Training Required

A story in Wednesday's Herald about town firemen graduating from the New Haven Fire Training Center incorrectly stated that training isn't required for town firemen. The story should have said that training at the New Haven facility isn't required, although several town firemen have participated in classes there. Firemen who don't get training in New Haven are trained in Manchester. Town Fire Chief John Rivosa said.

Farm League The Tigers beat the Mets 11 to 8 in a game Wednesday. Stephen Brown was the winning pitcher, David Hooper and Brian Winkler, Tigers players, each had triples.

Sesquicentennial Drummer Peter F. Mietzner, 78-year-old poet-drummer, and John Golet, fifer, of Moodus, will represent the "Continental Spirit of '76" in the Sesquicentennial parade on June 23. Mietzner, the surviving member of the local patriotic group, was named ancient drummer of the year in 1960 at age 65. A retired toolmaker, he has drummed at several commemorative celebrations on the East Coast and throughout the state. (Herald photo by O'Hara)

Poet-Drummer Ready For Manchester Parade

JUNE TOMPKINS (Herald Reporter) The only beat that counts to Peter F. Mietzner of Moodus, St. is that of a drum. As he has said in a poem he wrote in 1950: "I was back in nineteen-hundred, Just fifty years ago, when I was When first I heard the roll of drums, And I did my best to drum, About fifty-years in the evening, The moon was shining brightly, In a little village called Moodus, 'Twas a country place remote, Where ancient drumming reigned supreme. Or a three stroke roll a riff, Where the men who bought this ancient art, Were strict and knew their stuff, Each blow was struck distinctly, For a rousing drum and so, Rhythm, time and execution, Were drilled into the bone, And a single drum made music, When one chose to play alone." Mietzner bought his first drum for $12. He had to work 240 hours at 5 cents an hour to raise the money. His present drum, the one he will use in the Manchester Sesquicentennial parade on June 23 is an Eli Brown drum and was made in Windsor in 1838. The original tag is still inside the drum. "The Moodus Drum and Fife Corps of which Mietzner was a member for over fifty years is so named, with drum first in the title, because at the time of its origin in 1860, the drum was considered more important than the fife. Mietzner recalls that the

Watergate Espionage Linked To Mitchell

WASHINGTON (AP) — The disgrace and removal of the Democratic party's most experienced professional, the real goal of the Nixon campaigners who planned the Watergate raid, Senate investigators have learned. Confessing publicly to conspiracy, obstruction of justice and perjury, and protected from prosecution by a grant of immunity, Magruder said he had relayed details of the espionage plan to the office of the President's chief of staff, H.R. Haldeman. "President Nixon probably didn't know about it but it was Lawrence F. O'Brien, then the Democratic national chairman and a foe much-feared for his political expertise. The idea, he said, was to gain information that would discredit O'Brien and thus the Democratic administration. Confessing publicly to conspiracy, obstruction of justice and perjury, and protected from prosecution by a grant of immunity, Magruder said he had relayed details of the espionage plan to the office of the President's chief of staff, H.R. Haldeman. "President Nixon probably didn't know about it but it

Earthquake No Surprise To UConn Geophysist

GROTON (AP) — A Connecticut geophysist says Thursday night's earthquake was not unexpected in the state. "Personally, as a seismologist, I was not surprised that we had a quake of this size," said Dr. E.F. Chiburis, who operates the University of Connecticut's four-station earthquake monitoring system in the state. "No area of the world is quake-free, there are only differences in degree," he said. Chiburis classified Thursday's tremor, which occurred about 9:12 p.m., as "mild to moderate quake" based on the data collected by his monitoring equipment. The earthquake rippled across eastern Canada and the northeastern United States for between five seconds to nearly half a minute, causing no property damage. Chiburis said his stations reported the magnitude of the tremor was between 4.5 and 5 on the Richter scale. UConn has earthquake detection stations at the university's Marine Sciences Institute at Avery Point in Groton, Chaplin, Conn., Bridgeport and on Talbot Mountain. Preliminary data, Chiburis said, indicated "this is probably an adjustment in the earth's crust. "It may not happen again for decades. On the other hand, it could indicate that more quakes will occur," he said. Residents of several towns in central and eastern Connecticut reported swaying buildings and shifting floors caused by the shaking. A clerk at St. Francis Hospital in Hartford said the shaking of the building made many patients nervous. In Windsor Locks, Mrs. John Sadowski said the rippling tremors made floors of her house "feel like they were rolling."

