Linemen's Safety Gear Shown

The hard hat, double-layer elbow-length protective gloves and safety glasses which Clayton Milano, Grade 7 Bennet Junior High School student, is modeling might well save his life if he were a linemen. Frank Gasper, right, a linemen from the Hartford Electric Light Co. demonstrated these and other safety items during an electrical safety talk and demonstration presented today to 7th and 8th grade students at Bennet. Bennet Students Hear Electrical Safety Talk

By JUNE TOMPKINS

Many needless accidents and fatalities may be avoided in the future because of a vivid demonstration presented four days this week on electrical safety and accounts of the hazards of misuse to the 7th and 8th grade students at Bennet Junior High School.

"Electricity, respectfully used, is a safe friend and service," said Franklin Delaney, business office supervisor at Hartford Electric Light Co. (HELCO) this morning to a young audience.

Linemen Frank Gasper, assisted by linemen in training Ed Modziesz, presented the various types of equipment essential to a linemen's safety in working with "hot" or live wires.

An inner rubber glove (which Gasper called the "backbone" of HELCO) is tested at 10,000 volts regularly to insure its efficiency, Gasper said. An outer glove, called a leather keeper,

President Nixon Vows To 'Stand and Fight'

HOUSTON (UPI) — Declaring that he will "stand and fight" to preserve the office, President Nixon Tuesday night brushed aside a plea that he resign from a previously staunch Republican ally, Sen. James L. Buckley of New York.

Nixon also refused again to relinquish 42 tapes the House Judiciary Committee deems vital to its impeachment inquiry. But he urged the committee to speed up investigation on information it now has in hand on Watergate and resolve the issue.

"Dragging on Watergate drags down America," Nixon declared.

In a nationally televised, hour-long question-and-answer session before a generally friendly audience of broadcast executives, Nixon said many Americans might share the sentiments Buckley voiced that he resign and get the country out of the "Watergate swamp."

Without judging guilt or innocence, Buckley said, the President should resign as "an extraordinary act of statesmanship and courage."

He said of his mission as chief executive that it "would take courage to stand and fight and do the job you've been elected to do."

And he said he was going to do just that.

Nixon scheduled a trip to the nearby Lyndon B. Johnson Space Center today to dedicate America's three newest Skylab astronauts for their longest-ever mission in space by man and review plans for a joint U.S.-Soviet earth orbit mission next year.

It was the President's third trip into the country's midsection in five days. Aides said he was determined to "go public" in hopes of blunting the congressional impeachment drive and neutralizing the Watergate scandal.

In the wide-ranging session, the President:

- Announced that the end of the Arab oil embargo should bring steadily diminishing lines at the gas pumps. Forget about compulsory gasoline rationing. Service stations will open again on Sundays — starting this weekend.
- Chided the nine European Common Market nations again for their "go-it-alone" policies, and warned this raised the spectre of "a new sense of isolationism" in the United States.
- Said American farmers "never had it so good, and we want to keep it this way because the farmers aren't going to produce unless they get a good price."

dent shall be impeached for treason, bribery or high crimes or misdemeanors."

"I am suggesting that the House follow the Constitution," he said. "If they do, I will."

Nixon conceded he was mistaken about his apparently conflicting statements March 6 before reporters in Washington and last Friday in Chicago before business executives, about how he learned of payments being made to the seven original Watergate conspirators.

"My statement on March 6 was incorrect insofar as I (said I) learned payments had been made for blackmail, that payments had been made for the purpose of keeping defendants still. I should have said I learned that payments were alleged to have been made."

Nixon did not back down from recent harsh statements about the failure of America's European allies to consult before taking precipitate action on their own.

He said he would not permit himself to be dismissed or dismaneuvered by economic and political actions to lead him to embrace proposals by Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield for a major reduction in the 300,000 force of U.S. servicemen stationed in Europe.

However, the President said, the Europeans "must understand that if they are hostile, it is going to be difficult for this President, or any President, to get through Congress' measures beneficial to both sides."

School Budget Status Remains Unchanged

By JUNE TOMPKINS

After a meeting Tuesday night of the Board of Education and the Town Board of Directors to discuss the proposed school budget, the present status remains unchanged.

Town Manager Robert Weiss notified Allan D. Thomas, chairman of the Board of Education, last week he was recommending a total Board of Education budget of $12,018,754 as compared to the Board of Education's request for a proposed budget of $12,343,000.

According to Weiss' methodology, his figure reflects the fact that over the past five years the Board of Education has received approval for approximately 96.4 per cent of the budget recommended. To this

Thomas called Weiss' methodology inconsistent. He said there had been no consideration given by Weiss to the need for textbooks, paper and fringe benefits.

"We must expand these items in order to maintain our present quality of education," said Thomas.

Weiss explained this year there would not be the surplus funds available which were included in last year's budget amounting to $374,000 which would effect the tax rate.

Weiss and Thomas both cited the unprecedented inflation which defies projection. Weiss told the Board of Education the town has had over $100,000 unexpected costs because of the ice storm in December.

John Yavis, Board of Education finance chairman, said the one million gallons of fuel oil consumed by the schools was a hard hit to the school district because of the high rise in fuel cost.

"The use of paper is an equally significant area of inflation," he said when he reminded Weiss there had been no consideration for that in the town's recommendation.

Chet Huntley, Ex-Newscaster Dies of Cancer

BIG SKY, Mont. (UPI) — Chet Huntley, former NBC-TV newscaster who retired in 1970, died at his home today. He was 62.

Huntley underwent surgery Jan. 17 in Billings, Mont. for abdominal cancer. His wife announced his death.

Huntley gave up his job as one of the nation's best known television newscasters to return to his native Montana to develop a resort community he founded here.

With fellow newscaster David Brinkley they formed a NBC-TV team in 1956 to pioneer a new concept in broadcasting, the co-anchorment. For fourteen years their familiar "good night Chet" and "good night David" were heard and seen by millions at the close of their evening news program.

