PROVIDENCE (AP) — A study on the feasibility of constructing a jetport-industrial complex on the Connecticut state line should be completed in about two weeks and presented to Gov. Philip Noel say the chairman of the commission which made the study.

Coventry Candidate Backs Lake Improvements

Al J. Carilli, Democratic council candidate, has come out in support of the Lake Area Rehabilitation Committee's efforts.
He added, "The present council has taken positive steps to reverse this trend by forming the Lake Area Rehabilitation Committee, and the inclusion of six Lake Area residents on this committee insures that the final plan will be consistent with the desires of those who live in the lake area."
Carilli, a 19-year resident of the lake area, said, "I'm familiar with the problems of failing septic systems, poor roads, substandard housing and inadequate zoning."
He believes that a comprehensive program must be developed that "simultaneously solves all of these difficulties and it is not sufficient to deal with septic problems while ignoring housing, or without improving roads and ignoring zoning problems."
Carilli supported the "Rehabilitation Committee's approach of developing and representing to the townspeople alternative plans to improve the lake area."
He feels that "this will maximize citizen participation and lead to the eventual acceptance and implementation of the committee's final report."
Carilli said, "These plans will have to show the cost of each alternative and establish the sources of funding."

Coventry Schmidt Backs Rural Lifestyle

William Schmidt, Democratic candidate of the council, has put forth his position on population and development for Coventry today.
"I like to live in Coventry for the same reason many other people do, the rural atmosphere," Schmidt said, "and I'm opposed to any efforts which would radically alter our present rural lifestyle."
Schmidt expressed his "deep concern about those factors which place the farmer or any large land owner in the position of not realizing a substantial income until he puts his land up for sale."
"Somewhere in the way life is changing I sense that there is an opportunity for farmers to make a good living other than by selling his land for development," Schmidt said, "and I know that our Town Council will find the ways that he can."
"I believe that the kind of community that Coventry now is, is as important to people who don't live here as it is to those of us who do," Schmidt added.
"The problem of land being grabbed for development is not about to disappear," Schmidt said. "And we as a town have to find solutions which make large parcels of open space pay for themselves during their ownership rather than depending on a profit at the time of transfer," he added.
"It's either this or we as a state will lose our diversity and gradually attain the characteristics of our coastline between New Haven and New York," Schmidt said.
Commenting on cluster housing Schmidt noted that it was "a good idea, but I'm not sure that it has any greater urgency in the scheme of things than land retention for farming, nurseries or just plain open space."
According to Schmidt, "clustered communities of the magnitude presently being discussed fall into a high density category and these have their own special problems such as a crime rate requiring a different police presence than Coventry now has" also a "traffic problem" he added.
Schmidt closed by saying "I know that if I am called upon to make a judgment at some point in the future on the council regarding any proposal for massive development, I will make that judgment using the same standards which the townspeople at large would base their decision on."

The Candidates Are Saying...

Daniel Woolwich

(Woolwich is candidate for re-election to the Vernon Board of Education.)
The town of Vernon's educational system is now in the crisis stage with the upcoming referendum on the addition to the Rockville High School.
The Rockville High School is now on double sessions. We must end these double sessions, as it is seriously curtailing our educational system in the total development of our children.
Some of the disadvantages of double sessions are: decrease in instruction time, difficulty in scheduling due to a decrease in the number of periods in the day — hence students are unable to carry additional subjects, curtailment of extracurricular activities, a cut-back in the community use of schools and unsupervised children at home and in the community.
The Vernon Board of Education in November 1972 had researched in depth 12 educational alternatives, the Extended School Year was one that was considered. This concept is not a new one and was carefully discussed. The year round school does not eliminate additional school building but postpones the building of new structures which only causes an increase in costs and a further increase in cost to the taxpayer.
Locally, a number of communities have explored and rejected some version of the Extended School Year.
At the many Vernon Board of Education meetings, public hearings and generally talking to townspeople I have heard no outcry for the Extended School Year Plan. In fact, I believe the Town of Vernon's educational system is not ready at this time for such a change.
The lack of space at the Rockville High School is jeopardizing its accreditation. The report of the Evaluation Committee of the New England Association of Schools and Colleges in March 1973 clearly indicates this. The recommendations by the committee show a great concern over the shortage of space at the secondary level. They have recommended "the administration, staff and community continue their efforts to provide necessary facilities at the Rockville High School in order to insure a high quality educational system and plant for the Town of Vernon." It is clear to the committee and it is clear to me that a serious space needs problem exists.
The actual enrollment figures released in October by the Vernon Board of Education clearly indicates a need for the addition to Rockville High School. The capacity of Rockville High School on single sessions is 1,276. At present with grades 9-12 at Loveland Hill, the actual number of students is 1,968. By the year 1978 there will be 2,302 students and by the year 1982 there will be 2,315 students. These figures include no growth factor and were arrived at by simply moving students through the grades.
These figures clearly indicate to me a space needs problem. You have a high school that can house 1,276 at capacity and by the year 1982 the population will be 2,315.
I feel that the Vernon Board of Education is acting responsibly in presenting to the public a viable building program to meet the needs of the Rockville High School. I believe the present design will house the number of students coming along at the high school. I am convinced that the plan being presented by the Board of Education is viable both academically and economically and strongly urge the voters of Vernon to adopt this plan."