ECHS Graduation Rites Conducted In Cathedral

Hartford's St. Joseph Cathedral was its usual impressive setting for Thursday night's graduation exercises of the East Coast High School Class of 1973. Each of the 270 seniors who received diplomas in the 1 1/2-hour ceremony was in his glory, but as with most high school graduations, the parents, relatives, and friends were the real show. It was a pleasant, comfortable evening — a welcome change from last week's heat wave — for the ceremonies, which started right on time at 7:30 p.m. and were over at about 9 p.m. Hectic moments in the cathedral's lower chapel — where the seniors assembled, dressed in their caps and gowns, and lined up for the procession — preceded the march upstairs into the cathedral. The class slowly walked up the middle aisle to the accompaniment of organ and the mixed choir of underclassmen singing Bach's "Now Let Every Tongue Adore Thee." Concluding his brief remarks, Pinto said, "We challenge you to challenge us." The fast-moving ceremony then went on to the presentation of diplomas — by The Most Rev. Joseph F. Donnelly, auxiliary bishop of Hartford — which took nearly an hour. Names of the graduates were individually, and each student received the diploma and traditional handbook. The diploma presentation alternated between the young men and the young ladies, and as the end of the presentation ceremony ended, it was quite apparent that the girls outnumbered the boys by about 20. As each row of students left the pew to go forward for their diplomas, proud parents "fought" their way to the front of the cathedral to take snapshots. As each row of students moved forward, so did the rows of parents who wanted to preserve the moment in pictures. After the diploma presentations, graduates Dan E. Labelle, Nancy J. Mortarty, and Katherine A. Perleoni offered short readings. Following the readings there was a hymn — "To Jesus Christ Our Sovereign King" — and the smiling students then marched out to the recessional. "Sing to God with gladness," by St. Ignace of Loyola, filled the front vestibule of the cathedral and overflowed onto the front lawn at Farmington Ave. When the ceremonies ended, it had become dark outside, but the huge crowd still took its time in departing. More pictures of the ceremony are on Page 6; a list of the graduates is on Page 7. The list of graduates includes a code of one asterisk for members of the National Honor Society and two asterisks for National Merit Finalists.

WASHINGTON (AP) — George P. Shultz plans to stay on as Treasury secretary despite losing another economic debate with President Nixon. But a frustrated John B. Connally appears to be leaving. Connally's reasons go beyond the economic debate at the White House, however. The former Treasury secretary apparently was cut off from ready access to the President, and

UPPERCUT PLAY
By Alfred Sheinwold

The uppercut is a defensive ruff that compels declarer to overruff with a trump that the declarer can use for other purposes. This maneuver sometimes promotes a small trump to winning rank.

West overtook the jack of hearts, and East overtook with the ace. East then returned the jack of hearts, making it clear that he had started with only a doubleton in the suit.

South might well have three or four small hearts, in which case the unblocking play would put West in position to take at least three tricks on the run.

West overtook the jack of hearts with the queen, winning the second trick. He knew, of course, that South had started with only two hearts.

Nevertheless, West returned a heart at the third trick. The idea was to persuade East to ruff with as high a trump as possible. Naturally, West led the deuce of hearts for this purpose.

East ruffed high. Dummy played the seven of hearts, and East got the idea. He was expected to ruff, and he suspected that South was ready to overruff. Hence East ruffed with the jack of spades—an up-curt.

South had to overruff with the queen of spades. This play promoted West's ten of spades. South could draw one trump with the king and another with

About Town

The Old Codger's Cogitations

O.C.'s father impressed on his son's mind that a hunter should never leave a wounded animal to suffer if it was possible to kill it mercifully.

So one day the boy shot at a squirrel about to jump from a stone wall to a nearby hickory tree. O.C. found there was a crack that led upwards to a cavity in the tree trunk. There was some blood on the bark. That meant just one thing.

O.C. tried all the tricks he knew for pulling squirrels out of hollow trees but could not get that one. Then he walked about a half mile or more to a farm house to borrow an axe.

When he chopped enough to get the wounded squirrel out he saw the tail of another that must have gone in first. He repaid for that work for the axe.

There is a hardwood ridge with nut trees. There is a swamp with big squirrel burrow trees. There is a stone wall between two open lots that goes from ridge base to swamp. It's perfect gray squirrel highway on the wall when the light is good on the ground, through the top of the trees along the wall when the light is poor on the ground.

Returning home one day O.C. arrived at the wall after the sun had set but the sky was still light. He sat still only a few minutes before a gray was passing overhead. When it hit the ground it didn't move so O.C. stayed put. Soon another also landed dead.

It was getting pretty dark for shooting when the next one came down so O.C. picked up the last three and called it a day.

He can never know all about squirrels, they can spring so many surprises. One bitter cold day a pal and O.C. decided to quit and get home before we froze. The wind was blowing a gale and when we got where there was a thermometer it was 10 degrees above zero.

On an open side hill exposed to the wind was a small dead tree with a fork about 10 or 15 feet above the ground and there a bundle of leaves the size of a bushel basket. Whatever could it be that would build such a nest in such a place. We just had to find out so pushed the thing over and out of it ran two gray squirrels, the only two we got all day.

