Gas Dealers Don't Plan Mass Shutdown: Listro

Despite rumors of mass gasoline station shutdowns, there is no scheduled mass shutdown here, said Peter Listro, president of the Manchester affiliate of the Automotive Service Council of America.

Listro said he and Richard G. Clark, president of the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce, were going to call Arch Booth, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, this afternoon.

Clark said they would try to find out two things. They would ask Booth what the national CofC is doing to avert a national hysteria over the gasoline crisis, and they would encourage the members to do whatever possible to avert any

Hickey's Grove Car Graveyard

White glancing at a large aerial view of Hickey's Grove last night at the Municipal Building, one Advisory Park and Recreation Commission member noted several dark spots on the map.

"Are those buildings?" he asked.

"No," Park Supt. Ernest Tureck said, "those are discarded automobiles."

Tureck has recommended that the town acquire the 16 acres of land off Oakland St. for future park and recreation use.

Hickey's Grove for years was the No. 1 athletic field at the North End.

Globe Hollow Fenced

Swimmers using the facilities at the Globe Hollow Pool next summer will have to show proof of residence to enter.

This was revealed Thursday by Ernest Tureck, Park and Recreation Superintendent.

"The fencing at Globe Hollow has been 95 per cent completed," Tureck told members of the Advisory Park and Recreation Commission.

"When the job is done, we will have only one gate at the main entrance and we will be able to check everyone. Only town residents will be allowed to use the facilities," he said.

Tureck also noted that he has asked for money to repair the bath house roof at Globe Hollow. The latter is Manchester's largest public swimming area.

Attendance Off In Recreation

Alarmed by the drop in attendance figures in Manchester's indoor Recreation Department program, as presented to the Advisory Park and Recreation Commission last night, Fred Ramey, commission member, asked for an answer.

Ramey member said that there was a 33 1/3 decline in attendance over a year ago.

Mel Siebold, rec director, and Carl Silver, program director, supplied the answers.

"Our facilities are being used to capacity although our attendance reports are not bearing this out," Siebold said.

"We are now having greater programs than ever before. It may be the method that we are using to determine the number of participants," he added.

"We have more teams and more participants than ever before," Silver said. "There is not one minute of open time at any of the three buildings."

"We are expanding our programs. The three buildings are the East Side Rec, West Side Rec and Community Y."

Blood Donors Are Sought

The Bloodmobile will visit Manchester Tuesday at the Elk's Club from 12:45 to 5:30 p.m.

Blood is urgently needed this month, said Mrs. Elaine Sweet, director of the Red Cross in Manchester.

"We are begging," she said, "because there was no visit in December and there has not been the opportunity to make advance appointments."

"There are gaping holes in our schedule throughout 'the day,'" she said, "and walk-in donors would have little waiting. The monthly quota is 150 units."

Appointments may be made by calling the Manchester Red Cross office at 643-5111.

East Haven Child Killed

EAST HAVEN (UPI) — A 5-year-old child was killed and her 3-year-old brother in poor condition at Yale-New Haven Hospital after they fell through thin ice on an East Haven pond.

Police said Tina Marie Hackley was pronounced dead at the hospital Thursday after the ice on an East Haven pond, she wandered away from her grandparents and fell through the ice.

Police said the children's grandfather, Leroy Nettleton, 78, was also among the first three to arrive at the hospital for exposure after he tried to rescue the children.

Police said the children's father was working and their mother was shopping at the time.

The rules allow doctors, nurses or medical workers to refuse to participate in any phase of the operation that may involve medical judgment or religious or moral beliefs.

Bridgeport Eyed For Solid Waste Recycling Program

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Department of Environmental Protection official said Bridgeport, Conn. is one of some 20 cities considering the use of waste materials to generate energy.

Arsen Darnay, EPA deputy assistant administrator for the Solid Waste Management Programs, held a Washington news conference today that there is enough energy in solid wastes in large U.S. cities to light every building all year long.

Darnay said wastes could be converted into energy to generate the electricity in large urban areas.

He said the total energy provided by big city waste could accomplish as much as 100 million barrels of oil a year. Darnay also said if glass, metals, rubber and other items are recycled, energy equivalent to 30 million barrels of oil a year can be saved because it takes less energy to manufacture a product using recycled materials than with virgin materials.

Darnay said a plan to use solid wastes for energy is being demonstrated in St. Louis.

After magnetic metals are removed for recycling, waste is burned along with coal in a boiler, he explained.

