Refuse Area Open Sunday

Manchester's sanitary landfill will be open this Sunday to allow North End residents to dispose of brush, stumps, and demolition material, according to Jay Gilles, the town's public works director.

The landfill will be open from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Sunday. The facility will be opened so North End residents can dispose of material which accumulated after a tornado swept through the area last week.

Gilles said residents are requested not to bring garbage or rubbish Sunday "as the facility won't be set up to receive this kind of waste."

Potter Says Town Should Control Its Wetlands

(Continued from Page 1) Agriculture. Botanical species which are characteristic of wetlands are also used in regulation of wetlands. The wetlands act encourages municipal participation in regulation of wetlands. The act has extended to July 1, 1974, the deadline for local implementation of the act.

If a municipality doesn't take action by then, the Department of Environmental Protection will assume control.

If and when Manchester designates a wetlands agency, the initial step would be to promulgate regulations and prepare a precise map of wetlands and water courses in town, advisory committee members agreed Wednesday night.

"Careful designation of the wetlands is the hard part," Potter said. "The local wetlands agency would also have to write regulations, advisory committee members agreed. The state's model regulations could be adopted, but they might be 'too severe' for Manchester," Potter explained.

Once the map and regulations are prepared and approved by the state, the local agency would have to set up a procedure for handling applications and conducting business, members thought. Advisory committee members agreed that the agency would need some kind of staff to handle daily business, and to promulgate regulations and prepare a precise map of wetlands and water courses in town, advisory committee members agreed Wednesday night.

Friends may call at the Ladd Funeral Home, 19 Ellington Ave., Friday from 7 to 9 p.m. Memorial contributions may be made to the Building Fund of Trinity Lutheran Church.

Meadowbrook School Now Parker School

VIVIAN KENNESON Correspondent
The Meadowbrook School has been changed to the Donald M. Parker School.

James Barnish, Board of Education chairman, requested Wednesday night that in recognition of his 18 years in the Tolland school system and that, in effect, Meadowbrook is the Donald M. Parker school, the name be changed. The board voted unanimously.

A resolution was presented by Dr. Kenneth MacKenzie, superintendent of schools, which reads: "Whereas, Mr. Donald M. Parker was an elementary principal in the public schools of Tolland from Oct. 1, 1956 to Sept. 2, 1973, and, whereas, Mr. Parker, through his devotion to the highest ideals of his chosen profession, touched the lives of many people in this community with inspiration and affection and, whereas, God, working in mysterious ways as yet unfathomable to us, called him from his labors on Sept. 2, 1973, therefore, be it resolved that the Tolland Board of Education recognize the untimely passing of this inspired principal and express sympathy to the family of Mr. Donald Parker."

"Be it further resolved that this resolution be spread upon the minutes of the Tolland Board of Education and a copy sent to his family."

Contribution Fund
Mr. Parker's family has requested that any contributions be sent to the school fund for special children. The fund is in the process of being set up by Hicks Principal Andrew Winans, the Rev. Donald Miller, and Bette Quatrala.

Driver Ed
Carol Webber, the senior class student delegate to the Board of Education noted last night that she was happy to see the driver ed reduced from $45 to $10 this year.

However, the board had hoped that by increasing its driver ed budget to $7,000 this year, the program would be able to operate without any student fee.

Students Honored At MCC Convocation

Lowe, president of Manchester Community College, is presenting a citation to Marie Brissette, left, and Marian Savastino for their efforts in founding the Voluntary Action Club, a service organization at the college which has served nearly 500 persons in the past year. MCC Students Challenged To Seek Out Broader Goals

June Tompkins Herald Reporter
Students at Manchester community college are not there only to receive an education to help them earn a living but to help them become a better citizen in today's world.

This was the thought that was conveyed by Dr. Frederick W. Lowe Thursday at MCC's 11th annual fall academic convocation in the open amphitheater at the main campus north.

"None of us is going to spend all of our future just earning a living, and man is not solely an economic animal," said Dr. Lowe.

He said he has come to call the programs at the college "education for living."

"Because of these program designs, I would hope that all of our students would be better prepared to live with themselves, with their families and neighbors, better qualified to live as citizens, and able to acquire an understanding of the world," said Dr. Lowe.

New goals are in store for the college as, according to the New England Association of Schools and Colleges, MCC is now mature enough to go beyond the general goals of all community colleges. Dr. Lowe said the student body that is time to define a set of goals "unique to it and appropriate to its particular aptitudes, weaknesses and possibilities."

