

Cease-Fire Termed Unsatisfactory

SAIGON (AP) — The chairman of the international peacekeeping group for Vietnam declared today the cease-fire is unsatisfactory. He blamed the warring Vietnamese sides for failing to abide by the Paris agreement.

In spite of this, he said, international observer teams will fulfill their obligation to try to stop the shooting that has persisted through three weeks of supposed peace.

Canadian Ambassador Michal Gauvin, chairman of the International Commission of Control and Supervision, said the peacekeeping organization will begin deploying its teams to subregional sites across Vietnam on Wednesday and will complete the move by the Feb. 26 deadline stipulated in the peace agreement signed Jan. 27.

Gauvin said a team from the international commission will go into the field Tuesday to investigate the downing of a U.S. helicopter Friday at An Loc, 60 miles north of Saigon. Five American crewmen were wounded, one critically.

The United States blamed the Viet Cong and asked the commission for a full investigation. The unarmed CH47 helicopter was on a peacekeeping mission when it was shot down, the U.S. Command said.

The helicopter probe will be the commission's first field investigation except for an unsuccessful attempt to observe fighting in Quang Tri Province below the demilitarized zone.

The four-party Joint Military Commission, a support group for the international body Gauvin heads, also decided to send a team of investigators to the northern coast to check on reports of heavy fighting there. This will be the joint commission's first field investigation.

Gauvin said in a statement released at a news conference that "the failure of the parties to the agreement to effect a cease-fire" as well as the delay of the four-party Joint Military Commission in becoming fully operative "has presented the ICSS with serious problems in meeting its obligations."

Transit District Officials To Review Bus Pact Today

HARTFORD (AP) — The Greater Hartford Transit District meets today to hear a tentative agreement worked out between GHTD and state officials to restore bus service to the Hartford area.

The key to the agreement is the penny-a-gallon gasoline tax signed into law Friday by Gov. Thomas J. Meskill, said state Rep. George Ritter, D-Hartford, a member of the GHTD.

"The tax certainly would be one way the transit district would have to meet any deficits," Ritter said, "but during the first period of time the state would pick up the entire deficit."

The tax can be levied by transit districts on member towns beginning July 1 to provide mass transit funds. But Ritter said the cutoff of state aid was "not limited to July, and probably would go way beyond July 1."

Ritter said he "was advised" that the state had arrived at a similar understanding with The Connecticut Co. and that the company and the Amalgamated Transit Union had reached an agreement.

ConnCo bus service in Hartford, New Haven and Stamford stopped Nov. 25 when the union went on strike.

An agreement in Hartford would be the first breakthrough since the strike. New Haven Mayor Bartholomew Guida has steadfastly refused to form a transit district, maintaining the problem was statewide.

Ritter said he doubted that ratification by the GHTD of the agreement would prompt any of the nine member towns to pull out of the GHTD. Several local officials, including Hartford Mayor George Athanson, have been critical of the local gasoline tax.

President Huddles With Labor Council

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — President Nixon was greeted by a handshake from AFL-CIO President George Meany today as he arrived at a hotel to discuss wage controls, rising prices and foreign trade with the nation's most powerful group of labor leaders.

Nixon traveled the few miles from his Key Biscayne home to the AFL-CIO's headquarters on Miami Beach by helicopter. Some 50 people, including Meany, were waiting when Nixon arrived at the hotel ramp. With the President, was his newly appointed Secretary of Labor Peter J. Brennan, a former New York trades union president.

"Obviously, they will be talking about trade and the recent international monetary steps the President has taken," said White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler after Nixon entered a closed meeting with Meany and Brennan.

"Also, they will be talking about the economy in general," Ziegler told newsmen.

Nixon, Brennan and Meany spent a few moments alone in the conference room before the full meeting with the 35 AFL-CIO executive council members began.

Ziegler said earlier the closed meeting was expected to be a full and free discussion.

Said Meany: "He wanted to come. We'll play it by ear."

The labor council is a politically mixed group divided in the recent presidential election into three groups: Nixon supporters, neutrals and backers of Democratic nominee George McGovern.

