Rate Hikes Blamed On Nuclear Woes

HARTFORD (AP) — One of the youngest witnesses ever to appear before the Connecticut Public Utilities Commission (PUC) said Friday that the present rate requests of two major utilities were a result of problems at the Millstone Nuclear Power Plant.

John Bigos, 17, of Enfield said Millstone's existing generator had been shut down more than 400 days since it opened in December, 1970. The cost of the closings, including the cost of replacing lost power, exceeds $20 million, he said.

Bigos, who graduated this year from Suffield Academy, appeared as an intervenor opposing rate increase requests of the Connecticut Light and Power Co. and the Hartford Electric Light Co. The companies are subsidiaries of the Northeast Utilities Co., which owns the Millstone plant.

Bigos gained an insight into Millstone's costs and problems when he made them the subject of a research paper last semester.

His interest in Millstone was sparked last summer when he helped clean up after a massive fish-kill caused by thermal pollution from the plant.

Since Northeast Utilities opened the Millstone plant it has experienced 64 failures in safety equipment, Bigos said. Yet the company is building a second generating unit and has plans for a third, he said.

Bigos said Northeast should concentrate on correcting problems in the first unit before it builds additional generators that might have the same problems.

Meanwhile, the problems are costly to consumers, he said.

It is significant that Connecticut Light and Power's 7.6 percent rate increase last October and the pending request both came after Northeast began experimenting with nuclear power, he said.

Cyclist Injured

Robert W. Hershberger, 23, of 52 Wetherell St., is listed in serious condition at Manchester Memorial Hospital today after an early morning accident in which the motorcycle he was operating was in collision with a car operated by Bruce J. McAlpine, 19, of 26 Marion Dr.

A passenger on the motorcycle, Marie Paquette, 27, of Willimantic, was treated and released at the hospital after the accident, which occurred at the Center.

Police say that Hershberger made a U-turn on Center St., near Main St. and was in collision with the McAlpine car, which was eastbound on Center St.

Police say that no one has been charged in the accident and that it is still under investigation.

Magruder

answer questions, or even take the oath.

In the Senate hearings, Strachan's most heated denials were aimed at Magruder, who had been his boss when Magruder worked at the White House. During the campaign, the roles were nearly reversed, with Magruder reporting to his old subordinate.

"As a result, Mr. Magruder frequently tried to avoid the reporting system," Strachan said. Magruder filled in Haldeman directly on projects that were going well, but tossed off the bad ones with a sketchy account to Strachan, he said.

Strachan denied that Magruder told him about G. Gordon Liddy's $1 million proposal to use bugging, burglary, prostitution and kidnapping in the Nixon re-election campaign.

"I certainly would not forget it. Mr. Magruder certainly did not give me that information, and certainly not those details," Strachan said.

Magruder said he told Strachan about Liddy's second, $500,000 bugging scheme, but Strachan also denied hearing about that. Magruder also said he filled in Strachan completely about the meeting March 30, 1972, at which he says the final Watergate wiretapping plan was approved and assigned a budget of $250,000. He said he sent Strachan a memorandum detailing the number of people to be hired and the wiretapping gear to be purchased.

But Strachan said all he received was a brief, general notice that made no mention of electronic surveillance. "He told me, and I am repeating his words rather precisely, 'a sophisticated political intelligence gathering system has been approved with a budget of $300,000,'" meaning $300,000.

"Unfortunately, he neither gave me, nor did I ask for any further details about the subject," Strachan said.

Strachan also admitted his role in delivering two cash shipments from a secret $350,000 campaign fund controlled by Haldeman but denied knowing that the money was destined for the pockets of Watergate figures.

Strachan said that after talking to Dean he gave the money to Frederick C. LaRue. When LaRue received the second, larger shipment he donned gloves, said "I never saw you," and refused to give the blonde, baby-faced Strachan a receipt, Strachan said.

"I became more than a little suspicious, frankly, after Mr. LaRue put on the gloves. I did not know what to say, so I said nothing. Nor did I know what to do, so I left," Strachan said.

Strachan said he didn't take that as being part of the cover-up.

