White House Press Relations to Change

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Things are going to be different at the White House, promises President Ford's press secretary, Jerald F. Horst. No longer, he says, will the White House media efforts be a "Madison Avenue PR (public relations) approach. This is going to be a professional operation, not a politicized operation." Horst told the White House press corps that political issues will be left to the GOP. Ford wants to hold a news conference but has not had time to consider such things, Horst said, although he promised "sooner rather than later." As press secretary, he said, "I hope to run a very professional shop here, representing the President of the United States." Horst was aware of the animosity which built up over the years between the media and the White House press officers, particularly his predecessor, Ronald L. Ziegler. Some of the old animosity re-emerged Friday when reporters pressed Horst to explain what role the White

NEWS FOR SENIOR CITIZENS

By WALLY FORTIN

Hi! It's that time again, and once again it's time for signing up for another trip. Starting Monday morning and throughout the week we will be taking reservations for the Bear Mountain trip. The complete package for the trip will include a very early 6:30 a.m. bus ride to New York City where we will go aboard a large boat for a cruise up the Hudson River to Bear Mountain. We meet our buses there and ride up the mountain to the inn for a large buffet meal. While there, we will have time to browse around the area, and take in some interesting and exciting sites. From there it's back on the buses and on for a ride through West Point, stopping there for some more sight-seeing before we head back home.

All this for $13 per person, and I've already received word from the man upstairs that the weather is going to be just fine. Now the trip isn't until Thursday, Sept. 12, but we must register now to be sure we get the buses, and also to put our order in for the boat and meal. We will be able to take as many buses as we can fill so there really isn't the need to rush or get up too early. Registration starts around 8:30, but I'm sure there will be a line already forming by then.

Bowling League
OK, now let's get on to the business that transpired here at the center. I guess we started with Tuesday and it was sort of a quiet day as far as action goes. We had about four persons out on the lanes in the morning, and in the afternoon it was our Senior Summer Bowling at the Parkade Lanes. Speaking of bowling, here's a very important announcement. Although it's still August plans must now be made for the coming Senior Bowling League. Therefore we will hold an organizational meeting at the Parkade Lanes on Tuesday, Aug. 27, at 1 p.m. This meeting is open to all Manchester Seniors, both those who have played in the league over the years and especially open for new members. So if you like bowling, come on down to this meeting. Remember, you don't have to be a good bowler to join. You only have to hit any particular score to get on a team. It's strictly a fun league; in fact, if you never bowled before you will be a member of Bernie Glavin's Parkade Lanes staff to instruct you for free. It makes for one afternoon of fun a week with your own peers, and at the end of a season all bowlers are invited to an excellent banquet. So let's put this date down, and if by chance you want to bowl but can't make the meeting, give Bernie a call at your home. The regular Senior Bowling League will start on Tuesday, Sept. 3. Another reminder about our Red Sox game scheduled for Wednesday, Oct. 2. We have only 80 tickets. Registration won't be until Sept. 9, so this is just to keep you posted. Another reminder is that this coming week will be our last week for activities here at the center. We will close for the week of Aug. 28 through Sept. 2. This is to give us a chance to condition the floors for another anticipated big season. We will be open for business, and shuffleboard that week, and our official programs will start on Tuesday, Sept. 3. Scheduled for the week Monday, 10 a.m. to noon, kitchen social bingo, one can of canned goods needed, noon to 4 p.m., pinocle games. Bus pickup at 8:30 a.m. return trip at noon and 4 p.m. Tuesday, 10 a.m. to noon, shuffleboard games, also pick up for shopping; 1 p.m., summer bowling league at the Parkade Lanes, 1:30 p.m., return trip from shopping. Wednesday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., bridge games and shuffleboard. Bus pickup at 8:30 a.m., return trip at noon and 4 p.m. Thursday, 9:30 a.m. bus trip to Rocky Point, open shuffleboard and card games. No special programs planned, and our bus will not operate this day. Friday, 10 a.m. to noon, kitchen social bingo, one can of canned goods needed; 1 p.m. to 4 p.m., setback games. Bus pickup at 8:30 a.m., return trip at noon, and again at 4 p.m. Our most heartfelt condolences go out to our member Nellie McMillan on the loss of her daughter who passed away this week.