Old Photos Still Needed

Although the response from many people has been very good to date, The Herald can still use many more pictures for its special Sesquicentennial pictorial edition. Their contents, pictures and text, will deal with sports, government and politics, churches, fraternities, education, business and economy, and individuals in the past, with a peek into the future.

Photographs urgently invited are those of people, individually or in groups, who were involved in any of these activities. Even old photographs do not seem to fit into these classifications, there is always the chance that their human interest will make them usable.

So The Herald management urges its readers to get out their albums and rummage through attics, trunks, desks, and other areas that may have been long neglected. Please include your name and address. Prints will be made and the originals returned.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The potential pollution of rural America is the subject today as Congress passes up any holiday ceasefire in its battle with the Nixon administration over impoundment of funds.

The House Agriculture Committee, meeting in an unusual holiday session, is considering ways to reinstitute a Farmers Home Administration program that grants funds to rural communities for water and sewer systems.

Committee Chairman W.R. Poage, D-Tex., "has the bit in his teeth and he's running with it," an aide to another congressman said Sunday.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz announced on Dec. 27 that there would be no more spending this fiscal year on four specific programs for which Congress had already approved money.

With Poage providing the leadership, the House has moved to reinstitute the Rural Environmental Assistance Program and FHA disaster relief. Those two, plus the FHA sewer development and Rural Electrification programs, are all affected by the Dec. 27 Nixon administration move.

Blast Cause Pegged
NEW YORK (AP) — Fire Chief John T. O'Hagan says the explosion that killed 40 men in a Staten Island gas storage tank Feb. 10 was caused by gas trapped in polyurethane insulation and a spark of undetermined origin.

O'Hagan said Sunday he doubted whether that variety of insulation would ever be permitted again in similar tanks in the city. A less flammable type originally approved was not used because it was then unavailable, he said in a television interview.

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command announced today the withdrawal of 1,564 more American troops from Vietnam, reducing the total U.S. force to 14,180 men, the lowest in a decade.

A total of 9,320 American servicemen from Vietnam have now been reassigned to other bases in Southeast Asia or elsewhere in the world or sent back to the United States since the cease-fire Jan. 23.

Dollar Steady
LONDON (AP) — The devalued U.S. dollar held steady in quiet trading on world money markets today.

The U.S. currency was stronger in London and Tokyo but weaker in Frankfurt and Zurich, changes were small.

In London, the pound was being traded at $2.42895, slightly down from $2.4325 late Friday.

Officials Seek Slayer Of Four

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (AP) — Authorities say they have not decided whether a former honor student charged in six slayings here since January may have been involved in the shooting deaths of four young men.

The bodies of the four men, described as in their late teens or early 20s, were found Saturday at a forest campsite. Each had been shot in the head with a small-caliber weapon, the sheriff's office said.

Discovery of the bodies brings to 13 the number of murder victims found in the Santa Cruz area in the past six weeks.

Herbert Mullin, 25, of nearby Felton has been charged in six of the deaths.

However, Santa Cruz County Sheriff Douglas James said on Sunday that there was "nothing yet to link Mullin" to the other killings and there were no suspects "at this time."

One of the four youths has been identified as Brian Scott Card, 19. Officers were trying to identify fingerprints of the others. Autopsies were scheduled today to determine causes of death.

The four bodies were discovered by Card's brother, Jeffrey, inside a makeshift cabin of poles and clear plastic in a heavily wooded area of Henry Cowell Redwood State Park about five miles north of here near Felton. Undersheriff Lee Davis said there was no sign of struggle.

The time of the killings was not determined, but Card was last seen alive by his brother about a week ago, Davis said. Davis said it was not known whether Mullin knew the four men, and he declined to say whether drugs were found at the campsite.

Henry Kissinger, President Richard Nixon's special assistant, conferred today in Tokyo with Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka, right, on Japan's role in the reconstruction of Vietnam and Japanese trade surpluses with the United States. ## Kissinger Briefs Japanese Leaders

TOKYO (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger briefed Japan's leaders today on his visits to Hanoi and Peking and heard them express hope the reconstruction of Vietnam can begin soon.

Arriving from the Chinese mainland, where on Saturday he had an unexpected two-hour meeting with Chairman Mao Tse-tung, President Nixon's national security adviser went directly into a one-hour and 40-minute conference with Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka and Foreign Minister Masayoshi Ohira.

