Newport Base Closing Casts Pall Of Gloom

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — A banker expresses optimism for the future. But gloom hangs over the town where the future is uncertain.

Others who relied on Navy business are gloomily awaiting the future.

Newport, the faded playground of millionaires and socialites, has been rocked by a Pentagon order that will wipe out nearly 16,000 military and civilian jobs at the Newport Naval Base.

Though other military installations in the area will remain in use, the transfer south of men and ships from the Newport base will mean the loss of an annual payroll of $116 million. That is half the total wages of Newport and the two other communities on the 4-square-mile island, Middletown and Portsmouth.

The cutback is scheduled to be completed by July 30, 1974. Navy schools and laboratories at Newport will not shut down, leaving several thousand men at the base.

As news about the cutback sinks in, anger and anxiety replace the initial wave of disbelief.

"I'm so mad," says Mrs. Morton Socks, whose husband says he will have to close one of two men's shops that cater to the military. "There is no cut in defense spending, they're just shifting everything elsewhere."

Harold and Peter Petropoulos, owners of a camera store, expected cutbacks as the war wound down "but they hit us with a home run rather than a double. This is the Pearl Harbor of Newport."

The same manager of a large real estate firm says that, since the cutback announcement a week ago Friday, "the market has gone absolutely stone dead. There's no phone calls for houses."

Credit Cost Disclosure Rule Upheld

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a victory for consumers, the Supreme Court Tuesday upheld a federal regulation requiring disclosure of credit costs on items to be paid for in more than four installments.

The decision stemmed from a dispute over the costs of magazine subscriptions but its impact was likely to reach the entire $100-billion-plus consumer credit industry in a variety of areas.

Specifically, the court upheld the Federal Reserve Board's so-called four-installment rule. The board fashioned the rule under authority granted by Congress in the 1968 Truth-in-Lending Act.

"Congress has determined that such purchasers are in need of protection," wrote Chief Justice Warren E. Burger for the majority. "The four-installment rule serves to insure that the protective disclosure mechanism chosen by Congress will not be circumvented."

Three other justices agreed with Burger's opinion. Justices William O. Douglas, Potter Stewart and William H. Rehnquist said they approved the four-installment rule, but would send the case to a lower court for more information on the facts involved.

Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. dissented. The case arose in 1969 when Lella Mourning, a widow living in Dale County, Fla., balked at paying the second installment on magazine subscriptions she had purchased from Family Publications Service Inc.

She won a victory in U.S. District Court but in 1971, the U.S. Circuit Court in New Orleans ruled that the Federal Reserve Board had overstepped its authority in formulating the four-installment rule and had violated due process guarantees of the Constitution.

The four-installment rule requires sellers to disclose the total purchase price, the balance due after the initial payment, all additional charges and other specific information.

Huge Drug Haul Made In Georgia

SAVANNAH, Ga. (AP) — More than 1,000 pounds of marijuana and an estimated $1.4-million worth of cocaine has been seized by federal agents who waded through bigwater and crawled through narrow pipes in a rusty Latin American freighter, authorities said.

The crewmen of the freighter "think it's a game," the agent in charge of the search said.

"We use something up and they hide something in it," said Ira Morris, the senior U.S. Customs agent. "It's been like that since we started."

"These drugs were hidden by masters," said another agent.

More Cadets Violate Honor Code

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — Two more cadets have been found in violation of the West Point military academy honor code, raising to nine the number who have been implicated in a continuing cheating investigation, academy spokesmen said.

The latest decisions of the honor committee were made Monday night, according to the spokesman, who said none of the nine would be expelled.

Five of the cadets have asked for a board of officers to hear their cases.

All nine have been recommended for dismissal, he said.

"You may assume that more cadets will appear before the honor committee in this case," he added.

While he said it could be characterized as an "unusual incident" he said that 30-to-40 of the academy's 4,000 cadets leave each year for violation of the honor code.

American Film Industry Productions Benefiting

By BOB THOMAS
LOS ANGELES (AP) — As if the American film industry didn't have enough problems, it has lately been faced with the "reverse runaway" of European movie makers filming in this country.

"Runaway production" has long been the battle cry of Hollywood film workers seeking government aid to stem the loss of jobs. They charged that production was running away to foreign lands with the lure of cheaper costs and government subsidies.

