runway would expand the existing flight plan at the airport further over the community. They argued that improving the field would allow bigger aircraft to utilize the field.

DOT officials had countered that the section of runway involved in the extension already was paved and that the state simply planned to rebuild it to accommodate heavier aircraft.

Certification Change Okayed

HARTFORD (AP) — The state Board of Education has approved a teacher certification change that will allow teachers to obtain permanent teaching certificates after teaching under a provisional certificate at either public or parochial schools.

Education Commissioner William Sanders said teachers have been blocked from permanent, or standard, certificates unless they taught in public schools.

The change is to take effect after publication in the Connecticut Law Journal.

In other action, the board rejected a proposal to base teacher certification on "demonstrated proficiency" instead of a certain number of courses.

Diocese Seeks School Funds

HARTFORD (AP) — The Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Hartford will seek funds to support its elementary schools in Hartford, New Haven and Litchfield counties on the Feb. 24-25 weekend Archbishop John F. Wheelon said Thursday.

In the past two years of the special fund-raising program, a total of $481,482 was collected and distributed to 18 elementary schools, most of which are in inner-city areas, he said.

Light Side of Legislating

By The Associated Press There's a lighter side to life in the nation's state legislatures these days. Between debates on weighty matters like taxes and the environment, the lawmakers are busy arguing about everything from fashions to fish.

The rules committee of the Nebraska state Senate, acting on the recommendation of Sen. Ernest Chambers, adopted a resolution advocating a ban on smoking. When the question reached the floor, Jules Burbach, a smoker, moved to amend the recommendation to require the lawmakers to wear shirts and ties. Burbach noted that Chambers frequently wore T-shirts.

If upgrading the legislature's dignity was the object of the smoking ban, Burbach argued, "I think we should be properly attired."

Shirley Marsh, the only female legislator, said she didn't like smoking, but neither did she want to wear a shirt and tie.

The whole matter wound up back in the Rules Committee for further consideration.

Things were a bit simpler in Nevada. Assembly Speaker Keith Ashworth merely announced that official dress for the legislative session would be "coats and ties or suits."

Again, however, a woman intervened. "Does that include us?" asked Assemblywoman Margie Foot.

Just to show that he takes his job seriously, meanwhile, the House Republican whip in Wyoming, Alan Simpson, appeared at his desk with a huge leather whip. It was given to him by a colleague, he said, to keep his fellow Republicans in line.

The battle of the sexes has been a big issue in Wyoming, which recently passed the equal-rights amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

The day after the amendment was ratified, someone changed the sign on the House of Representatives men's room door to read "Theirs." Inside the men's room stood a mannequin clad in black stockings, black lace panties and sandals.

Legislators in Montana got a chuckle from the lobby for the state's wool industry. Among the bumper stickers the lobbyists have distributed are: "Save our sheep . . . Take a coyote to lunch," and "Eat American lamb . . . 10 million coyotes can't be wrong."

Representatives men's room door to read "Theirs." Inside the men's room stood a mannequin clad in black stockings, black lace panties and sandals.

J. W. Beach Dead At 84

CHATHAM, Mass. (AP) - Joseph Watson Beach, a former Hartford, Conn., mayor and director of the Travelers Insurance Co., which was founded by his maternal grandfather, died in his home Thursday at the age of 84.

A native of Hartford where he lived until moving here in 1870, Beach served as mayor between 1933 and 1935, being defeated as the Republican mayoral candidate in 1935 and 1937. He also had served as president of the Hartford Board of Education in 1929-31.

In addition to his position with Travelers, Beach was a director of the United Bank and Trust Co. and founded the J. Watson Beach insurance agency.

He is survived by his widow, a daughter, three step-children, two brothers, a sister, five grandchildren and 11 step-grandchildren.

Downtown Meeting Feb. 20

The Mayor's Downtown Action Committee has scheduled a meeting with all downtown merchants for Tuesday, Feb. 20. The meeting will be at 8 p.m. in the Municipal Building.

The purpose of the meeting is to determine the feeling of downtown merchants toward the financing of a planning commission.