Once O.C. saw a gray squirrel go into a hole high up in a tree trunk. While watching he saw a brown leaf come up from the inside and plug up the hole. The wind got it loose so it floated away. Soon another leaf was packed into the hole from within.

How can anyone believe that squirrels don't reason? It's fun to see how boys can soak up their lessons. O.C. told one son that there were always gray squirrels in that grove ahead, but we wouldn't see any when we got there. We would each find a comfortable seat and then not move a muscle until a squirrel was in good position to be shot.

After only a few minutes a beautiful buck white-tailed deer came walking down to the

The board tabled, pending more information relative to the cost, a proposed $5,800 allocation for the first year cost of installing and maintaining burglar alarm systems in three schools. It removed from consideration a proposed $6,000 allocation for repairing the Globe Hollow Spillway.

The board approved nine additional appropriations to the current budget, all without accounts and all financed by equivalent grants or contributions.

Of the nine appropriations,

Some Rev-Share Funds Allocated

Under an item tabled from a previous meeting, the board approved a $2,254 appropriation to the Recreation Department, for special courses in arts and crafts and to be financed from fees received from the participants.

The board approved the transfer of $29,200 from an aggregate of six accounts into five others, approved a Suspense Tax Collection List of uncollected taxes, and approved early retirement for town employee Mary O'Brien.

Today's Thought
When Jesus began enlisting his army of committed men, their arms were not of this world. Their chief arm was an attitude that would give them the power to turn the other cheek, to go the second mile — to go even to death on a cross if necessary. If this was what Jesus had in mind, there should have been 12 other crosses with the 3 on Golgotha on Good Friday 2000 years ago.

The Tuition Question

The U.S. Supreme Court has ruled that Connecticut cannot prevent out-of-state students from becoming residents and therefore qualifying for lower tuition and fees at the University of Connecticut at Storrs.

The ruling will apply to all other states which have similar fee structures and statutes preventing students from becoming residents while attending school.

The interesting thing, however, is that immediately after the ruling, Gov. Thomas J. Meskill signed into law a bill which anticipated the adverse court decision and set out a new set of rules for out-of-state students wishing to save tuition dollars by becoming Connecticut citizens.

The bill requires the out-of-state student to be 18 or over and there can be no quarrel with this since 18 is the age of majority nationally and in the state. However, in a technical sense, it is possibly discriminatory to those few who may enroll in UConn or other units at age 17 since, if they are from out-of-state, they would be subject to out-of-state fees while the 17-year-old son or daughter of a Connecticut resident would not.

The real stickler in the new law, which may be challenged, is the requirement that the out-of-state student in order to qualify for state residency, and hence the lower tuition and fees, must be employed fulltime during the six-months residence period. He must also establish a domicile where the "intends to remain."

This we feel sets up a dual standard for residency in the state and is obviously aimed at making it extremely difficult for out-of-state students to qualify for resident status.

The problem facing the state is an economic one and we think the direction taken in the new act will not solve this problem because it will be challenged.

Rather than have intricate or difficult residency requirements, in order to become a bona fide Connecticut citizen, the state would do better to have a uniform tuition and fee schedule and give students credits based on the number of years they or their parents have lived in Connecticut and contributed taxes to the state. After all the whole idea of the lower state resident fee is to recognize that bona fide residents, have through taxes, have been contributing to the overall education costs whereas the out-of-state student has not.

In this way, the overall anticipated revenue from tuition and fees could be maintained without forcing some students to become "residents" in name only. A certain number of out-of-state students is good for any college. The problem, as we see it, is not to increase the burden on the taxpayers who are subsidizing higher education for Connecticut sons and daughters and yet keep the doors of our schools open to all.

Just as we give our senior citizens a tax break on the basis of prior contributions to the state, why can't we apply the same principle to long-term resident students on a sliding scale basis? This would eliminate the need for out-of-state students to seek "loopholes" in the law and the native student would benefit as he does now.

Instead of trying to penalize the outsider, we think it would be better to reward those who, by choice, have had the foresight to move to Connecticut for its many other advantages other than education; or, if native sons, have by choice remained Connecticut citizens for the same reasons.

Today In History

By The Associated Press
Today is Friday, June 15, the 166th day of 1973. There are 199 days left in the year.
Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1213, the Magna Carta was signed by King John of England at Runnymede.

On this date—
In 1520, Pope Leo X excommunicated Martin Luther from the Roman Catholic Church.
In 1752, Benjamin Franklin demonstrated the relationship between lightning and electricity when he launched a kite during a storm at Philadelphia.
In 1775, George Washington accepted command of the Continental Army.
In 1836, Arkansas became the 25th state.
In 1904, more than 1,000 persons died in a fire aboard the steamboat General Slocum off New York's Manhattan Island.
In 1940, the Germans outflanked the Maginot Line in France during World War II.

