Skylab Project Begins

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The countdown advanced on schedule today for the launching of Skylab, America's first space station, which is to serve as a giant "cabin in the sky" for nine astronauts in the next eight months.

More than 700,000 gallons of liquid oxygen and liquid hydrogen fuel were pumped into the Saturn 5 booster as the count entered the final hours for the planned 1:30 p.m. EDT liftoff.

Skies were cloudy and there was a possibility of rain during the day, the weatherman reported.

If the laboratory orbits successfully, the three-man Skylab 1 crew will rocket into space Tuesday and link up with the station for a record 28-day mission.

The astronauts — Charles Conrad Jr., Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz — were to watch the Saturn 5 lift-off from a viewing area three miles from the launch pad. The 33-story-tall rocket is to drill the station into a 270-mile-high orbit.

Then the spacemen will make preparations for their own launch aboard a smaller 22-story Saturn IB rocket at 1 p.m. Tuesday.

Also here are members of the Skylab 2 and 3 crews who later in the year are to visit the same laboratory, each for 56 days.

Nine in All
The nine astronauts will conduct extensive medical, scientific, earth resources and space manufacturing experiments to determine how well man can live and work in space for long periods.

What they learn will set guidelines for long duration missions of the future, such as permanent space stations or journeys to other planets.

The information also may have far-reaching consequences in bringing benefits from space to mankind, especially in the survey of earth's hidden natural resources.

Donald K. Slayton, director of flight crew operations, said Sunday that Conrad, Kerwin and Weitz are "fully trained, confident and looking forward to getting the big one off tomorrow and riding the little one on Tuesday."

The astronauts Sunday sun-bathed on a Cape Kennedy beach after flying here from Houston, Tex., where they underwent final training.

When they board their orbiting laboratory, they will find "all the comforts of home, reports Conrad, the Skylab 1 commander. He is a veteran of three previous space trips, including a walk on the moon.

No more cramped quarters like the Mercury, Gemini or Apollo capsules. Skylab is as large as a three-bedroom house and has 60 times more volume than Apollo.

Private Bedrooms
Each astronaut will have his own bedroom. There is a kitchen and a pantry packed with a ton of food ranging from filet mignon to ice cream.

There's a shower and a toilet, stereo sets, books, changes of clothing, playing cards, a dart board, exercise machines and a picture window for viewing earth. And every seventh day will be a day of rest.

And the Skylab 1 crew will have a live-in doctor. Kerwin, a physician, will handle the medical experiments which have priority on the first mission. He has a dispensary elaborately equipped to monitor the health of the astronauts.

Upon reaching orbit Skylab will weigh 170,000 pounds. When the astronauts' spaceship hooks up with it, it will weigh a total of 199,750 pounds and will be 118 feet long.

With a total of six wing-like solar panels extended it will be a strange-looking space contraption. The panels convert the sun's rays to electrical energy.

In addition to the ferry vehicle, which is a modified Apollo ship, Skylab has four major sections:

— The 22-foot-diameter orbital workshop, two-stories high, which contains the astronauts' main living and working space. Bedrooms, kitchen, wardrobe and dispensary are located on the first floor. Upstairs is a storage and work area containing science equipment, a food freezer, water storage tank and film vaults.

Workshop
— Forward of the workshop is an airlock module, which serves as part of the passageway between the ferry ship and the workshop and which is the nerve center of the cluster. It contains heat and electrical controls and communications gear. It also will be a pressurization chamber for astronaut space walks.

— Also part of the passage is the multiple docking adapter, where the ferry ship docks, and which contains the controls of the solar observatory equipment and earth resources instruments.

— The telescope mount, the world's first manned solar observatory which contains six telescopes for studying the sun, stars and other celestial objects. It weighs 24,656 pounds.

The huge spacecraft will be visible in areas of the world that it streaks over at dawn and dusk. It will appear as a bright star.

The Skylab 1 astronauts are to return to earth June 12, setting up the laboratory for a visit by the Skylab 2 crew on Aug. 8. The Skylab 3 team is to rocket up to the lab on Nov. 9.

Dinner-Dance Ends MCC 10th Anniversary

More than a week of 10th anniversary activities for Manchester Community College climaxed with a dinner-dance Saturday night at Fiano's Restaurant in Bolton. Among those present were, from left, Dr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Lowe Jr.; Mr. and Mrs. William H. Curtis; and Dr. and Mrs. Robert H. Fenn. Dr. Lowe, now MCC president was dean at the college's founding; Dr. Curtis, retired Manchester High School superintendent was president under laws of the time which made the college a town agency; and Dr. Fenn, presently dean of faculty is one of the long-time faculty members of MCC. (Herald photo by Otiara)

ICC To Probe Attack
SAIGON (AP) — The International Commission of Control and Supervision unanimously agreed today to investigate Viet Cong charges that U.S. planes attacked Communist territory in South Vietnam in violation of the cease-fire agreement.

The United States denied the charges in advance of the meeting today of the commission.

To Visit Managua
MEXICO CITY (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers flies to Managua today to inspect the preliminary rebuilding of the city crumpled by an earthquake last December.

The U.S. Embassy was among the many buildings destroyed in the quake, and Rogers during his brief visit will inaugurate the new embassy offices and lay the cornerstone for a hospital being built with U.S. assistance.