"In fact, there was only one occasion when I was expressly asked to do something that I knew was improper and which I could see was aimed at a cover-up. That related to my upcoming grand jury testimony of April 11, 1973, and I refused to do it," Strachan said.

Strachan did not explain further.

Area Police

VERNON
Jeffrey L. Chastain, 18, of 52 Village St., was charged on a Circuit Court 12 arrest warrant with fourth-degree larceny in connection with the July 17 theft of two tires from the Vernon area.

Police say that at the time of his arrest he was found to be in possession of a "small quantity of marijuana" and was additionally charged with illegal possession of a controlled non-narcotic substance.

He is being held in lieu of a $500 surety bond and will be presented in court Monday.

Edwin Clements, 36, of Ogden, Utah, was charged with first-degree criminal trespass, third-degree criminal mischief, and interfering with a police officer in connection with an incident early today on Village St.

He is being held in lieu of a $750 surety bond for court Monday.

Turbo Train Destroyed

MONTREAL (AP) — A turbo train on a test run for the U.S. Amtrak system collided with a Canadian National freight west of here Friday, injuring 11 persons, and destroying the U.S. train, authorities said.

The injured included seven U.S. railway officials. No one was seriously hurt. Twenty-five persons were aboard the $2 million turbo train when the accident occurred in a west end railway yard.

Edmund Weil, a brakeman on the new train, said it appeared the eastbound freight was shifting onto a siding when the two trains collided. The passenger train struck the tail end of the freight.

The U.S. train derailed, burst into flames and was later declared a total loss by its manufacturer.

The four-unit turbo, built by United Aircraft of Canada Ltd., was one of two such trains purchased by Amtrak last December for $4.1 million. The trains were scheduled for delivery in August, a spokesman for United Aircraft said.

All the injured were treated at a nearby hospital. They included representatives of the U.S. Railway Safety Board, Amtrak and the Illinois Central and Milwaukee railroads, authorities said.

Election Set
BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — The government has selected Sept. 23 for the next presidential election, which former dictator Juan D. Peron is expected to win easily if he runs as expected.