Capital Fare Free Lunch Theory

WASHINGTON — To understand the mentality of the student minority which closed down Antioch College in Yellow Springs, Ohio, for six violent weeks, one must ponder the statement of a student named Barbara Israel.

Testifying in a suit brought by four brave students for an injunction against the strikers, Miss Israel told the judge she expected to receive full course credit in Revolution and Spanish I for striking. The judge is foremost among those who are still too many nuts running our so-called institutions of higher learning. Antioch is foremost among these institutions, operating on what might be called the free-lunch theory. In 1970, the college instituted its free-lunch program designed to include "a real number of working class students on a sliding scale basis." This would eliminate the need for out-of-state students to seek "loopholes" in the law and the native student would benefit as he does now.

What there is a flaw in these "New Directions" programs is that while a college can do what it pleases with its own money, the college has no vested right to expect financial support from the Federal government for its courses in "creative conflict." The citizen in Lubbock, Tex., or Reading, Pa., who gets it up for the income tax every year might well suggest other uses for his money. Somebody always has to pay for a free lunch.

Max Lerner Comments Presidential Watchmen

WASHINGTON — It is that much of its growth is due to lethal weaponry, to the cascading role of "intelligence" services, to the real and fancied threats to national security. A man with poor judgment, an impetuous man, a sick man, a power-mad man—each would be dangerous in the post. Even an able, sensitive man needs stronger safeguards around him than exist today.

What then, shall we do? For the next three years, whatever happens to Mr. Nixon, we need a coalition government for the reasons I have discussed earlier. Of the top Cabinet posts — state, defense, treasury, justice, interior, HEW — three should go to Democrats to make it a government of national unity.

Several other safeguards: a stiff war-powers bill like the one in Congress now, giving Congress the power over a war after four months, should be passed and signed. Presidential encroachments—like imposing, unwatched, unchecked and the extension of executive privilege—should be given up. Presidential press conferences should be required, so that no more than a month is allowed to pass without one.

All of this, including a bipartisan Cabinet, could be done by informal agreement, whether Mr. Nixon manages to ride out the storm or Agnew succeeds him or both resign (a pretty far-fetched possibility) and someone else is chosen. Such a coalition setup would be a stopgap affair, but it would do much to restore confidence in the Presidency at home and abroad.

In the longer run, however, we should also be linking of a more permanent setup, probably by a constitutional amendment, which would create a kind of executive board to help and safeguard the Presidency. I have in mind the Vice President, the top six Cabinet members, the heads of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the National Security Council and minority leaders of the Senate.

Witness the supreme instance of Truman, as much under Mr. Nixon as under Kennedy and Johnson. It grew in Europe, too. Witness the supreme instance of Truman, as much under Mr. Nixon as under Kennedy and Johnson. It grew in Europe, too. True, the navy-led revolt against Papadopoulos is one possible avenue of return to democratic rule. Likewise, by treating the parliamentary leaders of Greece as political vagrants, the U.S. has helped to bring about a moderate and conservative democratic elements who have managed to stay out of Papadopoulos's political hair. Most important, the Nixon administration has been blind to the hopes of the Caramanlis, the conservative leader now in exile in Paris (who served as elected prime minister from 1965 to 1968). When Caramanlis, in his major statement of April 22, formally proposed the return of the King to Athens, to serve as focal point for restoring parliamentary government, the Nixon administration blew its chance to give him a powerful assist. Instead, the U.S. did and said nothing.

Naturally, then, Papadopoulos felt secure, following the aborted navy-led revolt, in the ruthless way he dealt with these two conservative pillars of potential opposition: the King and the politicians. To him, the King and the politicians are coming home to roost.

Girl Scout Troop 668
Bolton Junior Girl Scout Troop 668 held its annual banquet and awards night at St. Maurice Parish Center.

WETHERSFIELD (AP) — Gov. Thomas J. Meskill said Thursday that he would not oppose legislation to define conditions under which newsmen can be subpoenaed to court. But Meskill said in remarks prepared for the annual meeting of the Sigma Delta Chi journalistic fraternity that he still opposes a blanket shield law for reporters.

Meskill said he is convinced that current rules of evidence prevent police, courts and attorneys from subpoenaing reporters when such action is not really necessary. But he added: "I recognize, however, that there's room for disagreement between judges on how those rules should be applied."

"If there is a move to raise these protections in the rules to a statutory level, I would not oppose it. I would not, however, stress, however, that newsmen should not have a blanket guarantee against all court appearances. I think that when the media carry reports of corruption in government or that when the media carry reports of underworld connections involving a public figure, the interest of the party affected and the interests of the public demand full disclosures."

