

MARSHALL IS CONVICTED OF KILLING GIRL

Jury, Out All Night, Accepts Original Confession of Chiropractor in the Die- trich Murder.

Philadelphia, March 24.—David L. Marshall, chiropractor, on trial for the murder and dismemberment of Anna Mae Dietrich, was today found guilty by a jury of second degree murder. The jury gave its verdict to the judge at 10.45 this morning.

The case went to the jury at 9.05 last night. At 11.05 o'clock a verdict had not been reached and the jury was locked up until this morning when it again deliberated. Abraham Wernick, defense counsel, made the customary plea for four days for filing an appeal and it was granted.

The conviction is for the murder, Jan. 19 of Anna Mae Dietrich, 35, of Norwood, in one of Marshall's offices where he practiced chiropractic. Marshall signed a confession that he choked the pretty milliner to death. In court he repudiated this story and said she accidentally took poison.

He did admit that he dismembered her body and hid the pieces. Marshall appeared to have a premonition of conviction. He was extremely nervous when called into court today, rubbing his chin, drumming the table and talking earnestly with his counsel. The talk apparently left him more worried than ever.

The case has been on trial for 14 days and had brought out medical testimony from high-standing experts who flatly contradicted each other's theories.

It is understood that while the customary sentence for second degree murder is not less than five years, it may be extended to life imprisonment at the discretion of the judge.

DECLINES BLAME FOR ARMS FAILURE

Coolidge Will Go Ahead on Parley to Keep Record of America Clear.

Washington, March 24.—President Coolidge is determined that none of the blame for the possible failure of the League of Nations' forthcoming disarmament conference shall fall on American shoulders.

This was the explanation advanced in official quarters today for the decision to go ahead with plans for complete American cooperation, despite the preponderant belief among the highest administration officers that the conference is foredoomed to accomplish nothing if carried out on the lines already laid down.

Expect No Result
Neither the president nor any of his chief advisers, who include Secretary of State Kellogg, ex-Secretary State Hughes and the members of the American delegation to Geneva, believe that it will be possible to reduce armament on a basis of "potential war strength" rather than on a basis of existing armies and navies.

In deciding to go ahead with the plans despite misgivings which amount almost to conviction of the futility of the effort, the administration has departed somewhat from a fixed policy established by Charles E. Hughes as secretary of state.

The Hughes policy was to decline to participate in any European conference that did not give substantial promise of success. On that basis, Mr. Hughes "ducked" numerous "economic conferences" such as the memorable one promoted by then Premier Lloyd George at Genoa.

STRAW VOTE PASTOR RETAINS HIS CHURCH

Gets Backing of Majority of His Parishioners When "Tried" for Prohibition Test.

Dover, Mass., March 24.—Rev. Frederic H. Busher, of California, 26-year-old Boston University Theological School post-graduate student and pastor of the Evangelical Congregational church here, was retained in his pulpit by a vote of 31 to 25 at a special meeting of the parish, after "charges" that he had conducted a straw vote on the prohibition question had been aired.

Rev. Mr. Busher defied the congregation to oust him, declaring the prohibition straw vote had been used as a cloak to hide the real aims of his opponents in church work.

'PHARAOH DOOM' TAKES TWO MORE

Noted Egyptologists Die Shortly After Visiting the Tomb of King Tut.

London, March 24.—The legend of a mauling Pharaoh taking mortal vengeance upon all who visit his tomb was revived today with dispatches from Egypt announcing the death of two eminent Egyptologists. Both had recently paid visits to the tomb of King Tut-Ankh-Amen.

Georges Beneditte, curator of the Egyptian section of the Louvre, died at Luxor almost at the same moment as Paul Casanova, professor of Arabian literature at the college of France, died at Cairo.

Several principals connected with the exploration of the tomb of King Tut died before it was opened, giving rise to a theory that the walls of the sarcophagus were powered with a mysterious poison which brought death or serious illness to all who entered.

TOOLS WORTH $300 STOLEN BY BOYS

Mechanics from Various Sections of the Town Identify Their Property.

The police station looks like the sample room of a hardware store with the mechanics' tools that were stolen from plumbers and carpenters in the last two months by boys who consorted to the thefts Monday night.

When the tools were brought to the police station the mechanics who reported the robberies were summoned. It was a revelation to the police how the men picked out their own tools from the heaps that covered the floor. Not one mistake was made and this seemed strange for the tools included saws of the same make, new hammers, bits and chisels and other small tools that seemed alike in every particular but the owners seemed to find no difficulty in picking out their own property. They were all placed in separate piles and will be used as evidence when the trial comes up for no court was held yesterday as was at first reported. Just when the trial will be held in the juvenile court was not announced.

Much Loot.
Another thing that astonished the police is how three youngsters could steal such a large number of tools without being suspected. They kept very close mouthed about it and denied the thefts for a long time, even after being faced with the evidence. Then one boy broke down and the others followed suit.

It was reported yesterday that an 18 year old youth was the master mind that directed the trio. This young man is out of town. However the police have learned that he left Manchester a week before the first robbery was reported and has not been seen since, so he is not being sought. There is little doubt but that only the three boys were implicated.

Up to Probation Officer.
The matter is now out of the hands of the police and is up to the probation officer. He will make a separate investigation, make his report to the judge. It is likely that his recommendations will be followed as to what will be done with the youngsters.

Mystery still surrounds why the boys stole the tools. They said that they wanted to use them themselves but that does not explain why each boy wanted a half dozen saws and other tools in like proportions. Some of the tools the boys confessed they did not even know how to use. Not only tools were stolen but window sash, blow torches, a tool box, overalls, pieces of wire screening and lots of other odds and ends.

Valued at $300.
Estimates vary as to the value of the stuff stolen. A conservative estimate would place it at about $300.

Authorities are also at a loss to explain the outbreaks of juvenile crime in Manchester. In the past ten years all of the "breaks" reported, or almost every one, was found to be the work of young boys.

LAYS KAROLYI EXCLUSION TO FAKED PAPERS

Wheeler Shows "Reports" of Detectives, Paid for by Count Szechenyi, to Com- mittee in Secret Hearing.

Washington, March 24.—The proposed senatorial investigation into the activities of Count Laszlo Szechenyi, Hungarian minister to the United States, in connection with the exclusion of the Countess Karolyi, was considered in secret session today by the Senate foreign relations committee.

Senator Wheeler, (Dem. of Montana), who sponsored a resolution calling for the investigation, appeared before the committee to present evidence bearing upon his charges against the Hungarian minister.

Detectives' Reports.
Wheeler was said to have in his possession a series of "reports" from a New York detective agency, which was employed by Szechenyi to trail the countess and her husband, former president of Hungary, on a previous visit to the United States. These reports were said to be the basis of Wheeler's charges against the diplomat.

Wheeler charged that the exclusion of the Countess Karolyi resulted from the "forging of certain documents which tended to connect her with certain undesirable organizations with whom the United States is not on friendly terms." Cost $20,000.

This information of "an unfavorable and fictitious character" was turned over to the Hungarian minister, who paid the detective agency $20,000, according to Wheeler. Wheeler further charged that this information was used by Szechenyi in a report to the State Department, and as a result of such misrepresentations, the countess was excluded.

BASEBALL CONTEST KEEPS YOUTHS BUSY

Manchester Fellows Picking Favorite Ball Player for Herald Game.

Every boy in Manchester, 16 years old or under, is interested in the Baseball Contest which is being sponsored by The Herald in conjunction with the NEA Service, the big newspaper feature supply organization. Boys in over 350 cities scattered throughout the United States are enthused over this same contest. Letters are coming to The Herald office bearing local youths' 200 word stories on their favorite big league players.

The author of one of these letters is going to see a big league game this season absolutely free as guest of The Herald.

And if some one of these young writers and baseball lovers writes the best letter among all those from the 350 other cities in the country he will see his favorite player in the opening season game and will present him with a silver cup.

Boys get busy. Pick your favorite big league player. Then write a 200 word story or why he is your favorite. There isn't any catch in it, fellows. It doesn't have to be exactly 200 words as some of you have thought. It shouldn't be much over or under 200 and it should be clearly written on a fair quality of paper. Remember, your letter counts as a vote for your favorite, and then the story that you write will help determine whether you win the prize or not.

The contest is open to any boy in Manchester, 16 or under, and closes at midnight, March 31. Get your material together, and write a good story. We want a Manchester boy to win the nation-wide contest. But, if no local boy is that lucky The Herald will get Billy Evans, famous American League umpire, to pick a winner among the Manchester letters, and The Herald will send him to a big league game.

SNIPER CARTER, DENIED RETRIAL, DIES JULY 9.

Omaha, Neb., March 24.—Frank Carter, Omaha sniper, was denied a new trial by Judge Goss this morning, and the date of his electrocution set for July 9.

Carter was convicted Saturday on first degree murder for the death of Dr. Austin D. Searles, whom he shot in Omaha on Feb. 17. Carter also killed William McDewitt in an attempt at robbery.

World's Danger Spot

Map showing the Polish Corridor, the key to the European situation.

EXPERT POINTS OUT CRATER OF A GREAT WAR VOLCANO

Bakeless, Winner of Wells Prize, Sees Next World Conflict Centering on the Polish Corridor; An In- soluble Problem.

New York, March 24.—That "next great war"—

The next terrific explosion in international relationships signaling the rush of millions to arms once more—

It will come over the narrow 50-mile strip of territory which is Poland's outlet to the free city of Danzig and the sea, as John Bakeless forecasts it.

Bakeless does not wear the garb of a prophet. He speaks rather with the calm assurance of one who watches chess moves and divines the certain finish of the game which these moves construct.

He became a recognized authority when he won the Wells prize for his "Economic Causes of War." And now he is about to attract widespread attention with his book "The Origin of the Next War."

Polish Soil.
Of the "Polish Corridor" as the corner of the earth where the next conflict is brewing, John Bakeless says:

"This narrow strip of 50 miles, while it constitutes only one of the many explosion centers of the world, is the logical point for a great blast.

"It has been declared Polish soil in perpetuity, thus severing East Prussia from the rest of the Reich. It is one of those situations in which the stands of both Poland and Germany are justifiable.

"Poland must reach the sea. But Germany cannot be severed. If you decide for Germany, Poland cannot reach the sea. If you decide for Poland, Germany must be split. Naturally it is infuriating.

"The Poles realize their danger and aspire to naval strength, building a new port at Gdengen, outside the free port of Danzig.

"It is a matter of trying to make people see what is happening," he pleads. "If peoples are to go to war, it is only right that they should know the facts. It is only through education on the part of the young classes of modern war that we may hope for peace.

Would Be Forgotten
"Recently we listened to the cheers of the world over the League of Nations to realize the in trigue below the surface. And I am not an anti-Leagueur. I am a mere recorder and interpreter.

"We are inclined to say just now that the nations are all too crippled; that the peoples are too tired or war. But the next generations are not likely to feel oppressed by any burden of guilt for events that happened before they were born.

"As to the Poles and Germans were left to themselves the situation would be adjusted as soon as Germany felt strong enough.

FLOOD MENACE GROWS AS THAW FOLLOWS RAIN

Connecticut River, Ice Begins to Break at Northampton; Jams in Maine Threaten to Give Way.

Boston, March 24.—A thaw, following a night of rain, caused renewal of the flood menace from swollen rivers and reservoirs.

Ice was reported breaking up in the Connecticut river near Northampton and the water level was more than a foot higher.

With small streams in northern Vermont overflowing their banks, roads were in serious condition today, hampering the operation of bus lines around St. Albans and Burlington.

The St. Croix river on the Canada-Maine border was rising. Ice threatened to move in Maine rivers at any time. Repairs were being made to the Coast Guard cutter Osage today to enable her to get back to her task of clearing a channel through the ice in the Penobscot river from Bangor to the sea to relieve the water pressure.

At Nashua, N. H., a new bridge is under construction and it was feared that floods on the Merrimack river would undermine the new structure. It is feared that two-foot thick ice in the river will break up soon.

Water was flowing high over the dams in New Hampshire and Maine. A street car cave-in over a culvert in Manchester, N. H. did some damage.

THERMITE WINS Oil City Peril Over After Loss of Nearly Million.

Oil City, Pa., March 24.—Science today claimed a complete victory over the mammoth ice gorges in the Allegheny river here and at Franklin, while both cities were breathing easier again with the flood menace gone.

After being jammed with ice, frozen to the river bottom all winter, the stream between here and Franklin was clear of all ice this morning, the Brandon gorge having been dislodged last night by thermite, the ice-destroying chemical.

Within a few minutes after the great gorge moved out the river fell three feet and continued receding. Meantime, the water in Oil Creek, tributary of the Allegheny, was dropping and the flood waters rapidly left the city's business section.

There was little fear that another flood situation would result here from the movement of the Kinzua gorge, 60 miles up the river. This gorge moved a few hundred feet yesterday, but became jammed again.

By the time the Kinzua ice roared here it will be disintegrated to a point where there will be no danger of it jamming here, according to the belief expressed by ice experts.

Many business houses were reopened today, but it will require some time to put others in condition again. The entire populace was busy repairing the damage of the flood, estimated at close to a million dollars.

DRY PROSECUTOR SEEKS SENATORSHIP AS WET Former U. S. Attorney Declares That Prohibition Can't Even Dent Rum Supply.

Washington, March 24.—Convicted, he said, by four years of prosecuting liquor cases the enforcement of the Volstead law is impossible, Frank J. Kelly today announced his candidacy for the Senate from Wisconsin on a beer and wine platform.

Kelly, who for four years was assistant district attorney here in charge of prohibition prosecutions, will oppose Senator Irving L. Lenroot in the primaries on Sept. 7.

"While I obtained convictions as high as 98 per cent over a period of months," said Kelly, "I never found it possible to keep even a part of the capital dry, or really make a dent in the liquor supply." Prohibition can not be enforced.

