Town Challenged To Seek Industry

Spanish Plane Crashes in Fog

LA CORUNA, Spain (AP) — A Spanish Aviaco airlines jetliner carrying 79 passengers and a crew of six crashed today in a residential area near the fog-bound airport here. Aviaco officials expressed fear all aboard may have been killed but airport officials said at least one man survived.

The twin-engine Caravelle flight from Madrid plowed into homes in the residential area of Montrove after three unsuccessful attempts to land at Alvedro Airport at this port city 320 miles northwest of Madrid, officials reported.

The Europa Press, a Spanish news agency, said five persons were killed on the ground when the plane crashed into the homes.

Officials said the plane, a medium-distance French-built craft, apparently burst into flames while it was still in the air.

The plane took off from Madrid at 6:50 a.m. local time, and was to land at La Coruna at 9:10.

The airport was under low visibility because of the fog and the plane made repeated attempts to land, officials said.

Most of the passengers were Spaniards, many from Madrid, headed for summer holiday resorts near La Coruna, reports said.

Today's crash was the fourth major air disaster in Western Europe this year and the second involving Spanish airlines.

On March 5, two Spanish jets collided over western France, killing 69 persons in an Iberia Airlines DC9. The other jet, a Spantax Coronado 990, landed safely with 108 persons on board unhurt.

On July 11, a Brazilian Varig Airlines Boeing 707 jet crashed near Paris' Orly Airport, killing 122 of the 134 persons on board.

A British chartered jet crashed in Switzerland on April 10, killing 106 persons.

U.S. District Court Judge Morell Sharp in Seattle, Wash., promised to rule today on a suit brought by the Western States Meat Packers Association.

There were fresh signs that the beef shortage is growing. Ceilings on the prices of all foods except beef were lifted last month as the first stage of Phase 4 which went into full effect today. Beef prices remain frozen until Sept. 12, and cattlemen have been withholding livestock, hoping for higher prices later.

Sunny and warm this afternoon. The high 85 to 90. Clear tonight with the low in the upper 50s to low 60s. Sunny and continued warm Tuesday. The high in the mid to upper 60s.

Precipitation probability near zero this afternoon and tonight, 10 per cent Tuesday. Winds northwesterly near 10 miles per hour this afternoon. Variable winds five to 10 miles per hour tonight and Tuesday.

Outlook for Wednesday: fair and continued warm.

Examination Of Agnew's Maryland Records Begins

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. attorney's office was prepared today to begin picking through a mountain of subpoenaed documents spanning Spiro T. Agnew's past public years in an investigation of Maryland political corruption.

Agnew was told about two weeks ago by U.S. Atty. George Beall of Baltimore that the vice president was under investigation for possible bribery, extortion, conspiracy and income tax law violations in connection with a probe of corruption in Baltimore County and the state of Maryland.

It has been reported that Agnew has unequivocally denied any charges that he accepted political payoffs, calling them "damn lies" and added that he had "absolutely nothing to hide."

Subpoenas were issued last week to the Maryland Hall of Records and the State Board of Election Laws for Agnew's campaign records.

On Friday, Morris L. Radoff, state archivist and records administrator, said the attorney's office would send a representative Monday to select records it wants.

He said the combing of the documents was necessary because "it would take a truck" to haul all of them. Radoff is to appear before the grand jury Thursday.

The subpoenas call for all papers and records pertaining to Agnew and a former Agnew aide back through 1962. But a check with state officials showed that records on file only go back as far as 1966, the year Agnew successfully ran for governor.

It has been reported that some of the documents will show Agnew received political contributions from some of those being investigated by Beall for alleged kickbacks and bribes.

In its report, The Washington Star-News said Sunday it obtained copies of the records. The newspaper said "almost all the donations appear to be in accord with the election laws then in effect."

The records covering his 1966 gubernatorial campaign and his vice presidential races in 1968 and 1972 show that consulting engineers, architects and other contractors doing business with the state contributed significant sums of money, the newspaper reported.

The Star-News also said many of the same contractors also made contributions to Democratic Maryland Gov. Marvin Mandel's 1969 campaign.

There is no legal prohibition against corporate contributions in Maryland elections.

Asked about the possibility that his campaign records would show such campaign contributions, Agnew said at a news conference Wednesday:

"I would suspect they do, because anyone that's been around the political scene in the United States who would expect that campaign contributions don't come from contractors doing state and federal business is quite naive."

However larger firms, the 1,700 companies with business of $100 million a year, will have to give 30 days notice of any price hikes.

Exempt from the new regulations will be businesses with 60 employees or less, as will the lumber industry and public service industries.

Gasoline and petroleum products will remain frozen until Aug. 19, and beef prices will be frozen until Sept. 12.

Special rules will apply to the insurance and health industries.

The 5.5 per cent wage increase guideline is to continue from Phase 3.

Commerce Secretary Frederick B. Dent says Phase 4 will probably be ended this year, but no firm date for ending it has been set.

The administration has not made predictions as to the results of the new program and no target for the rate of inflation by the end of the year has been set.

The goal of Phase 4, officials

Industrial Development Discussed

Paul W. Lattimore, mayor of Auburn, N.Y., tells Manchester business and community leaders how his town brought reverse foreign investments there and predicts Manchester can do it also, if it wants to. He spoke at a "Creative Approach to Industrial Development" breakfast seminar this morning. Seated at the head table at the left is Manchester Mayor John Thompson. At extreme right is Roy Normen, co-chairman of the Industrial-Commercial Development Council of the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce, sponsors of the seminar. Seated between Lattimore and Normen is James J. Musante, chief of the Connecticut Development Commission's Division of Locational Services. He told of the state's activities toward bringing investments to Connecticut.

Continue Search

GREENWICH (AP) — Greenwich police were searching today for Robert Millhouse, 48, of Stamford, missing and presumed drowned after a boat capsized off Greenwich Point Sunday afternoon.

Police said Millhouse and three companions in a 14-foot outboard boat were caught in a squall on Long Island Sound about 4:15 p.m.

Police rescued the three companions and recovered the boat. The Coast Guard joined in the search for Millhouse Sunday afternoon.

Texas Slayings

HOUSTON (AP) — With authorities continuing the search that has unearthed 23 bodies so far, one of the youths accused in some of the homosexual slayings here goes into court today to ask for a psychiatric examination.

Sheriffs from both Chambers and Galveston counties start digging again today along the Gulf of Mexico beach where two bodies were found Friday.

Elmer Wayne Henley, 17, faces his first court appearance. Police say Henley has admitted slaying nine of the young victims.

Skylab Flight

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Mission Control is becoming more confident that the Skylab 2 astronauts will be able to return to earth Sept. 25 in their own ferry ship and that a rescue flight won't be necessary.

Asked by newsmen Sunday if it now appeared the astronauts will make a normal trip home, flight director Charles Lewis said: "At this point, you're probably correct."

But as a precaution, a rescue rocket and another Apollo craft will be moved to a Cape Kennedy, Fla., launch pad Tuesday. The rocket could be launched Sept. 10 or later if needed.

Astronauts Alan L. Bean, Dr. Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma began the 17th day of their planned 59-day orbital journey, with commander Bean set to try out a jet-propelled back pack that looks like something out of Buck Rogers.

He called the White House argument that the President is immune from court orders. "Inconsistent with our entire constitutional tradition."

He argued that the grand jury under whose authority the subpoena was issued "is not seeking to control the President in the exercise of his constitutional powers, for, as we show, he has no constitutional power to withhold the evidence sought by the subpoena merely by his own declaration of the public interest."

"The grand jury is seeking evidence of criminal conduct that the respondent happens to have in his custody—largely by his personal choice."

"All the court is asked to do is hold that the President is bound by legal duties in appropriate cases just as other citizens."

When Nixon notified Cox and Sirica he would not turn over the tapes, the special prosecutor asked Sirica to order the President to obey the subpoena.

