Two-Family Home Variance Request Sparks Debate

By DOUG BEVINS

A zoning variance application which appeared fairly routine caused a great deal of concern for nearly everyone at Monday night's meeting of the Manchester Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA).

The ZBA was considering a variance which would allow two families to inhabit a Residence A Zone structure at 719 W. Middle Tpke. The problem was that it appeared the house was never meant to be a two-family dwelling, and couldn't be used for that purpose even if the ZBA granted a variance.

The property owners, John and Margaret Howland, were petitioning the ZBA for permission to continue using the house as a two-family dwelling. Howland said the house was converted from single-family to two-family in 1969, and he bought the property 18 months ago, unaware that two-family houses were prohibited in Residence A Zones.

Complicating the issue was a report from the town building department maintaining that the basement apartment in the house didn't meet state and local building code requirements. The building inspector reported that ceilings in the lower apartment were only seven feet high; the building codes require 7½-foot ceilings.

Appealing to the ZBA for a variance, Howland maintained that the two-family conversion was done before he bought the house, and the conversion work was approved by the issuance of a building permit. Furthermore, Howland said he's been paying taxes for a two-family house.

ZBA members agreed that a building permit never should have been issued for two-family conversion. Hearing Town Planner J. Eric Potter's opinion that the ZBA cannot alter building code regulations, board members asked why they were considering a variance in the first place.

The question remained unanswered, and ZBA members decided to table the matter until they could get more information from the building department and legal advice from the town counsel.

Adding to the confusion at Monday night's hearing on the Howlands' request was the appearance of several neighbors who objected to the two-family use.

Neighbors opposing the application included Carol Nowatenski of 716 W. Middle Tpke., Robert Roy of 726 W.

Middle Tpke., Herbert Bradley of 713 W. Middle Tpke., and Adam Fotta of 720 W. Middle Tpke.

They complained about the number of tenants in the house and the condition of the property.

The Howlands' application will come before the ZBA again next month.

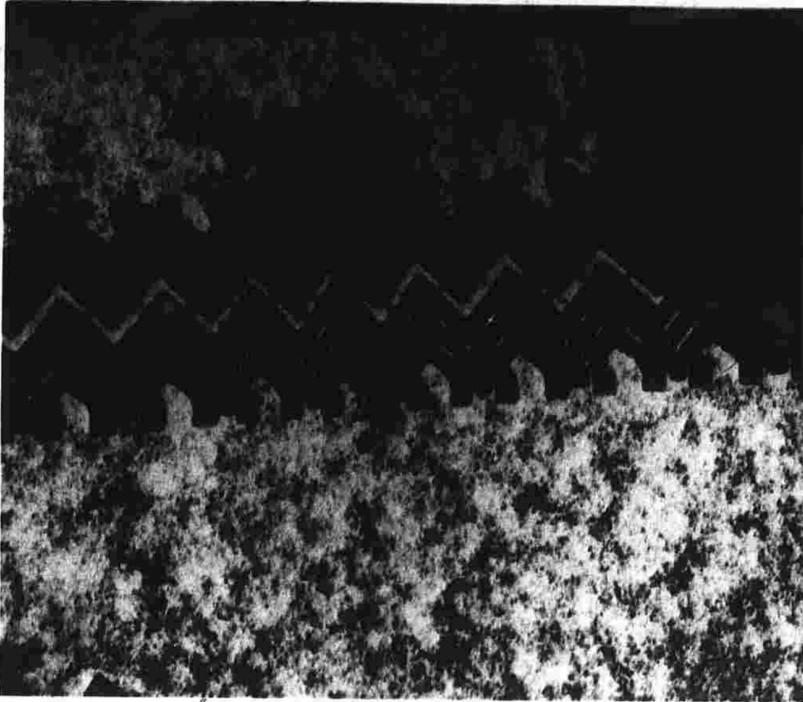

In other business Monday night, the ZBA unanimously granted three other applications after public hearings.

The three successful applications were a one-year variance to allow bus parking on Rural Residence Zone land owned by George Negro at 775 Vernon St., a variance to allow a new free-standing sign at Carter Chevrolet Co.'s used car lot at 1229 Main St., and a special exception and variances for a general repairer's license for Anthony Marinelli, operator of the Getty service station at 886 Hartford Rd.

The one-year variance granted to Negro allows him to continue to park 18 buses off Vernon St. A similar variance was granted last year.

ZBA members could find nothing in town zoning regulations prohibiting a new free-standing sign at Carter Chevrolet, but granted the variance because Atty. John LaBelle, representing the automobile dealership, said he'd had trouble getting a building permit for the sign.

The Marinelli application granted by the ZBA allows the applicant to build a 50-by-60-foot repair garage on land abutting his service station. In granting the application, ZBA members attached conditions that: Rental vehicles be banned, junk cars be banned, junk cars be removed from the service station site, the side yard be landscaped, and that the rear yard be screened from public view.

The Last Track of Winter?

Tomorrow is the first day of spring according to the calendar. This morning, Old Man Winter gave Manchester what is hoped will be a parting shot — a light skiff of snow. Whether this is the last of winter remains to be seen. The only thing to be sure of is that whatever tricks left in Old Man Winter's bag is that they will be hopefully brief in duration. (Herald photo by Pito)

Machine Works Strike Continues

By DOUG BEVINS

Morale seemed high on the picket line today at Manchester's Carlyle-Johnson Machine Co., where 48 production employees went out on strike Monday morning.

The employees, members of the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machinery Workers (IUE), AFL-CIO, were taking turns manning the lines in freezing temperatures and light snowfall this morning.

The employees went out on strike at 6 a.m. Monday after negotiations for a new contract broke down. The union's contract with the company, which manufactures a variety of clutches for machinery, expired at midnight Saturday.

The dozen workers walking lines outside the company's 52 Main St. plant this morning said nothing new has developed since the strike started.

Spirit seemed high despite the bad weather today. The strikers talked to passersby and were waving to passing vehicles.

The pickets said truckers making deliveries to the company have observed the picket lines, and nothing is going in or coming out of the plant.

The employees weren't sure how long the strike may last, but most of them thought the walkout would last only a week or two.

