Full Independence Assured

New Attorney General, Prosecutor Nominated

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon today named Sen. William B. Saxbe as attorney general and approved the selection of Leon Jaworski as new Watergate special prosecutor with full independence and safeguards against being fired.

The President promised not to discharge Jaworski, as he had Archibald Cox, without obtaining the consent of House and Senate Democratic and Republican leaders and top members of the two judiciary committees in Congress.

Nixon appeared personally in the White House briefing room to announce his nomination of Saxbe, an Ohio Republican who is not seeking re-election, as successor to Elliot Richardson, who resigned Oct. 20 rather than follow Nixon's orders to fire Cox.

The President, without answering questions, then turned the podium over to acting Atty. Gen. Robert Bork, who announced that Jaworski would become special prosecutor to pursue "the Watergate matter and related subjects."

Bork said that Jaworski has been "promised the full cooperation of the executive branch." Should Jaworski decide that he needs presidential documents, Bork said, "there will be no restrictions placed on his freedom."

Bork said Jaworski, a confidant of the late President Lyndon B. Johnson, would have the same broad mandate which had been given Cox. In addition, Bork said that Nixon has given "his personal assurance" that he will not fire Jaworski without first consulting with the specified congressional leaders and "ascertaining that their consensus is in accord with his proposed action."

The firing of Cox after his refusal to abide by Nixon's orders to drop efforts in court to obtain confidential White House tapes and documents touched off a massive controversy and triggered moves to start impeachment proceedings.

Bork underscored the same point saying: "Mr. Jaworski is not coming on with any limitations on his freedom of action."

But the bearded former Yale professor who assumed the role as acting attorney general on Oct. 20 and fired Cox as his first act said he does not expect continued court battles over access to White House tapes and documents.

"I anticipate reasonableness on both sides," he said.

As for the other staff of investigators and prosecutors that Cox had formed, Bork indicated he believed Jaworski would retain Cox's appointees.

"I stated to him that I thought that staff was indispensable to the rapid prosecution of these cases," Bork said. "He fully agreed."

He said it will be up to Jaworski to decide whether to pursue such investigations as the reported probe of presidential friend C.G. "Bebe" Rebozo's handling of a $100,000 campaign contribution from billionaire Howard Hughes.

Sources said Wednesday night that the administration had settled on Jaworski and Saxbe.

Saxbe, a Republican and former Ohio attorney general, had said earlier in the day he was "relatively sure" he will be nominated to be attorney general.

Saxbe told reporters he was satisfied "the President has acted honorably in the situations that have risen since Watergate."

Both selections face an uncertain reception in Congress.

The nominee for attorney general must be confirmed by the Senate. In addition, Congress is considering proposals to set up a court-appointed Watergate prosecutor not subject to firing by Nixon.

Archibald Cox was fired Oct. 20 as special Watergate prosecutor for refusing to drop his court battle for White House tape recordings on Watergate. Elliot L. Richardson resigned as attorney general the same day rather than carry out Nixon's order to fire Cox.

Jaworski said Wednesday night the matter of becoming the new Watergate prosecutor had been put to him in the light of patriotic service, and he said he would accept it in that spirit.

When asked what role he thought the special prosecutor should play, Jaworski said he sees the role as one that must have complete independence.

Saxbe said he believes Nixon went too far in agreeing to release tapes of presidential conversations dealing with the case.

"The 57-year-old senator said he believes the tapes are privileged and 'about as intimate a thing as can be.'" He said he believed he would have the independence necessary to operate as attorney general.

Jaworski, 68, a leading trial lawyer in Houston, is a friend of former President Lyndon B. Johnson and served in 1971 and 1972 as president of the American Bar Association. He also is a friend of former Texas Gov. John B. Connally.

Crackdown Ordered Against Hooligans

SOL R. COHEN

Manchester officials today announced an immediate crackdown on anyone physically abusing policemen or firemen.

The announcement follows incidents Wednesday night at Case Mt. and in the Buckland section of Manchester, when policemen and firemen and their vehicles were pelted with rocks, bottles and fireworks, and the men treated to jeers and other forms of verbal abuse.

Police arrested six youths in the Case Mt. incident and are continuing their investigation. They say more arrests are possible. All six were charged with assault on a police officer, 2nd Degree; interfering with a fireman; and criminal trespass, 3rd Degree.

The six are: Paul P. Purcell, 18, of 238 Blue Ridge Dr.; Curtis S. Willey, 18, of 112 Elizabeth Dr.; Robert W. Yunc, 18, of 48 Hartland St.; Diane K. McCarthy, 17, of 127 Main St.; George F. Kanis, 20, of 86 Cambridge St.; and Robert A. Millette, 18, of 52 Hollister St. All were released under $150 non-surety bond for Nov. 19 court appearance.

In addition, police say they may issue summonses to the owners of 7 cars towed away from Case Mt. Wednesday night.

The North End incidents involved a fire at 4 p.m. in the Balf Co. driveway, and three at the Buckland Rotary—one at about 11 p.m., another at about midnight, and the third at about 1:15 this morning—all of old tires doused in gasoline.

Taken to Manchester Memorial Hospital with second degree burns of the upper abdomen, arms and face was Rudy Fregin, 18, of 116 N. School St. Police say he was burned when throwing a bucket of gasoline on a pile of tires. They say they will file a warrant for his arrest and for anyone else they determine was involved with the fires.

Attending a meeting this morning in Police Chief James Reardon's office were, in addition to Reardon, Town Manager Robert Weiss, Town Fire Chief John Rivosa, Police Capt. George McCaughey, and Det. Capt. Joseph Sartro. 8th District Fire Chief Granville Lingard spoke to the group by telephone.

Weiss issued the following statement: "We will not tolerate physical abuse of policemen and firemen, and we will take whatever steps are necessary to provide for the safety of the public and the safety of emergency forces. In order to prevent similar incidents from happening again, we're cracking down wherever possible on violators."

"I'm concerned that the unlawful acts of a minority of the young people will react to the detriment of all young people."

Weiss praised the police and fire personnel for their "exemplary conduct at the scenes of the incidents." He said they reacted wisely. He said last night marked the first time Manchester firemen had been abused verbally and physically. He said, also, that last night was the first time in 15 months the police have been abused verbally and physically. He was referring to incidents in 1972 on Main St., opposite Friendly's.

Reardon said, "I will not tolerate any physical abuse whatsoever against policemen or firemen."

"We will strictly enforce the law and the ordinances against any illegal gatherings at Case Mt. or any other place where the tranquility of property owners and neighbors is disturbed."

"Those apprehended there after dark will be charged with trespassing and brought to court, and their vehicles will be towed and confiscated."

He alerted parents, "Get smart and know where your children are and what they're doing."

Reardon said, when investigations show who was responsible for Thursday's fires, the civil process will be instituted, to reimburse the town and the 8th District for the cost of putting out the fires.

The two fire chiefs said they will cooperate with the police—to seek compensation for answering the calls.

Lingard said the North End tire-fires have been going on for about 25 years and it's time for putting a stop to them.

In the Case Mt. incident, police were called at about 9 p.m. by Robert C. Dennison, one of the owners of Case Mt. A police cruiser was dispatched there and the car and driver were greeted with bottles, rocks and verbal abuse. A second, a third, and a fourth cruiser were dispatched. All received the same greeting from youths hidden in the woods.

The town fire department was called to put out woods fires and, when Assistant Fire Chief Roy Stratton and seven men responded, they too were greeted by bottles and rocks and their trucks also were hit. Luckily, say police, nobody was hurt.

Police report that a crowd of 75 to 100 youths and adults were at the four North End fires and that police and 8th District firemen were treated to verbal abuse and pelted with rocks, bottles, eggs and fireworks.

No arrests were made in the North End incidents but the investigation is continuing, police say.

Ironically, Capt. McCaughey said that except for the incidents which produced the police crackdown, Halloween, Wednesday night, was a comparatively quiet one in Manchester, with a minimum of hooliganism.

It was not until several weeks ago when the President considered disclosure that review of tapes by him was commenced," Buzhardt said.

"It was not definitely determined that the two conversations in question were recorded until late last week," he said.

Buzhardt said he would call witnesses to show that the tape had exceeded its capacity of six hours conversation on Saturday, April 14 and early on Sunday—a time when technicians did not routinely check the recording devices.

"The judge himself can hear the running out of the tape," Buzhardt said.

He said so much had gone on in the office earlier in the day that the six-hour reel was filmed. A technical expert said apparently an automatic switching system to a back-up recorder did not work.

J. Fred Buzhardt, lawyer for the President, asked U.S. District Court Judge Sirica to employ electronic experts to determine "that the tapes are complete and have not been tampered with in any form."

Richard Ben Veniste, a Watergate prosecution force lawyer, concurred in Buzhardt's request and the judge asked both the prosecution force and the White House to suggest an expert.

Buzhardt told the court Wednesday that a telephone conversation between the President and former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell was made on an instrument not connected to tape records. That reduced availability of nine subpoenaed White House Watergate recordings to seven.

The Party Positions

The Republicans

A. Paul Berte,
Town Chairman

This year's local election climate is certainly one of the most unusual that Manchester voters have ever faced. Not only has the media been dominated by non-local political and non-political events of historic proportions, but our local government has been significantly affected by external factors such as the Federal Revenue Sharing Program, which enabled the Board of Directors to lower the tax rate two mills.

It would be understandable to say that this campaign-period atmosphere has made it that much more difficult for the candidates and political parties to arouse the voters' attention to those local issues which will decide our Nov. 6 election.

The major issue that has clearly surfaced, however, is "Which candidates are best able and qualified to insure the accountability of local government to the taxpayers?"

It is not unusual that this would be the key issue, since our citizens today are more concerned than ever about the responsiveness of local government to their needs and the insurance that they are receiving the maximum return for their tax dollars.

Manchester residents realize that they should not have to tolerate situations such as the unreasonable length of time it is taking to repair the Olcott Street Bridge, the failure of the administration to correct permanently the problems of the bad odors emanating from the West Side Sewer Treatment Plant, and discommodities as evidenced by the duplication of Town and Board of Education maintenance facilities.

People today recognize that our town government is a multi-million dollar operation, and they expect it to be run economically and efficiently. And, it is clear that the Democratic

The Democrats

Ted Cummings,
Town Chairman

The thing that is most important for the citizens of Manchester is get out and cast their ballots Tuesday.

In that way there will be a truer and fairer representation of the peoples' wishes on the candidates and issues on the ballot.

I think that a representative voter turnout, a sizable turnout, will return the Democrats to office overwhelmingly.

We have had a good clean and honest two years in town office with a minimum of political bickering and nitpicking. We have had good people from the opposition party to work with during that term.

We have wisely used the peoples' tax dollars.

