Fire Damages Cellar Beams

A fire did minor damage to support beams, the underside of a kitchen floor and to items stored in the area when a cellar fire broke out in a two-family dwelling at 21-23 Glenwood St. Sunday.

When firemen arrived at the scene, both sides of the house were filled with smoke and firemen used exhaust fans to exit the fumes. Firemen fought the fire in the basement of the two-story frame structure for nearly 1½ hours with a hose linked to a nearby hydrant before the fire was reported to be under control.

ICC Proposes

"The maintenance of high-quality rail service to the Northeast is essential to the economic health of the region," the report said.

Many of the railroads, ICC said, including Penn Central, the region's largest, have been forced into reorganization under federal bankruptcy laws.

The commission said that government takeover of the railroads or combining the many lines into a single system, thus eliminating competition, would not be in the public interest.

Instead, it suggested using a "three-step project-approval and contracting procedure similar to that of the Federal-Aid Highway Program, with the ICC would be an integral part of the program which would be carried out by railroad employees, subject to inspection and approval of the commission.

The result, according to the report, would be a "modernized and improved system of railroad main lines and related yard and terminal facilities" to be updated according to the needs of the region.

Registration for the Pony League will be held at the same time.

Under a complex legal arrangement, the ICC said, bankrupt roads would lease their properties to the government for an amount equal to their losses and continue to operate them under government supervision.

The government would recover its investment if the railroad again became profitable.

"It is the hope and conviction of the commission," the report said, "that profitable, privately owned rail services could be made possible in the Northeast, provided that the system is rationalized and the present crisis can be overcome."

The result, according to the report, would be a "modernized and improved system of railroad main lines and related yard and terminal facilities" to be updated according to the needs of the region.

Driving Statistics

Each day, almost, The Manchester Evening Herald prints stories about automobile accidents, personal injuries, and on some occasions deaths caused by auto mishaps.

With more cars on the road, and in some instances more traffic on roads not built to handle the volume, this is more or less expected as a "cost" of modern life.

It is difficult to offer any hope for improvement despite the increased emphasis in recent years on safer roads, safer cars, stricter licensing of drivers, stiffer penalties for traffic law violations, etc.

And locally, the situation may or may not be improving.

However, nationally, it has been reported the highway death rate in 1972 was the lowest in U.S. history. This is based on the Highway Users Federation formula of a death rate of 4.5 per 100 million miles of motor travel. For comparison, this rate was 4.7 in 1971 and 15.1 in 1936.

The bad news is despite the fact that on a per million mile basis the death rate is down; in 1972, 65,300 persons died on the highways of this nation compared to 54,000 in 1971. Add to that the two million persons who were disabled by injuries and the $17.3 billion in estimated costs of highway accidents and you can see there is no cause for relaxation.

Driving is a full-time job with emphasis on the defense. The Federation has some other figures to bear this out. There are 96.3 million passenger cars, 21.2 million trucks and buses, and 3.7 million motorcycles and scooters registered in the United States. They are using 3.7 million miles of road (an increase of only 18 per cent since 1921) to travel 1.15 trillion miles.

It is obvious that more and more are driving on the streets and roads in Manchester as well as the rest of the nation. These statistics offer little hope of relief and it really boils down to just one statistic, you as a driver, and how you intend to remain one that doesn't contribute to accident statistics.

The Tax On Bread

In 1962, Congress imposed a hidden tax on bread amounting to about two cents on a one pound loaf. It was done in the form of an excise tax on conversion of wheat into flour, in other words, a tax on milling grain.

Commonly known as the "bread tax," the excise levy was passed on, in turn, by the miller to the baker to the grocery and finally to the consumer.

The "bread tax" was passed during the Democratic administration of President Kennedy and a Democratic controlled Congress under the Agricultural Adjustment Act to pay a majority of the cost of farm subsidy payments which President Nixon would like to phase out.

Some Democrats, too, have reconsidered. Rep. Ella T. Grasso of Connecticut has introduced a bill to repeal this "unnecessary tax" in order to provide "some consumer price relief for these important food items."

Mrs. Grasso maintains that the current high cost of eating makes it essential to give the consumer "every assistance available to lower the market basket price of food." While the 16 per cent of net disposable income spent on food in the United States is the lowest of any country, continuing price advances have made food costs a major concern of the breadwinner, the housewife and the government.

The Cost of Living Council and the Department of Agriculture view record high crop prices in many countries as well as the U.S. as being caused by demand outstripping supply. If this view is correct, then increasing supplies as new and larger crops come to market will cause prices to turn downward.

However, an official of a leading British food company says "the era of cheap food is over," a view shared by many.

Russia's huge purchases of grain and China's first grain deal with us in a generation suggest a potential demand of unprecedented size. Their needs are likely to continue even if they are successful in their agricultural programs and fortunate in their weather.

President Nixon believes supplies will increase when farmers are paid to produce instead of being paid not to.

Congress should recognize that if the subsidies are ended, there won't be any need for a tax on bread to help pay them.

Whether or not Congress sees fit to act on the subsidies, it should not hesitate to repeal the bread tax.