Huntley was born in Cardwell, Mont. in 1911 and began his career in radio in 1934, a year prior to his graduation from the University of Washington in Seattle. His first job was as a newscaster for station KPCB, Seattle. From 1934 to 1939 he worked for stations in Spokane, Portland and Los Angeles. He joined the Columbia Broadcasting System in Los Angeles in 1939 and remained with the network until 1950 when he shifted to the American Broadcasting Co. Five years later he joined NBC in New York and a year later he and Brinkley began their joint news program.

Court Asked To Hold Up Jury Report

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The lawyer for former presidential aide H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman today filed legal briefs to block the House Judiciary Committee from receiving a secret grand jury report into President Nixon's handling of Watergate.

Federal Grant Boon To Sewer Department

A $750,000 bonanza for its sewer department is being received by the Town of Manchester. The sum is part of about $46 million being released to Connecticut municipalities by the federal Environmental Protection Agency for pollution projects.

The Manchester allocation is for its Primary Treatment Plant, constructed in 1956 at a cost of about $1.2 million. It is not to be confused with the Secondary Treatment Plant, completed in 1971 as part of a townwide $6 million sanitary sewer project. Almost all of the federal share for this project (about 85 per cent of the cost) already has been received.

To town officials, the $750,000 allocation is considered " gravy " and a boon for the hard-pressed sewer department. "The Sewer Operating Fund," declares the town's 1972-73 audit, "is in a deficit position."

Town Manager Robert Weiss said today, "This grant is particularly important at this time, since it will allow the sewer department to make improvements without increasing sewage charges."

Grants to other area towns are: South Windsor, $413,470 for two projects; and Vernon, $170,000.

Angle Parking Striping Delayed

A three-month moratorium on parallel parking on Downtown Main St. almost ended today. What didn't end, however, were efforts by Main St. businessmen to reinstate angle parking.

The state Department of Transportation, which painted lines last December for some parallel parking stalls and then removed them and restored angle parking stalls, today started to repaint the parallel parking lines.

Joseph Burns, state commissioner of transportation, put a temporary stay on today's repainting operations at the request of William Diana, deputy state controller. The stay will be in effect at least until the end of this week.

The three-month moratorium had been placed by Burns when downtown interests convinced him the parking switch would hurt business.

His decision, he explained, was to help merchants over the Christmas shopping season and to give the town more time to acquire off-street parking.

Burns notified the town last week the parallel parking lines would go back this week.

The parking system for Downtown Main St. is a condition the town accepted several years ago, when it was offered (and accepted) the concept of a new traffic-control system for the length of the street, which is a state highway. The traffic-control system was installed last fall at no cost to the town.

Main St. came under state control about 10 years ago, in a swap with the town for Middle Tpke. The latter, formerly under state control and maintenance, is now under town control.

George Marlow of Marlow's Department Store said today he and other Main St. merchants

Legislative Committee Favors Higher ADM

HARTFORD (UPI) — A legislative committee is backing Gov. Thomas J. Meskill and asking that his proposed $5 per pupil grant be increased by $40.

The education committee decision Tuesday would raise the ADM (average daily membership) grant to municipalities to a total of $260 yearly. The ADM is the basic state grant to Connecticut's 169 cities and towns.

Meskill's 1974 budget proposal was criticized for proposing only a $5 ADM increase. The Republican governor also proposed granting municipalities a portion of federal revenue-sharing funds that would give them an extra $10. These funds, however, would not be earmarked specifically for education.

Education groups criticized the governor's recommendation as inadequate. The State Department of Education asked the legislature to increase the

Lufkin Has Inside Track

The two-week moratorium on candidacy announcements for the Republican nomination for governor is nearing an end. The dust-settling period was imposed by the GOP's state chairman, Brian Gaffney, after Gov. Thomas Meskill announced his plans to "follow his star" rather than seek re-election.

While the moratorium has been effective among the potential candidates it has not stifled any speculation as to who might be throwing their hats in the ring.

Obviously, Dan Lufkin, former environmental commissioner, is a pre-announcement leader since he has a creditable record in organizing the DEP, strong ties with Gov. Meskill, who in turn has party control, and is a young and personable figure.

U.S. Rep. Robert Steele is also a leading contender with a congressional background, youth, and unlike Lufkin, some successful running experience.

From where we sit, the Republicans probably will be picking either of these two for their candidate.

Steele, who is available, is also available to run against Sen. Abe Ribicoff, should Meskill's "star" preclude this challenge.

Steele may also be getting some pressure from the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee to seek re-election. While it may appear to be a bad year for Republicans in Congress because of Watergate, etc., the facts are he is young, an incumbent, and from a district which is more inclined to go Republican than not. His $5,000 to $45,000 plurality over Roger Hilsman in the last election is wide enough to move him out of the danger zone which Sen. Barry Goldwater has pegged at about a 10,000 vote edge, or less.

Steele, who is available, is also available to run against Sen. Abe Ribicoff, should Meskill's "star" preclude this challenge.

'Living Factories'

WASHINGTON — Every time a neighborhood grocery store closes its doors for good, I expect there are wide gains in the executive suites of the conglomerates and certain pseudo-Marxist sociologists call it a good day. Both Big Brothers have been telling us for years that small towns with such establishments as the corner butcher shop and neighborhood schools are obsolete and should be replaced by "living factories."

'Our Hero'
To the editor:
Senator Wicker recently said that President Nixon's Watergate related behavior must be examined in the light of a man trying to save his backside. If this estimate is correct, it suggests a simply, albeit novel, way out of our national dilemma regarding impeachment. I propose that Congress forthwith pass a very special act declaring President Nixon, "Our Hero" with provisions for:
A. Fitting ceremony.
B. Designation of an "Our Hero" national holiday.
C. Lavish retirement plus lifetime (pour autre vie) irrevocable supply of gas for Bebe's yacht.