Dr. Lowe said it is necessary to redefine the college's goals "in the context of circumstances significantly changed since we last formulated them officially in the late sixties. He explained that

Aillon Given Life Sentences

NEW HAVEN (AP) — Guillermo Aillon was sentenced to three consecutive life terms in prison today for the slayings of his estranged wife and in-laws last year.

Superior Court Judge Simon S. Cohen ordered Aillon to prison from 25 years-to-life for each count of murder. Aillon was convicted Sept. 1 of the fatal slayings of his wife, Barbara Montano Aillon, and Mr. and Mrs. J. George Montano in North Haven.

"I did not kill my wife, Barbara," said Aillon, who was allowed to comment after the sentence was imposed. "I didn't kill George and Bernice Montano." He stood with his hands clasped behind him and with clenched teeth.

As the sentence was imposed before a crowded courtroom of about 90 spectators, Aillon's mother, Victoria, appeared to have trouble breathing, and closed her eyes. She had traveled from Bolivia for the trial. Her daughter comforted her.

Under his sentence, Aillon could not be paroled for 60 years. However his term could be commuted.

Aillon's lawyer, Howard Jacobs, said he would appeal the convictions. State's Atty. Arnold Markle, urged Cohen to impose the maximum sentence.

"Take this man out of the community and lock him up forever," said Markle.

Montano, a lumber company executive and real estate owner, left an estate valued at more than $1 million.

Tax To Cool Economy Chilled By Congressmen

WASHINGTON (AP) — A hail of Congressional opposition has greeted a suggestion that President Nixon try to fight inflation by increasing income taxes temporarily and returning the extra funds to taxpayers later.

The purpose of the tax increase would be to take money out of the economy, to help slow the current economic boom.

If the report given newsmen Thursday by Presidential Counselor Martin R. Laird was intended as a trial balloon — as some congressmen suggested — it may well have been punctured.

Laird, Nixon's principal domestic aide, emphasized there had been no decision to send Congress the plan, which he attributed to Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur F. Burns.

Listing it as one of a number of ideas under consideration, Laird said the proposal was to impose a surcharge, probably of 10 per cent, so that a person who normally paid $1,000 in taxes would pay $1,100 instead. The extra $100 would be refunded in two to five years, after inflation abated.

"This is not the same as a tax increase," Laird argued, holding the plan would not violate Nixon's pledge against increasing taxes.

But most representatives and senators who commented didn't see it that way. "It looks like a trial balloon they are already backing away from," said Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., acting chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee.

Throughout last year's campaign, Nixon promised spending controls and tax cuts would avoid the need to raise taxes. He said, for example, in an Oct. 7, 1972, radio speech, "America needs not a tax increase, but tax relief."

In his message to Congress last Monday, Nixon said, "This administration continues its strong opposition to a tax increase."

Ullman said of the proposal "I couldn't support it. I favor a loophole-closing tax bill that would raise revenue."

Rep. Herman T. Schneebeli of Pennsylvania, senior Republican member of the Ways and Means Committee, said his first impression was "not very favorable."

The recuperating chairman of the committee, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., said from his Little Rock hospital bed that the plan certainly would look like a tax increase to a worker who saw more funds withheld from his pay check.

The White House had no comment on the proposal. Nixon has refused to allow anyone other than some present and former aides to hear the tapes.

Cox said he would be "more than glad to meet with the President or his delegate or any of his attorneys in a sincere effort to determine which if any, parts should be delivered to the grand jury."

Cox subpoenaed the tapes of Nixon's conversations with former White House aides implicated in the scandal. The prosecutor claims that not even the President can resist a court order to provide information vital for a criminal investigation.

Nixon claims that the constitutional separation of powers guarantees that a court cannot compel a president to produce confidential information against his will. He also asserts that the tradition of executive privilege shields the confidentiality of a president's communications with his aides.

In a four-page memorandum, the appeals court said: "If the President and the special prosecutor agree as to the material needed for the grand jury's functioning, the national interest will be served. At the same time, neither the President nor the special prosecutor would in any way have surrendered or subjected the principles for which they have contended."

Nixon Lawyers Pondering Court's Tape Compromise Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's lawyers are waging a federal appeals court's proposal for a face-saving settlement of the Watergate tapes dispute.

The procedure suggested Thursday would allow the court to avoid a clear-cut ruling on the constitutional issues raised by Nixon and special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox.