Nicaragua is the second of eight countries Rogers is visiting in a 17-day Latin American tour that is a forerunner of a similar trip by President Nixon later this year.

Gold Price Rises
LONDON (AP) — The price of gold reached $100 an ounce in early trading today on Europe's free bullion markets, and the U.S. dollar dropped.

Gold hit the $100 level shortly after the opening of the markets in both London and Zurich, the world's two biggest bullion markets. That was more than double the cost of the metal a year ago.

Armed Force Reduction Talks Open
VIENNA (AP) — The East West talks to arrange for negotiations on a reduction of armed forces in central Europe opened here today with a nine minute meeting.

The first gathering dealt only with organizational details such as the seating order. Delegates agreed to meet again Tuesday.

The Russians have for the first time publicly termed the meetings of "great importance" and "great significance," raising hopes they might be resolved to negotiate seriously on the balanced troop reductions desired by the United States.

The 19 nations were still months away at least from getting down to talking about how many of which nation's troops might be pulled back. There were hopes that such substantive negotiations could begin in the fall. But it has taken 14 weeks of wrangling to decide whether Hungary should participate in the conference as a full member or just as an observer.

The United States finally forced Britain and its other allies to yield to the Soviet demand that Hungary get observer status only.

Chamber Breakfasts This Week

The Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce is conducting two breakfast sessions this week which will result in the program of work for the 1973-74 fiscal year.

The first session is tomorrow at 8 a.m. at The Colony Room of the Steak Out in Talcottville. The second session will be Thursday morning, same time, same place, as the Tuesday session.

The purpose of the sessions is to determine the priority projects in which the Chamber should devote itself in terms of both time and money.

Richard G. Clark, Chamber's executive vice president, said it is of utmost importance that a broad section of the membership be represented to establish guidelines for the Goals and Priorities Committee.

At the opening meeting Tuesday, major urban problems facing Greater Manchester will be identified. The second session will reduce the list to five priority urban issues. The Chamber will then concentrate its time and money to these five priority issues.

Clark stressed that each session will last only one hour.

Double-Deck Bus Hauls Hashish
BOSTON (AP) — Customs agents planned to resume dismantling a London double-decker bus today in which they had discovered 750 pounds of hashish in a false ceiling.

Five persons, members of the same family, were arrested after agents, aided by a detective dog named "Duke," spent 12 hours Saturday dismantling the bus to find the drug. Agents estimated its value at $1.5 million.

The bus, which had been converted to a camper, arrived aboard the SS Iran Shahr from Cochin, India, agents said.

Electric saws, hammers, crowbars and other tools have been used by 10 agents in the search. In the area between the ceiling of the first deck and the floor of the second, agents said they found two 12 foot rows, 18 inches wide and eight inches deep, crammed with hashish.

The drug was wrapped in plastic bags molded to resemble imitation footwear soles.

Arrested were John Murray, 24, and his wife, Kathy, 23, of Lake City, Calif.; Richard Murray, 20, and his wife, Patricia, 20, and Dennis Murray, 23, all of Walnut Creek, Calif.

Agents said the five bought the bus in London for $600 and spent $9,000 to remodel it, making the interior look like a plush cabin cruiser.

The five paid the captain of the ship $5,000 to be carried aboard as crew members, agents said.

U.S. law holds the captain liable for drugs smuggled aboard the ship and subjects him to a fine of $25 per ounce, agents said, estimating the penalty in this case at about $300,000.

Officials of the Republican party could not be reached for comment. A spokesman for Republican Gov. Thomas J. Meskill said the governor would have no immediate comment on the reports.

The Hartford Courant said in copyrighted stories published Sunday and today that people interested in getting a civil service job or advancing in their present posts sometimes are advised to get their Democratic and independent friends to sign "changeover" forms transferring their affiliation to the Republican party.

People who have excelled in collecting the forms have found the road to jobs and promotions easier, the paper said. Civil service employees are barred by law from receiving favors as a result of political activity.

The forms are legally required to be notarized in the presence of the person signing them. But the Courant said many of the forms have been signed by patrons in bars and restaurants and notarized afterward by GOP justices of the peace.

The paper said most of the notarizing activity occurs in Hartford, but that "suspect applications" have also been located in New Britain, New Haven and Meriden.

The Courant said many interviews for state jobs are held at GOP offices. Applicants are

Butz 'Inquisition' Charge Called 'Absurdity'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A member of President Nixon's Cabinet says the Senate Watergate investigating committee is launched on a "political inquisition" by a publicity-hungry chairman.

The hard-line attack by Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz was dismissed by Chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., as an "absurdity." The exchange came as the committee prepared to open public hearings and coincided with several new developments in the spreading Watergate scandal.

—Former acting FBI director L. Patrick Gray III was said by The Washington Post to have been told by two FBI officials several weeks after the Watergate break-in there were signs of a coverup.

The Post quoted sources as saying the officials urged Gray to alert Nixon but that he refused on grounds it might appear he was seeking presidential guidance.

It could not be determined, the Post said, if this occurred before a July 8 telephone call in which Gray reportedly told Nixon he was disturbed that actions by White House aides were confusing the FBI's Watergate investigation.