Blanket Shield Law Opposed
The evening began with a Girl Scout prayer by June Bergstrom, Sharon Lynch and Sara Waddell.

Awards were presented followed by entertainment which included a skit, dance and songs with families participating.

In Grade 7 Cathy Terry was highest badge receiver with 20 badges to her credit. Kathy Nielsen and Charlene Cardile received 11 badges each. Donna Marcus 8, Karen Latupippe and Lori Cardile, 5; Susan Marcus, 4; and Laura Briggs, 1.

In Grade 5 June Bergstrom and Laurie Gagon tied as high badge receivers with 10 badges each. Other girls and the number of badges received are Sara Waddell, 7; Sharon Lynch, 5; Charlene Fenton, 3 and JoAnn Secor, 2.

In Grade 4 Doris Dodson was high badge receiver with 14 badges to her credit. Other girls and the number of badges they received are Debbie Nielsen, 10; Roxanne Sattar, Marybeth Phelps, Julie Latupippe, 6; Dawn Guerra, Holly Foss, 5; Suzanne Fenton, Lisa Flano, Susan Gately, 2; and Dede Selbie, 1.

Girl Scout leaders are Mrs. Virginia Bergstrom and Mrs. John Radon.

A Condition Under Investigation

It has been nearly two years since a general alarm fire severely damaged Main Street's Sheridan Block, and the major portion of the building has not been rebuilt.

The central portion of the block, however, was demolished — except for the front wall of the structure — and the windows and doors were boarded up. The extreme ends of the block were repaired and rebuilt; the south end (at the corner of Pearl St.) is occupied by Paul's Paint & Wallpaper Supply and a few apartments above it, and the north end of the block is occupied by the Hartford National Bank, which is building an addition to replace some space lost in the October 1971 fire.

Although the upper stories of the central Sheridan Building were demolished and the storefronts boarded up, there is a potentially dangerous situation there: One of the front doors onto Main St. is neither locked nor latched, and when the door is opened passersby can see a 12-to-15-foot drop into the basement of the gutted building.

The hazardous situation, shown in the photos above, will be investigated by the town's building department, Building Inspector Thomas Monahan said today.

The Sheridan Building, except for the bank's portion, is owned by the Sheridan Corp., which is represented by Atty. George Lesser of Manchester. Atty. Lesser could not be reached for comment on the situation.

Meeting Off; Lacks Quorum

The lack of a quorum forced Manchester Democrats to call off their town committee meeting Thursday night.

The meeting had been called to order by Town Chairman Ted Cummings but when only 25 members answered the roll call it was promptly adjourned. A quorum is 38 members.

The meeting was to have been for discussion and action on proposed rules changes. A meeting for the same purpose June 20 and another June 27 are still scheduled.

Emmerling noted that some MHS courses have had to be canceled because of insufficient enrollment, lack of space, or shortage of staff. If a student has a "canceled" course listing on his elective card, he must see his counselor to make a replacement.

Emmerling also said that a few courses have been changed from one semester to another, which may cause an imbalance in the program. If it does, he said, students should see their counselors to make a change.

MHS students wishing to elect an already closed course may complete a "waiting list" form. Emmerling said.

Changes in programs may be made until Aug. 1 — the MHS guidance office is open throughout the summer. The program becomes final Aug. 1, Emmerling said, and no further course changes are allowed until the end of the first quarter of the school year.

Emmerling reminded students that if they fail courses or don't meet sequential requirements they must contact their counselors, as soon as possible, to make a change.

MHS Elective Cards Mailed to Parents

Student elective cards for the 1973-1974 school year at Manchester High School have been mailed to parents of students who will be in Grades 10 to 12 next year, MHS Principal George Emmerling said Thursday.

Parents with questions should contact the student's present counselor before the end of the current school year, he said.

Emmerling noted that some MHS courses have had to be canceled because of insufficient enrollment, lack of space, or shortage of staff. If a student has a "canceled" course listing on his elective card, he must see his counselor to make a replacement.

Emmerling also said that a few courses have been changed from one semester to another, which may cause an imbalance in the program. If it does, he said, students should see their counselors to make a change.

MHS students wishing to elect an already closed course may complete a "waiting list" form. Emmerling said.

Changes in programs may be made until Aug. 1 — the MHS guidance office is open throughout the summer. The program becomes final Aug. 1, Emmerling said, and no further course changes are allowed until the end of the first quarter of the school year.

Emmerling reminded students that if they fail courses or don't meet sequential requirements they must contact their counselors, as soon as possible, to make a change.

Devaluation Holds Promise For Workers

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the second of two articles on the impact of the devaluation of the dollar.

