Cleanup crews began this morning to remove debris and rubble left in the wake of the tornado which struck Manchester, Talcottville and areas of Vernon yesterday.

At Oakland Manor Apartments on Oakland St., apparently suffering the most damage from the violent storm. shattered glass from windows and doors is strewn over the lawn, trees uprooted, and roofs and walls split wide open revealing shattered lamps, pictures and furniture of the former enants. Outside drain pipes, as well as tricycles and wagons belonging to area children, are now tangled masses of metal.

A. Mark Frank, owner of the apartment complex, estimates the damage will run into the "hundreds of thousands of dollars." Frank, who was in his basement ofgardening equipment had been lifted off the ground, it hovered for a few moments as if deciding in which direction to go, and then came to rest about 75 feet north of us in a direct line," he said. As to insurance on the complex,

Frank said, "We are fully covered, and I am meeting with the insurance men for a preliminary investigation this morning."

As for the individual tenants, Frank said, "The insurance on the apartment, covers the building itself, but the tenants must have insurance on their individual belongings within the apartment. It is for those who haven't any insurance that I feel sorry."

The storm damage which affected 30 or 40 families in the apartment complex brought forth much compassion on the part of surrounding "Many of the tenants took in those has sent his thanks to Hartford, South Windsor and Enfield officials for their offers of assistance when they heard of the disaster; however, their assistance was not needed although some South Windor personnel and equipment came to the area. Weiss paid tribute to the Civil Defense unit, the Red Cross, and welfare agency for assistance in the wake of the later morning tornado. "The neighborliness expressed b those untouched by the storm was evident everywhere," he added, "as neighbor pitched in to help neighbor

Important Break-Through

At this point, it is not so much the money - although $1 billion for starters is going to come in very handy - as the principle that is most important.

For the first time, mass transit is being cut in for a direct share in the billions pouring into - and out of the Federal Highway Trust Fund, the kitty set up a decade back to finance the interstate road network and one of the most fantastically productive revenue-raising programs ever Under the new highway bill municipalities beginning next July will be able to tap the trust for $200 million, with expenditure initially limited to bus purchases. The following year, however, $800 million will be available for rail and subway systems as well, with the promise of more to come.

To those in the land who have been crying out in alarm at the steady deterioration of public transportation facilities as private autos and superhighways proliferated, it is the realization of an idea whose time actually came years ago. The allocations fall short of meeting even the most pressing immediate needs of transit systems and are of a $23-billion bill which still emphasizes asphalt and concrete.

highway interests have long barred. Their argument is that the trust, fed by gasoline and road-use taxes, should be reserved for the direct benefit of those paying for it - motorists.

Things We Are Happy We Missed

We remember, with some degree of nostalgia, a less hectic time when political candidates did not indulge in much of the hooplas which today passes for running for office.

There was a homey method of being a candidate which was known as a front porch campaign. This was predicated on the premise that the person mentioned for an office was not really running for it, but that the office was seeking him.

Hence it would be undignified and out of character for the person to go soliciting votes. This was at a time when holding office was known as "public service." An office holder was supposed to be serving the people at some sacrifice of his personal

Rep. Torbert M. Macdonald, R-Mass., chairman of the House subcommittee on communications, says passage could come late next week of a bill banning TV blackouts of local contests sold out 48 hours in advance. That would be just prior to the opening of the 1973 National Football League season. "Congress can act quickly when it wants," said Macdonald Wednesday after taking testimony from Baseball Commissioner

Bowle Kuhn and Thomas Kauper, head of the Justice Department's antitrust division. Under the Macdonald timetable, which he said is an estimated

The markup, or final version, of the bill would be considered early next week with subcommittee and full committee passage coming by the mid-week, according to Torbert. House passage could come late next week, the chairman said and then it depends on the Senate whose Commerce Committee has already approved a bill by Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R. I. which is basically the same as Torbert's, although there are

Dolphins' Touch Gone

DALLAS (AP) — The world champion Miami Dolphins enter the 1973 regular National Football League season wondering where all their magic has gone.

Call it the Superbowl jinx or whatever, but the Dolphins have lost their touch to win in the crunch, a trait which carried them to 17 consecutive victories last year.

"It used to be that the Dolphins were pulling out victories at the end, but now it has turned against us," Miami Coach Don Shula said Thursday night after Tony Fritsch's 22-yard field goal in the final three seconds handed Dallas a 26-23 victory as both clubs closed out the NFL exhibition season. Two weeks ago, Fred Cox of Minnesota toed a field roal at the final gun to give the Vikings a 20-17 victory over Miami, snapping a streak of 23 games without a loss. Losses to Minnesota and Dallas came after Miami had built up huge leads.