MEXICO BANS GREASER STATE

Baths or Jail for All the Un- washed and Shots for Those Who Flee.

Mexico City, March 24.—Bathing has become compulsory in Mexico City.

The police and health departments have combined and issued instructions that their agents arrest on sight any person who unmistakably neglects a bath.

Public bath houses are doing a rushing business. One man fled when informed by the police that he was due for a bath, but a shot from the revolver brought him to his senses quickly and he rushed off for soap and towel.

CAPTURE NINTH OF WHITTEMORE GANG

Police Get "The Duke", Last Important Member of the Worst Criminal Group.

New York, March 24.—William J. Unkelback, known as "The Duke," is in the hands of the police today, charged with being the last important member of the Whittemore "night club" gang.

Unkelback is the ninth member of the gang, regarded as the most vicious and dangerous crook organization ever corralled by the New York authorities, to be arrested.

Reading of Case.
He was captured in his apartment here as he lay on a bed reading newspapers detailing the indictments and cross-examination of Richard Reese Whittemore, the latter's wife, Mrs. Margaret Whittemore, and other members of the gang.

Unkelback, an ex-convict and dice addict, is specifically charged with complicity in the robbery of $200,000 worth of diamonds on January 11 when the gang held up Albert Goodwin and Emmanuel Veerman. He is also being held in connection with the murder of Simon Gilder, whose bullet-ridden body was found near Trinity church last December.

Woman in Deal
Mrs. Whittemore attempted to make a deal with Goodwin's brothers, who were robbed of $170,000 in jewels, for the return of the loot, police inspector, police inspector John E. Coughlin, announced today.

Unkelback told the police today that any member of the gang who questioned the authority of Whittemore or his division of spoils, was killed.

NORBECK FAR AHEAD IN S. DAKOTA POLLING

Has 15,000 Lead Over Dan- forth, Coolidge Republican, in Senatorial Primaries.

Pierre, S. D., March 24.—United States Senator Peter Norbeck won a smashing victory in the Republican primary election yesterday, defeating George Danforth, Sioux Falls attorney and Coolidge Republican candidate.

With his majority rolling steadily forward, the senior senator apparently will register one of the largest votes in his long career in South Dakota politics. Winning of the Republican primary is usually tantamount to winning the election.

Gov. Carl Gunderson, who has not been in entire harmony with Senator Norbeck, also appeared to be safely across the line, with a smaller majority.

Senator Norbeck also saw in the election an endorsement of his personal integrity. During the bitter campaign he had been charged with benefiting unfairly from loans of the rural credits department, in which a huge deficit was discovered, resulting in A. W. Everts, treasurer, being sentenced to prison.

HALT CHAPMAN STRATEGY TILL EVE OF DEATH

Lawyers Put Off the Final Move Till Next Week; To Appeal to Pardons Board at Very Last.

Hartford, March 24.—Court action to stop the hanging of Gerald Chapman on the morning of April 6 will not be instituted until a short time before that date.

Because of the illness of Attorney Charles W. Murphy, of Danbury, postponement from today until tomorrow afternoon was announced here this noon of a conference of Chapman's lawyers that was to be held in the office of Judge Frederick J. Groehl in the Woodwork building, New York, today.

Upon the arrival here today of Attorney Ray M. Wiley, of Springfield, Mass., Wiley and Joseph Friedman, of Hartford, went to the state prison at Wethersfield to get Chapman's signature to an affidavit relating to the "one or two little things" that Judge Groehl discussed with Chapman at the prison yesterday afternoon.

No Move Till Next Week.
Mr. Friedman said today there would be no motion in either the Connecticut state courts nor in the federal courts, in Connecticut or in New York, until early next week and that tomorrow's conference was for the purpose of starting the final move whereby Chapman expects to escape the noose.

According to Mr. Friedman, applications for a writ of habeas corpus to the State Board of Pardons, though Chapman himself is not enthusiastic over the procedure. He says that an appeal to the Board of Pardons is asking for mercy, whereas, he says, he wants justice.

Several additional newspapermen from New York and from Boston sought Warden H. K. W. Scott today for permits to witness the hanging but he made no such instance was obliged to call attention to the state statutes which specify that "representatives of not more than five newspapers in the county where the crime was committed" may be admitted to a hanging.

Press Room.
Warden Scott has granted permission to string telegraph wires into the prison and will allow the Board of Pardons' room to be fitted up as a press headquarters and telegraphers' room. Warden Scott finds he has a precedent dating back in 1894, when the first hanging at the State Prison was held and representatives of metropolitan newspapers were present.

Two women, one in Philadelphia, and the other in New Britain, are being sought by Chapman's lawyers.

"If we can get these women to come around, we believe we can get a retrial," said Friedman.

Gregory's Reports
New York, March 24.—It is reported that Gregory, the missing Chapman witness, has been located and has revealed his whereabouts.

It was reported at Groehl's offices that Gregory had telegraphed from Washington stating his readiness to appear when needed.

DAUGHTER OF NOTED NEGRO A SUICIDE

Elizabeth Lewis, Whose Father Was Harvard Grid Star, Dead by Her Own Act.

Cambridge, Mass., March 24.—Police today were conducting an investigation into the death by hanging of Miss Elizabeth Lewis, 21 year old Cambridge school teacher. She was the daughter of former U. S. District Attorney William H. Lewis, negro and one-time Harvard football player. No reason was assigned for her act, except her father's declaration that she was suffering from overstudy. Th girl, while at Radcliffe college, was acknowledged the most popular girl, and voted the handsomest in her class.

The discovery that she was a suicide was not made until the filing of the death certificate yesterday, although her body was consigned to its grave on March 19.

Medical Examiner David C. Dow who conducted an autopsy on the body after death, refused to give out the cause "because her father had asked him to suppress it."

Today the father was in New York waiting for an ocean liner which is bringing the girl's mother home from a European trip where she had attended the wedding ceremony of her daughter, Dorothy in France.

Who's Who Vote Being Taken Now at the High School Here

Who's Who in the class of '26? This is the big question which is now being voted on by the members of the senior class at the South Manchester High school. Ballots were distributed yesterday to the members of the class. They are being voted on now. Final result of the tabulations will not be available for some time, however, as those in charge are planning to keep the results secret until the graduation issue of the school paper, The Somanis Events.

Judging from several of the items printed on the ballots, the results will bring about some startling revelations. The ballots call for answers regarding the most popular girl and boy students. Some of the questions will doubtless produce most embarrassing results—that is, for the winners.

The ballots were composed by Miss Edith Rogers, teacher of senior English, and Miss Marjorie Smith, senior student. Miss Rogers is faculty adviser for the class book and it was largely to her credit that the ballot idea was devised. Miss Smith was the one who suggested the questions which the versatile students must answer in the poll follows:

Best arguer.

"SPONSORSHIP PLEDGE" MADE BY LOCAL WOMAN

Near East Relief Gift of $100 Announced—All Sizes of Contributions Desired.

An orphan "sponsorship" or pledge of $100, which will care for a Near East orphan for one year has already been received this week by the Manchester Near East Relief Committee. This gift was announced yesterday. This gift was announced at the First Congregational church on Sunday, and is from a local woman. She will shortly receive the assignment of a particular child, with its picture and its story and occasional reports of its progress.

A total of about $150 was pledged by members of the church on Sunday while others are expected to make their gifts later.

Another sponsorship was taken a few weeks ago at the Second Congregational church by a local business man, and two pledges of $50 were also made through members of this congregation. The sum of $50 is known as an orphan "adoption", and is an orphan who has been adopted and sheltered for a child for one year, the $40 extra in the sponsorship providing for vocational training and medical care, and giving the child a personal relationship with the child.

"We should like Manchester to excel other cities of the state in the number of sponsorships taken in proportion to population," said W. W. Robertson, chairman of the committee, yesterday. "I do not believe any person who can afford to do so would refuse to give $100 when it means a child's life, as it does in the Near East. Sponsorships may be made at the rate of $1 a month if so desired by the givers."

"We shall be most grateful however, for gifts of any size. We should like to complete a substantial fund as soon as possible. Thinking in terms of children's meals, $5 cares for a child for a whole month; even $1 takes care of a child for almost a week."

In addition to the 35,000 children in the orphanages of the Near East Relief, there are about 5000 more who have been partially subsidized in homes of relatives. It is explained by members of the committee. The recent disturbances in Syria made it necessary for many of these families, who are refugees and were forced to leave their homes again or had their means of living curtailed, to send the children back into the orphanages until the conditions became settled again. This has made an additional expense recently for the Near East Relief. The 25,000 now cared for wholly by these orphanages have no known relatives whatever.

Givers in Manchester, it is said, may have their gifts credited to their churches if they desire.

TEACHER TRAINING COURSE IS ENDED

School of Religious Education Closes at St. Mary's Church; Has Been Successful.

Last night was the final session of the School of Religious Education and Teacher-Training, held in the St. Mary's Episcopal church under the auspices of the Manchester Council, of which Rev. J. Stuart Nell is president. One hundred and three have been registered for the entire course and there has been an average attendance of seventy-four. Plans are now in the hands of the executive committee looking toward a possible week-day or daily vacation Bible school to be held during the summer months. It was also the unanimous sentiment of the assembly last night that a standard course in teacher-training similar to the one just closing, be offered next fall and winter.

At the close of the second period study, the Women's Guild of the church served an excellent menu in the dining room. Chairman Nell took occasion to report the growth and interest in the work of the council as a community movement, by comparing the trepidation with which the possibility of a school of religious education had laymen four years ago and the phenomenal success of the school this year. He paid high tribute to the members of the faculty, and attributed the success of the ten weeks' course in no small measure to the personal and splendid efficiency of these men and women. Expressions of commendation and appreciation were enthusiastically presented to each member of the faculty, which included Professor Alexander C. Purdy, whose course in the New Testament and Life of Christ was enjoyed by the entire school, the first hour; Professor George Wells who taught in a most efficient manner the course in the Study of the Bible; Miss Bernice Hummer, whose course in Primary Methods and Materials was very popular among the primary teachers; and Mrs. Russell E. Waitt whose class of fifty-six was unanimous in their appreciation of her instruction in the Old Testament Prophets as Interpreters of God. The Professors on the faculty responded in a pleasing manner to the reception accorded each one of them in turn.

An interesting and encouraging feature of the closing session was the report of the treasurer, George H. Briggs, made through the chairman, to the effect that the council, though assuming for the first time entire responsibility for its program and faculty had operated on a sound financial basis and would close its successful ten weeks' course with a small but gratifying balance in the treasury. This was due to the splendid enrollment and to the growing interest and appreciation of the value of such a school to the churches and their educational work, by increasing numbers of friends in the church, as evidenced by a considerable number of free-will contributions and scholarships. Seven of the churches including the Salvation Army have loyally supported the work of the council, both financially and through the personal propagation of pastors, directors of education and superintendents of the various Sunday schools.

The Manchester Council of Religious Education, under the able leadership of its president, Rev. J. Stuart Nell, is to be congratulated on its forward-looking program, and has already received recognition and commendation from the Connecticut Council of Religious Education as successfully inaugurating and carrying through one of the outstanding standard community schools of religious education in the state.

PRIZE CHARLESTON

A championship Prize Charleston and a Prize Fox Trot will be held at Princess Hall, Rockville Saturday, March 27. Max Kabrick and his orchestra will furnish the music. A large delegation of Manchester people are planning to attend and try for the laurels. Cash prizes will be awarded to the winners.

DRUG PEDDLERS ASSERT THEY BOUGHT PROTECTION

Chicago, March 24.—Two men convicted of drug peddling on the "Bayou" in Jack Harris and Green V. Gress, went before a federal grand jury today to tell a story of alleged payments for protection to Col. Will Gray Beach, former head of the federal narcotics division here, and his assistants.

Beach and three others are under indictment.

CYCLING BOY HITS A TRUCK; MAY DIE

Stamford, March 24.—Walter Allen, 15, was probably fatally injured today when the bicycle on which he was riding crashed head on into a truck.

LITTLE GIRL IS DEAD, TRUCK DRIVER JAILED

Bridgeport, March 24.—The automobile claimed another victim here today when Alice Baron, aged 6, died in a hospital. The little girl was run down Monday by a truck driven by Patrick Day. Unable to obtain bail of $1,000 Day has been in a cell here ever since.

ANOTHER "SUPER-BANDIT" IS CAUGHT IN CHICAGO

Chicago, March 24.—William J. (Three-Fingered) White, paroled convict, under arrest for the murder of a policeman, was identified today as the leader of the bandit gang that held up the International Harvester Co., March 5, and escaped with a payoff of $80,000. White is believed to be the "super bandit" who has engineered a series of daring holdups and bank robberies during the past few months.

ABOUT TOWN

There will be a meeting of the Hartford County Y. M. C. A. officers of the Manchester district tonight at Highland Park. Lawrence Case, chairman of the local officers will preside.

Principal C. P. Quimby and vice-principal R. H. Proctor of the South Manchester High school will attend the Secondary School Conference at the State Normal school in Willimantic April 1, 2, 3 inclusive. Principal Quimby will read a paper on "Why High School Pupils Succeed."

Following a meeting at the High school yesterday it was announced that the number of seniors, alumni and others who will make the Washington trip next month now totals 114.

A bowling match between the female members of the High school faculty took place last night. The teachers from the high school building proper won the second game of a series with the teachers from the Franklin school. The winner's margin was 131 pins. The Franklin teachers won the former match and so matters now stand on an even basis and another match will be arranged later.

There will be cottage prayer meetings in connection with the Salvation Army at the homes of Mrs. Rebecca Wright at 11 Hill street and William Eneman, 77 Garden street. These services will commence at 7:30 and will be under the leadership of Rebecca Wright and Commandant Mrs. Abbott.