Meanwhile — inside the three-story factory — only supervisory employees and office help reported for work today, according to Albert R. Hutchings, vice president of the 70-year-old firm.

Hutchings said he's just trying to carry on with the office work, and he hasn't received any message from the union.

The union's field representative, James Ingalls, has set up a strike office at Piano's Motor Inn, 100 E. Center St., employees said. Ingalls wasn't available for comment today.

Consumers Face Higher Prices

By KENNETH J. BRADDICK

Americans should have no trouble getting gasoline for summer vacations, but the end of the oil embargo by most major Arab nations is seen by much of U.S. industry as only a short-term answer to the nation's energy shortage.

The federal government and the American Petroleum Institute representing the oil companies reckon it will be two or three months before the lifting of the five-month-old ban is translated into full tanks for U.S. autos.

And then, said a spokesman for Gulf Oil in Houston, it will mean higher prices.

The embargo that heightened energy problems in the United States curtailing travel and forcing lower thermostats throughout winter was ended Monday by most of the 10 nations of the Organization of Arab Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC).

Abu Dhabi, Bahrain, Egypt, Kuwait, Qatar and Saudi Arabia ended the boycott unconditionally. Algeria said it would go along at least until June 1. Libya and Syria refused to lift the embargo at all. Iraq never observed it.

Saudi Arabia, the world's largest petroleum-exporting nation, even went so far as to promise the U.S. "all the oil it needs."

The action brought sighs of relief from the hard-hit auto industry and other sections of the economy, but caution quickly settled in as shown by stock prices that briefly rallied on the New York Stock Exchange then dropped to close lower.

"The degree to which Arab oil will help alleviate this country's short term supply situation will depend on whether Arab production is restored to pre-embargo levels," a spokesman for the oil industry's American Petroleum Institute.

"Once this oil becomes available, it will probably take from 60 to 90 days for these supplies to make an appreciable impact on consumers in the United States."

Shell Oil Co. said lifting of the embargo "is good news, but it is no sign the nation can revert to historical energy consumption patterns and uses."

A spokesman for Exxon Corp., the nation's largest oil company, said the U.S. "will remain substantially dependent on imported oil to meet its growing energy requirements for a number of years. Efficient use and conservation of all forms of energy will continue to be important..."

Detroit welcomed it as a much-needed tonic for the sagging auto industry which has nearly 1.75 million unsold cars on its hands. The United Auto Workers estimates at least 100,000 workers have been cut from auto company payrolls because of the sales slump.

Roger Dreyer, executive vice president of the Ohio Petroleum Marketers Association, said the lifting of the embargo will not lower prices and "if anything ... prices may go higher."

Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton told a Texas Cattle Raisers Association meeting in Dallas that the energy crisis is not an isolated phenomenon but "symptomatic of underlying factors in our economy."

"We have to begin to think in terms of coal again, especially the conversion of coal to oil and gas," Morton said. "I am very much concerned that we are thinking just in terms of gasoline and the middle distillates."

Energy Officials Urge Continued Conservation

HARTFORD (UPI) — High fuel prices and the need to conserve energy will remain in Connecticut despite the lifting of the Arab oil embargo against the United States.

Arab oil ministers in Vienna Monday announced the embargo was over. It will mean an easing of the gasoline shortage in Connecticut, but not an end to high prices or the need for voluntary conservation, state energy officials said Monday.

"We should be okay as long as everybody behaves," Deputy Energy Administrator Kenneth A. Wood Jr. said. "This means keeping speed at 50 and no unnecessary side trips." Energy administrator Echarde C. Beck said prices would not decline merely because the boycott is ended.

The reason, Beck said, is Connecticut's dependence on expensive foreign oil. Other parts of the nation use cheaper domestic fuel.

"Unless the federal energy office takes prompt steps to equalize the prices of gasoline and other petroleum products, Connecticut consumers will be unfairly forced to bear disproportionate costs for these products," Beck said.

The energy chief said Gov. Thomas J. Meskill's petition to the federal government for a national equalization of gasoline and residual oil prices should be answered within a week.

Additional supplies freed with the lifting of the embargo are expected to reach Connecticut within six weeks, Wood said.

Committee Kills Phosphate Ban

HARTFORD (UPI) — The legislature's environment committee has killed a ban on household detergents with phosphates that was to take effect July 1.

In place of the ban, opposed by detergent company lobbyists, the committee voted Monday to follow department of environmental protection recommendations for increased spending on improved sewage treatment.

The department said improved sewage treatment is a better way of controlling pollution than a phosphate ban because household detergents account for only a small portion of pollution statewide.

In a separate vote, the committee approved legislation banning the use of pull-top beverage cans.

The ban would take effect July 1, 1975, when the industry is expected to have cans that create no litter problem.

In other legislative action: Rep. Rasario Vella, R-Enfield, renewed his call for a two-year ban on lobbying by former legislators and executive branch employees.

Vella sponsored similar legislation last year but the measure was defeated in the senate after winning approval in the house.

The proposal would make former lawmakers and executive employees wait for two years before they can return to the general assembly to lobby for special interests. State police plan to testify today that they will not mount opposition to the proposed legislation of some hitchhiking on Connecticut highways.

Lt. Norman Tasker said, however the state police will testify that hitchhiking is dangerous nevertheless.

Nixon On Air Tonight

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Intensifying the "take-it-to-the-people" campaign he hopes will blunt a congressional impeachment inquiry, President Nixon flies to Texas today for a nationally televised question-and-answer session.

It will be his third public appearance outside Washington in five days, a dramatic departure from his recent low profile.

Nixon departs Andrews Air Force Base, Md., for Houston at 2:15 p.m. EDT.

At 8 p.m. EDT he will field questions from broadcast executives at the annual convention of the National Association of Broadcasters.

The President will stay overnight in Houston. During the trip he will visit the Lyndon Johnson Space Center, decorate the three American astronauts who hold the endurance record for space travel, and inspect preparations for the joint Soviet-U.S. Earth orbit project.

Honest Men Handicapped

We're a long ways from the scene, of course, but we totally fail to understand the action of the officials in the Hearst food give-away program, who after the hijack of a truck loaded with $34,000 of food, said that there would be no police report on the incident.