"Here in the St. Louis demonstration, we have convincing evidence of a large, virtually untapped energy source for the country," he said. "We calculate that our large urban areas — where solid waste can be profitably used as fuel — generate about 90 million tons of residential and commercial solid waste each year. About 70 to 80 per cent of the waste can be burned."

Darnay suggested another way to save fuel is for towns now collecting solid waste twice a week to collect once a week.

He said the action would result in a 29 per cent fuel saving.

Mrs. Erva M. Willett, 60, and her daughter Michele, the second youngest of seven children in the Willett family and a student at St. Francis Hospital School of Nursing, took the top money.

State to Aid Cancer Center

HARTFORD (UPI) — Gov. Thomas J. Meskill has announced the state is joining Yale University's drive to set up a Comprehensive Cancer Center under the National Cancer Act of 1971.

Meskill said Thursday he would ask the legislature to appropriate $12 million for the center under the 1974-75 capital building program. Yale will put up a matching sum, he said.

It will cost an estimated $8 million to build the Cancer Center, Meskill said. It will ultimately get more than $8 million annually in operating funds from federal and state privatisations, Meskill said.

The center will link up with Connecticut Tumor Registry, which records information on all malignant tumors found in Connecticut patients, the governor said.

Oil Spill Contained

NORWICH (UPI) — Police say some 50,000 gallons of oil has spilled through a broken storage tank valve and some seeped into the Thames River.

Norwich police said they suspected vandals tampered with the valve at the Dahl Oil Co. yard on the north end of the city Thursday.

A company employee noticed the spill at 2 a.m. but it took workers well into the afternoon to plug the broken valve.

In the meantime, they dug up the ground near the storage tank to collect the oil. A pump was used to transfer the oil from the hole to other storage tanks.

Company workers also put booms around the oil slick in the river to prevent it from flowing downstream.

The Coast Guard patrolled the area to determine how much oil got into the river. No estimate was given of the value of the spilled oil.

Less Spending

NEW HAVEN (UPI) — The Connecticut State taxpayers Association said today it is putting together a package of proposed tax cuts including the abolition of the state capital gains tax and reduction of sales tax by at least 1 per cent.

Grover Rees, executive director of the statewide taxpayer's group, called on Gov. Thomas J. Meskill and the legislature to consider revising the governor's proposed budget through "more and bigger tax cuts, and lower spending levels."

Rees said he was "horrified" at the prospect that the legislature might modify the governor's budget by increasing aid for local education, welfare payments and state employee salaries.

"There is already behind-the-scenes maneuvering to divert more taxpayer dollars to areas where the governor has tried to

Gas Retailers Await Word From Simon

United Press International
Fewer closings and more openings spotted Connecticut's gasoline station picture today and more gas was granted for parched motorists.

Dealers in Greenwich, who led the shutdowns last Tuesday in defiance of the federal ban on preferential treatment at the pumps, have ended their boycott. The retailers opened their stations today and decided to wait the word from Washington clarifying the ban that carries fines up to $5,000.

Meanwhile, Midland stations, which had joined Greenwich in the boycott, remained closed today.

There was an attempted shutdown Friday in Bloomfield, Windsor and Windsor Locks when dealers refused to do business. The majority resumed operation after pleading to wait for the news from Washington.

The Connecticut Gasoline Retailers Association said early this week spread to Windsor, Bloomfield and Windsor Locks Thursday, with stations expected to follow suit today.

The American Automobile Association in Hartford said individual stations "throughout the state" shut down their pumps in protest over the federal ban on favoritism at the pumps.

An association spokesman said the shutdown did not appear to be organized. Peter Parley, the spokesman said, the AAA was trying to determine if the shutdown was a new coal wage package before the polling date.

The pay board disclosed Friday both union and government officials had overestimated the pay of coal workers by including vacation money in wages. The pay panel said vacation funds were excluded from the salaries of other workers.

Coal union leaders said the disclosure might lead to a "peace with honor" wage settlement giving the miners $11.50-a-week in addition to a $3.75 weekly wage hike previously offered by the government.

Government officials, however, refused to comment on the ramifications of the mistake. "Obviously, I cannot anticipate the findings of the commission," Heath said.

WHA Team Relocates In Hartford

BOSTON (UPI) — The New England Whalers announced today they will move from Boston next month, playing their playoffs this season and the beginning of next season in Springfield, before moving permanently to Hartford in early 1975.

Whalers President Howard Baldwin said, "I deeply regret having to make the decision to leave the greater Boston area as it was our intention to succeed in this city. However, quite candidly, the stockholders of the Whalers have lost considerable sums of money over the past two years in order to make the Whalers a success in Boston."