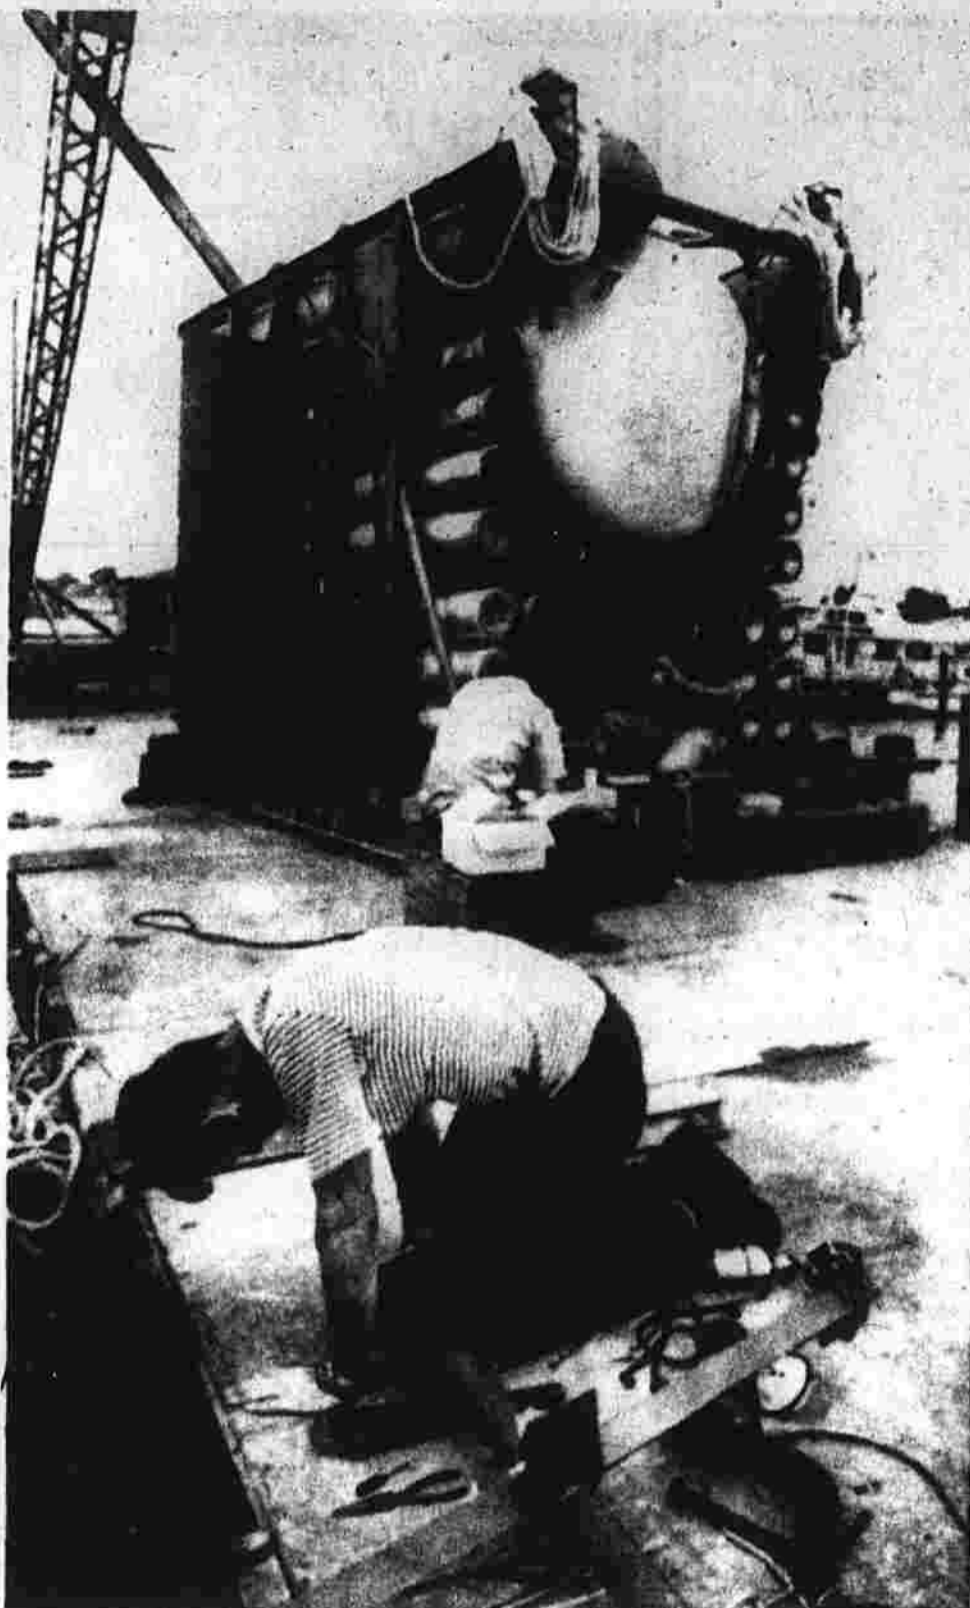

President Hector J. Campora, a loyal Peronist elected in March, resigned July 13 so Peron can run himself. Peron was president from 1946 until 1955, but the military did not let him enter this year's election.

House Passes Fund Bill For PBS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Public broadcasting, whose future was threatened last year by presidential vetoes, has been voted a proposed $175-million two-year budget by the House.

The House passed a compromise public broadcasting bill 363 to 14 Friday and sent the measure to the Senate, which has passed a similar version.

Rep. Harley O. Staggers, DW-Va., chairman of the House Commerce Committee and floor manager for the bill, said he expected the Senate to go along with the House version without a conference. That would send it to President Nixon.

Prepare For Salvage Attempt

Crew members work on gear as a team of divers make ready to leave for a spot 45 miles south of Nantucket Island where the Italian luxury liner, Andrea Doria, sank in July 1955. The compression chamber, or habitat, measuring 5 feet by 12 feet in which the men will live while probing the wreckage on the 10-day expedition, is in the background on a dock in Fairhaven, Mass. (AP photo)

Diving Teams To Seek Andrea Doria Treasures

FAIRHAVEN, Mass. (AP) — A specially built diving tank is the key that a team of California divers believe will enable them to reach the reputed $4 million in cash and valuables on the sunken liner Andrea Doria.