God Bless God
God Bless God for the lakes, the trees, the good wind that blows, for the hills, the plains, the rain and the snow. God Bless God, God Bless God, for the eyes to see, the wonders He wrought. God Bless God, I thank God for having such patience, His faith here in us never dims. I thank God for never giving up on me, for the love and the hope that He gave me, for the joy of the sun, the moon, the stars up above, for the smile, the kiss, the glory of love and though this request seems odd, God Bless God, Amen.

Hi Neighbor

Burl Lyons, Publisher

We welcome the first day of spring, today. A lot of Manchester folks, including this writer, have a lot of yard work to do. We hope the weatherman cooperates for a few weekends. If we can't get it done before the baseball season starts next month, it will be a real crisis, because football follows baseball.

According to reports, sales of electrical appliances haven't been hurt by the energy problem though some dealers are wondering what the future will hold this summer in the sale of air conditioning units.

No matter what the future holds for Gov. Meskill, he won't have to go on welfare. His one term as governor will bring him a pension of $15,000 a year when he reaches age 58, nine years from now. The pension, along with possibly trying two or three law cases a year, should give him a pretty fair income.

Something to think about: Industry Week reports that a California man sent in an order and his check carried the following message: "Funds to cover this check are available because of activity in what is left of a free market, despite government plunder, interference, coercion, taxes and controls."

Wherever folks gather these days there is a lively topic of conversation. At a gathering awhile back, these were the recollections of by-gone days spent in college: The art of seeing how high one could stack the beer cans before they tumbled to the ground; drinking beer out of hucups because in those days leg beer was popular, and of course, the art of swallowing goldfish.

Massachusetts has a new law regarding political advertising which went into effect last week. Under the present law, the person who inserts an advertisement, such as a club secretary, must be a registered voter. Under the new statute, the signer will have to file a witnessed statement with the newspaper acknowledging that he or she has agreed to have their name used.

Today's Thought

How many folk stay away from church because:
a) They don't like the minister or priest.
b) They don't like some of the members.
c) They don't like the music.
d) They don't like the programs.
e) They don't like (fill in your own gripe)?
All these are so much hogwash, including your pet gripe. Church worship, is for the worship of God. Put your ego where it belongs, and attend church. God is worthy of your honor. If you then still have gripes, get vocal. Test them. Try to change things, but don't just sit on your hands. Try being on your knees for a change.

South Windsor Flood Project Debated

The merits and ramifications of the Avery Brook Watershed Project were again the subject of controversy at the recent meeting of the South Windsor Town Council.

The proposed flood prevention project was argued by Phillip Welles, 335 Beechwood Rd., a man who may lose his home if the entire project goes through. Town residents will be asked to approve one segment of a three-phase project aimed at controlling heavy flooding in the Avery Heights area of town.

NAIROBI (UPI) — An Ethiopian couple hijacked an East African Airways plane today and forced the pilot to hopscotch across three countries before surrendering to Ugandan President Idi Amin, airport spokesmen said. But when General Amin arrived the passengers were allowed to disembark for lunch at the Lake Victoria Hotel and the general personally interrogated the couple.

Rebozo Called To Testify
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo, President Nixon's close friend, was called today before the Senate Watergate Committee.

Rebozo's close friend, said chief counsel Sam Dash when asked if the wealthy Florida would appear in executive session before the committee. Presumably, Rebozo would be asked about campaign contributions he handled for Nixon.

Picasso Prints Stolen

BANGKOK (UPI) - Two prints by the late Pablo Picasso have been stolen from an art exhibit here, French authorities said today.

Thieves apparently using razor blades cut the prints from their frames Tuesday at the Alliance Francaise where the Picasso exhibit is being shown, Alliance officials said. The thieves tried to steal a third print but could not cut it from its frame, they said.

The prints were stolen when the exhibit was open to the public. The single guard providing security for the exhibit covered the thefts when he noticed the empty frames.

An Alliance spokesman said the total exhibit comprising 58 prints was insured for $200,000, there were no estimates on what each of the stolen prints was worth.

Stieg Heil: By Stefan Lorant (Norton, $14.95)
Hitler Close-up: compiled by Jochem Von Lang. (Macmillan, $9.95)
World War II: by Ronald Heiferman (Doubleday, $20)
The rise and fall of Hitler's Third Reich has been documented in millions of words. But the combination of words with pictures adds more than one dimension to the understanding of the particular horror of that era—only 30 years gone now.

In "Stieg Heil," one photograph demonstrates the power of the word-picture alignment. It shows a courtroom confrontation between Minister Hermann Goering and an alleged Communist plotter in the Reichstag.

Goering, back to camera, stands with his hands on his hips in a bullying posture, gazing down at the defendant. The pose tells all about Goering's disdain for the defendant, the court and the German people. The caption reinforces the impression, noting that his behavior "disclosed the impudant arrogance and lawless attitude of the Nazi leadership."

Again and again, the book doubles the impact of events with the careful juxtaposition of pictures and text. The faces are dreadfully memorable.

Beyond the personalities and events of the Nazi era, Lorant, sometimes called "the father of modern photojournalism," supplies the background of modern German militarism.

"Hitler Close-up" puts together the photographs and comments of his personal photographer with observations by a high Nazi official who took notes diligently during his days in power.

"World War II" gives excellent picture coverage to the international scope of the conflict and, going along with the current review of interest in the European end, expands much of its space on Europe.

'Tragic Accident' Kills Two

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — In a "tragic accident" early today, Northern Ireland policemen shot several British soldiers they mistook for Irish Republican Army (IRA) gunmen, the police said. A police spokesman said two soldiers were killed and two wounded in two gunfights in a rural area south of Belfast.

