Town Increases Insurance Benefits

Representatives of the Insurance Advisory Board met with the Board of Education to consider proposals and recommendations made and endorsed by the insurance board for school board employees.

Unanimously approved by the school board were two policies: One for $4,000 life insurance from Occidental Life Insurance Co. and one for major medical insurance from Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance Co.

In approving the Phoenix Mutual plan the board increased the major medical coverage from $20,000 to $250,000.

The lowest bid received, equal to present insurance replacement, showed a total savings of $1,542.48.

However, the board felt that the money had been appropriated in the present budget under the then effective insurance coverage, and if they could give the employees more benefits and still save money it was the moral thing to do.

With the increased benefits given to the teachers the board's budget shows a yearly savings of $771.96 in the insurance category.

As there are only two of us still active, Comrade John McDowell and myself, this duty has become a chore, so we decided that we should to paraphrase Gen. Douglas MacArthur, just fade away."

Peace Corps, VISTA Seek Volunteers

Action began a five-day recruiting drive Monday at the Shoreham III Motor Lodge, 765 Avon St., Hartford.

The purpose of the drive is to enlist skilled tradesmen in the ranks of VISTA and the Peace Corps.

Action recruiters say that VISTA and the Peace Corps need skilled machinists, electricians, plumbers, mechanics, and many other tradesmen.

According to Action figures, over 12 per cent of their ranks are filled with married tradesmen who do not hold college degrees. All levels of trades are needed from apprentice to master.

The Peace Corps provides transportation to and from the country in which a volunteer is stationed, complete medical coverage, housing, a reasonable allowance and saves $2,000 for the volunteer. If a volunteer is married, all benefits double.

The Peace Corps is presently involved in projects in South America, Asia and Africa.

Nationally, VISTA (Volunteers in Service to America) institutes the same sort of programs in the United States that the Peace Corps does in foreign countries.

All interested persons are invited to talk with Action recruiters at the motor lodge or call 249-0889 for further information.

Committee Firms Plans For Walk Up Case Mt.

BETTY RYDER (Women's Editor)

The Conservation Committee Monday night formed up plans for the fourth annual Mayor's Walk up Case Mt. to be held Sept. 30, rain or shine.

Dr. Frederick Spaulding Jr., committee member, who is in charge of preparations for the event, will seek the aid of Boy and Girl Scouts to distribute posters advertising the walk.

In other business, Mrs. Terry Parla, commission chairman, read a letter from Atty. William M. Bronelli, assistant town counsel, in which he stated that he didn't think the commission should back its proposed noise ordinance. Previously, the commission had submitted a proposed noise ordinance to the Board of Directors for its consideration.

The commission voted to ask Bronelli to cite state and federal regulations as about noise ordinances, before taking further action on the matter.

On suggestion in a letter from Mayor John Thompson, the commission will view a film entitled "The City - A Study of Survival" which it hopes will be available for the October meeting.

Discussion centered around the proposed access routes to Case Mountain, and the commission members were in agreement that a more detailed map should be presented pointing just where the proposed routes are located.

Dr. Spaulding said, "We don't want value lost by destroying trees in the area, if it's not necessary."

Harry Madmont, commission member, speaking about the Hockanum River Linear Park, said, "I met with the Department of Transportation and they are willing to help with the fall regarding the connector that will be constructed around the Oakland St. area. I have been assured there will be a passway and walkway there."

Reporting on the damage done by the recent tornado, Madmont said, "There are over 50 trees down that are still up about 100 trees in surrounding areas."

"It looks like a giant has been playing pickup sticks," he added.

He further noted that he was going to ask for adult assistance to help clear the area.

John Fitzgerald, commission member, suggested further study should be made regarding a separate paper pickup throughout the town.

"The figures tossed around come to about $600 more a week for separate collections, but I feel arrangements could be worked out with the present (garbage pickup) contractor," Fitzgerald said.

Consideration was also given to contacting Lydall Inc. to see if arrangements could be made whereby paper brought there for recycling could be stored and eliminated the costly bailing process. Monies saved could go toward paying the cost of the collection.