The White House responded with a 33-page brief in which it called Cox's attempt to get the tapes "a well-intentioned effort to obtain evidence for criminal prosecutions."

It referred to the courts as "a co-equal but not a superior branch of government" and said that for the courts to compel the President to act "would be a clear violation of the constitutional separation of powers."

He said he realized three years ago that the concept of mini steel mills was to grow in the U.S. and throughout the world. After researching the subject for two years, he became convinced the concept was desirable for Auburn.

"Auburn," he said, "lost its main industry, the International Harvester Co., to Memphis, Tenn., right after World War II. Even though International sold its plant to the town for $1, it didn't do the 2,000 employees any good. The move rocked the community for almost 15 years."

Since then, he said, companies like General Electric and the Singer Co. Climate Control division have moved to Auburn.

"If a town sits back and does nothing, that's just what will happen — nothing," he said. "There's no such thing as status quo. What status quo means is that you're giving your children a community that's going down hill."

Returning to the concept of a mini steel plant for Auburn, he said he had a $34,000 feasibility study and report made for Auburn by Battelle Memorial Institute of Columbus, Ohio, a nationally recognized research firm. Of the $34,000 cost, $24,000 was paid by the State of New York and $10,000 by Auburn's non-profit Industrial Development Foundation.

Lattimore took the feasibility report to the U.S. Department of Commerce, which distributed copies to embassies throughout the world.

Cox Argues President Must Obey Subpoena

WASHINGTON (AP) — Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox filed a legal brief today arguing that President Nixon has "an enforceable legal duty not to withhold material evidence from a grand jury."

"Even the highest executive officials are subject to the rule of law, which is emphatically the province and duty of the courts to declare," Cox argued in the latest round of the legal battle over access to tape recordings and other presidential materials subpoenaed by Cox.

The special prosecutor filed his brief in U.S. District Court in response to the White House argument that the courts lack the authority to compel President Nixon to obey subpoenas.

"The subpoena was properly directed to the President and the court has power to enforce it," Cox said.

He called the White House argument that the President is immune from court orders. "Inconsistent with our entire constitutional tradition."

He argued that the grand jury under whose authority the subpoena was issued "is not seeking to control the President in the exercise of his constitutional powers, for, as we show, he has no constitutional power to withhold the evidence sought by the subpoena merely by his own declaration of the public interest."

Leaders Told Auburn, N.Y., Success Story

SOL R. COHEN

(Herald Reporter)

"The responsibility of a town is to its young people growing up — to provide them with good job opportunities at home, after they leave school — to keep them where their roots are, with their families and friends."

So spoke the mayor of Auburn, N.Y. this morning, at a continental Dutch-treat breakfast at Willie's Steak House.

Paul W. Lattimore spoke at a "Creative Approach to Industrial Development" seminar, sponsored by the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce.

He has been in Manchester since Sunday as guest of Mayor John Thompson and the Town Development Commission. His visit stems from a recent article in the Wall Street Journal, describing his success in recruiting international industry to Auburn.

"Always keep in mind," said Lattimore to a group of about 25 business and community leaders, "the well-being and future of Manchester should be in your hands. I will not trust the growth of my town to the state or federal government. I'll use their tools, yes. However, only the know-how right in Auburn can make us move out — can make us advance."

Auburn, N.Y. is a town of about 36,000 population, with another 15,000 scattered among its suburbs. It is about 25 miles west of Syracuse.

Lattimore received national attention for his plan to construct a $24 million mini steel mill plant in Auburn and to lease it for 20 years to Attacka Ltd. of Japan, a steel-producing company with sales totaling $4 billion last year.

He said he realized three years ago that the concept of mini steel mills was to grow in the U.S. and throughout the world. After researching the subject for two years, he became convinced the concept was desirable for Auburn.

"Auburn," he said, "lost its main industry, the International Harvester Co., to Memphis, Tenn., right after World War II. Even though International sold its plant to the town for $1, it didn't do the 2,000 employees any good. The move rocked the community for almost 15 years."

Lattimore took the feasibility report to the U.S. Department of Commerce, which distributed copies to embassies throughout the world.

"Responses began coming in at once," said Lattimore. "They came from Canada, Europe, Japan. A cablegram from the steel people in Japan said they wanted in immediately. Canadians, Germans, Italians, Swiss and others called us by phone."

He said he and other Auburn key people visited Japan, then Europe, "essentially on the steel proposal but, also, to let it be known other industries also are welcome in Auburn."

The decision was to invite the Japanese venture to Auburn. Under a New York enabling act, Auburn has an Industrial Authority. It owns the land the mini steel mill is being constructed upon. It will build the mill and will equip it to the Japanese firm's specifications. It will provide them with 100 per cent financing, by selling bonds on the open market.

In addition, said Lattimore, his town has developed several other interesting ideas for foreign investors, "all pressing for 1974 involvement and for setting up shop as soon as possible."

He said, "For many years, U.S. money has been invested

Groman's Wins NE Tourney

Manchester's Groman's Sport Shop girls' softball team will be going to the National Slow Pitch Tournament at Chattanooga, Tenn., Aug. 29.

Groman's won the New England regional crown over the weekend. The team had captured the Connecticut Amateur Softball Association (ASA) crown a week ago.

Details are on the sports pages.

Small Cars To Take Spotlight For 1974

DETROIT (AP) — Spurred by the gasoline shortage, small car sales are higher than ever and are expected to take the spotlight when the U.S. auto industry presents its 1974 models next month.

Ford, General Motors, Chrysler and American Motors all put heavy emphasis on their new offerings at the smaller, lower-priced end of the line.

The U.S. automakers sold 1,759,706 compact and subcompact cars in the first seven months of 1973, an increase of 436,333 over the same period last year. The small cars accounted for 29.3 per cent of U.S. domestic auto sales in the first seven months of this year, compared with 22.4 per cent in the same period of 1972.

Small foreign cars also are selling well. Volkswagen sold 296,934 cars in the first six months of this year, compared with 265,366 in the first half of 1972.

Mazda, the only car on the U.S. market with the Wankel rotary engine, has sold 73,055 cars so far this year, compared with 27,210 for the same period last year.

The increases have occurred despite the dollar devaluation that made imports more expensive. "The dollar devaluation didn't help, but the fuel crisis did," said a spokesman for Volvo, which reported sales of 34,122 cars in the first six months this year. That's almost 7,000 more than in the same period last year.

The U.S. automakers aren't ignoring the big cars — which George Romney, former president of AMC, once called "gasoline guzzling dinosaurs." But it appeared virtually certain that the hot spot in the 1974 auto sales race would be the small car field.

Entries such as AMC's new compact-sized Matador II coupe and Ford's rejuvenated Mustang line were typical of offerings in that category.

Purnell Pl., Insurance Fund

The appropriation of $50,000 for improvements to Purnell Pl. is a big step toward keeping Downtown Manchester alive.

We can't help but share the dismay of some town directors when it was revealed that financing of the appropriation is to be achieved from an insurance premium-credit fund. Directors should be the first to know and of course it is fitting that they be made aware of any surplus funds at budget time.

At the same time, though, let's not pass judgment on Town Manager Robert Weiss until we have had an opportunity to hear his explanation of the insurance credit fund.

Acting Town Manager John Harkins did comment the other day that the insurance credit fund dollars are taxpayer dollars, not those of town employees.

In the meantime, we hope the town's Board of Directors gives its full stamp approval to the $50,000 appropriation. It will be a positive step toward halting the declining tax base in Downtown Manchester.

To our knowledge, the appropriation will also be the first concrete step the Town of Manchester has taken in some years toward keeping Downtown Manchester alive and well.

Expert Cites Reasons For Rising Food Prices

Why, all of a sudden, are food prices soaring?

According to one expert — L.H. Simerl of the Cooperative Extension of the University of Illinois' College of Agriculture — there are four main causes, and none of them developed all that suddenly.