The past year has brought a new trend: European companies coming to the United States to make films. They bring their own actors and key personnel, drawing their crews from the American unions.

Latest of the invaders is "The Stone Killer," a film directed by an Italian, Dino DeLaurentis, directed by an Englishman, Michael Winner, with an American star, Charles Bronson.

"The Stone Killer" was recently acquired for the United States by Columbia, but the film came here with a $2.4 million budget and no American release. That's how confident producer DeLaurentis was.

"As a matter of fact, this picture was in profit before we started shooting," reported director Winner. "Rights were sold in various countries; Italy alone will bring $1 million clear."

Between scenes of a shootout in a Century City parking structure, Winner explained some of the dizzying economics that have troubled American film companies.

The biggest threat, he observed, came from the European entrepreneurs "who can operate out of a phone booth" and make deals while the Americans are trying to make up their corporate minds.

Examples: DeLaurentis, producer of "The Bible," "Romeo and Juliet" and "The Valachi Papers"; Italian Alberto Grimadi, who made "Bum!" and "Last Tango in Paris"; Frenchman Robert Dorfmann, now filming "Papillon" with Steve McQueen and Dustin Hoffman.

"These entrepreneurs can outbid the American majors," said director Winner, "for two reasons: 1. On many of their pictures they can do what they call 'quota-milking' that is, getting subsidies in countries like Ger-

Disaster Loan Funds Available To Farmers

HARTFORD (AP) — A measure recently signed by President Nixon will reinstate a disaster loan program for farmers in Connecticut and elsewhere for 18 days. Gov. Thomas J. Meskill has said the program was created in mid-1972 because of the devastation caused by Hurricane Agnes and heavy rains that year, but it was ended on Dec. 27 by Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz.

The extended loan program ends May 8. Meskill urged all Connecticut farmers who suffered 25 per cent losses or more during the heavy rain period to seek financial help at Farmers' Home Administration offices in Suffield, North Franklin or Brooklyn.

The assistance is in the form of one per cent loans with the first $5,000 of the principal forgiven.

Down Memory Lane

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — You can't go home again — with one exception.

The exception is memory. In memory you can go home again anytime by a thought.

In fact, you are at home here all the time. Memory is man's chief home actually. He dwells there longer than he does in any ball of wood or mansion of marble or brick.

And your own memory-house has a lot of rooms in it. If you can look back and remember when —

Nothing was longer or lower than a six-acre farm day.

You could get to work quicker on a 100-acre tract than you can drive through traffic and find a place to park now.

When you saw someone walking fast, you figured he must have a real emergency. The normal pace of life was slower.

A policeman could spend his whole career on the force and retire without ever having given out a traffic ticket.

No matter how big your family was, you were expected to know who all your cousins were — and keep track of what happened to them. Blood was a lot thicker than water and kin-folk felt more responsible for each other.

A gang of boys felt cheated if they caught and killed some innocent snake and found it had no rattle at the end of its tail. But they still thought they had done the world a favor. There was to them no such thing as a guiltless snake.

But children themselves never felt entirely guiltless either. There were no many precepts to guide them that they always were in violation of

Prison Songsters Make Album

RAHWAY, N.J. (AP) — Reginald Haynes is due for parole from Rahway State Prison on May 29. He'll be coming back to harmonize with his buddies now and then.

Haynes used to sing on street corners, in churches and anywhere anyone would listen to him before landing in the maximum security prison four years ago. There he made some friends and organized The Escorts, a prison singing group that this week is releasing a long-playing record album, "All We Need Is Another Chance."

The nine Escorts recorded the album in a nine-hour session in a psychological counseling room of the prison. Their name is a very reference to the fact that prisoners must be accompanied by an escort whenever they move from their cell blocks.

Local radio stations have played the title song.

"It was like a dream come true, waking up and hearing the record playing," said one of the lead singers, Robert Arrington, up for parole in September on a manslaughter conviction.

The singers range from 22 to 27 years old. They were convicted of various crimes, including armed robbery.

The songs are mostly soul music. The title cut was written by George Kerr, who heard the group perform at a prison talent show while visiting a friend there three years ago and offered to produce the album.

Other songs are The Escorts' versions of recent hits, including "By the Time I Get to Phoenix" and "Little Green Apples."

The recording represents "a big piece of effort, time and persistence by a talented group of young men who refused to let their less than luxurious surroundings stand in their way.