Taxes were held in line one year and reduced two mills the next.

Many projects were started such as the Cooper Hill Treatment Plant, the majority has not fulfilled the obligations they accepted upon election.

It was with these considerations in mind that the Manchester Republican Party endorsed candidates who have the capabilities and desire to provide Manchester the best government now and in the future.

The Republican candidates represent expertise in the fields of labor relations, personnel management, budgeting and financial control, and maintenance engineering. They pledge to conduct a sound and viable form of government based on established business practices.

Their concerns are broad and include the following in conformity with the 1973 Manchester Republican Party's Platform:

—To insure the Charter-given powers remain in the hands of elected officials.

—To employ the General Manager by contract for a definite period of time.

—To establish an advisory committee to prepare long-range recommendations on the optimum use of State and Federal funds provided to the town.

—To consolidate the Town's and Board of Education's maintenance facilities in those areas where improved efficiencies may be realized.

—To provide a climate which will be attractive for industry, housing and recreation, and in conformity with environmental protection standards.

Of course, these candidates cannot accomplish their goals for Manchester unless they receive the voters' support on Election Day. I encourage your support for the Republican endorsed candidates on Election Day. And, remember, Manchester needs your vote Nov. 6.

To the editor:
As it has been stated before, question 1 will be the most important one to be decided by the voters Nov. 6.

In the interest of brevity in this column, I will not enumerate all the benefits to be derived and the great necessity for the renovations and additions to Bennet and Illing. We should all be aware of these through newspaper articles, flyers printed and distributed by the Democrat and Republican parties, and the efforts of many citizens, some who are parents of school children and others who are concerned individuals, who have devoted many hours to contacting the public by speaking at meetings, talking with their neighbors and other acquaintances, and have supported advertisements in the newspapers and local radio station.

Although the cost for this project on the voting machine must indicate the total 5.6 million, approximately 2.4 million will be rebated by the state for a net cost to the town of $3,159,500. According to calculations which have been made, this new construction and renovation work should not be the cause of any increase in taxes to the property owners. At the time bonds for the Bennet and Illing work will be issued, other school bonds, such as the high school and others, will be retired.

There are many fine young people in this town who we can all be very proud because of their accomplishments, concern for others and respect for public property. We need this long-needed improvement.

Please remember Nov. 6 is the day. I hope you will vote. Remember the school question is 1. I hope you will vote Yes.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Richard L. Marshall

Regression
To the editor:
At a time when most communities are enlarging their libraries, Manchester is closing a branch of the Mary Cheney Library located at the West Side Rec. This certainly is not progress but regression. It makes the most honest attempt at solving this problem? Who is willing to go a step farther than enough to justify its remaining and further, that the room used by the library was needed by the recreation department. Both excuses are inadequate. The facts are that the library has been in existence for over 20 years and during this time has served the needs of the community even though the hours it was open for public use were very limited. The claim that the room is needed for recreation use is laughable. The West Side Rec. building is not open a sufficient number of hours for the children to take advantage of the facilities that now exist. In the summer months when the playground is in session, even the common facilities such as rest rooms are closed.

It is my belief that the Board of Directors should re-examine the closing of the library and investigate the efficiency of the recreation department.

Very truly yours,
Bullfinch Pagnall

Vote Yes For Schools
Dear Sir:
I have just read the anticipated letter of Mr. Frank Lupien regarding the Nov. 6 election. His desires for a "conservative" government has been evident as one might gather from his weekly letters to The Herald.

Mr. Lupien's desire for conservatism makes one wonder if he would like to stand still as the world goes by. Would he like to see the years of progress under Democrat and Republican administrations collapse in the name of fiscal responsibility?

One of the buildings (Bennet) included in the school referendum may be older than Mr. Lupien, unless he was born before 1903, and yet, he is opposed to improving it. His call to the elderly to vote as a block to defeat the school question is a dangerous threat to a community noted for its unity and harmony among residents. Mr. Lupien seeks to place old against young in the name of fiscal responsibility. Does he also urge the young to vote as a block to defeat any proposed spending to improve the lives of our senior citizens?

As a Manchester homeowner, I pay taxes like Mr. Lupien through I am not a member of the MPOA, the general accounting office of Manchester.

Open Forum

However, like most taxpayers, I am opposed to increased taxes unless they are justified. Referendum question one has been extensively researched. It has been reported by both political parties and most of the responsible citizens of the Town of Manchester.

I urge that the citizens of Manchester recognize their obligations to one another and vote yes on question one. Unity in the "Village of Charm" can again be demonstrated by your actions on the polls Nov. 6.

Vote Willhide

To the editor:
This past year we have had the pleasure of working closely with one of the candidates for Board of Directors.

Paul Willhide combines a unique blend of qualities. This is essential and is so often lacking in government today. Basic common sense, common sense, energy, dedication and sincerity when found in one individual are unique.

He has displayed these qualities in his leadership at South Church as chairman of the administrative board and as chairman of this past year's major fund raising drive. What he does, he does well and he does it a lot.

We're voting for Paul Willhide Nov. 6.

Vote Thompson

To the editor:
The young adult voters of Manchester.

Tuesday, Nov. 6, is quickly approaching. This is the day when all Manchester voters, regardless of age, should get out and make the all-important choice.

Manchester has a lot to offer us. We have a lot to offer the community. We need the leadership to bring together these two vital forces. Jack Thompson is this leadership.

As a student at Bennet for nearly three years, I can assure you that these changes are an absolute must to the fire laws and the educational needs of the students now and in coming years.

If any of the townpeople would like this fact proven, they could step into any of the four buildings and view the warped floors, peeling paint, and structural collapsing of the school. Science labs need major improvements, as they were made for students at the turn of the century. The band meets in an auditorium which has seen its better days and is acoustically not meant for music. Art, music, home economics, and industrial arts classes meet in areas not suitable for modern teaching. The library is too small to meet the needs of the students so we travel to Mary Cheney for most sources anyway. The gyms are four small and accommodate large classes and the warped floors provide a dangerous hazard.

The Junior High has its ninth graders at Manchester High, taking up much needed space, thus neither school is benefiting from it.

The voters of the town of Manchester refused the appropriation of funds for a new junior high school two years ago and against renovations of the old schools each year after. I think that the condition of educational facilities reflect the attitudes of the people of a town and that Manchester's townpeople should be ashamed of themselves for voting against this issue in the past.

I urge each and every one of you to vote for the appropriation of these funds Nov. 6.

Sincerely,

Dear Sir:
The Manchester Jaycees have voted unanimously to support the upcoming $5.6 million school bond issue for additions and renovations to Bennet and Illing Junior High Schools.

We feel that the renovation to Bennet Junior High is long overdue and the modernization to correct many deficiencies is vital to maintaining the quality of educational program offered at Bennet.

The expansion of Illing Junior High is necessary, not only to relieve overcrowding and inefficiency at Manchester High School but also, to expand and unify the programs at Illing.

We urge all Manchester voters in favor of question 1 Nov. 6.

Vote Yes For Schools

Dear fellow citizens:
It may not seem appropriate for a school employee to solicit your vote for a school bond issue but my area of work will not be benefited, so I feel that I have the right to speak out. I am concerned for the 1100 students with whom I work in two elementary school media centers and for the rest of the elementary school students who will soon be entering the secondary schools of our city.

My particular area of interest is with the plan to build media centers in the two junior high schools. The students in the two schools I serve, and in most of the elementary schools, are finding a new dimension to their school life in the opportunities that are afforded to them in the media centers. One boy left the media center the other day with the statement, "I don't know what I would do without this library." That made up for all kinds of discouraging days for me personally, but I dread that it is not an unusual feeling on the part of many elementary school students today. Ask the children of your acquaintance how they feel about their school libraries, or better yet, come in and see what is happening.

It's exciting to be a part of something that you feel is tremendously important. In the media centers we are teaching children to teach themselves and we are attempting to provide media suitable for all kinds of learning styles. This may be the very most important thing we can teach children how to teach themselves. In a society that has been doubling its knowledge every eight to ten years since 1950, the successful man today is the one who can teach himself and keep up-to-date in his field, either by purchasing and reading many books and periodicals, selective listening and viewing, or by becoming an avid public or special library user. The facts that we learned in school have long been superseded by new discoveries, in many instances. His one best tool for the future is an insatiable quest for knowledge. This kind of attitude is only developed through practice and the media centers at their best provide the perfect setting.

I don't write this to imply that we have media centers at their best in all of our elementary schools, or even in any of our junior high schools. It is possible for the lifetime quest that some children are starting in their elementary school media centers to be continued as they reach Junior High. In spite of the best efforts of dedicated and talented librarians at the junior high schools, the facilities for the continuation of the quest are so inadequate that I fear some youngsters will be completely turned off.

I don't join me in voting "Yes" Question 1 and "Yes" to superior education for all of our children and youth?

To the editor:
With the forthcoming election near upon us, I would like to share my feelings on a major issue with your readers. This concern has to do with the educational process of the town of Manchester and will affect this process in the years to come.

As most of the town's voters are aware, Nov. 6, Election Day, you will be voting on the issue of appropriating money for the renovations and additions to the town's junior high schools, Bennet and Illing.

As a student at Bennet for nearly three years, I can assure you that these changes are an absolute must to the fire laws and the educational needs of the students now and in coming years.

If any of the townpeople would like this fact proven, they could step into any of the four buildings and view the warped floors, peeling paint, and structural collapsing of the school. Science labs need major improvements, as they were made for students at the turn of the century. The band meets in an auditorium which has seen its better days and is acoustically not meant for music. Art, music, home economics, and industrial arts classes meet in areas not suitable for modern teaching. The library is too small to meet the needs of the students so we travel to Mary Cheney for most sources anyway. The gyms are four small and accommodate large classes and the warped floors provide a dangerous hazard.

The Junior High has its ninth graders at Manchester High, taking up much needed space, thus neither school is benefiting from it.

The voters of the town of Manchester refused the appropriation of funds for a new junior high school two years ago and against renovations of the old schools each year after. I think that the condition of educational facilities reflect the attitudes of the people of a town and that Manchester's townpeople should be ashamed of themselves for voting against this issue in the past.

I urge each and every one of you to vote for the appropriation of these funds Nov. 6.

Sincerely,
Charles R. Pillard

Support Schools

Dear Sir:
The Manchester Jaycees have voted unanimously to support the upcoming $5.6 million school bond issue for additions and renovations to Bennet and Illing Junior High Schools.

We feel that the renovation to Bennet Junior High is long overdue and the modernization to correct many deficiencies is vital to maintaining the quality of educational program offered at Bennet.

The expansion of Illing Junior High is necessary, not only to relieve overcrowding and inefficiency at Manchester High School but also, to expand and unify the programs at Illing.

We urge all Manchester voters in favor of question 1 Nov. 6.

