REVISE CHARTER, BURN GARBAGE, BOARD ADVISES

Selectmen Believe Town Must Consider These Two Important Items—Make Their Annual Report.

A complete revision of Manchester's charter by a committee of ten or fifteen and the installation of a garbage incinerator within a short time feature the recommendations which the Board of Selectmen will make in the annual town report which will be distributed to the voters some time next week.

The Selectmen recommend that the annual town meeting appoint a committee to make a study of the present charter of the town, and bring it up-to-date. The Selectmen ask that this committee co-operate with town officials and make several improvements which are necessary for the proper conduct of the town's government.

Give Up Dump. In recommending that the town own a garbage incinerator the Selectmen reveal that a dump camp not be tolerated longer. It is the belief of the present Board that the so-called School Street dump will not be available for more than three years. The only logical course to follow, the Selectmen believe is to install an incineration plant.

The complete report of the Board of Selectmen, which will serve as an introduction to the annual town report, follows:

SELECTMEN'S REPORT For the Year Ending August 15th, 1927.

Pursuant to the requirements of the Town Charter, the newly elected Board of Selectmen met at the Municipal Building, on October 5th, 1926, for the purpose of organization and business, and after the members had taken the oath of office, elected Robert W. Treat chairman, and John H. Hyde Secretary.

The Board then divided into the following committees: Highway Committee: Harry W. Keeney and Wells A. Strickland. Charity Committee: John H. Hyde and Robert J. Smith. Public Safety Committee: Thomas J. Rogers and Carl E. Johanson.

Joint School Board: Robert J. Smith and Thomas J. Rogers. Chairman of the ex-officio, a member of all committees. The Board then made appointments for the various Town Offices which appears in this Town Report under the heading "Town Officers Appointed."

The Board has held twenty-two meetings during the past year, and has given thirty-nine public hearings for construction of walks and curbing, assessing for walks and curbing, establishing building lines, and street line hearings, etc. The Administration Building was completed during the year and the Town has adequate facilities for housing all the Town Officers in this building, together with room for the natural growth of the

FIRE IN CAMBRIDGE

Seventy Residents of Fashionable Apartment Saved By Action of Janitor.

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 9.—Lives of seventy residents of the fashionable Wadsworth Chambers opposite famous Agassiz Hall, Radcliffe College, were saved early today by the prompt action of Mrs. Laurie L. Burgess and Verde Harding, negro janitor.

Unable to sleep, Mrs. Burgess sought solace in a book. She suddenly smelled smoke. Running to the hall she called to Harding. The janitor ran the elevator up and down carrying terrified inmates to the street after he and Mrs. Burgess had aroused them.

During the fire, which did $75,000 damage, a fireman was found on a window sill, unconscious from smoke.

Across the Charles river in the Brighton section of Boston a three alarm fire destroyed the fertilizer plant of the Brighton abator.

CONVENTION ENDS

Middletown, Sept. 9.—The State Federation of Labor ended its annual meeting here today with installation of officers and adjourned with New London selected as the next meeting place. Loreta O'Leary representing the United Textile Workers, addressed the convention today. Before adjourning the convention voted to leave all legislative matters in the hands of the executive committee.

That Black Bottoming Bungalow

Hundreds of Manchester people and many out of town visitors have gone to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Vuillemet pictured above to confirm to their own satisfaction The Herald's exclusive story that one room in the house, a bed and other articles of furniture were trembling or "shimmying" for no apparent reason. The tenant of the house is now charging admission to see the phenomenon. In the group above are Mrs. Vuillemet, third from left, her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Louise Viot, fifth from left, her son, Nassio, in background. Others are curiosity seekers who visited the house and were convinced of the "trembling truth." The mystery remains unsolved today.

May Complete Jury In Cline Case Today

If Box Is Filled, Trial Will Be Postponed Until Tuesday; Novelist's Wife In Court Again.

CLINE JURYMEN

The tenth Cline jurymen was accepted at 2:55 this afternoon. The jury is as follows: G. W. Storey, Willington; John Swanson, Bolton; Charles Long, Bolton; August H. Mattern, Mansfield; Carroll H. Hawkins, Mansfield; James J. Kerwin, Mansfield; Clement N. Sumner, Bolton; Edwin Hansen, South Coventry; Alexander Mitchell, Stafford Springs; Philip J. Palmer, Andover.

Rockville, Conn., Sept. 9.—Leonard Cline's reputation as an author has led his publishers to lend financial support in his fight to escape the gallows for the alleged murder of his friend, Wilfred P. Irwin, it was learned today.

Cline's trial in Superior Court entered its third day today with indications that the jury box will be filled before night.

Cline's spirit rose as the jury box gradually filled. Nine jurors have been accepted and Cline has passed on each.

His Wife Present. The novelist also was cheered by the presence of his wife, Katherine, although she went quietly when she spoke to him after adjournment. Mrs. Cline is a small, frail woman, who shows more than her husband the effects of the ordeal. She was accompanied by her sister, Mrs. John S. Wierengo, of Grand Rapids, Mich.

Mrs. Wierengo, it is said, will be a character witness. Cline also expects Mayor John Smith and Circuit Court Judge Ira Payne, of Detroit, to appear for him. Cline once was employed as a newspaper man in Detroit.

May Adjourn Today. After three more jurors are picked, court will adjourn to Tuesday morning, when the state will begin to present its evidence. There will be no opening statements, so that the alleged motive and the defense will become known only gradually through witnesses.

Edward Boyle, of Stafford, was the one hundredth man called as potential jurymen. The panel was then down to twenty-eight names. M. D. O'Connell, assistant state's attorney, today for the first time examined the takers. An effort was made to speed up the selection of jurors, who totaled nine when court opened, and there seemed to be an agreement among the lawyers to limit the questions.

The first three ventremen were disposed of in forty minutes this morning. Then the lawyers plunged into a wrangle over the matter of circumstantial evidence and the session dragged along. Previously the questions had been limited to whether a man believed in capital punishment.

The summer just passed has been an epochal one in many ways for the President. The high spot of this year's vacation was the announcement that he "did not choose" to run for re-election in 1928. This unexpected move threw the political gates wide open and centered world attention on this little town of Rapid City as almost no other event could have done.

WALL-ST. BETTING GROWS EXCITING

Millions Being Waged on Everything From Fights to Politics.

New York, Sept. 9.—Wall Street is in the throes of a betting orgy. A million dollars or more will be wagered on the Dempsey-Tunney fight a half of million at least on the spectacular four-cornered National League pennant race: $25,000 to $50,000 on tomorrow's polo match between the British and American teams; close to $1,500,000 on the World Series and from $1,000,000 to $1,500,000 on the next presidential campaign.

These figures were supplied to International News Service today by Frank Silinsky, betting commissioner of W. L. Darnell & Company, one of the several big brokerage houses that deal in wagers. Important money is being laid this way: Seven to five Tunney beats Dempsey. Seven to five Pittsburgh does not win the pennant; 9 to 5 the Giants won't; 2 1/2 to 1 St. Louis.

LEVINE DETERMINED TO CROSS ATLANTIC

Says If Weather Is Favorable He Will Hop For America Before Sept. 15.

London, Sept. 9.—A forty mile an hour wind today caused Charles Levine to postpone his contemplated flight to America in the monoplane Columbia. Reports of weather over the Atlantic also were unfavorable.

Levine told the International News Service today that, if the weather is still unfavorable by September 15, he would return to the United States by steamer and make another attempt to fly the ocean from east to west in 1928.

Despite the warnings of other experts against trans-Atlantic attempts so late in the year, Levine declared he is determined to try it if possible.

"I have received hundreds of letters protesting not only against my own flight, but trans-ocean flights in general," Levine told International News Service. People say it is not worth while and serves no useful purpose. I say emphatically it is worth while. If the weather gives us half a chance we will go. My heart is set upon this trip, but of course we cannot do the impossible. If the weather does not change we may have to abandon the flight but I am prepared to wait another week."

The Daily Sketch calls Levine's proposal "one of folly" adding: "In the face of almost suicidal risk, Levine persists in his plan to make the flight with Capt. W. G. Hinchcliffe as pilot—a pilot of such skill and experience that, in the interests of British aviation, he should be debarré from venturing his life upon such a desperate chance."

WORLD FLIERS SAFE IN CHINA; FIVE ATLANTIC AVIATORS LOST

Ships Searching Ocean Find No Traces of Bertaud, Hill, Payne, Tully or Medcalf—All Nations Move To Curtail Ocean Flying This Year.

The ranks of aviators who have given up their lives in the advancement of aviation, have been swelled today with the names of five more intrepid fliers, apparently lost in disastrous attempts to span the ocean by air.

Meanwhile, apprehension felt for the safety of Edward F. Schlee and William S. Brock, round-the-world fliers, was banished when they arrived safely at Hong Kong, China, from Hanoi, French Indo-China. Previous to their arrival at Hanoi, the aviators had not been heard from since they left Rangoon, Burma, at 6:10 o'clock yesterday morning.

The missing trans-Atlantic fliers are Lloyd Bertaud, James De Witt Hill and Philip A. Payne, of the Fokker monoplane Old Glory, and Captain Terry Turner and Lieut. James Medcalf of the Canadian plane Sir John Carling.

Three Ships Searching. While three ships continued to search for the occupants of Old Glory, it is believed that the fliers were still alive but had been virtually abandoned. In the case of Tully and Medcalf, a search will be difficult for the plane carried no radio, and the spot where it apparently fell while attempting a flight from Canada to England is unknown.

In spite of the fact that Brock and Schlee are safe, a wave of sentiment against the risking of further lives in trans-oceanic airplane ventures is rising all over the world, which has lost three fliers in the ill-fated monoplane St. Raphael, built for the Sir John Carling dropped from sight, was divided in opinion on the value of trans-oceanic airplane flights.

Some aviation officials declared that experimental flights must be made if aviation is to succeed, while the press was almost unanimous in condemning further flights.

Against Further Flights. Feeding against further risking of lives was rife in Berlin, and the Junkers Airplane Company has ordered that no further trans-Atlantic flight attempts are to be made this year.

In Washington, Acting Secretary of the Navy Douglas Robinson voiced a strong protest against further trans-Atlantic flight at this time, because of the large number of lives which have been lost.

The toll taken by trans-oceanic projects in the last five months is not placed at eighteen. Because of the wave of public opinion, it was regarded as probable that some of the projected trans-oceanic flights, including the monoplane Royal Windsor from New Foundland to England, would be abandoned.