The first gunfight broke out when a truck carrying several soldiers dressed in civilian clothes back from leave broke down on a country road 40 miles south of Belfast and they called for a tow truck.

He Believes in Tapes, Revolutionary Machines

By LEROY POPE
UPI Business Writer
NEW YORK (UPI) — The collapse of the home video cassette boom before it got off the ground has left at least one industry leader who still believes strongly in the revolutionary machines and tapes.

He is Harvey L. Schein, 46-year-old president of Sony Corp. of America. Sony will be making and selling video cassette recorder-players and is preparing to bring out a handheld camera to enable people to produce instant home movies to show by the video cassette method through their home television receivers.

The equipment is expensive by the standard of home appliances. Sony's U-Matic color recorder-player costs $1,600, and the portable camera is expected to cost $2,000. Sale of the device for educational and commercial use is only a tiny part of the Japanese Sony group's $1 billion a year global revenues, but Schein believes it has a big future.

Schein is sticking to the business in which Columbia Broadcasting System, Avco Corp., Ampex, RCA and other firms experienced so much difficulty. Curiously, Schein came

Woman's View

By GAY PAULEY, UPI Women's Editor, NEW YORK (UPI) - What this country needs is more "social space", says Ellen Peck. She's leading a movement that would help provide it through a "nonie is fun" approach to parenthood.

"Social space is a combination of physical space and emotional freedom... not being crowded into molds, into masses," said the lovely Baltimore homemaker, writer and co-founder of her husband, William, of the National Organization for Non-Parents (NON).

The blonde Mrs. Peck knows that NON is bucking deep tradition in a country where having children is expected of couples, where the family is revered, where Mother's and Father's Day were established.

The Energy Situation Buying Coal Would be Difficult

By DOUG BEVINS
Some time ago, when effects of the energy crisis were first being felt, there was a lot of talk about coal regaining its importance as a source of heating energy.

Coal was dethroned as king of energy when cheap natural gas and crude oil became readily available. But home builders, even if they seriously considered using fossil fuel in a heating system, didn't sway from present uses.

Forecasters See More Inflation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sixty-two economists, including some of the nation's leading professional forecasters, believe inflation will "get worse rather than better, especially in the very near future," two economic research groups reported today.

The economists also believed the nation's output of goods and services (GNP) would decline slightly in the first half of 1974 in terms of constant dollars and then rise in the second half for a small overall gain for the year.

AAA Says Gasoline Now in Good Supply

United Press International American Motorists are enjoying the best overall fuel availability conditions of the year, the American Automobile Association said today.

Service stations are ending their hours and fewer pumps are dry, the AAA said in its nationwide survey showed. The improved picture came on the heels of a decision Monday by most Arab nations to end their oil embargo and indications that Americans would have no trouble getting gasoline for summer vacations.

AAA Says Gasoline Now in Good Supply

The AAA said its survey showed fewer stations are limiting amounts customers may purchase in a single stop at the pump; that more stations are open after 7 p.m. on weekdays; and fewer stations are closing before noon on weekdays than in its last week's spot check.

AAA said the scene nationally looked like this: 77 percent of the stations are closing pumps by noon on weekdays, compared with 9 percent last week. 59 percent are pumping fuel after 7 p.m. on weekdays, up 1 percent. 20 percent are limiting purchases, mainly by restricting sales from 20 to 25 gallons, 2 percent fewer than last week.

Mao Heading Off Election

UPI Senior Editor HONG KONG (UPI) — One of the aims of Chairman Mao Tse-tung's current political campaign in China is to offset pressures for reestablishing the country's long-dormant legislature and electing a new head of state.

This was the assessment today of many China analysts here and in Peking.

The last legislature, the 3rd National People's Congress (NPC), was elected more than nine years ago—for a four-year term. It held only one full session in January, 1965, and has been little more than a name since.

The convening of the successor 4th NPC is more than five years overdue and the country has been without a new chairman (president) since Liu Shao-chi was deposed in 1967 as the major victim of the Cultural Revolution.

There is an acting head of state, Tung Pw-wu, one of two vice chairmen under Liu. But he is 89 years old and ailing. His only duty is receiving credentials of new diplomats, and often he cannot do that. The other vice chairman is Soong Ching-ling, better known as Madame Sun Yat-sen. She, too, is old (84) and ailing.

Since the Cultural Revolution died down in 1969 there has been growing pressure for the convening of the 4th NPC and elec-

Texan Battles to Keep Space Capsule

By GARY L. TAYLOR HOUSTON (UPI) — A suburban city council last month gave Max Ladin two weeks to remove a Gemini space capsule from his front yard because it violated the junk vehicle ordinance and neighbors complained it was an eyesore.

Today, three weeks later, the battered spacecraft relic, poised at a jaunty simulated flight attitude, still sits in front of Ladin's Bellaire home near a busy freeway.

The self-described patriot said his fight with City Hall has reaffirmed his faith in America "100 per cent."

"Until something like this happens, you don't realize how wonderful the American people really are. My regard for the average citizen has gone up 10,000 per cent."

He Talks with People Ladin said he has talked with people all over the country about his one-man stand.

"A few might have had an ulterior motive, but 99 per cent of them just want to help."

Ladin has had the orange capsule—used as a trainer for the Gemini space flights—on display in his front yard for about four years.

"All I wanted to do in the first place was get as much publicity for NASA and stir up some interest in the space program," he said. "I didn't care about getting anything for me."

Ladin bought the scrap capsule, used in a hard landing development program for astronauts, made a stand for it and set out in front of his home. Neighbors petitioned the City Council to stop the constant flow of traffic and kids looking at it, and finally City Attorney Mario Preston ordered it removed.

It Will Be Moved "I'm gonna bring in a crane, load it on a trailer and haul it off to my steel company," Ladin said. "I'm willing to move it, but if they keep pushing me I'll have to fight."