Secretary

Vote Yes For Schools

Dear fellow citizens:
It may not seem appropriate for a school employee to solicit your vote for a school bond issue but my area of work will not be benefited, so I feel that I have the right to speak out. I am concerned for the 1100 students with whom I work in two elementary school media centers and for the rest of the elementary school students who will soon be entering the secondary schools of our city.

My particular area of interest is with the plan to build media centers in the two junior high schools. The students in the two schools I serve, and in most of the elementary schools, are finding a new dimension to their school life in the opportunities that are afforded to them in the media centers. One boy left the media center the other day with the statement, "I don't know what I would do without this library." That made up for all kinds of discouraging days for me personally, but I dread that it is not an unusual feeling on the part of many elementary school students today. Ask the children of your acquaintance how they feel about their school libraries, or better yet, come in and see what is happening.

It's exciting to be a part of something that you feel is tremendously important. In the media centers we are teaching children to teach themselves and we are attempting to provide media suitable for all kinds of learning styles. This may be the very most important thing we can teach children how to teach themselves. In a society that has been doubling its knowledge every eight to ten years since 1950, the successful man today is the one who can teach himself and keep up-to-date in his field, either by purchasing and reading many books and periodicals, selective listening and viewing, or by becoming an avid public or special library user. The facts that we learned in school have long been superseded by new discoveries, in many instances. His one best tool for the future is an insatiable quest for knowledge. This kind of attitude is only developed through practice and the media centers at their best provide the perfect setting.

I don't write this to imply that we have media centers at their best in all of our elementary schools, or even in any of our junior high schools. It is possible for the lifetime quest that some children are starting in their elementary school media centers to be continued as they reach Junior High. In spite of the best efforts of dedicated and talented librarians at the junior high schools, the facilities for the continuation of the quest are so inadequate that I fear some youngsters will be completely turned off.

I don't join me in voting "Yes" Question 1 and "Yes" to superior education for all of our children and youth?

Child Abuse An American Tragedy

By BETTY RYDER Women's Editor

When three-year-old Johnny arrived at the hospital's emergency room, he was badly hurt and in a near semiconscious condition.

Waiting attendants carried him into the examination room where his parents explained to the nurse at the admitting desk that he had tumbled down a flight of stairs in the home.

The physician and the attending nurse administered to the young boy a check for a more thorough check. It was then noticed evidence of other severe bruises, now faded, but not more than a few weeks old.

Further examination revealed signs of bruising on the child's face, neck and arms, apparently made by a heavy stick or strap.

Johnny, coming out of his dazed state, remained silent when questioned as to the cause of his injuries, but attendants noticed the quick, furtive glances he cast at his waiting parents.

This is child abuse, but Johnny's condition, remained silent when questioned as to the cause of his injuries, but attendants noticed the quick, furtive glances he cast at his waiting parents.

Bruses or wounds in various stages of healing, implying repeated exposure to trauma (or repeated injury inflicted), especially in the region of the neck.

Physical evidence of undernourishment and/or water deprivation, for example, poor skin tone, abnormalities of mouth and mucous membranes.

Over-evidence of neglect or physical needs of young children (presence of more than "surface dirt") such as diapers which are rarely changed; ears, nose and fingernails which are never cleaned, etc.

The sexually molested child who has been assaulted by an adult.

The unsupervised child, locked in or out or left alone, who cannot care for himself.

In an attempt to cut down on the increasing number of child abuse cases, the State of Connecticut has revised its Child Abuse Law, placing an even greater emphasis on the importance of reporting child abuse to the proper authorities.

The new Child Abuse Law, which became effective Oct. 1, extends immunity from civil or criminal suit to any private citizen who reports suspected child abuse in good faith.

Previously, immunity was only extended to professionals required to make such reports.

In addition, the revised law requires that professionals include physicians, surgeons, resident physician, internes, registered nurse, licensed practical nurse, medical examiner, dentist, psychologist, school nurse, medical examiner, school teacher, school principal, school guidance counselor, social worker, police officer or clergyman, who have reasonable cause to suspect or believe that any child under the age of 18 has been abused.

In conjunction with the revised law, the Connecticut Child Welfare Association inaugurated a 24-hour-a-day, 7-day-a-week prevention and information child abuse "Care Line" which provides a person-to-person telephone contact, anonymous if desired, to which troubled parents can turn when they feel themselves on the verge of injuring a child in their care.

The "Care Line" is toll free - WATS line - 1-800-242-2228.

Mrs. Jeanette Dille, CWA's executive director, commenting on the project, said, "CWA will provide a centralized telephone service to the lay public and professionals are not a statutory authority and therefore can give help as a neighbor. "Care Line" is not to be confused with the Child Abuse Registry which is an official service of registering child abuse in the state for prosecutive use only.

The "Care Line" will function as a coordinating communications liaison between the Child Welfare Association. It will be a source of information as to what to do and where to go for help when something in the child's behavior is suspicious.

Parents who were frequently abused as children themselves, who do not know what "good parenting" is, since they did not experience it as children.

Others who really care about their children, but lose control of themselves when they are angry.

Parents who expect behavior which is too advanced for their child's age, sometimes interpreting normal behavior to report child abuse cases.

Those who have few friends or relatives to call upon when trouble occurs.

Parents who are usually employed and financially self-sufficient, or others who may be suffering from a crisis, such as a loss of job.

Still others who have fallen into a pattern of marital abuse; or those with personal problems that make it difficult or impossible to be good parents (mental retardation, psychosis, alcoholism, or addiction); or of themselves are under constant stress (slum housing, poverty, marital problems).

The Connecticut Child Abuse Registry, which is administered by the State Department of Social Services, is a "doctor shopper" to find a doctor that had not worked closely with another in the area.

He further cited a case which took place a few years ago in California. "A man was arrested and sent to prison for 10 years on a child abuse charge in which his child died. He in turn sued four California physicians and the chief of police for $50,000 for failing to report a suspected case of child abuse, which is required under that state's law. He won."

Locally, Hart feels his town is doing all that is possible to protect the child and the parent. He said that need for response when a child abuse case is distributed.

"We have distributed flyers throughout the school system notifying teachers, principals, doctors and other professionals who come in contact with children of their responsibility to report child abuse cases. For some time now, people have hesitated to get involved, now it's the law."

Hart, who has served South Windsor as youth service officer for three years, says many cases will still go undetected. "If a case involves a teenager, it's very difficult to get evidence," he said.

Commenting on parents who "doctor shop" so as to avoid detection as child abusers, Kenney said, "In this community, I think that would be more difficult to do."

The hospital services some 3,000 people a year. There is a good relationship between doctor and patient, and many doctors share services, which would make it quite difficult for a "doctor shopper" to find a doctor that had not worked closely with another in the area.

He did, however, feel that the $500 penalty for failure to report a suspected child abuse case would keep physicians and other professionals more alert.

"Some doctors who for one reason or another have not reported marginal cases for investigation, I believe, take a second look if they have the slightest suspicion that abuse has taken place."

"Our director of social services (Mrs. Bessie Allen) is doing much to assist authorities in prosecuting child abuse cases. It is his duty to get action. If any informant of a suspected case of child abuse still will work in favor of the patient rather than the other way around," he said.

"Now with the time a patient can be detained because of the revised law, hopefully more concerned people will come forth when they suspect child wrongdoing," Officer Graves said.

Regarding the parents who "shop around" for doctors to administer to their abused children, Officer Graves said, "The Child Abuse Registry should help to detect child abusers."

Explaining the function of the registry, he said, "When a child is administered to by a physician and he suspects child abuse, the child's name is added to the registry list. Then, the next time, if a different physician is called to give medical attention and he too becomes suspicious, he may check the registry and be aware that this same child has been treated previously for suspected child abuse. He can then make a determination as to the procedure to be taken to report such a case."

"Unless the public will cooperate in reporting suspected child abuse many cases throughout the year will go undetected. Many children never receive hospital care, and even though their injuries may be severe they are not taken to a doctor's office. Consequently, no one is aware of the wounds heal, and the abuse continues."

"Sometimes teenagers get into a fight with a parent, and the parent strikes him. This is a type of abuse, a teenager can usually walk away from it, not now, when he is of age to leave

Hi Neighbor! Some people say our ads should be banned from the newspapers on the grounds that they take all the promotion out of merchandising promotion, deride the fancy stores for their expensive floor walkers and displays, chide the manufacturers for their high priced executives and cost-inflating techniques, and generally demean the entire advertising structure. All I can say in my defense is that it's probably all true and that we're guilty of everything except being bed-wetting bigots. Our only redeeming feature and the only social values we contribute to society are a million or so articles priced below what the stores get you for, and a real "no-hard-time" 30-day money back guarantee if you are displeased with your purchase in any way. That's gotta count for something even if we can't get a membership in the advertising Ivory Tower Society.

As for the financial success of our company, I can only say to those dollar-minded businessmen that even if I were to buy this entire town and automobile, I would make it a point to buy this town from over their heads, even at the considerable inconvenience and cost of doing so. Possibly this is the only kind of logic they are capable of understanding.

Aside from moral and ethical considerations, the commotion, the noise and the eyesore of such a mess constitutes, at the very least, a public nuisance. Simply as a practical matter, one cannot wonder why zoning laws and ordinances forbidding noisy and obnoxious activities apply to every individual citizen, are not invoked in such a deplorable situation.

Publicity promotions are one thing but when they are allowed to exceed the boundaries of common decency by degrading the human spirit and being an affront to individual dignity, then we must all, as members of society, suffer the consequences.

We, as individual members of our community, are surely as fully as much victims of this activity as are the actual participants and almost as responsible for allowing it to continue as the active promoters.

If there is one redeeming social feature of this outrage, it is perhaps that it should serve as a reminder to all of us that, in the end, we get exactly what we deserve.

Sincerely, Clarice P. Hilling 27 High Street Manchester

Vote Hashim To the editor: In my mind nothing is quite as important as educating our children - giving them the best of everything they should have. Therefore I want the people on the Board of Education to be the best possible also. Yes, they should be responsive to taxpayers, teachers, and administration, but their primary concern should be the children. Elinor Hashim believes in this. She is not only an intelligent woman but a compassionate one as well. She's concerned especially with the

1. Gone out of business stock of a New London general store. Lots of hardware items, toys, school supplies, electrical components, etc. at 40 to 60% off their prices.

2. Huge skate stock from a bankrupt sporting goods store. Excellent selection of mostly Canadian blade models for children, ladies and men; including Bobby Orr Blue-line and Rally pro models with N.H.L. approval. About half what the stores get.

3. Very big stock of Pyrex and Mirro kitchen products as well as a huge supply of disposal aluminum foil pans for all occasions, 40% to 50% off.