WINDSOR TO HOP. St. John's N. F., Sept. 9.—Aviator Phil Wood and C. A. Schiller, pilots of the Royal Windsor, told International News Service today, that they had no intention of abandoning their trans-oceanic flight to England, and will hop off at Harbor Grace Field as soon as weather conditions permit.

The aviators said they had received no instructions to call off the flight. A strong northwest wind was blowing today and rain was falling. "It is our intention to fly as soon as the weather improves," said Wood. "At present we are only waiting."

AGAINST FURTHER HOPS. Washington, Sept. 9.—Lives sacrificed on the altar of aeronautics.

HOPE ABANDONED FOR TULLY PLANE. Experts Say Pilots Had No Chance After Their Machine Crashed.

London, Sept. 9.—Hope was virtually abandoned today for Captain Terry Tully and Lieut. James Medcalf, pilot and navigator of the Canadian monoplane Sir John Carling, which left Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, Wednesday on an attempt to fly across the Atlantic ocean to London.

With the plane twenty-four hours overdue, and its supply of gasoline exhausted, the possibility that the fliers might have escaped the tragic fate which has befallen many other daring aviators who pitted their skill and the power of an airplane motor against the inexorable force of the elements, became increasingly remote.

Tully and Medcalf have apparently followed Nungesser and Goll, Bertaud, Payne and Hill, and the Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim and her two companions in the monoplane St. Raphael, all of whom disappeared into the sea on disastrous attempts to bridge the Atlantic by air.

No Radio. The Sir John Carling was not equipped with radio, its occupants may have fallen a few hundred miles off Newfoundland, perhaps in mid-ocean, even possibly while almost in sight of their goal. They started out, and they were not seen again.

Tully and Medcalf did not have a chance for their lives when the plane fell, in the opinion of aviation officials. Their plane carried no rubber life-raft, and it is believed that they went down, with the wreckage of their shattered plane.

After Big Prize. The ill-fated flight for the Sir John Carling was made for a $25,000 prize. The journey started from London, Ontario, and was interrupted when Tully and Medcalf were forced to descend at St. John's, Quebec, because of fog.

From there, the plane was flown to Harbor Grace, and the take off for England made just four hours after the frantic S. O. S. of the Old Glory had been sent out.

Kept In Ignorance. Tully and Medcalf started out on the flight without knowing of the fate that had befallen Old Glory. They were kept in ignorance of the distress call before the start, but friends inserted a brief pencilled message in the fliers' map-case, so they would know of the unhappy termination of Old Glory's flight soon after they had started.

All through the night, officials of the air ministry checked with lighthouses and radio stations along the southern coast of England, Ireland and France, in the hope the plane might have been sighted, but no encouraging word was received. The plane was given up for lost today, and hopes were expressed that C. A. "Duke" Schiller and Phil Wood, pilots of the monoplane Royal Windsor, would abandon their attempt to fly from Windsor, Ontario, to Windsor, England.

Woman Starts Flight Planned For Paris

Detroit, Sept. 9.—Undaunted by the fate of Mildred Doran and the fliers now missing in the Atlantic, Ruth Elder, the first woman to attempt a trans-oceanic flight, took off from the Ford Airport today at 5:56 a. m. for Tampa, Fla., on the first leg of a projected hop to Paris.

Accompanied by her navigator and co-pilot, George W. Haldeman, Miss Elder soared aloft in her "American Girl," a Stinson-Detroiter monoplane, carrying 225 gallons of gasoline, and headed southward.

The original destination for the trial flight was Lakeland, Fla., but when it was learned that the field at Lakeland is in a soggy condition, it was decided to fly to Tampa, a distance of 95 miles to Tampa, and then on to Lakeland for the dear old home, or any of the popularly accepted motives," Miss Elder said.

"I made up my mind that I was going to be the first woman to fly to the Atlantic and, God willing, I'm going to do it."

KEEP UP SEARCH FOR "OLD GLORY". Only One Hope—That Flyers Are Able to Keep Afloat in Rubber Raft.

New York, Sept. 9.—One single ray of hope—that a flimsy rubber life-raft could withstand the pounding of the mid-ocean waves—flickered today as three ocean liners continued a futile search of the sea 500 miles east of Newfoundland for some trace of the monoplane Old Glory which left Old Orchard, Maine, shortly after noon Tuesday on an attempt to fly to Rome.

With no trace of the plane reported, hope was almost abandoned that Lloyd Bertaud, James De Witt Hill and Philip A. Payne, occupants of Old Glory on her ill-fated flight, could possibly be found alive. Even the most optimistic conceded that Old Glory herself could no longer be afloat on the turbulent waves on which she is believed to have crashed a few minutes after sending out a frantic SOS call.

The one hope remaining was that the fliers had safely taken to their rubber raft, and are still floating or have been picked up by some merchant vessel unequipped with wireless.

Little Hope Left. But as the hours passed with no cheering word, the fear was generally felt that Old Glory's "Road to Rome" led to the bottom of the ocean, following the tragic route set by Nungesser and Goll and the Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim and her two companions on the earlier attempts to span the Atlantic by air.

The liners continuing theewardless search of the Great Circle area where Old Glory is believed to have gone down were the Nova Scotia, of the Furness Line, the American Merchant and the Gunader, California, the search thus far has been utterly without success. No splinter of shattered fuselage or wing, no floating tank or other wreckage has been sighted to stop the tossing waves which might offer concrete evidence of Old Glory's fate.

No Story of Disaster. It is possible, even probable, that

SAYS JENSEN ASKED DEMOCRAT SUPPORT

Chris McHale Confirms Herald's Statement About Assessor Candidate.

Yesterday's statement in The Herald that John Jensen desired to have his name placed before the electors by the Democratic party in event he is defeated by Samuel Nelson, Jr., for assessor, in Tuesday's Primary, was confirmed today by Christopher S. McHale, local Democratic leader. Mr. McHale told The Herald that Mr. Jensen made an appointment to meet the former at his place of business on Bissell street.

There Mr. Jensen asked Mr. McHale if it would be possible to be named by the Democrats for the unexpired term of assessor. Mr. McHale promptly told Mr. Jensen that there was nothing he could do since Mr. McHale was not a member of the Democratic town committee and was without power to act.

Denial Reported. Since the statement in The Herald yesterday Mr. Jensen is reported to have denied that he sought "any Democratic leaders" in an effort to get into an election. He is reported to have said that he was defeated in the Republican Primary Tuesday, Mr. McHale's confirmation of The Herald's statement proves Mr. Jensen's reported denial false. Mr. McHale is a Democratic leader in Manchester. He is the personal representative in Manchester of Ex-Congressman Augustine Lonergan and is invariably consulted by the Democratic State Central Committee in matters of political importance in Manchester.

As stated in The Herald yesterday Mr. Jensen's name could not legally have been put on the Democratic ticket even if the Democratic committee had sanctioned it. The time limit for filing such nominations expired last week.

HOSTETTER BROTHERS ARE SENT TO PRISON

Took Part in Bank Robbery and Shooting of Deputy Sheriff.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 9.—The notorious Hostetter brothers, alleged to have taken part in the Southport Indiana bank robbery, Feb. 18, 1926, were sentenced in Marion County Criminal Court by Judge James A. Collins today.

Robert Hostetter, 22, was sentenced in from five to twenty years in state prison for robbery and one to ten years for assault and battery for shooting Deputy Sheriff Charles Bell, in an attempt to evade arrest.

Howard Hostetter, 18, was sentenced from one to ten years in the state reformatory for robbery.

PROHIBITION SCANDAL. Washington, Sept. 8.—An investigation into the alleged acceptance of bribes by a number of prohibition agents in the Pacific northwest, was launched today by Mrs. Mable Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general.

Roy C. Lyle, prohibition administrator for Oregon, Washington and Alaska, in whose district the investigation centers, conferred with Mrs. Willebrandt.

Lyle was called to Washington in connection with the scandal.

Schlee and Brock, Three Hours Overdue, Land In Hong Kong—Fog Forced Them to Reduce Speed of Plane—Next Hop Is to Shanghai.

Hong Kong, China, Sept. 9.—The monoplane Pride of Detroit in which Edward F. Schlee and William S. Brock are attempting a flight around the world, arrived here at three o'clock this afternoon from Hanoi, French Indo-China.

Hong Kong is 600 miles from Hanoi. The fliers were three hours late and fears for their safety had arisen. Schlee and Brock explained that their lateness was due to fog which caused them to reduce the plane's speed.

Both are well. The intrepid Detroit fliers appeared warily and declared they were confident of breaking the existing record of 28 and one half days for a trip around the world. From Hong Kong they will fly to Shanghai then to Tokio, and then across the Pacific ocean to San Francisco by way of Midway island and Honolulu.

Schlee and Brock left Rangoon, Burma, early yesterday. They were not heard from again until they reached Hanoi, 1,000 miles away, and considerable apprehension was felt for their safety.

Brock and Schlee had been expected at Bangkok, Bham, yesterday morning. When no word came from that city, it was feared that the Pride of Detroit had been forced down in the jungle country between Rangoon and Bangkok.

MANILA REPORTS. Manila, Sept. 9.—The Pride of Detroit, carrying Edward F. Schlee, Detroit business man and William Brock, pilot, arrived at the Kailack Aerodrome, Hong Kong, at 3:40 this afternoon, according to advices received here from the British Post Office wireless station at Hong Kong. The plane made a perfect landing.

The round the world fliers expected to leave Hong Kong for Shanghai tomorrow morning. During the flight from Hanoi, where they left at 8 o'clock yesterday, the plane developed minor engine trouble. When this is repaired, the aviators will be prepared to make their next jump.

When the fliers hopped off from Rangoon, British India, they were undecided whether they would stop at Bangkok, Siam, but once in the air they apparently decided to continue on to Hanoi.

BACKERS SCARED. San Francisco, Sept. 9.—Possibility that the proposed flight of the Pride of Detroit over the Pacific, via Midway Islands, would be abandoned, loomed today when it became known the backers of the flight were negotiating with the Dollar Steamship line for passage of the plane and the fliers from Yokohama to Honolulu.

Army aviators stationed at Manila have pointed out the danger of such an undertaking. Brock and Schlee would be fortunate if they came within 150 miles of Midway, in the event they tried the ocean hop from Japan.

ABOUT TOWN

The Manchester Green Community Club will hold its first fall meeting in the assembly hall of the school this evening at 8 o'clock.

For the benefit of Manchester's Dollar Day shoppers upwards of sixty of the stores along Main street and at the Center will have their windows illuminated this evening, through co-operation of the Manchester Electric Company.