By DEBORAH M. HANKIN AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — While dollar devaluation shows signs of success abroad, American consumers are feeling the pinch of higher-priced foreign goods. A survey shows prices of imported goods have gone up on everything from artichoke hearts to automobiles as a result of the 10 per cent devaluation in February.

"Right now devaluation is correctly perceived as a negative thing because it's a major factor in the horrendous inflation we have," said William Wolman, an economist with Argus Research Corp.

The aim of devaluation was to reduce this country's $6.2-billion trade deficit — the difference between our imports and exports — by lessening the value of the dollar against other currencies.

More Exports
The idea was to increase American exports by making them less costly and thus more competitive overseas, and to slow imports by making them more expensive in the U.S. market. That was the same idea behind the first devaluation in 1971.

The time lag between adoption of such a program and observable effects is generally six months to two years. It's expected that consumers will feel the impact of higher-priced imports almost immediately, but positive effects such as higher employment that arise from boosting exports sometimes take longer.

"In their role as consumers, Americans have been hurt by devaluation," said Wolman. "But they're going to benefit in the long run because it will probably take until next year before this becomes apparent."

Devaluation Working
Government figures suggest the devaluation program is finally working, at least as far as the nation as a whole is concerned. The United States achieved its first trade surplus in 1½ years during April, with merchandise exports exceeding imports by a seasonally adjusted $198.3 million.

Some economists dismiss the April figures as illusory and say much of the gain was due to the increased dollar value of major export items such as wheat, chemicals, rather than increased sales volume.

Some observers maintain steeper price tags won't deter a large segment of the purchasing public.

"Highly affluent buyers with discriminating taste aren't going to be diverted from what they want," said Arthur Freedman, professor at the Wharton School of Finance. "They'll still purchase Jaguars, caviar, French wine and audio equipment, even if they do cost more."

Auto Sales May Be Hurt
Economists speculate, however, that devaluation will hurt sales of passenger cars, this country's principal import item with a total value of some $7.7 billion.

The foreign car manufacturers say it's too early to predict the outcome because many dealers are still selling cars in inventory at their old prices.

Sales are up right now, reflecting the big rush by buyers to beat devaluation price increases, but German and Japanese car makers expect 1973 volume to only equal 1972 levels.

Even a drop in passenger car imports, while helpful to Detroit, appears likely to be counterbalanced by the nation's increasing need for foreign fuel.

Petroleum and its byproducts, with a value of $4.3 billion, are this country's biggest import item. "They're going to be a basic problem in correcting our balance of payments," said one economist.

Electronics
Electronic products are another area where devaluation could hit hard. Most merchandise comes from Japan, where upward revaluation of the yen made export prices climb even more steeply in dollar terms. Food and drink is another

Questions, Answers On Freeze

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are some key questions and answers about President Nixon's new price freeze announced in a nationwide television and radio broadcast Wednesday night.

Q. How long will the freeze last?
A. For up to 60 days, but it could be cut short if the Nixon administration is ready to put in a new mandatory system of wage-price controls.

Q. Are prices of everything sold in stores covered by the freeze?
A. The answer is yes. There are no exceptions at the retail level, and none at the wholesale level. The only exception is at the farm level. Raw agricultural commodities sold by farmers are exempt. But after the first sale, the freeze takes effect.

Q. What does this freeze mean for the farmer?
A. Basically, at the levels that existed during the week of June 1-4.

Q. What agency will enforce the freeze?
A. The Internal Revenue Service, with 2,000 agents.

Q. Can any company apply for an exemption?

Gardening

with FRANK ATWOOD

A "witches' broom" has been described as "a bush growing on a tree." Peasants in central Europe believed the "brooms" were ridden by witches on their nightly jaunts. Ozark farmers used to hang a branch from one of these extraordinary growths in the smokehouse to frighten witches away from the hams and bacon.

Dr. Sidney Waxman, ornamental horticulturist at the University of Connecticut, knows some scientific facts as well as folklore about "witches' brooms" and he can demonstrate in his nursery at the University that a large and varied collection of interesting low-growing evergreens can be grown from "witches' broom" stock.

The tree in the picture, taken at the nursery in Storrs, was found by Robert W. Baker.

Unexplained Change
The "broom" is the result of a mutation, a mysterious change in genetic make-up of a plant that nobody seems to have explained. In effect, a new variety of white pine has appeared. The original tree, says Dr. Waxman, is about nine feet tall. His hope now is that the "broom" will blossom and set cones. Then he will have seed that he can plant.

Dr. Waxman's interest in "witches' broom" began when he heard a talk on the subject in 1962 by Radcliffe Pike, extension specialist in home gardens at the University of New Hampshire. Pike, whom he could find a "broom" on a red pine at Bar Harbor, Maine, and he took Dr. Waxman with another interested listener, Alfred Fordham of the Arnold Arboretum of Harvard University, to see the tree.