—One of those aides, John W. Dean III, ousted White House counsel, was reported by Time magazine to have been asked by Nixon two months ago to sign a virtual confession that he was the only White House aide to cover up facts in the Watergate case.

—Dean, who has vowed he will not be made a scapegoat in the case, was quoted in an interview with Newsweek magazine as saying he did not write the report which Nixon said was the basis for his Aug. 29 statement that no aide then in the White House was involved in Watergate.

"Here was the President of the United States reassuring the American people on the basis of a report that didn't exist," Newsweek quoted Dean as saying.

A similar report was carried by Time which quoted an associate of Dean saying Dean made no Watergate investigation for Nixon, despite widespread assumptions to the contrary.

Dean was widely reported to have conducted such a probe and former FBI Director Gray told the Senate Judiciary Committee that Dean sat in on FBI interrogations of White House staff members.

Time reported Dean was called into Nixon's office in March and asked to sign two papers. It said one was a virtual confession, accepting all blame for concealing facts in the case and, in effect, absolving others. It said the other was Dean's resignation.

According to the Time account, Dean refused to sign either paper and also refused to draft his own letter of resignation. Returning to Nixon's office later, Time said, Dean was told by the President he must "shoulder the burden" and that there would be no full "airing of the case." Dean was fired April 30.

Dean is one of a list of 20 witnesses so far scheduled to appear before the Senate's Watergate investigating committee which opens public hearings Thursday.

The work of the committee was praised Sunday by its ranking Republican member, Sen. Howard H. Baker of Tennessee, as the "most non-partisan important inquiry I have ever seen."

As Baker was saying his fears had proved groundless that the four Democrats on the seven-member committee would take partisan advantage, the panel's objectivity was attacked by Agriculture Secretary Butz.

Butz told a news conference the Senate investigation is an inquisition conducted "largely for political reasons" and called Chairman Ervin "a publicity-seeking senator."

In his reply, Ervin noted every Republican in the Senate voted to set up the committee, suggested Butz stick to agriculture.

Trinity College Marking 150th Year of Service

HARTFORD (AP) — College life never can return to the way it was before the disruptions of the late sixties, according to the president of Trinity College.

"As things have settled down since 1970 and you have a change in the climate, there are many of my colleagues who suggest we can go back to the old ways of doing things," Dr. Theodore D. Lockwood said.

"But this is short-sighted. I don't believe that things haven't changed in a fundamental way."

Lockwood, interviewed as the college began observations this week of its 150th anniversary, said the greatest lesson of the turbulent years is that "we have to be quite ready to experiment. I don't think education will ever work if you're unwilling to take risks."

"We want to be very alert to whatever changes may occur in student interest," he said. "And we have tried to find new ways in which to work with the community in terms of the resources we have available."

Lockwood pointed to Trinity's Individualized Degree Program as one of its greatest departures from tradition. The program permits community members who can't attend classes because of work or family obligations to earn a degree through units of independent study agreed upon with Trinity faculty.

"We have traditionally restricted our student body to persons between the ages of 18 and 22," he said. "Now we want to experiment with a different approach to education. All of us need to find some alternatives for older people. But few have looked outside of traditional classroom instruction."

Trinity is in a strong position to try such programs because of a high ratio of faculty to its 1,600 students, its 500,000-volume library and its status as a small college, Lockwood said.

NO WAY OUT FOR DEFENDER

South noticed the momentary hesitation and read it what it was. He therefore planned his play on the assumption that East had all of the missing high cards.

Declarer won the second trick with a high trump and led a club toward dummy. West properly played low, and South finessed with dummy's ten.

East's Only Hope
East won with the jack of clubs and looked for a way out. It was obviously fatal to lead clubs or diamonds, so East led the ace of hearts as his only hope.

Declarer ruffed in dummy, returned to his hand with a trump and discarded dummy's ten club on the queen of hearts. Now South led his last club and played dummy's last club, the king.

East had to take the ace of clubs, but there was no escape. If East returned a diamond, dummy would get a free finesse. If East returned a club or a heart, dummy would ruff while South discarded his losing diamond. South was sure to make his game contract no matter what East did.

"THE WAY I HEARD IT"

by John Gruber

Last Wednesday evening Arthur Winograd brought the Subscription Concerts of the Hartford Symphony Orchestra to a close for another season, his ninth here. The program included the Overture to Verdi's "Forza del destino," the Bizet "Symphony in C major," and Stravinsky's "Sacre du printemps."

After nine seasons Mr. Winograd is a little better than when he first came here but not much. He remains what the French call a "bateur," which translates as "beater," which seems completely concerned with keeping the orchestra together, matters of period and style do not seem to concern him so that his readings in general are uninspired, however accurate they may be.

The best performed number was the Stravinsky work, which he has done here before and done very well, as a matter of fact. But this is really a ballet score and depends for its effect on a steady, pervasive beat. This Mr. Winograd has, and the effect was good. The work itself is showing its age, however. You still feel the vitality well beyond when I was there in December.

They have stopped producing opera in roccoco "Cavalletti Theater" which was so small that the deficits were overwhelming. "What's the Matter With Helen," 10:30

Today's Thought

Faith is a gift of God. It is not a material that can be seen, heard, smelled, tasted or touched; but is as real as anything that can be perceived with these senses.