In an unusual move, the U.S. Circuit Court issued an unsigned memorandum asking Nixon, Cox and the President's lawyer, Charles Alan Wright, to listen to the tapes and decide among themselves which portions should be submitted to the grand jury.

The court said the memo was not intended as a cue to its leaning on the constitutional questions.

The White House had no comment on the proposal. Nixon has refused to allow anyone other than some present and former aides to hear the tapes.

Cox said he would be "more than glad to meet with the President or his delegate or any of his attorneys in a sincere effort to determine which if any, parts should be delivered to the grand jury."

John F. Mulcahy Jr., deputy chief state's attorney, in the new Division of Criminal Justice for the State of Connecticut.

He said the goal of the division is the attainment of justice in the court system through a uniform system of justice and pledged full cooperation in working with the chiefs of police.

Earlier in the day, the association went on record urging that the state's corrupt officers be included in the 100 Club which lends financial assistance to the families of policemen and firemen killed in the line of duty.

Other installed officers are: Joseph Pascarella, East Haven, first vice president; Alfred Quinlano, Rocky Hill, second vice president; Frank J. Mariano, Naugatuck, secretary; Joseph A. Ciriello, Watertown, treasurer, and Richard Carlo, Bethel, sergeant-at-arms.

At the luncheon, words of welcome were extended by Manchester Jack Thompson and Vernon Mayor Frank McCoy.

Manchester Town Manager Robert Weiss commented, "We take our hats off to a great chief."

State comptroller Nathan Agostinelli said the "most challenging job of our time is being a chief of police, and we are pleased and honored that you have chosen Chief Reardon to head your group. He is a most respected member of a community in a most difficult task."

Words of appreciation were also expressed by Mrs. Vivian Ferguson and Mrs. Phyllis Jackson of the Board of Directors. Mrs. Ferguson presented the chief with the gift of a gentleman's bank from the gift shop at Manchester Memorial Hospital complete with one penny because the chief (in reference to submitting a budget) knows that 99 cents doesn't make a dollar.

Mark Kravitz of the Colony said the association's treasury is richer because of the appreciation fund by Manchester area businessmen who were introduced at the luncheon.

Exhibit of the Lutz Junior Museum of Manchester at the Plaza Garden Fair in Hartford demonstrates weaving with natural materials. Children are bound to be interested in the exhibit of the Lutz Junior Museum at the Plaza Garden Fair, continuing through Sept. 19 at Constitution Plaza, Hartford. Look for it at the left when you go into the third floor lobby of Broadcast House.

The Plaza Fair is not judged, but my wife and I agreed that if we had been judges we would have given a blue ribbon to the Lutz Junior Museum and another to the botanical growers. "Bounty of Summer Show"

An amateur flower show, "Weaving the Natural Way," and it follows logically the exhibit by the museum last year of dyeing with natural materials.

Some of the weaving on display was done by children and much of it could be done by children with a little supervision. Weaving will be part of the program of the museum when it opens for the next season Sunday.

The exhibits at the museum will be all new, says Pamela Saloom, director, and there will be a big change in what is shown in the "Animal Room." It will be plants, there will be a giant terrarium where plants will grow in a glass container, and there will be a "kitchen garden."

Children will be encouraged to try at home, if their mothers are willing, to slice off the top of a carrot, a beet or an onion, and see it grow new leaves.

Some of them may try growing a new plant from the top slice of a pineapple. Set in a saucer of water, the slice is supposed to put out roots, and then it can be set in soil in a pot. Nobody expects it to produce another pineapple, but it will make a pretty plant.

They'll also be told that they can grow orange, lemon or grapefruit trees of house plant size by planting seeds salvaged before they get into the garbage pail.

Helping Mrs. Saloom to set up the exhibit in Hartford, and regularly at the museum, is a new assistant director, Miss Berdine Spector, a graduate in elementary education at Lesley College in Cambridge, Mass.

One of the exhibits made by a child is a mounted spider web. Mrs. Saloom explained that you cover the web with spray paint, and then carefully lift the whole web with a piece of construction paper. The coating of paint makes the web stick to the paper. The exhibit in Hartford has a web sprayed with gold paint and displayed effectively on black paper.

There is an oriole's nest, which can be called natural weaving. Other natural materials which can be used in weaving include straw, grass, willow twigs, thin strips split from an ash stick, and cattail leaves.