Afterward, Ohira told newsmen little more than that the talks revolved around a wide spectrum of subjects, including Vietnam reconstruction, the international monetary situation and China's relations with the United States and Japan.

Kissinger confided to the Japanese the gist of his talks with Mao, but Ohira said he had been asked not to disclose it. Nixon's director of communications, Herbert Klein, indicated an announcement will be made on Kissinger's return to the United States.

Ohira emphasized that it was Nixon's decision — as a mark of the importance of Japanese-American relations — that Kissinger stop over here en route home.

Soviet Plane Crashes

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — A Soviet airliner, trailing smoke and flames, crashed on landing at Prague airport today and unofficial reports placed the death toll at "about 50."

Airport sources said the Aeroflot TU154, a three-jet craft on a regularly scheduled flight from Moscow, carried 84 persons and 15-30 of them survived.

The entire crew, except for one stewardess, were among the survivors, sources said. The rear portion of the plane containing the turbofan engines was the most severely damaged, they added. The captain, blood streaming down his face, was seen being led to an ambulance.

Without giving details, the official Czechoslovak news agency CTK confirmed the plane crashed "during a landing maneuver" and "some of the crew and passengers survived." The agency qualified the crash as "serious."

An investigation commission headed by Transport Minister Stefan Sutka was at the scene, the agency said.

It could not be determined immediately whether any Americans were aboard.

The crash was the second air disaster to strike Soviet aviation in the last four months. Last Oct. 13, 176 persons died when a Soviet airliner crashed near Moscow in the worst recorded civil air disaster to date.

Happy Birthday George, But...

By SOL R. COHEN

If George Washington were alive today, he might well receive the following letter, sent to his Mt. Vernon, Va. home:

"Dear Mr. Washington: It is with deep regret that we must inform you that you must return all Social Security payments paid you since your retirement from active employment. Please call our Washington, D.C. office for an appointment, so that we may make an audit of your account."

"In a routine check of your application for Social Security payments, we note you listed your birthdate as Feb. 22, 1732. We note also that the federal and state governments do not agree with you. They designate Feb. 19 as your birthdate. What makes the situation even more puzzling is that they listed it as Feb. 15 in 1971 and Feb. 21 in 1972."

"We hate to use the word but, frankly Mr. Washington, in listing your birthdate other than what federal and state laws declare it to be, you have, in effect, perpetrated a fraud."

"That is why we must forfeit all benefits paid you. We regret that, because of the statute of limitations, we cannot prosecute you for falsifying the information on your Social Security application."

"We regret also that, until millions of new textbooks are printed, this country's school children will continue to be deceived into believing you really were born on Feb. 22."

Manchester Action Group Meets Tuesday

The Mayor's Downtown Action Committee will confer with downtown merchants and the interested general public Tuesday evening.

The session will be at 8 in the Hearing Room of the Municipal Building.

However, the meeting isn't a hearing. The Downtown Committee hopes to determine the feeling of merchants and residents toward the employment of a consultant in future planning of downtown Manchester.

It has been projected that some $10,000 will need to be forthcoming from the business district in order to proceed with planning. Of this amount, it has been anticipated that perhaps $5,000 could be realized from banking and utility firms and another $5,000 from individual merchants.

"THE WAY I HEARD IT"
By John Gruber

Next Sunday will be the 100th anniversary of the birth of Enrico Caruso. The event probably was not marked with any great pomp or rejoicing, since he was the 18th child in the family of a Neapolitan machinist. The 17 who preceded him all died in infancy but Enrico survived to become an operatic tenor whose name is now a legend.

He didn't sing after 1920 and died in 1921 so there are relatively few people around today who actually heard him in a performance. I'm one of them, having heard him twice. The first time he sang in "Pearl Fishers," and I was so young that it made little or no impression on me.

I remember sitting in the first balcony at the Brooklyn Academy of Music, and looking down on the cast through opera glasses. He wore a turban, baggy pants, and sandals, but it was the sandals that intrigued me at ten years of age. They revealed that the great Caruso was plagued with bunions!

He sang the role in Italian, as did the rest of the cast, although it is a French opera by Bizet. In the cast with him were "Frieda Hempel and Giuseppe de Luca, the latter wearing a Hitleresque mustache which somehow didn't seem to go with his character as chief of the Ceylonese village.