In honor of Miss Freda Fromm of Rockville, Mrs. Arthur A. Knofo and Miss Gertrude Knofo gave a surprise miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Arthur Knofo on Monroe street last evening. The color scheme was yellow and white and the table was decorated in the same colors. A large wedding cake was placed in front of the prospective bride, Miss Fromm, whose marriage to Frederick Knofo will take place in Rockville next month. She received many choice gifts.

The Educational club will meet in the School Street Rec auditorium Wednesday, March 31 at four o'clock.

There will be a public whist at the School street Rec tomorrow afternoon at 2:15.

A daughter has been born to Mr. and Mrs. John Miller of 391 Hartford Road at the Memorial hospital.

EDUCATIONAL MOVIES.

The final program of educational movies is scheduled for Thursday, March 25 at the Nathan Hale school and Friday, March 26 at Cheney hall at 7 o'clock. The program is as follows: "Quarrying and Shaping Slate" "My Pal" "Ralls and Plates" "A Modern Blast" Big comedy.

These movies have been conducted under the direction of the Recreation and in summarizing up the year's schedule it has been successful from the standpoint of attendance. While only sufficient funds are taken in from the admission fee, your friends about it. This program is especially interesting.

WEST SIDE REC. NOTES

Setback will be played tonight at the West Side recreation center beginning at 8:15. For the ladies' first prize there will be choice of a basket of groceries or a bed sheet. Second prize, fruit knife and board or a towel.

The men will have choice for first prize of a basket of groceries or a shirt. For second prize a necktie or handkerchief.

Yesterday nineteen of the women of the West Side bowling league went in by bus to Hartford. They bowled at the Wooster alleys until five o'clock. Most of the members remained for supper and theatre. They found the plan so enjoyable they expect to repeat the program in the near future.

Five of the members of the Men's Bowling League will match five of the Bon Ami men at Conran's alleys this evening.

CARNIVAL NITE THURSDAY AT CINDERELLA BALLROOM

The Cinderella Ballroom, 51 Pratt street, Hartford, will stage a real carnival affair Thursday evening. If you haven't attended one of these good times at the Cinderella don't miss this one.

Bill Tassilo and his Broadcasters orchestra one of New England's best will furnish the music. Dance lovers need no introduction to Bill and his boys as wherever you find them dance music is a treat to those with dancing feet.

On Saturday night will be the usual week-end social a rendezvous for all out of town folks to drive a few miles and have a solid evening of dancing at the Beautiful Cinderella, Hartford's Smartest Ballroom.

The admission price of fifty cents is all that it cost for four hours of good dancing. When in Hartford, visit us.

LITTLE GIRL IS DEAD, TRUCK DRIVER JAILED

Bridgeport, March 24.—The automobile claimed another victim here today when Alice Baron, aged 6, died in a hospital. The little girl was run down Monday by a truck driven by Patrick Day. Unable to obtain bail of $1,000 Day has been in a cell here ever since.

CYCLING BOY HITS A TRUCK; MAY DIE

Stamford, March 24.—Walter Allen, 15, was probably fatally injured today when the bicycle on which he was riding crashed head on into a truck.

ANOTHER "SUPER-BANDIT" IS CAUGHT IN CHICAGO

Chicago, March 24.—William J. (Three-Fingered) White, paroled convict, under arrest for the murder of a policeman, was identified today as the leader of the bandit gang that held up the International Harvester Co., March 5, and escaped with a payoff of $80,000. Rumors Galore Reach Streets About Florida

Manchester is not only famous as the most conservative center of the United States but news writers who are forced to run down rumors heard nightly on the streets, are beginning to believe that it is the biggest rumor manufacturing plant not only in the United States but in the world.

There is hardly a day but that the wildest reports find circulation on the streets. The reporters in their line of duty must investigate these reports and out of ten of these stories eight are found to be without foundation of fact.

The article telling of the suicide of W. L. Buckland has been followed by rumors of suicides and men going out of their minds in Florida until it appeared as if every Manchester person who is spending the winter in the southern resorts is either insane or dead by his or her own hand.

Next the amount of money lost by local residents in Florida speculations reached its apex last evening when it was rumored that over one million dollars of local cash had been sunk in Florida real estate.

The way these rumors start and are spread was explained by a worker in the silk mills last evening. He said:

"A girl eats a too hearty supper and does not sleep well at night. In the morning she awakes and next to her in the mill that she dreamed that a man killed himself. That story is passed from girl to girl until when it appears at the next mill, it loses its origin as a dream and becomes a reality. A local name is submitted and instead of one man killing himself there are three or four and a woman or two thrown in for good measure before the rumor reaches the streets."

PRISONERS' WELFARE TOLD TO KIWANIS

Member of Prison Association Tells Stories of Work—"Lumberjacks" Win Again.

The "Lumberjacks" were today again successful in the attendance contest of the Manchester Kiwanis club. Out of a possible 29 members, the Lumberjacks turned out 25, defeating the "Hello Girls" by 2. The contest will run for two more weeks and from present indications the Lumberjacks stand a fair show of enjoying the cats at the expense of the Hello Girls.

F. A. Verplanck spoke on the subject of Near East Relief. He gave a short history of the causes which led up to the need for such work and urged all the Kiwanians to give the matter serious consideration.

William G. Baxter of the Hartford Kiwanis club was the guest of Colonel William G. Cheney. Mr. Cheney introduced Mr. Baxter to the members of the Manchester Kiwanis club. He has been connected with this organization for many years and knows every phase of the work.

The association was started some 53 years ago. The principal work of the organization is looking after the welfare of the prisoners as they leave the state prison and keeping in touch with them until they have gotten a good start in life.

Mr. Baxter told some very pathetic stories of the struggles of some of the men to make good. He says they start out greatly handicapped because nobody wants to work with or have any dealings with a man coming from a prison. One man in states prison. However, in order to make a success in life these people must be given a chance. He quoted some statistics that opened the eyes of his hearers. He said 80 per cent of all those who enter State prison come from broken homes. Mr. Baxter said the state provided millions for the care of the imbecile and weak-minded in our asylums, but refused to increase the appropriation of $25,000 for work aiming toward the prevention of these handicaps when the child is in infancy.

Nate Richards was the lucky man today. He won the attendance prize contributed by Ed. Jilison. It was a handsome necktie.

"CENTER CHURCH" NIGHT AT THE REC TOMORROW

Sam Bohlin is general chairman of "Center Church" night program at the School street recreation center tomorrow evening.

This is the first of a series of church nights similar to those which proved so successful last season.

Center church's program while under the auspices of the Men's League, is for all of the church people, and will start at seven o'clock with the Juniors. The girls will be taken care of in the gymnasium.

Miss Mary Geary and the boys, Walter Olson, Pool, billiards, the swimming tanks and all other facilities at the recreation center will be available tomorrow evening by Center club folks until 10 o'clock.

Group games for adults at nine o'clock will be in charge of Miss Geary and Mr. Olson.

Walter Scott will be in charge of volley ball; Holger Boch bowling for men and women.

FORMER LOCAL YOUTH EMPLOYED 20 YEARS AT LOCAL EXCHANGE

J. B. Carlson, "Trouble Man," to Get Service Button from Telephone Company.

During the current year 81 employees of the Southern New England Telephone Company will receive Service Buttons for 20 or more years of unbroken service with that company in the telephone business. Of this number, one employee of the local exchange will receive a service button for the twenty year period of faithful service. He is J. B. Carlson, trouble man, who is known by practically every person in Manchester who has a telephone installed in his house.

Three employees will be given 40 year service emblems this year, making 30 employees who have served two score years or more with the company.

Service emblems are awarded for each five years in the business. Of the 81 employees receiving new Service Buttons this year, 48 will receive 25 year buttons, eight will receive 30 year buttons, six will receive 35 year buttons and three will receive 40 year buttons.

There are 24 women in this group. Of this number, sixteen will be given 20 year pins, four will get their 25 year emblems, three will receive the 30 year and one will receive the 35 year pin.

There are 67 men in this long service group. Thirty-two of these will be given 20 year buttons, 12 will receive their 25, five their 30 year, and three will be given 40 year emblems.

The 24 women have served a total of 545 years, while the 57 men have an aggregate service record of 1335 years, making a total of 1930 years, or nearly five more than the long period since A. D. was first placed as a suffix to the year of this good old age of mankind.

Nearly 50 employees have been with the company between 30 and 40 years and who have been with the company between 20 and 30 years.

$800 NOT LOCATED.

The case concerning the alleged robbery of a wallet containing $800 in bills from Robert Edgar of Spruce street recently in Hartford, was before the Hartford Police court yesterday morning. Despite careful investigation, the police have been unable to locate the thief and as a consequence Edgar is the loser of the purse.

Those who were arrested in connection with the case were fined $10 and cost. Shea and Edgar had their sentences suspended.

THIS WATCH DOG PATROLS THE ROOFS OF BUILDINGS

An air raid belonging to a resident in the Firehouse block on Main street and the Middle Turnpike, does his patrol work on the roofs of the one story buildings belonging to the Galras estate.

During the day the dog plays about the streets and the yards in the neighborhood but as soon as it becomes dark in some way he gets up on the roofs of the one story buildings. He sits at the edge facing Main street and whenever anyone passes he barks loudly.

Cigar Superior To a Gas Mask In Tracing Smell

"During all my experience in the World War when No Man's land was filled with dead men, many of whom had been left for days, I never smelled such a stench as has prevailed at the Army and Navy club here for the last few days," said a veteran today in describing the conditions which resulted in the finding of a dead cat under the building.

For many weeks, the club members have noticed an increasingly powerful odor which was far from pleasant. As the days passed, it became worse. All kinds of suggestions as to the source of the stench were made by the veterans but investigation in every case led to nothing. It was thought at first that it was a case of dead rats in the place but this theory was discarded when no trace of the rodents could be found.

Finally as the stench became almost unendurable, the members held a consultation. After all kinds of suggestions had been offered, and a careful investigation of the premises had been made, it was found that the smell emanated from under the club house.

Then followed the call for volunteers to crawl under the clubhouse and remove the source of the offensive odor.

All hung back but one, McNally, a World War veteran who had seen active service at the front.

Attired in a jumper and overalls, McNally asked for a gas mask. None being available, he then requested a cheap cigar. The response was immediate and a half dozen were thrust into his hands.

Selecting one of an Italian brand known as the "Nobbi"—he lit it and started on his perilous expedition while the rest of the members crept even farther back awaiting whatever might happen.

A little later McNally emerged from the excavation, the dead carcass in his possession but still puffing vigorously on his long stogie.

Today, McNally is hailed as a hero at the club and already plans are being made to secure him a D. S. medal from the government.

Anyway the name of Ernest McNally will long remain in the hall of fame at the club. It is, however, an honor which is not at all coveted.

Gargle Aspirin for Tonsilitis or Sore Throat

A harmless and effective gargle is to dissolve two "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" in four tablespoonfuls of water, and gargle throat thoroughly. Repeat in two hours if necessary.

Be sure you use only the genuine Bayer Aspirin, marked with the Bayer Cross, which can be had in tin boxes of twelve tablets for few cents.—Adv.

CHAMBERLAIN WINS AN EMPTY VICTORY

Sustained by Commons in Lloyd George Attack But Still in Deep Water.

London, March 24. — Foreign Secretary Sir Austen Chamberlain won a Pyrrhic victory in the House of Commons late yesterday. By a vote of 325 to 136 a resolution by former Premier Lloyd George to reduce Sir Austen's salary—a technical method of introducing what amounted really to a vote of censure was defeated.

Thus in theory the Foreign Secretary stands vindicated for his bitterly criticized course before and after the recent abortive Geneva conference. In reality, however, his position seems, to put it mildly, precarious. In a long speech preceding the vote on the Lloyd George resolution he did not succeed in pleasing his supporters or placating his opponents.

Critics Unconvinced. Those holding the opinion that his actions at Geneva had seriously jeopardized the fruits of the Treaty of Locarno remain utterly unconvinced by what he said today in defense of the course he adopted at Geneva.

The disagreeable suspicions aroused within the last few weeks of secret obligations incurred by the British Foreign Secretary which tied his hands at Geneva, of international intrigues at and after Locarno, in which he, consciously or unconsciously, was implicated have not been dispelled. The Baldwin Government not only still stands, but Sir Austen Chamberlain stands with it. Nevertheless, the most ardent Government partisans cannot feel any particular enthusiasm about a Foreign Secretary's showing in a House yesterday. The unimpressive impression continues to be widespread that there was something behind the recent Geneva fiasco which is being concealed.

Troubles Not Over. While Sir Austen's speech in defense of his policy at Geneva, won him a theoretical victory, but there is plenty of evidence today that the foreign minister's difficulties are not over.

The Manchester Guardian voices anew the demand that Sir Austen give up his portfolio, declaring that there is evidence of his "unfitness for the duties of foreign secretary."

The opposition press is vigorous in its denunciation of his policy, as expressed in his speech.

The conservative press, following the lead of Premier Baldwin, has rallied to the defense of Sir Austen, but even their defense has the marks of being perfunctory.

The Morning Post, organ of the ultra-conservatives, declares today that the "really important thing is that, owing to the League of Nations, Europe cannot settle her differences which she cannot have settled had there been no such institution, and the only danger to Europe today is the League of Nations."

DAUGHTERS OF SCOTIA DINE TOMORROW NIGHT

Helen Davidson Lodge, No. 98 Daughters of Scotia, will hold its annual supper, concert and dance in Tinker hall tomorrow evening. The supper will be served at six o'clock, tickets for which include admission to the entertainment and dance to follow.

In addition to numbers by local talent there will be a musical sketch by artists from Hartford. Bill Waddell's orchestra will provide music for dancing which will be enjoyed, by all until midnight.