The Plaza Garden Fair has another fine display of hanging chrysanthemums, dropping from planters mounted high on the granite blocks that make up the Plaza fountain. Most of them are white and yellow, as in other years, but there are a few pink flowers this time.

There is a splendid exhibit of bonsai plants in the "box" of the Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance Co. building. Robert Linton of Vernon has six plants in the exhibit, including a tiny cotoneaster well covered with berries.

Business Bodies

SOLE OWNERSHIP

Raymond F. Damato has acquired the sole interest and ownership in the joint apartment and multiple dwelling units formerly owned together with his brother, Louis C. Damato.

Raymond Damato also redeemed the stock held in Damato Estates, Inc., and Damato Enterprises, Inc., from his brother.

The combined holdings of the organizations now include structures ranging from two-family dwellings up to 52-unit apartment complexes with a 96-unit development now under construction on Homestead St., known as "Homestead Park Village."

The apartment and rental business was established by the brothers in 1957, when they built their first six-unit building.

Raymond Damato retains his rental office at 260A New State Rd. Louis retains four 2-family units on Glenwood St. and continues to own and operate with his son, Louis C. Jr., the firm of Frank Damato & Sons, an excavating and concrete construction business, established in 1970.

Raymond Damato is continuing his development activities in other ways, including the development of an industrial parcel jointly with Richard P. Hayes, Realtor, on Tolland Tpk., and is also one of the three principals in the proposed Colchester dog racing facility.

Plan On Broader Horizons

In the light of current hearings in the state concerning wetlands preservation, the increasing concern with many in Manchester over the new "M" Zone or high-density type of development, and open spaces from an aesthetic point of view; an article in the current issue of U.S. News and World Report is of more than passing interest.

While it is not our intent to dwell on specifics, the general conclusions of the article have a bearing on our present and future.

For example, it is noted that there is definitely an appreciable difference in temperatures in large cities as opposed to urbanized areas. Cities keep heat in pavement and buildings thus stay warmer at night. Cities have less snow because it usually turns to rain because of the man-made heat retention in the structures. Vast acreages of streets and parking lots create water run-off problems.

Even this can be noted in Manchester at times.

The point we are making is that there is evidence that man and his structures can and do influence his environment.

Generally, in recent years this has been told in screaming headlines pointing out degradation of our environment.

The fact remains though that as population increases, moves, life styles change, and other human factors enter into our social, economic and geographic planning; we are too prone to see the little corner or niche that affects us directly rather than view the whole perspective.

We believe that just as man's plans can detrimentally alter our environment and upset or change natural balances for ill, he can, if challenged and motivated, accomplish the opposite.

Perhaps instead of designing buildings and developments in their own contexts we should consider them in the context of the whole area, region, state or several states.

Clearly, man in his planning, must broaden his horizons beyond today's visions and anticipate those of tomorrow as well for this world is the only one we have.

Here He Comes, Mr. Ideal Citizen

Johnnie Joe Dazie, 1944's "Citizen America," has been committed to the Sunny Dale Happy Farm suffering from delusions of persecution, according to friends.
Johnnie Joe created a sensation in Atlantic City two months ago by becoming the first male to win what was formerly known as the "Miss America" contest.
Promoters of the beloved annual pageant had only recently bowed to pressure from liberation groups and opened entry lists to all contestants "regardless of race, creed or sex."
The stipulated, however, that all competitors would be judged by exactly the same criteria as had always been employed in the past to assess their physiques, talent and intelligence.
"In this way," they said in their historic announcement, "we will be sure to pick the ideal American citizen just as we have always picked the ideal American girl."
Johnnie Joe was an odds-on favorite from the start. Wearing white trunks, he walked off with the Bathing Suit Competition after the judges took one look at his magnificent body (58-18-32).
The Talent Competition proved a cinch. Johnnie Joe received a standing ovation from the audience and brought tears to the eyes of the amazed judges when he managed to perform 16 verses of the Star-Spangled Banner on a triangle without missing a single beat—a feat never before accomplished in the history of the pageant.
But it was in answering the probing questions of the judges that Johnnie Joe triumphantly outlasted the competition. Who will ever forget his ringing responses?
"Tell us Johnnie Joe," he was asked, "what are your thoughts on politics?"
"Golly, I don't think much about politics," he replied. "They're so darned political. But I sure do think every American should sure vote whenever he or she can, because, I mean, that sure is our inalienable right and I think we sure ought to do it."
When the applause had finally died down, he was asked if he had any hobbies.
"In 1776, Benjamin Franklin was sent to France as an American minister plenipotentiary.
In 1812, Napoleon entered Moscow.
In 1923, Jack Dempsey knocked out Luis Angel Firpo in two rounds of a heavyweight championship fight in New York.
In 1946, Congress passed the Selective Service and Training Act.
In 1945, the premier of Japan made a peace overture to the American public, saying: "Don't you forget Pearl Harbor?"