Mrs. Parla commented on the cleanup job at the recycling station, and asked that continued efforts be made to have residents drop off papers and colored glass.

"Glass must be separated by color," she said, "and wire mesh collars at the recycling station. The facility is open Monday through Saturday, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m."

The monthly meeting of the commission members attending the meeting were Robert Price and Mrs. Carolyn Becker.

SNET, Intertel Compare School Phone Proposals

BARBARA RICHMOND (Reporter)

Action on a proposal to switch the phone service at Rockville High School and the office of the superintendent of schools from Southern New England Telephone Co. to Intertel Communications was tabled by the Board of Education last night.

Charles L. Brisson, business manager for the school system, had been asked to investigate alternate means of providing phone service for the two places in an effort to lower costs and improve service.

SNETCO recommended that all buttons and buzzers at the high school be eliminated and that the system go to a dial intercom. The savings for this would be $5.10 per month with an installation charge of $15 per phone. There being 16 phones at the high school, the total installation charge would be $240.

Intertel representatives were at last night's meeting to explain that company's proposal which would have the board enter into an eight-year contract which would be renegotiated each year. The costs would be fixed for that period and at the end of that period the board would buy the equipment for $1.

There would be an extra monthly charge for buttons, lights and such, and the proposal would include one additional phone at the high school and many additional basic standard features, Brisson said.

The proposal would also allow phones to be moved to different locations for the first three years at no additional charge at the superintendent's office, and for the full eight years at the high school.

Intertel representatives said installing that system would assure the board that the costs would be stabilized for the next eight years. At the end of eight years when the board would own the equipment it could then take advantage of an annual service contract. The cost of this would amount to the cost of two months' rent per year.

Intertel officials said the inventory as of June 1 shows that the basic monthly telephone Zone Change Granted To Development Corp.

MONICA SHEA (Correspondent)

The Coventry Development Corp. request for a zone change from River Zone to Light Industrial Zone was approved Monday night by the Planning and Zoning Commission.

The commission voted to ask Atty. Robert Gordon, representing Richard Hayes and Thomas Holton, a real estate appraiser hired by Hayes.

Atty. Gordon said an industrial area would not blend in with a cemetery, and that added traffic would cause a hazard to the children using the recreation area.

Steven Loyin remarked that children do no play in the street.

John Drago, secretary of the corporation, said that soils were well drained and with proper waste disposal there would be no pollution of the Willimantic River.

Dick Breen remarked that the corporation was formed by Coventry residents to lighten taxes and to provide jobs for townpeople. He estimated that the industrial park would add from $50,000 to $1 million to the Grand List.

Dick Cromie, attorney for the corporation, said that this piece of land is the best in town for an industrial park. He said the developers would leave half the 52 acres as open space. Cromie said the corporation has 100

No Permit Needed To Junk Autos

DONNA HOLLAND (Correspondent)

646-9375

Beginning immediately all junk cars should be brought to the Andover Auto Parts Co., Rt. 6, Andover for disposal. A permit from the Town Hall is no longer necessary.

There will be no cost to the town for this service, no charge to any person delivering automobile and no person is under any obligation to pay any amount for the automobile.

Arrangements have been made for Bolton residents to have their cars picked up and towed by the Andover Auto Parts Co. for a maximum fee of $15.

Disposal Area

Discussion is underway of a tentative contract between Bolton and Andover whereby Bolton residents dump their rubbish at the Andover disposal area.

As the selectmen feel that some of the costs in the contract can be reduced, no action was taken at their last meeting.

The charge to Bolton has been on a 50-50 basis in the past. The suggested increase is for Bolton to pay 63 per cent and Andover 37 per cent as Bolton has 3,700 persons compared to Andover's 2,000. The tentative cost for Bolton is $21,550.

It's true. You can save money with gas heat. But it's hard to say just how much until we know some specifics about your home and the way you heat it now. You see, every home is different. Different construction. Different insulation. And every family has different "heating habits," too. So give us a call. Tell us about your home. We'll tell you how much you can save by switching to gas heat. All you have to do is ask! Call your gas heating contractor or CNG in Hartford (525-0111) or New Britain (224-9157).