It has been estimated that $100,000 will be needed to be forthcoming from downtown Manchester. Some $5,000 from institutional and utility firms and $5,000 from downtown merchants.

In effect, the Mayor's Downtown Action Committee is seeking a financial commitment from the downtown firms before proceeding with any further planning.

Harrison Appointed To Cemetery Post

Robert D. Harrison, cemetery sexton for the Town of Manchester since November 1966 and acting superintendent of cemeteries since August 1972, has been named superintendent, effective Feb. 1. He will fill the vacancy created last August when George Elliott retired.

In announcing the appointment, Town Manager Robert Weiss said Harrison finished first in a technical oral examination conducted by a panel of three cemetery administrators. He completed with four other applicants and received a grade of 98 per cent. The five who took the exam were from a group of 20 original applicants.

Weiss said the positions of superintendent and sexton have been combined, adding, "It is to be hoped that the excellent level of service can be maintained with this new organization." Harrison's annual salary as superintendent is $11,346, the same he was receiving as acting superintendent.

Previous to working for the town, Harrison was employed by Mortuary Bros. He resides at 465 Oakland St. with his wife, the former Barbara Greenwood, and their daughter, Beth.

Monday Closings

Lincoln's Birthday, which still is being celebrated on Lincoln's Birthday, Monday, Feb. 12, is a state and municipal holiday, but not a federal one. Closed Monday will be the Municipal Building and other municipal services, as well as all state offices.

Manchester public and parochial schools will be open from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and from 6 to 10 p.m. The East Side Rec and the Community Y will be open from 6 to 10 p.m.

There will be a garbage and refuse pickup Monday as usual. The emergency telephone numbers for town services are: 648-5070 for highways, 648-1868 for refuse and garbage, and 648-9687 for water and sanitary sewage.

The federal courts will be closed but the Federal Building will be open.

Business Tax Relief Termed Good For State

HARTFORD (AP) - Tax relief for business and industry will enhance the prosperity of the entire State of Connecticut, not just stockholders and executives, says the Connecticut Business & Industry Association.

"Statements that business tax reform will be at the expense of the average citizen should be discounted completely," said CBI President Arthur L. Woods in a statement released Thursday.

"The most urgent reason for business tax reform," Woods said, "is that it will enable employers all across our state to create those jobs which are now so sorely needed."

Gov. Thomas J. Meskill's proposed cuts in business taxes and corporations fail to show a profit.

Meskill recommended phasing out the local personal property taxes on factory machinery and retail inventories, and modification of the corporation tax to make some allowance for years in which corporations fail to show a profit.

Coventry New Town

(Continued from Page One) community as a "balanced" one in the sense that it would contain residential, commercial and industrial sites. It should have a positive impact on the town in which it is located, and produce more in taxes than it generates in added expense to the town. It should be "open to all," Libani said, in terms of age and income groups.

Casick elaborated further by noting that earlier descriptions of the new community as a "latter 20th century version of an early New England village" are a part of the overall concept of the new community, with useable open space, and all amenities, such as commercial facilities, schools, churches, recreational facilities and job opportunities.

"It will not be a castle suburb," he said, "but rather an integral part of the entire town."

During that portion of the meeting devoted to questions from school board members, several concerns were expressed. Messier wanted to know what assurances the community would have that adequate school facilities for the added population would be ready for occupancy at the right time. North replied that this was a planning matter, and added that in terms of planning all aspects of the new community, the present residents of Coventry's wishes would be reflected, since, once again, the broadest possible participation of townspeople is desired.

As new residents moved into the new community, they would become a part of the town, and schools would be a part of the townwide school system.

Through the question and answer period, Process and DevCo representatives acknowledged the obvious skepticism of the residents present, and stressed the fact that they intend to win the enthusiasm of the townpeople for the proposed project. Many questions centered on specifics and could not be answered with specificity, but they were promised that they would be conducting impact studies in relation to the new community, and that the town will also be seeking this information from them as well as from other sources. It was pointed out that an information and exhibit center will be opening shortly in the town, and DevCo and Process will be conducting impact studies in relation to the new community, and that the town will also be seeking this information from them as well as from other sources. Vernon Forum Outlines Council Services

By Barbara Richmond (Herald Reporter)

The services provided by the Hockanum Valley Community Services Center and the Day Care Center and the needs yet to be met were discussed at a forum sponsored last night by the Rockville Area Clergy Council.