- (1) The rising incomes of consumers.
- (2) The increased prosperity of most Americans is readily apparent to everyone who has observed the changes in personal and family living conditions over the past 10 or 20 years, writes Simerl in Patrons Guide, published by FS Services of Mendota, Ill.
- (3) Grain-fed beef, for example, once a luxury enjoyed only by higher income families, has become a "necessity of life." Despite recent protests — and the abnormal situation regarding beef — food is more abundant and is available in more convenient forms. More consumers now can, and do, buy these foods with much less consideration about prices than their parents and grandparents.
- (4) One result is that normal changes in supplies now cause much larger price swings than in earlier years.

(2) The increasing specialization of farmers.

In earlier times, farmers produced a variety of crops and livestock. They could make adjustments to changing weather and market conditions. Now, most farmers are specialists. They produce only one or two crops or kinds of livestock.

A broiler producer, for example, often produces nothing else, not even the feed he uses. He must buy feed, virtually regardless of cost. The same condition applies increasingly to the producers of eggs and pork, to dairymen and to the operators of cattle feedlots.

(3) The disappearance of price-stabilizing reserves of farm products.

For most of the past 40 years, the government helped stabilize farm prices by buying when supplies were excessive and selling when there were shortages.

Now, the government has only small reserves that can be sold to meet rising demands from our own people and from other lands.

(4) The growing tendency of world demand for farm products to increase faster than production.

Until recently, the optimists who believed that the world could feed all its people seemed to be right. But 1971 and 1972 brought short crops in many places — Russia, China, India, Southeast Africa and elsewhere. Bad weather plagued most of the United States.

This year, the principal U.S. crops, soybeans and feed grains, may again be skimpy. Short supplies always produce unstable prices.

All of these great changes — consumer prosperity, specialization of farmers, diminishing stocks of grain and short crops — have combined to produce larger swings in the prices of farm products, says Simerl.

None of this will be of much consolation to harried housewives, or to the person on a fixed income. But at least it indicates that there is no one "villain" responsible for the current phenomenon of shortage and inflation shaking the nation's dinner table.

Max Lerner Comments

Two Conversations

everything with bayonets except sit on them; that what the colonists and generals have done has been to take over in industries, which isn't the same as socialism; that the earlier regimes, influenced by the aristocracy, had been short on social justice; that military regimes are notoriously unstable, and that whether in Peru or Greece, the danger in the future is that one military coup will be succeeded by another.

Betancourt still ruggedly holds his basic thesis that the problems of Venezuela are of a pyramidal structure of society and the economy, with an unequal distribution of wealth at the top, and with children at the base of the pyramid who are being starved in school because there is no breakfast for them at home.

As I see Betancourt's great talent it has been to translate his vision of distributive justice into functioning party programs and governments, and to do it without dominating his party and his country. President Caldera's party, COPEL, gets its own vision of social justice from liberal Catholic thought, much as Eduardo Frei's similar party and government did in Chile, and Caldera (like Betancourt) has shown shrewd pragmatic bent.

Perhaps democracy has been possible in Venezuela because these two visions can compete and coexist. Perhaps it has been because of the revenues from its oil wells and refineries. Yet the oil wealth of the Middle East hasn't kept feudal and despotic regimes from being built on it.

I found in Perez Alfonso a man of fascinating contradictions. He studied medicine at Johns Hopkins, moved away from it, studied law and became an oil concessions lawyer, was shocked by the discovery that the huge profits were going to the oil companies

The Innocent Bystander

Art Huppe

Dear Mr. President: I, Joe Sikspak, American, take pen in hand to stick a couple of oars in the fire. I see where you're not going, let nobody listen to your private tape collection.

Like you say, you've been over those tapes with a fine-tooth comb just to see if you done something wrong that might have escaped your memory. And sure enough, by George, you did it!

Only, like you say, there's always a couple of suspicious types who might hear the tapes different. So, in the interest of it up, added a political bent to take your word for it.

"Well, that's okay by me. If you can't trust you, who can you trust? And now all you got to do is convince Houlthan. Ever since Houlthan bought a used car from Honest Anastasia, he hasn't trusted man nor beast.

What happened, see, is Houlthan reads this ad in the paper: 'A Steal! 73 registered Goliath-8. $800 down to earth price.' So Houlthan calls up Honest. "What's wrong with it?" says Houlthan.

Honest is offended. "I have personally test driven that beautiful car for twelve hours and it is absolutely perfect. It was owned by two little old ladies who could not operate a motor vehicle and thus used it as a gazebo. Therefore, it has only 78.3 miles on the speedometer."

"Criminy nettles," says Houlthan, "78.3 miles?"

"Why quibble, says Honest. "I'll be down in ten minutes to tool it around the block," says Houlthan eagerly.

"First," says Honest, "kindly send me your check for 800 clackers making you the proud

Today's Thought

Happiness for us this year was returning from our vacation in Iowa and discovering that our neighbors had weeded our garden.

There is something fascinating about watching plants grow and recognizing how important they really are to us. Sweet scented and oil-bearing uses for plants besides food. Cotton, linen, tobacco, newspapers, furniture, tires and soap, to name only a few.

Plants which have been extinct for many years are useful, too. They provide gas, dye, sweet scented and oil-bearing uses for plants are tremendous.

"And God saw everything that he had made, and behold, it was very good." almost seems like a weak adjective.

Cheney Tells Status Of Roof Leak Repair

Donna Holland
Correspondent

Douglas Cheney, chairman of the Public Building Commission, attended a recent meeting of the Board of Education in Bolton to discuss the status of the roof leak repair project to carry over into winter when freezing weather will prevent any work.

Donald Correll, vice-president of Peaslee, wrote Fishman in November 1972 telling them to make the necessary repairs at once.

Leinhard wrote Aetna in December 1972 explaining that the roof leaks had developed at the locations of two expansion joints through the entire structure from foundation to roof surface at the school.

He said that in both cases the cap sheet forming the base flashing had split at the canted surface. The roof is not subject to leaks unless ponding, caused by ice on the roof surfaces, reaches the point of the cracks in membrane, he explained.

Leinhard wrote Aetna that the condition was first reported in June 1972 to Peaslee who requested repairs be made by Fishman. A second request was made to Fishman in November 1972 with copies sent to Aetna asking repairs be made under the terms of the bond.

Leinhard repeated the request to Aetna in December and suggested repairs be made by Fishman. The leaks were caused by ordinary wear and tear of the elements and not by unusual conditions listed in the bond he said.

It was the opinion of his associates, Leinhard wrote, that the breaks had been caused by the vulnerability of membrane in the location which appears to be separated from the cant strips and may accordingly be subject to stress that would not be present in the membrane followed and was in contact with the surface of the cant strip.

Copies of Leinhard's letter were sent to the general contractor, the roofing contractor and to the Barrett Roofing Division of the Celotex Corp.

Leinhard stressed the urgency of the repairs and said his associates felt Fishman should take immediate steps to make the necessary repairs in the assumption the cost of the repairs would be reimbursed through the bond.

In January of this year Leinhard wrote Fishman to say that his associates were pleased to be informed by him that Mr. Gordon of the Barrett Co. had authorized him to make repairs to the broken membranes at the two expansion joints at the school.

Leinhard relayed the information to Dr. Castagna who informed him that another leak had occurred in the roof above another classroom. Leinhard requested Fishman investigate the leak and make necessary repairs.

Leinhard wrote Robert Dinger, field sales manager, Eastern Division, The Celotex Corporation, in March 1973 asking to be informed when the firm planned to remove the flashing and investigate the leak and make necessary repairs.

In May Fishman wrote Leinhard to say that he, along with William Kemble of the Celotex Corp. and Gordon went to the school to check the leak.

Kemble said he felt the bond could not cover movement between two portions of the building. He said the material itself was properly installed and firmly attached to the wood.

The leak itself would not admit much water to the building except that the condition was aggravated by a ponding of water because of poor drainage. Recommendations to correct the problem were given.