One can be aware of Faith as easily as one can be aware of earth. Faith is as certain as the existence of water. Faith is as sure as the taste of an apple, the fragrance of a rose, the sound of thunder, the sight of the sun, the feel of a loving touch.

Hope is a wish, a longing for something not now possessing, but with the expectation of getting it.

Faith adds surety to the expectation of hope.

Dr. Joseph Castagna, superintendent of schools, has been given authority by the Board of Education to reinstate the practice of withholding final report cards and diplomas if students failed to pay their library charges, library fines and lunch charges, with an amnesty period feature for library books that might involve a fine.

The reinstatement of this practice resulted because many high school students are in arrears.

Fifty-one notices for high school students were sent home with no result, 25 of them for seniors.

Only one board member opposed the practice, John Esche (R). At the recent town election, Esche won a seat on the school board for a two-year vacancy due to the resignation of William Grunke.

College Plans Course In Communications

New options for concentrated study in broadcasting, publications and public relations firms.

The Media Associate program was designed by Manchester Community College (MCC) will be available to students in the fall semester. The Media Associate program is the only college program of its kind in the Greater Hartford area, and one of very few in New England.

Besides the special media courses, the MCC program includes courses in general academic subjects to provide a broader background than the media courses alone would provide. Furthermore, students earn some college credits for work undertaken within the program at area radio and television stations and public relations offices.

Graduates of the MCC program who have majored in broadcast journalism, editorial and advertising positions with newspapers, trade journals and other periodicals.

Those who select the broadcast option will be prepared to work at radio or television stations where they may write copy for broadcast, announce news and commercials, produce programs or sell advertising time. The public relations option will prepare students for employment with public relations departments in large businesses, health and charity organizations.

W.J. Godfrey Gourley, who has delighted audiences with his humorous talks and with his roles in Gilbert and Sullivan productions, will be the guest speaker Thursday night, at a dinner honoring Robert Digan, Manchester's coordinator of youth services.

The dinner will be at 7:30 p.m. at the Manchester Country Club. A social hour at 6:30 will precede it. Gourley is a member of the committee planning the tribute to Digan. Vincent Dianni will serve as master of ceremonies. The honorary chairman is State Comptroller Nathan Agostinelli.

Gourley, founder and head of Medical Business Management in Manchester, is a past president of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce and past president of the Kiwanis Club of Manchester. He is a member of the Drug Advisory Council and its past president.

The Thursday dinner will be one of honor as well as honor, with Digan in for some speaking, in addition to toasting.

New options for concentrated study in broadcasting, publications and public relations firms.

The Media Associate program was designed by Manchester Community College (MCC) will be available to students in the fall semester. The Media Associate program is the only college program of its kind in the Greater Hartford area, and one of very few in New England.

Besides the special media courses, the MCC program includes courses in general academic subjects to provide a broader background than the media courses alone would provide. Furthermore, students earn some college credits for work undertaken within the program at area radio and television stations and public relations offices.

Graduates of the MCC program who have majored in broadcast journalism, editorial and advertising positions with newspapers, trade journals and other periodicals.

Those who select the broadcast option will be prepared to work at radio or television stations where they may write copy for broadcast, announce news and commercials, produce programs or sell advertising time. The public relations option will prepare students for employment with public relations departments in large businesses, health and charity organizations.

W.J. Godfrey Gourley, who has delighted audiences with his humorous talks and with his roles in Gilbert and Sullivan productions, will be the guest speaker Thursday night, at a dinner honoring Robert Digan, Manchester's coordinator of youth services.

The dinner will be at 7:30 p.m. at the Manchester Country Club. A social hour at 6:30 will precede it. Gourley is a member of the committee planning the tribute to Digan. Vincent Dianni will serve as master of ceremonies. The honorary chairman is State Comptroller Nathan Agostinelli.

Gourley, founder and head of Medical Business Management in Manchester, is a past president of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce and past president of the Kiwanis Club of Manchester. He is a member of the Drug Advisory Council and its past president.

The Thursday dinner will be one of honor as well as honor, with Digan in for some speaking, in addition to toasting.

MCC Offering Pool Care Course

A training program for swimming pool operators will be offered this month and next by the Division of Summer Session and Extension Services at Manchester Community College.

Classes will meet for six Tuesday evenings beginning tomorrow, from 7:30 to 10 p.m. in room 13 on the main campus on Bidwell street.

The course is for persons who are responsible for the operating and maintenance of pools at hotels, resorts, schools and municipalities as well as for the private home owner who wishes to learn how to maintain and operate his pool in the most satisfactory and efficient manner.

Without proper maintenance during the swimming season, pools are likely to show high turbidity (sediment in suspension), inadequate disinfection, improper acid-base balance, malfunctioning filters and other undesirable conditions.

The instructor will be John Thompson, a faculty member at Housatonic Community College, who was a pool manufacturer's agent and was self-employed in servicing pools and selling products for maintaining them. Guest lecturers will attend several of the class meetings.

For information concerning tuition and registration, call the Division of Summer Session and Extension Services at 646-4900, extension 384 or 385.