The Farmer's Plight

To the editor:
Among most people today there is a consensus of opinion on food prices, too high. I do not disagree, but would like to add that everything is too high—clothing, shoes, cars, gasoline, appliances, wages, etc. Of course, because we all have to eat, food prices are the target of most people's wrath.

Since I am associated directly with the small minority of people (4 per cent of the population) which produces this nation's food supply, I would like to give some reasons for the high cost of eating.

First, because of adverse weather conditions throughout our country and abroad, feed prices have been significantly higher. Here in the northeast, wet weather made it impossible to plant or harvest some of the crops.

In the four month period from September to January, dairy feed prices have jumped from $6 a ton to $8.5 a ton (an increase of 45 per cent). Similar increases have been felt by beef and poultry producers.

Second, there is a shortage of beef. Producers hesitate to increase herds when record high production costs make it a risky business. Even though beef import quotas have been removed by the government, countries such as New Zealand and Australia which normally export beef to the U.S.A. cannot do so because of insufficient supplies. Therefore, the shortage continues and the price remains high.

The majority of Americans fail to realize that farmers are expected to get less net income in 1973 than they did in 1972, in spite of higher prices for their products. A farmer's costs for labor, machinery, land rental, livestock replacements, and other essential items have all increased much more rapidly than the income he gets for his products.

The average net income per farm in the United States in 1972, according to the latest USDA figures, was $1,297.

It is strange that many people feel that the farmer must live at a low income level so the rest of the population can get food at the lowest possible cost. In this country, people spend a smaller percentage of their income on food than in any other country in the world.

Many may also feel that because farmers have land they are rich. This is true in some cases but what does he have if he sells out? Money, yes, but his way of life is gone and the state is the poorer for it. The more farmers forced out of business, the higher the food prices, and the less open land we have for the ecological balance.

Inside Report

Nixon's Anti-Terror Doctrine

WASHINGTON — Frustration within the Nixon administration in trying to stamp out global terrorism against U.S. diplomats was deepened when Jordan's King Hussein commuted the sentence of 17 Palestinian terrorists.

Hussein is the intrepid leader of Arab moderation who conducted a bloody war to destroy the Palestinian guerrilla movement in his country. If he now refuses to carry out the death sentence, other Arab leaders will do more.

Thus, the hope within the White House to put a crimp in the dangerous escalation of international terrorism by merciless example once again has failed. That example would have been sharply made if Hussein had insisted on the no-mercy policy being quietly preached by the Nixon administration to its Arab friends.

Among those rescued from the sentence of death in Jordan was a top leader of Al Fatah, the Palestinian nationalist movement, named Abu-Daoud — a principal factor in the Black September murder of two U.S. diplomats and a Belgian in the Saudi Arabian embassy at Khartoum March 2.

The Khartoum terrorists demanded that Daoud be released from jail in Amman, Jordan.

Worried American diplomats, to the contrary, were privately hoping that Hussein would respond to the Khartoum terrorists by threatening to execute Daoud and his co-conspirators immediately if any of the diplomats held hostage in Khartoum were harmed.

Those who much later in the day have come to share their view of the war, and are in no position to weigh the question of forgiveness for them. Instead it is the government that needs to be forgiven for carrying on an unjust war for so long.

Amnesty is derived from the Latin word amnestia and where used correctly means "forgetfulness." Now is the time to welcome home all the Vietnam Veterans, the POWs, those who fought and those who chose not to, for moral reasons.

Now is the time to forget our opposing views on the war and to begin life anew. This can't be accomplished by legislative fiat but must come from the people. It must come from everyone's heart. Now we must welcome back to the fold not only those who were imprisoned by bars and four walls but also those who were imprisoned by their own consciences, unable to do anything else but desert the war.

We need to forget, not forgive.

Bolton Candidates Oppose Cruiser Purchase

Virginia Butterfield and Leon Rivers, candidates for first selectman and selectman, respectively, have voiced their opposition to the purchase of a police cruiser. An item on the agenda for tonight's town meeting.

Donna Hollard, Correspondent

Such an important matter as police protection, they say, should be studied and public hearings held before the town is asked to appropriate any money for it, let alone $6,000 for the purchase of a cruiser.

Patrolman Credited With Rescuing Man

Patrolman James McCooe of the Manchester Police Department has been credited with rescuing a 65-year-old man from smoke filled kitchen at 108 Spruce St. Monday afternoon.

Firemen say that McCooe's swift action is the reason that Henri Labreque is alive today. McCooe, while on patrol, was driving in the vicinity of the address when a man flagged him down and told him that a man was unconscious in the kitchen of 108 Spruce St.

McCooe, seeing smoke in the kitchen through the window immediately radioed headquarters for an ambulance, the fire department, and assistance.

Upon entering the building, McCooe found Labreque lying on the floor. He quickly moved the man to the sidewalk and called for an ambulance.

Women's Rights MCC Panel Topic
A panel of faculty members and students at Manchester Community College on Wednesday will hold an open discussion of women's status, rights and roles in contemporary society.

Titled "The Five Phases of Eve," the program is sponsored by the Women's Organization of MCC. The discussion will begin at 2 p.m. in the music room on the college's main campus on Bidwell St. The public is invited to take part in the discussion.