This annual event given by the Daughters is always looked forward to by not only the Scottish people but many other residents as it means a good time for all. Holders of ticket books for the comforter should make returns tomorrow night as the drawing will be held at this time.

At the Second Congregational church this evening at 6:30 will be held the monthly fellowship supper of the Sunday school officers and teachers, with their wives and husbands. There will be music and two speakers who will be well worth hearing—Rev. Russell E. Waitt, associate pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church and Walter L. Woodin, at present executive secretary of the Connecticut Bureau of Religious Education.

Guard Against "Flu" With Musterole

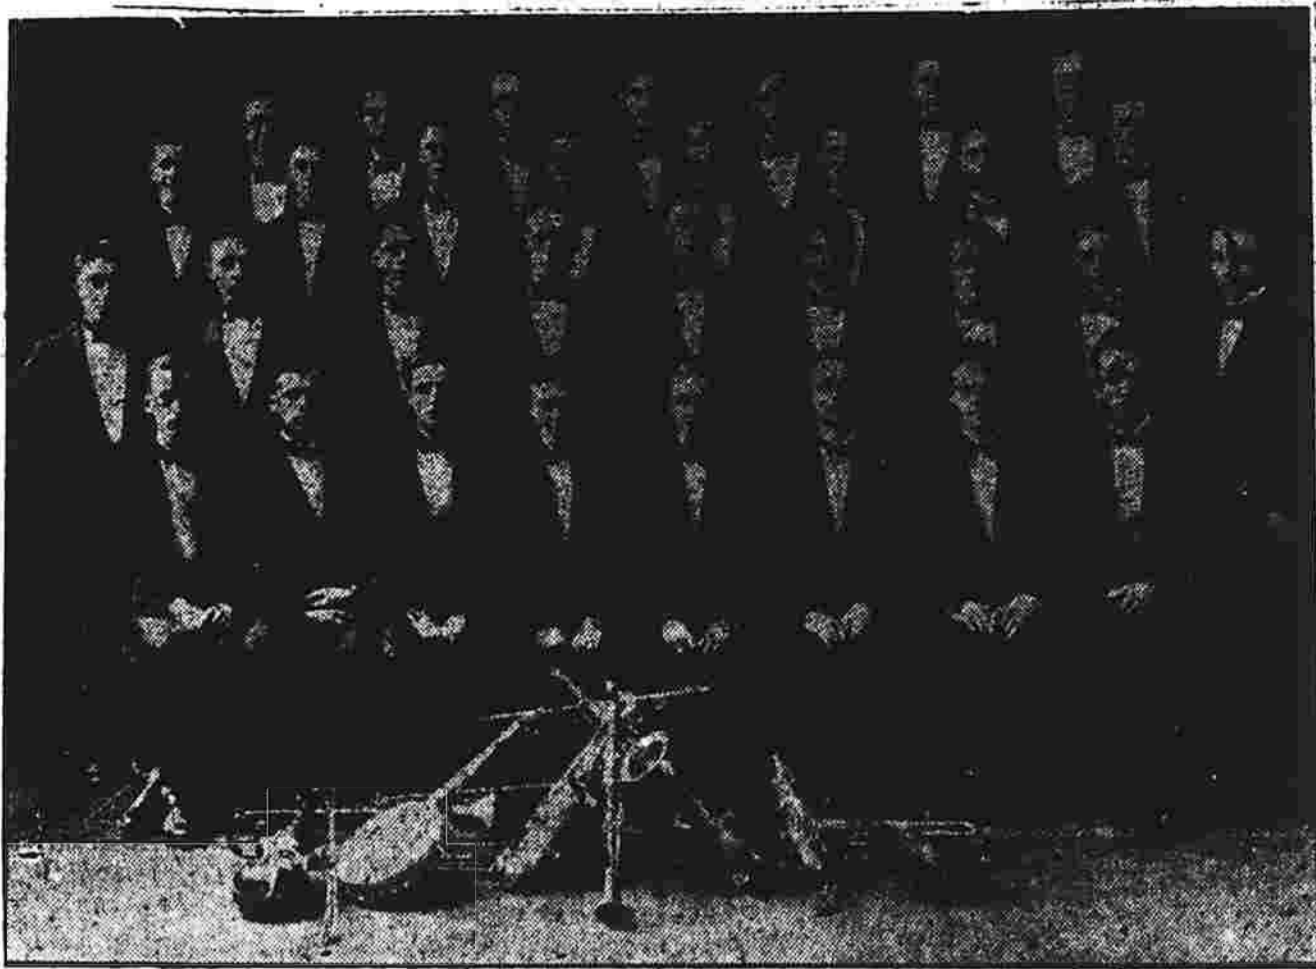

Influenza, Grippe and Pneumonia usually start with a cold. The moment you get those warning aches, get busy with good old Musterole.

Musterole relieves the congestion and stimulates circulation. It has all the good qualities of the old-fashioned mustard plaster without the blister. Rub it on with your finger-tips. First you feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief. Have Musterole handy for emergency use. It may prevent serious illness.

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole. Jars & Tubes

WESLEYAN'S TITLE ENVY OF COLLEGES

"Singing College of New England" Has Keen Competition for Championship.

Wesleyan University's Musical clubs this year not only won a clear claim to the title of "The Singing College of New England" for the Middletown institution but also brought back the National Championship from the tournament in New York City. It was a clean cut victory—well deserved from every point of view.

For many years a number of the smaller colleges of New England have been making claim to the title of "The Singing College of New England." Williams insisted for some time that its songs and the way the Williams men sang them gave them a right to the New England championship.

But along came Tutts and "filled up their shaving mugs" for Williams and stole the claim away. Amherst's famous "Lord Jeff" song is so popular and is sung by so many of the college glee clubs throughout the country that the purple and white men considered themselves the New England singers.

However, Wesleyan wasn't to be stopped. The big red and black men from Middletown sang "Lord Jeff" better than the Amherst men could and took the title from them. Now it seems Wesleyan isn't content with New England honors and has come out and topped the hunt by winning the title of the University of Michigan.

A Real Honor. New England is the home of the small college and for that reason produces a number of excellent musical clubs. Being the champion of New England is an honor worth winning let alone running away with the National Championship. Manchester people will have an opportunity to hear the Wesleyan Singers, Jibbers, Serenaders and all Saturday night at the High school hall. An excellent program has been prepared and it is expected that the hall will be crowded to hear the best in the country.

BIG MIDGET REVIEW AT STATE TOMORROW

The Midgets Review, vaudeville's greatest novelty is at the State theater Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Dainty in every appointment of cast, costumes and stage investiture, but robust and full of "punch" in its entertaining features is the marvelous show at the State theater where a review will be enacted by the most talented midgets in America. Unquestionably it is one of the greatest offerings in the repertoire of Keith's vaudeville, than which there is none greater in the realm of Polite Varieties.

The review opens with the night before Christmas with an alluringly beautiful setting. Alice steals into the room in her nightgown to get a peep at what Santa has brought. She discovers a dozen or more dolls, who come to life and perform rhythmically.

Those familiar with Donohue's famous pictures and stories of the Teenie Weenies may be justified in believing that a page has suddenly come to life, for here are flesh and blood portrayals by the tiny people, the most diminutive specimens of humanity in the world, and each an artist in his or her respective line.

The midgets' company have all enjoyed stellar honors. Some are musicians, singers, dancers, actors boxers and comedians. The midgets have a special baggage car for their elaborate scenery and costumes. The review has been staged as elaborately as a review can be staged. It is a big production in every respect, except for its tiny players who are big in everything but size. These tiny players are all men and women, each a normal man or woman, subnormal in size. They eat, they work and play just as other people do. What they lack in stature, they make up in ability. The midgets will present a special matinee, at 4 o'clock.

The other acts are Ellen Harvey who heads herself as the jazz girl on the wire and is indeed that. She performs some wonderful feats on the wire in a most finished and fast style. A real treat is in store for the State patrons in the appearance of Cargo and Knoll. This couple with marvelous voices is sure to please. They also have some fine bits of comedy which they combine with songs.

The feature picture with this fine vaudeville bill for Thursday, Friday and Saturday will be Norma Shearer's greatest triumph. What really happens back of the glitter and glare of the circus? Here, at last, is the true story of the drama that stalks in the lives of circus folk, a tense and moving tale of a beauty who found happiness along an amazing road to adventure. Norma Shearer in "The Devil's Circus."

Tonight the State presents another famous Country Store such as you have never seen before. You'll leave with more presents than you can carry home—loads of gifts, loads of fun and loads of presents.

Also a double feature bill for tonight, Marjorie Daw and Miles Welch in "Borrowed Plumes" Buck Jones in "The Cowboy and the Countess."

One oyster will produce as many as one million new ones in a year.

BIG CROWD TO SEE "OH, WHAT A NURSE"

The biggest crowd that ever attended a local theatre on a week day turned out yesterday afternoon and evening to see Syd Chapin's "Oh, What a Nurse" at the Circle theater and from the manner in which the audience laughed at one incident after another in this much touted picture, it was obvious that they were satisfied to the full that here is really Syd Chapin's worthy successor to his "Charley's Aunt." The picture will be shown again tonight for the last time. Other features included George Walsh, "A Prince of Broadway."

Tomorrow will bring an entirely new program of photoplays. Tomorrow's bill will be shown for two days. Tomorrow night the Circle management will stage in addition to the big double feature program, a GRAND OLD FASHIONED DANCING CONTEST. Cash prize will be given to the wearer of the most unique costume, while prizes will also be given to each member of the winning set of dancers. The regular Circle picture prices will prevail.

SILVERWARE FREE AT CIRCLE SATURDAY

Much enthusiasm is evinced over the announcement that it will give away FREE, a complete set of genuine Rogers' silverware to the lady or gentleman holding the lucky number coupon on Saturday afternoon at the premiere showing of Johnny Hines' "Rainbow Riley." This fine set of silverware was selected for the occasion by Louis Jaffe and will be on display in the windows of the Jewellery Shop.

From all accounts, "Rainbow Riley" is destined to score a decided success at the local playhouse. Since it was first announced that the Johnny Hines pictures was to be shown here the management has been continually answering inquiries as to the showing date. It has definitely announced that "Rainbow Riley" will be shown on Saturday and Sunday. It will be shown four times on Saturday with the performance continuous from 2:15, and twice on Sunday, at 6:45 and 8:30.

SALVATIONISTS TO WED AT THE LOCAL CITADEL

A marriage license was issued at the town clerk's office yesterday to Captain Roy Smith of the Hartford Salvation Army Service Department and Lieutenant Mary Chambers, corps officer in Berlin, N. H. The wedding will take place at the Salvation Army citadel here on Wednesday evening, March 21 and the service will be performed by Major John Waldron of Portland, Me. Major Henry Taylor of Hartford will be master of ceremonies.

Captain Smith is a native of Charleston, W. Va., and his bride to be has been connected with the Northern New England division of the Salvation Army. She came from Ansonia.

Begin War On Fly Early

By DR. HUGH S. CUMMING, Surgeon General, U. S. Public Health Service.

There are certain natural enemies of flies that deserve your consideration and protection. Among these are lizards, toads, spiders, certain kinds of wasps and robber flies, all of which devour flies. The lizards and toads are particularly good fly catchers.

The enemies of the larvae are much more successful in their work. First place should be given to the birds, which eagerly devour both the larval and adult forms. The scratching barnyard fowl is a worthy enemy and certain forms of beetles, and ants also feed on both larvae and pupae of nearly all varieties. On the whole, however, the natural enemies of the larval and adult forms fail to affect an appreciable reduction in the fly population. Also there are diseases of the fly family.

The most successful method of ridding a community of flies is to institute and continue a campaign for that purpose. It is only by the united efforts of all residents supplemented by the support of the health department and civic organizations in general, that progress in fly eradication is possible.

The time of the year has an important bearing on the success of such a movement. Ordinarily, by creative campaigns are instituted too late in the season to be effective. The best results are obtained if the work is begun in April.

The United States Public Health Service wishes to recommend certain preventive measures. As long as fly-breeding areas exist it is almost useless to undertake suppressive measures of other character except screening; therefore the control of fly-breeding areas is the first requisite. This means that the highest standards of community cleanliness must prevail.

When it is realized that even small amounts of garbage and other waste matter may serve for the development of countless larvae, the importance of the removal of these can be realized.

If you live in the country you should know that the stable is the favorite breeding places for flies. Where it is impossible to properly protect refuse piles, treatment with certain vegetable and chemical products, with the idea of destroying both the eggs and larvae is to be recommended.

If stable sweepings can neither be protected nor treated, then frequent removal becomes necessary. It is essential that the material be removed at least every four days if by breeding is to be prevented. The same applies to collections of refuse, organic waste, decaying vegetable matter and street sweepings.

Next to the disposal of stable sweepings, the disposal of sewage deserves attention, as those flies which develop in or frequent such waste are even more dangerous than those which frequent other filth areas. All household refuse should be kept in air-tight and water-tight receptacles having accurately fitting lids not only to prevent the access of flies but of vermin as well.

Dajmation insect powder is made from a kind of chrysanthemum.

Sciatic Neuritis

The sciatic nerve, situated at the back of the hip joint is frequently the subject of Neuritis, giving rise to the painful disease Sciatica. The symptoms are intense pain which shoots down the thigh to the foot, often aggravated by walking, and with painful points along the course of the nerve, very tender to the touch.

The disease is a very obstinate one and does not readily respond to ordinary treatment. It takes more than the usual pain sedative even to alleviate the pain.

The quickest, safest and surest way to get rid of the persistent nerve racking pains of Neuritis is to get a bottle of Allenru Special Formula No. 2, which comes in capsule form. Take them as directed and notice how in about 24 hours they have considerably reduced, if not entirely banished, all pain and soreness. Continue until the Neuritis has entirely disappeared and you are able to work and rest in comfort once again.