4. Amplifiers, speakers, and tape or phono systems from C.E. Columbia, Milda and others, at about 40% less than store prices.

5. More Xmas goods, cards, tinsel, wrapping, garlands, ornaments, doggy stockings and decorations at 50% to 70% less than elsewhere.

6. A huge load (oops!) of disposal diaper seconds, in newborn, daytime, and overnight grades at less than half what you pay in the diaperettes.

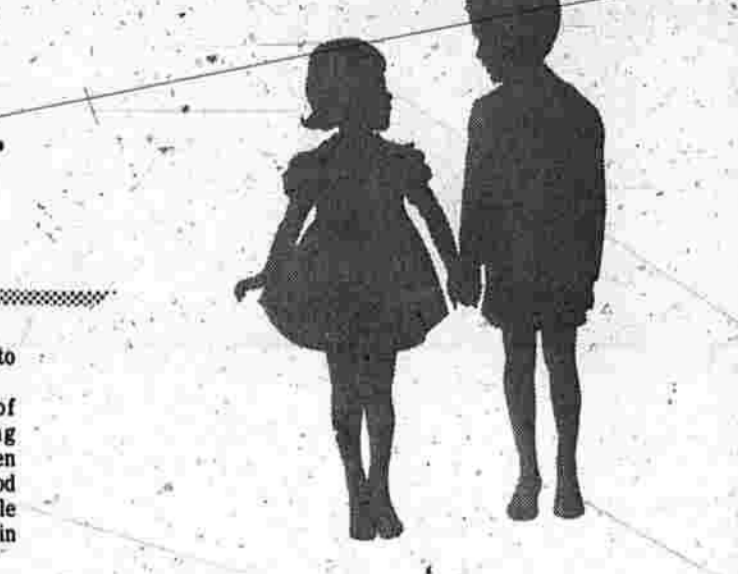

Plus carpet, greeting cards, artificial flowers, paper goods, towels, sheets, gadgets, pine and fruitwood furniture, fine bedding and hundreds of things I can't even remember.

So enjoy the delicious complimentary coffee while you look. No one will pressure you to buy anything, but my wife will be very disappointed if you forget to bring your wallet. She says that if you do bring your wallet, we'll really be glad to see you.

Celena is the widow of James Scranton, a tobacco grower who had a farm on Hillstown Rd. She raised three children, Richard of Manchester and two daughters, Mrs. Phyllis Christie of Hebron and Mrs. Jean Garrett who lives in Florida.

Now living in the housing for the elderly at Mayfair Gardens in the northern end of town, one would think Celena would be taking it easy.

A Manchester native as was her husband, she has been a longtime member of Hillstown Grange serving as lecturer from 1966 until this year. Every year of her service she received awards both locally and nationally for her outstanding service. A lecturer is responsible for programs which should be properly balanced. Celena's included music, articulture, safety, education, humor to mention a few.

The golden years of Celena's life are spent doing golden things for others. She saves paperbacks and other books to take to veterans' hospitals. She is always looking for clothing to take to convalescent homes, makes favors for trays on holidays. That's her guidance, the Grange gives soap and washcloths to patients at Christmas instead of having grab bags at holiday parties.

"You know, there are people in convalescent hospitals whom no one comes to visit and they never receive anything. They need scarves, washable comfort clothing, sweaters and comfy slippers."

Putting Her Best Foot Forward

Anne Matre, her daughter Katie and Randall Caron give a preview of fashions from Butterfield's to be modeled by men, women, tots and teens of Assumption Church Parish when its Ladies Guild presents its "Fashion White" show Monday at 8:15 p.m. in the church hall, Adams St. Sally Middleton, a former Miss Connecticut and well-known model, will be commentator. Show is open to the public and tickets may be obtained from Mrs. Pierre Caron, 553 Center St., Mrs. John MacDonald, 159 McKee St., or at the door. (Herald photo by Pinto)

Wates Win Prizes For Costumes

Manchester WATES had its annual Halloween party Tuesday night at the Italian-American Club.

Prizes were awarded to three of the members participating in a costume parade. Winners were Mrs. Evelyn Cady of Hickory Hill, Andover, for her "Space Walker" costume; Mrs. Rita Peckham of Buff Cap Rd., Tolland, who wore a "Maple Tree" outfit; and Mrs. Patricia Morianos of South Rd., Bolton, for her "Moon Maid" costume.

Judges were Mrs. Connie Costello and Mrs. Alice Evans of the Herald staff.

About Town

The American Legion Auxiliary will sponsor its annual ham and bean supper Sunday from 5 to 7 p.m. at the Legion Home. The menu will include home baked beans, ham, scalloped potatoes, coleslaw, bread, dessert and coffee. Reservations may be made by contacting Mrs. Leon Bradley, 72 Phelps Rd., or Mrs. Clifford Walker, 76 Phelps Rd. Tickets will also be available at the door.

College Note

Among the Manchester parents attending Parents' Weekend at Franklin Pierce College in Rindge, N.H. were Mr. and Mrs. J. Robert Resting, who visited their son, Richard, and Mr. and Mrs. Rockwell H. Potter Jr. who visited their son, Daniel.

50th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Chalifour of 99 Bluefield Dr. were honored at a party Sunday in observance of their 50th wedding anniversary. The party which was hosted by their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph DesRosier of 29 Terry Rd., was held at the KofC Home on Main St.

The couple renewed wedding vows at the Church of the Assumption, Manchester, for the past 30 years. Prior to that time they lived in Hartford.

Mr. Chaifour retired from the Post Office and is now working part-time at D&L in the Manchester Parkade.

Views From Abroad

LONDON (AP) - President Nixon's firing of Watergate Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox drew a barrage of criticism in the foreign press ranging in intensity from a child's "ill-conceived step" in the Japan Times to "democracy vomits" in the London Daily Mirror.

The London Daily Mirror, under a large headline reading "The Late Mr. Nixon," said "the only question that remains is will Richard Nixon display one single spark of decency and remove himself?"

Hong Kong's English-language South China Morning Post called Nixon's handling of the Watergate scandal a "shabby performance." But the newspaper found that the crisis "has strangely illumined the strength of the American scheme of government."

The Candidates Are Saying

Pascal A. Prignano

(Prignano is a Democratic candidate for the Manchester Board of Directors.) The primary responsibility of the Board of Directors to the people of Manchester is financial, setting the budget, fixing the tax rate, and approving expenditures.

One of the most significant achievements of the Democratic board over the last two years is the development of an attitude of credibility between the people and the board. We have dealt openly with all issues and responded to public inquiry, complaint and suggestions.

I feel that the believability of our board by the people is based on our approach to government and the issues. We instituted a bipartisan approach to budget making. We did not prepare the budget in camera as the Republican majority boards had one in the past.

Managers residents. I am told that there is widespread abuse of these town-owned and town-maintained areas - the Globe, Hollow Swimming Pool, Charter Oak and West Side tennis courts, and the Robertson and Saulters Pools - by non-residents.

In order to insure maximum availability and utilization of recreational facilities by Manchester residents, it is imperative that adequate supervision and control be enforced.

John J. Tani

(Tani is a Democratic candidate for the Manchester Board of Directors.) During the past two years, the Democratic controlled Board of Directors has made several significant accomplishments.

The much publicized no tax increase of 1972 and the 2 mill decrease of 1973 are highlights of this board. A May 8, 1972 editorial in the Manchester Herald titled, "Wood Work, Democrats," stated this: "The no-rate increase decision shows respect for the taxpayers of Manchester, for the economic conditions of the times, and for the sound principles on which all governmental spending ought to be based."

The following is the platform as presented by the Republican candidates in South Windsor.

We believe that sound, constructive planning for South Windsor's future is essential to provide the balanced, orderly growth our community needs in the decade ahead.

We need a return to responsible planning so that we can meet the needs of our citizens, keep taxes down, and, at the same time, preserve the rural, country-like atmosphere that has made our town an attractive community in which to live, work, and raise a family.

Accordingly, we present the following specific proposals designed to achieve these goals:

Recreation: Reactivation of mini-park approach where applicable; utilization of open

MCC Plans Trade Course

Businessmen and prospective businessmen will have the opportunity to further their knowledge of international trade in an evening course to be offered by Manchester Community College in cooperation with the Regional Export Expansion Council of Connecticut, the U.S. Department of Commerce, the Small Business Administration and the Chamber of Commerce in Manchester, East Hartford, Glastonbury, Rockville and South Windsor.

"Introduction to International Trade Export Seminar" will provide the businessman with the knowledge necessary to develop or expand an international market for his goods or services. The class will meet for seven weeks on Mondays, beginning Nov. 5, from 7:30 to 9:30 in room 211 at the Hartford Rd. campus. Each meeting will be devoted to a single topic that will be taught by an authority in the field.

The topics to be covered and the instructors are: Introduction to World Trade, C. Lee Babin, vice president-general manager, Dunham-Bush International; Financing Export Shipments, Martin G. Goodstone, assistant treasurer, Connecticut Bank and Trust Company; Insurance of Export Transactions, John H. # Snack Time Milk To Get Full Funding

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Agriculture Department announced Wednesday it will restore full funding of the special milk program to provide snack time milk for school children.

The department also said a new federal regulation which went into effect last August allows school cafeterias to serve nonfat dry milk if the product is reconstituted into liquid form at dairy processing plants.

Funding for the special milk program will be restored to the full level provided in the department's appropriations legislation for the 1973-74.

Last July, the department said it would hold special milk spending this school year to $25 million. But Congress insisted that $97.1 million be used to provide children milk at snack periods in addition to servings at regular meals.

Administration officials had wanted to limit special milk servings to schools not having regular meal service.

In talking to Congress, the department said it will reimburse schools participating in the National School Lunch Program at a rate of four cents per one-half pint of special milk served.

"For other schools and for child care institutions which sell milk to children at a separate charge, the maximum rate of reimbursement is set at three cents per half pint," the department said.

These are the reimbursement rates which applied previously before USDA announced last summer the cutback in special milk spending, officials said.

The practice of serving reconstituted nonfat dry milk is not believed widespread at this time, a spokesman for the Food and Nutrition Service said, and savings to schools which use dry milk as a food source would be limited.

Milk rules affecting school lunches and other child nutrition programs were changed Aug. 13 to permit the use of low fat, skim milk and cultured buttermilk in addition to regular whole milk.

The spokesman said the rule also has been interpreted to allow the use of reconstituted powdered milk as long as the practice complies with state and local laws.

That means schools and other institutions can collect federal reimbursement for serving the alternate milk products.

In the case of school lunch programs, the federal government reimburses schools at the rate of eight cents per half pint served.

A new bill which revamps federal child nutrition assistance provides a 10-cent reimbursement. The bill is awaiting approval by President Nixon.