Baldwin said that contrary to widespread reports 1,000 Robert Schmetz will remain a principal stockholder and that each stockholder has given up a pro-rata share of stock to a group of Hartford businesses.

"We feel that with our present group of stockholders, combined with this new group, the ownership of the Whalers will be second to none in sports," said Baldwin.

The Whalers' president said the playoffs this season would be held at the 5,900-seat Springfield Coliseum and the club will shift to the newly completed Hartford Civic Center, which will seat 11,000 people, sometime next season.

Kidnaped Editor Freed

ATLANTA (UPI) — A 33-year-old subcontractor and his wife were arrested today in the kidnaping of Atlanta Constitution Editor Reg Murphy, ransom money for $700,000 after 50 hours in the hands of a right-wing revolutionary group. The suspects were identified by the FBI as William and Betty Williams. They were taken into custody at their home in suburban Lilburn about 2 a.m., five hours after Murphy was set free.

Agents said the suspects would be taken before a U.S. magistrate later in the day and charged with violation of the Hobbs (conspiracy) Act and the federal kidnaping statute.

Mike Dabney, a neighbor of the Williams couple in Lilburn, said about one half hour after the arrest the FBI took some suitcases from the Williams home.

The $700,000 ransom money, on instructions from the kidnapers, had been packed in two suitcases.

There was speculation the money would be produced as evidence at the arraignment.

"Murphy, awakened with news of the arrests after just two and a half hours sleep, he was 'delighted they were caught.'"

"I think it is interesting in this case that they let me go and within five hours they had me caught. They had been in jail in it and there was no profit in it for them."

"And I think it is important that there is no profit for the average guy going out and trying to do this sort of thing. First of all, he doesn't have the technical skill to know how to do it. Second, it is an extremely dangerous thing if he is trying to make a political point."

"I thought at first they were going to kill me," Murphy said. "One of them said they'd kill me, either chloroform me and leave me to die in the trunk of the car or shoot me."

Instead, the kidnapers, using the code word "Susan," for Murphy's youngest daughter, negotiated for his release by calling telephone numbers at random with messages for relay to Constitution executives. The replies were given over television and radio.

Jim Mintier, the Constitution's managing editor, driving a jeep in shirt-sleeves in 40-degree weather, on instructions from the kidnapers, dropped the ransom money in two suitcases at a highway sign on a dead-end road about 30 miles north of Atlanta. Two hours later, Murphy was freed in the parking lot of a motel in north Atlanta.

"Thank God. It was the most trying thing a man can go through," said Murphy. He said his abductors, who claimed they kidnaped him in a campaign against the "leftist, liberal" news media, should understand that "they didn't win any great victory," although "they frightened my family very badly, they frightened me very badly."

"I think people who do things like this are going to have to learn some other tactics, because this is not going to win them the kind of friends they think they're going to win," he said.

Storm Hits Midwest Hard

A wild snow storm with winds gusting to 60 miles per hour swept through Chicago Friday, shattering windows in Loop skyscrapers, showering debris on pedestrians and killing one person.

A woman was killed in the LaSalle Street financial district when she was struck by a 300-pound steel frame apparently ripped off the 15th floor of a building under construction. An elderly man also died from an apparent heart attack while shoveling snow. Five other persons were injured in accidents caused by strong winds.

The storm raged at blizzard intensity and halted air traffic at O'Hare International Airport, brought expressway traffic to a standstill, closed schools and left an estimated 180,000 homes without power.

Commonwealth Edison Co. kept crews busy Friday night restoring power to 50,000 customers in northern Illinois still suffering the effects of the storm. However, the company said most of the service was restored by midnight.

Gusting winds knocked pedestrians off their feet, and workers in Lake Michigan, the winds tore an empty, 290-foot tanker barge from its towing rig. The barge drifted about 10 miles in 25-foot waves before a two-man rescue crew flew in by helicopter and secured the vessel by dragging anchor.

Other parts of the Midwest also received similar windy blasts. Heavy, wet snow fell from the Missouri River Valley to the lower Great Lakes. Parts of Michigan and Wisconsin received more than a foot of snow.

Ten to 14 inches of snow bogged western Michigan and inches fell in south and eastern Wisconsin. Parts of northern Illinois and Iowa got up to eight inches.

Ed Kraft, who operates the Juniper Nursery near the Mesquite home, was told by workers from the Connecticut Light and Power Co. that power would hopefully be resumed by 11 a.m.

In Manchester, there was minor flooding in various sections of town when catch basins became clogged, according to