WHY do you call your new model—

This question has been asked us so frequently since the advent and announcement of this marvelously efficient electric cleaner, that we want, briefly, to summarize the chief reasons:

- For the first time, it makes possible "Positive Agitation" of floor coverings.
- By actual test, in the ordinary cleaning time, it beats out and sweeps up from carpetings an average of 101% more dirt.
- It is an even greater rug-saver; the oftener a carpet is cleaned with a Hoover the longer that carpet will wear.
- It is virtually service-proof, every part, including the new motor, requiring no oiling.
- It increases the efficiency of its remarkable dusting tool because of its 50% stronger suction.
- Its exclusive dust-and-germ-proof bag is now washable.
- Its form and finish are of startling beauty, and every new feature insures greater operating ease.

TROUTING.

The enterprise of the State Board of Fisheries and Game in leasing many miles of trout stream, stocking the waters with legal size fish and throwing the fishing rights open to all licensed anglers of the state is not only a novel undertaking but a courageous one.

For several years the Connecticut angler of small or only moderate means has been doing his best to reconcile himself to the apparently inevitable disappearance of all opportunity to engage in his beloved sport.

Stream after stream has fallen into the control of individual lessees or of clubs, until it has looked as if there would soon be no trout waters left open.

And as the number of the posted brooks increased so have the remaining "free" streams had to bear the strain of an ever growing concentration of anglers upon them.

So that the comparatively few un-posted brooks have been seriously overfished. No fishing waters on earth, no matter how liberally stocked with fry or fingerlings each year, can stand the passage of a dozen rods every day during the season without being practically denuded of trout, and there are a good many streams in Connecticut that have been fished almost that hard for the last three or four years.

The new policy of the fish and game commissioners promises much relief from this situation, and it followed up may well restore the sport to something like its status of twenty years ago.

It may very well turn out, however, that considerably narrower restrictions may have to be imposed on the fishing of state-leased streams than the commission has so far adopted.

So far the board has been satisfied with shortening the season on these waters, opening them on April 15 instead of April 1, the date fixed by law for the other running waters of the state, and with requiring women anglers to obtain the regular state license before fishing state-leased streams.

Both of these provisions are good. In permitting each angler to take as many as twenty fish a day, however, it will strike some sportsmen that the board has been extremely liberal and it is probable that little complaint would be heard if this limit were to be somewhat reduced.

And there is one point which has not been covered at all in regulating the use of the state leaseholds, which it might be very well worth the commission's while to consider—whether the number of times that any one person may fish the same waters in the course of a season ought not to be limited.

There would appear to be nothing to prevent a small number of persons, living within easy reach of state-leased and state-stocked waters, from spending practically all their time on the streams from the beginning to the close of the season and getting far and away more than a just share of the angling. Which is hardly the purpose at which the board is aiming. It would be no injustice if the board were to take steps to prevent this kind of unreasonable diversion of the sport.

On the whole, however, anglers of Connecticut will undoubtedly do the fair thing, appreciating that they are getting more consideration from the state than they ever dared to expect.

WEDDED TEACHERS.

East Hartford has divorced marriage and school teaching. The case has gone forth that husbands and schools shall no longer be the dual interest of any of the town's women teachers.

Some of these days, probably, East Hartford will reconsider this action, for the good and sufficient reason that it is silly and will not operate as expected.

Here are two, entirely possible situations: An unmarried school teacher may be the sole support of a family of three or four persons, may be the breadwinner and the housekeeper and, conceivably, may live in the midst of domestic jangles and tribulations that keep her in a state of distraction.

On the other hand a married teacher may conceivably be mated to a man whose shoulders bear all the responsibilities of the establishment and who is the most congenial of intellectual companions, so that her life outside the school room is serene, happy and wholesome.

Which of these teachers is likely to do the better work in the school? As a matter of fact, the status of a teacher, whether that of spinster or wife, is no affair of any school board, as we see it. If a competent teacher marries and it later becomes evident that she has lost her interest in her work or in any other way becomes unfitted for it, then it is up to the school authorities to eliminate her; not at all because she has become a wife but because she is no longer a good teacher.

It is just as ridiculous to deny employment to a first class teacher because she has a husband as it would be to give employment to an incompetent one merely because she has none.

WILLIAMS CASE.

The red tape of the army and navy is so thick and wide and of such voluminous yardage, and withal so enshrined in the hearts of military bureaucrats, that it takes a person of great moral courage and discriminating intelligence to put the knife to it, no matter how great his nominal authority.

Hence it was not to be expected that a person of Secretary Wilbur's rather limited originality and all-around capacity should take the responsibility of sending back to General Butler his complaint against Col. Williams, telling him to tear it up and put the scraps in the fire.

Wilbur, of course, felt himself bound to permit the Butler accusations against Williams, to go through their traditional course, even though that course inevitably led to a court martial which is practically certain to stir up the finest scandal that the navy department has ever had—and all over a piece of arrant foolishness. A bigger man in Wilbur's place would have handled Butler's charges against his host in another way, and the delectable furore soon to be forthcoming at San Diego would be among the things that never happened.

This is no Mitchell case, however. Every officer in the army, navy and marine corps, who has not some special grievance against the accused man or who has not some special reason for bootlicking General Butler, will be in keen sympathy with Col. Williams. In bringing the case Butler has smeared the whole military service of the country—and both rank and file would be more than human—or less—if they did not bitterly resent it. We look to see the accuser vastly discredited by the result of the court martial. But the whole injurious business is unnecessary and could have been avoided if there were somebody besides a rah-rah booster at the head of the navy department.

HOTEL PARKING.

The decision by Judge Wolfe in Bridgeport yesterday on the responsibility of hotels for automobiles left by guests in parking spaces provided by such establishments will be of more than a little interest to both travelers and hotel men.

In the case in question the suitor was a traveling salesman, whose car was stolen while he was asleep in the hotel. He sued for the value of the car, maintaining that the management had assumed the care of the vehicle by the mere act of setting aside a parking place and by his act in becoming a guest of the establishment. This would be the presumption with most people, and probably thousands of persons do so assume habitually.

According to the decision of the court, however, it is not enough for the traveler to go upon the implied understanding that the hotel will watch over the parked cars of its guests; he must formally notify the management that he has left his car in its care, and there must be a direct assumption of responsibility on the part of the hotel, before the establishment can be regarded as legally in custody of the vehicle.

Inasmuch as the judge had to go back into precedents created in the days of horse drawn vehicles, in arriving at his decision, it is probable that this case is more or less of a legal novelty and will provide the law in many similar suits to come.

It will be an extremely sensible thing, then, for all travelers by motor, leaving their machines on hotel parking ground, to get a direct acknowledgment of accountability from some responsible agent of the hotel, unless he is prepared to run his own risk of theft.

MEAN.

Many individuals have contended in one way and another for the distinction of being the meanest person in the world. Perhaps one Vito Zotti of Buffalo may not be entitled to the palm, but he has certainly attained to the position of being a distinguished runner-up if he is not, indeed, the champion among contemptibles.

Zotti selected names from the obituary columns of the newspapers and then sent fountain pens of the 30 cent grade through the mails addressed, C. O. D., to the deceased persons, the price being $8. The natural assumption by surviving relatives, of course, was that the fountain pen had been ordered by the person now dead, and in a great many cases, no doubt, they paid the C. O. D. charges and the swindler thrived happily in his ghoulish game.

That he was found out was due to his making the mistake of sending one of the pens addressed to a recently dead man who, it happened, had been unconscious for many months before the termination of his illness and so of course could not possibly have ordered any pens or anything else.

Now if, when Mr. Zotti is sent to a federal prison for misuse of the mails, a little care be taken to let the rest of the jailbirds know what he has been doing, it is conceivable that he will have just about as enjoyable a time as he ought to have. It is, however, a question whether he ought not to be sent to a special penitentiary all of his own. The infliction of a creature of this kind on the ordinary criminal population of a prison smacks of cruel and unusual punishment for the latter.

Fellowship of Prayer

Daily Lenten Bible reading and meditation prepared for Commission on Evangelism of the Churches of Christ in America.

WEDNESDAY The Unfettered Spirit

Read Jn. 16:7-11. Text: 6-7. If I go not away, the Comforter will not come unto you.

Meditation—The Presence of the Spirit of God was promised to them in the upper room. What more could they have? The Word had become flesh and dwelt among them. Slowly behind the veil of flesh they began to see dimly the Son of the Living God.

They heard Jesus' voice and saw his deeds but at first could not understand what he was. The Spirit was obscured and hampered in its revelation to them, because the body was so obvious.

It was expedient that the body die that the unfettered spirit might have free access to all men. Beyond this little company were millions he would bring to his fold to whom his bodily presence could not come.

"The Holy Spirit is, therefore, represented as our advocate or counsel who suggests true reasoning to our minds, and true courses of action for our lives."

Prayer—Breathe on us, breath of God; not as the mighty rushing wind, lest the dimly burning flax be quenched; but with the quiet breath that shall fan to flame our smoldering faith.

Spirit of the Living God, Spirit of Jesus, Spirit who chooseth man's mind for Thy dwelling: Make Thyself known to us now. Amen.

STEWART'S WASHINGTON LETTER

By CHARLES P. STEWART.

Washington, March 24.—If ever any gang of miscreants deserved the noose, it's the gang responsible for the present income tax return.

Making an income tax return, in this country, always has been a job for a lawyer and an accountant, combined, ever since we've had such a tax. Which is proved by the fact that everybody who could afford to actually had 'em.

But the little fellow, who couldn't afford it—he was in hard luck. Finally, however, through making return after return, year after year, even he was beginning to learn. Then along came Congress and knocked all his painfully acquired knowledge into pl.

You start off with an enormous sheetful of hieroglyphics, concerning the meaning of which even eminent legal sharks disagree.

You study this mess until you're black in the face.

At last, by pure guesswork, you arrive at a decision on some plan for filling the thing out.

Next you turn to another sheet—appropriately printed in red, for that's the color it's going to make you see—which reminds you of the change in the law, so you're to "copper" everything on the first sheet and play the entire game a different way.

Why in the name of all that's lunk in the law, didn't get out new blanks when the law was changed, the internal revenue bureau alone knows.

They say there that they didn't have time.

Shucks! They had time to get out those beastly red sheets, with a view not only to tangling you all up, but tangling you all up twice.

There's no good reason why an income tax form should be a puzzle fit to strain an expert to work out.

It's as simple as drinking water to fill in one of the English kind. I've done it myself. Any individual of ordinary intelligence can. The English law is a good deal more sweeping than ours, but the blanks are perfectly plain print.

Our internal revenue bureau ought to go to school over there.

Another thing, the English inland revenue folk observe the common courtesies.

They want their money and can be pretty disagreeable if they have much trouble in getting it, but they start off on the assumption that you'll come through without being black-jacked.

Here you get a "demand" for your tax and some vicious threats of what'll happen to you if you don't dig it up. There you get a polite request. There's no threatening unless you balk. In return for a payment, you receive an acknowledgment. Here you're ignored.

The administration's expressed opinion is that income tax payers ought not to kick about a little extra trouble, considering the reduction in the tax.

As a matter of fact, the reduction amounts to only a few cents except to those who are richer than mud.

It's doubtful if a few nickels' saving pays for two or three sleepless nights, struggling with one of those infernal blanks and its trobly condemned supplement, telling you to do the whole thing over again a new way.

But the story as then told was incomplete, it now is revealed.

Certain publicists greeted the button solution of New York's omnipresent crime problem with skepticism that bordered on siphpancy.

The "button, button, who's got the button?" line enjoyed a new popularity for the movement.

At a subsequent gathering of the Marshall Stillman Movement proponents, resentment at this siphpancy found free expression.

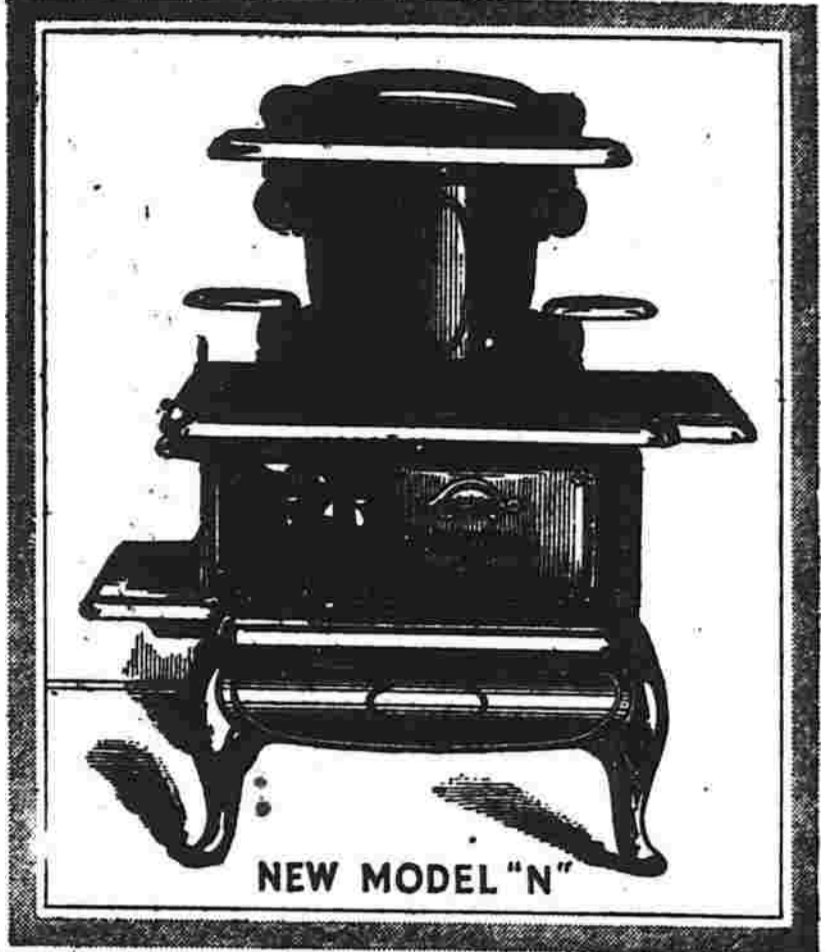

Red Katz, the one-time bandit who is the movement's most prized example of restoration to upright citizenship, participated.