Rev. H. F. R. Stechholz of the Zion Lutheran church on Cooper street will preach on Sunday in his former churches at Paterson, N. J. and Maywood, at their missionary festivals. The pulpit in Zion church here will be occupied by Student Reinhard Janetzke of Bristol, Conn. He is pursuing his theological studies at Concordia Seminary at St. Louis Missouri and is an excellent speaker.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Skinner, who have been spending the summer in town, left this morning with their two children for their home in Sarasota, Florida. They were accompanied by Mrs. Skinner's sister, Mrs. Alden Casteel and her two children, who will spend some time with the Skinner's in their Florida home.

WALL ST. BETTING GROWS EXCITING

Contractor Holger Bach is raising the frame for Harry Malmgren's new house on Robert Road.

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER Miss Emily Pettit of 39 West Middle Turnpike was honored with a surprise miscellaneous gift shower at her home last evening by a party of 20 of her friends. One of the fun-making features was a mock marriage with Miss Catherine Benevento the bride, Miss Jean Neville the bridegroom, Mrs. Gladys Ridolfi, maid of honor. The role of minister was played by Miss Mary Demato and Louis Milligan was the best man. Miss Feltier, who is employed in Cheney Brothers rain office, is to be married later in the month to Ernest Johnson of Maple street.

ESCAPES TWICE Waterbury, Sept. 9.—Richard Marchand is free again. The young man, who was sent to jail for six months on a charge of attempted burglary, and escaped from a deputy sheriff while attending the funeral of an uncle, was recaptured in Montreal and held pending arrival of extradition papers. Police here today received word that he had slipped out of the prison in Montreal during the night and apparently had reached a safe hiding place.

Over $100,000 Wagered He said that more than $100,000 already had been wagered on the National League race in Wall Street. Twenty thousand dollars has been put up and Sillsky has $13,000 more to bet against $10,000 that the Yankees win both the American League flag and the

WORLD SERIES, NO MATTER WHAT CLUB THEY MEET

"When Tunney and Dempsey were re-matched this summer, Tunney was a 2 to 1 favorite," said Sillsky. "He is now a favorite at 7 to 5, with plenty of Dempsey money showing up. I think they will enter the ring at even money."

Regarding politics, Darnell & Company is betting this way: Even money Coolidge will not be prevailed upon to run again. Three to one Hughes will not be nominated; four to one Hoover will not be nominated; five to one Lowden won't; ten to 1 Dawes won't. Fifteen to one Nicholas Murray Butler won't.

Darnell & Company will take 6 to 5 and bet that Al Smith will be the Democratic nominee and will take 7 to 1 that he will be the next president of the United States. If Smith is nominated Sillsky expects the betting will surpass that of any previous presidential race "because it will be a close fight."

no details of Old Glory's disaster will ever be known. The stricken plane may have stayed in the air a full hour or more after the distress signal had been broadcast with its radio silent, and perhaps crashed into the sea a hundred miles or more away from the spot where the search of the ocean liners was concentrated. Hope for Old Glory's safety, was maintained until a late hour yesterday, many confidently trusted that perhaps the trouble which caused the flier to send the SOS was merely temporary, and that the plane, its radio silenced, would be sighted over France on its way to the Italian capital. But no word came, and the full import of Old Glory's frantic SOS was realized. The plane, beyond question, had crashed into the ocean. Whether its motor, exhausted by the heavy load it was pulling, suddenly went dead, or whether the structure of the plane buckled, probably never will be known. But it needed little imagination to conjure the spectacle of the giant plane, freighted with human cargo and hopes and ambitions, go into a dizzy spin and flatten out with a fearful splash upon the waves that have greedily claimed the lives of so many fliers. The safety of Bertaud and Hill and Payne depended solely upon two things. The first was that they had time to inflate their rubber raft, and the second, that the cockpit shell could remain afloat long enough to allow them to be picked up by some vessel that happened to cross their path.

COLUMBIA

Lester Hurlbert of Charleston, W. Va., has joined his family, who have been spending the summer with Mrs. Hurlbert's father, Chester Lyman.

AMERICAN BEAUTIES AT ATLANTIC CITY

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 9.—The little hearts of fifteen American beauties were pitter-pattering today.

Zero hour comes tonight when the choice of America's loveliest girl for 1927 will be announced.

Through the day, the judges knotted their brows and tape measures and wrestled with the delicate evidence in the way of curves and lines and alabaster skin and dimples and shades of eyes and silkenness of hair.

No beauty contest would be complete without a tang of dissension. The tang was supplied in the matter of Miss Norma Smallwood, of Tulsa, Okla., "Miss America of 1926", who quit the pageant as the result of a reported financial disagreement with the pageant committee.

Miss Smallwood was en route today to Cove, N. C., near Greensboro, where she will judge a southern beauties' contest.

PROBING TRAGEDY Waterbury, Sept. 9.—White American Legion members here were preparing to give a military burial to the body of James J. O'Connor, killed by a mail truck in the center of the city yesterday, police, postal officials and Coroner John T. Monratt today were conducting separate investigations into the tragedy.

Harry Melvin, driver of the truck was released in custody of the postmaster and today is in Detroit to participate in a baseball game which a Waterbury team is playing with a Detroit team. He left for Detroit last evening and when he returns will testify before the coroner.

PLAN NEW TREATY Washington, Sept. 9.—Negotiations for a new commercial treaty with France, which would accord most favored nation treatment to the United States, have already started, it was said at the State Department today.

The statement was made in connection with the unusual situation which has developed as a result of the Franco-German commercial pact which became effective three days ago. Under that treaty German goods are given preferential tariff rates, these duties in some cases being only one-fourth of those applied against American products. Under a most favored nation agreement, France would be required to accord the same preferential rates to the United States.

LOWMAN IS WARNED TO KEEP OFF SMITH

Washington, Sept. 9.—Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Seymour Lowman, who made an attack on Gov. Al Smith, of New York, in a Labor Day speech at Buffalo, has been told politely by his superiors to avoid personal references in addresses of the future.

Lowman's speech resulted in a protest from Rep. John J. Boylan, (D) of New York. Boylan asked Mellon to investigate the talk.

Treasury officials are understood to feel that Lowman should seek to enforce the prohibition law rather than talk about it.

Lowman declared today that the incident was closed.

Young Jacob Silverstein May Take All His Fingers to School With Him.

The only thing that troubled 15-year-old Jacob Silverstein of Bolton, former Herald newboy, when he cut his hand severely yesterday with an axe while chopping wood, was the thought that it might keep him from attending school.

When it was said it might be necessary to amputate three fingers on his left hand, Jacob said he wanted to go to the hospital and "have it over with, right away" so that he might get back to High School, where he is just beginning his first year.

At Memorial hospital, it was said that amputation had not been made today and might not be necessary.

Jacob met with his accident after he came home from school yesterday. He was holding a stick of wood in his left hand and cutting it into stove lengths.

GLEE CLUBS HOLD CORN ROAST
About 50 members of the Beethoven and G. Clef Glee clubs enjoyed a corn roast last night at Troop 5's Scout Camp in Glastonbury.

The Beethoven Glee club also took this opportunity to honor Miss Eva M. Johnson of Johnson Terrace, who has been accompanist of the club since its organization.

As a reminder of the occasion, she received a white gold bracelet and a framed picture of the Glee club.

TROOP 5
Troop 5 opened its fall season with a bang last Wednesday evening, 30 Scouts being in the lineup when the meeting came to order. A permanent group of color bearers were elected by the Scoutmaster to have charge of the flags for the coming year. After the salute to the flag a short drill was held and Patrol 3 was given a very hearty razz the result of being the last ones to correctly march to the foot of the room.

Races were held but no winners were picked because almost every team was disqualified in some way or other. The games played were The Dragons' Tail, Pull into the Ring and Cock Fighting.

A business meeting followed and plans were discussed to finance the Troop Cabin which has been built at Glastonbury during the summer. A play will be given sometime later in the fall all profits to go to the Cabin Fund. The Troop Glee Club which was very successful last year will resume rehearsals at an early date. The troop now has twenty-four First Class Scouts who are on their way to the Eagle Scout Ranks. Expert instruction will be given every other week on the required merit badges so that everyone will have a chance to qualify. After a few yells had been given for the different officers of the troop and everyone had had a chance to exercise their tonials with a few vocal selections the call was given for refreshments. For the next 15 minutes a deathly quiet prevailed as the boys went about the serious business of going away with the cats. The vigor with which the three cheers for the committee were given testified to the fact that everyone enjoyed it very much. A new closing ceremony was held where the scoutmaster has a chance to say a few words to each Scout privately. This closing the meeting for the evening. A troop hike will be held Saturday afternoon to our cabin at Glas-

BEN CHENEY WINS FROM JOHN TWO UP
Retains Morning's Lead to Cop Captain's Cup In Country Club Match.

Ben Cheney's morning lead of three holes in his 36-hole match with his brother, John P. Jr., proved sufficient to carry him to victory in the afternoon's eighteen although he had to exert himself to win the captain's cup trophy at the Manchester Country Club.

The two golfers were evenly matched and the battle was not decided until the very last hole. Ben being one up with one to go. Ben won the eighteenth hole, however, and snatched the match. Ben's card showed a 79 in the 76 in the morning and a 78 in the afternoon for a total of 155 while John had a 79 and a 76 for an equal total.

Following is the complete card for the 36 holes: the first being the morning's play and the second the afternoon's:

REVISE CHARTER, BURN GARBAGE, BOARD ADVISES

Town for a number of years in the future. The public inspection of the Building was held on April 2nd and 3rd, 1927, and many favorable comments were heard at that time. A great deal of credit is due the Architect, Frank C. Farley, and Edward Elliott, Jr., Inspector, for the completion of this work. Under date of April 11th, 1927, the Board of Selectmen accepted the building in the name of the Town of Manchester.

Through the courtesy of Russell Cheney a fine painting has been hung in the Selectmen's Room of the new Administration Building, and Mr. Cheney has promised to paint more local scenes for this room.

The total cost to the Town of Manchester for this Building is $192,530.60, which covers all the equipment installed to date. Included in this amount is $9,970.65 for fixtures, $1,374.35 for grading and $850.00 for insurance, which amounts were not taken into consideration at the time the appropriation was asked for.

Up to the present time nothing has been done in the actual construction of drives and walks in the new section of land purchased for burial plots at the East Cemetery, but it is the expectation of the Board that this work will be started about October 1st, 1927, and the lots will be available shortly thereafter. The Board, therefore, recommends an appropriation of $4,000.00 for Cemeteries this year.

During the past year the Board purchased a large ten-ton Caterpillar Tractor with a snow plow for snow work. This tractor and plow worked very satisfactorily during the heavy storms of last year and we believe it to be one of the best investments the Town has made.