It was later explained that the coalition of activist groups chosen by the so-called Symbionese Liberation Army to direct the "People in Need" program had advised them saying that they felt police action might antagonize the kidnappers.

Now, mind you, the food which was stolen had been extorted by the SLA to feed poor people, they said. Hence whoever hijacked the truck was stealing from the poor people and indirectly from the SLA.

The director of the program is A. Ludlow Kramer, on leave from the State of Washington because of his experience in food distribution. How can Mr. Kramer, presumably an honest man, swallow this type of deed and advice.

In the ordinary and logical course of events, it would be presumed that

SLA would be enraged at the hijacker who muscled in on their pseudophilanthropic crime.

But, no, going to the police with it might irritate the SLA, according to the very unusual board of advisors.

We have the visceral feeling that the hijacking. It would be mighty hard to sit by and watch all that money being given out without wanting some of it to stick to their fingers.

The impression is inescapable that there is a complete breakdown in law and order when a theft of that magnitude can be committed and no police report made.

We understand everyone doing their utmost to try to assure the safe return of Patricia Hearst to her family, of course.

But the SLA silence, since the Hearst Corporation offered to meet the ransom requirements upon the safe return of Miss Hearst, is, unfortunately not surprising.

Honest men dealing with criminals of the SLA type are at a great disadvantage.

A Regressive Proposal

President Nixon has proposed a new federal law giving both candidates for office and public officials the right to reply to slanderous or libelous attacks by newspapers.

Right to reply is interpreted as meaning that a rebuttal of equal length and prominence would have to be printed by the newspaper, upon request. While newspapers have been singled out in his statement, it is a certainty that television and radio would also be included in any such law.

Two states, Florida and Mississippi, have such statutes and Sen. John McClelland of Arkansas, has been urging such a law for his state.

The Florida law, now 61 years old, has been challenged by newspapers of the state on grounds of constitutionality as an abridgement of the First Amendment.

Newspapers and other media will consider such a law as regressive, unconstitutional and designed more to be a deterrent to publication of charges than a sincere wish to gain an "equal" public forum.

Reputable newspapers have long offered candidates and public officials the opportunity to reply to criticism, both out of a wish to completely inform, and as a matter of justice.

And as a matter of practicality the great majority of candidates and public officials, too, do not wish to engage in running debates of charges against them. Their attitude, usually, is to hope that the less said, the better.

The courts have been gradually removing the umbrella of libel threats from political candidates and office holders.

In the New York Times vs. Sullivan and other buttressing opinions, the courts have held that only malice justifies a libel verdict against publication.

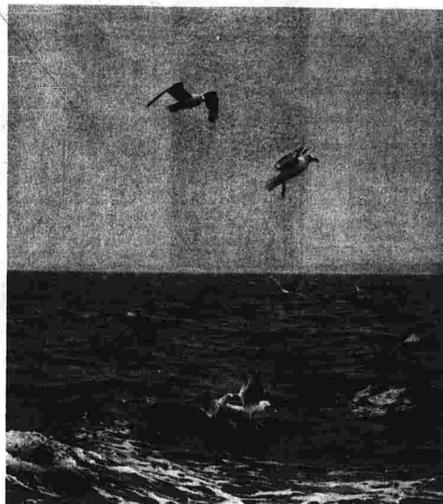

It has been the courts opinion that the right to publish stories about public officials was so basic that newspapers should not operate under the threat of carping libel suits any time that a public official or candidate, or public figure, was charged.

Election to public office has long meant renunciation of many of the rights of privacy held by a private citizen. And even attainment of "public stature" has been equally operative as in the case of General Walker vs. The New York Times.

There is a bit of irony in that the legislative branch is being asked to pass a restrictive law against the press, while the judicial arm of government has been strengthening the right to publication without fear of retribution by suit.

Congressmen are granted a special immunity in the Constitution. Article I, Section 6 reads in part: "They shall in all cases except treason, felony and breach of the peace, be privileged from arrest during their attendance at the session of their respective Houses and in going to and returning from the same. And for any speech or debate in either house they shall not be questioned in any other place."

The founding fathers thought that enough protection for congressmen. They did not feel they should be immune from other criticism or charges. The so-called "Right to Reply" theory is designed as a deterrent. If passed, it would operate to impede the flow of information to the public. As such it should not become law.

A New Latin Leader

CARACAS—A new president has taken office in Venezuela in a strikingly peaceful succession of power. But it is clear from everything he says that he intends to use his prestige and Venezuela's importance as an oil producer to take a leadership role in the larger area of Latin America.

When last saw Carlos Andres Perez it was as a candidate at his home, during his election campaign. The image he had been projecting around the nation came through—crisp, energetic, with a no-nonsense, down-to-earth sense of command. It saw him surprisingly through the election. I had expected him to squeeze through a victory, but not by the wide margin of a half-million votes by which he won.

President Perez brings a party elite into power with him, both in his cabinet and in the appointed district governors who—strange to U.S. eyes—are lawyers, doctors, engineers, city slums.

President Perez brings a party elite into power with him, both in his cabinet and in the appointed district governors who—strange to U.S. eyes—are lawyers, doctors, engineers, city slums.

The people inside the senate, where the inaugural was held, and the throng outside agreed. President Perez was all but mobbed when he walked to the podium after his speech, with a delightful crowd surging around him. A triumphant Latin politician doesn't just shake hands. His orator is the Latin abrazo. I have never seen so much flesh-pressing at a political event as I saw at the swearing in of the cabinet at the presidential palace, not even in the days of Lyndon Johnson, who was Washington's greatest practitioner of the flesh-pressing arts.

President Perez, to the mild surprise even of his strongest supporters, has become something of a charismatic figure. He has something that few heads of government seem to have today: He has a personal authority, as well as the power of office. As I watched Mrs. Nixon, who headed the American delegation here with grace and charm, I thought inevitably of how her husband had lost his authority.

Perez will need it. He will need everything, including the big new oil revenues that have been flowing into the government's coffers with the steep oil price increases. This year's government oil revenues are estimated at double last year's. If they get poured back into the economy too fast and too much, they become a vast inflation threat. Despite the inaugural celebration, the seamer problems showed through. Those that weighed most on the minds of ordinary people here are inflation, employment, wages, crime and the safety of the streets. There are others—the reversion of the oil concessions, the need to diversify industry, development problems, trade barriers, agrarian credit and reform, city slums.