Leinhard answered Fishman that he could not accept the explanation of the cause of the break in the base flashing that occurred directly over the cant. He said he felt the cap flashing of the expansion joint was the culprit and had caused the crack in membrane of base flashing.

If removal of the cap flashing revealed that the adjacent wood curb construction on each side of the expansion joint was incorrectly or inadvertently spiked together the responsibility would be the general contractor, said Leinhard. He added he was sure Peaslee would accept the costs of correction in the event.

However, until the cap was removed the eventuality could not be determined.

All of which led to the invitation by the school board to

Rising School Costs Offset Less Enrollments

HARTFORD (AP) — The increasing cost of educating the state's public school children will offset most of the anticipated savings from declining school enrollments, the Connecticut Conference of Mayors and Municipalities (CCM) predicted today.

A study by the group shows continuing inflation, higher teacher salaries, the rising cost of supplies and services and fixed costs not affected by school population variations will force an increase in per pupil spending despite reductions in school populations.

The CCM said the State Board of Education released projections of school enrollments last week suggesting that the anticipated decline in enrollments was a justification for failing to increase state aid to local education or for holding increases to a modest level.

But CCM President John J. Sullivan, first selectman of Fairfield, said the state board did not release projections of local school expenditures which he said would corroborate CCM's findings and show the need for substantial increases in state aid.

Sullivan said CCM's research indicates an average $66 million increase annually in public school expenditures that should reach an level of more than $1 billion by 1977-78. He said that during the projected five-year period, from 1973-74 to 1977-78, total local spending for education actually will increase $73 million, and that reduced school enrollments would result in reducing school costs by only about $7 million.

Projections of public school costs by CCM showed expenditures of $770 million in 1973-74, $940 million in 1974-75, $914 million in 1975-76, $966 million in 1976-77 and more than $1 billion for the 1977-78 academic year.

The state legislature provided for no increase in state aid to education this year for the first time since 1961-62 although there will be an increase in the cost of providing public school education that is expected to be about $62 million, Sullivan said.

Adult Education Topic of Survey

Donna Holland
Correspondent

The Bolton Junior Women's Club, at the request of the Board of Education, has been conducting a survey to determine if there is enough interest to warrant an adult evening education program in Bolton.

The survey should be completed Wednesday.

Questions include whether or not you are interested in such a program, if you would be willing to pay a fee, areas of instruction you would be interested in, if you would be interested in teaching and the best times for courses to be taught.

If anyone has not been contacted and is interested in such a program, he is requested to call either Esther Halobour, Laurwood Dr. or Judy Sienna, School Rd.

Southall Play-Off

The men's slow pitch softball play-offs begin tonight at 8:30 at the Bolton High School field. St. George's will play the Crickets, while at Herrick Memorial Park the Sauters will play Clerk Wellpoint.

Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. at Herrick the Bombers will play the Aces while the Spillers play the Striders at the high school.

Bulletin Board

There will be a special meeting tonight from 7:30 until 8:30 p.m. for anyone wishing to comment on the Bolton Summer Recreation program.

At 8:30 p.m. those directly affiliated with this summer's program will meet to review it and outline plans for next year's program.

GARAGE SALE

The neighborhood garage sale is sort of an American institution. Like hashish, apple pie, and Chevrolet.

So it seems only natural that Chevrolet should have a Garage Sale.

Ah, but unlike some garage sales you've been to, Chevrolet is not selling antiques. Just shiny new cars, and some tough new trucks.

We can't tell you, in this ad, exactly which models and styles and colors. After all, there are over 6000 Chevrolet dealers across the country.

We're simply here to suggest that if you're even remotely in the market for a new Chevrolet, you ought to go down to your dealer's and browse. With a little luck you'll come up with a big bargain.

Chevrolet Malibu Estate Wagon. A great looking wagon, sized to fit most families. You'll love how it feels on the road.

Today in History

By The Associated Press
Today is Monday, Aug. 13, the 254th day of 1973. There are 110 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On this date in 1521, the Spanish conqueror, Hernando Cortes, captured Mexico City from the Aztec Indians.

On this date—
In 1689, King William's war began when Indians attacked North Yarmouth, Maine.

In 1948, the American flag was raised over Los Angeles for the first time.

In 1898, the Spanish surrendered Manila to American forces as the Spanish-American War ended.

In 1937, the Japanese attacked the Chinese city of Shanghai.

In 1961, Communist East Germany sealed off the border between East and West Berlin when a bomb exploded near his car on a road outside Athens.

One year ago: U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim said the idea of maintaining peace through a concert of great powers was outdated.

Ten years ago: West Berliners staged an angry demonstration at the Berlin wall, shouting insults at their own police and throwing rocks at the wall.

Five years ago: Greece's Premier George Papadopoulos escaped injury when a bomb exploded near his car on a road outside Athens.

One year ago: U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim said the idea of maintaining peace through a concert of great powers was outdated.

Open Forum

Moreover, in a few years we shall be joining the rest of the nation in celebrating the 20th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

Would it not be well to set up a permanent civic festival committee to stage not only the 1978 observance but to plan an annual program of civic festivities and celebration in addition to those we now observe? Mayor Thompson has already suggested informally to the directors that consideration be given to the establishment of such a committee. I assume that it is not intended to change any existing arrangements such as those for Memorial Day, Armistice Day and Summer Activities in Manchester but to develop a program of civic, athletic and cultural events which can be carried on throughout the year, and which will keep alive the community spirit aroused by the recent seasons in Manchester.

I feel that such a project would command wide popular support. I trust that the directors will give careful consideration to carrying out the mayor's suggestion.

Keep Spirit Alive
To the Editor:
The great success of the Manchester sesquicentennial celebration was due to many factors.

One of these was the hard and effective work done by the members of the various committees which planned the program.

Another was the great interest aroused among the people of the town who participated in performances, presented valuable furniture, pictures and other materials for the exhibits, attended the great parade, the historic exhibit at the Whittier Library, The Evening with the Performing Arts, and the other interesting and well planned events of the celebration.

As a consequence of this great interest and activity a mighty stimulus was given to community spirit and to pride in the town and its accomplishments.

We must not let this fade. We must foster it in every way possible.

Some people are already asking why we cannot have some of these festival occasions (the concert and the square dancing, for example) as a regular feature of our community life.

Vernon Council To Meet On School Funds

A special meeting of the Vernon Town Council will be held Wednesday immediately following a public hearing at 7:30 p.m. at the Vernon Center Middle School.

The hearing will consider two ordinances on appropriations for proposed additions to the school's VoAg Department.

The Board of Education and the Town Council, adopted in concept the $5 million expansion plan which is just an expansion of the facilities without any extras.

The special meeting has been called to consider adoption of the two ordinances and, if adopted, to set a date for a referendum on the appropriations.

Exhibits To Be Readied For Fair

Those participating in the annual Tolland County Fair will be held Saturday and Sunday, will be setting up their exhibits starting Thursday night.

The fair will be held at the Tolland County Agricultural Center, Rt. 30, Vernon. All livestock exhibits must be brought in and set up on Thursday. Starting Friday at 8 a.m. other exhibits may be brought in and set up to 9:30 a.m. on Saturday.

On Friday there will be judging of exhibits and several contests will be held which will not be open to the public. These will include a judging of sheep breed classes, oxen demonstration, swine showmanship and a sheep blocking contest.

At 5 p.m. those attending are asked to buy their supper and support the 4-H food booth. There will be dedication of the new livestock building at 7 p.m. and a beef showmanship contest at 7:30 p.m. The buildings will close at 10.

Events scheduled for the public on Saturday will include a dairy showmanship, police dog demonstration, beef breed classes, to be held from 10 a.m. to noon.

After a break for lunch, there will be a series of sheep showmanship classes from 1 to 2:30 p.m. followed by a go-cart obstacle course race, watermelon eating contest and swine breed classes.