The Board also purchased a five ton Federal Truck which is giving very good service, and we would recommend the purchase of another truck of this type as soon as possible.

The Board would also recommend the purchase of several more snow plows to be placed upon hired trucks for the purpose of opening the roads in the winter. The tax on family necessities, the only method of giving good service is to have a number of trucks ready to start out as soon as possible after the snow has fallen.

Center Street Improvement has been completed during the year to the satisfaction of the Selectmen and Townspeople. Up to the present time the State of Connecticut has not rendered its bill for the Town's share of the work, but there is a sufficient balance on this account to take care of same when presented.

A new concrete bridge has been constructed on Spring street, and a new bridge has been completed on Autumn street during the past year, and the Board would recommend an appropriation of $3,000 for new bridges during the coming year. Attention is directed to the necessary construction on Bridge of bridge construction on Bridge street, North Main street and Fern street.

During the past year storm water sewers were constructed on New street, School street, and Oakland street, together with the additional storm water sewer service on Center street. The Board believes that a storm water sewer appropriation should be made every year the same as the walk and curb appropriation, as there are a great number of places in Town where these sewers are necessary.

We would particularly call attention to the necessity of construction of storm water sewers on Branford street, Benton street, West Center street, Middle Turnpike, Washington street, and Hollister street, and the completion of the so-called "Dry Brook."

The care of the highways has been under the supervision of the Highway Committee of the Board of Selectmen and the same method of caring for same has been used this year as in the past. We believe that the general highways of the Town compare very favorably with those of any other City or Town our size in the State of Connecticut, and are proud of the showing made with the net cost of highway maintenance only $66,186.30. We would recommend an appropriation of not less than $70,000 for general maintenance of highways during the coming year.

We believe that the oiling of the highways is one of the best methods of keeping down the maintenance cost of said highways and, therefore, recommend an appropriation of $15,000 for oiling during the next year.

Your attention is called to the report of the Supt. of Roads and Bridges giving a list of the streets on which building and veranda lines have been established during the past year, also where walks and curbs have been constructed, highways repaired and oiled, etc.

The method used of collection and disposal of garbage has proved very satisfactory, but the Board would call the attention of the voters to the fact that the time is very near when it will be necessary for them to make an appropriation for a garbage incinerator. We would recommend that this matter be taken up with the Board of Health, and an exhaustive study made of proper incineration plant.

Your particular attention is directed to the report of the Park Commission which appears elsewhere in this report.

The Board recommends that a committee of ten or fifteen be appointed at the next Annual Town Meeting, to be called the Charter Revision Committee, in order that they may proceed at once to make a study of the Charter of Manchester, in co-operation with the Town Officials, and bring the same up to date, as it has been our experience that there are a number of improvements which can be made in our charter which are necessary at this time and for the future.

During the past year the Army & Navy Club presented to the Selectmen their Service Flag together with the United States Colors which were received by the Board of Selectmen in behalf of the Town, and a suitable place will be made in the Municipal Building for housing these flags.

E. L. G. Hohenthal has presented to the Town various books from Manchester England, together with a letter of greeting from the Lord Mayor of Manchester, England, which will be preserved for future reference.

In this connection, the Board would earnestly request that any former Selectman, or Town official having any records pertaining to the Town of Manchester, turn the same over to the Town Clerk for storage in the new building and for future reference.

The Board would recommend that the Building Committee, consisting of William C. Cheney, Wilbur B. Rogers, G. H. Waddell, and all of the present members of the Board of Selectmen, be discharged with a vote of thanks, at the next Annual Town Meeting.

Due to strict economy, it has been possible to take care of all appropriations and expenditures during the past year with only a deficit of $14,218.91, which is particularly gratifying to the Board, inasmuch as it recommended a thirteen and one half tax rate and informed the voters that every attempt would be made to keep within the appropriations.

HYER vs. McCLOSKEY

Eighty-six years ago today, Tom Hyer, American heavyweight champion and the seventh in line, successfully defended his title in a desperate ring battle with George McCloskey known to the fighting world as Country McCloskey and considered the most logical contender for the title.
The ring was pitched on the turf near Caldwell's Landing, N. Y., and as the result of a heavy rainfall the night before the ground was muddy, causing the fighters to slip and slide as they battled furiously for nearly three hours. At the end of 101 rounds the challenger succumbed and Hyer was awarded the decision. The men fought with bare knuckles for the title and a $500.00 side bet.

ADVERTISE IN THE HERALD—IT PAYS

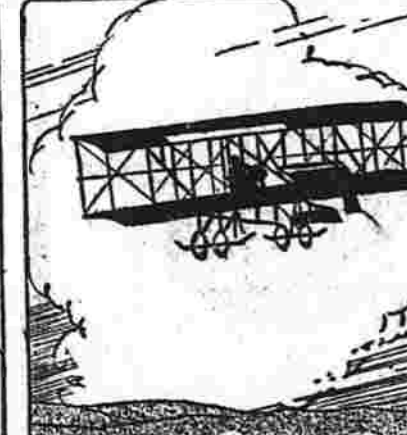

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE: (78) The Wright Brothers

In the early days of the twentieth century, with the improvement of the gasoline engine, the Wright brothers, Orville and Wilbur, appeared on the aviation horizon. They studied and experimented with gliders to learn the best size and shape of wings. Above is pictured Orville Wright in one of the gliders at Kill Devil Hill, on the North Carolina coast.

Finally on Dec. 17, 1903, a machine rose in the air carrying a man and stayed up for 59 seconds. The problem was solved.

The Wright brothers kept on trying and in 1905 made a flight of 24 miles, returning to their starting point. Longer and longer flights were made.

In 1908, Wilbur Wright, at Le Mans, France, covered 56 miles in a plane and in another he remained in the air two hours and twenty minutes. Never was an invention hailed with more excitement. The popular admiration in which efforts to fly had been held suddenly changed to cheers. Within a few years men were building flying machines in all civilized countries.

HOOVER, AFTER COOLIDGE

Representative J. Q. Tilson of Connecticut, Republican leader in the House, is quoted as saying at Asheville, N. C., that in his opinion Herbert Hoover is the most likely of the candidates for the nomination who have been mentioned, in case President Coolidge cannot be induced to run in 1928.

Mr. Tilson is not given to making unconsidered political remarks. His expression of preference for Mr. Hoover's candidacy as against that of Lowden, Dawes, Longworth, Hughes or any of the others is without doubt made in the name of Connecticut Republicans generally. So, too, beyond any question, is his making of all or any of these candidacies absolutely contingent on Mr. Coolidge's refusal to be drafted.

Connecticut Republicans are sure to be found foremost among those who will, until the last moment, regard all candidacies, save the vicarious one of the President himself, as secondary or alternative recourses. The party in this state is, primarily, for Mr. Coolidge for four years more.

Defeating that, it is fast becoming the belief in this state that while Mr. Hoover is far from being the only other Republican candidate in sight acceptable to the voters of this commonwealth, he is, among them all, with the possible exception of Mr. Hughes, the least touched by the element of sectionalism. Mr. Hoover is not a candidate of the West, the Middle West, the South or the East. He is, essentially there was such a thing, severally an all-American candidate.

OFF ON THE WRONG FOOT

A wave of revulsion from overseas stunt flying is sweeping over the world. From Germany, from England, from many sources in America comes the demand for a cessation of this squandering of human lives in oceanic flights so perilous as to make it little less than insanity to embark on them.

Australia takes the lead in positive action to put an end to such adventures as those which, in recent weeks, have given sufficiently conclusive proof that the flying of land planes over the sea is impracticable. No aircraft except seaplanes, flying boats and amphibians will be permitted hereafter to be used in flights there, over a longer distance than fifty miles from shore to shore.

It would seem to be more than likely that the Australians have hit upon that pivotal point in making this regulation. Transoceanic flight, must be approached, not on the theory that planes can be made certain of staying in the air for such long voyages as those across oceans, but from the angle of freeing enforced descents from their menace.

Starting from that point and depicting their skill and scientific knowledge to the perfection of flying boats which, on necessity, can take care of themselves on the surface of the ocean even in great storms, it is possible that aviation experts may solve the passage of the sea spaces far earlier than if they continued to follow the present urge to develop airships that will not touch the water at all.

That this would involve the building of vastly larger machines would not be likely to hold up the progress of distance flying. There is likely to be plenty of money for any such project as may have intelligent sponsorship.

At all events, enough supposedly perfect planes have gone down to convince the most sanguine that aviation, so far as inter-continental flights goes, is off on the wrong foot. Such adventures will be suicidal until the ship that flies the air can also sail the sea.

BACK TO SANITY.

We should say that the Cline murder trial in Rockville, in the manner of its reporting in the initial stages, provides indication that a turning point has been reached in the treatment of such affairs by the newspapers of the East. So far as we have seen no metropolitan newspaper has printed imaginative sketches of the jury talesmen's whiskers. There have been no references to the cowhide boots of the judge. No constable has been described as chewing straw. No reporter has yet told about the proceedings being broken into by the moaning of neighborhood cows. The "local color" which, in so many previous murder trials held outside the metropolitan districts of New York and Boston, has been manufactured out of whole cloth appears to be missing from pretty much all the stories of the Cline case.

Almost for the first time—quite the first time in a good many years—the press treatment of the earlier stages of the trial is on a basis of actuality. The Tolland County superior court is regarded as a court, not as an extremely good joke. Rockville escapes being labeled with hackism. The special writers and the press agencies are dealing with the case, so far, on its merits.

This is a decided relief. If it proves anything it probably proves that in the Hall-Mills case and the Snyder case mawkish "human interest" overextended itself to the point of extreme exhaustion. The big city newspapers learned a lesson from those cases which is likely to last for some time.

WORSE

There has been a good deal of criticism of late of the marksmanship of New York policemen. Compared with a recent performance of three members of Chicago's "finest" the Gotham cops would seem to be all adopted children of Annie Oakley.

A wild Mexican with a knife took a job at a policeman in the celebrated Loop. That cop and two others chased the man from Mexico all around Dearborn street, shooting. They hit a postman making his rounds; they hit a prohibition agent snooping about; they hit a department store executive going after his piece of pie and glass of milk. They riddled mail chutes; they covered the sidewalk with broken glass from peppered windows; they sent bullets buzzing like bees into business offices. Inscrutably, the Mexican got in the way of four projectiles—after the cops, running, had almost if not quite caught up to him. He is now dead. The mail carrier, the shop executive and the dry sleuth are still alive.