A Talk With George Wallace

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — Here in the heart of the heart of the South, a stricken man, target of an assassin's bullet the last time around, is both spending and husbanding his retained vigor, planning to run for governor again next year, and — although quite candid about what it means to be a paraplegic — not about to be counted out for the next presidential round in 1976.
When you pay a call on George Wallace you find that the Confederate battle flag still flutters over the Statehouse dome, as it did when Jefferson Davis took his oath here in 1862 as President of the Confederacy. Inside, below the rotunda, is a memorial to Lurleen Wallace who was governor from 1967 to 1968 in her husband's place.
The whole capital is George Wallace's fortress against an outside world which is at once his target for verbal attack and the source of his satisfaction at the new line of the Democratic National Committee, and of the Senate liberals who visit him, comes through strongly.
So does his warning about the party's future. If the Democrats again surrender to their "exotic left-wing noise-makers" they will show that "they don't know enough to come in out of the rain." This is pretty clearly strategy for getting out of the rain himself and coming into the comfort and warmth of the national Democratic Party. He is proud of the inroads he made into the regular Democratic primaries in 1972, especially in a Northern state like Michigan. He thinks he might have carried even New York. Hence he isn't at all surprised at the current talk of a Kennedy-Wallace or Wallace-Kennedy ticket in 1976.
I asked why he had resorted to the race issue in his anti-Patterson campaign for the governorship. He denied he had ever used the race issue, but had only argued that the federal government (including the Supreme Court) was coming into Alabama, trying to run things. It is hard to know how genuinely he believes this was not an appeal to the racial feelings of his followers. But clearly he is off that line now. He is derisive about the Northern liberal press which defended the appeal to a "higher law" in the leak of the Pentagon Papers. The South today, he says, still feels it has had a bad deal from the courts on the issue of free choice in schools, "but we abide by the law."
This is the new George Wallace, still proud of the Populist tradition of which he is caught between the old skepticism of him and its new meaning. It is an open force. Politics in the South is a very personal affair. The outer chamber of the governor's office is crammed full of people waiting to see him, to shake his hand and have their photos taken with him, to urge his help in hindrance on some bill, to bespeak his favor as applicants for some appointive job.
I started by ribbing Wallace a bit about being the beneficiary of the detente with China because of the reports that he was having acupuncture treatments. But it was a large opening, since his wary political mind saw the irony but also the possible political payoff for him. His doctor, he stressed, was a Chinese who had long practiced in America, and besides, he couldn't be sure whether his improvement since a recent operation was due to the acupuncture or other treatments.
After this failed gambit, he went on to his views about the Nixon-Kissinger detente which (not surprisingly) were hostile. I suspect that Alabama is a state which will give Henry Kissinger in his new post his highest popularity rating, and SALT is a four-letter word here.
Wallace pulled out all the stops: America must be the actual fallen behind; it is all itself is dangerous but we have actually fallen behind; it is all very well to try for relations of trust with the Russians but don't turn your back to them while you do; we won't get a real meeting of minds with them until our next generation and the next Russian generation comes into power; SALT will put consumer goods ahead of expansion. (He didn't say how our new generation would achieve power if the American hard-liners like himself pave the way for their Russian hard-line counterparts to win power.)

How did he enjoy having Sen. Kennedy speaking on the same platform with him at Decatur? Well, comes the amused reply, much of Kennedy's speech read as if it had been written in Decatur. What strikes a visitor most sharply is his scarcely concealed, almost small-boyish delight at having all his old political rivals and enemies wooing him. His constituents must enjoy this, too.
The way he puts it is always in terms of the people of Alabama and the South — the insulted and the injured. It is they who have suffered their suffering and comeback is "one of the great epics of American history", it is they who were despised by the liberals and are again being "wooed." Wallace's sense of satisfaction at the new line of the Democratic National Committee, and of the Senate liberals who visit him, comes through strongly.
So does his warning about the party's future. If the Democrats again surrender to their "exotic left-wing noise-makers" they will show that "they don't know enough to come in out of the rain." This is pretty clearly strategy for getting out of the rain himself and coming into the comfort and warmth of the national Democratic Party. He is proud of the inroads he made into the regular Democratic primaries in 1972, especially in a Northern state like Michigan. He thinks he might have carried even New York. Hence he isn't at all surprised at the current talk of a Kennedy-Wallace or Wallace-Kennedy ticket in 1976.
I asked why he had resorted to the race issue in his anti-Patterson campaign for the governorship. He denied he had ever used the race issue, but had only argued that the federal government (including the Supreme Court) was coming into Alabama, trying to run things. It is hard to know how genuinely he believes this was not an appeal to the racial feelings of his followers. But clearly he is off that line now. The South today, he says, still feels it has had a bad deal from the courts on the issue of free choice in schools, "but we abide by the law."