"I would have to get me some lawyers, fight it and then build a concrete wall to put it on."

"I'm not going to take this lying down."

Meanwhile, letters and callers continue to encourage him.

"For one thing this whole incident made me realize if a person really got into a jam and people knew about it there would be all kinds of help com-

NSF to Finance Windmill Test

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government plans to spend $665,000 over two years to build a space-age windmill to see if the wind can be harnessed economically to generate electricity, it was announced Tuesday.

The windmill will be built at the space agency's Lewis Research Center, Cleveland, Ohio, in a project sponsored by the National Science Foundation (NSF).

The experimental generator will use a 125-foot rotor mounted atop a tower 125 feet tall to generate up to 100 kilowatts of power. It will be erected at the Plum Brook test area at Sandusky, Ohio.

The NSF will provide $665,000 for the project over two years. Future systems, if placed in commercial production, are expected to cost considerably less, the NSF said.

A Man For All Seasons

A jacket for "all seasons" from Windbreaker, Inc. serves a multiple purpose. With jeans, it's part of a leisure outfit or layered look. Uniquely styled with a suppressed waist, full lapel and center vent for perfect fit, it's shown in classic tattersall. Also available in seersucker plaids and checks, madras and solids of denim or chambray.

By MICHAEL J. CONLON WASHINGTON (UPI) — For the frustrated consumer, writing a letter to the man in charge is often the only thing left to do. The problem is finding out who's in charge.

For about four years now the Credit Union National Association Inc. — which links the nation's credit unions — has been helping buyers answer that question by publishing a directory. It lists the corporate headquarters, address, and the name of the company president, for hundreds of firms involved in everything from insurance to food.

A spokesman for the organization reports the guide has been "very helpful" to an unknown number of unhappy consumers. It doesn't promise to produce results every time, but at least it offers a final chance that may be worth taking.

The 1974 version of the booklet, called the "EM Complaint Directory", is available for $1 from "Everybody's Money", Box 431, Madison, Wis. 53701.

Speaking of complaints, quite a few Americans seem to have one or more against the U.S. Postal Service. About two years ago the service appointed a "consumer advocate" to try to collect and answer those complaints.

He's now deluged by about 800 letters a week. In addition to answering them his office is apposed to analyze them in terms of where and how often, so problem areas can be spotted.

If you can't get a complaint answered through your local postmaster, the Postal Service says you too can write to Thomas W. Chadwick, consumer advocate, U.S. Postal Service, Washington, D.C. 20269. He's more interested in complaints from families and individuals than from businesses or other mass mail users, the service adds.

The Environmental Protection Agency has published in final form its review of 1974 model cars showing how many miles to the gallon each gets. It shows the best buy for fuel economy is the Honda Civic, at 29.1

Shed Baby Teeth May Measure Lead Poisoning

By AL ROSSITER JR. UPI Science Editor WASHINGTON (UPI) — The measurement of lead in baby teeth shed by children is a reliable marker of a child's consumption of potentially dangerous amounts of lead during his early years of development, a team of researchers reports.

The concentration of lead in blood is generally accepted as an index of lead exposure, but blood tests are not always reliable for measuring low levels. And since blood lead levels decline once exposure stops, blood tests cannot indicate the magnitude of earlier exposure to lead.

Dr. Herbert L. Needleman, of the Children's Hospital in Boston, and Irving M. Shapiro, of the University of Pennsylvania's Center for Oral Health Research, said the effects of low amounts of lead on the development of children have not been studied in detail because of a lack of an effective way to measure a child's past exposure to lead.

They said in a report in a recent issue of the New England Journal of Medicine that use of teeth as a retrospective marker of lead intake should help scientists determine how relatively low amounts of lead affect a child's behavior, learning abilities and his nervous system.

Severe lead poisoning, usually resulting when young children eat chips of peeling lead-based paint found in many old houses, causes central nervous system damage and even death.

Needleman and Shapiro, working with Isobel Davidson and Dr. Edward M. Sewell, found the concentrations of lead in the teeth of children from two Philadelphia school districts, one considered high risk and the other low risk for lead exposure.

A total of 761 first grade school children with no prior history of lead poisoning participated in the study. When they lost a baby tooth, they presented the tooth to a teacher who confirmed the child had just lost a tooth and then coded and stored it for later laboratory analysis.

The study found striking differences in the amounts of lead in the teeth between children of the two school districts. Youngsters in the public and parochial schools of District 8 in northeast Philadelphia had the lowest lead levels and the highest levels were found in District 5, a north-central area where the student population is predominantly black.

High Levels Expected Most of the high-lead levels were in children who lived in areas with deteriorating old houses — where lead consumption was expected. But while children attending a District 5 school had higher-than-expected lead levels and they came from housing which was generally in better condition.

This school is located one block from a major lead-processing industry, and the school district is bounded by a busy six-lane highway.

The findings agreed with earlier studies which showed that airborne lead of small particle size, from industry and automobile traffic, plays a key role in elevated lead levels in children.

The researchers said their results were consistent with studies using blood tests, but showed that lead exposure is more widespread than previously had been reported.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Receiving Stolen Property

Myrtle bought a transistor radio from the "nice young man" who came knocking at her door. He said he was the salesman for a local distributor. But in truth, he was a thief who had stolen a dozen radios from a warehouse the night before.

On these facts, could Myrtle be found guilty of "receiving stolen property"?

Hardly. One key element of guilt is missing: some reason for her to believe the radio was stolen. Generally speaking, it is no crime to buy stolen merchandise with an innocent mind.

However, a buyer's protestations of innocence may not always be convincing. Consider the case of a farmer who bought 24 chickens from a teenager who called at his farmhouse.

In this case, the youth approached the farmhouse furtively by way of a back road. The price he asked was less than one-third of what the farmer was used to paying. And the hour was shortly past midnight.