For over eight years a pair of plastic eagles have adorned the signs that announce the coming of the Manchester Antiques Show which is held each year at the Second Congregational Church in the middle of March.

These eagles have helped provide scholarships for deserving youth as well as help finance other church projects. But alas, the eagles have flown the coop (or sign as it may be). Sentimentality, and the fact that they took two flood light bulbs with them, leads me to solicit the help of all bird lovers. The eagles are of the antique gold variety with about an 18-inch wing span. They are easily identified by the various screw holes through their wings and bodies. If they have it (or alighted) in some child's room (they love kids) or family room or anywhere else that they can be seen, please shoot them back to church. It would go a long way toward restoring my faith in eagles and maybe people too.

The Amnesty Issue

WASHINGTON—Because Americans are basically a forgiving people, there undoubtedly will be some kind of amnesty for draft dodgers tied to some form of national service for at least two years. Deserter from military service in wartime will, or should, be treated more harshly.

But there are problems, as recent hearings before a House Judiciary subcommittee revealed. They range from constitutional questions to the danger of adding still another divisive force to the Republic's growing collection—the 1.8 million men who served during the Vietnam War.

There are nine amnesty bills pending in the House and not one of them deals with the current enforcement of the Selective Service Act. That act still requires 18-year-olds to register for possible service, even though the draft has ended. The youth who takes note that the government awarded amnesty to those who broke the law in wartime would be sorely tempted to forget to register in a peacetime, knowing that he could cry discrimination if prosecuted.

There is also the rather important question of semantics, which is closely scrutinized by the courts. Leon Ulman, deputy assistant Attorney General, emphasized this before the subcommittee when he said "It seems to me what you are doing is granting a pardon. You are putting the individual in the position of never having committed an offense." President Nixon is not about to buy that kind of a bill, although he has said he would consider one that required national service by those granted amnesty.

Rep. Paul McCloskey, R-Calif., has written a bill that would release individual serving draft-evaders sentences if they accepted national service jobs. This wouldn't work without the cooperation of both the President and the courts. The bill is both a usurpation of the President's pardoning power and an interference with the courts' power to sentence and grant probation.

I'm afraid the amnesty lobbyists have bought the peacekeepers' argument that draft dodgers and deserters should be forgiven in order to vindicate their position that they were right and the U.S. government was wrong. The issue is not who was right and who was wrong, however; it is whether the law may be violated with impunity. I think I'm right in hating the income tax, but I don't believe Uncle Sam would understand if I refused to get it up every April 15.

Lobbyists for amnesty on Capitol Hill take the position that Congress has the authority to legislate forgiveness. That is not quite the case. Congress has never taken upon itself to grant amnesty to those who broke the law in wartime would be sorely tempted to forget to register in a peacetime, knowing that he could cry discrimination if prosecuted.

On the other hand, the courts have specifically held that Congress has no power to interfere with the President's duty to grant pardons or amnesty—or to refuse to do so. To me, this seems to say that any law passed by Congress today by churches, just keeping their doors open; rather than doing what they are called to do.

Today's Thought

When I was a child, boys and men's haircuts were just 25 cents. In those same days, 50 cents was considered a big weekly offering to our local church. Now a haircut costs $2.25.

How many folk are close to giving $6.50 weekly to their church? With few exceptions, too much effort is being spent by churches, just keeping their doors open; rather than doing what they are called to do.

Allow your church to get on with the business of being a church. Rethink how you support it, and then write a check and mail it tonight.

Vernon Council Vote Blocks Benoit Complaint

BARBARA RICHMOND
A motion to put an item on the agenda of Monday night's meeting of the Vernon Town Council was defeated in a 6-5 vote, thus preventing Councilman Thomas Benoit from presenting information on an appointment made at the March 4 meeting of the council.

On the agenda was an item, "Reopening of appointment of Peter Dureiko as deputy building inspector." Benoit, a Democrat and a minority member of the 12-man council, had requested that the item be included.

Benoit said it was not his intent to have Dureiko's appointment reconsidered but rather that he wanted to discuss the matter in the way the appointment was made.

The recommendation to appoint Mayor Frank McCoy, the mayor was unable to be present at the March meeting, said Benoit. The appointment was approved by the Republican majority and opposed by the four Democrats.

Republican Councilman Donald Eden who was also out of town at the time of the March meeting, said, "I think if the appointment was approved then there is no reason to beat it to death."

Benoit said he brought something up at the March 4 meeting and it was denied. He said he researched the matter and had proof that he was right.

The mayor said, "If that's the case we would have to vote to reconsider."

Benoit replied, "You've got the votes Frank, there's nothing we can do."

Councilman Benoit explained there was no way he could prove he was correct in his statement, made at the March 4

Vernon Durieko Application Was Marked 'Late'

BARBARA RICHMOND
Copies of the application for the post of deputy building inspector for Vernon, marked with a note "Late, application closed," and signed by former Director of Administration Richard Borden were disclosed at a press conference this morning by Councilman Thomas Benoit.

Benoit commented, "At last night's Town Council meeting, Mayor McCoy saw fit to block any reopening of the Dureiko affair."

He added, "In two parliamentary maneuvers, the mayor with his Republican majority, blatantly stopped any possible discussion of this matter."

"What is ironic about the whole affair is that the majority, in their blind devotion, are apparently not aware that they have been used to carry out an outright political appointment to a highly sensitive position," Benoit said.

At the conference Benoit outlined the facts concerning the appointment. He emphasized that his objections are not to the person being appointed but the manner in which he was appointed.

He questioned how the application, marked late, could possibly be considered by the mayor and his sub-committee. The advertisement for job applications said it was open to any qualified applicant up to June 29, 1973. Dureiko's application was stamped received on July 10, 1973.

Benoit said the fact that Borden had marked the applica-

Nurses Complete Allergies Course
Three Manchester school nurses have completed a course in the treatment of asthma and allergic emergencies.

Dorothy Coleman, Margaret Dwyer and Lynne Gustafson attended the course which was sponsored by the Hartford County Christmas Seal/Lung Association, March 14 at the UConn Health Center in Farmington to update nurses on recognition and emergency treatment of allergic reactions.