There was a time when Chicago was in the West. Some of the old pioneers of Fort Dearborn days are buried out there. They must have turned over in their graves at the noise of such shooting as that—by grown up officers of the law, permitted to carry guns.

The New York cops might get a certain amount of vindication, pretty cheaply, by getting up a team pistol match with the police of the Windy City.

PRETTY HEALTHY

Though the Citizens Military Training Camps conducted by the War Department were subjected last spring to the heaviest bombardment by the pacifist artillery that they have ever sustained, the number of young men enrolled at the fifty-two camps in thirty-three states was larger than it had ever been before. Within a few hundred of 40,000 youths were under training for a month. Of these a good proportion who have completed the blue or senior course will be commissioned as second lieutenants in the Reserve Corps.

Whatever may be the opinion of the individual as to the righteousness of training young citizens for the possible defense of their country, there can hardly be two minds as to the physical advantage of the summer training camps. Out of all the more than thirty-nine thousand young men who were in camp this summer there were just three deaths—two from accident and one from disease.

It would be a matter of some difficulty to conceive of any other circumstances under which so large a body of human beings could enjoy so nearly complete immunity from death.

BIG NAVYISM.

It is extremely interesting to be informed that the United States warship Lexington will carry a power plant capable of developing 180,000 horsepower in the form of electrical energy, which energy will be applied to the propulsion of the ship and to every other important application of power on the great vessel.

It becomes more interesting when it is realized that this power plant, which is incorporated in a floating mechanism that conceivably may run on a rock on its first voyage and which in any event will be scrapped as "obsolete" in twenty years at the outside, would more than suffice to supply the city of Boston with all its lights and with electrical power of every sort and for every purpose to the limit of its needs.

One gets, from this comparison, a better idea of the enormous waste age represented by big navyism than is possible through the mere employment of terms of dollars.

TRUE TO FORM

"Jersey Democrats Organize to Fight," says a headline in the New York Times. Of course, when did they ever do anything else, in New Jersey or anywhere else?

WORKS BOTH WAYS

It works both ways. The American immigration authorities the other day refused to recognize a proxy marriage performed in Spain, legal in that country. Now the Swedish courts have declared invalid in Sweden a divorce granted by the courts of Illinois.

One of the things that lie in the future is an international agreement to accord full validity and force in all countries to marriages and divorces legalized in the country of natural and proper jurisdiction.

New York, Sept. 9.—Scattered notes from a day's ramble about Manhattan:

A child evangelist suddenly halting at a train gate in Pennsylvania station to hold a revival meeting. . . . Which so surprised and startled the milling, frantic crowd of commuters that many missed their trains. . . .

Then for a walk in Greenwich Village, which each day continues to disappear under the blasts and hammers of the wreckers engaged in clearing a path for a new subway. . . . And I was minded of a time in the forest when I followed a wood chopping crew in the Pacific northwest as they hewed through a mighty forest for a little lumber company's sidetrack line. . . .

At Washington Square they told me that I had best take a last look at those four quaint old houses that meet the square at Thompson street as they would disappear next week. . . . The oldest houses on the square they are, dating back to 1800; when Washington Square was the Potter's Field. . . . And in one corner was then the public gallows, with a fine old elm tree ready to serve the hangman, who made his home in one of the houses. . . . The public gallows made its exit when they hanged a woman. . . . Rose Butler was her name and she was a negress. . . . The event stirred up no end of controversy. . . . And the hangman had to move. . . .

As time went on this neighborhood became a camping ground for artists and writers. . . . Frank Norris spent several youthful years but a door or two away. . . . And before that, Washington Irving, Mark Twain, Thomas Paine and even Aaron Burr. . . . It was not so far away that Burr rode off for his historic duel. . . . In a little place, just behind them, Post wrote "The Bell" and "The Raven" was read publicly for the first time by Anne Lynch. . . .

The "arty" tea rooms discovered the old houses about ten years ago or so. . . . Visitors, bobbing past the Fifth Avenue busses as they made the turn, would see artists and "Bohemians" gathered in "Grace's Garret" and soon it became a popular place for tourists in search of "atmosphere." . . . Romany Marie, one of the Village celebrities, had been holding forth recently. . . . I wonder where she will go next. . . . For two years Marie has been retreating as the wreckers laid low the old places she chose for a tea room. . . .

And so, a bit melancholy over the ruthlessness of this great city and saddened by the passing of so picturesque a landmark, I went with Dick Hoffmann to the Players Club for dinner. And there was seated at the "round" table with a merry crew including Don Marquis, the writer; Philip Merivale, who won fame as Hannibal in "The Road to Rome" and Rea Irvin, the comic artists.

GILBERT SWAN.

When the frost is on the punkin and the fodder's in the shock, And you hear the kyouck and gobble of the struttin' turkey-cock, And the cluckin' of the guineys, and the cluckin' of the hens, And the rooster's hallylooyer as he tiptoes on the fence; O, it's then's the times a feller is a-feelin' at his best, With the risin' sun to greet him from a night of peaceful rest, As he leaves the house, bareheaded, and goes out to feed the stock.

When the frost is on the punkin and the fodder's in the shock, The husky, rusty rassel of the tossels of the corn, And the raspin' of the tangled leaves, as golden as the morn; The stubble in the furries—kind of lonesome-like, but still A-preachin' sermons to us of the barns they grewed to fill; The strawstack 'n the medder, and the reaper in the field; The houses in their attics below—the clover overhead!— O, it sets my hart a clickin' like the tickin' of a clock.

WASHINGTON PRESS AGENTS ARE LIBERAL EDUCATORS

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington, Sept. 9.—One of the best ways of obtaining a liberal education is to become a Washington correspondent and read all the free publicity stories sent in by hopeful press agents.

Neither the press agents for the government departments nor the propaganda artists for the various organizations let up during the time Congress is away. Just because everyone is throwing these hand-outs into the waste basket unread, your correspondent is going to reveal some of the stuff that the press agents have sought to get into the papers, as gleaned from the mail of the past week or so.

Motorists are "conservatively estimated" to be buying $100,000,000 worth of farm produce at roadside markets in 1927, according to the American Automobile Association.

Out of every thousand car owners, twelve get "out of gas" every month according to the same organization.

UNUSUAL CONTEST AT RUBINOW SALE

Purchasers Have Chance to Get Goods Free—Cash
Refund Offer.

Those who trade at Rubinow's Garment Fashion Center tomorrow, Dollar Day, will find an extraordinary sales contest in progress in addition to the several bargains Mr. Rubinow has advertised for the day. Everyone who buys at the store will be given an opportunity to receive the goods free of any charge whatever. That sounds amazing—and it is an amazing offer.

Here's the plan—Purchasers at Rubinow's will get sales slips indicating the amount of money spent in the store. The purchaser must write his or her name and address on the slip and deposit it in a locked box in the store. At 9 o'clock tomorrow night a member of the Herald staff will draw three slips from this box. The first one drawn entitles the owner to his or her purchases free. The amount the purchaser paid in getting the goods will be immediately refunded. The second slip entitles the owner to a 10 per cent. refund of the amount paid and the third slip gives the owner a 5 per cent.

on the sales slip total. No refund over $100 will be made. Thus everyone who buys at Rubinow's has a chance to get the purchases for nothing or with either a 10 or 5 per cent. discount. Mr. Rubinow calls attention to his advertisement of Dollar Day specials in today's Herald and points out that purchasers at Rubinow's will not go amiss even if they do not win in the sales slip contest.

SEASON AT RAINBOW OPENS SATURDAY NIGHT

Frank L. Pinney, manager of the Rainbow ballroom in Bolton, today announced the opening of the fall and winter season this week Saturday at the pretty dance rendezvous on the Willimantic-Hartford highway. Several changes have been made at the popular palace during the summer. The ballroom has been decorated, and now ranks with the prettiest in the state. Better facilities for serving refreshments have been made. A new music aggregation will be heard at the Rainbow this year, and the manager plans to feature some of the country's best-known orchestras during the season.

Several novelties have been secured for Saturday night's opening and large numbers of Willimantic, Stafford, Rockville, Hartford and Manchester dancers are expected to be present. Mr. Pinney is broadcasting news of the opening widely. The handy parking area at the Rainbow, the excellent dinners and luncheons that are available at the Rainbow Inn, adjacent to the ballroom, will again be features at the Bolton dance-and-dine resort this year.

Enjoy your favorite ice cream dish or fresh fruit drink at our new fountain when you are downtown Dollar Day.—Quinn's.—Adv.

The PENNY PRINCESS by anne austin

©1927 by NEA Service

BEGIN HERE TODAY VERA CAMERON, plain secretary, allows herself to be transformed into a beauty by JERRY MACKLYN, her boss, advertising manager for Peach Bloom Cosmetics Co. Jerry falls in love with Vera, and his love continues even after he learns the secret to the transformation only because the man she falls in love with, SCHUYLER SMYTHE, ignores her.

VERA spends her vacation at Lake Minnetonka because Smythe is there. He, and other guests, mistake her for VIVIAN CRANDALL, ex-princess, who after a Paris divorce is in hiding. Smythe and Vera see in a stolen car. Smythe confesses his love and insists that she marry him. Vera tells him the truth about herself. He is furious, thus revealing himself as a notorious fortune-hunter. Two masked men stop them and Vera is kidnapped and taken by airplane to a shack in the hills where PRINCE IVAN, Vivian's ex-husband, awaits them. The kidnappers announce they will hold Vera for a ransom from the Crandalls. Vera convinces the prince he must hide his fury at the discovery of her identity, warning him of the consequences should the men find she was incapable of drawing a ransom.

In New York Jerry's stenographer stuns him by announcing she saw Vera that morning and gave her one of the advertising booklets with a picture in it. Jerry gets a phone call and acting on instructions, calls on the real Vivian Crandall who is hiding in the Bronx. She agrees to help and Vera and together they set out for the shack which Vivian remembers the prince was especially interested in.

Meantime Vera is repulsed by advances of the prince. One kidnapper, returning from the city by airplane, crashes on a hill nearby and is killed. The other flies, leaving the prince and Vera alone. She runs from the cabin, Jerry and Vivian are left in the city leaving. The two girls become instant friends. After they tell their respective stories, the prince insists Vera with the question: "Would you like to be my wife?" Vera replies: "I would like to be your wife, but I'm not your wife."

CHAPTER XLII VEE-VEE stared at Vivian Crandall for one wide-eyed moment, then, with a little cry, she turned to Jerry Macklyn and laid her head on his breast.

"Does she mean that I won't be disgraced, exposed—that you won't have your career wrecked through my folly?" she asked.