"The button," Red assured those forthgathered with him, "is sacred. 'Never will I show it disrespect—' And here Red turned to the district attorney, it's related— 'Never will I show it disrespect should I ever have to return to stealing for the wife and the kid.'"

And in the game of tag that in New York, I am told how the police, the dowagers who inhabit

NEWS FROM SURROUNDING TOWNS

COLUMBIA

Mrs. Llewellyn Latham of Cleveland, Ohio, has been visiting relatives in this vicinity during the past week.

William Collins started this week for Florida. A postal received by a friend states that he is planning to visit Key West and Havana, and possibly the Canal Zone before his return.

John Zemutski has been spending a few days in New York on business.

William Wolff has built a new brooder house for his chickens, of which he has quite a number.

James Utley is making extensive improvements in his living quarters in the Old Inn. Henry Lafleur is in charge of the work.

Edward Dubois, who has been living this winter on the Green in the small house owned by Mrs. Ethel Blakely, has come to work for Clara Robinson on Post Hill.

Columbia has two pupils on the honor roll of the class of 1926 in the Windham high school, Louis Zibuski and Elizabeth Bertsch.

Mrs. Ruth Jacobs is at Spring Hill caring for her sister, Mrs. Herbert Gillette, who is ill with the grippe.

Miss Rachel Buell of Hartford spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Buell.

Mrs. George Yerrington and son Lester, of Lebanon, were in Columbia on Sunday and attended the morning service at the Columbia church.

Rural Carrier Raymond Lyman is recovering from a severe cold, although he was able to make all his mail trips.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyndon Little of Willimantic were Columbia visitors Sunday.

Miss Viola Lewis of Hartford spent the week-end with her mother, Mrs. Mary Lewis.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Ladd of Willimantic were in Columbia Sunday calling on relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. William Little and two children of Framingham, Mass., spent the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hutchins of Chestnut Hill. Mr. and Mrs. Hutchins also had as dinner guests Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Stanley of Andover, and Miss Clarissa Hawthorne of Hazardville.

Miss Marion McCorkell of Waterbury spent the week-end with her mother, Mrs. Lulu McCorkell.

Rev. Victor Wain preached Sunday morning at the Congregational church, using as his text, "He that hath an ear let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches."

A son was born Friday night at the Niles Street hospital, Hartford, to Mr. and Mrs. Henry Brown of Hartford. This is the second son born to Mr. and Mrs. Brown. Mr. Brown is the son of Albert E.

Brown of Columbia, and is well known here, having lived here all his life until going into business in Hartford.

Mr. and Mrs. Royal Webster and son, Dwight, of Manchester called Saturday on Mr. and Mrs. Percy Carver at their home at the lake.

Spring opened Sunday with a beautiful spring-like day, which was very welcome to all. The rain and sudden warmth has started the mud season in earnest, Chestnut Hill reporting that the roads are very bad and will be almost impassable with many more warm days.

The regular Christian Endeavor meeting Sunday evening was omitted as the society was invited to attend the meeting at Andover, where there was to be a special speaker.

TOLLAND

Miss Eleanor and Mary Luce attended the funeral of their uncle, Arthur Cook, in Manchester last week.

The attendance at the church service and Sunday school last Sunday was small. The roads of the outlying districts are reported to be in very bad condition owing to the spring break-up and people who have radios preferred to listen to a sermon at home rather than grind their machines through the mud.

Miss Bernice Hall of Springfield and Miss Alice Hall of Connecticut State College were at their home recently.

Mrs. Graham has spent some time with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sterry.

George Luce spent the week-end with his mother, Mrs. Flora Luce. People of this place were saddened to learn of the death of little Christine Mary Machacek, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Machacek of Rockville, and granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Machacek of this town. She died last Wednesday morning following a short illness of pneumonia. The funeral services were held Friday morning at St. Joseph's church. Rev. Stephen Bartkowski officiated. Burial was in St. Bernard's cemetery.

There was basketball at the Community House last Friday evening.

Miss Mabel Luhrs visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Luhrs, over the week-end.

Mrs. Samuel Simpson has returned from visiting in New York city.

Miss Florence Meacham was at her home here over the week-end.

Builds up weak bodies
 "I wish every other sufferer could know what Tanlac did. For years even the lightest diet caused distress and I lost strength and weight steadily. Tanlac gave back the robust health of younger days." Mrs. A. Fenton, 55 Third St., Rochester, N. Y.
 From Mother Nature's storehouse we have gathered the roots, barks and herbs which are compounded, under the famous Tanlac formula, to make Tanlac.
 If your body is weak and under-nourished, if you can't sleep or eat, have stomach trouble or burning rheumatism, just you see how quickly Tanlac can help you back to health and strength.
 Don't delay taking Tanlac another day. Stop at your druggist's now and get a bottle of this, the greatest of all tonics. Take Tanlac Vegetable Pills for constipation.

STOP ITCHING ECZEMA

See how Different the traffic looks from the inside of

The New-Day JEWETT SIX

YOU'VE got to get inside this car—grasp its capable wheel—and take it through a maze of traffic to appreciate how entirely new and how infinitely better this car is. One of the first superiorities you'll discover when you sit at the wheel of The New-Day Jewett will be its much wider vision. Jewett has eliminated the deadly "blind spot". You can see everywhere. Try it! It's just impossible for a pedestrian or driver to approach unseen from a side street.

This wider, freer vision is one of the reasons why The New-Day Jewett Sedan is the safest car in the world to drive. Another is the fact that the slightest pressure on its Paige Hydraulic 4-Wheel Brakes brings the car to cushioned rest almost instantly.

And when you slip easily into an extremely small parking space—when you have occasion to turn completely around in a narrow street—when you must quickly back up and go around a "stalled" car—when an unexpected hole in traffic suddenly opens and you glide through it instantly—then you'll begin to appreciate something of that exclusive "New-Day" ease of handling this car offers.

Ask for a demonstration. It will cost nothing—and yet it will prove, beyond doubt, that there is an entirely new type of motor car performance available today—and that only The New-Day Jewett has it!

Lightning-like acceleration. Paige-hydraulic 4-wheel brakes. Abundant power and speed. Easiest steering, shifting, parking. Clearest vision—steel body. Roominess equal to much longer cars. Paige quality throughout. And Jewett's lowest closed car price.

Jewett prices—Standard Sedan, $995; De Luxe Sedan, $1195; De Luxe Touring Car, $1395; De Luxe Six-Door, $1595. Prices include without extra cost. Prices f. o. b. Detroit, tax extra.

Paige and Jewett cars have been reduced in delivered price by the amount of tax reduction that will be effective March 29th. Buy now and take advantage of this saving.

THE YELLOW STUB

BEGIN HERE TODAY

HENRY RAND, 55, a business man, is found murdered in a cheap hotel in Grafton. Police find a woman's handkerchief and the stub of a yellow theater ticket.

JIMMY RAND, his son, goes to Cleveland, where the theater is. The stub is traced to THOMAS FOGARTY, who says he gave it to OLGA MAYNARD, a cabaret singer.

Jimmy meets and falls in love with MARY LOWELL. Later he encounters Olga. She faints when she learns police want her for murder. Mary, out with SAMUEL CHURCH, a wealthy lawyer, sees Jimmy lifting Olga into a taxi and misunderstands.

Olga tells police the handkerchief and stub might have come into possession of a man who "kicked her up" two nights before the murder. Jimmy receives several mysterious warnings to leave Cleveland but ignores them. Later he is attacked at night by two men, but escapes.

With Jimmy and Mary estranged, Church presses his advantage and gets Mary's promise to marry him. Mary tells Jimmy this when they meet. Jimmy, trying to hurt her, accuses her of marrying for money.

That evening, with Olga, he sees the man they are looking for—the man who is supposed to have got the ticket stub—in an automobile. It is one of the men who had attacked Jimmy. They follow the car, but the man and his companion escape. Later they recognize his picture in the Bertillon records as that of IKE JENSEN.

That same night Jimmy goes home to his room to find another warning letter.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXVI

JIMMY, studying the letter, frowned. It was written in the same large, scrawly hand as the first one.

"This is your last chance," it said. "Either leave town in three days or they'll be carrying you out in a pine box."

He shrugged his shoulders, laughing. "Persistent cuss, whoever it is." Rising from his chair, he peeled off his coat and vest, lit a cigarette and threw himself down on the bed to smoke and reflect.

"It couldn't very well have been this Ike Jensen or the man who was with him tonight," he said. "Unless, of course, they brought it or sent it here early in the evening. Who was it? Who is it that's writing this stuff?"

He jumped up from the bed and extinguished his pipe. "And how in the devil did the darned thing get there? No stamp on it or anything. It's spooky—actually spooky. I'll have to ask Mrs. King about it in the morning."

He turned out the light and hopped into bed.

Mrs. King was in the kitchen when he came downstairs—was just a little past six-thirty—and he thought, "What a hard working woman she is. Gets up with the birds and works till all hours at night. I wonder when she finds time to sleep."

"Good morning, Mrs. King," he said. "I found a letter in my room last night. How did it get there—do you know? It didn't come through the mail."

"Why, yes." She turned from the gas range and out of habit thrust her hands in her apron pocket. "A boy brought it shortly after you went out last evening. This was quite unexpected. 'Yes, a little fellow of perhaps ten or eleven."

"Did you ask him who sent it?" "Why, no. I didn't consider it any of my business, who sent you letters. All he said was that a man gave it to him to deliver. Don't you know who it was from?" Again that eager curiosity on her part.

"No, I don't, Mrs. King. I'm puzzled about it. It's an anonymous letter from someone who seems intent on having me leave town. It's the second one I've found in my room. You remember that evening I came home and you told me you thought you had heard me moving around in my room upstairs?"

"Yes, I remember."

It was then that Jimmy saw it was Mary with him.

"Well, I found one that night. I think you probably did hear someone up there, but it was the man who left that note. I bumped into someone coming out the gate as I came in."

"Why, Mr. Rand! Don't tell me that! What does it mean?"

"I don't know what it means, Mrs. King. Perhaps you won't feel comfortable if I continue to stay here. I'll move out if you are afraid."

"Oh, I wouldn't think of asking you to move, Mr. Rand. It's so pleasant to have you here. You're no trouble and you're so neat and clean—not sloppy like so many roomers." She sighed. "I'm not afraid, Mr. Rand. There's a policeman around all the time now. I'm only afraid you'll run into some trouble some time while you're out."

His jaw set grimly. "I'll try to take care of myself. I just don't want to be a worry and a bother to you. About this boy who brought the note. What did he look like? Had you ever seen him before around the neighborhood?"

"No, I hadn't."

"And you say he came shortly after I left last evening?"

"It wasn't more than five minutes."

"It looks as if somebody had been keeping his eye on the house and waiting for me to leave. He waited until I had gone, so I couldn't question the boy about who had given him the letter."

"If I had suspected anything wrong, Mr. Rand, I'd have asked him myself. But goodness knows I didn't even give it a thought."

Arrived at the laundry office, he found that the man named Porter had left word with the delivery clerk that a new driver would report. The clerk, in shirt sleeves and vest, a pencil stuck behind his ear, asked a few questions and issued some brief instructions.

"Your main job is to deliver these packages of laundry and collect new batches to be washed. A smart fellow, however, goes a little beyond his job and tries to drum up new trade. Our drivers are our best means of selling this company to the people. They're the only ones who get the personal contacts outside."

"Now you look like a pretty bright fellow," Jimmy smiled, and the man continued. "Mr. Porter said he thought you had taken this job because you needed work and that you might quit as soon as you found something better. I want to tell you the problem of finding Jensen, he thought, might be a matter of pure luck. This job of his would take him into odd places and a fellow could always keep his eyes open. . . . He mounted the back porch and knocked at the door.

It was opened by a little woman with black hair. A curly-headed boy of perhaps two and a half years tugged at her dress; another and younger baby sat in a high chair, eating cereal.

"Laundry, ma'am," he said, offering the bundle. "Three dollars and a quarter."

"Oh yes. Wait a minute and I'll get the money. Won't you come in?" "What's your name, little man?" he asked the boy as the woman went into another room.

"Harry? That's a nice name. Harry what?" "Harry Smith."

"Well, that's just fine. You're a regular little man, aren't you?" "No, Harry just man like Daddy."

Harry's mother laughed as she handed over the money to Jimmy. "Ma'ma pay the man," observed Harry.

"Glad to wait. No trouble." While she gathered up the clothes to go back Harry delighted his new visitor by reciting "Little Boy Boo, tum b'ow you horn."

Jimmy was vastly entertained and received a grave handshake and an invitation to come again when he told Harry goodby.

The job, he thought, had started out auspiciously. If many of his calls were as pleasant as this, it was going to be interesting. . . . Time sped swiftly. He covered his route and went back to the laundry, where he received a compliment from the shirt-sleeved clerk and was started out on another trip.

Five o'clock in the afternoon found him driving back again to the plant, his dog's work done. Traffic again was heavy, the homeward flow of the workers of Cleveland. He stopped at an intersection. A large roadster, headed in the direction opposite to his, attracted his attention by its handsome, racy lines.

He gave a sudden start. It was Samuel Church at the wheel, and Church was looking at him, his lips curled in a sneering smile. Traffic started again, and Church turned to his companion. It was then that Jimmy saw it was Mary with him, and she was facing him directly, but looking through him—not at him.

new job of his, laughable as it had seemed at first, might not be a bad thing.