The meeting has been called for the purpose of promoting an examination and evaluation of assumptions and influences that shape women's lives. Panelists and audience will consider whether women in the Manchester area are satisfied with existing opportunities for self-development, self-realization and self-satisfaction that are offered by the social, economic and political structure of our society.

Several questions that have been posed for discussion are, "On what basis are women accepted as contributing members of society?" "Is the status quo that interferes with opportunities for women to exercise the kinds of freedom granted to men?"

Some of the implications of the newly ratified equal rights amendment to the constitution also will be discussed.

Faculty advisors to the MCC Women's Organization are Susan Brown, lecturer in English; Evelyn Miller, instructor of English; and Maria Skinner, coordinator of allied health. Anyone wishing further information can call these individuals at the college.

125 YEARS OF SERVICE-1848/1973

TOWN OF MANCHESTER, CONNECTICUT
March 23, 1973

TO: BOARD OF DIRECTORS
FROM: R. B. WEISS, GENERAL MANAGER
SUBJECT: Tentative Budget and Budget Message
Fiscal Year beginning July 1, 1973

The budget that follows will, I am sure, receive careful scrutiny by your Board and by the general public. In a sense it is a disappointing budget in that it provides for a tax rate increase despite all efforts to come up with a program of action for the Town that would preclude an increase. In my instructions to Department Heads prior to their budget requests, I strongly enjoined them to provide me only with requests representing the current level of service except where very unusual circumstances prevailed. Despite this, and I think the Department Heads made an honest effort, their requests came in $3,213,086 higher than last year's adopted budget. In my review I reduced these requests by $1,439,767. The net increase is $1,439,767 from the current budget as of 12/31/72.

As you know, in recent years we have been holding an extremely tight budget line. However, the public demand for increased services keeps expanding. Inflation, which in many areas has slowed down, is still a major factor affecting this budget. Our fixed costs show substantial increases.

The federally funded E.E.A. program has provided us with important positions during the past two years - positions that we really needed before E.E.A. came in. Now that this program is terminating we must evaluate the impact and importance of each position to the Town. I have covered this area of concern in substantial detail in another section of this message.

The impact of the Federal Revenue Sharing Program is substantial. It is recommended that these funds be used primarily to fund capital improvements. This has a direct impact on the tax rate by reducing the amount of money that must be raised by taxes.

As you know, we provide considerably more detail in our budget document than most communities so that you have adequate information for your evaluations. The green sheet with each agency budget summarizes changes in costs from current year operations and should be particularly helpful to you. The written document is still limited and I trust that the Directors will schedule sufficient work sessions with me and appropriate staff members to facilitate your review.

I am sure that you will realize as you review the budget that in most instances we propose maintaining the present level of services. Any cuts made by the Board will directly affect services.

TAX RATE
A tax rate of 50.66 representing an increase of 2 mills is recommended to support General Fund services. An increase of .20 to 5.35 mills is required for the Fire District. No increase is recommended for the Special Taxing District or in water rates, however, it will be necessary to increase sewer rates to the same level as water rates. Please note that sewer operating costs are now higher than water operating costs. We have delayed this increase for three years but can see no way of continuing at the present rate.

REVIEW OF CURRENT FISCAL YEAR ACTIVITIES
Projections made after the first six months of the present fiscal year are holding up. At that time we indicated a possible expenditure deficit of approximately $93,000. We are now confident that a combination of under-expenditure appropriations on several accounts and revenues exceeding original estimates will produce a modest end of the year surplus.

FISCAL PROJECTIONS 1973-74
Fortunately some revenue factors have a favorable impact on the tax rate. The Grand List increase of 4% will produce approximately $200,000 in added revenue projected at last year's tax rate. In addition we have allocated $275,000 from last year's surplus toward next years operations. We are estimating $100,000 from property occupied after the October 1 date in accordance with legislation enacted last year.

On the other hand, total income, other than taxes, are estimated to be down by approximately $85,000. Some categories are up; however, state grants in the education area are down resulting in the net decrease.

Listed below are improvements recommended for the next fiscal year. The six year program required under the Charter is contained in a separate document.

Table with columns: PROJ. NO., PROJ. NO., Description, Amount, and other details. Includes items like Trotter Block Payment on Bond, Prepare preliminary plans for Municipal Building, Establish recycling station, etc.

One of the most difficult areas of budget projection and decision making has involved the E.E.A. program. The best information we have at this time from Washington is that the E.E.A. program will be phased out. There was $2.25 billion appropriated for the two year effort with about $60 million of that remaining for the phase out. We are not sure yet how the phase out will work but the following program is what we feel will best meet the Town's need.

In the establishment of E.E.A. positions initially we were guided by needs expressed by various departments for positions that were not approved by us or the Board of Directors in recent years. In other words, we did not create positions merely to provide work, but rather utilized the available funds to meet identified needs that had not been met.

Budget recommendations on the E.E.A. positions fall into three categories - positions to be filled for the full year by Town funds, positions to be funded for half the year by Town funds and half the year by E.E.A. funds and positions to be dropped. In the Board of Education program six positions were established of which three are in their budget for funding next year.