Mrs. Goldie Pearl of the Hockanum Valley Community Services Center, organizer of the two centers, outlined some of the background of the organization which was founded in 1968. Mrs. Pearl emphasized that the council's aim is to complement existing agencies, not to replace them.

The primary work of the council, Mrs. Pearl said, is to plan, coordinate and develop community health, recreation and social services and to serve as a medium of communication among volunteer groups.

A survey conducted in 1969 revealed that the most needed services in the tri-town area of Vernon, Tolland and Ellington were mental health, child guidance, teen center and youth and family life and education counseling plus a Day Care Center.

Gary Lipitrus, director of the services center, explained that the center provides help for people who do not know where to go for help, added that it also acts as a barometer to seek out needs that are unmet.

Lipitrus said the council enjoyed great community support in planning the center which is staffed by professional volunteers such as social workers, psychiatrists, marriage counselors and other specialists in the social services fields. Financial support to get the center started came from the people of the three towns.

What would Lipitrus like to see as part of the future program? More youth services in the area of intervention, alcohol counseling and more services for the senior citizen, he said.

Turning to the Day Care Center, Mrs. Rose Ann Kapisa, teacher-director said the objective of the center is to help in the way of supplementing a family in need of quality care.

Tuesday, Feb. 5, was Student Council Awareness Day. Many feel there is a large gap between the council and the rest of the student body.

Jack Morkan, the chairman of the council's awareness committee, organized a program held in the auditorium for the entire school where all committee chairmen of the council briefly described their function and accomplishments.

The first speaker was John Healy, president of the Student Council and an ex-officio member of every committee involved. He spoke to the students about their role in the smooth running of East. We must cooperate with the faculty and the administration to make this work. There must be mutual understanding of the needs of both students and faculty. We must make the rest of the year a time of 100 per cent together with one goal in mind—progress and growth of the whole school community.

Community Studies
Ellen Shainin, vice president of the Student Council, initiated the idea of a committee Curriculum Studies program. Here are the highlights of her report to the students.

The purpose of the Curriculum Studies Committee is to evaluate the education we get here. It has been divided into nine different subcommittees. They are (with their chairmen): Religion, Jim Higgins; English, Maureen Lynch; math, Chris Briggs and Ernie Mintel; modern languages, Regina Leland; history, Reges McKeough; scheduling, Joan Thompson; guidance, Jack Morkan; science, George Upton; and a new one, the library committee, Ernie Fournier.

Each of these committees is evaluating their particular department in the way they feel is best. They're all busy working with the teachers, finding out what their objectives are and, if a poll were taken concerning their department, what kind of questions they'd like to have asked.

Attendance
The most underrated committee in council is the Attendance Committee headed by Joanne Roto. The job of this group is to keep a record of all absences of council members. In accordance with the rules, if a member misses more than three meetings, he is liable for review by the executive board.

Reform
Steve Turgeon, chairman of the Reform Committee, spoke of the duties of his committee. "The purpose of the Reform Committee is to suggest needed changes in the goals, objectives and procedures of the council. These changes are made in order to keep the purposes of the Student Council the same as those of the student body. The only way we can know the views of the students is when they tell us at one of the open meetings of this committee or at one of the open Student Council meetings. You all have a responsibility to see that your voice is heard. All suggestions are welcomed."

Agenda-Rules
The Agenda Committee, or Rules Committee, is chaired by Laura Ehrhardt. In addressing the students, she made clear that it was their duty to let the council know what they'd like to see discussed at the meetings. Everyone's view of what happens at East is important, but how the council know what matters to a lot of students if no one will speak up? The place to do it is at the agenda committee meetings in all Student Council meetings is drawn up.

All meetings are announced over the intercom and are also posted on the Student Council bulletin board outside the cafeteria.