Don Rodocker and Chris Delucchi, both of San Diego, were to leave today with a support crew of 10 men aboard a fishing trawler for the site of the sinking 45 miles off Nantucket Island.

He said the divers will always travel together because of dangers in the expedition.

More than 50 divers have reached the ship in the 17 years since she sank, but few have been able to bring back anything more than photographs.

Rodocker said backers have spent $100,000 on the project already, and those working on it "have agreed not to take any wages until the money from the ship is recovered."

Highway Bill Deadlock Ends

WASHINGTON (AP) — A three-year $20 billion federal highway bill that would permit Highway Trust Fund money to be used for city bus and rail lines in the third year has been recommended by a House-Senate conference.

The conference had deadlocked for 2 1/2 months before approving the compromise bill Friday. Rep. James C. Wright, D-Tex., the conference chairman, predicted the bill would pass both houses.

The deadlock resulted from a dispute over whether the trust fund should be opened up for non-highway mass transit projects.

The compromise would keep the trust fund intact for one more year before gradually opening it up to expenditures on bus and rail lines.

The legislation also includes funds for the nation's interstate highway system.

The bill would allow cities to spend $200 million from the trust fund on buses in fiscal year 1975, which begins next July 1. In fiscal 1976, the entire $800 million earmarked for urban rolls could be spent on either bus or rail lines.

During the fiscal year which began July 1, states wishing to build rails instead of roads would be required to turn back their highway funds and receive an equal amount of general tax revenues in return.

The original Senate bill called for spending trust fund dollars on mass transit over the entire three years of the bill. The House bill limited the fund to highway uses.

South Windsor Vicar Appointed At St. Peter's

The Rev. Frederick H. Foerster III of Binghamton, N.Y., has been appointed vicar of St. Peter's Episcopal Church in South Windsor and will assume his duties on Aug. 1.

The appointment was made by the Rt. Rev. J. Warren J. Hutchens, Episcopal Bishop of Connecticut. The Rev. Standish MacIntosh has been serving as interim vicar since the Rev. James Birdsall resigned last year.

The Rev. Mr. Foerster has been serving as curate at Christ Church in Binghamton, where he was ordained a priest on March 25, 1972.

A native of Saginaw, Mich., the new vicar graduated from the Fairborn, (Ohio) High School in 1952 and attended the U.S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md. He received his BA degree in 1958 from Michigan State University. Upon graduation, he married Cherie Lynn Haight of Jackson, Mich., also a 1958 graduate of the university.

After receiving his master of divinity degree from the

Rev. Frederick Foerster III

Philadelphia Divinity School of the Episcopal Church, he began his ministry as deacon and curate at Christ Church.

The Foerster's first child, Stefan Peter Foerster, was born June 11 in Binghamton.

Coventry Moore Job Hunting

Town Administrator Dennis Moore is job hunting, and has told the Town Council it should start looking for his successor.

Moore made the announcement in executive session of the council Monday night, according to council chairman Albert Bradley. It became public Friday.

His reason, Moore told the council, is that he is ready to broaden his professional experience. He has been in Coventry four years.

Moore said Friday, "I have enjoyed my stay in Coventry very much and it was difficult to decide, but it's time to look elsewhere."

He explained that he didn't want to leave the town without an administrator for any length of time, and this is the reason for his announcement now — so the council can initiate its hiring process, which could take several months.

Moore said he has sent resumes to several communities, which he did not identify.

Bradley said the town will advertise soon for candidates to fill the vacancy.

Family Ends Bike Trek

GLOUCESTER, Mass. (AP) — Washington State Atty. Gen. Slate Gorton and his family arrived Friday at his family home after a 49-day cross-country trip — on bicycles.

Gorton had originally planned to finish at his alma mater, Dartmouth College in Hanover, N.H., but decided to push on the rest of the way to Gloucester.

A family spokesman said the group arrived at 3 p.m., and turned in early for a good night's sleep.

The trip began June in Olympia, Wash., for Gorton, his wife Sally, and children Todd, 14; Sarah, 13, and Becky, 11.

The only difficult time was when he was hit by a car in Erie, Pa., and had to have 40 stitches in a leg cut. He rented a car for a time to ride behind the rest of the family still on bikes.