At this point in time I feel that the general employment situation has improved so that most of our E.E.A. employees could relocate in the private sector. The retention of these positions should be evaluated by the Directors on the basis of impact on the Town service level if the position is abandoned.

Funding-wise these positions breakdown as follows:

Let us send you $100 extra cash every week... $14.28 every day* you're in the hospital for a covered accident or illness... send no money for free look at your policy... then pay the premium stated in the chart below if you want this valuable protection.

here's your problem... here's our policy... our policy pays you...

ONE OUT OF SEVEN HOSPITALIZED
The Health Insurance Institute has reported that 1 out of every 7 Americans was admitted to a hospital in 1970 for all types of conditions. This was an increase of almost a million hospital admissions over the previous year and represented a 27% rise from 1960. There's a chance that someone in your family could be hospitalized this year for a covered condition. Are you fully prepared for this sort of emergency?

MEDICAL CARE COSTS SOAR
A 1970 report of the American Hospital Association showed that the average cost for community hospitals to treat a patient amounted to $81.01 per patient day. Compared to 1965, this represented an 82% increase. How much higher will medical costs go? Today, even a short hospital stay can cause a financial disaster.

MEDICARE PATIENTS MUST PAY MORE
The Social Security Administration has again increased the amount of money senior citizens must pay out of their own pockets for hospital care. Effective January 1, 1973, the initial amount Medicare patients must pay when admitted to a hospital is $72. At the beginning of this program, folks covered by Medicare only had to pay the first $40.

That's not all... starting in 1973, Medicare patients with basic accommodations will have to pay $18 a day from the 61st through the 90th day of hospital confinement. This was only $10 when the program started. After 90 days, patients now must pay $5 a day, a sharp contrast to the daily charge of $20 back in 1967. There seems to be an ever widening gap between Medicare coverage, skyrocketing hospital costs and the senior citizen's fixed income.

ORDINARY HEALTH INSURANCE MAY NOT BE ENOUGH
Although you may carry ordinary health insurance to help pay for most of your hospital expense, the chances are you will still need extra cash... your individual or group insurance and even Medicare may not be enough protection. Remember, while you're in the hospital your other expenses such as rent, food, telephone, etc. continue. And who knows how long your pay check will keep coming? Wouldn't it be a comfort to know that you could count on us for extra cash every week you're flat on your back in the hospital... cash makes a nice get well card.

Trade Patterns, World Economy League Topics

Mrs. Mark Kravitz of 22 Wyllys St. will speak on the "Evaluation of Current Trade Patterns and Their Impact on the United States and the World Economy" to the Manchester League of Women Voters Wednesday at 8 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Theodore Rosen, 100 Waranoke Rd.

The discussion will encompass the changes in the world trade picture with emphasis on the emergence of the third world nations and their role in trade; the emergence of multi-nationals and their influence on both the domestic and world picture; and the impact of monetary reform in the context of the domestic economy and world trade.

Mrs. Kravitz, a long-term member of the League's international affairs committee, notes that the pace of technology, social and economic change in the past 10 years has been faster than ever before, and because of the expansion of the European economic community and of the emergence of Japan as a super power, resources and power are more evenly distributed, and the United States is not the dominant economic power it once was.

In view of these changes, discussion will focus on the need for continuing machinery to regulate world relationships and keep peace among the trading nations.

Hospital Opposes Health Care Act

Manchester Memorial Hospital is among several non-profit hospitals openly opposed to the General Assembly's Committee Bill No. 892, "An Act Creating a Commission on Hospitals and Health Care" in its present form.

The trustees and directors of MMH helped sponsor an ad in the Hartford Courant expressing opposition to the bill.

One of the hospitals listed as a sponsor is New Britain General - has denied it is a sponsor and says it is still studying the proposed bill.

In a prepared statement, MMH explains its basic objection to the bill is that "while it is purported to be a mechanism to control hospital rates, it actually removes from the trustees their prerogatives and turns them over to a state agency."

The bill provides that the hospital must submit its budget annually to the state on a line-by-line basis, and if the commission and hospital disagree, the commission shall order the institution to adopt a budget which the commission deems appropriate. Thereafter, the commission has complete authority to regulate any transfer of life items in the budget.

"Budget approval on a line-by-line basis is held impracticable, unworkable, and to all intents and purposes, would amount to state operation of the hospital."

The bill makes no mention of quality of care.

Also, MMH says, the bill exempts state institutions. "The rate of cost escalation in state institutions have been greater than in community hospitals. Manchester Memorial Hospital and the Connecticut Hospital Association (CHA) can see no possible reason why controls on facilities and services expansion in state institutions should be different from those applied to MMH.

"In the spring of 1972, Governor Meskill asked the CHA to submit to him a report concerning the rising cost of operation of Connecticut hospitals with recommendations for control of such costs. The CHA submitted its report to the governor in November 1972. The CHA pointed out that the hospitals of Connecticut compare favorably with the hospitals of all surrounding states with respect to quality of care and cost of operation. Hospital costs in Connecticut were less than in any of the surrounding states and the rate of escalation was less than hospitals operated by the state itself."