Building A New Team

President Nixon is in the position of a coach who loses a number of first string players in the middle of the season and must recruit replacements.

Nixon is being hurt by the smelly aura of Watergate. Some critics agree with Ralph Nader's assessment that Nixon was not honest in his report to the people. However, Senator George McGovern, defeated rival for the presidency, told the American Society of Newspaper Editors he believes Nixon's denial of any personal involvement in the Watergate wiretapping and expressed support for the President's efforts to restore his leadership.

Nixon's choice of Elliot Richardson as attorney general with complete authority over the Watergate investigation, including the power to name a special prosecutor, ran into immediate criticism that he should have named a special prosecutor of high standing, not a member of his own administration.

Congress was not satisfied. A handful of senators, led by Republican Charles Percy of Illinois, adopted a resolution calling upon the President to appoint a new chief prosecutor. One suggested Richardson's confirmation might be held up until that action is taken.

Nixon was reported annoyed by the Senate action but he should not allow his pique to prevent him or Richardson from acting on what appears to be sound advice. It would be a help to Richardson, who will have his hands full in turning over the Defense Department to a successor and of rebuilding trust in the Justice Department as reflecting his own integrity and high principles.

Meantime, Washington observers engaged in speculation about further indictments in the Watergate affair.

A Senate Committee is preparing for televised hearings into the Watergate affair about May 15, providing a political forum of doubtful value. The Grand Jury is the proper legal investigative agency and is bound by the process of law. The Senate Committee is not.

The public will watch the public display but should not forget that the real investigation is taking place behind the Grand Jury doors.

A Blow At Civilization

Dealing with criminals is a losing game and demeaning to governments forced by humane consideration to bow to their demands. The latest pawn in too long a series of kidnappings and murders for political general is the American Consul General in Guadalajara.

Mexico promptly complied with the demands of the guerrilla gangsters by freeing 30 prisoners accused of bombings, bank robberies, shootings and subversion, and flying them to asylum in Cuba.

But the kidnappers countered with new demands before they finally released Terrance G. Leahardy.

President Luis Echeverria quickly yielded to the kidnappers in an effort to save the life of Leahardy and the American people are grateful. But the overriding problem remains — how to prevent foreign diplomats from being the targets of assassins and abductors.

Terrorists in South America, in the Middle East and in Africa, have brutally ripped aside the age-old obligation of host governments to treat foreign diplomats as honored guests whose persons were inviolate. Terrorists use of force in seizing diplomats or airliners is most difficult to combat because of the risk to the lives of innocent people.

Unfortunately, some governments have given tacit approval to terrorists' actions against their neighbors.

Others, strongly opposed to terrorism, like the United States and Mexico, have been unable to prevent it.

All governments should recognize the necessity for acting in concert to prevent and punish diplomatic abductions, airplane hijackings and wanton bombings. Terrorism is the enemy of government by law and order and of civilization itself.

The perpetrators are criminals and no high sounding title can change that primary fact, whether it is the Irish Republican Army, the Popular Liberation Front, or the Armed Revolutionary Forces of the People, as the Mexican guerrillas call themselves.

Tribute To Chambers

Dear sirs:
It seems fitting to remark at the time of the death of Austin Chambers of his many years of loyal giving to the Red Cross Blood Bank.
Austin gave his first pint of blood to the Red Cross in December of 1953. Between then and his last donation recently, eight and one-fourth gallons of his blood had flowed into the Red Cross system.
This in itself is an outstanding achievement but to those of us who knew him and saw him so frequently at the blood bank, this is only half the story.

Austin went through a great deal, more than most of us, to do his part. He had a blood pressure condition that many times would be below or above the Red Cross standards. It was a common occurrence to see him turned down for the blood pressure test after waiting a half hour for his turn and then go back and sit down for an hour or even two hours until he could pass.

He was so determined to do his part that many of the regular donors will carry the memory of his calm face and pleasant attitude as he waited patiently while others passed through. I believe I speak for all the many donors who knew him in saying that this written tribute is the very least we could do for him who gave us this fine example of unswerving determination and loyalty.

Max Lerner Comments Mr. Nixon's Legitimacy

CARLISLE, Pa. — A President's job is to govern — not to reign in theory but to rule in fact, from day to day, in all the small and big decisions. But to rule and govern there must be no question about his legitimacy. Otherwise every act of his will have to run a barrage of doubt.
Richard Nixon's crucial ordeal today is the ordeal of legitimacy. He goes on governing, grimly, tenaciously, and smiles in the photographs as if nothing had happened. But what happened is that his right to govern has been called in question, and therefore his capacity to govern is badly impaired.
Democratic societies usually don't think about legitimacy, as monarchial ones do. They take it for granted and go about their business, until a shadow falls across the men in charge. Then comes the shattering question: Do these fellows have the right to be in charge? Once the question gets posed, it is hard to get it out of your mind until it is answered.
In the end, in a functioning democracy, only the people themselves can answer it — not Congress or the diplomats or the military, not the press or commentators, or even the judges. For the question of Mr. Nixon's legitimacy rests on whether he is tolerably believable, and that can be answered only by whether the people want him to stay — want him hard enough to swallow their very palpable doubts about believing him.
In some other political systems the question of legitimacy often rests with the defense services. If the officers get politicized and decide that a government isn't legitimate, it is curtains for the government — even though the officers, with all their naked power, may have a hard time establishing their own legitimacy, as witness the Junta of Greek colonels. Even De Gaulle, at the height of the university revolt, had to go to the garisons to check on whether his government was still credible. Fortunately, this isn't true in the United States. The officers have not been politicized and are unlikely to be. They continue to keep the line sharp between their own functions and those in the civilian government which controls them.
The middle ranks you see here at the Army War College — lieutenant-colonels and colonels — don't restrict themselves to military strategy and hardware. They have a feel for current trends and realities in American society. And because they do they are as puzzled and heart sick as their civilian counterparts anywhere.
Perhaps more so, because their day-to-day currency is authority. They have to know