"If I'm looking for Mr. Jensen," he said, "I'll surely have more chance of running into him if I'm driving around town all the time than if I were working inside some office."

The WOMAN'S DAY by Allene Summer

Penny's Worth. For several years now the gentlemen of the church have exhorted women to cover their epidermis. Some cathedrals even shut their doors and refused mass to women attired in fashion's height. Now the church tries other and cleverer tactics. It is "cashing in" on the well-known human trait of following those in high places. The church has asked Queen Victoria of Spain to wear long dresses, high collars and long sleeves.

One of London's smartest women sits in the ritzy Mayfair neighborhood uses community lipstick something in the fashion of the old family roller towel. Fair members moaned that in the rush for pleasure bent they had left the lipstick at home. Result, the community of one on the club dressing table. So far, no sanitary squad has nabbed it.

Artistic and official Washington is concerned over the fact that the many poster oil canvases of President Calvin Coolidge are idealistic rather than photographic. In other words, the artists make Cal too 'andsome by half! Well—perhaps even artists have diplomacy in their makeup!

Remember "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" who "never got to having a really good time but what an offsprung fell in the rain barrel?" Mrs. Wiggs was born in a book many, many years ago, but every year her publishers must put out another printing. Sophisticated laugh at this penchant for "cheery, Pollyannaish books," but they've smoothed the road for many a human toiler.

The Right Thing! It's the groom's job to choose his ushers. The bride has no more right saying that "Cousin Tom" shall usher, than has the groom the right to suggest that "Cousin Lizzie" should be maid of honor.

Art of Food. In New York City there is a little shop which sells nothing but hors d'oeuvres. Translated, this means "hour of opening," or the "first course," freely translated by us into "appetizer." We associate "hors d'oeuvres" with restaurant and hotel meals rather than with the home table. We class them with charcuterie, cocktail, merguez, tongue, and all the festive food things we rarely make at home. And yet the art of making an hors d'oeuvre "you love to munch" is as simple as pronouncing "it's—our—day!"

Try this one on your tablecloth! Parboli small green peppers. Cut horizontally. Place on lettuce leaf on small plate and fill the center with mixture of chopped sardines, olives and celery, all mixed with French dressing.

A hundred hors d'oeuvres are found in Lucy Allen's new book called "A Book of Hors D'Oeuvres."

The Book. "Common women," the hundreds of thousands of them the world over, bless 'em, will thrill to "The Adventures of a Homely Woman," by Fay Ingham.

"A woman like this is not all hill-top nor all valley," she writes; "more often than not she finds herself on some little ridge half-way between."

"There are mornings without frills and afternoons and evenings devoid of thrills! Just keeping the home together, just making things go right."

Like This? "When the hermet hangs in the hollyhock. And the brown bee drones 't the rose. And the west is a red-streaked four-o'clock. And summer is near its close— It's—oh, for the gate, and the lo— And dusk, and dew—and home again."

Budget. Here's what one expert thinks should be done with a $150 in a month: Rent, $30; that includes taxes and interest, business car fare, and fire insurance. Operating, that includes heat, light, water, repairs and service, $22.50. Food, $36. Clothing, $30. Higher life, $31.50. That latter means savings, income tax, insurance, charity, books, magazines and papers, doctor and dentist, entertainment. The "expert" is Della Thompson Lutes, author of "A Home of Your Own."

DOESN'T DRINK SODA "Will you have a cup of tea?" "I don't drink tea." "Coffee?" "I don't drink coffee." "Cocoa?" "Whiskey and soda?" "Don't drink soda."—De Crousse.

HER OWN WAY A GIRL OF TODAY A MAN'S PROTECTION

"Voice cultivated!" I said stupidly to Jerry Hathaway. "I didn't know that Mamie Riley could sing!"

"Yes. She has an exquisite voice and her one ambition used to be to sing in opera. I met her some years ago when that ambition seemed in a fair way to be realized. But all at once something seemed to go wrong and the next time I saw her she was at the Beaux Arts checking hats. I tried to get some explanation out of her but she will say nothing about it."

"I didn't know that Mamie could sing," I repeated. "I never heard her sing a note."

Even as I made that remark I remembered that one morning I had heard Mamie begin to sing. Then all at once Mrs. Riley had aid in her querulous, rasping way:

"For heaven's sake, Mamie, don't begin that caterwauling again. Remember what it almost got you into, and you a decent, respectable girl."

Mamie shut up immediately but she did not give any explanation of "what might have happened to her, and in my own somewhat hectic career I'd really forgotten it until now."

After Jerry Hathaway had gone, I looked across the table at Jimmy. "What do you mean," I asked, "by saying that you wouldn't like me in your office?"

Jimmy became perfectly miserable immediately. "You must know, dear girl," he said. "I couldn't work with you there. In less than a week everyone would know that I loved you and then the office would become a hot-bed of gossip. I would always be trying to make your way easier, Judy."

"Oh, I thought of giving you a job immediately on leaving the restaurant, but when other second thought came I knew it would be impossible. I knew it would be only a question of a few days until your place there would be made as uncomfortable as at the restaurant. You understand, don't you, Judy? Why, dear, if it were just you and I in the office I would be only too happy to have you there."

"Yes," I answered, relieved at his explanation. But, all the same, I wish he had given me the chance to refuse. I wish he'd given me the chance to say that I were too good friends to work together. As it was he left me no alternative except to say that I thoroughly understood, that his decision not to give me a place in his office came from his desire to protect me.

There it was! I had again run up against that age-old desire of man to protect some woman. And I knew that until I could stand upon my own feet and not welcome the protection of anyone, I would never be the independent woman I wanted to be.

"MY BEAUTY BELIEFS"

By ROSA PONSSELLE Prima Donna Soprano, Metropolitan Opera Co.

Fresh air means more to beauty than all the powders and creams and rouges in the world. The skin is breathing constantly. Fresh air cleans out the pores, sets it at angle, and gives a smooth skin with a ruddy glow. Fresh air also helps digestion, and a good digestion bespeaks a clean skin. Every woman should be out in the sunshine and the tingling air at least two hours a day, and more, if possible.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON A CAN OF GREEN DYE.

Not that he ever needed much barbering.

Old Granddaddy Frog had hopped into Scrub-Up Land, and now he was all finished and ready to hop out again.

Not that he ever needed much barbering! For Granddaddy has neither hair, fur nor feathers to be trimmed, and he has no beard or mustache to be barbered, or a tail to be combed and clipped.

About the only thing that Granddaddy does need is a new coat. But when he's ready to go to the Land-Where-Springs-Is-Coming, he does need that badly. I am sure if you had to hide deep down in the mud grass—and a new white waistcoat also, right up to his chin. But this year there had been a rusty spot on Granddaddy's new coat. He rubbed it and scraped it with his finger, and did everything he could, but it wouldn't budge.

So he had hopped into Scrub-Up Land to see if Mister Rubadub, the fairymen, could take it off with turpentine or Fairyland Special Cleaner or something.

But still it wouldn't budge, so Mister Rubadub said, "I'll just put a drop or two of green dye on it, sir, and that will fix it all hunky-dory."

So he put the green dye on it and Granddaddy's Frog coat was fixed, and off went the frog gentleman as pleased as Punch and as proud as Judy.

And that was the end of him, for this story isn't about him at all. It's about the can of green dye that Mister Rubadub forgot to set back on his shelf exactly where it belonged.

Scarcely had Mister Frog turned the corner by the little secret bush that marked the place where Scrub-Up Land ended and the rest of the world began, when along came the March Hare and his first cousin, Mister Benjamin Bunny, esquire. After that came the Twins, who always went along with the March Hare to help him, in case some of the customers didn't behave well and refused to be spring-cleaned.

But nice old Ben just said, "Te-te-as-is! How time flies! It is really time for me to get my ears barbered, and my coat brushed up and the mud cleared off my shoes? I'm all ready then. Come on, friends."

"Sit right down, sir!" said Mister Rubadub, motioning to his big barber chair, when they arrived.

So Mister Bunny sat down, and Mister Rubadub covered him up with a big white cover, and then he reached around for the shaving-soap to lather Mister Bunny's ears and nose and all around his whiskers.

But instead of getting the shaving powder, he grabbed the can of green dye, and shook it all over the shaving brush.

He was talking so hard (most barbers do, you know, even fairy barbers) that he never noticed what he was doing, and before anyone could stop him, he had dyed Mister Bunny's ears and whiskers green.

They worked all afternoon, Nancy and Nick and Mister Rubadub and the March Hare did, trying to get that dye off.

But come off it didn't, and if you scrub a rabbit with bright green ears and a green mustache anywhere this spring or summer, you'll know just who it is and exactly how it happened.

EVANS FINDS COBB'S TYGERS DANGEROUS AGAIN THIS YEAR

By BILLY EVANS.

Augusta, Ga., March 24.—Once more Detroit looms as the great threat of the American League.

For years the Tygers have been a pennant menace but not since 1909 have they won an American League flag. This may be the year.

Without a question Detroit has the best first sacker in the American League, if not the majors. Two or three men for every position, all capable of playing up to the major league standard.

On some club that didn't have a Lu Blue, Johnny Neum would be the regular first sacker. At shortstop the Tygers have two of the best performers in the majors in Tavenner and Rigney.

No club in the big leagues is so well equipped at those two important positions, shortstop and first base, as the Tygers.

Four athletes are fighting for second base, but it is almost a certainty that the veteran Frank O'Rourke will again start in that position. Should he go stale, Ty has Leslie Burke and Charlie Gehring to step into the breach.

This fellow Gehring, who was a sensation with Toronto in the International League last season, appears to have great possibilities. He's a big rangy fellow, the ideal type for a second-sacker and has a marvelous pair of hands.

Manager Cobb is very positive in his belief that third base will be better taken care of than in years. Jack Warner, who performed so capably at that position in the fall of last year, has as his rival Billy Mullen, late of Ft. Worth. It's going to be an interesting battle for the difficult corner.

Mullen is a protégé of Jakey Atz, the "Miracle Manager" of the minors. Jake has to his credit six straight pennants at Ft. Worth and five Dixie series. The latter is an event staged each year between the pennant winners of the Texas and Southern circuits.

"He's the best ball player ever turned out of the Texas League," is the way Atz speaks of Billy Mullen. Since he has given the majors any number of stars, the Tygers having two in Tavenner and Rigney, Atz pays Mullen quite some compliment.

Manson, the best catcher in the International last season, is back with the Tygers and should bolster up the backstopping department. He is sure to be given his share of work.

On the whole, Manager Cobb is pretty well satisfied with his ball club but he has a lurking suspicion that his pitching may fall him.

Lack of consistent pitching is a besetting fault of all major clubs, ever, as I analyzed the twirling possibilities, it strikes me that the Detroit staff of this year is 25 per cent more efficient than the 1925 personnel.

Whitehill, a corking fine southpaw, away to me had start last season, is sure to have a better year. George Daus, a very good veteran, should do as well. Holloway, ill much of last year, can be banked on for better work. Stoner says he is going to win 15, maybe 20 games.

Two pitchers I figure to help Detroit this year are Barfoot, from the Holy Cross star, and Carroll, from Vernon of the Coast League. Carroll has the stuff. A few that would supply him with the much-needed confidence. Barfoot, with a tall-end club last season, won more than 20 games.

Likewise Gibson and Smith are fine prospects.

Yes, Sir! The Detroit Tygers are once more the great American League threat, a pennant menace. As usual, you must figure them to be strongly in the running.

ROVERS WIN.

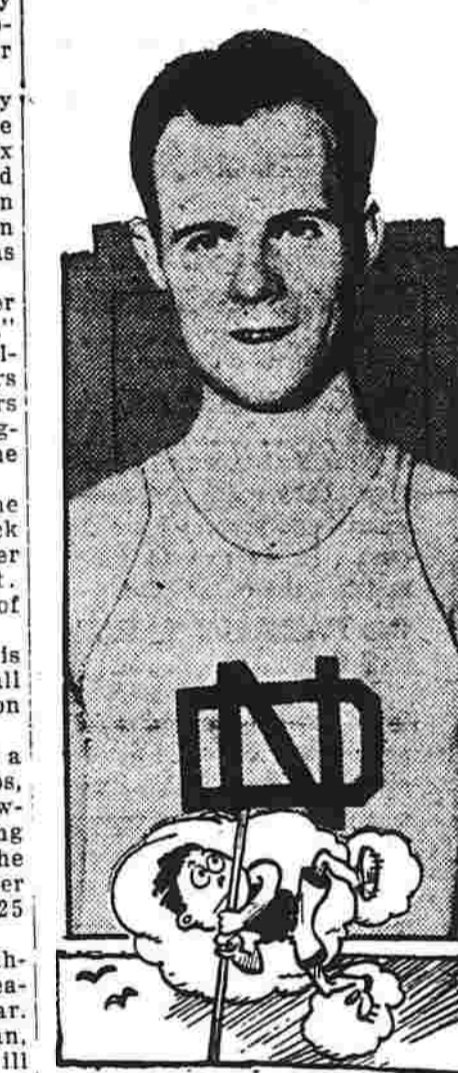

The Rovers defeated the fast Watkinson school in Hartford yesterday afternoon by the score of 18 to 35. Most of the scoring for Manchester was done by Boggini and Kittle while Wrenn starred for the home team. The summary:

PAUL HARRINGTON.

One of the best pole vaulters in collegiate circles today is Paul Harrington of Notre Dame. He has cleared over 13 feet indoors and is expected to exceed his gym mark by several inches when he gets out in the open. Harrington is one of the greatest vaulters developed in the middle west in seasons.

TEXAS FANS THINK HIGHLY OF STONER.