"As I said before, you haven't been the only impersonator," Vivian Crandall smiled. "I've been stealing your stuff, as they say on Broadway, without knowing it, just as you impersonated me unconsciously. If you're not too dead with fatigue and shock, I'll tell you the story. It's rather necessary that you should know something of the truth about me before we have our pleasant little interview with my wicked little prince."

"Please tell me," Vee-Vee begged.

"As I said," Vivian Crandall began, "I had had good cause to lose my faith in men and love. And then six months ago that faith was miraculously restored.

"I had always wanted to earn my own living, or to have the soul-satisfying experience of trying to do so. I went to London, very much incognito, and enrolled in a secretarial school to learn stenography. I limited myself to the most meager allowance. I had no plan, really, beyond the blessed present. It was enough to me then to know that I was living as real girls live, that no one who looked at me saw the glitter of gold surrounding me like a halo. I had not dared hope for love, but—I found it." Her voice dropped so that it was little more than a whisper.

"He lived in the same funny, drafty, cold little old house in which I had lodgings," Vivian Crandall went on. "Our acquaintance started as acquaintances do in such houses—I borrowed a card of matches from him to light my gas. And then, because he looked so forlorn and hungry, I asked him to share my boiled eggs, tea and toast. I found that he was a writer, and that he was making his living—such as it was—by writing on space rates for one of the big London dailies. In the evenings he was working on a novel into which he was putting his very heart and soul, one of those sublime things of truth and beauty and stark realism that publishers are afraid of, because they have no popular appeal. He showed me his book, of course. He had been simply starving for someone to talk to about it, and I helped him by re-typing, on the second-hand machine I had bought for practice work, the chapters he had finished.

"He used to feel sorry for me, because I had so little money and ate so little," Vivian went on, her voice low and tender. "I suspected that he frequently went without lunch himself so that he could contribute more lavishly to our funny little dinners, cooked on the one gas burner in my rooms. We used to be dreadfully afraid that the landlady would smell cooking and raise a row, but I suppose most of the other poor devils in that house did the same thing and she winked at it, like the kind-hearted old dear that she was. Oh, those were happy days! She cried suddenly. "It's glorious to be poor and in love and to struggle together! But of course it couldn't last forever, for when he asked me to marry him, I had to tell him that I was married to someone else—a prince!"

"How bitter her voice was, Vee-Vee thought plyingly. The princess' eyes flashed a look of intense hatred at the cabin where Prince Ivan was being held a prisoner.

"I had to tell him that I was an impostor, that I had won his love as soon as that formality had been attended to. He refused, repudiated me as if he hated me." Her breath came in a sharp gasp, as if she were living again the shame and grief and remorse of that scene.

"I like to meet that chap," Jerry commented feelingly.

"Oh, you will!" Vivian smiled brilliantly upon him. "You and Vee-Vee are going to meet him this very day, that is, if you will consent to help me, dear," she added to the girl beside her.

"I'll do anything I can," Vee-Vee assured her. "But—I don't understand."

"Wait. He repudiated me, as I've told you. Refused to see me again. I went back to Paris and immediately started divorce proceedings before the Seine Tribunal. The whole world knows now that I was successful and that I am no longer the Princess Vivian Polaska. No woman ever relinquished a title more gladly. As soon as the divorce was granted, I hastened back to London—and found that he had given up his lodgings. The landlady told me he'd gone to New York and I took the next boat. I found him living in a furnished room in an apartment in the Bronx and for the second time I disappeared."

"So you were in New York all the time—in the Bronx," Vee-Vee marveled.

"Exactly," Vivian smiled. "Any woman could guess what I did. My parents were very angry with me for having divorced a prince and for a scandal and I simply walked out of their Park Avenue house, having all my clothes, jewels and everything else of any value. I found a furnished apartment in the Bronx, in the same building where he has a room, though he had no idea that I had discovered his whereabouts. Before I revealed myself to him I found myself a job as a stenographer, using the name of Virginia Craig. I suppose it is instinctive to retain one's initials when seeking an alias," she smiled.

"Oh!" Enchantment dawned in Vee-Vee's wide, green eyes, then she laughed suddenly, deliciously. "Did you wear braids and spectacles and severe tailor-made suits?"

"The braids and spectacles, yes, but not tailor-made suits," she laughed. "I wore a cheap little suit, which were all I could afford on my salary of twenty-five dollars a week. I let Paul—his name is Paul Allison," she explained—"discover me, quite by accident apparently. He wanted to run away again, but I would follow him to the ends of the earth if he did, putting my wretched millions to some good use, at least."

"I imagine," Vee-Vee smiled, "that it did not take a great deal of convincing. He must adore you." "There you are wrong," Vivian retorted. "I haven't really convinced him yet. I am on the strictest probation. He swears that he will not marry an heiress, and that there is no room in his life for a woman who cannot live happily and comfortably on a salary of money he is able to make now. He is doing fairly well—remarkably well, I think," she added proudly. "His novel is in the hands of publishers now, and he has every reason to hope that it will be accepted. Of course it will not be a money success, but we hope it will make him a name among writers, at least. And he is working on an afternoon newspaper as a reporter. He has agreed that if I can stick it out three months he will consider my importunate proposal of marriage, provided of course that I agree to live on his income and forget that I have any money of my own. Now you can see what it is that I want you to do—what you must do if I am to win the man I love?"

"But how could I have done that?" she asked.

"I had never before met anyone who loved me for myself alone. But his reaction was all that my pride could have hoped, although it came near to breaking my heart. I told him that I was going to divorce the prince and that I would marry him as soon as that formality had been attended to. He refused, repudiated me as if he hated me."

The WOMAN'S DAY by ALLENE SUMNER

H. G. Wells speaks in his "World of William Orlissold" of a certain lady who should "permit her emotions which flow in a canyon to spread beyond the canyon walls." Reading the line one recalls hordes of people, men and women, but women in the main, who strut their heads in "a canyon," only to reap a harvest of emptiness when, someday, the waters of the canyon are gone and there is nothing left outside the canyon walls.

One thinks of mothers of one child who refuse any life that does not pertain to this child. I recall right now a certain mother who spends her days hurrying and fussing at her daughter. The daughter married not long ago. She lived home with her mother for a while, then moved.

"That's the serpent's tooth of ingratitude," moaned the mother, "and after I had dedicated my entire life to her and intended to keep right on doing it, whether she was married or not."

I remember years ago of entering the house of this particular mother to find her with a festive little table in the play room, having a birthday party. There was a pink round cake on the table with seven candles and pink ice cream and everything that should attend a small girl's birthday party, except some other little faces.

"Betty Jane and I are having a party all by ourselves," said mother, perched on the edge of a nursery chair, like a sea-lion on a toad-stool. "But I did want Martha Anne."

"Why you didn't want Martha Anne!" exclaimed mother, "when your very own mama has your party with you! You're the only little girl mama has to play with, Betty Jane!"

And so it went from babyhood until girlhood. Betty Jane was invited to a party, and mama reminded her that she was "all she had," and if she went away that night, mama would be all alone. Betty Jane got a job. She loved it—she loved to make friends and be with people other than mama with her eternal chorus, "you're all I have, dear."

But Betty Jane was rescued. "Sure, we'll live with you mother," said Tom in the delicious stage when he would have agreed to anything and everything. They did for six months. Then they moved. Betty Jane told me just a very little about it.

"All my life I've heard about being all that Mother had," she said. "I was just strutting my life in a nut-shell. I didn't mind giving her her share, but she wanted everything. She was jealous of my own husband. She made it hard enough for me to marry him in the first place, and she was making it hard for me to stay married."

"If Tom wasn't home right on the dot for dinner she would insist that we eat without him. If Tom wanted to go to the theater or driving, mother took it for granted that she would go along. One day Tom and she had a row. He was a very patient with her, but that night he flared out. I had bought a new dress, a chiffon velvet. Tom loved violet color. Mother criticized. She thought I should have bought pale green. "But Tom likes violet," I said. And she said, "But dear, mother likes green, and you're all she's got." Tom yelled,

Daily Health Service HINTS ON HOW TO KEEP WELL by World Famed Authority

DOES BAD WEATHER CHEER US UP? BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEN Editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

A noted psychiatrist said that an Italian finding himself in difficulty takes steps to kill the third angle in his triangle. Under similar circumstances, the Scandinavian is likely to commit suicide.

An analysis of the race factors involved in suicide in the United States permits the investigator to draw certain general conclusions. In our population, Irish, Italian and Polish immigrants show a slight tendency to suicide, whereas Germans and Scandinavians manifest a pronounced tendency in that direction.

As previously pointed out, the negro commits suicide far less frequently than does the white man, the Indian slightly less frequently, and the Chinese and Japanese far more frequently. None of the foreign races featured suicide from the American or from the white man, since all of them knew of suicide before coming to this country or mingling with the white race.

Weather and Disease Much has been said of the relationship of the weather or of disease to the occurrence of suicide.

sible punishments. The statistics seem to indicate that the dread of punishment beyond the grave is a potent and prevalent preventive of self-destruction.

In Europe the suicide rates are higher for Protestant than for Catholic countries. It is perhaps safe to say with Dr. Frenay that the race and temperament of the people and the economic conditions must be taken into account before passing judgment on the greater or lesser tendency to suicide.

A minister in New York City broadcasted a sermon on Moral Courage.

"What we need today are men and women who will stand out for what they believe to be right though the whole world opposes them," said he.

He gave several instances of moral courage. Most of these were on the order of "HAVE COURAGE MY BOY TO SAY NO."

Is it easy for a mother to see other children fashionably dressed, and, knowing that her own child could be quite as well clothed, put her in hand-me-downs from Cousin Kate's last contribution box, so that the money might be saved for demands later on?

Does it or does it not take moral courage to do without a new coat, after three years for the old one, or the new rug she had counted on for her bedroom, because an extra course in summer school would be of advantage to John in his science work?

Or reverse it and let her get her coat, or her rug, and face John's disappointment and family criticism, because she is a human being and she decides occasionally to make her own dreams come true!

There isn't a day of life that the average mother does not have to display more moral courage than George Washington when he owned up to the cherry tree. She is forever doing things she disapproves of for the good of the children, often for her husband, occasionally for herself. A nice balance she must strike, as she weighs out family privileges.

Molly Pitcher and her gun were as firm as a rock. She was the mother whose son has dated a girl for a dance and comes for her for the money, and she has to refuse him.

"It takes courage for mothers, it says so!"

FRED BEAUVAIS HAS JOB SELLING GAS IN MONTREAL GARAGE

Dulca, N. Y.—Fred Beauvais, Indian guide with an international reputation because of his connection with the Stillman divorce case, is today selling gas and oil to motorists at a garage near Lake Champlain, in the vicinity of Montreal, Que.

