Nixon Promise Kept By Julie

WEST HARTFORD (AP)—Julie Nixon Eisenhower has kept a promise that her father made nearly three years ago. In October 1970, President Nixon promised through an aide to stop and shake hands with a contingent of pupils from the American School for the Deaf during a motorcade through Hartford. But he missed the pupils and their banner, leaving the children in tears.

Thursday at the school's 1973 commencement, the president's 24-year-old daughter repaid the First Family's obligation to the students, appearing as the graduation speaker and then chatting with the gowned graduates and their teachers in a school garden.

"I'm sorry I gave you such a workout," the daughter Mrs. Eisenhower apologized to her sign-language interpreter Mrs. Ethel Gielt, a retiring teacher at the school. Mrs. Gielt had refused to keep pace with Mrs. Eisenhower as she delivered her fast-paced address.

She patted the graduates on their plans for the coming year and departed after giving the students the hand-language sign for "I love you."

Mrs. Eisenhower touched on Watergate in her commencement address, conceding that the scandal was "a bit like a cancer" to her father.

"You wish you could go into the hospital tomorrow and have it removed," she said. "But the judiciary system is slower than that. It will take time to do a very thorough job."

She pointed to Nixon's foreign policy record and said she hoped "events in the long run will put my father's administration in perspective and he will be remembered because of the climate of peace he has brought."

Prior to visiting the school, she attended a Strawberry Festival at the P.G. Smith Towers, a Hartford housing project for the elderly.

Mrs. Eisenhower, who wore a light green skimmer dress with a plaid skirt and white shoes, was presented with a decorative plate made by deaf craftsmen and a scroll signed by the school's students.

"I think it has been such a serious matter that it's good to get some humor into it," she said. But she urged jokesters to make sure they didn't portray people as guilty before their guilt was established in court.

She said in response to a newsmen's question that she believed the Senate Watergate hearings should continue to be televised.

"The Senate seems to feel that the American public wants to see these hearings in detail and now that we've had so many charges, accusations and allegations, I'd like to see all the witnesses come before the committee and be able to answer at least some of those charges," she said.

Summit Talks To Begin Monday

Clean Air Plan Reactions Vary

The Environmental Protection Agency's stringent proposals to clean up the urban atmosphere have met with reaction ranging from support to charges that they are overly severe and unworkable.

EPA acting Administrator Robert W. Fri announced the proposals for a dozen urban areas such as Los Angeles and a city like Los Angeles. This could not have a sufficient mode of public transportation to transport the majority of the people.

City Councilman Robert J. Stevenson said he thought the restrictions were necessary and said, "We ought not to have too much trouble complying at all."

Los Angeles Mayor-elect Tom Bradley termed a gas rationing plan "unrealistic" but gave his support to a plan to halt construction of parking facilities.

The proposals for Los Angeles were among the most severe. Fri said they "could result in banning all automobiles from the streets there by 1977."

Los Angeles Mayor-elect Tom Bradley termed a gas rationing plan "unrealistic" but gave his support to a plan to halt construction of parking facilities.

The parking proposal was disputed by William Falkner, acting director of special services for the Air Pollution Control District.

Individual And Society Theme Of Bolton Graduation Talks

Seventy-two young men and women were graduated from Bolton High School last night in traditional commencement exercises.

The class of 1973 marched in perfect step to Edward Grieg's "Huldigungsmaerch," preceded by junior class marshals Linda Tomaszewski and Joel Fontanella.

Each girl wore a white cap and gown and carried a single red rose, and each boy wore a blue cap and gown.

Principal Norman Shaw was master of ceremonies. The invocation by Rev. John F. Fiora III was followed by the salute to the flag and the playing of the Star Spangled Banner by the high school band.

Following greetings by Board of Education chairman the five top-ranking students were recognized. They were Diane Leiner, Sharon Maneggie, Edward Manning, Jeanette Faggili and Susan Tomaszewski.

Soviet Leader To Arrive Today

WASHINGTON (AP)—Soviet Communist leader Leonid Brezhnev was expected to arrive in the nation's capital late this afternoon for a second round of summit conferences that President Nixon says may reduce the danger of war.

Nixon was at the Florida White House preparing for the talks. Brezhnev's airplane from Moscow was due at Andrews Air Force Base, Md., at about 4:30 p.m. U.S. officials discouraged crowds and attention by calling it a "private arrival," barring news photographers and all but a handful of reporters.