At 4:30 p.m. there will be an auction with this to be followed by a chicken barbecue and a parade of the champions. At 7 p.m. the 4-Hers will present a talent show followed by square dancing. The exhibit buildings will close at 10:30 p.m.

The main event on Sunday will be the horse show which will get under way at 10 a.m. with events to be taking place at various times during the day.

Democrats To Complete Slate

The nominating committee of the Vernon Democratic Town Committee will meet tonight to review the slate of candidates to be presented to the caucus Thursday at 8 p.m. at the First Federal Savings and Loan, Park Pl., Rockville.

When the town governments were consolidated in 1965, the first election saw Democratic candidate Thomas McCusker elected as mayor. In following elections the Republicans have taken the major office. In 1967 John Grant was elected mayor and in the two following elections Frank McCoy was elected. McCoy has just announced his intention to seek a third term.

Although no public committee has been made by James Roche, chairman of the Democratic Town Committee, and a former councilman, he is reported likely to get the nod from the Democratic Town Committee for the post of mayor.

Curriculum Adopted

VIVIAN KENNESON

The Board of Education recently adopted an English Arts Curriculum for kindergarten through Grade 12.

The 40-page guide is the result of five weeks of research, evaluation, and writing by the summer writing team of Gloria Matwiski, Marge Nislan, Dee Zarolinski, Joseph Pacheco, Donald Sierakowski, and Andrew Wiers.

Sierakowski explained that the team aimed at optimum levels of performance, and noted there should be one central authority to coordinate all different viewpoints as minimum standards after the curriculum is put into use.

The curriculum is ongoing, and was accepted as a working document to be revised next year. The team reports its aim is to advance as far as the student's ability allows during the course of the year, after determining the level of previous achievement by testing in all areas of English - speaking, writing, reading and listening.

Increased reading, heightened effectiveness of expression and reasoning are the ultimate goals of the program. The team advocates variation in presentation and choice of learning materials to keep interest high and prevent boredom.

In all cases it is recommended that the student be made aware of his own progress in skill development. Resources for the report were many those already in the school system, supplemented by materials readily available for use by teachers.

James Cornish, Board of Education chairman, asked how much in the curriculum is already being done in the school system. He estimated up to 90 per cent, listed as content objectives, which would facilitate the implementation of the curriculum.

GOP Country Fair Set For Sept. 22

A Country Fair will be held Sept. 22 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at Mt. Nebo. The event is being sponsored by the Manchester Republican Town Committee and the Manchester Republican Women's Club.

Admission to the fair, 99 cents for those 16 years old and over, will include a free hot dog and beverage. Proceeds will be used to replenish the committee treasury. Things "to buy and to amuse" will be offered at various booths, including crafts, penny candy, elephant rides, plants, antiques and a mini-auction of new items. There also will be games and prizes, rides, white elephant sale for children, and a clown.

Rely On Vegetables For Economy Meals

STORRS - Rely on fresh vegetables in season to help stretch your food dollar this summer. You can combine vitamin-rich vegetables with protein foods such as milk, eggs, cheese, fish, dried beans or rice for economical, well-balanced main dishes, says Janina Czajkowski, Extension nutritionist at The University of Connecticut.

When you consider vegetables in planning meals without meat or with very little meat, keep in mind all the other sources of protein available. Foods that supply high quality protein like meat are fish, milk, cheese and eggs. The less expensive vegetable protein in wheat, rice, corn, beans or oats can be supplemented by eating small amounts of the more expensive animal protein foods. Certain combinations of vegetable protein foods, such as rice and beans or corn and beans also provide economical sources of high quality protein. Miss Czajkowski offers these menu suggestions using University of Connecticut, Storrs, Connecticut 06268.

New Commission Member Seeks Women's Equality

By MARGIE FREANEY Danbury News-Times WASHINGTON, Conn. (AP) - "I'm not going to beat my head against a brick wall just because I'm on the commission," says Ann Menousek, a member of the new state Commission on the Status of Women who likes to think of herself as feminine. "I guess men expect women's work begins next month. Once women realize their own potential, all those fears men have about women taking over just might come true," she said. Ever since the 32-year-old Washington, Conn. resident was appointed to the 17-member commission, she's been drawing sidelong glances and curious comments from people who once thought her "harmless," she said. "I may look feminine, but I'm not clinging vine or shrinking violet," said Ann, who already has begun collecting statements from women who feel they've been victims of discrimination. Ann works fulltime as assistant editor of the weekly Brookfield Journal, placing her 6-year-old child in day care. She and her husband, who is working and competing with men in the job market should concentrate on "being themselves," 73-27, conforming to any women's lib stereotype. # WAC To Step Out In New Uniforms

By TOM DIEMER Associated Press Writer NEW YORK (AP) - A new look in the Women's Army Corps, being outfitted in light mint-green uniforms and ready to take up the slack in an army forced to depend on volunteers, was previewed Thursday by a brigadier general, the second WAC promoted to that rank. "At one time they could manage without us," Brig. Gen. Mildred Bailey said at a news conference. "This will not be true in the army of the future." Because of the end of the draft and the push for equal opportunity for women, the Army has embarked on a recruiting drive to double the strength of the women's Army Corps. In the past year, the director of the Corps said, the number of women in the army has increased 4,000 in an all-time high of 18,000. To help keep pace with the changing times, the traditional, drab Army green uniforms are about to be discarded by the WACs, at least in the summer time. Three versions of the new summer uniforms are currently being tested at Fort McClellan, Ala. The uniforms, of polyester double-knit in a bright pastel shade of green, can be cut slightly above or below the knees. They are worn with a smart black belt. If the reaction is favorable,

WAC To Step Out In New Uniforms

the new style, or a modified version, will be standard next summer, Miss Bailey said adding her personal reaction: "I love them." "We are women, and women don't wear the same kind of clothes men do," she said. "It's (the new uniform) more womanly." The winter uniform also will be redesigned, although the regular olive green color will be retained. A pants-suit uniform is under consideration for certain situations, but the general said that, despite easing of marital and child-bearing regulations, the army is not ready for a maternity uniform. Old regulations, which required that a woman must be single to enter the service and must leave when pregnant, have been dropped. Marital status now has no bearing on a woman's eligibility to be commissioned or commissioned. The new uniform will be worn with full pay can be taken when pregnancy occurs. Miss Bailey believes the army is ahead of the civilian business world in offering equal opportunity to women. "Whatever you want to do in a lifetime, you can do in the Army," she asserted. "There isn't any type of specialists that the armed forces don't need." Street combat is the only area where the army is not yet ready to utilize women, according to Miss Bailey.

Hunter Aims To Preserve Wildlife In African Bush

By ELIZABETH BASSETT
CAMP ZINAVE, Mozambique (AP) - In the coolness of dawn, the hunter left camp and set off into the bush. He wanted a waterbuck, the large tawny-colored antelope of eastern and southern Africa. He checked his rifle one last time.

With Jose Tello, a former poacher turned game warden and hunter, and Baron Werner von Alvensleben, whose hunting exploits over the past 35 years earned him the name Munjuno, "the great one," he drove quietly through the tawny scrub.

A few minutes past 6, they spotted a herd of waterbuck, their white bull-eyes bobbing and black-whorled horns standing out clearly through the thorn trees.

Carefully, they moved their open-topped Land Cruisers closer and the hunter reached for his gun. The shot was good. The frightened herd scattered and the buck ran with them, confused by the noise and the pain in his shoulder.

He was not dead because the hunter wanted to conserve, not kill. The hunter was Keyser van der Walt, head of the department of veterinary medicine at South Africa's Onderstepoort, a part of the University of Pretoria, and he was leading a group of American veterinarians on an experience unique to "outsiders," a game immobilization hunt.

Van der Walt had his buck with a barbed dart containing tranquilizer. They dragged the buck into the open where Tello carefully worked the dart out of the animal's left shoulder.