Nevertheless, the CHA informed the governor that it was in favor of control of hospital rates and expansion of facilities in order to maintain public confidence in its institutions. The CHA is still in favor of such legislation.

The CHA recommended to the governor that legislation be enacted which would accomplish the following:

- (1) Increase the size of the Council on Hospitals and Health Care to include representatives of the general public.
- (2) Require approval by the commission of all expansion of hospital facilities over $100,000 or such lesser sum as may be prescribed by federal regulations; require approval

Almost everything we throw away can be recycled into something of value. Glass, steel, aluminum, tin, paper, cloth are all reusable. Consider our dwindling natural supplies of these items and you'll know why recycling is becoming a "must" industry, especially in this area.

Why especially in this area? Here in Southern New England we're a lot of people in a relatively small area, and the large quantities of products we consume are reflected in our tremendous trash piles.

The cost of transporting our trash back to the steel furnaces, aluminum smelters and paper companies for recycling isn't economical. They're just too far away from New England. We must recycle our trash right here - where the trash is. In this area, recycling is a new industry.

Nationally, recycling should result in a net saving of energy since it usually doesn't take as much energy to recycle a material as it does to produce it from ores or other natural resources. But here in Southern New England it's going to take new supplies of energy - including electricity - to recycle our trash.

We're building today to provide for the electricity this area will need tomorrow - not just for recycling our trash, but also for other environmentally sound programs like mass transportation and improved sewage treatment, and - most important - for the new jobs our growing population will require.

You can help, by using all energy wisely.

Mrs. Eldridge Has System

Eldridge rarely wears his two suits, one of which he got married in 16 years ago. Usually dressed in his work clothes, he's available for handy jobs around the house.

"I remember when we called the plumber to see how much it would cost to hitch up the dishwasher. Fifty dollars!" said Mr. Eldridge in genuine shock. "Well, it took me all day to figure out how to do it, but I got it done."

Every month, after the bills for the telephone, heating, insurance, mortgage and Timothy's braces have been paid, there's about $10 to $40 left over which is promptly put into the bank. Mrs. Eldridge says she doesn't feel comfortable unless there's a minimum of $2,000 in savings.

Because she rarely buys on the installment plan, she likes to have that money for extraordinary bills and luxuries like the snowmobiles.

Their monthly payment for mortgage and taxes is $85.

What if?

What if suddenly Mr. Eldridge was earning $12,000? Betty and Norman have to stop and think what such a windfall would mean to their lives. "I know," said Betty with the enthusiasm of a child at Christmas. "A Winnebago trailer so we could take a vacation and drive to California and visit my mother. And then we'd build a garage. Maybe buy a new stove, a camera. A router to finish furniture for Norman. A potter's wheel for me."

But for now the Eldridges concentrate on enjoying those books and toys, but mostly playthings they have made themselves. Kathy is learning how to make ceramics, too, and proudly showed off a statue of Donald Duck she made.

Mrs. Eldridge can't be bothered with any kind of make-up, but does own a few lipsticks. Once a year she pays $12 for a hair cut and a permanent, but otherwise washes and sets her own short brown hair. "I'm too tight to go to the beauty parlor," she says.

"And besides, who wants to be stuck under a hair drier for a couple of hours?"

As usual Life Style - The casual family life-style means Betty wears slacks most of the time. She has never owned an evening gown. Mr.

Open House Saturday

We at The Manchester Evening Herald are now settled in our new home at 16 Brainerd Pl. We are proud of our new facility. Ground was broken for the new addition May 22 and the conversion to all-electronic printing was started August 14 in makeshift quarters. We are proud also that The Herald is the first all-electronic daily newspaper plant in New England. We appreciate the patience and understanding of our subscribers and our advertising customers while construction was under way and during the periods of equipment adjustment. Now that our major problems are behind us, we shall diligently strive to make improvements in our daily product. We want to share our new home and our new printing facility with you. We have scheduled a public open house for Saturday, March 31, from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Come see us. Burt L. Lyons, Publisher

State AP Circuit Will Tour May 15

The spring Connecticut Associated Press Circuit Meeting will be conducted May 15 in Manchester. A highlight of the meeting will be a tour of the new Manchester Evening Herald facilities.

By BURT L. LYONS, Publisher, Evening Herald
The composing room of The Manchester Evening Herald is now all-electronic. Our editorial department is equipped with Olivetti Editor 3 C typewriters for Optical Character Recognition. Sixty per cent of all our editorial copy, including heads, is OCR produced. The copy is dispatched into a Graphic Systems Scanner, which contains a laser beam, and does what it says: Scans the copy and produces a paper tape.

The tape is then fed into a Hendrix 5200 CRT terminal for proofing and editing. The operator has the story in front of him on the video screen, he can add or delete words or lines. When he is satisfied that the story is okay, he pushes a key which activates one of our two Photon 813 Pacesetters. We have automatic cut-offs on our Photons and the paper film is fed automatically into the Pako processor for instant development and paste-up.

The remainder of our editorial copy, as well as advertising material, is set on AKI Auto-Count Keyboards which actually contain a miniature computer. After the story is set, the tape is automatically fed into the proofing terminal. This editorial material consists primarily of stories written by our correspondents who aren't equipped with OCR typewriters. However, on many days, we do have a girl OCR type the correspondent's copy.