The Nixon administration has asked Congress to ease trade restrictions for the Soviet Union, but 77 senators and 280 House members have either sponsored an amendment to deny the request until the Soviet Union permits free emigration of Jews and other minorities.

The administration has responded with suggestions that U.S.-Soviet trade is essential to world peace and the Jewish problem should be left to quiet diplomacy.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Here, in brief, are major developments related to the Watergate case.

SENATE COMMITTEE—Ousted White House counsel John W. Dean III planned to meet today with Senate committee lawyers to prepare for his appearance before the panel next week.

MITCHELL—Former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell will defend himself against all charges but will wait until he has an "appropriate forum," one of his lawyers said.

HALDEMAN—H.R. Holdren, former White House chief of staff, disputes testimony by Jeb Stuart Magruder implicating him in a coverup, a Haldean attorney said.

HEARING—George Hearing, 40, of Tampa, Fla., received a one-year sentence for distributing a bogus campaign letter accusing two Democratic presidential hopefuls of sexual misconduct.

ERVIN—Sen Sam J. Ervin Jr., chairman of the Senate committee, said he is inclined to believe Magruder's story, but that Mitchell "can tell us if the events testified to by Magruder did happen."

Astronauts Scan Sun

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP)—Skylab's astronauts scan the center of the sun for a second solar flare today because, unlike lightning, there is a tendency for flares to strike twice in the same place.

A sudden, massive flare erupted on the sun Friday, and by good fortune Paul J. Weitz was sitting at the solar telescope console.

He quickly shifted his instruments to the flare, photographed it and sent a televised picture to earth, providing man with his first look from above the earth's obscuring atmosphere at a fiery phenomenon.

Astronomers at the space center were as excited a bunch of kids at their first circus. In addition to studying the sun, Weitz, Charles Conrad Jr. and Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin planned several hours today in their Apollo ferry ship, linked to one end of the 118-foot-long laboratory.

They were to rehearse procedures for undocking and returning to earth next Friday after a record 28 days in space. When radiation from the flare triggered an alarm in the telescope system, Weitz focused on it and relayed pictures for two minutes while the storm peaked and for another 15 to 20 minutes as it decayed, spewing radiation and gases into space.

Scientists described it as a medium flare, but one that produced more energy than is used on earth by man in several decades. One goal of the Skylab astronomy experiments is to help unlock the secret of controlled thermonuclear fusion, which is the source of the sun's energy.

This would aid in the search for an unlimited and pollution-free power source on earth.

A Manchester policeman, Patrolman Robin G. Andrews, was served a warrant this morning charging him with fourth-degree larceny in connection with an alleged theft at the scene of an accident he was investigating.

Andrews, 27, of 22 Skinner Rd. was suspended from duty without pay pending disposition of a case. He was released on the non-surety bond for appearance in Circuit Court 12, Manchester, July 2.

The warrant, served by Police Chief James Reardon and Capt. George McCaughey, was issued by Circuit Court 12 judge.

Fourth-degree larceny is an offense involving theft of something with less than $50 value of the property.

The charge grew out of an incident in connection with the investigation of an accident May 5 at Wyllys and Porter Sts. It follows an investigative investigation by police.

Andrews' civil period expires have led many brokers to trade or liquidate.

Price freeze details Now Being Worked Out

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Nixon administration, bolstered by an indication that the economy is beginning to cool, is beginning to spell out the details of the President's 50-day price freeze.

As the administration received news Friday that production in the nation's factories, mines and utilities rose at the lowest rate in 11 months, the Cost of Living Council issued guidelines about application of the freeze.

Price increases on some pork and lamb cuts will be allowed because they are not covered by the freeze, but instead by the President's March 29 ceiling on meat prices, a council spokesman said.

Most cuts of pork and lamb are under the ceiling, but beef has reached its ceiling in most supermarkets, a spokesman said.

The President's freeze caught a number of rate increases approved by the government agencies set to go into effect during the freeze period. One was a second and third class rate increase in mail and a 5 per cent rise in freight rates.

Foreign airline carriers will not be allowed to put into effect a 5 per cent increase in transatlantic rates that had been approved by the Civil Aeronautics Board effective July 1.

However, domestic carriers will be able to keep a similar increase for their transatlantic flights because it went into effect June 1.