Then Tello, director of the fledgling Zinave Research Station, and van der Walt went to measuring - the blood samples and tally, body length and horns. Finally, a broad belly green vinyl collar was placed around the buck's neck for identification and he was given the code name "Zca," after one of the Portuguese hunter-trappers.

From their case of drugs, Tello and van der Walt prepared an antidote and jabbed the buck's flank. His eyes opened, he gazed around and staggered to his feet. Slowly, he walked, then ran into the prony scrub.

The hunters of Zinave, one of the richest game areas in Africa, no longer kill. Fourteen years ago, von Alvensleben turned the area north and south of the Save River as a hunting playground for the rich.

But the leathery white hunter had a change of heart. After more than 30 years of living in the bush, knowing its animals' moods and tempers and realizing how man could thoughtlessly destroy it all, von Alvensleben decided killing for sport was not the answer. This was his way in conservation.

And so three years ago he stopped hunting south of the Save, turned Zinave into a game preserve and founded the Zinave Wildlife Research Station, designed to study the entire ecosystem of the area for the benefit of man.

His north-of-the-river hunting camps remained open to provide the desperately needed funds for research but they soon will be phased out and the whole 3,500-square-mile area will become a game reserve.

Zinave's scientific program began last year in association with the American Museum of and the social composition of his herd, is learned. A year or so after the initial immobilization, he will be darted and measured again to study his growth and development.

But the study of a species' migratory habits and development is not the only reason for immobilization. At the turn of the century, rinderpest wiped out hundreds of thousands animals in huge areas of southern Africa and now ruminants are dried regularly for disease studies.

As a result of this plague and its disastrous effect on the ecosystem, as well as man's encroachment on wildlands, species which at one time flourished have almost disappeared. Tranquilizing animals in areas where they still abound allows them to be relocated and reestablished in places where they have died out. Or darting can be used to capture animals for zoos.

In the Zinave area of Mozambique, there is an additional and tragic reason to dart: Every year thousands of animals are killed or maimed in poachers' snares. Furious and out of their minds with pain and fear, the only way those that have a chance to live can be treated is to tranquilize them.

Business Mirror

Many Convinced High Prices Staying

By JOHN CUNIFF
NEW YORK (AP) - Evidence builds that Americans, including professional economists, businessmen and even some government officials, are resigning themselves to a future of rising prices.

Statements and observations by people in every walk of life suggest that, in varying degrees, they believe it is best to anticipate a return to the 1 and 2 per cent inflation sought in years gone by.

Moreover, they are acting on their premises. Escalator clauses are being built into more contractual agreements, not just between labor and management but in Social Security and life insurance and even home mortgages.

Arthur Burns, who as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board is in as powerful a position relative to inflation as almost any man in America, was quoted in recent weeks as saying that "supply and demand forces in the world economy can swamp anything that the Federal Reserve does to curb inflation."

Herbert Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisors, has conceded his disillusionment with past price restraint efforts and has become more pessimistic about price stability for the immediate future.

"We are going to be continuously confronted with choices between higher prices and shortages," he told the

Week Produced Phase 4 Rulings

By DAVID BURKE
NEW YORK (AP) - New Phase 4 economic regulations were unveiled this past week as interest rates hit record peaks and wheat prices soared to new highs.

The Cost of Living Council issued revised price regulations for a number of industries. The modified rules offered some added flexibility but still maintained relatively strict controls on price increases.

The persistent presence of inflation was underscored, however, by two successive increases in the bank prime lending rate.

Many major banks across the country, which had raised this key lending fee from 8 1/2 to 9 percent early in the week, announced Friday they planned to lift it another quarter of a percentage point. The 9 1/2 per

Redlegs Hotter Than Weather

NEW YORK (AP) - August is hot, but the Cincinnati Reds are hotter. The surging Reds continue to pressure Los Angeles' front-running Dodgers in the suddenly tight National League West race thanks to a pace that's even hotter than the weather.

When the Reds whipped St. Louis 7-2 Sunday, it stretched Cincinnati's current winning streak to five straight and eight victories in the last nine games. Manager Sparky Anderson's crew has logged a 33-10 record since July 1, chipping 9 1/2 games off Los Angeles' once awesome West Division bubble.

The Dodger lead remained at 1 1/2 games over the streaking Reds as Los Angeles rallied to beat Philadelphia 2-1.

Cincinnati 7, St. Louis 2 Pete Rose's second double keyed a five-run second inning that carried the Reds past the struggling Cardinals. It was the seventh straight loss for St. Louis and capped the Redbirds' NL East lead to three games over Montreal and Pittsburgh.

Dodgers 2, Phillies 1 The Dodgers came from behind to beat Steve Carlton and the Phillies 1-1.

Greg Luzinski's 19th homer accounted for the game's only run until the eighth inning. Then, rookie catcher Joe Ferguson tagged a pinch homer, tying the score for Los Angeles.

In the ninth, the Dodgers pushed across the deciding run on consecutive singles by rookies Tom Paciorek, Steve Yeager and Dave Lopes.

Astros 3, Cubs 2 Stumbling Chicago dropped its eighth straight win as Jim Wynn scoring Houston's winning run in the eighth inning of a 3-2 victory.

Cepeda Having Ball With RSox, Enjoys Cha Cha on Base Paths

BOSTON (AP) - For a guy with two bad knees, Orlando Cepeda is having a ball doing his favorite dance, a personal version of the Cha Cha on the basepaths for the Boston Red Sox.

Cepeda, whose career appeared ended until the broke into the major leagues in 1958, in 1961, he hit 46 American League adopted the designated hitter rule last winter, drilled five hits in a row, including his 18th homer Sunday in helping the Red Sox to a 14-8 victory over the California Angels.

The 35-year-old slugger limped across the plate four times after hitting his average from .294 to .302. He also drove in one run, moving to within one RBI of Duke Snider for 28th place among all-time leaders.

"I think I'm hitting the ball as good as I ever have, maybe even better," Cepeda said. "When I go up to the plate, I don't plan to do any single thing such as going to right or trying to pull the ball. I just go up there and swing the bat."

Cepeda is so pleased with the way he is hitting that he even can compare it with his greatest season since he broke into the major leagues in 1958. In 1961, he hit 46 homers and drove in 142 runs for the San Francisco Giants.

"Sure, I remember those big years, but I still think I'm swinging as good as ever right now," the first baseman said. "This designated hitter rule is made for me. I'd be working in the sugar fields without it. Just give me a bat. I'm happy."

Cepeda is on one of the hottest streaks in baseball. He has hit safely in 16 consecutive games, going 27 for 64 in the stretch. And, since Aug. 1, he has 17 hits in 31 times at bat with men on base. In 427 times at bat, he has 129 hits, including 21 doubles and he often hits 300-foot singles because of his surgically scarred knees. He has driven in 71 runs and scored 45.

Cepeda seems to hit best when the pitcher gets ahead of him on the count. All five of his Sunday came when he had two strikes.

"I think I'm a better hitter when I have two strikes," he said. "I like to get behind. I seem to beat down more. Notice what I do. I almost always take the first pitch. I like to look at least at one pitch. It's something my father taught me, and he was a better hitter than me."

Cepeda's late father, Peruchio, is a legend in baseball in Puerto Rico. The Red Sox hope his boy will continue on the path to becoming a legend in Boston.

For Sunday, August 12th was the day people were forced to recognize that the DH was not just another hitter.

The best performance was by Boston's Orlando Cepeda, who went five-for-five with a home run and California's Frank Robinson went three-for-four with two homers in the Red Sox' 14-8 victory over the Angels.

There ARE A LOT of ways of doing it but it is best to avoid the runner trying to break up a double play at second base. Demonstrating a few scrap techniques are Ron Hunt of Montreal, Derral Thomas of San Diego and Jack

NEW YORK (AP) - "I don't think we'll win the pennant," said Sam McDowell of the New York Yankees. "We don't want it badly enough. It makes me sick to my stomach. This was the most disgraceful game I've ever been associated with in my 13 years in the big leagues."