Campaign Spending Reforms

Secretary of State Gloria Schaffer has announced her intention to ask the next Assembly to set up a bi-partisan commission to investigate election law violations.

Under her plan, the commission would exclude from membership anyone who held public office or served as a political party official in the previous five years.

It would have subpoena powers to obtain witnesses and documents; would require the disclosure of all campaign contributions and expenditures; would require anyone accepting political support payments to file a report including newspapers, radio and television stations and advertising agencies; and give citizens the right to complain to the commission or courts about individual election law violations.

Her reasoning is that apparently under present state laws, neither the secretary of state nor the town clerk, have the power to prosecute election law violations and neither are they specifically required to seek out and investigate possible violations.

There are many who share her views that Connecticut needs some type of system to provide for an accounting of political fund sources and expenditures.

And it is obvious the injection of a non-partisan commission, with a prerequisite five-year period in political limbo to remove any political taint, may seem attractive.

But we think Mrs. Schaffer may have the cart before the horse.

Law violations, election or otherwise, occur either because there are those who can and will find ways to violate them (and this won't change) or the laws themselves are poorly or vaguely written so that violations in many instances are not overt attempts at evasion but the result of conflicting and misleading interpretations.

Perhaps the Assembly would be wiser to consider a bi-partisan review of all our election laws and not just in the area of fund raising and fund expenditures. We say bi-partisan because political organizations need money to function and the question which is bothering most people today is the real or imaginary influence over a candidate or a party that is associated with large multi-figure contributions.

Instead of continuing to try to plug every new loophole that some smart lawyer uncovers we should seek ways and means to encourage compliance rather than evasion of our election laws.
The ability to govern has no relationship to the ability to raise money — legally or otherwise.
Nor is it per se true that every major contributor has a devious or selfish motive for his pecuniary generosity.
The problem is that in recent years, as we have said before, is the obsession we place on winning.

And the result has been the selling of a president, a senator or a governor or a mayor or what have you, and this requires money.

In other words, the emphasis is on the candidate and the party becomes a label which seems to only have a primary caucus or election function. We pick candidates we think can win and then attempt to fabricate party platforms which will encompass concepts aimed more at opening the purses than giving the voting masses clear-cut choices on the issues and possible solutions.

Now we can file all the financial reports we want, we can list every political contributor from a dime on up, and we can itemize where every penny went. And if this is to have any more credibility than the present system, we will have to hire an army of FBI-CIA-trained and politically-emancipated CPAs to audit and check them out before the general public will believe it. Because, while all men are born equal and honest, neither quality is guaranteed to endure.

The most practical answer to the problem of restoring honesty and integrity into politics, we believe, must come from the political parties, not state and federal regulating agencies.

For example, each party could be required to formulate, publish, and file in each town hall a local, state and national platform prior to the selection of candidates.

Second, under their rules they could require candidates seeking party endorsement to accept this party credo.

Then the would-be contributor would know where both the party and the candidate stand and should it be his desire to support these goals of self-government, he can contribute accordingly, knowing he can expect no more than what the party platform offers and can expect it to make an earnest attempt to fulfill it.

Then instead of the best fund raiser, best looking TV personality, best orator, best baby-kisser — the best man of all political species — the best man — the best party will win.

We think the people, if given a choice, still are willing to contribute to political parties that offer substance and realizable ideals. The evils now besetting the fund-raising efforts in both parties stem not from lack of laws and rules but from failure of the parties to offer concrete and positive choices on the issues. The personalities who carry the party banners may stumble and fall but if the parties are on the record in their beliefs, tenacious in their goals and dedicated to good and honest representative government, the Republic will not only endure but prosper for the genius of American government has not been the oft-quoted ability to produce a leader who can meet the challenges of the times but rather the political party system without which no leader, no matter how great, would not have a horse to ride to lead the charge.

The Innocent Bystander

Art Hoppe

The President, Inc.