There is no significant time difference in either keyboarding the correspondent's story or retyping it and converting it to OCR. Our AP wire tape is fed into the proofing terminal and the operator has the hard copy for editing. All our equipment is on line, the keyboards, Scanner, and two editing terminals, and the two Pacesetters.

Our classified is set, fresh daily. We made the conversion in

Student Articles

Some of the articles in today's special edition were written by students of Mrs. Eleanor L. Gowen's English 101 class at Hill Junior High. The class had an advance tour of The Herald in early March. Our thanks to Mrs. Gowen and her students. The articles written by the students are identified with by-lines.

We use a conveyor to move editorial and advertising copy into the composing room. This cuts down greatly on the traffic of bodies. In our composing room, we also employ a revolving carousel system in which the operator can paste up pages, then if he is waiting for copy, move the Lazy Susan around to him and work on pasting up ads without getting out of his chair.

I wouldn't say our equipment is trouble-free because you people know better. However, the Scanner gives us less problems than any of our equipment. Once we got the proper coding and formulas established for our editorial department, we have had little or no problems with the Scanner.

We have had some minor problems with the proofing terminal but have discovered we can actually produce the newspaper with one. There has also been down time on the Pacesetters, but here again we have discovered with the speed that one machine will produce our newspaper.

At present, we are keyboarding our classified, but late this summer there is an excellent possibility we will OCR our classified. Our girls are equipped with the typewriters now and are getting familiar with them.

In fact, everyone in our plant, including the publisher, is equipped with an OCR typewriter.

We could actually teach our advertising executives to produce copy for a display advertisement on their OCR typewriter. However, we don't plan to get into that one. I feel their job is to sell but in three or four years down the pike, who can tell, good dispatch girls that are excellent typists might come in handy.

Congratulations to The Herald in their new ultra modern plant!

Jack R. Hunter Inc., Manchester, was the general contractor. In addition to the new addition, there was considerable renovation of the press room and other areas. The building is air-conditioned with the heating and cooling units mounted on the roof.

The bookkeeping department occupies the front portion of The Herald's new home. Modernization also included the installation of a new telephone system in cooperation with representatives of Southern New England Telephone Co. The new equipment requires half the space of the original installation.

The want ad or classified department at The Herald is a popular one and many ads are placed over the telephone as well as in person. As a convenience to customers, circulation subscriptions are also paid through this department as well as to the circulation department in another part of the building. Note the photos on the wall which were taken by Herald staff photographers.

Duane Edmonds, director of advertising and marketing, gives an advertisement a final check. The Herald boasts a complete layout facility. The department also has a Warren copy machine which will copy up to a full page in 10 seconds for the convenience of an advertiser. In addition, a number of art and illustration services are available for the advertiser.

English Class Visits Herald

By Janice Dahn
When my English class toured The Herald March 12, I didn't expect to see half of what I saw. I had always thought that each page was set in type by hand and then run off by the press. But photographed pages, burned into thin aluminum sheets which are then placed into a giant press which makes about 4,000 copies in 10 minutes, completely changed my idea of the newspaper.

everything and a computer with a punched out tape that runs thru a TV-like machine, the words printed across the screen. Though even in all this machine-run newspaper, there are still some jobs that require patience and skill. One such job is cutting out and fitting ads to pages before they are printed, and the operating of the machines. Finally, to clinch up the tour, we got to see the old printing machines. It is hard to believe that those medieval looking things could have been used.

Our sincere best wishes to the Manchester Evening Herald on the completion of their new facilities.

The Harvest of Effort

It was indeed a privilege for Marlow's, Inc. to have supplied the Manchester Evening Herald with the office equipment for the new Herald Square Building. This, our 62nd year in Manchester, saw us reach throughout the country to supply another long-time company with best equipment obtainable.

The reportorial area, business office and advertising department desks came from Aurora, Illinois. This equipment represents over a full large trailer truck in delivery. The design of each desk includes a Formica top, with a matching typing stand return.

The many filing cabinets and storage cabinets came from Manitowoc, Wisconsin, and York, Pennsylvania.

The adding machines, multiplying and dividing calculators came from New Jersey.

The desk chairs and conference room chairs came from Chicago, Illinois, while the lunchroom chairs and tables are from Eau Claire, Wisconsin.

The plastic desk chair pads (they protect the rug from excessive wear) come from Athol, Massachusetts.

Matching wastebaskets were made in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

The nylon Connecticut State Flag and Old Glory came from Oaks, Pennsylvania.

Filing folders and a variety of other items came from various parts of our country as well as other parts of the world.

This, our 62nd year in Manchester, brought us special pleasure in the challenge of participating in the creation of the finest office facility in Manchester. We salute all our friends at The Herald.

How Herald Is Printed

By Tamar Cohen

One of the major steps in creating a newspaper is in the printing. The paper goes through a long, complex process before it is printed.

After the aluminum plates used to make the sheets have been finished, each plate is taken to the printing room. Here the top and bottom edges are crimped so they will fit easily on to the cylinders of the press.