Two Hartford allergists, Drs. Jay Selow and Louis Mendelson, instructed the 100 Hartford area nurses who attended the course in emergency treatment of allergic reactions which threaten a patient's life. These reactions, the physicians explained, can occur within seconds of being stung by a bee or taking certain drugs.

There are an estimated 30 million allergy sufferers in this country, they said.

Coventry Terms Adjusted For PZC Members

The Town Council at its meeting last night appointed members of the Planning and Zoning Commission to new terms to begin their terms into compliance with state statutes.

Steve Loyzim and Joseph Shanahan were appointed for two-year terms with their terms to expire Nov. 2, 1976. Paul Goodall and Roger Barrett to three-year terms to expire Nov. 4, 1977. Sonda Stave to serve a four-year term to expire Nov. 8, 1978.

The council approved the application by the Board of Education for a state grant to pay half the cost of an eight-lane rock dust soccer-track field with curving. Total cost to be not more than $76,327. This track would be minus the bleachers. Total cost to the town after the state grant would be $3,100.

The council has requested the Board of Education to include the cost of the state grant in the improvement costs as there is no money in this year's budget for capital improvements. A total of $29,000 has been spent to date on the project for site improvement.

The council received a report from Griswold and Fuss, town engineers, showing that an opening as small as four tenths of an inch in the dam gate at Coventry Lane will produce the necessary 750 gallons per minute flow required by Mr. L. Smith's dam. Fuss reported that Smith's dam, Fuss reported that it has a 18 or 24 inch opening at the bottom of the pond which permits water at great volumes to pass through the dam thereby making it appear that he is getting enough water downstream. Therefore the council will keep the dam gate at a setting of one-half to one inch until the lake elevation is 59 to 64 feet.

The council received a report from Manager Allen Sandberg reported on Hinkle Mae Dr. and found the road to be passable for emergency vehicles. The people living on this road were informed that Review will be $42,875,313. Allen Sandberg reported on the recommendations of the cemetery committee to prevent future vandalism at the Nathan Hale Cemetery. The committee is recommending that a chain be put across the gate to keep traffic out of the cemetery; that daily police patrols be instituted and, if feasible, a fence be installed around the cemetery.

The Historical Society announced at the council meeting that it has posted a $25 reward for the arrest and conviction of the vandals.

There will be additional hours at the town clerk's office for those who wish to purchase fishing licenses on Saturday, April 13, and April 20, from 9 a.m. to noon and Friday, April 19 from 7 to 9 p.m.

The council, referring to the Planning and Zoning Commission the report from the Steering Committee on the proposed job description of the town planner and the thirteen amendments proposed by the Steering Committee to the present planning and zoning regulations.

of Consumer Concern

Connecticut Department of Consumer Protection
Barbara B. Dunn, Commissioner

"Take this medicine, it tastes just like candy," the mother encouraged her three-year-old son. The child, however, was not relieved. Then, two hours later, with his mother working in another part of the house, the young boy decided to eat more candy.

When his mother found him, he was lying unconscious on the floor, the empty container beside him. Thousands of accidents like this one occur each year here in Connecticut. Most could be easily avoided by following a few simple rules about medicines in the home.

First, as the young mother sadly learned, don't call medicine candy. Store medicines in a place that is safe and readily available to you, but well out of the reach of children. A locked medicine cabinet is best. It will do double duty by keeping medicines dry, cool and well-preserved while keeping your children safe and healthy.

Second, when you take it from the container, and third, just before administering it. Be sure to note if it should be taken before or after meals.

Make sure that you take medication in well-lit areas. Grogginess in the dark for a bottle in a crowded medicine cabinet is asking for trouble. Most important, follow your physician's advice. Don't increase the amount you take just because you think you need more. Check with your doctor first. And, if you decide to take another product at the same time, ask your pharmacist to check that the two combinations are compatible. Certain combinations can cause dangerous interactions.

Use only your own prescription; never borrow or give medication to your friends. Prescription changes are precisely adjusted for a person's weight, age and physical condition. Children and older persons are more sensitive to drugs than healthy adults and usually take smaller doses. Pregnant women should not use any drug not approved by their doctor.

Keep all drug products in their original containers. The label will help you remember the age of the product and who to call if you need more information. It will also eliminate dangerous confusion among look-alike products.

This is Poison Prevention Week, as proclaimed by President Nixon and designated by Governor Meskill, and again this year 741 community pharmacies and 11 local pharmaceutical associations are striving to educate the public and alleviate 10,000 accidental poisonings which occur in this state each year.

While we as homemakers feel that we have placed the dangerous cleaning detergents or medicines out of reach of youngsters, we are also mindful that it takes but an unguarded moment for a fatal accident to occur.

Andrew Grinvalsky, director of Connecticut's Pharmacy Information Center, reminds parents that "the same child who won't drink his fruit juice will cheerfully gulp such unappetizing things as detergents, rat poison, insect sprays or kerosene."

Parents are urged to "poison-proof" their homes, and to this end your local pharmacist can supply you with the necessary information to prevent accidents, and the procedure to take if an accident should happen.

The Connecticut Poison Emergency Centers in this area are St. Francis Hospital, 348-4001 and the Poison Information Center, 866-2455. Get down these telephone numbers. We hope you will never have occasion to call them, but having them handy may save a life.

Pressure Victory

St. John's University was the tournament-tested outfit. But when the pressure was on Sunday afternoon in an opening round National Invitational Tournament tilt, it was the one which succumbed.

The leading culprit for UConn was senior Captain Jimmy Foster. Unheralded going into the tourney, save for some knowledgeable pro scouts, Foster made his presence known by leading the Huskies to their thrilling victory.

When Foster and Al Weston decided to go back to the playgrounds (one-on-one basketball) it was all over. Foster and Weston took their opponents apart with some moves that Raccuel Welch would appreciate.

The importance of Foster was never more exhibited when he had to make his exit with three personal fouls with 7:22 left in the first half. From that juncture until half-time, the Redmen outscored Connecticut, 15-10, to grab a five-point margin. He's known as an offensive player, but Foster also is a huge asset on defense.

When he returned for second half action, and decided to do his thing, St. John's was in trouble. Redmen Coach Lou Carnesecca, forewarned about Foster, said he put four different men on the UConn star without fruition.