Capital Fare The Incredible

WASHINGTON — One night at supper Pa announced the incredible. Someone had broken into Goodwin Bros. clothing store and made off with $12 in cash money.
"Twelve dollars! My last blue serge suit had cost only $8.55 at Goodwin's. For that kind of money, you could ride a train 60 miles to Boston, rent a room for the night at the Touraine Hotel and still have train fare home. A boy could buy 24 big league baseballs for $12 and twice that many of the "junior" variety at the Five-and-Ten.
Moreover, the crime was unprecedented, worthy of the smudged eight-column banner on the front page of the Southbridge News. As far as we could recall, there had never before been a burglary in their town, although a few months earlier, I had asked Pa about a paragraph in the News reporting the arrest of a young man for a "statutory offense," assuming that theft was involved.
"How much did he steal?" I asked.
"Nothing," Pa snapped. "It's nothing that concerns you."
It was not until a week or so later that I learned from an older, more worldly friend that the youth was charged with "kissing a girl." Even that sophisticated had never heard the word rape.
But the break-in at Goodwin's was a proper subject for suppetime discussion — nothing "statutory" about it, no girl involved — so we children were permitted to put in our two-cents worth. The consensus was that Southbridge was getting to be as bad as that big city to the north, Worcester, a conclusion that I found scarcely exciting.
"I don't know what the country's coming to," Pa said. "It's enough to make a body lock his doors at night."
Such an eventuality was thrilling, but I didn't see how it could occur. We didn't have any door keys. Either none had come with that plain old white house or they had been long lost. Securing the house for a night consisted of simply closing the front, back, side-porch and shed doors against the weather. Indeed, on hot nights they were left open to permit any errant drafts to sweep through the house.
Nobody I knew locked their doors at night except Mrs. Martin, who lived in the big house across the street. Pa explained that Mrs. Martin was a widow and that a lady without a man in the house had a right to be a little nervous. Besides, it was Pa's oft-stated opinion that ladies didn't like fresh air because it brought on catarrh.
Even after the Goodwin burglary, we never locked our doors. Perhaps it was because even in that age keys and locks cost money, but I suspect Pa just wasn't about the change in the habits of a lifetime. In my melodramatic fashion, I suggested that he take Grandpa's Civil War musket down from the attic, but Pa laughed.
"That thing couldn't hit the barn door at point-blank range in the moonlight sun," he said.
But there was one scare. One summer morning when I came downstairs late for my oatmeal, bacon and eggs and griddle cakes I overheard my mother telling my big brother Ben that the night before Pa had seen "a man in overalls carrying a stick walking funny down South Street." Pa had gone out and sent the man on his way.
"Was he a robber?" I asked hopefully.
Of course not, replied Ma, perhaps trifling with the truth to reassure her flighty man-child. "He had had drink."

The Planning and Zoning Commission voted 4-1 in executive session after its recent meeting to extend in depth from 400 feet to 1,000 feet the business zone on Rt. 66 east of the Citizens Bank. Effective date of the change will be June 5, 1973.

A request for the extension had been received from Robert Tepper, who owns approximately 10 acres of land in the zone. At a public hearing, Tepper stated that he has a large retail business interested in moving into the area to occupy one of the five stores planned.
At the time of the hearing there was no opposition, and the American Legion, which owns the remainder of the land in the business zone, also requested that its portion be included in the zone extension.
It was the inclusion of the legion property that caused commission member Sal Mastandrea to vote against the extension. Mastandrea felt that this was not the subject of the original request, as warned, for the zone change.

The commission approved Miller's request for a three-lot subdivision with no stipulations.

Foot Health Week

"Years of foot neglect can have a tragic effect on the health and spirit of the elderly," said Dr. Steven Buchbinder, president of the Hartford County Podiatry Society.

"We have found it true in our area, and in studies conducted across the country, that foot disorders — and the limitation of mobility they can cause — bring on feelings of dependence and helplessness which is harmful to both the physical and emotional health of the aged," he said.

According to Dr. Buchbinder, many older people are confined to bed or restricted in activity simply because of foot disorders that could have, and still can be, corrected by professional care.

He cited a recent study conducted in a geriatric care center near Philadelphia which uncovered 81 foot disorders among the 531 residents. "The recent White House Conference on Aging also underscored the need for greater attention to the foot health needs of our aged population, and called for expansion of services available to these patients under Medicare," he said.

"Calling foot health an important part of the entire family's health care routine," Dr. Buchbinder said, "regular check-ups are the best way to keep working throughout the retirement years."