State Projects Of $93.1 Million Win Approval

HARTFORD (AP) — The Connecticut Legislature's Finance Committee Tuesday approved $93.1 million in capital projects for the coming fiscal year, including $20 million in projects beyond Gov. Thomas J. Meskill's requested program.

The bonding program, which must be approved by both branches of the legislature, covers a wide variety of highway construction projects after July 1.

The $1.2 billion budget and bond program are scheduled for floor debate May 2.

Still to be considered is the proposed $250 million bonding authorization for the state-wide solid waste plan.

Another project to be voted on is $2 million for University of Connecticut library expansion.

Here are the highlights of the bonding program as listed by the Finance Committee chairman, Sen. Lawrence J. Denardis, R-Hartford:

- $3 billion in rental housing for elderly.
- $4 million in urban renewal and rehabilitation of moderate rent housing.
- $20 million for school building grants.
- $4 million for additional state labs.
- $2 million for runway improvements at Bradley International Airport.

Senators Told Of Child Abuse

NEW YORK (AP) — Roosevelt Hospital has treated about 40 cases of alleged child abuse in the past year, a Senate subcommittee was told Tuesday.

The hearing was held at the hospital by the Senate Subcommittee on Children and Youth on the proposed Child Abuse Prevention Act. The proposed legislation is being sponsored by Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., and by Rep. Pat Schroeder, D-Colo.

The first witness in Tuesday's hearing, now in its fourth session, was Dr. Marianne Schwob, chairman of the Roosevelt Child Abuse Committee, who testified:

"It is our experience that only 75 per cent of the city's abused children should be returned to their parents."

Mondale inspected the child abuse facilities at Roosevelt, and said a 24-year-old girl admitted last week with a lump on the forehead bruised eyes, and scars on her legs thought to have been made by cigarette burns.

Color slides were shown of children hospitalized by alleged abuse, including one child with marks from severe strappings.

Sen. Mondale recommended that the state's failure to allow them adequate rate increases in the past made it impossible for them to make needed improvements and in their current revenue.

Meskill Repeats Opposition To Utility Increases

HARTFORD (AP) — Despite an initial failure, Gov. Thomas J. Meskill repeated Tuesday his urging to the Connecticut Light & Power Co. (CL&P) and Hartford Electric Light Co. (HELCO) that they withdraw rate increase requests.

—$1 million for a new campus at Western Connecticut State College.

—$4.5 million for Central Naugatuck Valley Regional Higher Education Center.

—$2.3 million for a University of Connecticut Health Center.

—$12 million to rebuild the Cheshire Reformatory.

—$1 million for addition to Milford Platt Vocational Technical School.

—$2.2 million for new regional community college sites.

—$600,000 for more land at Bluff Point in rental housing for elderly.

—$4 million in urban renewal and rehabilitation of moderate rent housing.

—$20 million for school building grants.

—$4 million for additional state labs.

—$2 million for runway improvements at Bradley International Airport.

Senate Votes Delay In Phosphate Ban

HARTFORD (AP) — The Connecticut Senate voted Tuesday to allow the sale of phosphate laundry detergents for one more year in Connecticut, pending an environmental impact study.

The 20-16 action—14 approved by the governor—would delay a scheduled July ban on phosphate laundry detergents until June 30, 1974.

In the interim, the state Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) must study the impact of phosphates on health and environment.

An attempt to retain this year's ban was defeated 25-18.

Another amendment—to allow the environment commissioner to issue regulations on phosphates in the interim, was defeated 19-18, with Lt. Gov. T. Clark Hall voting against it to break a tie.

Sen. Philip N. Costello Jr., R-Madison, co-chairman of the environment committee, said that since the ban was legislated two years ago, there was evidence that phosphates were not the culprit to clean water that everyone had suspected.

He also said the detergent industry had been unable to reduce the level of phosphates below 6.5 per cent. There are phosphate-free detergents on the market, but he said some were caustic.

Present state law limits phosphate levels at 8.7 per cent.

Costello said the delay in the ban was required to "solve a problem that may or may not exist." There is conflicting evidence, he said, which created doubts in the committee's members. He said the logical move was to study the matter.

Environmentalist Sen. George Gunther, R-Stafford, said a complicated issue had been clouded by politics introduced in the house action on the bill.