Although the farmer insisted afterward that he was "totally surprised" to learn the chickens had been stolen, a court chose not to believe him.

Result: he was found guilty of receiving stolen property. The court observed that the sale was made "at an hour unusual for honest transactions."

Of course, the major problem in this area is not the occasional purchaser but the professional "fence" who, by providing a regular outlet for stolen merchandise, encourages the thieves in the first place.

Accordingly, most states impose an extra responsibility on businessmen who regularly buy and sell merchandise to watch out for certain suspicious circumstances. Thus a junk dealer, may be offered an unusual bargain, may be required to ask more questions about the merchandise than a routine buyer.

"The duty of diligent inquiry before purchasing," said one court, "protects the junk dealer who buys in good faith and provides punishment for those who do not."

Service Week Suggested

WASHINGTON (UPI) — About 30 congressmen Tuesday asked House Speaker Carl Albert to set aside a "constituent service week" every other month so that they can tend to matters back home.

They asked Albert to help Congress adopt a new concept of operation so that more time could be spent back in the congressional districts. They said the house calendar could be arranged to permit them a full week at home every second month.

Rep. Paul McCloskey, R-Calif., who originated the idea, said it was based on the assumption members of Congress have just as much an obligation to spend time with their constituents as they do legislating.

"Many members find that they are interrupting the wishes and thoughts of their constituents by a poll, letter, or through a Washington lobbyist," said Rep. Peter DuPont, R-Del.

"You just can't ignore the importance of meeting your constituents face to face to find out what they are thinking," DuPont said.

We've made a science of meat handling in the store!

For some time now, we've been telling our customers about Stop & Shop's revolutionary Marbro Meat Plant which enables us to maintain uniform cleanliness and tight quality control, allowing our beef to age carefully and naturally. This prompts some of my customers to ask me, "Can I be assured that these same high standards are maintained in the meat room in your store?"

The answer is an absolute "Yes!" Every Stop & Shop meat department is operating under the healthiest environmental and sanitary standards that meat has ever had in a supermarket. Our meat backrooms are kept at 45°... and at 32° to 34° in our refrigerator. These are the ideal temperatures for keeping meat fresh. It's controlled by our meat managers who've received extensive training in all aspects of meat handling, including sanitation and refrigeration standards, and this becomes part of their daily routine.

All equipment in the meat department was especially designed with sanitation in mind. For instance, we have eliminated the wooden chopping blocks which can encourage bacteria growth. They have been replaced by stainless steel and plastic cutting boards, non-porous for easy washing. In addition, we use high pressure hot water sprayers to sanitize our equipment, and display cases.

This all goes to show, there's more to Quality Protected Beef than meets the eye!

Bill Would Set Value On Wives

BOSTON (UPI) — Legislation putting a dollar value on household chores and child-bearing in divorce settlements has been introduced in Massachusetts by the state bar association.

Sponsors say the aim is to make the housewife an economic equal in determining who gets what when a marriage is dissolved.

Attorney Monroe Inker, Domestic Relations expert who drafted the bill for the association, said present law does not determine how a family's assets should be divided in divorce, and as a result the housewife often is not compensated for cooking, cleaning, child care and other household duties.

The legislation makes the wife an "economic partner and treats household work and child rearing with the same respect as if the wife were a lawyer or a stock broker," Inker said.

Actual dollar determination would be made by the judge hearing the case.

Consideration would be given to length of marriage, health, source of income, job skills and employability. The statute also provides that, under certain circumstances the wife would pay alimony to the husband.

South Windsor Community Use of Schools To Be Pursued by Board

JUDY KUEHNEL
Correspondent
644-1364

The Board of Education, at its recent meeting, unanimously agreed to pursue the goals suggested by the Mott Foundation for the planning of community use of town buildings.

Dr. Goldman said that the school system is possibly the "key element" because of existing buildings, grounds, equipment and trained personnel.

The Mott Foundation is an organization which offers free education in the concept of better and more versatile use of buildings, cooperative planning and unified programs.

Dr. Goldman cited the fact that eight school libraries sit vacant all summer long, as well as athletic equipment and many school facilities.

He suggested that by acceptance of the services offered by the foundation, town programs could be expanded "without more capital spending."

Recreation Department

The South Windsor Recreation Department has scheduled organizational meetings for both men's and women's golf leagues.

All women interested in joining may attend a meeting Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Town Hall council chambers.

Men will meet March 27, 7:30 p.m., also in the council chambers. The men's league will play Wednesday evenings at the Red Rock Golf Course with starting times between 4:30 and 5:30 p.m.

It should be noted that there is no need to be a "pro golfer" to join either league; that recreation is the main factor.

League play will begin in May. Anyone interested in participating as an alternate is also invited. For further information please call the Recreation Department, Town Hall, 64-2311, between 8:30 and 4 p.m.

Men's Softball League

An organizational meeting for a Men's Softball League will be held April 3, 7 p.m. in the Public Commission Meeting Room, second floor, Town Hall.

Antismoking Crusaders Zero in on Billboards

By MICHAEL J. CONLON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The antismoking crusaders are now taking aim at those bigger-than-life cowboys and bathing beauties who, cigarette in hand, smile down on the nation's motorists from billboards across the country.

Action on Smoking and Health (ASH), a nonprofit group which played a big role in the passage of the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) ban on tobacco advertising on billboards.

One of their primary arguments is that children, even before they can read, are exposed to super-sized authority figures, happy, healthy — and smoking. The billboards force themselves on the occupants of a passing car, the group contends, and may have an uncontrolled subliminal impact, especially on the young.

"Warning: 'Too Small!'"

In addition to the organization's petition to the FTC contending that the present health warning, required by law on all outdoor tobacco advertising, is "too small to read from more than 100 feet" in a passing car. It is not "clear and conspicuous" as the law mandates, ASH says.