Cafeteria
The food served in the cafeteria is important to all of those who eat it. Janet Jacen and the Cafeteria Committee reported that only about 30 per cent of the staff buys the hot lunch served there.

Another concern for this committee is the condition of the cafeteria. Signs will be made reminding people that they're not the only ones eating there and to clean up after themselves. "It all starts with you."

meeting. Also when voting time roles around again, students should be made aware of the involvement of their councillor in council projects during the past year.

Dress Code
Cindy Dickison, chairman of the Dress Code Committee, reported the following to the student body.

"The goal of this committee is to set up a lasting dress code that is acceptable to both students and administration. That sounds a lot easier to do than it is. "This year's dress code hasn't been so bad. The administration has been more lenient toward jewelry and accessories, and I've even seen girls getting away with knee socks with panda bears on them. But the idea is not to see what we can get away with. "I need your opinions and your ideas to change things. I've had four meetings this year, with an average of four kids at each meeting. Everybody figures "someone else will go." But why should you expect anyone else to go if you don't? (Ed. note: A Dress Code committee meeting was held today. The results will be published.)

Activities
A very conscientious, integral committee of the council and the student body are the Activities Committee, co-chaired by Ernie Fournier, Janet Jacen and Joanne Rot. Spokesman for the group was Ernie Fournier. This committee oversees and coordinates all student activities.

The group wanted to plan a Winter Weekend that would include tobogganing, ice-skating and snow sculpting, but this had to be canceled due to the cold weather.

A major accomplishment of the Activities Committee was a project undertaken last December: the Turkey Dinner Baskets.

The Activities Committee would like any suggestions you have to offer. We need more activities through which we can get to know each other better on a level other than academically.

So that wraps up Student Council Awareness Day. You've heard and read about it all. One thing that all reports had in common was a plea to the students for greater involvement. What I think is lacking is an atmosphere recognized by all students. Without us, the East Catholic building would be nothing. We live here six hours a day. Or do we merely co-exist? Please don't make do. Take what you have and do something with it.

Today's Thought

"I am the vine, you are the branches; if a man lives in me, and I in him, then he will yield abundant fruit; separated from me, you have no power to do anything." John 15:5
Man does not fully know himself. No matter how fully he examines his conscience, he finds there little is blame-worthy. He is not humble. Try as he may to think poorly of himself, he never succeeds in destroying his self-esteem.

At first the committed Christian, having left himself for others, finds success in his undertakings and gives himself credit for it. But in doing so, he hinders God's work.

It is only when man is deeply aware of his utter helplessness that God can begin to accomplish all.

Nixon's Big Tax Stick

By WALTER R. MEARS
WASHINGTON (AP) — In President Nixon's budget battle with Congress, one simple word—taxes—is the key weapon.

It is a formidable one. For while Congress argues about impoundment of funds, division of powers, and defense of Democratic programs, the President stresses the simplest of themes: "The cooperation of the Congress in controlling total spending is absolutely essential."

Essentially what Nixon and his spokesmen argue is that the Democratic Congress doesn't follow his budget. Defending his refusal to spend some money ap-

Yankee Dollar Still Healthy At Home

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — With international currency traders trying to discard U.S. dollars as if they carried the London flu, some Americans are wondering if they too should be concerned about contamination or something worse.

The theme was similar to the first of at least six serial State of the Union messages. The President said, in between his budget and expansive programs "which will surely force up taxes and fuel inflation."

The issues looming between the Republican administration and the Democratic-controlled Congress are not as simple as the question whether taxes stay as they are or go up. For what the President is proposing is a turning away from Democratic programs shaped from the New Deal to the Great Society.

But for political shorthand, it's hard to beat taxes. Nixon's re-election campaign included a pledge to hold the line against new taxes. He said his budget fulfills that pledge.

country because they make its vast amounts of money they could get hurt badly by holding a weak currency.

Always on the lookout for changes in currency values or even in sentiment, they tend to accelerate the problems they fear. In fleeing what is alleged to be a weak currency they make it weaker. They create a run.

There are a lot of dollars to run from overseas. This country has had a balance of payments deficit for two decades now, meaning we have been importing and spending heavily abroad, and leaving dollars there in payment.