I have absolutely no recollection how the music went at that performance. Of course I have heard the opera since, and I actually know it from memory now, but that performance remains a blank in my memory from a musical standpoint. No, it was not my first opera.

The other time I heard him was in "Martha" which he also sang in Italian. This, of course, is a German opera by von Flotow. Caruso did occasionally sing in French but never in German. He even sang "Lohengrin" in Italian, the four times he essayed the role in Buenos Aires.

DeLuca was also in this production of "Martha" but minus the mustache. Frieda Hempel was likewise in the cast, and Margarete Ober-Hempel and Ober were both German-entertainer types. A German one, but no matter, we got it in Italian. At the time I didn't know any better, so I accepted it as an Italian opera; and my father, who did know better, failed to enlighten me.

By this time I was three years older and I took some notice of what was going on. Caruso couldn't act very well. Moreover, he was pretty fat by this time and seemed anything but a romantic lover. I had seen him in a motion picture (he made two, but only one was released) and I knew a little more what to expect.

It was immediately apparent that "live" he sounded much better than he did on the phonograph records of the day; he was not the screamer that these records lead you to believe. He had a very large voice but he never had to strain with it, at least in "Martha."

If he wasn't very romantic looking, neither was Frieda Hempel. Acting throughout was pretty stilted, but so was all acting in that day; just go and look at a silent movie from that period.

For years he sang at the Met for $2,500 a performance and when income tax came in he went to $3,000, which gave him about the same take-home pay. He used to sing about three nights a week, so he had quite an income. Outside of the Met, he received much larger fees, once asking and receiving $15,000 to my knowledge.

The movie he made "My Cousin," was a flop, so that another one he made was never released. I don't know why it flopped; it was pretty good as I recall it. Caruso played a double role in it. In one role he was himself, an opera star. In the other he was his cousin, a sculptor who sang very badly and so had great trouble convincing his friends and neighbors that he was a cousin to the famous tenor.

As the sculptor, he was made up almost identically to the way he played Rodolfo in "La Boheme," then a relatively new opera. Of course it was a silent film and this may have had much to do with its non-success; Caruso was famous for his voice, not his acting.

There was necessarily some trick photography in the film, since he was playing both parts, and at one point actually had to shake hands with himself. I still wonder how they managed that one. Both characters were in profile and in a medium shot. It wasn't as though one had his

Opening lead - Seven of Diamonds
South wasn't thinking of frying pans when she played today's hand. These modern women! So, when East took the first two diamond tricks and then led another diamond, South ruffed with the ace of hearts.

South knew that West was out of diamonds, and the idea of the high ruff was to prevent West from ruffing. You can't blame South for thinking that. She had already lost three tricks and the contract depended on managing the clubs without loss. There was no way to do this as the cards lay, so South was down one.

Now let's go back to the third trick, when East led the nine of diamonds. If South had stayed in the frying pan, she would have discarded a club, allowing West to ruff. Annoying, but not fatal, the contract would then be unbeatible.

No matter what West returned, South could draw trumps and discard another club on dummy's ten of diamonds. Declarer could then claim the rest of the tricks.

The Board of Education has indicated support and participation in the Intermediate Science Curriculum Study (ISCS) program as presented by Principal Clarence Edmondson of Porter School.

The program is proposed by Dr. Ralph Yale Jr., professor of science education at Eastern Connecticut State College (ECS).

Two junior high science teachers at Porter School will attend the summer institute sponsored by ECS. The teachers will also attend evening seminars this spring. There is a follow-through next year, Edmondson said.

The financial obligation on the part of the board is to supply materials for the program. This will help the science program in the junior high, he added.

The program differs from other junior high school programs because it is aimed at general education giving the student a sequential picture of the structure and process of science. It is laboratory centered and individualized to take care of the broad range of student ability and learning pace, so the student travels through the activities at his own speed.

The program began at the Florida State University in the early 1960's. Since that time, well over 300 schools in the scientists, junior high science teachers and others have contributed to the effort, said Edmondson.