On each cylinder of the press, there are two sections — high and low. When a paper is being made with two sections — for example, 32 pages — the sheet with page one and sixteen will be on the low cylinder. Pages seventeen and thirty-two will be on the high cylinder.

The ink train drops on to the cylinders, touching and inking them. Two other cylinders, called rubber blankets, also drop automatically and touch the cylinders. The paper is drawn off from huge rolls on the printing machine, moving through all the cylinders, obtaining an impression on both sides. It then goes over idlers, and finally down through the folder.

Inside the folder, the collect cylinder holds one section until the other one comes through. When the other one comes through, it is thrown inside the first one. The sections are cut and folded until they are split out of the folder as a newspaper.

Sheldon Cohen, mechanical superintendent, activates the Graphic Systems Scanner and feeds the reporter's coded story into the machine. The Scanner contains a laser beam, and does exactly what it says, scans the story at the rate of 83 characters per second and produces a coded paper tape.

With the move into the new facility, The Herald also installed new photo and darkroom equipment in keeping with the newspaper's fine tradition of excellent photo reproduction. In the future, The Herald plans to publish more photos in living color. Above are Sylvian (Sinch) Otiara, chief technician, and Reginald Pinto, photographer.

The Herald uses a conveyor system to move news copy from the reporters to desk men for final editing. The editorial department, as well as the other departments, are equipped with Olivetti OCR typewriters. OCR is short for Optical Character Recognition. On the typewriter, the reporter actually codes his story, or instructs the all-electronic type-setting equipment as to the size and style of the type desired.

He Notices Great Change

By Peter Bartolotta
As I walked through the new Manchester Evening Herald building, I noticed how greatly it had changed and how much more automated it was. The whole process of making the paper is different. Instead of the old type set printing press, there is a new and enormous highly complicated machine. The pages of the paper are hand made by pasting articles and advertisements on a piece of paper. Then these pages are photographed, made into aluminum plates and run through the press. Then, the printing press going and the bells ringing, one's ears could pop. But, it is only for a short time and peace soon reigns. All in all, the new Manchester Evening Herald building is beautiful and is a very advanced business and my visit there was interesting and enjoyable.

Proofing and editing in the composing room is accomplished with two Hendrix 5200 terminals. John Rosati, one of the operators, has the story in front of him on the video screen where he can add or delete words or lines. When he is satisfied the story is okay, he pushes a key which activates one of the Photon Facsetters and converts the paper tape into paste-up type.

Sheldon Cohen feeds tape into a Photon 813 Facsetter which is capable of photographing news copy into paste-up type at the rate of 90 lines per minute. Type, ranging in size from 6 to 72 point, can be delivered from the Photon machines.

Setting of type for advertisements is accomplished on AKI Auto-Count Keyboards. The machines actually contain a miniature computer, and operator Herb Kingsbury can determine the size, style of type and the length of line by simply pushing buttons.

After news copy has been released from the Photon machines it travels through a film processing unit and is developed automatically. Jim Sullivan applies a thin coat of wax to the back of the copy for page paste-up, as they refer to it in the trade. After the page is completed, it is photographed, and then the image is transferred to an aluminum sensitized plate for the press.

A Good Experience

By Durwood Miller
The trip to The Manchester Evening Herald was a good experience. The machines clang and bang through your ears. But the thing that surprised me most of all was the "Old Herald." There were about 10 machines in a back room. It seemed to be a cemetery of old memories and a boneyard of the biggest stories in years. Now it is used as a warehouse and storage room.
Just a few steps brings you through time to the "New Herald." It seems like such a lot of money to pay for rebuilding a local paper. It is now a "young paper" with many new ideas and very efficient.
They have one big press that is fully automated. All of the papers are automatically folded and put on a conveyor belt where the papers are counted and stacked. At this spot, inserts and advertising material is put in by hand. This is the only place where the paper is touched by man.
Next, a piece of cardboard is put underneath the papers by hitting a trip lever. Immediately ahead, on the side, is a light beam that waits for the papers, and the paper breaks through the light, and is tied into a bundle. It keeps going right out to the tracks and cars that are waiting to bring the papers to the stores and the newspaper boys and girls.
This is already a good local paper and I can see it will be even better in the days ahead.

Bob Hubbard, pressroom foreman, places the paste-up page from the composing room into the Kenro camera. The film is developed automatically, the negative burned on to an aluminum plate and the plate processed automatically for positioning on the press.

How Paper Processed

By Dawn Linsey and Marcia Hohwieler
In the processing department of The Manchester Evening Herald, four men operate the many machines. Mr. Robert Hubbard, one of the men, has worked at The Herald for five years. He got his training at the American Newspaper Research Institute. He also worked at other newspapers before coming to Manchester.
The Herald is now made in a whole new building and under a new system. Mr. Hubbard's old job included operating large lead plates and simple letterpresses. Now he works with chemicals, ink and water, and sensitive cameras. The machines he uses are modern and complicated. The most important are the camera, film processor, plate burner, plate processor, and the printing press.
It takes ten minutes to process one page of the newspaper, and about one hour to run the daily 16,000 papers off the press. When a page arrives from the composing room where it is put together, it is first photographed. A luxometer reads the lightest and darkest parts of a photograph for the right amount of exposure. After the film is developed, it is touched up with opaque and placed on one of two plate burners. The image is burned into an aluminum plate. This machine uses a light sensitive coating and a bright arch light.
The plate developer applies two substances to the plate, gum and lacquer. When it is run through the press, two separate rollers for water and ink are applied. The lacquer attracts the water to the non-image parts. Ink is attracted to the gum to make an image. There are controls on the press for the amount of ink and water in each column.
This completes the processing department's job. From here the newspaper goes to be bundled and delivered.