A passerby in a car traveling 30 miles an hour passing within 20 feet of a cigarette billboard would have about 2.6 seconds to read the warning, the group contends.

"The warning required on the cigarette billboards is 14 words in length. An average reading speed for adult, educated, literate Americans is approximately 250 words per minute."

"Thus, even assuming that the motorist instantly located the warning, and looked directly at it during the entire period that he was within viewing range, he would not be able to read the 14 words of the warning in 2.6 seconds."

Baker To Keynote GOP Meeting

HARTFORD (UPI) — Sen. Howard H. Baker, R-Tenn., has agreed to be the keynote speaker at the Republican State Convention June 21 in Hartford.

Baker, a possible GOP presidential candidate, served on the Watergate investigating committee with Sen. Lowell P. Weicker, R-Conn.

One wrinkle in Baker's promised appearance is that the convention might not be held on the 21st.

The legislature may approve and Gov. Thomas J. Meskill might sign a law shortening the election calendar.

If this happens the convention would be moved to sometime in July.

The Hartford Courant reported Baker is uncertain whether he could rearrange his schedule to fit a possible new convention date.

State of Religion Overseas Concerns Bishops

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
WASHINGTON (UPI) — American church-goers, accustomed to a large measure of religious freedom and tolerance, do not usually pay a great deal of attention to the state of religion overseas. Some specific cases do attract attention. The long and lonely stand of Cardinal Josef Mindszenty against the Communist regime in Hungary and the outspoken stance of Methodist bishop Abel T. Muzorewa against the apartheid policies of Ian Smith's Rhodesian regime are both examples of exceptions that have caught the attention of American church people.

But American Roman Catholics, with the leadership of Philadelphia's Cardinal John Krol, president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, and Bishop James Rausch, general secretary of the bishops' action arm, the United States Catholic Conference, are being pressed to change that indifference.

Violations of Human Rights

The administrative committee of the USCC, for the first time in history, has criticized the governments of Brazil and Chile, protesting alleged violations of human rights in the two countries and urging an American foreign aid in their policies do not change.

The committee, made up of 28 bishops, said it was "compelled to focus attention" on the situation in Brazil because of the "level to which respect for human rights has deteriorated in that country."

In making their charges against Brazil, the bishops said the Brazilian government has made "continuous efforts" to eliminate sources of dissent "in the public sector — in youth groups, political parties, labor unions, peasant associations."

"One of the last remaining organizing voices in Brazil's society with power to speak in opposition to repressive government tactics is the church and this obviously places it in a most vulnerable position," the committee said.

Examine Military Assistance

The bishops called on the U.S. government to "examine closely" economic and military assistance to Brazil "to be certain they are not used in the denial of human rights."

They also called on the private sector, especially policy makers in multinational corporations and financial institutions to "assess the social consequences of their present or contemplated investments in Brazil."

In terms of Chile, where a military coup took place last September, the bishops said they were "deeply distressed" by violations of human rights.

"We are also concerned," they said, "that in the face of these violations our government is escalating its financial aid to the Chilean government."

With the exception of humanitarian aid, the bishops said the United States should "condition its financial aid and military assistance to Chile on human and civil rights have been restored in that country."

The statements on Chile and Brazil were issued in support and solidarity with the Catholic churches in those countries and both noted a previous resolution of the United Nations' Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

Rausch has been one of the primary forces pushing for an increased international awareness especially with regard to the United Nations' Human Rights Declaration — on the part of American Catholics.

Insurer Insures Unusual
By PAUL CORCORAN
BOSTON (UPI) — "What's it take to insure three tons of trucking wheel?" The very big imagination of The Yarchin Company.

So reads an advertising brochure which points out that the firm insures "the usual and the unusual in business."

The parent firm, A. Yarchin & Co., is headquartered here. Its chairman and chief executive officer is Percy Yarchin, a balding New Englander with the firm 20 years.

Yarchin, a subsidiary of Esmark, Inc., insures a variety of business ventures and has written coverage for such things as accidental death of whales and other aquatic life at the Seagrarium in Florida and a lion during an airplane ride for a Hollywood promotional stunt.

Close Association

"The firm was started by Abe Yarchin, a pioneer in dealing with insurance needs of the movie industry and theater," said Marcus. Yarchin developed a close association with the movie industry at a time when movie houses were not regarded as good risks, and at this date still have maintained that relationship.

Marcus recalled a telephone call from the manager of a drive-in theater who said he was sitting there watching one of his screens collapse and asked what he should do. "Why don't you get a skyhook?" Marcus asked.

"Well, he called in a derrick and hooked it on to be up on the screen for the movies that night. He called me the next day and said 'Thanks. We did get him reimbursed for the derrick and the screen.'"

Strange Claims

Marcus also recalled a claim for the deaths of marine animals at the Seagrarium. "A plane flew over the tanks and something fell out of it and killed some fish. It was a one in a thousand kind of deal. We finally showed that something had indeed fallen out of it and got payment for the fish."

Even among more traditional business strange claims have been filed.

"We used to insure bars in Boston," said Marcus. "The owner of one of them saw his bartender take money from customers, then put part of it in his pocket and part in the register. The owner asked him about it and the guy says, 'We're splitting; we're partners.' The owner put in a claim for theft. We asked if he had fired the guy and he says, 'Fire him? He told me he was so poor that I gave him a raise.' It's a true story."

Russians Irrigate Iraqis
 News for Senior Citizens
 By Wally Fortin

By JOHN LECH
 London Financial Times

CAIRO - There is evidence that Iraq, whose relations with the Soviet Union have perhaps been the closest of any Arab country, is becoming increasingly irritated with its Russian partners.

The trouble is coming to a head as a result, ironically, of the energy crisis in Iraq. West. The Russians have not been above taking economic advantage of the rising price of oil and they have particularly angered the Iraqis by selling to West Germany for $40 million, oil bought from the Iraqis in 1973 for $13 million in exchange for arms.