Dear Mr. President: I, Joe Sikspak, American, take pen in hand to stick a finger in your pie. Have you thought of going public?
This idea comes to you from Doc Moulhan, my friendly credit dentist. To take my mind off other things as I climb in the chair, I ask him about this San Clemente deal, which I don't much understand.
"Why, it's a simple thing, Joe," says Doc. "Open wider, please. In this great democracy of ours, when a man becomes President, he gets an airplane, a brass band and a couple hundred rich friends. They come with the office.
"So one day our President says to his friend, Mr. Appenap, 'Apple, old pal, I am down to my last three houses and I'm a little on the shorts and the wife's got her eye on this beach place and...'
"Say no more," says Mr. Appenap, peeling off a couple of million dollar bills. Money means nothing where friendship is concerned. And I know a good investment when I see one. What's more, he cuts in his friend, Mr. Rebozo, which is what high financiers do when they've got a sure thing going."
"Arrrrggghhh," says I, my mouth being otherwise occupied.
"You're right, Joe," says the Doc. "It doesn't seem fair. Harry, did the President ought to go public, like my brother, Thad, did with his shoe stores. All the President's got to do is incorporate and issue a million shares in himself at, say, $5 par. That way, we could all own a piece of the President. Rinse, please."
"Would you buy a share in the President, Inc.?" says I.

"That I would, Joe," says the Doc. "Close a little. The way to play the market is to buy what the insiders are buying. What's good enough for Mr. Appenap is good enough for me. And think of the advantages to 'President in going public.'
"Arrrrggghhh," says I. "I'm glad you asked, Joe," says the Doc. "Well, first off, he could spend all he wanted fixing up his Summer, Winter, Spring and Fall White Houses. It is so our corporate management to keep up the physical plant," says he, "as a duty to my stockholders." And who's going to argue with that? In fact, who's going to argue with him about anything, Joe?"
"Arrrrggghhh," says I. "You're right again, Joe," says the Doc. "No stockholder's going to knock a product he's got his hard-earned cash in. And think how happy you'll be when the headlines show those other high financiers from cornering the market like usual!"
"Well, Joe," he says, "then our great democracy wouldn't be any worse off than it is right now."
Truly Yours,
Joe Sikspak, American

RIPPLING BROOK By Floyd Larson

Inside Report

Roland Evans and Robert Novak
For Want of a Mills

WASHINGTON — The doleful political significance of Rep. Wilbur Mills' surgery for removal of a damaged spinal disc is its possibly fatal coincidence with a Nixon-Mills agreement to make up for one month, this highly imaginative tax program may die a boring death. Only Mills, successful chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, has the prestige to push a new tax program through the fact-ridden Democratic Congress.
Moreover, President Nixon himself had not quite gone that last step of giving Mills the enthusiastic backing of the Nixon administration. The reason to make up the revenue loss of tax incentives for new plant and equipment, the Mills plan, and it fits the still un-stated but well known views of such key Nixon advisers as William Simon, Deputy Secretary of the Treasury, Secretary George Shultz, Simon's boss and Mr. Nixon's economic czar, has said privately that he, too, likes this Mills approach. Lacking definitive word from Mr. Nixon, he is keeping silent.
Undeterred by presidential inaction, Dr. Burns has not kept his silence. In little-noted testimony early last month to the joint economic committee, Burns publicly backed Mills' plan to build future capacity through tax incentives and thus capacity restraints" in some basic industries. Unless the Nixon administration itself takes a strong lead, the principal victim of Mills' surgery will be his imaginative tax cure for an economy under ever-worsening energy.

Realizing this, Dr. Pierre Rinfret, the President's unofficial and irrepressibly independent economic consultant, has strongly pressed the White House to get Mr. Nixon (incidentally giving the embattled President a nice handle to shift out of Watergate and into the economy).
Dr. Arthur Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve who has been way ahead of the administration every step of the way on the anti-inflation front, has quietly beamed up during the Burns chairmanship, has sent Mills technical information to identify other basic industries (for example, paper, oil refining and copper production) whose products either are now in dangerously short supply or soon will be.
The Fed's research staff, quietly beamed up during the Burns chairmanship, has sent Mills technical information to identify other basic industries (for example, paper, oil refining and copper production) whose products either are now in dangerously short supply or soon will be.

Wright - Behnke

Mrs. Karl B. Wright

Center Congregational Church was the scene Sept. 7 of the wedding of Miss Barbara Morgan Behnke of Manchester and Karl Brenton Wright of Bay Ridge, N.Y.