The crowd at Yankee Stadium was apt to agree with the New York left-hander after the Oakland A's erased a six-run deficit to pull out a wild 13-12 victory Sunday.

The Yankees made five errors—and several more that weren't listed in the box score.

"We didn't deserve to wear the pinstripes today," said a disgruntled McDowell. "I've never in my life seen a team make so many mental mistakes. It was a disgrace."

McDowell refused to single out any of the Yankee culprits, except himself.

Earl Williams slammed a grand slam that destroyed his teammate Tommy Davis added a two-run triple, highlighting a three-inning rally that sparked the Yankees' 13-12 victory over Kansas City.

His San Francisco teammate Tio Fuentes and former teammate Willie Mays got more applause Sunday in the Giants' 4-1 victory over the New York Mets that made left-hander Bryant 17-8 this baseball season.

Fuentes drove in all the Giants' runs with a three-run home run in the fifth inning and a double in the eighth.

The 45-year-old Mays played first base for the Mets in what was billed as possibly his last playing appearance in his former home ballpark. He drew a standing ovation from the crowd of 13,400 before his first at-bat but was hitless for the day.

Bryant's sixth pitching was somewhat unnoticed, just as his success was overlooked last month when he was left out of the National League All-Star team. He allowed the Mets only one run, and that was unearned. The outpouring is aiming for his first 20-victory season, but said Sunday.

Funeral services will be Tuesday in Ridgefield. The Fitzgerald Funeral Home, 225 Main St., is in charge of local arrangements.

Vandals Shatter School Windows

A rock-throwing spree at Buckley School, Vernon St., over the weekend cost the town over $1,000 for the replacement of glass alone, according to Ted Fairbanks, superintendent of schools.

The damage done to the school windows was also caused by vandals who used to throw rocks at the school. Fairbanks said that most of the glass was broken due to vandalism.

Approximately 35 windows were broken this weekend, Fairbanks said.

The damage done by vandals at the school this morning, carries a price tag of an additional $300 for labor, Fairbanks said.

Some large rocks were used to "pound on" some of the windows, Fairbanks said. He stated that some of the broken window panes were made of 1/2-inch plexiglass and would withstand "a lot of force."

Other rocks were found lodged in a ventilation duct grate near the top of the building. Some light fixtures were also smashed by the vandals, according to Fairbanks.

The lights were used to illuminate the area for the purpose of discouraging vandals.

Fairbanks said that a two-man team of Board of Education workers has been working for the past 14 months replacing broken glass in town schools. Fairbanks said that most of the glass was broken due to vandalism.

To emphasize how big a problem vandalism has been at town schools, Fairbanks said that the cost of labor and materials for replacing windows broken by vandals in the 1972-73 fiscal year was over $20,000.

Hay Named Interim Chairman

HARTFORD (AP) — Raymond A. Hay of Greenfield was named interim finance chairman of the Connecticut Republican Party, GOP chairman J. Brian Gaffney said today.

Hay is executive vice president of the Connecticut Corp. He also is president of Xerox's U.S. operation.

Hay is to serve in an interim capacity until a meeting of the Republican State Central Committee, which is expected to confirm him as permanent successor to William Bush of West Hartford. Bush resigned last month.

Town Challenged

But, you can suggest and you can provide them with the opportunity to expand and you can provide the needed facilities."

Lattimore said that, as a result of the "reverse industry" actions on the part of the town of Auburn, "we have more new industry coming into Auburn than we've got room for. Some of our people are going to look for ways to get beyond city limits, but that's alright. The job effect still will exist."

Lattimore, serving his second term as Auburn mayor, is a Democrat who was backed for re-election by the Republican Party. He is chairman of the New York State Conference of Mayors. He serves as chairman of the U.S. Conference of Mayors' special task force on the city.

Lattimore, in Manchester, said expenses only, usually gets a $3,000 consulting fee per diem.

Chairman of this morning's seminar was Roy Norman, co-chairman of the Chamber's Industrial-Commercial Development Council.

Thomas Thompson introduced Lattimore and explained why he was invited to Manchester.

Speaking briefly was James J. Musante, chief of the Connecticut Development Commission's Division of Locational Services. He told of the commission's activities in promoting export opportunities and export trade, and of its interest in recent years of reverse investments in Connecticut.

"Some of it has been brought here and we're looking for more," he said.

George Shenkan, a vice president of the Chamber, thanked Lattimore for his talk and his message.

"You've inspired us all," said Shenkan. "I feel that Clark (executive vice president of the Chamber) and the other members, with his love for our town, with his love for its existing industry. It's folly bringing in new industry while paying no attention to old. True, you can't tell them what to do."

He predicted an ever-increasing demand in the U.S. for new products and new industry.

"The question is," he noted, "who's going to get it? The people in the South went after it years ago and grabbed it away, while those in the Northeast, with their great wealth of knowledge, sat back and let them get away with it."

Lattimore warned, "Before worrying about new industry, however, a town must pay attention to the needs of its existing industry. It's folly bringing in new industry while paying no attention to old. True, you can't tell them what to do."

Hostess Wore Pajamas But The Guests Didn't Mind At All

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (AP) — The hostess wore rumpled white pajamas and didn't get up to greet her guests. But nobody at Ruth Hoffman's party seemed to mind.

Mrs. Hoffman, 57, held the party for more than 10 family members and friends Saturday in her room at Sequoia Hospital here.

She learned she had terminal bone cancer the day before Mother's Day and began planning the party a short time later.

"I want to see and talk with and touch them all I can," she said as the visitors streamed into her flower-laden room to sign a guest book, hug her and chat.

"We all have to die, and I want to have a party for my friends," she said. "I feel wonderful. I'm surrounded by the people I love."

Amid the quiet chatter and laughter, Mrs. Hoffman's face brightened as she held her 15-year-old grandson, Scott Gage, and softly sang, "Rock a bye, baby, in the treetop."

Boycott Instigator Discouraged By Phase 4 Prices

Mrs. Barbara Shuttleworth of Vernon, whose meat boycott activities on the local scene last April was instrumental in bringing about a nationwide boycott, is discouraged with the turn of events since President Nixon's Phase 4 became effective.

"I don't know what can be done now," she said, "it's very discouraging."

"Beef is still available at much higher prices, and the cost of other meat products continue to rise."

"I have been buying less beef than I normally do, and have been trying to hold on to some of it for my family. I'm not hoarding, I don't even have a freezer, but I would like a little on hand," she said.

Mrs. Shuttleworth, who was guest on the Dialogue '73" interview program of the Connecticut Public Information Network Sunday, commented that she is causing the present meat shortage and beef is being held off the market during the shortage.

"We are not going to have anything but a mess when you stop the controls," she added.

Does she plan to start another meat boycott? "No," she said, "I started the ball rolling," she said, "now it's up to somebody else."

On Burr Corners Commuter Bus

gratulations from Deputy Commissioner F. Colin Pease of the Transportation Department's Bureau of Rail and Motor Carrier Services; and James F. Shugrue, acting commissioner of the state Transportation Department.

Mrs. Boyle, employed in the law office of Murtha, Cullina, Rieckler and Finney on Pearl St. in Hartford, really enjoys commuting by bus.

"I'd see them going by as I was driving through the heavy traffic to work, and I decided to start taking the bus myself," she said.

Mrs. Boyle's daughter, Mrs. Carolyn Cloutier of 101 South St., and her friend Susan Harrison of 130 Vernon Ave., both of Vernon, also make the daily trip to Hartford.

They all agreed "it's more convenient and a whole lot cheaper than taking a car."

Commenting on the Burr Corners bus transportation, Pease said, "This arrangement has caught on like wildfire. We have expanded the parking facilities and plan to expand them further. We have also put telephones in the parking lot to assist commuters at the Burr Corners lot."

Acting Commissioner Shugrue, in presenting Mrs. Boyle with a framed certificate designating her as the 100,000th commuter who uses the bus service, said, "Thank you for using the commuter bus service and for helping to keep the roads clear of cars."