The program began with over 5,000 students and 50 teachers in the seventh grade program. In

NEW YORK (AP) John Weidlich does the morning news each weekday at KPLR-TV in St. Louis, Mo. He faces the camera, but he can't see it. Nor can he see the people in the studio.

He's been totally blind since birth.

"But he's been doing a trio of daily three-minute reports since last September at the regular newscaster on the 'Red Farrell Morning Airfall,' a 2 1/2 hour talk and variety show."

And he's been working as a news writer and part-time assignment editor and reporter at the station for more than a year.

Now, joining a television news department in a major market isn't easy. You've got to have experience because most stations simply don't have the time to teach you the business.

Weidlich, 26, had a double handicap when he started at KPLR-TV. One was his blindness. The second was that he had no experience in television news.

"I consider myself lucky that our news director and general manager were willing to give me a try and see if it would work - which a lot of other people wouldn't have done," he said.

The station's general manager is James Herd; the news director is Bill Addison, a friend of the Weidlich family.

Washington's Legacy

George Washington was born Feb. 11 under the old style calendar and for years his birthday had been observed Feb. 22 under the new style calendar but in recent years, by Act of Congress, it is now marked on the third Monday in February, which is today, Feb. 19.

Unlike Veterans Day, the traditional Feb. 22 observance has no large following to bring pressure to restore the anniversary of the Father of Our Country's birth to its traditional date.

And were the gentleman from Virginia alive today, we doubt he could care less. For one of Washington's great attributes was a certain modesty which is reflected in his refusal to serve more than two terms as president and his reluctance to play politics.

His achievements are many and drilled into most of us from childhood. His background presents a cultured contrast to that of Abe Lincoln whom we also remember in February.

The character of Washington is one of fundamental honesty in government, dedicated and willing service to the people, and devotion. While the cherry tree story may be myth, the place in American history of this man is secure since it is the pillar against which presidents often are measured.

Today in History

Today is Monday, Feb. 19th, the 50th day of 1973. There are 315 days left in the year. Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1878, Thomas A. Edison was granted a patent for the phonograph. In 1473, the man credited with founding modern astronomy, Copernicus, was born in Torun, Poland. In 1803, Ohio was admitted to the union.

Protests Tax To the editor: I hope that every man and woman who owns a car takes the time to note the names of the legislators that voted for the gas tax regardless of where they live, either in or out of a transportation district. Giving the district the right to levy taxes on gas is just the first step to putting a tax on something else. If we let the legislators open the tax door even this much, there is no telling how far it will go or where they will stop. Wake up fellow citizens and let our elected officials know that we are the ones that put them where they are and that we can send them back home again.

Deepest Thanks To Chief Rivosa, Deputy Chiefs Stratton, Griffin, McKay, Cpt. McCooe and to all the men of the department, my deepest thanks and gratitude. I am very proud to be a member of the Town of Manchester Fire Department, to know and work with such a high caliber of men, and to be a member of this community.

Capital Fare Andrew Tully Trenchant Fact of Life WASHINGTON — Senate Majority Whip Robert Byrd's public pronouncements seldom recall a Daniel Webster, but in Congress' battle with President Nixon over the budget the West Virginian has uttered a trenchant fact of life.

Nixon has called Congress "irresponsible" in its spending policies and has declared he'll make whatever cuts are necessary—including the continued impoundment of funds—to keep the budget within what he deems reasonable bounds. This has thrown Capitol Hill into a mass tizzy, and there has been much talk of a "constitutional crisis."

Byrd, a political man, took a look and warned his colleagues that a "sizeable majority" of the public "approves and supports what the President is doing, whatever it is constitutionally."

Incidentally, Congress' reactions to Nixon's dictatorial position on Federal expenditures suggest this has never occurred to our national legislators. Democrats especially have announced that Nixon won't get away with it, and there has been talk that "the people" won't let the President pull

The Innocent Bystander

Art Hoppe Bureaucrat Under Fire Nothing in years has shaken up Washington bureaucrats like the firing of Mr. A. Ernest Fitzgerald, the Air Force efficiency expert.

Mr. Fitzgerald, as you know, was given the sack after he told Congress about $2 billion in excess costs for the C-5A transport plane. The Air Force had no choice but to make an example of him.