New Haven Area Lodges Remove Ban
NEW HAVEN (AP) — Spokesmen for eight Elks lodges in the New Haven area say the lodges have voted to eliminate their white members-only policy in accordance with a position taken by the national Elks convention.
A survey showed that all the lodges in the area had taken that stand. They include lodges in New Haven, West Haven, Wallingford, Hamden, Ansonia, Derby, Milford and Branford.
The Groton Elks voted Tuesday night to retain its whites-only policy.
The national convention voted July to abolish the policy, subject to ratification by a majority of the 2,182 Elks lodges in the country.
A national Elks spokesman said a majority of those lodges are voting to admit blacks.
Louis Baptista, executive director of the New Haven lodge, said repeal of the whites-only clause, if approved by a majority of the lodges, would go into effect next July.
He said his lodge has no black members and has received no applications for membership from blacks.

Columbia 71 Pints of Blood Given

CIRCUIT COURT 12
Manchester Session
Alfred Mercere, 28, of 11 Village St., Rockville, Thursday was bound over to Tolland County Superior Court on a charge of first-degree assault.
Mercere had pleaded innocent to the charge and had waived a hearing in probable cause.
Vernon Police, who arrested Mercere Aug. 6 on a court warrant, said the charges stem from an alleged assault upon Steven Frazier, 18, of 105 High St., Rockville. Frazier was treated at Rockville General Hospital after the incident, police said.
First-degree assault charges against two other Rockville youths were dismissed Thursday by Judge William Graham.
Dismissal of the charges came after hearings in probable cause in which the judge found no cause to bind over the cases to Superior Court.
The youths were Robert L. Morse, Jr., 22, and Robert W. Pederson, 17, both of 82 Union St. The charges were lodged against them by Vernon Police last month.
Several drug charges against David E. Frenette, 21, of East Hartford, and Deborah J. Dagon, 18, of 109 Charter Oak St., were nolle prosequi (not prosecuted) by Precursor William Collins Thursday.
Frenette and Miss Dagon were each charged with possession of cannabis-type drugs with intent to sell, possession of a non-narcotic controlled substance (two counts) and possession of prescription legend drugs (two counts).
Other cases in court Thursday included:
Edward Bruckert, 26, of Maynard, Mass., charged with speeding, nolle.
Ernestine Frazier, 42, of Ellington, disorderly conduct, nolle.
Peter R. Frazier, 16, of Ellington, disorderly conduct, nolle.
Steven C. Frazier, 16, of 105 High St., Rockville, pleaded guilty to charges of third-degree burglary (two counts), case continued to Oct. 13 for pre-sentence investigation. Additional charges against Frazier — third-degree burglary (two counts), third-degree burglary (one count), and second-degree larceny (one count), were nolle prosequi.
Elwin W. Glidden, 23, of 103 Bissell St., operating a motor vehicle while his license was suspended, fined $100.
Dennis J. Kammerer, 20, of Enfield, delivery of liquor to minors, nolle.
Louis D. Malon, 19, of 118 W. Main St., Rockville, hindering prosecution in the second degree, six-month suspended jail term and 18-month probation.
Falls L. Merced, 31, of Springfield, third-degree burglary and first-degree larceny, both nolle.
David F. Seymour, 30, of 71 Ridge St., failure to stop at stop sign, license, $25.
James G. Pike, 24, of 23 Apple Pl., failure to drive right and failure to display light or reflector, both nolle.
Nancy L. Johnson, 18, of Waterfront Park, Coventry, operating a motor vehicle without a license, nolle.