Smith To Retire From UAC Post

Arthur E. Smith of 28 Raymond Rd., will retire as chairman of United Aircraft Corporation, East Hartford, effective Jan. 1. He will be succeeded by Harry J. Gray. Gray will continue as president and chief executive officer of the corporation.

Smith, 62, cited personal reasons for choosing to retire earlier than the company's normal retirement age of 65. Smith has been with United Aircraft since 1933 when he joined the corporation's Pratt & Whitney Aircraft Division as an experimental test engineer. He was elected president of Pratt & Whitney Aircraft in 1967 and in January 1968 moved into senior corporate management as executive vice president. In October 1968, he was elected president of United Aircraft and four years later, became chairman of the corporation. Smith will continue as a member of United Aircraft's board of directors and the executive committee. In June 1969, Smith was awarded an honorary degree of doctor of engineering by Worcester Polytechnic Institute. He is a director of the Connecticut Bank and Trust Company, the Savings Bank of Manchester, and the Manchester Memorial Hospital.

Elinor M. Hashim
(Miss Hashim is a Republican candidate for the Manchester Board of Education.)
I have often been asked about the simple words I have chosen to highlight my campaign for elected community service. "For children's special needs, a special kind of caring."
My concern is, of course, for all the children in our schools being provided with the best instruction possible in adequate facilities. I think our system is really blessed with effective and deeply dedicated teachers.

Raymond J. Karpe
(Karpe is a Republican candidate for the Manchester Board of Directors.)
On Tuesday, Oct. 23, 1973 at the League of Women Voters and Chamber of Commerce Meet. the Candidates Night I reaffirmed my position that there must be a stronger accountability of the town administration to the Board of Directors and Manchester taxpayers. Throughout the evening I spoke with many concerned Manchester taxpayers and was pleased at the favorable response I received.

The Candidates Are Saying —

Carl Zinsser
(Zinsser is a Republican candidate for the Manchester Board of Directors.)
Some of the Democratic candidates would like to see the voters believe that by their efforts alone, Manchester taxes have been lowered.
It seems to me that if we examine how they accomplished this, we may question their methods. First, the claim is made that in 1972 there was no tax increase. This was largely due to a $118,000 Republican surplus from 1971 and the fact that in both years and we can see how the tax rate was established.

Cox Fears New Prosecutor May Have Powers Limited

WASHINGTON (AP) — Archibald Cox has expressed concern that any new special prosecutor named by President Nixon might not have authority to look into campaign-finance violations, wiretapping and the ITT case.

Cox was scheduled to testify again today in the Judiciary Committee's inquiry into his firing. He was dismissed Oct. 20 for refusing to help efforts to obtain White House documents relating to his investigation.

Cox, who was fired as special prosecutor on Nixon's orders, told the Senate Judiciary Committee on Tuesday that he considers the President's phrase "the Watergate matter" to involve only the break-in at Democratic national headquarters and the subsequent cover-up.

Cox contends his successor operating under Nixon's definition of Watergate would be without authority to investigate allegations that the Nixon administration improperly settled an antitrust suit against ITT, engaged in illegal wiretapping, and acted improperly in accepting campaign money from the dairy industry.

Cox told the committee Monday that he received, through then-Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson, numerous complaints from White House staff members about the breadth of his investigation.

Cox said he was scheduled to testify again today in the Judiciary Committee's inquiry into his firing. He was dismissed Oct. 20 for refusing to help efforts to obtain White House documents relating to his investigation.

The School Referendum Question Bennet Alterations Major Cost Items

DOUG BEVINS (Herald Reporter) SECOND IN A SERIES The most expensive item in this year's proposed renovations-additions project at Manchester's Bennet Junior High School is alterations to the five buildings in the Bennet complex, but the estimated cost of alterations this year is about $700,000 less than the estimated cost last year.

In the 1972 referendum, it was estimated that $2,007,000 would be spent on alterations to the five buildings. The remainder of the estimated $2,719,000 total to be spent at Bennet would go for construction of a new media arts center, a new gymnasium building ($883,500), site development ($37,000), repairs ($74,800), architectural and engineering fees ($196,000), furniture and equipment ($100,000), and contingency and other ($130,500).

The biggest cut in the Bennet alterations estimate was accomplished in the Rec Building — this year's alterations total is set at $30,000 and last year was $430,000 — because school officials determined that the Rec Building was the least essential to educational impact and the proposed costs had to be cut.

Some of the modernization to meet the state requirements are painting of interior walls with fire-rated finish; improvements to fire escapes, stairwells, and exit doors; and installation of elevators to accommodate handicapped people.

Vandalism No Longer Just A Halloween Event

By The Associated Press

Halloween 1973 is like all previous nights-of-spooks. Connecticut's neighborhoods will be full of make-believe

But vandalism is not limited to one night a year. According to University of Connecticut social criminology Professor

An Associated Press Connecticut survey reveals that vandalism cause millions of dollars damage annually, striking the public and private sector alike

Schools increasingly have become targets for vandals, said Denfeld.

Through September this year 121 arson set fires caused $294,589 damage while 256 fires of suspicious origin brought $1,174,643 damage.

Still Needs Hot Water

PIKEVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — James L. Selby was drilling for water on his Redsox County farm but struck natural gas instead.

Selby said he hired Nelson Houston of Craville, a well driller, to deepen a well that was not producing enough water.

Houston said the well was deepened from 139 feet to 384 feet without finding more water. But at 384 feet, he said, a pocket of natural gas was hit.