Texas League fans and players are unable to understand why Lil' Stoner can't win consistently for the Tygers. He is generally regarded as one of the best pitchers ever turned out of that league. Stoner says this is his year, that he has set a goal of 20 victories.

MISS SCRANTON EARNS PRAISE IN HARTFORD

Scores Winning Basket for Aetna Life Girls Against Travelers in Overtime Game; Is Carried Off Floor on the Shoulders of Admirers.

A player does not have to be the leading scorer on a team to earn praise a la plenty.

This was decisively shown Monday night when Miss Annie Scranton, of this town, stamped her name in the hall of fame in girls' basketball circles in Hartford by winning the game between the Aetna Life and Travelers.

It was the first game for the championship of the city, and the hall was packed to the doors. Intense excitement prevailed throughout the game. At the end of the regulation playing time, the two teams were in a deadlock. An overtime period was played and this ended likewise. Up until this time Miss Scranton had not scored a field goal.

Following the second deadlock, a consultation was held between the coaches of the two teams and referee Johnny Manion. It was decided to play another two-minute session and if this ended a tie, to call off the game. Both teams were near collapse.

With less than fifteen seconds remaining to play in the second extra period, Miss Scranton caged a field goal from just outside the foul line giving her team the much coveted victory. At the termination of the game, Miss Scranton was carried from the floor by her admirers. Her team won 13-11.

LEADERS Their Records 1925 BATTING

AL SIMMONS

Made major league with Athletics in 1924, coming from Milwaukee in American Association. Started professional career with Aberdeen in Dakota League in 1922.

Had best season in 1925, hitting over 350. Was in race for American League batting championship until last few weeks of campaign.

One of main reasons for great showing of Mackmen in battle with Washington for pennant.

In 1924 batted .308, making 183 safeties in 152 games.

Has peculiar and very unorthodox style at bat which has earned him the nickname of "Foot-in-the-Water-Bucket Al." In other words has tendency to step back from the plate when meeting the ball.

Plays center field, covers plenty of ground and possesses a strong arm. He's considered to come in to the American League in seasons.

WHO'LL BE LUCKY LAD?

Who'll be the lucky lad? Or better yet, who'll be the two lucky boys? For, as you know, there'll be a pair of winners in the National Baseball Player Contest being conducted by NEA Service, Inc., of Cleveland, O., and The Herald.

Perhaps you'll be one of the lads to make the trip to a big league opening game—to see your favorite player in action—to shake his hand—and to present him a silver cup at home plate while a cheering crowd looks on.

At least, you stand as good a chance as any of the thousands of boys throughout the country—that is, if you've entered this great pre-season baseball game.

All you have to do is pick your favorite American or National League player, write a 200-word story telling the reasons for your selection, and mail or bring it to the Baseball Contest Editor, The Herald.

As mentioned, two winners will be named. One for each league. Every boy 16 years of age and under is eligible to compete. Remember, too, it's all ABSOLUTELY FREE!

Contest closes at midnight, Wednesday, March 31.

So, you'd better hurry and "bat" out your selection if you want a chance to win a trip to an opening day big league game—see your idol in action—meet him—and present him a silver cup.

O'mon gang! Let's get busy. Time is short.

Who'll be the lucky lad?

WILLS WINS TOURNEY

Cannes, March 24.—Helen Wills ended a brilliant Riviera campaign today when she was declared winner of the Cannes lawn tennis club tournament singles, her opponent, Miss Joan Ridley, having scratched.

Miss Wills has been on the Riviera nine weeks and has played in the women's singles in eight tournaments and had one forfeited to merit and that at Cannes, to Mlle. Lenglen.

In the eight tournaments Miss Wills has won 481 games to her opponents' 109.

SETBACK SEASON CAUSED UNUSUAL MILL INTEREST

C. B. A. Tournaments Had Average of 44 in Attendance for 18 Sessions; List of Winners.

Cheney Brothers Athletic Association has just concluded a most successful season of week-end, three-tournament series of six nights during each of which were conducted during the winter months with an average attendance of 44 men at each sitting.

The tournaments were held for the purpose of sociability and not with any idea of making money. The directors of the athletic association have been most graciously thanked for their efforts in carrying on the tournaments by all those who took part in the evening's card games.

A complete record of the three tournaments winners of each night's play as well as the winners of each tournament and the scores of all who took part in the final tournament follows:

Oct. 22: Calvert and Hewitt, first; Thayer and Miller, second.

Oct. 29: Bieu and Gibbons, first; Pontelli and Marchetti, second.

Nov. 5: Macdonald and R. Johnson, first; Anderson and Wilson, second.

Nov. 12: E. Weiman and Wigamowski, first; Calvert and Hewitt, second.

Nov. 19: Olds and Hunt, first; Sheldige and Mahoney, second.

Dec. 3: Hadden and Powers, first; Lamprecht and Gleason, second.

Dec. 17: Cole and Carson, first; Hubbard and Mosely, second.

Dec. 31: Runde and Mitchell, first; E. Johnson and Bashlow, second.

Jan. 7: Brock and Gustafson, first; Cole and Carson, second.

Jan. 14: Neville and Maron, first; Stevenson and McCann, second.

Jan. 21: Cole and Carson, first; A. Weiman and E. Weiman, second.

Jan. 27: McCann and Stevenson, first; Custer and Scheldige, second.

EX-WORLD'S CHAMP IN MATCH TONIGHT

Jimmy Smith to Roll With Thoma Brothers at Toledo Bowling Congress.

Toledo, Ohio, March 24.—Jimmy Smith, former world's champion match-game bowler, will be the feature attraction in the five-men event of the American Bowling Congress tournament here tonight.

He is to roll with the Thoma Brothers' five, in whose number is Clarence Thoma, one-time A. B. C. doubles champion.

Detroit, Buffalo, Cleveland, Troy, Brandon, Benton Harbor, Schenectady, Erie and Rochester are cities having teams slated for rolling tonight.

They have this consolation: there were but half a dozen teams of 56 rolling last night, able to connect with the wood for prize-money counts. Thus there is plenty of paying timber left.

Maybe it was the afternoon working of Eddie Votel of Bradock, in rolling 731 for first in the singles, or it might have been the 1,231 stuck in by a Buffalo pair, Ernst and Egan, for second in the doubles, that jinxed the evening rolling.

The standings:

JOCKEYS RULED OFF

New York, March 24.—That thoroughbred racing means to run its affair under a minimum of sharp practice this year, was self-evident today following the action of the Jockey Club of New York in denying riding licenses to Clarence Kummer and L. M. Foster, nationally famous jockeys, in addition to refusing licenses and reinstatements to several trainers. This action, following so closely the sensational clean-up in Kentucky, left racing on sounder foundation than at any time in recent years.

The Kummer incident, coming as a complete surprise, furnished a small sensation. He is one of the leading jockeys of the turf and has won more than $1,000,000 in purses and 438 races since 1915.

ANOTHER OF J. D.'S KIN IS WORKING STUDENT

Princeton, N. J., March 24.—John D. Rockefeller, 3rd, the world's wealthiest college student, is earning his pin money by soliciting advertisements for the Princetonian, the Princeton University college paper.

Young Rockefeller is the second grandson of the oil king to turn his hand to outside labor during his spare college time. John Rockefeller Prentice, a student at Yale, presides over a switchboard when his time is not occupied with his books.

HOT RETORT OF COLLEGE ROOKIE STOPS JUDGE

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 24.—High commissioner of baseball, Judge Landis, is a golf bug. When he hits a training camp he does 18 rounds of golf before looking the athletes over.

When he arrived here he found all the golfers among the newspaper men either at the links or races. The clerk told him that one of the Boston players, Harold Neubauer, was a good golfer.

Neubauer is a pitcher, a former Brown University student. He's an intelligent young man.

"This is Judge Landis!" were the words that greeted Neubauer as he took down the receiver and said the customary "hello."

"Who is it?" asked Neubauer, believing he was being kidded.

"Kenesaw Mountain Landis talking," snapped back the judge.

"Well this is John McGraw; what can I do for you McGraw?" said Neubauer.

The judge hung up with a smile and is getting a big kick out of the happening.

Neubauer, on the other hand, isn't quite sure whether he pulled a "wise" crack or a "bone."

HELPFUL HINTS GOLFING STARS

FRANCIS OUMET—VALUE OF KNOWING PITCH SHOT.

Many a time the average golfer faces a pitch shot over a deep sand trap with fear and trembling. Give him a 15-foot putt to win a match and it bothers him but slightly because he feels he may make that putt and if he doesn't, well, the chances are against anybody's holing 15-foot putts and consequently it falls to upset his poise, or emotions. But that pitch to the well-guarded green scares him most to death.

That same pitch shot for the star player is greeted with joy for he knows he can pitch safely to the green and that is the least of his worries. The one foremost thought in his mind is how close can he get his ball to the hole.

Jock Hutchison, a master hand when it comes to pitching a golf ball to a green, scored a great many threes on par four holes of this type when he won his British title simply because this sort of shot was the easiest for him to play.

All star players are not nearly as expert as Jock when it comes to playing pitch shots, but nevertheless all golfers among the top ranks are extremely accurate with a mashie or mashie-niblick.

The Center Gang will hold a banquet in honor of one of its members who is to be married on March 27.

The electric clock in one of the stores at the Center which is supposed to be regulated "by radio" must be suffering from an attack of staltic for it never keeps time.

Paul Fernout, formerly assistant manager in one of the large department stores in New York City, has assumed the management of the local five and ten cent store. Fernout started work here Monday morning. He is staying at the Waranoke Hotel.

SCHOOL HALL DANCE FOR FRIDAY EVENING
 Community Club Plans Social at Robertson School—Paramount Orchestra and Varied Program.

Wide awake to its job in the community, and the suggestion made by the Herald in its columns on March 20th relative to the use of school halls for dancing, the Manchester Community club has decided to give a community dance in the Eighth district Robertson school hall on Friday next. The pertinent facts for their decision are, as has been stated in our columns with one or two additions, mainly that there is the friendly atmosphere of informality to those that gather in these small halls that is conspicuously missing in the larger places.

The North End has had but few dances this past winter that have used the old square sets and it seems that the Community club has struck a happy medium by combining old fashion and the modern dance on the same program. In many of the communities the younger folk have fallen into line with the elders in doing the square sets and now find it just as enjoyable as the Charleston.

This has been the reason why the old fashion dances have been revived and are at present as popular with the children as with the older folks. It will be interesting to note the result of the Community club's experiment. As usual the best is none to good for the community's enjoyment and the Paramount orchestra will furnish the music, while Prof. Beebe will prompt for the square sets.

Following the meeting Past Master William Walsh was given a surprise when the lodge presented him with a pipe, jar of tobacco and a box of cigars. Mr. Walsh and his wife accompanied by his son Harold Walsh and wife and child are going to Florida the latter part of the month by auto. They will be away over a month.

FUNERAL OF LUCILLE BURNIE
 The funeral of little Lucille Burnie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Burnie of Spruce street, who died Sunday afternoon, was held at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Margaret Mahoney of 73 Spruce street yesterday afternoon. Her bearers were four cousins, Raymond, Joseph, Francis and Philip Mahoney. The body was placed in the receiving vault of St. James' cemetery. Many floral pieces from the child's many playmates were in evidence at the funeral.

The little girl, who was four and one-half years old, was stricken with pneumonia a short time ago and measles developed soon after. The complication of the two diseases caused her death.

NO BONES ARE BROKEN BY SHEARER IN FALL

Employs of Rogers Paper Mill Sustained Badly Wrenched Back in Accident.

X-ray pictures taken of Alexander N. Shearer of 123 Hilliard street at the Manchester Memorial hospital last night failed to reveal any broken bones. Shearer is suffering from a badly wrenched back, however, and numerous bruises about the head and back, according to a bulletin issued from the hospital today.

According to information received this morning, Shearer was working near the elevator shaft in Rogers Paper Mill on Charter Oak street when the accident happened. The elevator was standing still on the floor above where Shearer was working. It is said that Shearer was reaching for a plank near the shaft when he suddenly lost his balance and fell to the bottom of the shaft, a distance of thirteen feet.

He was picked up by fellow workers and was rushed to the hospital in an ambulance. Shearer has been working at the Rogers plant for about five years.

ORANGE CORPORATION TO MEET ON FRIDAY
 Five New Directors to Be Elected at Annual Session at Orange Hall.

The annual meeting of the Orange Hall Corporation will be held Friday night in the Washington Social club rooms at 7:30 sharp. In addition to the report by the secretary and treasurer for the past year, five new directors will be elected. They will be named for a term of three years.

Officials of the organization hope that there will be a large attendance of corporation members as it is important that they should take part in the election of the new directors. The present officers are as follows: James H. Nell, president; Thomas W. Tedford, vice-president; Mr. Brown, secretary, and Hamilton McKee, treasurer.

NO ELABORATE CHANGE IN HALL OF RECORDS

Officials Not to Spend Much Money in Changing Over Building for Use of Police Department.

Striving to set an example in economy the Board of Selectmen and the Board of Police Commissioners have agreed to make their expenses as low as possible in converting the Hall of Records into a police station when the new City Hall is put into use as reported in The Herald two weeks ago.

The plans call for the room which is now used by the judge of probate to be made into the police court room. The office now occupied by Town Manager George Waddell will be the new office of Chief Samuel G. Gordon. The police signal system will be re-installed in this room. Police court officials will also use the rooms now occupied by Town Clerk Sam Turkington. The basement of the building will be rearranged so as to house an automobile at the east end of it. The doorway will be on the south side of the building. Motorcycles will also be kept in the basement as will the cells for the prisoners. It was formerly planned to make extensive alterations on the building but after a consultation, the officials decided that this was not the time to make large expenditures on the alterations. Further changes for the betterment of the department will follow from time to time.