This was Foster's first playing time at the Garden. He didn't disappoint over 6,000 screaming Husky fans one bit.

Like at the Field House

The atmosphere at the Garden, which is unbelievable to a first-time visitor, was like being at the Field House in Storrs. Of the 18,157 fans in attendance, over 6,000, more than double the Rutgers and St. John's total combined, were delirious Connecticut fanboys.

"Connecticut has a great basketball tradition. And it's UConn's, not mine," Husky mentor De Rowe said. "It was started by Hugh Greer and Fred Shabel. And our fans are hungry for a winner."

UConn is a winner, in more than one way. They opened the eyes of "Big City" skeptics, who wondered which part of the country Connecticut is in.

Adopted

One New York City sportswriter broke up the post-game interview session by asking Rowe, "How does it feel to be the first local team to win in the NIT?" Local? When Rowe went for last Monday's coaches' gathering, the hot check girl told him what to do. Now, they're ready to give him the key to the city. And they're tabbing UConn the "local" favorite.

Why? Because, Rutgers, St. John's Manhattan, Massachusetts, Fairfield and Seton Hall, all the locals, have been eliminated. Just like city slickers. You lend them something and now they want to take it away. No chance!

Maybe Different

It will never be known, but a healthy Ed Searcy could have made a difference for St. John's. Searcy, a 6-6 prospect, severely damaged an ankle in a practice session and was virtually useless Sunday afternoon. He gave it a valiant effort, the spirit was willing but the body wasn't. Noticeably limping, Searcy would launch himself for a rebound, but each time ignition failure set in. A grounded Searcy hurt the Redmen beyond repair.

Could Tilt the Joint

UConn Ticket Manager Dave Sykes had trouble obtaining ducats before Sunday's clash. Some weird excuse like you couldn't sell them was the explanation. Give UConn 19,500 tickets (capacity) and Connecticut would fill the joint. They won't have every seat in the house, but Thursday night in the quarterfinals against Boston College, UConn should have fans spilling out of the rafters. Shouldn't Be Overlooked

Connecticut should not look past its quarterfinal round tilt with Boston College. The Huskies handled the Eagles in Storrs during the regular season, 77-69, but Coach Bob Zuffelato has a lot of talent and they're going to be looking for revenge.

Connecticut has some incentive of its own. If the Huskies win Thursday night, it will be the first 20-game winning streak since the 1964-65 quintet compiled a 23-3 ledger. That's a goal to shoot for.

UConn has already bettered its last NIT appearance. Its last tilt to the NIT was in 1955, bowing out to the first round to St. Louis. Already surpassed that achievement, the Rowe-led Huskies have the opportunity to go all the way. All that's needed is the execution of its assignment.

All Out War Has Been Declared By Fledgling Football League

NEW YORK (UPI)— If there was any doubt about it before, the first player draft staged by the World Football League erased it today — the fledgling WFL means all-out war against the dominance of the National Football League.

Blithely and boldly, the 12 teams of the new league read off the names of established stars of the NFL as they went through the first 40 rounds of their draft Monday — names like Joe Namath, Jim Plunkett, Calvin Hill, and the three biggest stars of the NFL champions: Larry Conka, Jim Kiick, and Paul Warfield.

While they were at it, the WFL upstarts didn't forget the Canadian Football League, either. They sprinkled their selection list with the names of many of the best north-of-the-border players, too.

And they even tossed out ominous little hints like pointing out they didn't mention in the draft the names of players they've already signed — players who have played out the option in their NFL contracts and therefore are free as birds. The New York entry of the WFL, for instance, claims to have lines on 50 players — not by any means all NFLers, of course.

However, the New York team, the Stars, did take the occasion to announce the signing of one option-free player — tackle John Elliott, for seven years the "Big Bad John" of the New York Jets' defense. Elliott had made no secret of his dissatisfaction with the Jets.

The WFL didn't pretend that it expects to swipe all of the NFLers it named. League officials pointed out that naming these players establishes the lines of communication for any of the players who feel like jumping in the future — they know whom they canicker with, and it prevents squabbles between WFL clubs.

A number of the NFL players named early were players like Elliott who may be nearing the end of the trail, or are opening dissatisfied with the money they're getting or the chance they have of moving up on their NFL team.

For example, there was quarterback Craig Morton of the Dallas Cowboys, who has had to take a back seat in Texas to Roger Staubach — the Birmingham WFL team picked him in the second round. Quarterback Pete Beathard of Kansas City, something of a similar case, was named on the first round by Houston. Another quarterback, Randy Johnson of the New York Giants who even went home for a time during the 1973 season when he thought he was being overlooked, was a sixth-round choice by Hawaii.

Conka, Kiick, and Warfield all were chosen by the same team — Toronto, which had announced before that it intended to do exactly that.

Namath of the Jets was named on the first round by the New York Stars. Other first-round choices were Conka by Toronto, running back Charlie Evans of the New York Giants by Washington-Baltimore, Jim Plunkett of the Boston Patriots by Portland, Ore., running back Virgil Robinson of the New Orleans Saints by Florida, linebacker Mike Taylor of the Jets by Detroit, running back Johnny Musso of the British Columbia Lions by Birmingham, guard Tom Mack of the Los Angeles Rams by Southern California, running back John Brockington of Green Bay by Chicago, Beathard by Houston, and tight end Ted Kwalick of the San Francisco 49ers by Hawaii. The WFL plans to open its first season on July 10 and wind up regular season play about Thanksgiving Day.

CCA Tourney Knight Wins Event Despite Reluctance

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — Bobby Knight, the volatile coach of Indiana University, won the tournament he didn't want to play and left the fans booing at the St. Louis Arena Monday night.

Indiana finished as co-champion of the Big Ten with Michigan, but lost a playoff game that sent Michigan to the NCAA regional, where the Wolverines lost to Marquette.

The Hoosiers were selected to play in the first championship basketball tournament, which drew seven second-place teams from seven other conferences, plus the co-champion Hoosiers.

Knight resented what he considered an insult and persisted in calling the CCA a "runnerup tournament" while the other seven coaches told how happy they were to be here.