Gorton termed the trip "a fantastic learning experience."

Read All About a New Exhibit on News Reporting!

The Boston News-Letter, started in 1704, was the first continuously published Colonial newspaper in this country. It was also the first American newspaper to run an illustration. A drawing of the English flag was published in January of 1707.

The blue-back spellers by Noah Webster helped set a standard for spelling in our country. Webster also wrote a dictionary and edited a newspaper. Millions of children learned to spell using his book. He lived from 1758 to 1843.

When some Confederate publishers ran short of newsprint during the Civil War, they printed their newspapers on the back of wallpaper.

The history of news reporting is the theme of a new exhibit at the Henry R. Luce Hall of News Reporting at the Smithsonian's Museum of History and Technology in Washington, D.C.

The exhibit shows how the coverage of news has developed over the past 200 years, from Colonial times to the present.

Visitors can listen to famous news broadcasts from the past. They can see how television news coverage has developed. They can read about the history of newspapers, cartoons, comics and advertising.

At one time, during the 1930's, movie theaters showing only news (or newsreels as they were called) were popular. Viewers can see some of these famous newsreels in a theater next to the exhibit.

Inventions that marked the turning points in news reporting are also on display. These include the telegraph, wireless, camera, teletype, typewriter and steam engine (to power the presses).

Of special interest to children is the "News Detective Sheet" that can be picked up by all the younger visitors as they enter the hall. On it are a list of rare newspapers and objects which they are to try to find. A few of these are shown on this page.

The exhibit hall is named for Henry R. Luce, a famous editor and publisher. With the help of a friend, he started Time Magazine in 1923. He also started several other magazines, including Sports Illustrated in 1954. His wife, Claire Booth Luce, is a playwright and former editor. She also represented her state of Connecticut in Congress. Henry Luce died in 1967.

A New Stamp Honors the Postrider

A postrider would blow his horn as he rode into town.

The postrider was the mounted mailman of the Colonial times. He carried newspapers in addition to the mail, and was the important news carrier for around 100 years. So much time was spent delivering news and newspapers that this slowed up the mail. There is a new stamp out about the postrider. It was issued on June 22. It is the third in a series about communications in Colonial times.

Meet the Inventor of the Interview

Horace Greeley founded the New York Tribune in 1841. It became one of the most powerful newspapers in the country. He worked very hard for the rights of labor, anti-slavery, women's rights and many other reforms. On August 20, 1859, he printed the first interview, using the exact words of Brigham Young, the Mormon leader. This caused a great stir, and many people considered it unfair. Today, interviews are common.

Other Famous American Journalists

Franklin (1706-1790)

Benjamin Franklin published the Pennsylvania Gazette from 1729 to 1776. He made it a very successful newspaper. He also served as postmaster and tried to make the postal system serve newspapers better by offering better delivery service.

Thomas (1749-1831)

Isaiah Thomas was an important printer who started many newspapers. He wrote stories in favor of our country's independence from England. He also wrote for the laboring classes, realizing that cheaper newspapers with a greater appeal to the common man were on their way.

Bennett (1795-1872)

James Gordon Bennett started the New York Herald in 1835. In order to report the news as fast as possible, he used the latest methods of communication, such as the telegraph. He also used bold headlines.

Day (1810-1889)

Benjamin Day started the New York Sun in September, 1833. This was the first successful newspaper to sell for a penny. In addition to the news, it carried stories about the police court and crime.

Newsboys... A Part of Newspaper History!

Newsboys delivered and sold newspapers in Colonial times, but they really came into their own with the penny newspaper in the 1830's. Newsboys could be of any age, from a boy of four years to a man in his 80's. One publisher would sell 100 copies of his paper to a boy for 67 cents. Each newspaper sold for a penny. How much profit would the boy make if he sold all his papers?

"War News,"

by Caton Woodville was painted in 1846.

Our war with Mexico lasted from 1846 to 1848. It was caused by a land dispute. Many people felt the war could have been avoided. As a result of this war, our country gained several western states. There were telegraph lines as far south as Richmond, Virginia. Several northern papers set up an express mail service from the war zone to Richmond.