He said figures show that this particular bus service since its inception at Burr Corners has eliminated approximately 75,000 car trips going in and out of Hartford.

Also on hand to congratulate Mrs. Boyle were Mayor John Thompson and State Comptroller Nathan G. Agostinelli.

The express commuter bus service has carried an average of 375 people a day on round trips between Burr Corners and downtown Hartford.

Aimed at reducing traffic in the downtown area, as well as to cut down on pollution, commuters are urged to leave their cars in the parking lot and take the bus to the city.

Buses operate from 7 to 9 a.m. and from 4 to 6 p.m. weekdays and a special bus is run on Saturdays by the Connecticut Business and Industry Association.

Vernon Woman Honored As 100,000th Rider

gratulations from Deputy Commissioner F. Colin Pease of the Transportation Department's Bureau of Rail and Motor Carrier Services; and James F. Shugrue, acting commissioner of the state Transportation Department.

Mrs. Boyle, employed in the law office of Murtha, Cullina, Rieckler and Finney on Pearl St. in Hartford, really enjoys commuting by bus.

"I'd see them going by as I was driving through the heavy traffic to work, and I decided to start taking the bus myself," she said.

Mrs. Boyle's daughter, Mrs. Carolyn Cloutier of 101 South St., and her friend Susan Harrison of 130 Vernon Ave., both of Vernon, also make the daily trip to Hartford.

They all agreed "it's more convenient and a whole lot cheaper than taking a car."

Commenting on the Burr Corners bus transportation, Pease said, "This arrangement has caught on like wildfire. We have expanded the parking facilities and plan to expand them further. We have also put telephones in the parking lot to assist commuters at the Burr Corners lot."

Acting Commissioner Shugrue, in presenting Mrs. Boyle with a framed certificate designating her as the 100,000th commuter who uses the bus service, said, "Thank you for using the commuter bus service and for helping to keep the roads clear of cars."

Agnew Probe
WASHINGTON (AP) — An aide to Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has hinted that Agnew will turn over to federal prosecutors financial and tax records they seek in an investigation of political corruption in Maryland.

"I would not find it surprising if it develops that the lawyers are proceeding in that manner," J. Marsh Thomson, Agnew's press secretary, said Friday night.

Agnew disclosed last week that he is under investigation by a federal grand jury for possible violation of tax, bribery, extortion and conspiracy laws. He called any charges leveled against him "damned lies."

Higher Bread Prices Expected

HARTFORD (AP) — Grain will be in short supply for the next few weeks as a result of the 60-day price freeze which gave money to farmers.

Farmers limited grain production because of the price control, and full supplies will not reach the market for three or four months, said Arthur L. Woods, president of the Connecticut Business and Industry Association.

Her daughter said, "I work in the same office as my mother. We got out of work at 5 p.m. and I had to stop for my mother's parking fee in Hartford. I switched to taking the bus. The costs can't compare."

Seek Indictments

HOUSTON (AP) — Authorities sought indictments today against two twelve-haired teen-agers charged in the largest mass murder in the nation's history.

The recovery of four additional bodies Monday at a beach on Gulf Breeze Island to 27 the number of victims found since last Wednesday.

U.N. Continues Debate Over Israeli Action

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — All 15 members of the U.N. Security Council agreed that Israel should be censured for forcing down an Arab airliner last weekend. But a split may develop over Arab demands for punitive action.

Debate continues today, and a vote is not expected before Thursday.

The United States, Israel's traditional backer, indicated it was ready to join in a censure motion as the 15-nation council opened the debate Monday. But a U.S. spokesman said his delegation would oppose any resolution going beyond censure.

Lebanon, the owner of the airliner, hoped to negotiate a compromise resolution that would get U.S. support and still carry some form of penalty or threat.

Lebanese Ambassador Edouard Ghorra and other Arab speakers told the council that the interception was an unjustified act of terrorism. "The Israelis" have either sunk to the level of hijackers or have elevated hijacking to a state policy," Ghorra said.

Lebanon, Egypt and the Soviet Union called for sanctions against Israel. A draft resolution under discussion would ask the International Civil Aviation Organization, a U.N. agency that regulates commercial air traffic, to take "adequate measures against Israel" to insure the safety of civil aviation. It also would threaten action by the Security Council if Israel refused to comply with such demands.

Israeli Ambassador Josef Tekoh told the council that Israel had acted in justified self-defense because the United Nations and the world community were unwilling to combat the "plague of terrorism" sweeping across the world.

McGovern Reflects On Watergate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. George McGovern says President Nixon's election victory, and the Watergate revelations since then, may be better for the country than a McGovern win would have been.

McGovern said he felt that he had won, uncovering the Watergate might have looked like a political vendetta, and wondered if all the facts could have been uncovered under Democrats.

"Watching the high and mighty who so arrogantly engineered Mr. Nixon's election now humbled by their own testimony (before the Senate Watergate committee), I have been struck that such humiliation would have looked like a graceless vendetta had it been executed in the wake of a Democratic presidential victory," he said.

"He suggested that Watergate may stir us enough to regain our constitutional system of checks and balances and to reverse the disastrous drift toward executive secrecy and presidential monarchy."

Stop Ordered By Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — The last U.S. bomb will fall on Cambodia by midnight (EDT) tonight, and the United States' longest air war that saw Indochina blasted with a record 7.4 million tons of explosives.

The extra six and a half months of bombing in Cambodia after the Vietnam ceasefire has added to doubts about the ability of air power to force political settlements in wars of this kind.

Despite the backing of more than 430 U.S. bombers and fighter bombers, Cambodia's army of about 190,000 men was squeezed into an enclave by a Communist-led insurgent force about one-fourth its size. As the U.S. bombing drew to a close, the insurgents held about 90 percent of Cambodia's territory.

Pentagon officials said no one can forecast with any confidence what will happen after the American warplanes halt their bombing runs. The Cambodian military has only 50 small fighter bombers.

The Nixon administration took the position that U.S. bombing support of the Cambodian army was needed to bring about a cease-fire there and North Vietnamese compliance with sections of the Paris agreement requiring Hanoi to pull its troops out of Cambodia.

But there is no Cambodian cease-fire and no real prospect of one. U.S. intelligence estimates the North Vietnamese have about 30,000 soldiers in Cambodia, most of them in a position to threaten South Vietnam.

The prolonged air strike in Cambodia, and for a limited time in Laos after the Vietnam peace agreement was signed in January, added to the heavy cost in lives of the United States in waging the air war, which dates back to 1965.

Town Directors To Consider Appropriations

SOL R. COHEN (Herald Reporter)
Heading the agenda for the Manchester Board of Directors' meeting tonight are two proposed appropriations which were aired at lengthy public hearings last Tuesday — $5.8 million for additions and renovations to Tilling and Bennett Junior High Schools, and $50,000 for improvements to Purnell Place.

The school board is requesting that the proposed $5.8 million appropriation be placed for referendum on one question on the Nov. 6 voting machines. The $5.8 million cost, $2,801,000 for buildings and $2,999,000 for furnishings.

The plans for both schools are scaled-down versions of plans drawn in 1972 by Arnold Purnell, who was then mayor and Richard Manley for Benet. A proposal for a $6.8 million appropriation for Tilling and Bennett schools was rejected last November.

The $50,000 for improvements to Purnell Place, which runs north to south, one way, behind downtown Main Street stores, is backed by the Mayor's Downtown Action Committee, the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce, the Main Street Guild, those businesses backing the street, and Town Manager Robert Weiss.

Weiss has proposed the appropriation be financed from accumulated and unused insurance-premium refunds.

The board's regular business meeting will be at 8 p.m. in the Municipal Building Hearing Room.

Beginning at 7 p.m. the directors will hear two informal reports. The first will be a status report on plans to purchase the historic Cheney Hall and to preserve it for public ownership. The second is an additional position of a bookkeeper in the collector of revenue office, at $8,