The house defeated 75-56 a bill to give DEP total regulatory power on phosphates. The measure was reconsidered, however, amended with the delayed ban study approach and passed.

Sen. Charles T. Alfano, D-Suffield, who led the attack on the bill, criticized lobbying pressure from detergent manufacturers. He said his office received one call by mistake, from an executive vice president of Procter & Gamble, following the house's original rejection of the bill.

"The detergent makers and their lobbyists got what they wanted," Alfano said.

The vote was along party lines, with the exception of three Republican senators.

Women Will Command Raft While Men Do Lesser Jobs

PARIS (AP) — Women will hold the key command posts and men will serve in subordinate roles on a raft as it drifts across the Atlantic next month, for an experiment in roleswitching.

The crew members are between 25 and 40 years old. The Americans were identified as Mary Gidley, the navigator, and Evangelina Seymour, the technician.

While drinking water, a young turkey may become immobilized by the movements of his own head and drink or until he drowns.

The raft was described as about 120 feet, supported by steel pontoons. The trip is expected to take between three and six months with departure and arrival from 12 countries.

Anne Turner, a psychologist in Paris who helped recruit the crew, said in an interview: "The men will be doing subordinate things like taking pictures and doing the cooking. The woman captain has absolute charge of the raft."

Sexuality is a whole range of problems that the crew will have to come to terms with. Sexuality is a whole range of problems that the crew will have to come to terms with. Sexuality is a whole range of problems that the crew will have to come to terms with.

Inventors Respond To Plan

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — "People have come in droves, when they know we're available to listen to their ideas," says a government industrial specialist in a telephone interview with inventors that may make money.

Gov. Meldrim Thomson Jr. announced plans this week to help inventors and promoters start their own businesses.

Russell Orton, one of the two staff members of the federally funded New England program, said ideas from inventors in the region range from perpetual motion machines to a "pickle pick" to spear pickles from a jar.

The program is sponsored by the New England Regional Commission in cooperation with New Hampshire's Division of Economic Development.

Interviews for inventors in New Hampshire are set to start May 3 and 4 in Concord.

Orton, who has worked with the program since its inception one year ago, said one of the inventions for which the program seeks funds is a leaf-blower-dolomitic ski-goggle defogger.

"It really works," he said, "it really works."

He said his program has handled about 580 requests from inventors and persons with ideas to turn into money-making ventures.

He said at least 100 of the inventions have had preliminary interest from businessmen willing to risk money on new ideas.

He said inventors have presented proposals ranging from new methods of hand stitching, voting machines and games to insect repellents, artificial kidney machines and special go-carts.

"Many good ideas never become successful and profitable ventures because the originators do not have the necessary know-how," Thomson said.

NEW INMATES

NEW YORK (AP) — Tamandua, ferrets and hawks have gained roles in a children's zoo that is better known as the place for youngsters to pet gentle and familiar creatures like rabbits, sheep and ducks.

Opening its children's zoo for the third summer season, the Bronx zoo has introduced new exhibits and some unfamiliar animals.

One new exhibit permits children to peer inside a real, working beehive.

Attendants will carry around ferrets, hawks, owls and snakes for children to inspect and touch.

A most unusual animal there is the tamandua, an anteater from Central America that can grasp a monkey's tail does.

Giant Jetport Plan Proposed By MTA

NEW YORK (AP) — The Metropolitan Transportation Authority has presented local officials with its case for converting Stewart Air Force Base near Newburgh, N.Y., into a giant jetport.

A number of the mid-Hudson area officials emerged saying they weren't impressed.

The presentation was staged for about 30 county, city and village officials as part of a four-hour dinner and slide show at a midtown hotel. It was billed as a disclosure of plans drawn up by Transplan Inc., consultants to the MTA, for a $1 billion ultra-modern facility on a site twice the size of Kennedy Airport. MTA public relations employees stood guard at doors to make sure only the invited guests were allowed in.

The disclosure came several days after the disclosure of plans for a new airport. But Rod Vandiver, director of the environmental Hudson River Valley Council, denounced that part as "like a bandaid on a gaping wound." He, like newsmen, was kept outside the dinner.

The Defense Department transferred the military base to the MTA in 1970. A year later Gov. Nelson Rockefeller approved a $30 million land purchase to increase the site's size.