Fathers Day

Tomorrow we are to honor father by observing Fathers Day.
You know the fellow we mean. That guy who at times only seems to eat and sleep around the house since he is off some place working. Or when he has a day off is wrapped up in some other activity ranging from passing the plate at church, helping around a bunch of Boy Scouts, hauling some friend who lacked a too-big do-it-yourself project, selling pop corn for his service club or being mom's handy-man.
There are many more things he gets involved in and there are times when he seems more interested in other people and their problems than he is in you.
You might feel neglected but you don't know really how a dad feels about it. Most of them, we would venture, feel far worse than you do but there is something about being a father that makes a man reach beyond his own family.
He knows, instinctively, we think, the world of a child must eventually change. He would not be a good father if he sent his child into the world that he, as a father, did not try to make better than the world he found.

This is why many fathers get involved. It is not to escape the tedium of day-to-day family life but pave the way for his offspring into a better world.
Granted this is not always done deliberately or purposely but nevertheless when you assess the social progress of a community, and the Manchester area is no exception, it is fathers you'll find on town boards, school boards, the legislature, the advisory committees that abound, the church boards, the service clubs, etc.
So give dad a break and perhaps a pat on the back tomorrow. The time he has been taking away from you this past year has been invested in your future. His reward, regardless of the gifts he gets on Fathers Day, will come when you go out into the world and you too pick up the labor of making it a better place to live. Then he will know the time invested has borne fruit for you will no longer be a child but an adult committed to involvement, not only with your family, but that greater and broader family of man.

A Worthy Cause

An event worthy of your support Sunday evening is the tribute to the late Chuck May in the form of a memorial softball doubleheader at Fitzgerald Field.
What better way to top off Father's Day than to treat dad to exciting softball and at the same time contribute to a trust fund for May's three-month old daughter, Melina Joy?
If you can't attend the game because of a hectic schedule, your contribution may be mailed to P.O. Box 910, Manchester. Game ticket donations are $1.
The memorial game is a fitting tribute to Manchester's own, Chuck May.

Presidential Shopping Tour

Sen. Frank Moss, D-Utah, has suggested President Richard Nixon do the White House grocery shopping at least once a month.
The senator's idea is that if the President did this he would realize the full impact of inflation on the average person.
This may be well and true but there are some problems.
A visit to almost any Manchester area food store reveals numerous domestic and international pitfalls that could trap or commit the President and upset the whole works.
For example, the idea of the President wheeling a grocery cart down the aisles might have many political advantages but flanked fore and aft and on the starboard and port with Secret Service men wheeling empty carts and looking at other things than unit prices, there would be a lot of congestion which would not sit well with the already harried housewife rushing from one coupon item to another.
Then too there are international relations to consider.
The President could cop out avoiding both California and Florida and buy some imported from Israel. However, such an act might antagonize the Arabs unless he bought some imported Egyptian figs.

And on the domestic front, he'd have to avoid lettuce entirely unless he was briefed by the FBI, which is sort of frowned on now days.
Obviously the meat section poses the greatest hazard since New Zealand lamb involves balance of payments, fish the Cod War, and the political pundits would have a ball if he bought tripe.
Now Sen. Moss suggested the President use a list prepared by the White House chef but if the President is like most American male shoppers, and we have no proof that he isn't, there is bound to be some cost over-runs which will attract the attention of Sen. William Proxmire and others.
No, a Presidential shopping tour is out of the question for reasons of domestic tranquility, national security and international relations.
Besides there are those who think, in the light of Watergate, there is only one item the President should eat. It is not available any grocery store. It is called crow.