But there really isn't any dollar crisis domestically. In fact, if inflation continues to abate, the buying power of the dollar will decline more slowly than in the previous two years. It will, in effect, become healthier.

If you're going abroad it might be different. Then you could find that your dollars won't buy as much because other currencies are preferred. You would be in the same situation as any other international dealer.

There are a lot of these dealers of one sort or another: speculators, bankers, wealthy individuals, multinational corporations. Since they deal in vast amounts of money they could get hurt badly by holding a weak currency.

A generally held American position is that the dollar is becoming sounder as inflation recedes. The cease-fire in Vietnam means less waste and more industrialized nations rely heavily on trade. If they are incapable of doing their thing because they lack a currency exchange system then all economies will be in trouble.

Phase 3 will mean more inflation. They note the United States imports more than it exports. They fear the current business expansion will get out of control and lead to the old boom-bust cycle.

The hope of all the world's trading nations is that this flurry, as have others, will blow over and that by this fall they can join in a more stable exchange system.

If that effort fails then the ordinary American will be hit — and hit hard. The United States and most other industrialized nations rely heavily on trade. If they are incapable of doing their thing because they lack a currency exchange system then all economies will be in trouble.

For 1971 incomes, withholding was set too low, so that a year ago thousands of taxpayers got a shock; they had to dig into their pockets to pay part of their tax bill.

To avoid a recurrence, withholding rates on 1972 incomes were set higher. It turned out that the rates were too high on the average. The Treasury realized this early in the year and urged taxpayers who had reasons to think too much was being taken out of their paychecks to file new withholding forms, listing all their exemptions and, if they had unusually high deductions, applying for additional exemptions. But it is now apparent that not nearly enough people took this advice and that as much as $10 billion more may have been taken out of paychecks. Taxpayers get this back either in higher refunds or smaller balances to pay.

A share of this jackpot could well be yours.

Some other changes may affect you, but only if you are in a high income tax bracket. There is a ceiling rate on the tax on salaries, and that rate is 60 percent on 1971 earnings, but dropped to 50 percent for 1972.

If you are single or an unmarried head of household and

High Withholding Could Bring Refund

EDWARDS: Following is the last in a series of forms entitled "Coping With Your Income Tax." They were written to help taxpayers prepare their 1972 tax returns.

WASHINGTON (AP) - After you have stogged your way through your income tax return, there may be a pleasant surprise at the end. You may qualify for a bigger refund than you expected, or at least have to come up with less additional tax than you anticipated. The reason lies in the withholding system which, ideally, dining room, family room, formal dining room, family room with fireplace, 4th bedroom, 2 1/2 baths, 2-car garage, 2 1/2 acres wooded land. For 1971 incomes, withholding was set too low, so that a year ago thousands of taxpayers got a shock; they had to dig into their pockets to pay part of their tax bill.

To avoid a recurrence, withholding rates on 1972 incomes were set higher. It turned out that the rates were too high on the average. The Treasury realized this early in the year and urged taxpayers who had reasons to think too much was being taken out of their paychecks to file new withholding forms, listing all their exemptions and, if they had unusually high deductions, applying for additional exemptions. But it is now apparent that not nearly enough people took this advice and that as much as $10 billion more may have been taken out of paychecks. Taxpayers get this back either in higher refunds or smaller balances to pay.

Catholic Bishops Issue Abortion Guidelines

HARTFORD (AP) - A list of nine abortion guidelines setting forth the church's position on the issue for Catholic doctors and paramedical personnel has been issued under the signature of Connecticut's five Roman Catholic bishops.

Connecticut's existing abortion law allows the procedure only to save the life of the mother. The statute currently is being challenged before the U.S. Supreme Court.

The bishops stressed that notwithstanding recent U.S. Supreme Court rulings regarding the status of existing abortion laws, the church's position remains unchanged.

"No change in a law or in the interpretation of the law changes the immorality of an abortion," said the bishops. "Direct killing of the innocent, whether born or unborn, is a violation of the divine law of God, and no civil law, statute or ruling mitigates or changes God's law."