"I guess we had envisioned pretty much what they talked about," said an aide to Rep. Benjamin Gilman, R-Middletown.

"I don't think that any of us found it fully satisfactory," said Orange County Executive Louis V. Mills. "I wasn't that impressed by their in-depth responses. They didn't say anything about impact on the county."

As described by those emerging from the meeting, the Transplan proposal is for a phased development which by 1975 would create a jetport capable of serving as a temporary rail-air terminal 58 minutes from New York City by high-speed rail line. It would have one 12,000-foot runway capable of handling jumbo jets.

By 1980, all three existing runways would be extended to 12,000 feet, and by 1985, two more runways would be built.

The jetport would be completed by 1990, with about 3.2 million square feet of terminal facilities capable of handling about 36 million passengers and four million tons of air freight annually.

Proponents say the jetport is needed to shut some traffic away from the New York City area's three major airports as congestion increases.

One proposal in the Transplan scheme is for a barrier of greenery as deep as a mile around the airport. But Rod Vandiver, director of the environmental Hudson River Valley Council, denounced that part as "like a bandaid on a gaping wound." He, like newsmen, was kept outside the dinner.

Oil Companies Seeking Sites For Refineries

BOSTON (AP) — Two independent New England-based oil companies are looking into building oil refineries in New England. They said the effort had been blocked by environmental considerations.

They said, however, oil companies have improved their ability to prevent oil spills and air pollution at the refinery sites.

"Nothing is 100 per cent guaranteed," Sostek said, "but we would have an absolute minimum risk."

DOUBLE TAKE

NEW YORK (AP) — Sisters-in-law Mrs. Pat Degliuomini and Mrs. Steve Degliuomini gave birth to babies eight hours apart recently at the Brooklyn Hospital.

It was the first time in the hospital's history that two infants in the same family were born there on the same day.

The companies, which compete, are not considering a joint venture to build a single oil refinery, they said.

Grammar School Goes Colonial

Vincent D'Alessandro Associated Press Writer STORRS (AP) — Urban development of a colonial village has taken place inside Storrs Grammar School.

A visitor enters "Storrsbridge Village" over a covered bridge and comes immediately upon The Village Green, about which are located a blacksmith's shop, a working water wheel, a colonial home—complete with loft and real brick fireplace—a general store, a one-room school, a huge mural depicting the New England countryside and even an outhouse, which also doubles as the village jail.

Various other characteristics of the period also are evident, such as the stocks, muskets, wagon wheels, a hand-held plow, and the villagers' clothing.

This piece of New England in the 1700s vibrates in what used to be a vacant classroom at Storrs Grammar School where Dr. Thomas B. Goodkind, associate professor of elementary education at the University of Connecticut, spends two days a week practicing what he preaches.

He and his kindergarten-through-fourth grade pupils, with the aid of 10 education students at UConn, constructed the authentic replica, learning while they went along.

"We're not textbook oriented," Goodkind said. "We're trying to stimulate an interest so the kids will study and learn from doing."

Between answering requests for help from his "villagers," Goodkind explained that the recreated village "is the closest thing to creating an open environment that I know of."

The kids, although they use different terms, seem to agree. "I love the colonial room," said eight-year-old Kathryn Longey of Storrs. Attired in a floor-length, hand-made dress, she was serving as clerk of the general store and said that her experience behind the counter helped her to understand the barter system used to get merchandise from one person to another.

"I learned that they didn't just go around with shopping carts," she said.

While not relying on textbooks, the youngsters did refer to resource material depicting colonial scenes as they went about trying to make Storrsbridge Village as authentic as possible.