"And the geriatric patient, unable to move about on pain free feet, is more easily motivated towards total rehabilitation," he said.

Camarco Sparkles With One-Hitter

By Chris Blake

Manchester Community College dropped two out of three games this weekend to sport a 7-7 record. Saturday the Cougars split a twinnish with South Central C.C., winning the first and losing the nightcap, 5-2, in extra innings. Sunday Manchester lost to Eastern Connecticut State College 7-0.

In the opener Saturday, Ray Camarco pitched a sparkling one-hit shutout for MCC. The only South Central hit was a bloop single to center field in the first inning. The tall right-hander struck out eight and didn't walk a batter.

MCC started the scoring in the second inning. Al Falco walked, stole second and scored on Camarco's two-out single.

In the fourth inning the Cougars got two more runs. South Central's hitting led to the rallies. With the bases loaded, MCC's Jim Lehan hit a grounder to third, Bill Stevenson forced one runner out home, but the catcher's throw, Bill Stevenson forced one runner out home, but the catcher's throw, Bill Stevenson forced one runner out home...

Yaz Gets Help, Then Responds

BOSTON (AP) — Tommy Harper and Marty Pattin, two refugees from the Milwaukee Brewers, did it all, with Carl Yastrzemski, the Boston Red Sox acknowledged leader, joining in the fun.

Harper hit his first grand slam, Pattin homered a strong seven-inning and Yastrzemski belted a pair of home runs Sunday as the Red Sox came from behind for an 8-3 victory over the Cleveland Indians before a crowd of 17,171 at Fenway Park.

"It was nice," Manager Eddie Koza said. "We spotted them three quick runs and it came back. Tommy came through with the big hit. Marty pitched his second good game in the Cleveland Indians before a crowd of 17,171 at Fenway Park."

Yankee Home Runs Don't Excite Houk

NEW YORK (AP) — The home runs by Bobby Murcer, Roy White, Ron Blomberg and Graig Nettles helped the New York Yankees manager, Tom Stoltner, say that he was not excited by the team's recent success.

Stoltner told a wicked liner off his right side in the second inning of Sunday's doubleheader against Baltimore, a shot off the bat of Brooks Robinson.

"It might have been enough to knock the Yankees' burier out of the game — but Stoltner was still around in the eighth inning, nursing a 4-0 lead that the Yankees held for victory in the opening game of the doubleheader. The Orioles came back to take the nightcap 9-6."

"He really got hit," Houk said of the bullet back to the mound. "I thought he'd have come out in the second. Most pitchers would have come out right then. I was amazed he went as far as he did."

"He went until Tommy Davis and Boog Powell hit successive singles in the sixth inning. Houk quickly returned to the mound and waved in Sparky Lyle from the bullpen."

"The reason I got him out at that point," Houk explained, "was to give Sparky a lit-

Front Row Post For Rutherford

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — There apparently won't be any 200-mile-per-hour laps at Indianapolis Motor Speedway this May, when Arthur Rutherford, a cool-headed Texan who bears the scars of battle, could corner a race.

The 35-year-old veteran driver from Ft. Worth, Tex., victim of a trail of broken engines and parts at Indianapolis over the years, captured the front-row pole position for the May 28 200-mile race in first-round qualifying Saturday.

He did it by pushing his team McLaren car around the 1/4-mile oval at a four-lap speed of 198.13 m.p.h. to top Bobby Unser's old 18-mile tandem per hour. His fast lap of 199.71 m.p.h. missed the 200 mark by 21 one-hundredths of a second.

A few minutes later, Rutherford was telling newsmen: "It wouldn't hurt my feelings a bit if they allowed these cars down a few miles an hour, or even more. We're going too fast for close competition."

The first weekend of qualifying for the world's richest auto race - the 1973 Indy 500 - ended Saturday night. The 30 qualifiers averaged a stinging 127.37 m.p.h. - almost nine miles per hour faster than last year - and forecast a minimum speed of almost 180 miles per hour.

The weekend race was a mixture of blinding speed, so high that it was difficult to see, and tragedy.

Art Pollard, a 17-year veteran and one of the best liked drivers in racing, was killed in a serious, grinding crash of his Cobre-Eagle during a warm-up session that preceded Saturday's initial qualifying runs.

Pollard, who had celebrated his 46th birthday in the garage area exactly a week before his death, was the 36th driver to lose his life at the nation's oldest facility.

There was gloom in the garages after Pollard's crash, but it wasn't noticeable on the track as driver after driver went to the line for a shot at the 200-mile race. A narrow miss by Rutherford, a handsome figure of a man who shows barn scars on his face and a withered arm that resulted from a near-fatal crash in a sprint car a few years ago.

Bobby Unser, who had posted one and four lap records of 196.78 and 195.90 to claim the pole position for the 1972 race, was the second best qualifier with a speed of 188.18 m.p.h., good for a start in the middle of the front row.

The other front row position for three-abreast start went to Mark Donohue, the 1972 winner who qualified one of Roger Penske's McLarens at 197.41 m.p.h.

Brewers Atop Standings

NEW YORK (AP) There's something besides brew in Milwaukee... it's giving the town's baseball fans that old gamut feeling.