Officials said the requirement that schools must use nonfat dry milk reconstituted by dairy plants was stipulated for sanitary reasons since most cafeterias are not equipped to do the job within health requirements.

Radio Woman Now Coed

By WILLIAM R. LONG
Associated Press Writer

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) - Radio Woman, a Sao Paulo station that wanted nothing to do with men for four years, has decided to deepen its voice and broaden its appeal.

An all-woman staff has run the radio since it was founded in 1969, aiming its broadcasts at an exclusively female audience.

Now the 40 women at Radio Woman are getting 40 male co-workers. New programming, scheduled to go on the air next Monday, is designed to attract a mixed audience.

"We want to reach a larger public," said Walter Guerreiro, the station's new general manager. Guerreiro said Monday that the old format of popular music with women-only news and talk shows was reaching a small, low-income audience.

"We will raise the level of the music," he said. The station will play "good Brazilian music" most of the time, Guerreiro added, with classical music one day a week.

"News and other information will be of general interest, presented by both men and women."

The name of the station, "Radio Mulher" in Portuguese, will stay the same. Guerreiro predicted that the name won't discourage male listeners if they like the new programming.

The station's male majority stockholder, Roberto Montoro, is the power behind the change. But women employees of the organization have supported it.

Aparecida da Silva, who has worked at Radio Woman for three years, predicted that the addition of male voices and new programming will be welcomed by women listeners.

"The station was well married," Miss da Silva said. "After all, men can also do good programs for women."

Aurora Portela, former artistic director of Radio Woman, said the new manpower situation will improve efficiency at the station.

"Women claim all the rights of men for themselves, but they don't assume their obligations as well," Miss Portela said. "We had many employees who tried to powder their noses and arrange their hair while they were working."

"With men, no things are more serious."

Business Bodies

Auto Dealers Form Consumer Action Panel

The Connecticut Automotive Trades Association has created an automotive consumer action panel and established a statewide toll-free telephone line for automotive service complaints.

The association has also adopted a business code of ethics for franchised new car dealers.

Association president Richard Wagner of Simsbury said the association "must get a tighter grip" on the business ethics and performance of those who sell and service cars.

Consumers, Wagner said, may phone toll-free, from any point in the state, to register a complaint. The phones, to be installed soon at association headquarters, will be manned weekdays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Once the association has logged a complaint, the dealer involved will be notified and expected to resolve the matter with the customer. The dealer must then make a report to the association.

Most auto dealers in the Manchester area are members of the association.

NEW ASSIGNMENT

Mrs. Mary E. Gray of 58 Hany Lane, Vernon, has been named manager of the Vernon National Bank's Dart Hill branch, replacing Frederick E. Vogell, who has become manager of the bank's relocated Rockville branch.

Mrs. Gray joined Vernon National in 1965 as a secretary. In 1971 she was made an administrative assistant and last year she became manager of the Rockville office. In August 1972 she assumed added responsibilities of assistant cashier.

Mrs. Gray, active in community affairs, has attended Manchester Community College and the American Institute of Banking. She is a member of the women's committee of the banking institute, the National Association of Bank Women, the Connecticut Bankers Association, and the Suburban Bank Association.

Mrs. Gray and her husband, George, have three children.

2nd VICE PRESIDENT

Robert C. Heavises of 15 Timber Trail, Manchester, has been appointed second vice president for investments in the Hartford office of Shearson, Hammill & Co., Inc., a nationwide banking and brokerage concern.

Heavises, a U.S. Navy veteran and University of Hartford graduate, joined the firm in 1958 as a registered representative and has also had managerial experience in the company.

Heavises, 40, is married and has two children. He is a member of Kiwanis and is a 2nd degree Mason and Shriner.

Robert J. Alley, Raymond H. Borst, Thomas H. Dooley

Connecticut General Promotions

Three Manchester area men have been promoted to new positions at Connecticut General Life Insurance Co., Bloomfield.

Promoted were Robert J. Alley of Bloomfield; Raymond H. Borst of South Windsor; and Thomas H. Dooley of 109 Irene Dr., Vernon.

Alley, son of Herbert A. Alley of 69 Washington St., Bloomfield, was appointed vice president, underwriting department, in Connecticut General's individual insurance operation.

Alley joined the firm in 1948 and advanced through various positions to his appointment as assistant secretary in 1967. He became secretary in 1961, second vice president in 1964, and since 1966 has been responsible for individual underwriting.

Alley is married to the former Nancy Griffin of Manchester. He is a director of the Bloomfield Chamber of Commerce and chairman of the industrial division of the Bloomfield Citizen Scholarship Foundation.

Lydall To Close Subsidiary Plant In Pennsylvania

Lydall, Inc., a Manchester-based manufacturing complex, has begun to terminate operations of its Universal-Lubricating Systems Division at Oakmont, Pa., the company has announced.

Lydall said Universal — which manufactures gears and lubricating fittings, tools, and accessories — operated at a "substantial loss" in the third quarter of 1973. "It is now apparent that the factors causing this loss will continue," the firm said, "and that the division cannot be made profitable." Lydall noted that there had been interest expressed in purchasing the operation as a going business. It is anticipated that most of Universal's fixed assets will be sold at auction in December.

Lydall President Millard H. Pryor Jr. said disposal of Universal shouldn't have a material effect on Lydall's 1973 earnings.

Lydall figures show that Universal — which was acquired by a Lydall subsidiary five years ago — had sales

$2.2 million in 1973 with about 100 employees. Company officials said Universal is the third-largest manufacturer in the U.S. of the gears and other items.

Lee Panzer of Pittsburgh, formerly industrial sales manager of the division, has been named vice president in charge of closing down operations. H.J. Cassidy Jr., former president of Universal, has resigned.

Public Lecture Kenneth E. Boulding, one of America's most distinguished economists, will discuss

Does Israel Have A-Bomb?

By Tom Tink WASHINGTON (NEA) — In the heat of the Arab-Israeli war, a French general, Georges Buis, casually told a reporter that the Israelis "certainly" possess a nuclear threat.

The opinion went un-noticed in most U.S. newspapers, as speculation on the "Israeli bomb" usually does. The prospect has always been too unpleasant for widespread popular contemplation.

Now, with a tenuous truce in partial effect, and thoughts somewhat less inflamed, it may be well to consider the general's assertion, if only as an added, ultimate, element in the argument for a more stable Middle East.

Buis' belief, of course, is not sacred. He is director of the French Institute of National Defense Studies, and it was his nation which assisted Israel in the construction of at least one nuclear reactor, but the existence of an Israeli bomb has not been confirmed.

Many experts say the bomb does not exist. The arguments are that there is no record of an Israeli test, that past Israeli leaders (notably David Ben-Gurion) have long insisted their nation would not be the first to introduce such weapons in the Mediterranean, that, actually, U.S. and world Jewry opinion prohibits Israel from having so much gunpowder so near an open flame.

Others, however, firmly believe the bomb exists. Tel Aviv. The Arabs, for instance. Arguments in Egypt are that the Israelis possess the expertise, the technology and, with the exception of uranium, the resources. Arab sources point out that money is no limiting factor; former U.S. Secretary General U-Thant once estimated the production of a small yield atomic bomb at costing $19 million — "That's about one night's intake," says an Arab diplomat, "for the United Jewish Appeal."

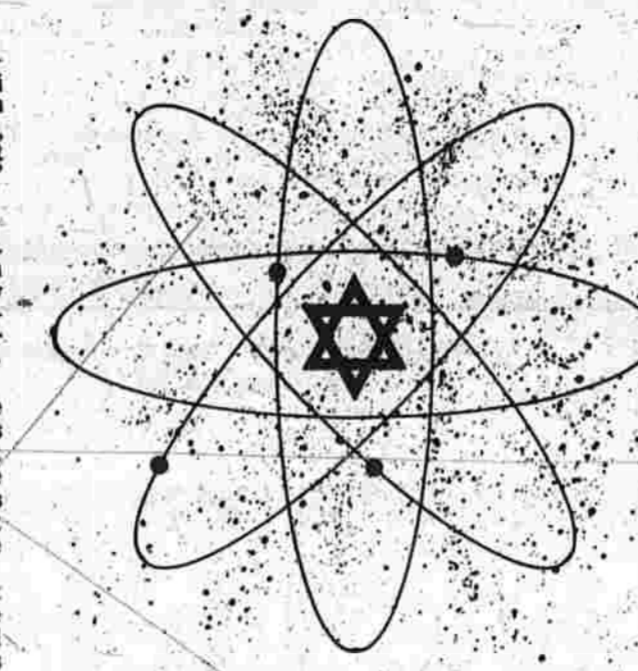

And certainly, adds Cornell professor George Quester, Israel does little to discourage speculation. A retired Israeli general last year wrote an article for the popular press which warned Egypt against new wars lest Arabs receive a nuclear blast on the Aswan Dam. Says Quester, who has closely studied the Israeli bomb possibility: "The question is one of semantics. The whole thing is fraught with ambiguities. Ben-Gurion said he wouldn't be the first to introduce nuclear weapons in the Mediterranean but that was long after the U.S. 6th fleet had already done so. They play a tricky game. And at the very least, if they don't have the bomb now they can quickly put one together."

No doubt, Alan Solomonow of the Committee for New Alternatives in the Middle East says the Israelis now have three working nuclear reactors. One, the largest, is the French-built original at Dimona. And there is possibly one in the Sinai. "Remember the shooting down of the Arab airliner last winter," asks Solomonow. "We think the reason it was done so hastily is that the plane veered too near the Sinai reactor and the Israelis panicked."

The Dimona reactor alone, say nuclear experts in the United States, is capable of producing at least one bomb a year. Conventional wisdom has it that Israel may have an arsenal of about a dozen warheads. Many of its fighter craft could serve as delivery vehicles. If not, the Jericho missile (ramp-launched) is sophisticated enough to put a nuclear charge well into any neighboring territory.

But would Israel do it? Dr. Herbert Scoville, former CIA official, now a member of the Federation of American Scientists, believes it would be most unwise. "It would be terribly stupid of them to use it. They would only be asking for a retaliation. They would be inviting the Russians to give similar weapons to the Arabs. No, it would be stupid. But having said this I should add that the analysts there are not always so wise."

Scoville, as others, believes the bomb would not be used while an alternative existed. But in a crunch, says an Arab observer, "If Israel's defense was threatened, naturally they would shoot whatever they had. I doubt they have built it, for purely scientific purposes. If Israel did use the weapon, experts say, the Aswan would be an obvious priority; busting the dam would flood at least 200 villages and ruin much of Egypt's power supply. Or, the Israelis might select a warning target, such as President Truman was advised to do in

Grandma Hitchhikes To Classes

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Elaine S. Camfield, a 72-year-old grandmother, hitchhikes eight miles to classes every day.

She's convinced she can earn a college degree while thumbing rides with her best "old lady's smile."