Donor aides were Dorothy Abbott, Margaret Higman, Gertrude Tappan, Katherine Davis, Margaret Anderson, Grace Pringle, and Gertrude Johns.
Staff aides were Mary Fletcher, Jean Natsch, Gladys Chalmers and Vera Stanley.
Properties were handled by Joe Cummerford, John Hutchinson, Edward Olecki, Peter Maneggia, John Kucukca and Richard Walton.

Members of the Planning and Zoning Commission said this week that it is not yet certain whether the Citizen's Bank of Glastonbury will establish a branch office here.
Selection, as well as the PZC, are in favor of the move.
First Selectman Howard Bates said in August the bank had taken an option on some property that in all probability will need special approval from the PZC.
The PZC believes the degree of non-conformity would be reduced and the value of the property upgraded.
Measurements have been taken to verify the non-conformity of the property. Town regulations allow a 50 per cent increase over the non-conforming area, according to a PZC spokesman.

Diplomacy Disgrace

Ever since the founding of the United Nations there has been degrees of skepticism about its usefulness and validity as a world organization.

It is, of course, a propaganda stage for nations to present themselves to the public in a light they wish and also, in the case of some, to be used as a means of attacking nations or ideologies which they do not like.

We are glad we missed the speech there by the Cuban Ambassador urging that the UN take action declaring Puerto Rico a colony of the United States and saying that we are following a calculated policy of "genocidal colonialism."
This is one of the boldest-faced pieces of effrontery ever to disgrace diplomacy. It would tend to strengthen one's opinion that the first attribute of a diplomat is the ability to lie with a straight face.

Don't Let The Meter Run

Meanwhile, back on the campus some thought is being given as to acquainting motorists with the consequences of the overemphasis on private vehicles in terms that can best understand — the cost in dollars and cents, mostly the former.
Most people have no conception of the economic realities of the public roads, according to a Massachusetts Institute of Technology researcher. They think the roads are there, therefore use is free.
Far from it, says Dr. David Gordon Wilson. In terms of essential services, attribute of a diplomat is the ability to lie with a straight face.

Since Fidel Castro came down out of Oriente province and made Cuba a communist nation and Russian satrapy, the people of that land have been leaving by the thousands. So great has been their exodus that Miami has become a bilingual city with Spanish being spoken almost everywhere because of the Cubans who have fled there to avoid strangulation at home.
Puerto Ricans have only to look to our enlightened policy in the Philippines, which gave that country final independence, to know that total independence can be theirs at will. Most Puerto Ricans would rather stay as they are with the benefits of commonwealth status or statehood.
Too bad Cuba can't revolt and become another state.

Hebron Pare Costs, Schools Told

With the school year just a few weeks old, Dr. David Cattanch, superintendent of schools, has cautioned both principals at the elementary schools to hold the line on expenditures in light of an already anticipated deficit of $7,176. Operating on a budget $24,900 less than was requested as a result of a recommended cut by the Board of Finance, the board is unable to absorb any deficits. As was previously reported, the board last month approved two unexpected expenditures for special education teacher aides and transportation in the amount of $3,538. It now appears that another $70 will be needed to cover additional transportation. Although the total $3,588 is two-thirds reimbursable through state funds, the board must make the full expenditure with the reimbursement being paid directly to the town's general fund. An additional $2,000 deficit is expected as a result of the new teachers salary agreement which is now effective following a 30-day filing period at the town clerk's office. Other areas where deficits are expected are: $335 superintendent's office; $337 substitute secretaries pay due to illness; and contracted services, $658. School Opening Dr. Cattanch reported that the schools opened with a total enrollment of 828 as opposed to 802 last year. Projected enrollment, as a result of school enumeration had been 806. Already, the enrollment has risen to 833 as of Sept. 10 with 435 students at the Gilead Hill School and 398 at the Hebron Elementary School. Paul A. White, principal at

The Swedes used snuff. Older people sniffed dry snuff up their noses. The Swedes packed the moist snuff inside their lips. They called it "snus". It was usually Copenhagen in small round boxes but some men made their own. A lot of it was used in the mills.

You guessed it. The barrel was plugged full of lead and required a lot of time to dig it all out.

Vikings Claim Dale

NEW YORK (AP) — When you're a veteran wide receiver in the National Football League, it's expected to abandon the excitement of gridiron combat.

That's why Carroll Dale is happy.

The Minnesota Vikings claimed Dale Thursday, the day after he was placed on waivers by the Green Bay Packers and the 35-year-old player will be in uniform again Oakland when the regular season begins Sunday.