Full Tank More Important

WASHINGTON — If I were running for President I would knock off the yakey-yak about Watergate for a few days and make some loud speeches about the so-called gasoline shortage, on account of an American automobile with a full gas tank is more important than an honest politician.
Fairly or not, Big Oil's operations have become a national issue. George Gallup has not been heard from at this writing, but I would not be surprised to learn that the gasoline crisis irritates more people than graft in high places or even inflation. Most folks still count children as their dearest possessions, but the automobile must run as close second.
Thus, I expect many voters are in a mood to throw the oil rascals out after reading in their newspapers that top law enforcement officers from six states told Congress the gas and fuel oil shortage is a phony, a result of international collusion by the major oil companies. With visions of dollar-a-gallon gasoline dancing in their heads, motorists need a villain.
They were offered one by witnesses before the Senate Ad Hoc Subcommittee from New York, Connecticut, North Carolina, Michigan, Massachusetts and Florida. Without exception, these lawmakers put the finger on Big Oil. Moreover, they spoke from personal knowledge because all had investigated possible anti-competitive oil industry practices in their states.
"What shortage?" asked Assistant Atty. Gen. Charles A. La Torre Jr. of New York. He pointed out that as of June 1 reserves in the U.S. totaled 225 million barrels, and yet last year — when no "crisis" existed — stocks were 1.6 billion barrels, and yet the price of oil was higher than it is today.
"Maybe this will come about, although given Big Oil's political clout I will not hang my thumbs waiting for it," said Atty. Gen. Robert K. Killian proposed some remedies drastic enough to please the most fervent trust buster. They would break up the big integrated companies so that firms which produce oil and refine it would be permitted to refine and market it as well. A guy could run for President on that platform even if he forgot to say a good word for motherhood.
"These are the kind of figures that are the most obvious Ford or Chevrolet owner can understand. He would not be human if he did not conclude that he was being taken by some extremely fat man in the oil industry. It is an energy crisis, Main Street would like everybody to suffer."
"I am sure this will come about, although given Big Oil's political clout I will not hang my thumbs waiting for it," said Atty. Gen. Robert K. Killian proposed some remedies drastic enough to please the most fervent trust buster. They would break up the big integrated companies so that firms which produce oil and refine it would be permitted to refine and market it as well. A guy could run for President on that platform even if he forgot to say a good word for motherhood.

Inside Report

Rowland Evans and Robert Novak
Exit John Connally

intention of accepting any assignment in Richard M. Nixon's White House, just starting to feel the heat of Watergate.
But when the White House publicly announced he had agreed to become a "part-time" consultant, Connally was hooked. He accepted it in good grace, even though he was forced to take leave from his law firm and resign from corporate boards of directors. Connally assumed he would move into a lofty, obviously powerful perch in the White House, from which to help Mr. Nixon find a way out of the Watergate wilderness.
"It seemed like an attractive challenge," one Connally intimate told us. "It took him back to 1971, when he saved Nixon by finding a way out of the inflation wilderness."
As a result, according to friends of both Mr. Nixon and Connally, the President has not seen Connally alone for a single conversation since that first day.
Thus, when the President asked Connally to study a new anti-inflation program with the regular White House and Treasury economic advisers, Connally found himself without staff, without statistics and without a factual basis for recommendations. Too proud to ask for special aid from the White House, he worked the past month, often alone and lonely, from suite 861 at the Mayflower Hotel.
Moreover, Connally found a chaotic situation among the President's regular economic advisers; contradictory and conflicting economic theories, constantly changing input from the same officials, and continuous procrastination.
It has become an abhorrent situation for Connally, strongman in the 1971-1972 Nixon administration. Then, he kept H.R. (Bob) Haldean, the justly feared White House chief of staff, waiting to see him outside his Treasury office on three occasions and once sawled out Haldean for throwing his weight around. Now, Connally has become "a floating eunuch in charge of nothing" in the words of a devoted Connally intimate.
"In that context there is nothing surprising in Connally's decision not to postpone his leisurely round-the-world tour. What now worries Republican politicians hoping for a miraculous Nixon cure from the ills of Watergate is whether that other tough, independent and versatile Republican, Melvin R. Laird, will encounter similar pitfalls in the White House after he begins. The fall of Laird could be fatal.

Life of Jesus

You will look and look, but not see, because this people's minds are dull, and they have stopped up their ears, and have closed their eyes. Otherwise, their eyes would see, their minds would understand, and they would turn to me, says God, and I would heal them (Matthew 13:12-15).

The Parable of the Sower
That same day Jesus left the house and went to the lakeside, where he sat down to teach. The crowd that gathered around him was so large that he got into a boat and sat in it, while the crowd stood on the shore. He used parables to tell them many things.
"There was a man who went out to sow. As he scattered the seed in the field, some of it fell along the path, and the birds came and ate it up. Some of it fell on rocky ground, where there was little soil. The seeds soon sprouted, because the soil was deep. When the sun came up it scorched them, and because the roots had not grown deep enough the plants soon dried up. Some of the seed fell among thorns, which grew up and choked the plants. But some seeds fell in good soil, and bore grain: some had one grain, others sixty, and others thirty."
And Jesus concluded, "Listen, then, if you have ears."
The Purpose of the Parables
The disciples came to Jesus and asked him, "Why do you use parables when you talk to them?"
"The knowledge of the secrets of the Kingdom of heaven has been given to you, but not to them. For the man who has something to give, more will be given to him, so that he will have more than enough; but the man who has nothing will have taken away from him even the little he has. The reason that I use parables to talk to them is this: they look, but do not see, and they hear, but do not understand. So the prophecy of Isaiah comes true in their case:
"You will listen and listen, but not understand;

Police Report

Francisco Mollet, 16, of 78 Oak St., was charged Friday night with illegal possession or control of a non-narcotic controlled substance.