Wilbur L. Stevenson of Ogdensburg, friend of Beauvais, has just returned from a visit to the guide and tells some interesting things of his meeting. The guide is considered to be quite wealthy, Mr. Stevenson says.

He adds that a large number of tourists enroute to Montreal learn of the presence of the guide at the lake and go miles out of their way to make a purchase from the man they have read so much about, who was a principal in a divorce trial which was the most sensational in American history.

"I'm glad I'm off the front pages of the newspapers for awhile," Beauvais told Mr. Stevenson. "I'm content to run my garage business."

The guide also recalled to Mr. Stevenson, he reports, that for a long time he lived in luxury at a Montreal hotel where his expenses and board were paid by newspapermen who made money by the publicity and news stories they got out of it.

"I finally got tired of lying around and being treated like a duke or a prince," he is reported to have told Mr. Stevenson, "and took off for other parts so I could settle down once more."

101 YEARS OLD.
Boston, Sept. 9.—"Grandma" Almida Bennett, of Chelsea Falls, today celebrates her 101st birthday with an airplane ride to Old Orchard Beach, Maine, as the guest of Robert P. Hazard, Maine manufacturer. Her friend, Charles W. Bradley, 93, of Rochester, N. H., goes with her.

Last year "Grandma" Bennett celebrated the passing of the century milestone in her life by flying over the City of Portland, Maine.

KILLED STATE TROOPERS.
Batavia, N. Y., Sept. 9.—An intensive search was under way today for Roy Wagner, 26, of Canada, charged with shooting and killing State Troopers Robert Roy 28, of Dobbs Ferry and Arnold T. Rasmussen, 26, of Jamestown.

Roy and Rasmussen were killed when attempting to serve a warrant on Canada, according to the authorities, who said Wagner refused to pay for some gasoline he purchased at a filling station.

Roy was a Columbia University graduate, a World War veteran and a former member of the Canadian Northwest Mounted Police. Rasmussen formerly was in the Navy and is survived by his widow and a child.

Seventh American Soccer League Starts Tomorrow

Four Games Saturday, Five On Sunday; Manchester Highly Honored By Getting Inauguration of Sport In Connecticut.

The seventh American Soccer League season gets underway this week-end, with four games scheduled Saturday and five Sunday. The game made remarkable strides in popularity last season and gate receipts, much time football was played throughout the year and for the first time in the history of the league, the full schedule was completed.

One new team, Hartford, has been admitted to membership, the Connecticut club taking the place of the now defunct Springfield outfit. Many new faces, some of international reputation, will make their debut during this week-end. The class of soccer displayed in the exhibition games has wadded the appetite of the fans who are eagerly looking forward to the greatest season ever, and considering the calibre of the sport secured should not be disappointed.

Great interest here has been taken in soccer in Manchester since the exclusive announcement that the Hartford club had decided to play at the McKee street stadium for several weeks and possibly for the entire season. It is expected that a record-breaking crowd will witness the inauguration of American League soccer at Connecticut Sunday when Hartford and Philadelphia clash at the stadium. The game will start at 3 o'clock and will be preceded by a preliminary game bringing together Cheney Brothers and the Hartford Scandias. The Manchester team will arrive in Philadelphia tomorrow night from Pawtucket where they play Saturday. Mayor Bob Treat will officially christen the 1927 season here by making the kick-off.

Hartford has signed three new players in the persons of Bob Campbell, last season with Providence, Charlie Kibbert, a new half-back and Jimmy McGonigle of Boston. Kibbert is from New Bedford and McGonigle is the well known professional boxer. Manager Jimmy Dewhurst of the Hartford team was in town last night and says he plans to live here shortly. He said his team was working out daily at the stadium and that the public is well-bred also announced the release of Frank McKenna and Tommy Rasmussen.

The schedule will be played in two parts this season, and the two leading teams in each half will engage in a round robin series immediately following the completion of the second half of the D. B. von Bremen Cup, emblematic of the league championship.

Looking Over Appended is a brief summary of the Clubs and their prospects with a resume of the new players engaged. Taking the clubs alphabetically, we commence appropriately with the league champions.

BETHLEHEM: Will be able to field the complete team which won the pennant last season; and in addition James McConnell, center forward formerly of Providence, and M. McMeekin, a full back from Arthurville, Scotland, have been secured. A finely balanced team from goal out, the champs will take some removing from their present position.

BOSTON: Runners-up last season, the Hub team commences with a weakened defence owing to the transfer of Tom McMillan, crack right back, to New Bedford, and the failure to date to obtain the signature of goalie, Jock Davidson. Several promising recruits have been signed, notably Milton Gavrin and William Gonzalez, two native and Williams, and John Solloway, a goalie from Chorley England, all of whom have displayed sterling form in the pre season exhibition games.

BROOKLYN: Will field practically the same eleven which carried the club to the final of the American League series last season, the only change noted being R. Curtis of J. & P. Coats for Johnny Reid, who was transferred to the Pawtucket club in this exchange of line-ups. On paper, Brooklyn appears capable of finishing in a better position than it did last season.

J. & P. COATS: In addition to most of last season's players, the Pawtucket club secured Johnny Reid, a veteran inside forward from Brooklyn, Findlay Kerr, crack goalie of Fall River fame, W. Langley, a forward from Canada, Jimmy Lyons, centre forward formerly of Providence; Charles Henry, a full back who gained quite a reputation in British Army circles; and W. McIntosh a half-back late of New Bedford. Should these latest captures live up to their reputations, the Pawtucket side will prove a dangerous factor in the coming campaign.

SEMI-FINALS WILL BE PLAYED TONIGHT AT EAST SIDE COURT

Farr's Sensational Comeback Victory Over Paisley, 3-6, 6-3 and 8-6 Is Crammed With Thrills as Macdonald Eliminates Neil 6-2, 6-3.

Mac Macdonald or Louie Farr will oppose Cap Bissell in the finals for the men's tennis singles championship of Manchester tomorrow afternoon at the West Side Playgrounds. This will be decided at 6 o'clock tonight when Farr and Neil will clash in the semi-finals at the East Side Playgrounds.

Farr and Macdonald won their way into the semi-finals by winning their matches in the quarter-finals last night. Macdonald beat Jimmy Neil in straight sets, 6-2, 6-3, and 8-6. Farr won a gruelling struggle from Lawrence Paisley, 3-6, 6-2, 8-6. The latter match was easily one of the best in the entire tournament.

Strong Comebacks In winning from Paisley, young Farr had to stage a most sensational comeback in the second and third sets, he was three and four games behind, but rallied brilliantly to conquer his clever opponent. During the first set, it was apparent Farr was in for a good tactical comeback in the second and third sets, he was three and four games behind, but rallied brilliantly to conquer his clever opponent.

Exciting Third Set Then came that memorable third and deciding set in which Farr was forced to stage another spectacular rally. Paisley slashed his way to victory in the first three games. It looked at this time as though he would win out but Farr was not the kind to surrender until the last point. The next two games went to deuce but Farr won them making it stand 3-2 in Paisley's favor. The pair split the next two and then Farr won a deuce game to even matters. He also won the next giving him a one-game lead.

With Farr leading 5-4, Paisley won a deuce game and was getting tactical making it stand 4-1 and with another deuce affair. Paisley again knotted the count with a victory in a game that twice went to deuce. Then Farr flashed some stellar tennis to cop the next two games 4-1 and with set 5-6. On points, Paisley lost, 100 to 105.

The scores of the three sets: First Set Farr 341314252-25-3 Paisley 524541434-32-6 Second Set Farr 1644447-32-6 Paisley 444402115-25-3 Third Set Farr 20155145435544-44-8

Cloverleaves and Cubs Agree on Title Battle

Rival Gridsters to Play Nov. 20 at Hickey's Grove on Winner-Take-All Basis Three-Hour Argument.

Manchester. Representatives of the two teams signed agreements to play one game on a winner-take-all basis rain-or-shine, the Sunday before Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 20. As matters now stand, there is only one hitch in the arrangements and that is so trivial it is not expected to interfere. The two teams agreed that the game will be played at Hickey's Grove on November 20 with neutral officials and set Tuesday night, October 18, aside as a date for another meeting at which time each manager will submit his roster for the game. This is to prevent the possibility of either team ringing in any new players at the last minute. At this time, if one team attempts to enter any "ringers" the other will be justified in backing out of the game. However, according to both coaches, there isn't the slightest possibility of this happening.

If anyone doesn't think these two football teams mean business; that they are arch rivals and not taking for publicity, he should have passed by the Herald branch office on Bissell street last night. For that matter, the voices of the excited gridsters could be heard on Main street. Some of it, we're sorry to relate, was language that wouldn't have done anyone any good, but this was only when several "firecrackers" went off simultaneously. The meeting threatened to break up in less than two minutes. At first the Cloverleaves held out for a $100 forfeit but the Cubs would not agree to this. Then came the excitement which finally culminated in the teams agreeing to accept all expenses in case of "ducking out" of the game at the last minute. Neutral officials will handle the game. They will be obtained by the sports editor of The Herald in the presence of both managers.

With the settlement of the money question, including the winner-take-all angle, it appeared that all was serene, but in less time than it takes to type the words, but that "at it again" over the question of what players would be used by both teams. The Cloverleaves wanted a list of players now but it was finally decided to wait until on October 18 before submitting the list. In making arrangements for the town championship clash before the season starts, the two teams have established a precedent here. It has never been done before and perhaps may never be again, but after the mess the two teams got into last year, it was the only solution. As it now stands, everything is all set for a grand and glorious battle on the 20th of the month after next.

With the inauguration of American League soccer here; one of the biggest sporting events that Manchester has had in many years, Manchester fans are surely going to have plenty of "favorite dishes" set before them over the week-end. To base man for the game with the Heights tomorrow afternoon for Macdonald will have to play Bissell in the finals. Sher Robb will be the man.

Against Louie Farr, Cheney Brothers will have to get another first baseman for the game with the Heights tomorrow afternoon for Macdonald will have to play Bissell in the finals. Sher Robb will be the man.

English and American Sports Replace Bull Fights in Spain

Madrid, Aug. 15.—English and American sports may soon replace the old-time bullfight in Spain. One of the things that strikes every visitor to this sunny land is the immense enthusiasm for Anglo-Saxon sports.

Twenty-five years ago "futbol," as they call football, was an unknown game. Nobody knew anything about tennis except a few English residents in the south and polo had not yet become the popular pastime of the leisure class. Bilar pastimes seldom seen—they are still few in number—and the automobiles could be counted easily.