The penalty of excommunication traditionally imposed on ecclesiastical law on those guilty of procuring an abortion is still in effect, the guidelines state.

In addition, the bishops stated that the church's insistence that no Catholic medical or paramedical personnel should advise a person to seek an abortion or participate in any way in the performance of an abortion. The church leaders added, however, that caring for a patient before or after an abortion is not considered participation in the abortion act.

The bishops also noted that under emergency situations that arise after an abortion is performed, "any morally acceptable and necessary life-saving procedure is allowed."

Three of the guidelines deal with Catholic personnel employed in hospitals or institutions where abortions might be performed. The bishops said Catholics who have moral objections to abortion should be excused by hospital authorities from participating in abortion procedures provided they have stated their conscientious convictions.

The church leaders who signed the guidelines included Hartford Archbishop John F. Whealon, Bridgeport Bishop Walter W. Curtis, Norwich Bishop Vincent J. Hines, Hartford Auxiliary Bishop John F. Hackett and Hartford Auxiliary Bishop Joseph F. Donnelly.

Current Birthday Customs Stem From Ancient Times

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — In celebrating the February birthdays of George Washington and Abraham Lincoln, Americans are helping to keep alive what was once a custom reserved only for royalty.

No records were kept in ancient days of the birth dates of the common people, so that only knowledge of such events was the annual celebration of the birthdays of royal personages, according to Hallmark Cards researchers.

But today children of the poor and the rich and adults in all walks of life over the world enjoy familiar birthday times, light candles on birthday cakes, make secret wishes, give presents and send greeting cards.

One of the first birthdays ever recorded was that of Pharaoh, described in the Book of Genesis. The celebration included a great household feast to which all the servants and the family were invited. Prisoners also were released from jail on that day.

The Greeks were among the first to keep birth records for everyone, including women and children — for tax purposes and to record military service — but only important family heads celebrated their birthdays.

The crumbling of the Roman Empire led to a decline in the celebrating of birthdays and keeping of records, according to the Hallmark researchers. During the Dark Ages, few records were kept and most people had no idea of their birth date. Few even knew how they were.

The early Christian leaders associated the idea of a birthday celebration with the customs of the pagan Greeks and Romans, and thus discouraged any celebration of the natal day.

However, by the 12th century Christians were keeping birth records and baptizing their children with the name of a chosen patron saint — often the same saint who was honored on the date of the child's birth, the researchers said. The custom led to the celebration of the name's day rather than the birthday among early Christians.

The custom of recording birth dates spread quickly with the rise of western civilization. The common people adopted many of the ancient traditions, which are still followed today, for their celebrations of these personal holidays.

Deputy Honored By Emblem Club

District Deputy night was observed Wednesday by the Manchester Emblem Club at which time District Deputy Mrs. Robert Burke from East Hartford Emblem Club was honored.

Also attending were Mrs. Josephine Crossland, president of the state past president; Mrs. Myrtle Connolly, supreme assistant marshal; Mrs. Beatrice Broadrick, supreme district deputy; Mrs. Yvonne O'Connor, supreme press correspondent; Mrs. Cecelia Luzzi, supreme assistant chaplain; Mrs. Ruth Ventura, supreme treasurer; and Mrs. Doris Gripco, supreme press.

Members from clubs in Haven, East Hartford, Grotton, Putnam, Hamden, Middletown, Winsted, New London, Milford and Rockville also attended. Past presidents of the club served as hostesses. The following were committee chairmen: Mrs. Frank Toros and Mrs. Gertrude Hawthorne, Mrs. Samuel Vacanti and Mrs. Charles Ponticelli, decorations; Mrs. Alfreed Ritter, door prizes.

Committee members also assisting were Mrs. Joseph Reynolds, Mrs. John Ziemak, Mrs. Gertrude Hawthorne, Mrs. Harold Gaddoury, Mrs. John Callahan, Mrs. Kenneth Hodge, Mrs. Carroll Hawthorne, Mrs. Ponticelli, Mrs. Harold Griffin Jr., Mrs. Anthony Berube, Mrs. Raymond Johnson and Mrs. Jack Carson.