"I hate to leave Green Bay and the Green Bay fans," Dale said. "But in the game of football this is the way things happen sometimes. I'm looking forward to the new challenge and the opportunity to contribute to the team."

Packer Coach Dan Devine had offered Dale a post as a special assistant involving both coaching and scouting as well as administrative work. Dale said if he hadn't been picked up by another team he probably would have accepted the special assistant job.

Pro Forecast

NEW YORK (AP) — Will the Miami Dolphins again be destiny's darlings in pro football and go through another perfect season?

Probably not, but the Dolphins should at least have their unbeaten string of regular season games when they play the San Francisco 49ers Sunday in one of the 12 opening games in the National Football League.

As the Green Bay Packers should also be successful when they host the New York Jets in the Monday night television spectacular which wraps up the first 14 weeks of pro football.

The old crystal ball has been dusted off and promises to perform at a better clip than the dismal 60 percent it had for a portion of the 1972 season.

Here's how it sees this weekend's action:

Miami over San Francisco.

Were the Dolphins' playing possum during the exhibition season? No. Bob Griese and company will perform like the 1972 Miami team, not like the 1973 exhibition team, and make it 16 straight in regular season play, the record will continue with John Brodie, but it won't be enough. DOLPHINS 21, 49ers 17.

Washington over San Diego. Johnny Unitas and Deacon Jones could easily qualify as senior moment players in Washington's Over-the-Hill Gang. But they play for the Chargers. The Redskins should have even had work on a good week. REDSKINS 28, CHARGERS 19.

Minnesota over Oakland. Minnesota will dedicate this game to Karl Kasulke, and the Viking defense, stingiest in the exhibition season, will control the outcome. George Blanda's toe may make it close. VIKINGS 34, RAIDERS 21.

Dallas over Chicago — Dallas was won eight straight opening games and with Roger Staubach in the Cowboy controls, this should be No. 9. But the Bears' defense, with or without Dick Butkus, will control it close. COWBOYS 21, BEARS 20.

Pittsburgh over Detroit — A tough one to call. Pittsburgh is coming off the first championship season in the 40-year history of the Steelers. The Lions have a new coach in Don McCafferty. The Steelers' homefield advantage should be just enough for a Pittsburgh victory. STEELERS 28, LIONS 24.

Los Angeles over Kansas City — Los Angeles also has a new coach—Chuck Knox, plus a new quarterback, John Hadji, the onetime Kansas U. star. This should add up to a Rams victory, although the Chiefs have Len Dawson and are slightly favored. RAMS 35, CHIEFS 21.

New York Giants over Houston — This is the first meeting ever between these two teams. It's the penultimate—that's next-to-last—game in venerable Yankee Stadium for the Giants. It should all add up to another of those Sundays when the Oilers should have stayed at home. GIANTS 42, OILERS 14.

Buffalo over New England — The homefield edge won't be enough for New England in this one, although the Patriots will try to win the first one in Chuck Fairbanks, their new coach. The Bills will counter with O. J. Simpson and veteran Coach Lou Saban. BILLS 28, PATRIOTS 17.

Green Bay over New York Jets — This one inaugurates the season's Monday night clashes and is also the first meeting between the Packers and the Jets. The Packers don't have the quarterbacking to match the Jet's Joe Namath. But the

Margaret Cheney Dawson Dies at Salisbury at 71

Mrs. Margaret Cheney Dawson, 71, of Salisbury, a member of the Cheney family of Manchester, died Wednesday at her home. Her husband, James A. Dawson, died July 15, 1968. Mrs. Dawson was born in Manchester, daughter of Walter B. and Lillian Spring Cheney, and she lived in Cornwall before moving to Salisbury three months ago. While a student at Manchester High School, she was assistant editor of "Somnith Events," which was issued four times a year, and authored a prize-winning essay on "The Value of a College Education."

In 1934, she had a novel, "City Harvest," published. She had worked for a time in the American Laboratory Theatre and had been a book reviewer and editor for Defiant No. 7 York Herald Tribune. She also was editor of the Junior League magazine and the Child Study Magazine. She was a former teacher in the New Haven school system.

Most recently, she was an editor of the Housatonic Audubon Society newsletter and co-editor of the Sharon Audubon Festival program. She was a member of the Housatonic Psychiatric Center in Salisbury, and a member of the Women's Auxiliary of Trinity Episcopal Church, Lime Rock. She also served as church librarian.