"I've got it down to a science," says the communications major at Florida Technological University. The technique has worked for two years already.

Mrs. Camfield, who figures she has "30 years of living yet," each day rides a bus to a Washington member of SANE. It's also the "Egyptian bomb."

Egypt is right now planning a 150-megawatt reactor which could turn out 30 bombs a year. Naturally, the Arabs are not standing still in this escalation. At the very least they have poison gas, which was used in the Yemen conflict, which is at least as horrible and as unthinkable a modern weapon as the bomb itself.

hitchhiking when bus transportation proved inadequate but has learned a lot about people in her two years.

"It gives you a terrific perspective about people," she said. She said she was once refused a ride by a man holding a gun on her while she inquired.

"I had a minister change his mind about picking up hitchhikers," she said of one requirements. "I always get off on special projects which aren't for course credit," she said.

Help from Parent Stressed In Learning Flaw Cases

JUNE B. TOMPKINS
Herald Reporter

"In the past we have heard about the role of the teacher with regard to children with learning disabilities. But now we must turn our attention to the parents and their responsibilities to children who have learning disabilities."

This new light was thrown on the study of learning disabilities by Dr. Barry S. Rusalem at the fall luncheon meeting of the Manchester Memorial Hospital Auxiliary this week at Willie's Steak House.

Dr. Rusalem, staff pediatric neurologist at Newington Children's Hospital in Newington, informed the group that the medical profession is now very much aware of the learning disability problem. Only a few years ago, he said, medical journals might occasionally carry a paragraph on the subject, but nowadays entire articles and studies appear frequently in professional journals.

Dr. Rusalem defined a child with learning disability as one not working up to his potential. The child's potential may be determined from the highest score of a series of tests including vocabulary, arithmetic, reading, and spelling. Dr. Rusalem, a child will have a poor digit span; that is, he lacks the ability to recall something that makes no sense. As an example, he repeated a child with five or six digits and said that asked to repeat the number, a child might be unable to do so.

He said that a child might be retarded, but have great potential for self awareness. The strengths, as well as the weaknesses, could be detected in children in first and second grades, he said. In fact, Dr. Rusalem said he did not like the term "retarded," but prefers to say "slow learner." He suggested that use of the term "retarded" can create a stigma.

If parents are knowledgeable about their children's learning disabilities, they can help them. In other words, Dr. Rusalem said that if a parent suspects there is a learning disability either through observation or notification from the teacher, an appointment with the child's pediatrician or family doctor is recommended.

Another reason for slow learning, or learning disability, might be the "lack of stimulation in the home which can be responsible for the lack of motivation on the part of the child," said Dr. Rusalem. He described an instance where upon investigation, it was discovered there was no story reading in the home, no reading material of any kind around—factors which proved the lack of stimulation.

The reason for a medical diagnosis might be questioned until it is pointed out that a family doctor can not only establish the diagnosis, but rule out primary emotional problems and prescribe necessary medications. The psychologist can identify the child's cognitive abilities and establish the strengths and weaknesses of the child. The educator determines the correct approach to use in instructing the child.

Dr. Rusalem played down overemphasis in forcing a child to do something against his capability, particularly if he is inclined to be clumsy. "If a child is so clumsy he can't write well, why make him?" he said. He explained there are other areas, strengths, which should be recognized and developed. "Learn to work around the area," he said. Once a child with a learning disability is identified, Dr. Rusalem said the child should remain with his peers in school, he said, to be in his crowd going to and from school, to share group experiences, with his friends.

Party Listing Battle Continues In Bristol

BRISTOL (AP) — Democratic Registrar Salvatore Miceuci said Wednesday night he could continue his efforts to have the Mayor and six other candidates names removed from the party voting lists.

Goldfarb said the secretary of state's office ruled that Miceuci and all of the candidates who had been illegally erased by Miceuci will remain on the ballot and the people will have a complete opportunity to vote for Mayor Longo either as a Democrat or an independent.

Speaking Wednesday night before a packed hearing that Miceuci had called on the matter, Goldfarb said Miceuci's notices of the hearing were defective.

Miceuci said he would issue new hearing notices today, but was uncertain whether or not the new hearing would be scheduled before or after the election Nov. 6.

Miceuci said he struck the names because they were either running as independently or supporting independents.

Hartford Acquisition By ITT Unaffected By Nixon Actions

HARTFORD (AP) — A spokesman for International Telephone and Telegraph said Wednesday reports that President Nixon intervened in an effort to block the merger of Hartford Fire Insurance Co. with ITT.

"News reports that the President may have intervened in this case at this late date in no way affects the consent decrees that have been negotiated in good faith between ITT and the Justice Department," Jurick said.

Among the cases involved in the court deliberations was the merger of Hartford Fire Insurance Co. with ITT. He said the settlement was based "on the merits of the cases involved and represented, according to subsequent government testimony, a substantial win for the government in its efforts to curb conglomerate mergers."

Trailer Park Fees Criticized

HARTFORD (AP) — A trailer park resident from Storrs has told a public hearing that the park charged a $700 entrance fee for tenants who didn't purchase their mobile homes from the park owner but waived the fee for those who did.

Paul McGarity said monthly rent in the park also varied depending on whether the owner sold a resident his home. McGarity was one of several mobile home owners who outlined their problems before an ad hoc committee established by the state Department of Aging.

The hearing was one of four by the committee to consider recommendations to improve the plight of mobile home owners.

Most of the speakers were elderly persons who said they suffered a particular hardship because they must live on fixed incomes.

Park owners, meanwhile, complained that most towns prohibit their operations through zoning restrictions. Others try to discourage them by charging large permit fees, they said.

Doris B. Lord a park owner from Killingly, said the state should get into the mobile home park business. She said she might be forced to close her 34-space park because it was too small to be a feasible business operation.

Petroleum Commission Director Feels Efforts Will Be Successful

By GARY LUHR Associated Press Writer HARTFORD (AP) — The new executive director of Connecticut's Petroleum Products Control Commission thinks the commission will win its legal fight to regulate petroleum prices in the state.

Albert E. Lussier Jr., of Middletown, was named this week to the $22,000-a-year job. He is a former vice president of the Waterbury Savings Bank and former district manager for the Bell Telephone System in central Pennsylvania.

The commission, barely four months old, is the subject of four federal suits by major oil companies challenging its constitutionality. A three-judge panel has been appointed to hear the suits jointly but no hearing date has been set.

The companies claim the state has no right to regulate their products because they are part of interstate commerce. But Lussier compared the industry to a public utility that is subject to both state and federal regulation.

He said that if the panel rules against the commission its decision will be appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court.

"If we ultimately lose there will be legislation to comply with the courts," he added. Lussier said the commission sent letters to approximately 100 petroleum distributors asking for a list of their prices as of last May 15. He said he has heard from about half of the companies so far.

The 1973 General Assembly gave the commission the right to approve all price increases above the May 15 level. The four companies that have filed suit—Getty, Exxon, Shell and Mobil—all raised wholesale prices without the commission's approval. Lussier said at the moment there was no pending price increase requests.

One of his first moves as director was to contact the state attorney general's office, which has carried on a running battle with major oil companies for the past two years. In addition to representing the commission in the previously mentioned suit Atty. Gen. Robert K. Kilian's office has filed its own anti-trust action against more than 20 major oil firms.

The Candidates Are Saying...

James Roche

(Roche is Democratic candidate for mayor of Vernon.) In this last week of the political campaign the Republican opposition is attempting to overwhelm the electorate with an increasing reliance upon the illusions of progress and a peculiar alteration of the facts.

"The Republican administration takes credit for a sewer program which is no gift, but rather is costing the abutter twice as much as it does in neighboring South Windsor. Coupled with this is an excessive permit charge that does not give opportunity to residents of the Marine Road, Vernon Center Heights and Cold Spring Drive areas."

"Public buildings, which Mayor Frank J. McCoy credits to himself, are the result of hard and long hours of labor by dedicated men. Rockville Fire Chief Donald Maguda conceived and brought to fruition the Nye Street Firehouse. This was not documented in the 1971 CDAP report issued by former Town Planner John MacMillan."

"As for the elderly-hire complex, this was planned and the money secured by the diligence of Prudence Pitkin, Housing Authority executive director, long before Mayor McCoy ever took office."

"These projects, along with the ill-fated renovation of the Memorial Building and pending lawsuits over the dump, are not creditable as evidence of progress but are readily identified as public relations tricks."

"Furthermore, in his flyer which is being distributed around town, Mayor McCoy goes beyond the appearance and identifies himself as a graduate of Yale Law School. This is a false statement, one that was used in a previous campaign after which he was called to task by his peers. The intent of these misrepresentations can only be interpreted as a last minute try at a deception which will not work."

Betsy Steele

(Mrs. Steele is Republican candidate for election to a six-year term on the Vernon Board of Education.) "During the course of the campaign I have talked with a number of people with interesting ideas and constructive suggestions concerning our educational policies and programs."

"In order to provide these people a real opportunity to reach those who are responsible for school policies, I suggest that School Board members be asked to attend various P.T.O. meetings on a regularly scheduled basis, where they would be available for discussion with concerned and interested parents and teachers."

"As an alternate plan Board members might be assigned to individual schools where they would make themselves available to parents and teachers either by phone or by personal contact during 'office hours' at the school once or twice a week."

"I may not be as well known as some of my fellow candidates, but I'm willing to work twice as hard to catch up. ## Fire Cause Determined

DANBURY (AP) — A fire that resulted in the deaths of three young children last week was probably caused by children playing with matches, Danbury Fire Marshal Fred Tomaino said today.

The three children were found huddled together in a bathroom of their second story apartment Oct. 22 fire officials said. A medical examiner said the cause of death was asphyxiation. Tomaino speculated that the children sought refuge from the blaze by running into the bathroom.

The victims were identified as Joshua Barnes, 3, and her brother and sister, Marion, 3, and James, 1½.

Brigepoor school Supt. Howard Fosenstein said vandals are becoming burlier. They steal phonographs, projectors or cash, he said. Fosenstein blamed the new trend on parents and an attitude by kids of "I do what I damned well please and the heck with anyone else."

Hartford's school manager for buildings and grounds said children always have vandalized. "When I was a kid, they smashed windows for the hell of it," said Frederick A. Connors. "Schools are a particular target because of what they represent—the community, law enforcement, the establishment," Connors said.

As an example, he cited a former synagogue at Connors Yeshiva School, which was purchased and converted into the Mountain Laurel public school. He said the last year the building was still a Jewish school, $60 was spent on glass.

When the public school opened, the windows were broken, he said. "It had to be the fact that it was a public school that made the difference."

Hartford's school building official Frederick Connors said Monday, broken windows are the greatest problem. It has been costing $50,000 to $75,000 a year to replace the glass.