The charge was made after a member of the Manchester Police Department's narcotics division apprehended Mollet on Case Mountain during what police termed a "pot party."

Mollet was held overnight and released this morning on his written promise to appear in court on July 9.

David A. Joslin, 20, of no certain, was charged Friday with sale of marijuana (two counts) and possession of marijuana (two counts). The arrest was made on a Hartford County Superior Court bench warrant, police said.

Joslin was taken to the Connecticut Correctional Center at Hartford in lieu of a $10,000 surety bond.

Krause Chains Park Road, Waits Results

At 10:30 this morning, Ward Krause installed a chain lock at the entrance of Bolton Notch State Park.

"For many years Krause has had trouble with people blocking the road to his house, camping, dumping rubbish and trespassing on his property. The only way to Krause's house is through the road to the park. There is another access to the park but as no signs are posted people rarely use it. Since Krause has received no satisfaction for maintenance of the road from the state or keeping trespassers off his property, he installed the chain lock."

This morning, he said, "If I receive no complaints, in other words if I am not arrested as a result of this action, I will install a gate."

Those awarded scholarships last night were Richard Alton, Walter C. Waddell Memorial Fund; Lois Campbell, Bolton High School Student Council Scholarship; Stanton Conover; Melissa Kendall, Bolton Insurance Advisory Board; Lori Meloche, Philip C. Liguori Chapter of the National Honor Society; Renee Myette, Manchester Rotary Club; Jeanette Paggioli, Philip C. Liguori Chapter of the National Honor Society; John Rys, Bolton Scholarship Fund; Paulette Rys, Bolton Scholarship Fund; Susan Tomaszewski, Rockville Public Health Nursing Association and Susan Wright, Bolton Scholarship Fund.

The Bolton Scholarship Fund also made nine awards to postgraduates of Bolton High School who are presently enrolled in colleges and universities.

Recipients of these scholarships are Kathleen Buckson, Rosemary Carpenter, Mary Lodi, Marie Paggioli, David Potter, Donald Roser, Stephen Sherman, Wayne Vincent and Elaine Toner.

On behalf of the Republican Town Committee, Kay Peterson presented a citizenship award presented by John Mahon on behalf of the Democrat Town Committee.

The charge to the candidates was delivered by Col. John E. Richters Jr. Jukido black belt holder, life insurance salesman and author.

He told the graduates that the best way yet to come, he said, "Learn to love people and use things rather than to use people and love things." He told them to accept themselves that they wouldn't grow or go until they did. He told them to keep saying, "I gotta be me. I gotta be me."

He charged the graduates to be themselves, be nice people and love other people and above all to stay close to God.

Following the address diplomas were presented by Superintendent of Schools, Dr. Joseph Castagna and Maneggia.

When the graduates turned to face the audience the hundreds of friends and family members gave the class an ovation.

Following the signing of the BHS Alma Mater written by Diane Tedford of the Class of 1967 and a benediction by Rev. Robert W. Cronin, the graduates marched out in a solemn recessional and headed for the many family parties which were scheduled throughout the town.

Music during the program which included numbers by the high school band and chorus was under the direction of school music director Edward DiFranzo.

Junior ushers for last night's program were Eyalyn Assard, Douglas Fish, Mary Jean Litvinskas and Karen Schiavetti.

And it's been at least 50 years since automobiles started becoming prevalent in town. When the vehicles did start becoming popular, horses weren't the only thing that was "phased out" — Horse thieves gave way to automobile robbers.

So there aren't many horse thieves around in 1973 — or so most people think.

However, there was a report of a stolen horse in Manchester last week.

It wasn't a normal horse, though: This one is bright red, is about five-by-six-feet in size, and it has wings.

The flying horse, of course, was on a once-used gasoline service station sign. It was reported stolen from Maple Super Service Inc., 220 Spruce St., on Thursday.

So if you see a shady-looking character flying around on a bright red horse, call the Manchester Police, who are looking for the culprit.

She said one step toward achieving a meaningful place in society was to keep in mind the experiences gained while at Bolton High. She said to remember not to forget the good and bad experiences of their lives to the present.