Conversation With A Cactus

Communication is the big thing today. It's the universal panacea. Political leaders plead for the nations of the world to communicate.

However, recently when a group of horticulturists suggested that people talk to their philodendrons, English ivys and begonias, intimating that THEY would thrive on communication, I threw up my hands.

"That," I said to my husband, "is too much. It's all I can do to remember to water my plants let alone talk to them. And if I did talk to them WHAT would I say?"

Nothing worked and since my mother is coming for a visit, I was desperate for a cure. That's when I remembered this business about talking to your plants.

The next day, not a soul of in the house, and when I walked by the cactus I got up my courage and said with enthusiasm: "My! You look better today!"

Kay Wins Open, Check for $1,000

By Earl Yost

Three times lanky Bob Kay of Wampagan finished at the top of the pack in the annual Manchester Open Golf Tournament but only once, yesterday, was the 53-year-old veteran pro acclaimed the Open champion.

Bob Kay

Kay fashioned a two-under-par 70 to best a field of 410 golfers in the 27th edition of the two-day Open. Play yesterday was restricted to pros and low handicap amateurs. First day leader Fred Kask's 73 failed to stand, as expected.

Perfect weather conditions prevailed for the second straight year, on both days, as Kay went around in two under par 34 for the first nine and matched par 38 on the back side to cut off 1-000.

Last Saturday 217 amateurs participated while yesterday 68 simon pures showed, plus 130 pros to make up the third largest field ever and fifth over 400 in the last six years. The record entry of 437 was recorded a year ago.

White Upends Duke In Town Net Upset

By Earl Yost

Youth prevailed in the Town Men's Singles Tournament on the weekend when 19-year-old Mike White upended five-time champ Martin Duke in the finals to walk off with the crown in straight sets, 6-2, 6-3, at Memorial Field.

Linnea Everett wound up second best in the Neipic Tennis Club Singles Tournament but prevailed in the Town Women's Singles competition by downing veteran Sue Hodge in straight sets, 6-4, 6-3, at Charter Oak Park.

Mal Darling, nearing his 59th birthday, showed plenty of class in the Men's Seniors (45 and over) by coming from behind to down Paul Grobert, 3-6, 7-5, 6-2, at the West Side Oval.

White, a resident here just one month, is out of the Utica-Buffalo area. He's employed at Pratt & Whitney in East Hartford. The youngster had to play five matches, three on Saturday and two on Sunday, to gain the crown. En route to the championship, White proved that his win over Duke, a former winner, wasn't a fluke. Dallas Cowboy Coach Tom Landry said he would reveal his team's starting quarterback Tuesday. As usual, Roger Staubach and Craig Morton are the main combatants and Landry probably will pick Staubach.

Many golfers started one hour later than scheduled. SHERIFF PUTTS - Stan Hilliard, an amateur a year ago with a 71, soared to 79 yesterday. Two former Open winners were wound up in the money yesterday, Red Smith at 71 for second place, Ed Lapiere was in with a 73 and Neilson Grobert at 74. The exchamps didn't fare too well. Henry Bontempo, who copped four Opens, and two in retirement, shot an 80 as did defending champ Jim Goodhigian. Dick Stranahan had a 78. Don Parson, 77 and Ed Kana was a card.

Washington (AP) - There's a good chance that pro football fans in Miami, Chicago, Denver and the nation's capital, among other cities, will be able to watch their local heroes on television Sunday in the opening of the 1973 NFL football season.

The House Commerce Committee takes up legislation today to lift the local television blackouts of sold-out home pro football games.

The Dolphins, Bears, Broncos and Redskins are among 12 NFL clubs that sold out their stadiums during the 1972 season and thus would have been required to televise their home games locally if the law had been in effect last year.

The House communications subcommittee needed less than 15 minutes Monday to approve a measure, sponsored by its chairman, Rep. Robert H. Michel (R-Ind.), to prohibit blackouts if the game is a sellout 72 hours in advance.