Moreover, to add insult to injury, Moscow said the oil before the Iraqis have even delivered it and Baghdad is so incensed that it is trying to prevent the deal from going through.

The Soviet Union has an increasing need to buy oil from the Middle East because it has large commitments to its East European allies, it is having trouble bringing in the vast new Siberian fields and needs to sell to the West for hard currency.

According to recent reports, Czechoslovakia, for instance, imports 90 per cent of its oil needs from the Soviet Union, and Hungary and Poland also rely heavily on the Russians.

In all, some 364 million barrels of Russia's total exports in 1972 of $60 million barrels, went to Eastern Europe and other friendly countries such as Cuba, Mongolia, North Korea and North Vietnam.

Iraq has concluded arrangements for Soviet loans which must be repaid in crude oil until December, 1980, and dissatisfaction over the profits the Russians are making in the present oil crisis is widespread.

Iraq intends to boost its oil production from 2.1 million barrels a day to 3.5 million barrels by next year and there seems little doubt it will be looking to the West, rather than to the East, for its customers.

Behind the scenes and responsible for setting up, and moving around the props for the different acts were Blandine Millette, Manny Soona, Kas Kowalecki, Ruth McElreavy, Don Riberty and Marilyn Hagler. These folks did a tremendous job, and we certainly would have been lost without them. So thank you all for your hard work, and the long hours you volunteered to help us.

It was good to see Mr. and Mrs. Robert Weiss in the audience, and happy they were able to make it.

Sirica Stresses Three Points In Report Issue

By GEORGE J. MARDER
 WASHINGTON (UPI) - Judge John J. Sirica emphasized three points in his report on the Watergate grand jury to the House Judiciary Committee.

His first point was that grand jury proceedings are not 100 per cent secret. Information by a grand jury can and has been turned over to police disciplinary investigations. Grand juries have promised to try to complete investigation by May 1, although there have been warnings that the delay in getting White House tapes and other material make this impossible.

But the trials are not scheduled until possibly fall. This could mean that the decision on impeachment could be made before the trials start.

The third point Sirica emphasized was that the grand jury had showed restraint in its report and "throughout has acted in the interests of fairness."

Sirica made clear he was not deciding on the relevancy of the grand jury material. That will be something for the judiciary committee to weigh when it decides what is an impeachable offense.

New Chamber Members Welcomed

Some 20 new members were welcomed into the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce at an orientation breakfast this morning at the Manchester Country Club.

Vernon

LWV Favors Merging Planning, Zoning Units

BARBARA RICHMOND
Culminating an 18-month study, concerning several aspects of planning and zoning in Vernon, the League of Women Voters has decided the Planning and Zoning Commissions should be combined and made into one.

through available courses and seminars and such. The league members said there doesn't appear to be a direct relationship between the two boards, Mrs. Madeline Turk, president of the league, said "Ideally, the league would like these changes to be instituted."

Based on the recommendation of the American Society of Planning Officials that planning and zoning commissions should be combined, the league conducted a survey of local officials and regions in the area. The survey resulted in varying opinions but it is the consensus of league members that the two should be one.

The survey report listed as reasons for this opinion: To increase communication between the planning and zoning officials; to obtain close working agreement between the Master Plan of Development and the zoning regulations; and to facilitate presentation for large scale developments before joint, rather than separate commissions.

While agreeing that the members of the commissions should be appointed, as they are now, rather than elected, the league feels the term of office of any member on a commission should be limited to non-consecutive five-year terms.

Updating of the Master Plan of Development for Vernon, the league is recommending that these sessions be open to the public except when the economic consideration of the town or the reputation of a person is involved.

It was also suggested that the make-up of the commission include members having varied skills and knowledge; that qualified persons may be more willing to accept appointments rather than run for office; that the controversial nature of some applications might discourage elected members from taking a strong stand; and members should seek to educate themselves in current land use tools and techniques.

Explode Four Myths On Energy Problem, Rotary Club Told

A petroleum spokesman Tuesday said the current energy problem "will never be solved" until four myths are exploded: (1) That oil companies have conspired to create the energy shortage; (2) that they are making exorbitant profits; (3) that they failed to warn the public; and (4) that the U.S. may run out of petroleum.

Edward J. Heidelberg, a retail marketer for the Gulf Oil Co. said "There's not a shred of evidence to support the conspiracy charge, yet it has been repeated so often that it has gained a seeming credibility."

Heidelberg said the U.S. is not running out of gas and oil; the Arab embargo, he said, it has been developing for 20 years, and during that time the petroleum industry has consistently issued warnings.

Italian Foods Now A Luxury

By WARREN TALBOT
PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) - For more than 30 years Ennio Fioravanti has run what he likes to call a "friendly little Italian supermarket."

Even domestic oils have risen in price, Mike Bochiochio, the head chef at the Old Canteen Italian restaurant, said the wholesale price for a five gallon drum of vegetable oil has increased in the last month from $17 to $22.50.

However, restaurant prices have not yet increased, because Bochiochio has stockpiles of many of the items that have gone up in price. "When you do business with one supplier for a long time, they tell you when the prices will be going so that you can buy a bunch," he said.

Gonorrhea Increase Reported
HARTFORD (UPI) - The reported number of gonorrhea cases was 73 per cent higher in January and February of 1974 than in the same period a year ago, the Connecticut Health Department reports.

Commissioner Douglas S. Lloyd said 1,191 cases were reported in the two month period this year as opposed to 687 cases during the first two months of 1973.

The percentage does not necessarily mean a marked increase in disease incidents, but is attributable to other factors said Jerry Dabbs, an adviser to the department's venereal disease section.

Dabbs also cited a new state law allowing minors to be examined by a doctor without parental consent plus an increase in the number of free Health Department-sponsored clinics in the state. There are now more than 25 available through local health directors.