Not that he was fired for blowing the whistle on cost overruns. Not for a minute. He was fired, Air Force Brig. Gen. Joseph J. Cappucci subsequently testified, because of anonymous accusations in his file.

The gravest charges in his file which were finally made public at a U.S. Civil Service Commission hearing, were that he was "a pinch penny, who worked late at the office" and "drove an old Rambler."

You can imagine the effect Mr. Fitzgerald's shocking example has had on his colleagues. One of the first to be called on the carpet was Frederick J. Freckle, the Pentagon's Deputy Assistant Analyst for Cost Overruns and Congressional Junkies. Freckle, said his immediate superior, Gen. Buford (Bet a Billion) Baxby, "I have your fitness report and good conduct certificate here. But I'm afraid there've been some

South Windsor Scouts Win Honors In Klondike Derby

Four patrols of Boy Scout Troop 389 from South Windsor competed with 86 other patrols in the Algonquin District in the district's Klondike Derby recently and placed third, fourth, fifth and seventh.

The judging was at the J.B. Williams Park in Glastonbury and all sleds in the derby were made by the boys themselves. The sleds were made of natural wood, held together with lashing. No nails or screws could be used. The sleds had to be six feet long and strong enough to carry equipment.

Each patrol entry sled had to be pulled through the park with the scouts stopping at designated stations to perform required tasks such as compass and map readings, first aid, fire building, knot tying, personal fitness demonstrations and racing sleds.

Seventh place was claimed by Wolf Patrol with leaders Tom Hebert and Mark Duclos. Billy Davis, Chris Hornish, Greg Ferris and Greg Sayers were the crew.

This was the first time the troop entered the Klondike Derby.

State Fires Took 58 Lives In 1972

HARTFORD (AP). — Connecticut recorded 58 deaths in fires during 1972, seven fewer than in 1971, the State Police Department reported Friday.

Fires in the state also injured another 125 persons, the report stated.

A member of the department's Public Safety Division, commenting on the report, complained that some fire marshals have been doing a poor job of making the required five reports to the state.

"Some towns haven't reported a fire in nine years," said Cpl. Donald Ferris.

Although the reporting situation has been improving, he added, the lack of full reports makes it difficult to detect trends in the annual figures.

For example, reports show that about $12 million in fire damage occurred in 1971 but nearly $15 million resulted last year. The figures would indicate a 26 per cent increase in fire loss, but the increase actually is the result of more thorough reporting, Ferris said.

Some fire marshals on the other end of the scale appear to be doing better jobs than others. Fairfield reported 353 fires, more than any of the state's largest cities. Fairfield was followed by Trumbull, with 324 fires, Norwalk 288 fires, Waterbury 285 fires, Hartford 273 fires, New Haven 242 fires and Bridgeport 168 fires.

Vernon School Board Meets Tonight
Monitoring of the schools in an effort to curtail vandalism, will be discussed by the Vernon Board of Education at its meeting to be held at 7:30 tonight in the Sykes School cafeteria.
Vandalism at Schools has increased over the past few months and Dr. Raymond Ramsdell, superintendent of schools, was asked by the board to come in with a report as to the cost of added protective equipment for the schools. The type of vandalism experienced recently has been more serious than the usual broken windows.
Board member Dr. Daniel Woolwich will present a new proposal concerning a student representative on the Board of Education. In January, a motion to have a student advisor representative on the board was considered but not acted upon as the board requested further information.
When originally making the proposal, Dr. Woolwich said it was an effort to bridge the credibility gap between board and students; to acquaint students with the workings of the school system, and to give the board increased sensitivity to student needs.
The proposal would not allow the student representative to cast any official vote on matters of the board nor allow the student to speak as an official representative of the board.
Other topics to be discussed at tonight's meeting will include a proposal for a training program for teachers to be presented by Albert Keating, assistant superintendent of schools; a report on activities of the personnel policies committee by John Kendall; a report on a Sykes School lease, Dr. Ramsdell; a suggested policy concerning school sessions on days of national mourning, by Dr. Ramsdell; a report on the transportation committee by Atty. Robert Debaue.
Also: A report on the progress of the high school evaluation by high school principal Martin Fagan; a request for the Government and Politics Study Club of the Vernon Center Middle School and a recommendation of the ratification of two teacher contracts.