Holmes Seated By Democrats

James B. Holmes of 37 Elizabeth Dr. was installed last week as president of the Democratic Club of Manchester. He succeeds John FitzPatrick, president since the club was organized in 1971. Other officers installed are: David Paris, vice president; Timothy Morahan, treasurer; Joyce Gutman, secretary; Henrietta Ruff, financial secretary; and James McAshley, sergeant-at-large.
Holmes and Paris, noting the club discontinued its incorporated status late last year and now is free to engage in political action, urged its members to become politically active in this fall's election campaign.
A political action committee will be named soon to coordinate the club's political activities.
Mrs. Phyllis Jackson, a club member, was congratulated by the membership on her election last month to the Manchester Board of Directors.
In response to a suggestion by Mayor John Thompson, that civic organizations donate flags for use on Main St., club member John Sullivan donated a flag and flag pole on behalf of the Democratic Club of Manchester.
The club, which has been meeting the third Wednesday of each month at the Marine Club on Parker St., voted to change the date and location of future meetings. From now on they will be at the Knights of Columbus Home on Main St., the second Wednesday of each month.

The Goss Urbanite press has been repainted and the press room has taken on a new appearance with a new lighting system, ceiling, and reconditioned floor. Also new is the Cutler-Hammer conveyor system which carries papers into the circulation department. Note papers traveling up the conveyor.

Pressman James Adams operates fork-lift, jockeying rolls of newsprint in The Herald's storage area, formerly the newsroom.

A continuous conveyor system is employed in the circulation department. Papers travel from the press into the Slacker, where they are counted, then move on to a pacer for proper jogging, then to an automatic tie machine and out on the conveyor to the loading dock. Left is Pete Cordera, circulation manager.

Making A Town Newspaper
By Marty Middelis
When someone mentions a newspaper building, they immediately picture an old man in a smock laboriously setting type. On the contrary, the newspaper is a very complicated industry. Only a few things are processed by man. As soon as you walk through the new entrance of The Herald, you can see the business and the advertising departments of the paper. Both of these departments are composed of about 12 typewriters and typists. Here news articles are typed on computerized typewriters. This is the first step of all material that goes into the newspaper. Now the typed articles and advertisements are sent into the composing room on a conveyor belt. The articles are placed in a computerized electronic scanner that transfers the typed articles onto a thin paper tape by punching holes in various places. These holes represent characters and punctuation. This tape is then placed in another computerized machine that transfers the holes from the tape onto film in regular print. The film is then automatically developed in another machine. When the film comes out, it looks exactly like it does in the newspaper. Now some people take these articles and, by hand, paste them to a white sheet of paper that represents a page from the newspaper. When the composite sheet of white paper is completely filled it is brought into the photographic room where the sheet is photographed by a graphic camera. The negative of the composite sheet is then developed by a fully automatic machine. The machine then passes the negative into a room where the images from the negative are burned into an aluminum plate. At this time the aluminum plate looks blank. The aluminum plate is brought into the printing press room and is fed by hand into another machine. In this machine you can see the aluminum plate being processed. Lacquer and water is rubbed on by the machine. When the plate emerges from the machine, the images are visible. The plate is taken and two edges are bent to fit the cylinders of the rotary printing press. The rotary press itself is about 150 feet long, 15 feet high, and about 7 feet wide. It is run by three men. At both ends of the press are gigantic rolls of paper. The paper is printed in one continuous roll. When the paper comes out of the press, it is printed, cut, and folded exactly the way it is when you read it. The entire circulation of the paper is printed in about 45 minutes. The printed papers go in a conveyor belt into the circulation room. Automatically the papers are stacked into groups by a machine. The pile is sent down the conveyor belt where people count and specially stack the papers for the paperboys. The stacks proceed down the conveyor where they are automatically bound with a metal band. The papers then go outside on the conveyor to be picked up by people who deliver the papers to paperboys. As you can see, the newspaper is a very complicated industry. Most of it is done automatically by machine, but man still is a very important factor. Without the people who run it, the machines couldn't be fed or maintained.

SOL R. COHEN (Herald Reporter) — An informal meeting of the Board of Directors with representatives of three Manchester labor organizations, scheduled for the express purpose of discussing proposed pension benefits, never quite made it last night. Although the Municipal Employees Group (MEG), an independent, unaffiliated union, listed its proposals, the Police Union and Local 91 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees wouldn't and didn't. Representatives of both groups claimed a misunderstanding existed. They said they thought last night's meeting was to have been a closed session-closed to the public and closed to representatives of any union other than their own.