Summer Youth Employment

A town work program involving more than 80 teenagers has been so successful this summer that one town leader said, "We would dearly love to see it expanded and made year round." The program is made possible by a Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) grant from the federal Department of Labor. The City of Hartford won the grant for the 29-town region. The work experience portion paying for summer jobs for teens totals $1,489,000. Hartford subcontracted the operation of the program to the Community Renewal Team of Hartford (CRT) which has been handling programs for youth in the city since 1965, according to Miss Barbara Bishop, a member of the city's personnel department. Hartford subcontracted the operation of the program to the Community Renewal Team of Hartford (CRT) which has been handling programs for youth in the city since 1965, according to Miss Barbara Bishop, a member of the city's personnel department. Hartford subcontracted the operation of the program to the Community Renewal Team of Hartford (CRT) which has been handling programs for youth in the city since 1965, according to Miss Barbara Bishop, a member of the city's personnel department.

Teens eligible for the jobs which pay $7.31 per week must be between 14 and 21 and be members of families with low incomes. A total of 3,800 kids have run part in the program. Manchester was authorized 150 job slots if enough jobs and youths could be put together. The program here began with over 90 and had over 70 as the six-week program drew to a close Friday. This is the first year federal monies have been given out to benefit the youths in all 29 towns in programs like this, according to Del Watson, youth director at CRT. There were some federal funds given out last year to hire youths in some of the towns. It was part of the Neighborhood Youth Corps also run by CRT. Several town leaders have said the program as a whole did not work, especially when compared to the success of this summer. Among the reasons they say the city's program worked this summer are the directors who had been in the area towns and the crew leaders working with groups of as many as 10 youths. The basic leadership at CRT is the same. "We learn through experience," said Watson. "We welcome positive criticism."

Make It Annual
Robert Digan, director of Youth Services in Manchester, said he was pleased the program worked so well this year. "The key is the supervisors," he said adding that last year's experience better prepared the town to use the youths well this year. Digan said he recommended many youths to the program in hopes they would do it proud and it would help them. Many of them could use the money and the work experience, he said. "We feel these kids have gotten a great deal out of it," Digan said. They're developing working skills and getting paid for it. We hope it will carry over to school. Due to the program's success this year, Digan said he hoped it could be expanded to run the whole year. It would be worth it to the town to support it if federal monies cannot be found. "There are many jobs that can be done all year," he said. "The Chamber of Commerce and the community should be involved." Senior citizens could use their work. "It could be tied into the school programs for credit in certain jobs." "These kids have earned a taste of what it's like to earn $9 a week for six weeks." "There's a need for the work these kids can do. They have a need for the money and a need to make work skills." "There's a need for this program all year," Digan said. Grades By Employers fire cracker in the sewage treatment plant," he said angrily. "There's methane gas all over the place. There could have been an explosion." The boy that threw the fire cracker had dealt with his crew leader and Jodanis added, in a calmer voice, "I like the idea of crew leaders. They can resolve some of the problems better than we can." Other "problems" have included complaints from the police that some of the youths, while out painting fire hydrants, added signs in some place. But Jodanis noted the large amount of work done by the youths at the treatment plant. He also pointed most of the hydrants in town. "Before he got through talking about them, he said, 'I'd do it again next year.'"

Charles Crocini, plant engineer at Manchester Memorial Hospital, said he was "more than pleased." Most of the work at the hospital has been grounds keeping, weeding and trimming. During bad weather, they also worked with the director of volunteers making hand puppets and flower pots for the patients. "Frank Jodanis, superintendent of the Town Water Sewer Department, was contacted on a bad day. "One of those kids threw a

Have you been inside a church this summer? You have? That's nice. You visited a shrine? Took some splendid pictures, did you? Well, let me rephrase my question. Have you worshipped this summer? You thought about God on the golf course, at the beach, up in the mountains. That's nice. Well, let me rephrase my question. Have you been to your local parish for a regularly scheduled weekly worship service, since public school let out? If you haven't? The service is too early. The time is not convenient. The kids get restless. You gave at the office. Come now, don't put me on. When you joined your local parish you covenanted to make a part of your weekly routine (summer, winter, spring and

Some new ideas in hospital care . . .

Help Children Get Well Sooner

Thump, thump, thump. Listen and you will hear a sound like the one that the doctor hears when he listens to your heartbeat. Patients often pretend that they are doctors and use real stethoscopes.