Since then Dr. Waxman has found about 20 of the strange growths. Mr. Fordham also has continued to interest in the principal collections of new dwarf evergreens grown from "witches' broom" stock are at Storrs and the Arnold Arboretum in Jamaica Plain, Mass.

Open to the Public
It seems most likely that new varieties, with commercial prospects, are growing now in the experimental garden at Storrs. But Dr. Waxman is in no hurry to turn them over to the trade. If some of them satisfy his demands for excellence, they will be registered at the Arnold Arboretum and then given to the nurserymen.

Dr. Waxman currently is on sabbatical leave and on a visit to Israel where he is studying the effects of environment on plants and their adaptability to such stresses as drought, wind, salt and extreme temperatures. After coming back from Israel, he will go to England and Holland in August for an international conference on plant propagation.

Frank Robinson Ruins Sox

ANAHEIM (AP) — Bobby Winkles was in a state of awe. The Boston Red Sox, meanwhile, were in a state of shock. "There is no doubt," Winkles was saying. "That No. 20 is all he is acclaimed to be—a superstar."

Robinson delivered his 11th homer and 11th double Thursday night as the California Angels rallied for a 5-3 victory over Carl Yastrzemski and the Red Sox. The victory moved the Angels into third place in the American League West.

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP) — Steve Williams, Chuck LaBenz and Steve Prefontaine kicked off the 83th AAU meet's track championships in impressive style but otherwise the first of three days of competition was unexpectedly bland.

However, lack of competition in nine events forced officials to move those who did show up automatically into finals. In a tenth event — the pole vault — swirling winds caused so much havoc that officials called off qualifying and moved all 19 vaulters into Saturday finals.

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Mets catcher Jerry Grote had the cast removed from a fractured right wrist Wednesday and was advised by Dr. Peter Lamotte, club physician, that he would be required to wear a splint for a few more weeks.

Playboy Second in Open

OAKMONT, Pa. (AP) — Can a playboy win the U.S. Open Golf Championship?

Ray Floyd admits he likes champagne and women. He accepts the playboy tag, although he thinks it's overstated. He also believes he can win the Open.

The 30-year-old Floyd, a good looking, brown-haired six-footer from Lake Havasu, Ariz., shot a one under par 70 in the first round of the Open over the Oakmont Country Club course Thursday. He trails leader Gary Player in this 73rd Open by three strokes.

Floyd was the early leader before Player chewed up the course. Immediately, his image as a swinger became the topic of conversation.

"Sure, I haven't lived the straightest life, but I think the playboy thing is overstated," said Floyd. "When you're a bachelor you're seen different places with different girls, so right away everybody assumes you're a playboy. That's normal life for a bachelor."

Floyd, who might be considered in golf the same swinging type Bo Belinsky was to baseball, Joe Namath to pro football and Derek Sanderson to hockey, admits he hasn't got the dedication of a Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer or Gary Player.

"Winning isn't everything to me," says Floyd, who hasn't won a tournament since he captured the Professional Golf Association title in 1969. "There is more to life than golf. I'm just not going to sweat it."

Floyd doesn't want to leave the impression that he doesn't give his all when he competes. He simply doesn't take it home with him.

Nixon Promise Kept By Julie

WEST HARTFORD (AP)—Julie Nixon Eisenhower has kept a promise that her father made nearly three years ago. In October 1970, President Nixon promised through an aide to stop and shake hands with a contingent of pupils from the American School for the Deaf during a motorcade through Hartford. But he missed the pupils and their banner, leaving the children in tears.

Thursday at the school's 1973 commencement, the president's 24-year-old daughter repaid the First Family's obligation to the students, appearing as the graduation speaker and then chatting with the gowned graduates and their teachers in a school garden.

"I'm sorry I gave you such a workout," the daughter Mrs. Eisenhower apologized to her sign-language interpreter Mrs. Ethel Gielt, a retiring teacher at the school. Mrs. Gielt had refused to keep pace with Mrs. Eisenhower as she delivered her fast-paced address.

She patted the graduates on their plans for the coming year and departed after giving the students the hand-language sign for "I love you."

Mrs. Eisenhower touched on Watergate in her commencement address, conceding that the scandal was "a bit like a cancer" to her father.

"You wish you could go into the hospital tomorrow and have it removed," she said. "But the judiciary system is slower than that. It will take time to do a very thorough job."

She pointed to Nixon's foreign policy record and said she hoped "events in the long run will put my father's administration in perspective and he will be remembered because of the climate of peace he has brought."

Prior to visiting the school, she attended a Strawberry Festival at the P.G. Smith Towers, a Hartford housing project for the elderly.

Mrs. Eisenhower, who wore a light green skimmer dress with a plaid skirt and white shoes, was presented with a decorative plate made by deaf craftsmen and a scroll signed by the school's students.