Miss Campbell ended by saying "Let us never forget the history, reality and mystery life holds for us. Yesterday was history, today is reality and tomorrow is mystery."

The Bolton High School Chorus under the direction to senior class member Debra Richardson sang "We've Only Just Begun."

Louis Angeloni, 40, of Glastonbury was charged on a Circuit Court 12 arrest warrant with misuse of credit cards and obtaining money under false pretenses. Police say the arrest was made in connection with a July 16, 1971 incident. He was released on a $500 non-surety bond for court July 3.

Vernon Police report a burglary, which apparently occurred early this morning, at Peralli's Gulf Service Station at Rt. 83 and Regan Rd., Rockville; netted thieves an undetermined amount of cash.

No further details of the theft were available.

Larry Gilbert, 23, of 193 Windsoville Rd., Rockville, was charged with intoxication and breach of peace. The charges were made after an investigation of a complaint from the Pines Restaurant, Rt. 83, which reported that a man refused to leave the premises.

Gilbert was released on a $50 non-surety bond for court July 3.

Horse Thief Is Back

It's been nearly a hundred years since local inventor Christopher M. Spencer, an employee of Cheney Bros. who invented the Spencer repeating rifle, drove his first steam-powered horseless carriage around Manchester, scaring the horses.

And it's been at least 50 years since automobiles started becoming prevalent in town. When the vehicles did start becoming popular, horses weren't the only thing that was "phased out" — Horse thieves gave way to automobile robbers.

The bank would give the school administration more than 2,500 square feet of space upstairs and a little less in the basement level. There would be a possibility of having special education classes in the building in addition to the administration offices.

Hsing-Hsing and Ling-Ling Do Their Zoo Thing!

Panda pictures courtesy the Smithsonian Institution

Ling-Ling is the more friendly of the pandas. Above, she takes a bath in a panda-size wooden bucket.

Stuffed pandas have been a favorite of children for years. With the arrival of Ling-Ling and Hsing-Hsing, the sale of these popular toys has hit record highs.

- On April 16, 1972, the male panda, Hsing-Hsing (pronounced shing-shing), and the female panda, Ling-Ling, arrived at the National Zoo in Washington. A goodwill gift from the People's Republic of China, they soon became one of the biggest tourist attractions in the country.
- The pandas live in a large, air conditioned Panda House. Because their house and outdoor yard is being remodeled, the pandas will be kept indoors all summer. When the yard is finished, it will be planted with bamboo, grass and shade trees.
- If you are planning to visit the pandas, try to be there at their feeding times, 9:30 in the morning and 4 in the afternoon. They are most active then and might be asleep at other times.
- The pandas live in cages right next to each other and are separated by a wall indoors and a fence outdoors.
- Though it is unusual to breed pandas in zoos, it is hoped that Ling Ling and Hsing-Hsing will become parents when they become full grown, about 16 to 22 months.
- Pandas come from the mountains of China where the weather is cold and rainy all year around.
- When they are full grown, pandas weigh around 300 pounds and measure about six feet from the tip of their noses to the end of their tails.
- In captivity, pandas are fed bamboo, bread, fruit, cereal, vegetables, eggs, chicken, vitamins, salt, honey and raisins. Pandas can pick food with their front paws and carry it to their mouths. Sometimes they eat while lying on their backs.
- Pandas usually have one baby at a time. It weighs about four ounces at birth.
- In the wild, pandas usually live alone and pair up only during the breeding season which lasts for a month during the spring.
- Young pandas often climb trees. Adults do, too, once in a while, but they are clumsy. Pandas can lean against something and push themselves into standing position, but they do not walk on their hind legs as some bears do.

This is how you would write the pandas' names in Chinese.

- Ling-Ling and Hsing-Hsing are called "giant pandas," although they aren't as large as this term would lead you to believe.
- Though some scientists disagree, pandas are usually classified as members of the raccoon family and not the bear family.
- The lesser panda is a relative of the giant panda. Though not as famous, a family of four lives in the Washington Zoo.
- Lesser pandas are different from giant pandas in many ways. They are smaller. Giant pandas are black and white, lesser pandas are chestnut with cream colored faces. Their tails are full and have bands. In the wild, lesser pandas travel in pairs or in family groups.
- The giant pandas are found only in China, the lesser pandas live in the Himalayas from Nepal and Sikkim eastwards to upper Burma and southern China. They live higher in the mountains and like a colder climate than the giant pandas do.