Freshly translated, gemutlich means joie de vivre. If you insist on English it's that warm feeling inside that comes from good companionship... and a first-place baseball team.

The good burghers of Milwaukee knew the feeling well when the Braves were crowned National League pennant winners in the late 1950s before they marched to Atlanta.

"Now it's the Milwaukee Brewers atop the American League East by one game following Sunday's 6-5 victory over Detroit on Dave May's 10th-inning home run, his second of the game."

Elsewhere, Baltimore and New York inched into second place by splitting a doubleheader, the Yankees taking the opener 4-0 and the Orioles rallying to pull out the nightcap 9-6. In other games, Boston trounced Cleveland 9-4, California blanked the Chicago White Sox 5-0, Minnesota downed Kansas City 4-0 and Texas trounced Atlanta 7-2.

The Brewers trailed Detroit 3-1 but scored three times in the fifth inning to get a 5-3 victory.

Twins - Royals
Minnesota's Dick Woodson held Kansas City hitless until Steve Hervey's punt single in the sixth inning and finished with a three-hitter. Danny Thompson's double, Tony Oliva's single and double, Jerry Terrell's sacrifice fly and Rod Carew's homer accounted for the Twins' runs.

Rangers - A's
Sonny Siebert, who had pitched only 2-2 1/2 innings for Boston before being traded, hurled five shutout innings in his debut with Texas and Jeff Burroughs slammed a two-run homer as the Rangers whipped Oakland.

Front Row Post For Rutherford

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — There apparently won't be any 200-mile-per-hour laps at Indianapolis Motor Speedway this May, when Arthur Rutherford, a cool-headed Texan who bears the scars of battle, could corner a race.

The 35-year-old veteran driver from Ft. Worth, Tex., victim of a trail of broken engines and parts at Indianapolis over the years, captured the front-row pole position for the May 28 200-mile race in first-round qualifying Saturday.

He did it by pushing his team McLaren car around the 1/4-mile oval at a four-lap speed of 198.13 m.p.h. to top Bobby Unser's old 18-mile tandem per hour. His fast lap of 199.71 m.p.h. missed the 200 mark by 21 one-hundredths of a second.

A few minutes later, Rutherford was telling newsmen: "It wouldn't hurt my feelings a bit if they allowed these cars down a few miles an hour, or even more. We're going too fast for close competition."

The first weekend of qualifying for the world's richest auto race - the 1973 Indy 500 - ended Saturday night. The 30 qualifiers averaged a stinging 127.37 m.p.h. - almost nine miles per hour faster than last year - and forecast a minimum speed of almost 180 miles per hour.

The weekend race was a mixture of blinding speed, so high that it was difficult to see, and tragedy.

Art Pollard, a 17-year veteran and one of the best liked drivers in racing, was killed in a serious, grinding crash of his Cobre-Eagle during a warm-up session that preceded Saturday's initial qualifying runs.

Pollard, who had celebrated his 46th birthday in the garage area exactly a week before his death, was the 36th driver to lose his life at the nation's oldest facility.

There was gloom in the garages after Pollard's crash, but it wasn't noticeable on the track as driver after driver went to the line for a shot at the 200-mile race. A narrow miss by Rutherford, a handsome figure of a man who shows barn scars on his face and a withered arm that resulted from a near-fatal crash in a sprint car a few years ago.

Bobby Unser, who had posted one and four lap records of 196.78 and 195.90 to claim the pole position for the 1972 race, was the second best qualifier with a speed of 188.18 m.p.h., good for a start in the middle of the front row.

The other front row position for three-abreast start went to Mark Donohue, the 1972 winner who qualified one of Roger Penske's McLarens at 197.41 m.p.h.

Brewers Atop Standings

NEW YORK (AP) There's something besides brew in Milwaukee... it's giving the town's baseball fans that old gamut feeling.

Freshly translated, gemutlich means joie de vivre. If you insist on English it's that warm feeling inside that comes from good companionship... and a first-place baseball team.

The good burghers of Milwaukee knew the feeling well when the Braves were crowned National League pennant winners in the late 1950s before they marched to Atlanta.

"Now it's the Milwaukee Brewers atop the American League East by one game following Sunday's 6-5 victory over Detroit on Dave May's 10th-inning home run, his second of the game."

Elsewhere, Baltimore and New York inched into second place by splitting a doubleheader, the Yankees taking the opener 4-0 and the Orioles rallying to pull out the nightcap 9-6. In other games, Boston trounced Cleveland 9-4, California blanked the Chicago White Sox 5-0, Minnesota downed Kansas City 4-0 and Texas trounced Atlanta 7-2.

The Brewers trailed Detroit 3-1 but scored three times in the fifth inning to get a 5-3 victory.

Twins - Royals
Minnesota's Dick Woodson held Kansas City hitless until Steve Hervey's punt single in the sixth inning and finished with a three-hitter. Danny Thompson's double, Tony Oliva's single and double, Jerry Terrell's sacrifice fly and Rod Carew's homer accounted for the Twins' runs.

Rangers - A's
Sonny Siebert, who had pitched only 2-2 1/2 innings for Boston before being traded, hurled five shutout innings in his debut with Texas and Jeff Burroughs slammed a two-run homer as the Rangers whipped Oakland.