When President Dwight D. Eisenhower suffered a heart attack, he was in the White House. White, who died Wednesday at 87 of complications related to a recent stroke, was the mentor and chief of staff to Eisenhower's chief medical consultant.

His treatment of Eisenhower brought the attention of the White House to the attention of the public. He used this public recognition as a platform from which to speak about preventive heart care and the need for public financing of medical research.

White served as president of the American Medical Association and was a founder and president of the American Heart Association and the International Association of Cardiology.

In the annals of medicine, Dr. Paul Dudley White will be remembered as a man who not only revolutionized the treatment of heart disease, but also educated millions of Americans on ways to prevent heart attacks.

White was born June 6, 1886, in Boston. He was graduated from Harvard Medical School in 1911. He focused on cardiology when many considered that building field too narrow for an entire career.

His research made him one of the first to recognize that moderation in diet and exercise were beneficial for good heart care. He also noted that even after a heart attack, a moderate regimen in exercise and diet could help prevent a short or invalid life.

The soft-spoken doctor also was a family man, a skier, a mountain climber, bicyclist, author and world traveler on medical missions.

Public Schools Biggest Target Of Vandalism

By The Associated Press Schools where children first encounter the "establishment" frequently bear the scars of youth rebellion called vandalism.

"Where you have kids you're going to have vandalism," said one custodian bent with grief. "But the mischievous fun of Halloween has become a year-round multi-million dollar damage spree in Connecticut schools. Sometimes it goes further than that."

Brigepoor school Supt. Howard Fosenstein said vandals are becoming burlier. They steal phonographs, projectors or cash, he said. Fosenstein blamed the new trend on parents and an attitude by kids of "I do what I damned well please and the heck with anyone else."

State Has $15,000 In Reward Offers

HARTFORD (AP) — Police, unable to solve five murders in the past seven months, have turned to the state pocketbook for help to the tune of $15,000 in rewards.

At the request of state attorneys, Gov. Thomas J. Meskill has approved a $3,000 reward, the maximum allowable by law per crime, for each of the five unsolved murders.

Not only is school vandalism up, but private property adjacent to schools has become a target for damage, according to Bernard Kean, assistant claims manager for the Travelers Insurance Co. Hartford branch.

There has been a "noticeable increase" in damage claims from people who live near schools, he said.

Another reward was offered in June in the shooting death and robbery of Edward Donaher, 16, a South Windsor gas station attendant.

Authorities also called for a reward to help find the person or persons who killed Harry T. Miner, a Bolton package store owner who was shot to death in the driveway of his home.

Mrs. Yvette Foster of Willimantic was found stabbed to death in her home June 19. The state is offering a $3,000 reward in the case and her husband offers $7,000.

The fifth reward involves the case of the Rev. Robert L. Lambert, beaten to death in August in Wadsworth State Park, Middletown.

Under state law a reward can be offered only at the request of a state attorney.

The money is paid to the person who gives information leading to the arrest and conviction of the guilty person.

The law protects the identity of the informant by requiring that the check be made out to "John Doe" and given to the trial judge for transfer to the proper recipient.

Another reward was paid by the state in December 1972 for information leading to the arrest of Arthur Hyle, found guilty in the murder of Diane Bowman of Torrington, a spokesman for the governor said Wednesday.

Meskill authorized the latest of this year's five rewards just over a week ago in the death of Concetta Serra, found stabbed in a downtown New Haven parking garage.

Frustrating Year Thus Far

With two-thirds of the current football campaign spent, Coach Larry Olsen's Manchester High gridiron eleven is in the throes of a 2-3-1 ledger. This year, the first-year mentor has mentioned, has been one full of frustration. What has typified this year's performances has been mistakes. Mistakes which either took the Indians out of the game early or turned the tide in favor of the opposition.

Last week against Penney High, for example, typified what has happened to the Silk Towners. They had the Black Knights on the ropes with a quick 12-0 lead before Penney knew what happened. Quarterback Rick Milka had all day to throw at the beginning. When he had time to get set, Milka found his receivers wide open for his aerials. But, this prosperity did not last.

A Manchester fumble set Penney up in business on its nine-yard line. From there, a score came quickly and then the floodgates opened wide for Penney to utilize. Misuses against Penney and against earlier opponents have been the Tribe's Achilles' heel. A 6-2 tie with Conard should have been Manchester's game all the way, but mistakes cost them the victory. Misuses against Bristol Central (5-0 loss) made them look like a championship team.

Turnovers are part of the game, but Manchester has suffered more than its share. In order to salvage a winning season, these errors will have to be cut down to a minimal, or the next one-third of the season may be a replay of the past.

East Has Troubles, Too

First-year Coach John LaFontana and his East Catholic Eagles football team have also run into tough sledding this year. East remains winless, now 0-7, with just three games left on the slate.

Tournament Next Stop

Dick Danielson's Manchester High soccer team completed its first Tuesday with an unblemished 14-0 record. This is the first undefeated season for an Indian soccer team since 1958. In the process of winning 14 games, the Red and White set a new record of scoring 56 goals in one season, breaking the old standard of 55.

Cheney Ends Dismal Year

Completing a dismal season, the Cheney Tech soccer team went down to defeat yesterday, 6-2, to Bolton High. John Avers registered four goals for the winners while Al Hamford scored Cheney's two tallies.

Penguins 1, Canadiens 1

Peter Malovich scored in the second period for Montreal and Lowell Macdonald tied it for Pittsburgh in the third. Canadiens' Coach Scotty Bowman said he was unhappy with the team's performance but was really angry with referee Wally Harris. "This guy is a lousy referee. He's afraid to give a penalty in this building," declared Bowman, speaking of the Montreal Forum. "I'll bet that guy that over the past four or five years, he hasn't called more than four or five penalties a game here."

Celtics Whip Cavaliers After Heinsohn Pep Talk

By The Associated Press
Tommy Heinsohn gave the Boston Celtics a mental whipping and they made the Cleveland Cavaliers pay for it.

After being chewed out by the boss, the Celtics chewed up the Cavaliers 128-110 in the National Basketball Association Wednesday night. "We were sky-high tonight," said Heinsohn, who coached the Celtics to a 10-1 record. "I'm not sure if it was the pep talk or if it was the team's own initiative, but they were in a groove."

"We were sky-high tonight," said Heinsohn, who coached the Celtics to a 10-1 record. "I'm not sure if it was the pep talk or if it was the team's own initiative, but they were in a groove."

Finley on Probation Until Further Notice

NEW YORK (AP) — Owner Charles O. Finley of the Oakland A's has been put on probation for his conduct during the World Series. The Associated Press has learned. The baseball commissioner's office confirmed Wednesday night a report that the Oakland owner had received the notice of the probation at the same time he was hit with a $7,000 fine earlier this week.

The controversial Oakland owner was fined for various misconducts during the recent Series with the New York Mets. The most notorious of his escapades was the Mike Andrews case. "I also determine that you personally shall be placed on probation until further notice and warn you that further conduct not in the best interest of baseball may lead to disciplinary action against you as provided in Article 1 of the major league agreement."

Gordon Fuming At Team's Play

By The Associated Press
The Minnesota North Stars are in a rut and Coach Jack Gordon is getting fed up. "When you're outshot 14-4 in the first period, after a 1-1 tie in the second, and you lose to the Boston Bruins... It shows me something... a lack of desire."

Up-and-Down Grid Season

By Len Auster
It's been an up-and-down campaign for the Manchester High football team. They win one convincingly and the next they lose, convincingly. Now, it's back to the drawing board for Coach Larry Olsen.

Herberts Tops In Canoe Races

Two firsts and a third were registered by the Herbert family of Manchester in canoe competition on the weekend in Brooklyn, N.Y.

Rebound Stretch

Cleveland Cavalier's Dwight Davis (42) goes up among a maze of Boston players and comes down with the rebound in second period action. His performance didn't help as the Boston Celtics went on to a 128-110 win in the NBA game Wednesday night.

Cheney Ends Dismal Year

Completing a dismal season, the Cheney Tech soccer team went down to defeat yesterday, 6-2, to Bolton High. John Avers registered four goals for the winners while Al Hamford scored Cheney's two tallies.

Penguins 1, Canadiens 1

Peter Malovich scored in the second period for Montreal and Lowell Macdonald tied it for Pittsburgh in the third. Canadiens' Coach Scotty Bowman said he was unhappy with the team's performance but was really angry with referee Wally Harris. "This guy is a lousy referee. He's afraid to give a penalty in this building," declared Bowman, speaking of the Montreal Forum. "I'll bet that guy that over the past four or five years, he hasn't called more than four or five penalties a game here."

Coaches' Corner

By John LaFontana
EAST CATHOLIC
In a change of form this week, I won't dwell on how big and nasty our opponent was in our game Saturday. True, we played Enfield High and they were big and nasty as the score indicates.

So, instead of describing how good our opponent's backs, ends, and linemen were, I will try to point out the people on our team that have been playing all season and since we have been losing these people have not been singled out for any plaudits.

Hockey Minimum Salary Questioned

By Earl Yost
Take it for what it's worth. Visiting Manchester Monday night, Bruce London, a goalie with the New England Whalers of the World Hockey Assn., told those in attendance at the Masonic Sports Night that the average major league hockey salary was $45,500.

Between Teams

Quarterback Johnny Unitas, sidelined by San Diego after three games, has been offered on waivers — along with his reported $250,000 annual salary — to the Pittsburgh Steelers, which said they're not interested.

Alphabet War Wages, Causes Resignation

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — Penn State basketball Coach John Bach disclosed today he has resigned from the U.S. Olympic Committee at least until the alphabet war is settled.

Bach referred to the battle between the Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) and the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) for control of amateur athletics in this country.

"I felt that without the NCAA participation in the Olympic program, and the lack of progress I saw at the Olympic Committee meeting that it was time to get out," Bach said.

Each emphasized that he was under no pressure from either Penn State or the NCAA to resign. He said he had been asked earlier by an AAU official to remain on the committee, and at first said yes.

"But I missed the first meeting and at the second meeting we didn't even elect an executive committee, which should have been done at the first meeting," Bach explained.

"I think it's time to get a development program in this country for the Olympic Games. I think the United States has to face the fact that we're just holding our own. Those other countries will come up rapidly. They keep their teams intact and let's face it... it's highly questionable that we can compete."

Bach, the assistant coach of the 1972 U.S. Olympic Basketball squad which lost that controversial decision to the Russians, said that until the NCAA is back in the picture nothing can really be accomplished.

"It's just like if the armed forces supplied all the athletes and weren't included didn't the Olympic committee," he declared. The NCAA supplies most of the athletes and for it not to have anybody on the Olympic committee is ridiculous.