Knight's opinion gained greater forum when Indiana won the tournament with a smashing 85-60 win over Southern California.

At the end of the game Knight stepped forward to accept the championship trophy and said into the microphone, "I'd rather be playing in the NCAA tournament in Tuscaloosa or the NIT in New York than the St. Louis arena. This is the best place I've ever played."

Knight's next words, Knight shouted "I'm happy to win this tournament anyway," and stalked away.

His next words were "I'd rather be playing in the NCAA tournament in Tuscaloosa or the NIT in New York than the St. Louis arena. This is the best place I've ever played."

Knights walked slowly off the court but outscored the Trojans 15-5 over the next five minutes and began building the lead that eventually reached 27 points in the second half.

Country Singer Charley Pride Plays Different Kind of Tune

NEW YORK (UPI)— Earl Weaver and Billy Martin, two of baseball's more active brains, have had some differences before but they weren't going to get into any hassle over Charley Pride.

That's right, Charley Pride, the country singer, who not only plays pretty good guitar but also swings a hot bat now and then.

Pride played professionally in the minors before going into show business and the innovative Martin came up with the bright idea of using him as the Texas Rangers' designated hitter in Monday's ball game with the Baltimore Orioles.

"It was perfectly okay with me," says Weaver. "They can try out who they want in spring training. Besides, Pride isn't exactly a humpy. He has played ball before and he can handle himself all right."

The country singer didn't do badly at all against Cy Young award winner Jim Palmer, going 1-for-4 against him and singling sharply up the middle in his bow-out appearance, but that didn't help the Rangers much in a 14-2 wallop by the Orioles.

Mark Belanger's three-run double off young David Clyde in the second inning wrapped up the ball game for Baltimore and Curt Motton landed a homer later in the contest. Jeff Burroughs homered for the Rangers.

To give you some idea of what kind of ball game it was, Baltimore's Don Baylor collected three hits and still saw his average drop. He went into the game with a .338 average and went to bat six times.

The Los Angeles Dodgers almost matched the Orioles' firework when they got 18 hits in beating the Minnesota Twins, 13-5, and in other exhibition games, the New York Mets nicked the New York Yankees 1-0, the world champion Oakland A's downed Cleveland 6-3, the Chicago Cubs beat San Diego 4-2, the Philadelphia Phillies blanked Cincinnati 4-0, Boston bombed the Chicago White Sox 8-4, Detroit trounced Atlanta 10-3, California nicked Milwaukee 6-5, Kansas City shut out St. Louis 1-0, and in San Juan, Puerto Rico, the Pittsburgh Pirates downed Montreal, 5-3.

L. and he didn't do it Monday either, giving up two runs and taking the loss. Pat Bourque had two doubles and a single and Reggie Jackson a two-run home to lead Oakland as Catfish Hunter gave up two runs but got the win.

Philis 4 Cincinnati 0
Jesus Hernandez and Mike Wallace stopped the Red machine with four hits. Jack Billingham, Reds' 19-game winner expected to be the opening day pitcher versus Atlanta and thus the first pitcher to take Hank Aaron this year, took the loss on two-run innings in the fourth and sixth.

Tigers 10 Braves 3
A two-run homer by Jim Northrup in the first inning and a four-run sixth inning featuring a double by Bob Verzer led the Tigers. Darrell Evans, who hit 41 homers for the Braves last year, slammed his third of the spring in the losing cause.

Royals 1 Cardinals 0
The Cards got nine hits; the Royals got only three, but got the game's only run in the sixth when Jim Wolford walked, stole second, and romped over on a single to center by Amos Otis, who is hitting .438 this spring. Wolford, 1-for-3 with two stolen bases, is .458. Steve Dusby, Steve Mingori, and Gene Garber pitched the shaky shutout as the Cards strangled 11 while Bob Forsch took the loss.

Red Sox 8 Brewers 5
Rico Petrocelli, back after missing three games with pain in his right elbow which was operated on for calcium last August, socked two doubles and a single and Jim Rice hit a three-run homer to pace Boston. Reggie Cleveland got the win despite giving up four runs in five innings, including a two-run homer by Tony Muser.

Angels 6 Brewers 5
Dave May, who had 14 game-winning hits last season, nudged a short sacrifice fly to center in the ninth inning to score Bobby Sheldon from third with the winning run. Bobby Mitchell led the Brewers with three hits and three rbi's, including a two-run homer.

Cubs 4 Padres 2
Cub starter Bill Bonham suffered a sprained index finger that will cause him to miss his next turn when he was struck by a line drive by Fred Kendall in the fourth inning. But Hooton relieved and gave San Diego two hits the rest of the way. Two Cub runs were off non-roster rookie Joe McIntosh.

Pirates 5 Expos 3
Expos jumped to a 3-0 lead, including a two-run homer by Willie Davis off Dock Ellis in the first inning, but Ellis didn't allow another earned run through the seventh inning. Al Oliver drove in two Pirate runs with a homer and scored two. Game was the first two the Pirates and Expos are playing in Puerto Rico for the Roberto Clemente Sports City fund.

Mets 1 Yankees 0
Ken Matlack, Bob Apodaca, and Steve Simpson three-hit the Yanks. George Medich blanked the Mets for five frames but failure to make a double play on Don Hahn's grounder to shortstop in the eighth inning cost the Yanks the game as Wayne Garrett scored from third.

Dodgers 13 Twins 5
Bill Buckner's four hits led the Dodgers barrage against four pitchers and Twins lost more than the game when slugger Harmon Killebrew dove for a grounder by Von Joshua and came up with a dislocated shoulder that will keep him indefinitely, probably through opening day April 5. L. A. tallied seven in the second and that made Tommy John the winner despite giving up two homers.

A's 6 Indians 3
Indian ace Gaylord Perry hasn't beaten the A's since coming to the A's.

Yankee Fielding Troubles Haunting Them Even Now

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI) — Failure to make the double play, which the New York Yankees admit is one of their major problems, has cost the pin-strippers their first meeting of the year with their New York rivals, the Mets.

The Mets came out on top, 1-0, Monday night at Al Lang Field here as red-haired Wayne Garrett scooted home from third base with the game's only run in the eighth inning.

Yankee infielder Don Hahn, who pitched the game, was hit by a grounder to shortstop hit by Met outfielder Don Hahn.