Moscow Journey Some Experience

By Earl Yost

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — The coach of the U.S. women's swimming team for the World University games says the trip to Moscow was an experience she wouldn't have missed and wouldn't care to repeat.

After 19 hours in the air she was delayed another two hours at the airport terminal while they checked passports, said Mrs. Mona Plummer, after returning to her job Monday as associate professor of physical education at Arizona State University.

They confiscated our passports and visas and deposited us at the University compound on the seventh and eighth floors. There were 300 U.S. team members, men and women, and for three days we were not allowed off of the two floors.

They even refused us meal tickets and team members of other countries were smuggling us in food.

Before that our officials said we would withdraw from the games and go home but the Russians answered with a shrug. How will you leave, we have your passports?

Mrs. Plummer recalled the chilling feeling of hearing guards walk past her room at 5 a.m. Security was so tight, she said, that she had to show her pass six times between her room and an elevator.

The swimming technical advisor received special treatment, Mrs. Plummer said. "He was quartered in a different hotel, had a room to himself and a private car. Once he forgot his pants and they took them to his room for it and there he found a man putting a bagging machine on a jump. We got a big laugh out of that because he was always there by himself with no one to talk to."

She described "10 million people walking around Moscow every day, all in drab clothing and no smiles."

"They would stop you on the street to try and buy your clothes. Blue jeans with U.S. labels were selling for $60 a pair."

Revelry was kept to a minimum, Mrs. Plummer said.

Application Filed for Jai-Alai Facility

HARTFORD (AP) — A Florida company Monday filed the first poll to build a jai alai facility in the state, in Connecticut.

Lennel Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of World Jai-Alai of Miami, submitted an application to the state Gaming Commission for a fronton on eight acres in Hartford's north meadows redevelopment area.

The company said it had the required state license to open the door to a full commission investigation.

The application states that 1,000 vehicles per hour would be generated by the fronton over a normal period of games — four hours. An estimated 100 people a trade that sent pitcher Pat Dobson to New York.

Young went on to say that traffic in the area had greatly increased since the time of the survey.

reasonable balance in the volunteer portion as well, in the event of poor experience in the ensuing policy year.

"For the policy year which ended April 1, 1973, we received a letter dated July 13, 1973 together with statistical information advising us of a surplus for the period of $19,688. Included was a list of nine debt claims paid, including four accrued employees at $15,000 each. More than two would have eliminated this surplus. Our volunteer PPSF prior to the July additions had accumulated $89,277," he said.

He said this was more than should remain in the fund; however, based on experience and also on other outstanding potential liabilities, a conservative approach was taken regarding these funds. He went on to point out that he had mentioned in February a possible $88,000 deficit, and exhausting the PPSF would have put us in a precarious position had not other favorable factors developed.

"There is no intention to hide any available resources from the Board of Directors. In order to provide you with better information in the future, we are deleting insurance rebates from miscellaneous revenues in our accounting system and will report them as a separate item."

Thompson, speaking for the board, said all members participating "positively" in the discussion of the matter and the way it had been handled. He accepted the board's decision and the way it had been handled.

Thompson explained that until two years ago, such premium rebates were automatically made by the insurance companies to a town earning them because of lower than anticipated claim rates.

However, since that time, it is due to the town requesting such funds which may have accrued.

The board Thompson said, was told by Weiss that he found the town's experience had been favorable and he had "no deliberate intention to conceal the existence of such a fund" he cited some past experiences where such funds have had to be used for unanticipated insurance claims.

"The required portion protects the employees and the insurance company by providing residual claims in the event our contract terminates, the letter said.

The HELCO spokesman said that HELCO had planned to spend more than $50 million on construction during the next six years and the company needed "financial integrity" to obtain financing.

Major John Thompson, in a statement following the session, said:

"The Board of Directors, after studying a prepared explanation of his action, discussed the matter with the manager and it was agreed the matter stemmed from poor communication."

The key to this success is a ritual performed daily in every elementary classroom in town. Each morning, the teacher asks whether any child has a sore throat or cold. Those who answer yes are sent to a central station where their throats are examined and swabbed. Cultures are sent to the hospital lab and if positive, a ten-day course of penicillin treatment can cure the infection and prevent rheumatic fever.