Santo Gets Gehrig Award

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Ron Santo, veteran third baseman of the Chicago Cubs, has been named the winner of the 1973 Lou Gehrig Memorial Award.

Santo, 33, sports editor of the Dayton (Ohio) Journal Herald and chairman of the selection committee, announced Santo's selection for Phi Delta Theta, which sponsors the award.

"The Pittsburgh Pirates have acquired their second baseman in two weeks by sending reserve catcher Mill May to the Houston Astros for left-hander Jerry Reuss."

Reuss said he has watched May catch a few games and added, "He didn't impress me. Maybe he's better than I think but I just have to go on what I've seen."

Reuss had his first year last season with a 15-13 record. In 40 starts, he completed 12 games and had an earned run average of 3.74.

May is 23 and was the Pirates starting catcher in 1973 until mid-June when Manny Sanguillen moved behind the plate from right field. May batted .269 and hit seven home runs while driving in 31.

In Houston, Astros General Manager Spec Richardson says Mill May will be the No. 1 catcher for the Astros next season.

Democrats Rebut Attack By GOP

In a statement released last night, the Democratic candidates said they were "appalled and dismayed at the latest tactics used by the Republican party in this campaign." Democratic candidates know that the residents of Coventry deserve more than a mud-slinging, fact-twisting campaign. In this time of national crisis created by the national Republican leaders, we on the township level should do everything possible to keep politics clean and decent. The Democratic statement was in rebuttal to yesterday's statement of Leo Benjamin and Frank Bisson, Republican campaign coordinators. The Democratic candidates stated that they have "run their campaign based on a four-page platform which outlines the problems facing Coventry and proposes solutions based on facts." They stated "this platform was mailed to every resident in Coventry three weeks ago so that the voters would know the Democratic candidates' position on all of the issues from the very beginning of this campaign." The candidates went on to say "We have met people at meetings and in door-to-door canvassing and we have discussed issues. We have not and

Weiss Names Two Members To Committees

Town Manager Robert Weiss has appointed John M. McLuski of 23A N. Main St. to the Jury Committee and Edward F. Pagan of 43 Gerard St. to the Parking Authority. Both are Democrats. McLuski succeeds the late Joseph Moriarty, also a Democrat, and will fill the term to Dec. 31, 1974. Pagan succeeds Aclé Johnson, a Republican and chairman of the authority until last July, when his five-year term expired. Pagan's term is to July 1978.

Foes Say DevCo Limits Candidates

MONICA SHEA Correspondent The Committee for the preservation of Coventry claims freedom of speech is being denied candidates in the coming election plus to the press and to the voters. The committee issued the following statement through Virginia Diehl, interim chairman of the committee: "It is unbelievable that an issue with the potential of changing the character, lifestyle and very nature of an entire community can be openly or freely discussed by candidates for the Town Council." This new council will not only appoint members of the Planning and Zoning Commission, but may also sit in a legislative capacity to adopt a Planned Unit Development under Section 8-13 (c) of the Connecticut General Statutes according to the public political position ruling handed down by the town authority.

Services for Handicapped Considered

ALICE EVANS Herald Reporter The first step to form a Committee of the Handicapped was taken last week when nearly 40 handicapped persons from the Manchester area gathered at Manchester Community College to discuss their needs and to name a steering committee. Mrs. Dorothy Kenny, who first brought the needs of the handicapped to the attention of the Human Relations Commission, was elected chairman of the steering committee. Other members are Joyce Baker, Pete Sweet, Clint Adams, Joe Blette, Barry VanCamp, Tom Shay and Frank Vacaro. The handicapped also had a look at what they could do for themselves and what could be done for their needs. Edward Freneta, program director for the United Cerebral Palsy Association of Greater Hartford, told of the services it provides for the handicapped of your environment," she said. Mrs. Small promised that the State Occupational Therapy Organization and the Connecticut Coalition of Allied Health Services would stand by and be willing to help. "It is a good time now for people to get into action," Dr. Alice Turek, Manchester's health director, said. She approved a center for the handicapped on a regional basis and suggested that perhaps the workshop or the emotionally handicapped programs could be expanded to include physically handicapped people. Mayor John Thompson spoke of his involvement with handicapped people and the lack of information available for them. He urged the handicapped to organize and then let the government know about their needs. The Human Relations Commission is concerned with any people problem, and the handicapped are people with problems. Francis Keeffe, chairman of the commission, told group. He said it is time "to stop dreaming and get down to the gritty in order to get things accomplished. From birth through high school and for those over 65 there are many services available, in between there is a gray area." One individual person can get some attention, as a group, you can have a clout," he said. Keeffe also said that the Human Relations Commission can act as a catalyst to get things started. "We need names and an idea of the number of people we are involved with, 10, 15, or 400?," he said.

Bottles Bound For Recycling

This bottle collection is the result of a school film on ecology and the efforts of two families. When Charles Hartley, front right, and Raymond Hampton, rear right, saw a film at Illing Junior High School on environmental improvement, they felt motivated to do something about it. With suggestions from Richard Clark, executive vice president of the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce, and the services of a town highway truck, 15 boxes of sorted bottles and broken glass collected from the neighborhood and roadside litter were taken to the recycling station at the town sanitary landfill. Assisting the boys were, from left to right, Mike Hampton, Patty Hampton, Stephen Hartley, Jeff Hartley, and Charles. In rear, left, Donna Hampton. The Hamptons live at 423 E. Middle Tpke., and the Hartleys live at 421 E. Middle Tpke. The youngsters intend to continue their project. (Herald photo by Olfara)

The School Referendum Question

School Improvement Tax Impact Assessed

DOUG BEVINS (Herald Reporter) LAST IN A SERIES Manchester school administrators say there will be "no significant increase" in the town's tax rate if voters approve a Tuesday referendum question appropriating $5.6 million for renovations and additions at Bennett and Illing. Their claim is backed up by town bonding, indebtedness projections made by Town Controller Thomas Moore, whose estimates show that retirement of high school bonds over the next two years would almost offset obligations for bonds that might be issued to pay for the

Jobless Rate Drops To 4.5 Per Cent

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate took a sharp and surprising downward turn last month, falling to 4.5 per cent of the work force, the lowest jobless rate since March 1970, the government said today. The unemployment rate would drop to 4.5 per cent by the end of the year. The unemployment rate had remained stuck at 4.8 per cent since June. The Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said the big decline was posted because employment was extremely strong in October, rising by 370,000 to a total of 67 million on a seasonally adjusted basis. Moore's projections don't take into account probable increases in the town grand list, and nor do they make provision for state-mandated revaluation, due about 1976. To put the projected annual

Full Hearing Slated On 'Missing' Nixon Tapes

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Watergate prosecutor said in court today many questions remain unanswered about White House claims two tape recordings do not exist, but a presidential lawyer said that apparent discrepancies could be easily explained. The prosecutor, Richard Ben Veniste, said he intended to call the least eight present and former Nixon administration officials, including former White House chief of staff H. R. Haldeman, to testify about the White House's claim that two crucial Watergate conversations went unrecorded. Ben Veniste said that two days of testimony by White House witnesses "raised many questions which still have to be answered."

Fuel Shortage Emergency Plan In The Works

WASHINGTON (AP) — Faced with a worsening of the fuel shortage, a key senator and the White House energy adviser have agreed to act "without delay" on an emergency plan. Senate Interior Committee Chairman Henry M. Jackson said he and White House adviser John A. Love agreed on quick action because "the crisis is much greater than all us anticipated a week ago." The two met after a reassessment of the effect of the ban by nine Arab nations on oil shipments to the United States. Recent figures more than doubled previous estimates of the loss in oil imports, Jackson said. "There will be a lot of things that are going to be done in the next few days," the Washington Democrat said. Jackson has introduced legislation to deal with the fuel shortage. However, the administration disagrees with several provisions.

U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica indicated a full-blown hearing was on tap and denied a request by White House lawyer J. Fred Buehner to delay proceedings until Monday. "It is the desire and aim of this court to get all the information," Sirica said. He said he

Senator Notes Two Ways To Gain Status

BURLINGTON, Vt. (AP) — Republican Sen. George Aiken took a look from the Vermont viewpoint Thursday at a statement by former special Secret Service Technician Raymond C. Zarnwalt that he may have been the source of a news leak. Aiken said it reminds him that there are two ways to gain status: Come to Vermont and break a leg or leak a story to the New York Times.

Buckland Proposal To Be Discussed

DOUG BEVINS (Herald Reporter) Zone changes to allow a proposed commercial and industrial-residential center in Buckland are the subject of a public hearing scheduled for Monday night by the Manchester Planning and Zoning Commission (PZC). The hearing is scheduled to start at 7:30 p.m. at Manchester High School's Training Auditorium. The PZC will solicit public comments on four zone changes requested by MAP Associates, which is planning a development on land in both Manchester and South Windsor. MAP Associates is seeking four zone changes in areas of the 263-acre part of the subject land in Manchester. The land is now zoned Rural Residence, and the applicant is seeking changes on certain portions of the property to CUD (Commercial, Community, and Development), Industrial, Business 1, and Business 3 Zones. The development is being planned by Arthur M. Fischer, Inc. of New York City, which is planning a development of a hotel-convention center, a hotel, and a shopping center. The hearing will be held in the Training Auditorium at Manchester High School.

Zone Change Hearing Monday Night

Monday night's public hearing on zone changes at Buckland will be conducted at Manchester High School's Training Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. The hearing will be the only time townpeople can speak about the requested changes. The hearing, to be conducted by the Manchester Planning and Zoning Commission (PZC), was scheduled for the high school in response to indications that a large number of townpeople may want to speak about the zone changes being sought by MAP Associates for a new development at Buckland. MAP Associates intends to make a one-hour presentation, at the start of the hearing, to describe the zone changes and the planned community. The hearing will then be opened to public comments. PZC members say they have indications the hearing will be completed Monday night, but they say a second hearing session could be conducted if public comments run very late. Fischer recently completed development of a 13-million-sq-ft regional shopping center near Washington, D.C., and is now involved in development of a hotel-convention center in northern Baltimore County, Md. The development firm is represented locally by the Manchester law firm of Martine, Keith, and Clandinin. The only other local firm involved in the proposed development is O'Neil & Foss, Inc., of Manchester, consulting engineers.

School Buses Face 'Some Limitations' On Gasoline

There have been "some limitations" placed on Manchester's school bus contractor in attempts to obtain gasoline at the lowest possible price, James P. Kennedy said today, but no school buses have run out of gasoline. Kennedy said the 14-cent-per-gallon tax rebate is not provided for under the present gasoline purchase arrangement. Reporting on the hearing fuel situation, Kennedy said distributors have assured school administrators that there will be an adequate supply of No. 4 and No. 6 fuel oil this year, "barring unforeseen events such as an extremely cold winter."