In Holland children make up a "Verlanglijst," listing all the items they would like as presents. But it would be considered impolite for a Japanese child to request a special gift even in a country throughout the world, the study showed.

Refreshments, games, decorations and gifts are basic to every party. But custom still dictates many aspects of the celebration.

The Russians have a birthday pie almost as often as a cake; Icelanders are treated to candied fruit at the celebration, and the Danes hang a flag out the window to indicate that someone in the family is celebrating a birthday that day.

The custom of recording birth dates spread quickly with the rise of western civilization. The common people adopted many of the ancient traditions, which are still followed today, for their celebrations of these personal holidays.

For example, birthday candles were once believed endowed with special magic for granting wishes — they started by the ancient Greeks, the study revealed. That's why even today children make a wish before blowing out their birthday candles.

Birthday cakes also had their start with the ancients. Records show that the Roman Emperor Hadrian sent his special messengers with cakes for his birthday.

MHS Students Given Career Information

It was estimated that 2,500 junior and senior high school level students availed themselves of the opportunity to talk with one or more of the representatives of 32 schools, businesses, industries, and other organizations during the two-hour morning period of yesterday's Manchester High School Career Day. It resumed for another hour after lunch. The second annual event was sponsored by the school's Cooperative Occupational Education Program staff. At the Pratt and Whitney Aircraft Division booth, Mrs. Sheryl G. Jackson, personnel representative, describes aspects of program training to a group.

Court Sidetracks Alaska Pipeline

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Alaska leaders have reacted with shock to a U.S. appeals court ruling which again has sidetracked at least temporarily construction of a pipeline to tap the oil riches of the Arctic Slope.

The 150-page opinion made public in Washington on Friday overturns a lower-court decision by ruling that an extensive federal land corridor for the proposed 789-mile oil pipeline violates provisions of the Mineral Leasing Act of 1920.

"This is the worst possible opinion that could have come," said an aide to Alaska Gov. William A. Egan. The 1920 law specifies that rights-of-way over public land must be limited to a width of 25 feet on either side of the pipeline.

Hence U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia declared, the 146-foot wide federal land corridor for the proposed 789-mile oil pipeline violates provisions of the Mineral Leasing Act of 1920.

Among those contesting construction were the Wilderness Society, Environmental Defense Fund Inc., and Friends of the Earth. Friday's ruling came on their appeal of an opinion issued by U.S. District Court Judge George Hart, who had lifted a temporary injunction blocking pipeline construction.

He had ruled that the Interior Department and Alyeska had abided by the National Environmental Policy Act in publishing a 3,000-page environmental impact statement.

Since then, environmentalists narrowed their legal attack to two key arguments: that the impact statement was inadequate and that the proposed permits would violate federal right-of-way limitations.

Kissinger In Hanoi For POW Releases

SAIGON (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger opened four days of postwar talks in Hanoi today, while U.S. and Vietnamese representatives in Saigon made final plans for the release of about 142 American and 3,000 Vietnamese prisoners of war Monday.

Kissinger landed in an Air Force jet shortly before noon at Hanoi's Giam Lam Airport, which was heavily damaged last December by U.S. bombers. He was the first ranking U.S. official to set foot in Hanoi in over a decade.

Leaders Huddle For Currency Crisis Solution

BONN, Germany (AP) — The world currency crisis and the value of the beleaguered U.S. dollar dominated discussions today among government leaders and central bankers.

The Japanese government said it was not opening its foreign exchange market for the regular half-day session. A spokesman said Japan feared a flood of dollars since Europe's money markets, the other places speculators can easily sell off their dollars, were closed for the weekend.

Secrecy surrounded the current round of discussions among officials dealing with the exchange rate. The heads of the world's largest central banks prepared for their monthly meeting in Basel, Switzerland. But there was no word what, if anything, they might do to halt the speculation.

Britain's treasury chief, Anthony Barber, declined comment when he returned to London from Paris after meeting with his French and West German counterparts.

There also were no details released on Friday's telephone conversations between Chancellor Willy Brandt of West Germany and President Nixon and the British and French heads of government.