The flip to second base nailed runner Dave Schneck, who is no gawker, but rookie second baseman George Zeber's pivot throw to first didn't catch better. Southpaw Jim Mattack one-hit the Yankees over the first five innings, becoming the first Met pitcher to go that far.

Both clubs showed good pitching. The Mets just a shade better. Southpaw Jim Mattack one-hit the Yankees over the first five innings, becoming the first Met pitcher to go that far.

Medical student George Medich gave up four hits and also fanned four batters and shut out the Mets over the first five innings.

MCC Nine Loses In Season Opener

Opening on a most uneventful note yesterday was the Manchester Community College baseball team in Statesville, N.C. The Cougars ran into an unbeaten Mitchell Junior College nine and the latter remains status quo with a double-header victory.

In the first game, Mitchell's Tim Little threw a no-hitter at Coach Jim DeWitt's outfit. The only score of the 1-0 Mitchell victory came in the bottom of the seventh inning when Randy McDaniel doubled in Al Wilson, who had reached second on a walk and an error.

Cougars took themselves out of the contest with fielding lapses. Another thing against the MCC nine was its lack of hitting, getting just two hits in this contest. The only MCC safeties were by Howard Beeler and Mike Moulton.

The batting star for Mitchell was catcher Joe Such, who had three hits and two runs-batted-in. Winning pitcher for 12-0 Mitchell was Casey Baker while Dave Dubois took the loss.

MCC has a double-header today against Spartenburg Junior College in Spartenburg, S.C.

Tax Receipts At $11,953,344

Manchester tax receipts at the three-quarter point in its fiscal year (Feb. 28) equal $11,953,344, against 12-month estimates for the year ending June 30 of $12,268,727.

General Fund tax revenue totaled $11,953,344, against 12-month estimates for the year ending June 30 of $12,268,727.

Although the report shows favorable receipts for the current tax year, it points a much less favorable picture for tax receipts due from prior years.

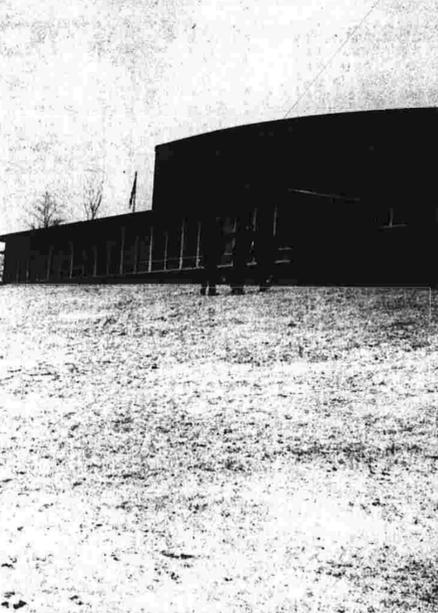

When the Board of Directors adopted the 1973-74 budget (in May 1973), it estimated revenue totaling $240,000 from prior years' taxes. As of Feb. 28, with only four months of the current year to go, only $29,329 has come in toward the $240,000 estimate.

The situation was explained to the directors several months ago by Town Manager Robert Weiss. When the budget was adopted and the estimate made, said Weiss, there indeed was a large amount in tax outstanding.

However, a great proportion came in by the end of the 1972-73 fiscal year and before the 1973-74 fiscal year began, hence, the possibility of collecting $240,000 in prior-year taxes is no remote to even consider.

Receipts to the Town of Manchester Fire District as of Feb. 28 equaled about 96 per cent of 12-month estimates, with $1,177,610 collected and $1,176,719 estimated.

The Water Fund shows receipts of $492,972 and estimates of $706,700. The Sewer Fund shows $434,164 and $649,477, and the Special Downstream Taxing Districts show $3,991 and $33,600.

Steele Seeks Extension Of Program

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Rep. Robert H. Steele, R-Conn., has called for extension of a nutrition program which provides older Americans with low-cost, nutritionally sound meals.

Steele, chairman of the House Republican subcommittee on Aging, said Monday Congress received $1.3 million in federal funds for the nutrition program last year.

The state was able to establish 11 regional projects with 70 separate meal programs. "Within six weeks this program should be serving between 2,500 and 3,000 meals per day across the state," he said. "It is critical that this program not be allowed to expire," Steele said.

By extending the program until 1977 and by doubling its funding from 1974 levels, poor nutrition among the elderly can be eliminated, Steele said. "The nutrition program allows the elderly to seek help with dignity," he said. "It should be extended and broadened."

Steele is the sponsor of legislation to establish a permanent nutrition program for the elderly.

21-Year Gift

LEIGHTON BUZZARD, Attorney (UPI)—Fellow Director of the Connecticut Bar Association and a gift to mark his 21 years with a lingerie firm.

Mrs. Larais's report shows tax collections totaling $132,148, with about $3,390 still outstanding. In addition, she reported interest payments totaling $1,040.

In commenting on the interest payments (about 10 percent the average yield in past years), she explained it is because of a recent state law which requires a minimum interest charge of $2 for delinquent tax bills — regardless of the amount of the bill. In some instances, she said, the tax bill is 25 or 50 cents, and the interest charge $2.

Mrs. Larais said those 8th District taxpayers whose tax on motor vehicles remain unpaid on May 31 will be reported to the State Motor Vehicle Department — so that their registrations might be held back until the taxes are paid.

Eighth District Fire Chief Granville Lingard reported his department answered 30 alarms in February, with 8 of them outside district boundaries. He said none resulted in serious fire-damage losses.

Full Budget Sought By Disaster Control

In an effort to have their proposed budget approved, members of the Disaster Control Advisory Council agreed at their meeting Monday night to draft a letter to each member of the Board of Directors urging that the budget be passed.

The requested budget of $17,663 contains a $3,200 item for increased radio equipment. Council members noted that if telephone lines had been down during the December ice storm, a far more serious situation would have developed. In such a situation, radio equipment would be essential, according to council members.

If the budget is approved, about $7,000 could be reimbursed under the state's matching-funds program. It was reported at Monday's meeting that the council has recently acquired an ambulance for $750. The town vehicle will be used by Civil Defense strictly in emergency situations.