Today a good football game attracts more people than a bull-fight. Everywhere the organizers of bull fights are complaining that the games are reducing their recepts. A futbol hero is almost as well rewarded as the celebrated torador. If he is not going directly as a professional, a good business appointment is provided for him.

All classes in Spain flock in thousands to the football grounds.
 Women are keen and critical spectators. The Spanish flapper, who has abandoned her mantilla and wears bobbed hair, is a great admirer of the game and the heroes.
 In the cafes of the small as well as large towns, the constant topic of conversation is futbol.

The Spanish football players have beaten French and Portuguese rivals of high standing. They are temperamental, extremely active and fine forward players, acustom-to the heat from the unclouded summer skies. Very often, in fact too often, the game becomes a free-for-all-battle to settle differences between small villages.

Boxing is becoming more and more popular every year. Lawn tennis is now a fashionable game at the seaside resorts and the splendid work of Senorita de Alvarez has inspired a large number of Senoritas to excel on the courts.

 Twenty years ago the only fishermen by the streams were peasants who often used nets. Today fishy fishing clubs are being formed in many of the towns of the Bis-cayan coast and stringent rules of sport are observed. One little town in Austria has a fishing association of nearly one hundred members.

New England Legionnaires Start For Paris

Boston, Sept. 8.—With cheers of Godspeed, to the strains of martial music and honored by city and state, six hundred New England Legionnaires board the liner Stor- this today for the American Legion convention at Paris.

The big liner was a "honeymoon ship." Ten members of Massachusetts Legion were taking their brides overseas.
 Thousands gathered at the pier and airplanes came to escort the ship down the harbor.

Two wreaths for the tomb of the unknown soldier were carried to the ship—one from the city and the other from the state and also an American flag made by the inmates of the Women's Reformatory at Sherborn. In mid-ocean there will be a memorial service for the sailor dead and the waves will be strewn with flowers.

When you are downtown on Saturday, Dollar Day, stop here and enjoy your favorite ice cream dish or cold drink at our new fountain.

50 YEARS A FIREMAN

Middletown, Sept. 9.—George S.
 Pitt, chief of Middletown's Fire Department, is rounding out fifty years as a fireman. He joined the fire service here on Sept. 10, 1877 and served through the days when two-man jumpers and other hand drawn apparatus was used, and alarms sounded on a church bell, up to the days of motor apparatus.
 He became chief in 1904. Chief Pitt has been president of the State Fire Chief's Association.

The Perfection of Our Home Cooked Foods Is A Secret of Our Own

In many cases certain things that we make were not conceived and perfected in a day. We found over a period of weeks that by changing the recipe a little here and there we could improve and that is what we have done right along. We have strived to improve. Our recipes are the results of painstaking efforts, experiments and trials by our customers. The science of good cooking and keeping that home made touch is a real art and naturally we feel that our success should be a secret of our own.

DOUBLE FILM BILL

ON STATE PROGRAM

"No Man's Gold" and "Lonesome Ladies" on Bill Tonight and Tomorrow.

Two big features are on the State theater program tonight and tomorrow. First in order will be "No Man's Gold," starring Tom Mix, and "Lonesome Ladies," with Lewis Stone and Anna Q. Nilsson in the leading roles.

Mix is shown as the sheriff of a county in the west where law is enacted a siren role. Doris Lloyd pursues the hero on her own account never observed. Law there is something to break and the miners and ranchmen do a good deal of that. Mix's job is to bring them to the realization that law was not left behind in the east and he does this job up brown.

There is plenty of riding and shooting, plenty of narrow escapes, a beautiful girl and an irate father. Then, too, there is a mutetached villain, who twirls his waxed spikes every now and then to add effect, but in the end he is felled amid curses and cheers.

"Lonesome Ladies," is a lively domestic comedy-drama, wherein several attractive young women figure prominently. Jane Winton enacts a siren role. Doris Lloyd pursues the hero on her own account and Fritzie Ridgeway, De Sacla Moore and Grace Carlisle do their utmost to take him from Miss Nilsson.

"I'm no militant 'woman's rights' worker, but I do recognize the value of having as many striking feminine players as the casts permit with me, in a picture," Miss Nilsson observes. "I think the public is, and always will be, interested in stories like 'Lonesome Ladies,' in which woman figure in lively and unusual action."

The feminine appeal of the picture originated with its author, Lenore Coffee, and its adaptor, Winifred Dunn, two of the screen's most celebrated writers. Ray Rockett produced the film for First National Pictures and Joseph Henaberry directed it.

Murdered sleep

SLEEP that brings no soothing rest. Empty muscles back to weary bodies! No wonder people crack and break when precious sleep is murdered.

What a tragedy that so few realize the suffering constipation causes! It ruins health and wrecks beauty. It saps strength. It murders sleep! It sickens the body and causes disease after disease. And it could all be so easily relieved. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation safely, promptly.

Why part-bran products fail!
ALL-BRAN has "bulk." This bulk absorbs moisture and carries it throughout the intestines—gently distending them—purifying, removing poisonous wastes. In a part-bran product the quantity of bulk is so small that there is seldom enough to do this work. That is why doctors recommend ALL-BRAN because it is 100% bran—100% effective.

No need for habit-forming pills!
How different from dangerous pills and drugs—which become useless unless the dose is constantly increased! ALL-BRAN is delicious with milk or cream—and add fruits or honey. Let it soak a few moments to bring out all its flavor. Serve with other cereals. In soups. Try recipes on every package. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. Don't accept a part-bran substitute. Insist on genuine Kellogg's. Sold by all grocers. Served at hotels, restaurants—on diners. Made by the Kellogg Company in Battle Creek, Mich. Write for free "Treatise on Constipation."

ANDOVER

A two-act comedy "The White Shawl" was presented by Coventry talent in the town hall Wednesday evening. The comedy was well acted and was enjoyed by a good sized audience. The part of the "doctor" called forth much merriment and it was taken in a very realistic manner. After the play members of the Andover Christian Endeavor Society served ice cream and cake free to all the actors and it was then put on sale for the audience. The committee in charge of the refreshments was composed of the Misses Marion Stanley and Evelyn White, and Mr. Eugene Platt.
Mrs. Thomas Lewis attended the meeting of the East Central Pomona Grange in East Hartford Friday evening and then spent the night with Mrs. Frank Lavey of Hartford. Burton Lewis was of those who was initiated into the fifth degree by E. Central Pomona officers.
Over thirty ladies attended the meeting of the Ladies' Benevolent Society, which was held at the home of Mrs. Amanda White on Thursday. A picnic lunch was served. Mrs. Maxwell and two daughters and three friends from Hartford were present at the meeting. All reported a splendid time.

SENSE and NONSENSE

It's a poor farm that can't aspire to become a country club when it grows up. Many a man who refuses to believe the truth swallows a lie. Woman is like music; you don't have to understand her to love her. Criminals turn preachers when they are under the gallows; to evangelists or lawyers when they are hard up. The Wife (wearily)—I've talked to you until I am worn out. Her Husband—Well, why not shut up for repairs? Ragson Tatters said to his boy the other day: "My son, when Henry Ford was your age he was earning his own living." The boy retorted: "Yes, dad, and before he was your age he was worth a billion dollars."

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY THEN COLOR THE PICTURE.)

The Tinies scampered through the trees in hopes that they would get, with ease, a lot of tasty berries for the old Kite Man to eat. They searched the woods and looked around, but not a thing to eat was found. "Oh, my," said Scouty Tiny-mite, "we're going to miss our treat." Then Clowny snapped, "Oh, please don't lose your hope. We'll ask the Gooty Goos. I know they'll tell us where to look. Come on, let's ask them quick." So back they went. One Gooty Goo said, "Sure I'll gladly join with you. I'll show you when you'll shortly find core fruit than you can pick. And, sure enough, the place was found. And, oh, such good things on the ground! The whole bunch took their hats off and then, filled them to the brim. In 'bout an hour they joined the rest and Mister Kite Man said, "We're blest with wondrous food. Come on, let's eat. I'm feeling-right in trim."

DR. MAINE, VETERAN IN DENTISTRY, IS ILL

For 50 Years Practitioner Here, Is Confined to His Bed at Bolton Home.

Dr. Myron M. Maine, who practiced dentistry in Manchester for nearly fifty years, is ill at his home at Bolton. For several months Dr. Maine has been gradually failing in health and for two months has been confined to his home. For three weeks he has been in bed under the care of a Manchester physician and a trained nurse.

Although Dr. Maine's condition is regarded as serious, the attending physician stated today that Dr. Maine had shown some improvement during the past few days, being able to recognize his friends. Dr. Maine, who is in his 77th year, is suffering from hardening of the arteries.

Dr. Maine retired from active practice about a year ago. He had conducted an office in Manchester for nearly half a century and is widely known here and highly respected. During his practice in Manchester, Dr. Maine commuted daily from his residence by train. At the time of his retirement, Dr. Maine had his office on the second floor of the Cheney block.

Dr. Maine is credited with a remarkable mechanical ingenuity not only in dentistry but in the repairing of old clocks. The latter has been his hobby and many timepieces may be found at his home, one dating back to January 15, 1798.

RIALTO THEATER PLANS ARE STILL IN THE AIR

Recent Purchasers State They Have No Program For Future of Property.

No immediate plans have been made by Jaffe and Podrove, owners of the Rialto theater, it was said today. This partnership bought the place at public auction on September 1 to protect a third mortgage held on the building and land.

The theater is a frame building, having a stage, several hundred seats, a projection booth with two moving picture projectors, a lobby and a box office. As it is, it could be used as a motion picture theater but important changes would be necessary to convert it into a bowling alley.

It was at first rumored about Manchester that a bowling alley concern might take over the place but as no developments resulted it was placed on the block. The theater was formerly operated by John F. Sullivan of this town, later by Benjamin Wiegell of Hartford and most recently by David Welstock, of the Arcadia theater corporation, interested in the Grand theater of Hartford.

MANCHESTER FREE OF INFANTILE PARALYSIS

Disease, Near to Epidemic in New York, Common in Conn., Hasn't Touched Town

Although infantile paralysis is prevalent in New York and even epidemic in some sections of that city, and while there are numerous cases in Connecticut, Manchester is free from it and not one case has been reported to the Board of Health since the beginning of 1927, Dr. D. C. Y. Moore said today. Manchester has been fortunate for several years past as far as this disease is concerned and there has been no abnormal number of cases in that time.

There are now no cases of diphtheria here, Dr. Moore said, for quarantine was removed from the home in which the last case was located this morning.