There were indications Nixon was getting a steady flow of reports about the dollar's troubles, but a spokesman turned aside all questions on the dollar crisis.

Friday's speculation was particularly heavy, apparently because of fears of drastic currency devaluations.

There also were no change in values, then these speculators have not lost or won anything. But they know that sooner or later the currencies will be revalued.

The Germans and Japanese in particular are fighting staunchly against an upward revaluation of their money, because it would make their exports more expensive abroad.

The pressure on the present exchange rates comes from the United States' long-term balance of payments deficit coupled with roughly 5 per cent inflation in most European countries.

Factors push more dollars overseas than are needed; and the urge to sell off dollars pushes their price down.

Elsewhere across the Southeast, heavy rains soaked southeast Georgia and the Florida Peninsula and a band of freezing rain and sleet extended from northern Florida to the South Carolina coast.

Gardening

with FRANK ATWOOD

Tommie Lou is a white African violet with a suggestion of lavender in its double blossoms. The dark green leaves have a white edge. Albert Buell calls it the most popular African violet variety today. (Photo by Atwood)

Just provide for their needs and African violets are the easiest flowers in the world to take care of." Diantha Buell said. Mrs. Buell and her husband, Albert H. Buell, with a staff of 15 workers, take care of 140,000 African violet plants, and she should know.

"African violets like the same temperature as people," said Mrs. Buell. "They should be watered well when they are dry and not watered again until they are dry again. The biggest mistake people make is over-watering."

"African violets should have strong light but no midday sun. When violet plants fail to blossom, it is usually because they have not had enough light. These quick notes on the care of African violets were made during a walk through Buell's Greenhouses in Eastford, 30 miles from Manchester. One drives to Phoenixville on Rt. 44 (the Middle Turnpike) and then north a few miles on Rt. 198.

Visitors come from many states and some foreign countries because the Buells have established an international reputation. The walk includes some climbing up and down. The greenhouses cluster on a steep hillside, chosen by Albert Buell only as the site of the home he built when he was earning his living as a tool grinder and setup man in a woodworking shop, before World War II.

Flowers were a hobby, beginning on a windowsill, and with gloxinias, not African violets. Albert had grown up with flowers. His mother, a farmer's wife, had great success with flowers, indoors and out, and great affection for them. Albert experimented with gloxinias and he had good luck.

Winter Storm Hits Southeastern Area

By The Associated Press A devastating winter storm walloped the Southeast today, dumping heavy snow from Florida to the Carolinas. The rest of the nation enjoyed generally fair and cold weather.

Up to 9 inches of snow paralyzed Columbus, Ga., while 6 inches blanketed the ground at Wilmington, N.C. Mobile, Ala., reported 3 inches of snow while 2 inches covered Pensacola, Fla.

Heavy-snow warnings were in effect for portions of Georgia and the Carolinas and a band of freezing rain and sleet extended from northern Florida to the South Carolina coast.

Travelers advisories were sounded for the California mountain region as heavy snow and strong gusty winds were predicted. Temperatures before dawn ranged from -10 at Burlington, N.C., through much of central Florida and several homes were reported damaged. There were no reports of injuries.

Traffic in much of downtown New Orleans was non-existent as a mixture of rain, sleet and snow sent shivers through residents of the usually warm and sunny Southern city.

Elsewhere around the nation, fair weather was the rule. Scattered snow fell across the Great Lakes region and rain and snow covered the central Pacific Coast.

Travelers advisories were sounded for the California mountain region as heavy snow and strong gusty winds were predicted. Temperatures before dawn ranged from -10 at Burlington, N.C., through much of central Florida and several homes were reported damaged.

Manchester Merchants March On Capitol

General George's troops have gone good this year! When they started this thing many years ago, they crossed the Connecticut River from west to east side. Now they have gone back to the western banks and on into the city, to proclaim in the halls of the State Capitol that next weekend is Manchester's annual sales promotion for Washington's Birthday. They choose to call it Birthington's Washday in 1973. Here they begin their assault on the Capitol, with Bernie Apter of Regal Men's Shop hiking the point.