"I think it has been such a serious matter that it's good to get some humor into it," she said. But she urged jokesters to make sure they didn't portray people as guilty before their guilt was established in court.

She said in response to a newsmen's question that she believed the Senate Watergate hearings should continue to be televised.

"The Senate seems to feel that the American public wants to see these hearings in detail and now that we've had so many charges, accusations and allegations, I'd like to see all the witnesses come before the committee and be able to answer at least some of those charges," she said.

Shanti School Applications
Applications for enrollment in the Shanti School—an alternative non-graded high school housed in the Hartford railroad station—are still available at the guidance office of Manchester High School, MHS Principal George Emmerling said today.

Deadline for filing of applications with the MHS guidance office is June 21 at 8 a.m., Emmerling said. After that date, Shanti School officials will conduct a lottery to determine which two Manchester applicants will be selected for the 1973-1974 school year.

Summit Talks To Begin Monday

The Environmental Protection Agency's stringent proposals to clean up the urban atmosphere have met with reaction ranging from support to charges that they are overly severe and unworkable.

EPA acting Administrator Robert W. Fri announced the proposals for a dozen urban areas such as Los Angeles and New York City on Friday. They include measures ranging from gasoline rationing to reduced urban parking areas.

Fri said the EPA probably would ask Congress to provide some relief, especially for areas such as Los Angeles and northern New Jersey, which would suffer severe impact from application of the 1970 Clean Air Act.

The proposals for Los Angeles were among the most severe. Fri said they "could result in banning all automobiles from the streets there by 1977."

Los Angeles Mayor-elect Tom Bradley termed a gas rationing plan "unrealistic" but gave his support to a plan to halt construction of parking facilities.

The parking proposal was disputed by William Falkner, acting director of special services for the Air Pollution Control District.

"I can't really see how the removal of parking lots is going to be effective unless it is accompanied by a ban on cars and then the ramifications of such a proposal are obvious," Falkner said. "This could mean additional traffic tieups in work areas while motorists search for parking places and, consequently, pollution. This could mean economic devastation to a city like Los Angeles. We just do not have a sufficient mode of public transportation to transport the majority of the people."

Clean Air Plan Reactions Vary

City Councilman Robert J. Stevenson said he thought the proposal was "stupid" and called the gas rationing idea "an unrealistic way to attack the problem."

City Councilman Leonard C. Staisey criticized a proposal for limiting traffic into downtown Pittsburgh. He said the proposed ban should be expanded to include neighboring counties and that the county should move rapidly on a controversial mass transit plan now in the early stages of construction.

St. Paul, Minn., Mayor Lawrence Cohen said he couldn't "say one way or another" if that city could meet the federal deadline, but he said "the idea of getting rid of congested parking in downtown areas is excellent."

Individual And Society Theme Of Bolton Graduation Talks

Seventy-two young men and women were graduated from Bolton High School last night in traditional commencement exercises.

The class of 1973 marched in perfect step to Edward Grieg's "Huldigungsmaerch," preceded by junior class marshals Linda Tomaszewski and Joel Fontanella.

Each girl wore a white cap and gown and carried a single red rose, and each boy wore a blue cap and gown.

Parents and friends were seated in folding chairs behind the graduates. The speaker's platform was backed by a huge "73" sign and decorated with streamers and flowers in the class colors of blue and white.

Principal Norman Shaw was master of ceremonies. The invocation by Rev. John F. Fiora III was followed by the salute to the flag and the playing of the Star Spangled Banner by the high school band.

Dr. Lundberg Named Honorary Chairman

Dr. George A. F. Lundberg has been appointed honorary chairman of Manchester Memorial Hospital's Aggregation Fund Drive which begins today and continues through June 30.

The drive is to raise $60,000 for the purchase of a new blood chemistry analyzer which simultaneously does 12 individual tests on one sample of blood in a matter of seconds.

In accepting his appointment, Dr. Lundberg, former chief of medicine at the hospital, said, "For 53 years the hospital has helped meet the health requirements of the community and now is asking that the community help with a successful fund drive so that new modern equipment needed to keep pace with the modern methods can be purchased. Modern equipment means better health care."

Dr. Lundberg has seen the development and accomplishments that the past half century has brought to the hospital, making it one of the leading institutions of its kind in the country.

"One of the areas of greatest need facing any hospital today is replacement of obsolete facilities and/or equipment. It is only by private support that our hospital has become a leader in health care. This private support has allowed us to provide the necessary expansion and equipment to better serve the community."

A feature of the drive will be the Master Donor's Club which hopes to receive 400 donations of $150 apiece.

Dr. Lundberg has urged everyone to contribute to the Master Donor's Club to help provide better facilities for each person, his family, and his neighbor.