Some hospitals even give tea parties for children who are planning to enter. Over drinks and cookies, the patients-to-be listen while a nurse tells them what their visit will be like. Now they will know what to expect!

Happy children get well sooner. For this reason, many hospitals have playrooms for their pediatric (pe-de-AT-rik), or young, patients.

Some playrooms are run by specially trained "child-life" workers. Through play, these workers help children understand why they are sick and what will be done to help them.

Using dolls and pretending they are the doctor, the patients act out their operations while the child-life worker watches and answers questions. In this way, the children get a clear idea of what the doctors and nurses are doing and why.

Many hospitals let a parent stay with the child during the whole visit. The rooms have fold-out chairs for a mother or father to sleep on. Grandparents can visit as often as they like.

Left: The playrooms are like cheerful schoolrooms. Here children also see puppet shows, listen to stories, read, play and paint.

Maybe the doctor will make your doll a cast just like yours!

Mini Do: Sunshine Boxes

Make a sunshine box for a sick friend. A sunshine box is full of gifts. Each gift is marked to open at a certain time during the day.
 You can buy small gifts or make them yourself. Here are some ideas.

- You'll need:
- crayons • pencil
 - paper • scissors

• envelopes (You can put your gifts in envelopes that you have decorated and write the time they are to be opened on the outside.)

- 9:00—Picture puzzle—Draw a picture. Using a dark crayon, divide it into pieces. Cut it apart.
- 10:00—Color the picture—Draw a picture using your black crayon only. Let the patient color it.
- 11:00—A personal "Try 'n Find." For example: "The names of your favorite things are hidden in this block. Can you find them?"
- 12:00—Crossword puzzle—Make up one about your friend.
- 1:00—Finish the picture—Draw a picture and leave out some of the lines. Ask them to finish and color it.
- 2:00—Jokes—Illustrate some of your favorite jokes.
- 3:00—Dot-to-dot—Do one about their hobby.
- 4:00—Make a get well card.

Our Feathered Friends:

Peafowls

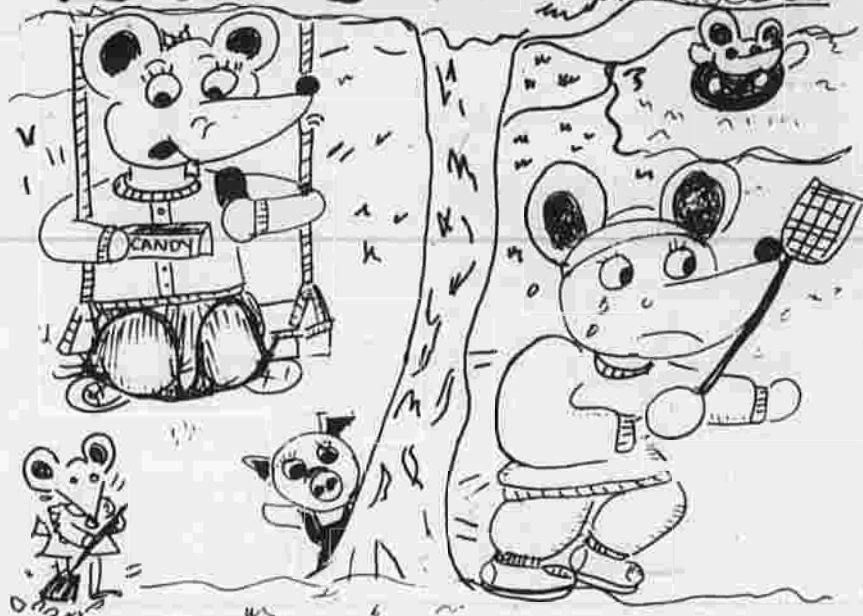

The male peafowl is called a peacock. The female is called a peahen.

In the wild, they live in the forests of India and Ceylon and eat such things as snails, snakes, insects and grains. They can fly. Maybe you have seen a tame peacock at a zoo.

The peacock has a long, beautiful train that he can hold up and spread out to make a big fan. These fans can be of many colors. This is the peacock's way of getting the peahen's attention during courtship. The peacock will also spread his fan for people.

The poor peahen does not have a beautiful train.