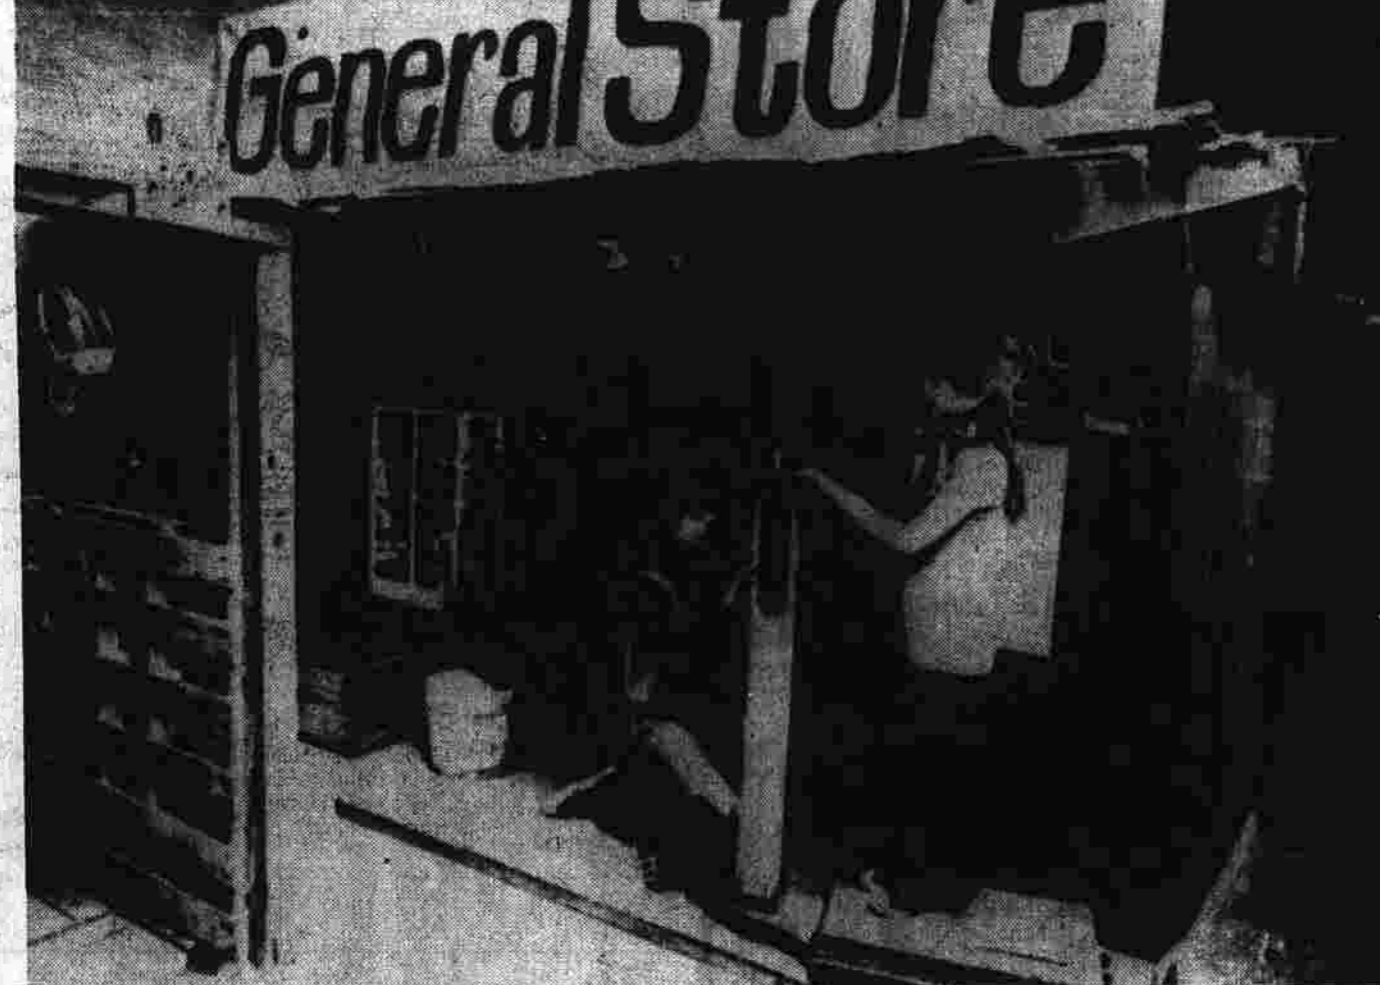

Soon an honest-to-goodness blacksmith is going to visit the village to demonstrate his trade. But the kids already have an idea of what the village smithy did, as they know of other customs of the day. On the road to creating their village, they learned to weave and sew, make candles, ropes

Taking Stock Of The Situation

Wondering how long he's going to be kept in the public stocks at Storrsbridge Village is Matthew Hall, closely guarded by Ursula Fuchs. Both are in the third grade and the village was constructed virtually without a budget with all materials scrounged for the project.

Weighing In
