In New York It Will Be Necessary To Ration Beverage Until Supply Catches Up With Demand.

By Associated Press
In more than a dozen states vats were bubbling today in preparation for putting legal 3.2 beer on sale April 7.

Breweries reported that they were deluged with orders—in New York the suggestion being made that it might be necessary to ration beer among those who had ordered until supply could catch up with demand.

Beer advertisements appeared in newspapers for the first time in 13 years, heralding the date on which sale will be permitted. An informal ruling by Attorney General Cummings held anticipatory advertisements were not infractions of the law.

Another decision by Cummings fixed the time at which sale could begin at midnight in each locality, regardless of time zone.

Legislators in Washington called the beer bill passed by the House yesterday to legalize sale in the District of Columbia a model for State Legislatures.

L. Seth Schmittman, chief statistician for the F. W. Dodge Corporation, estimated $65,000,000 would be spent in the next few months for new breweries and alterations to old ones.

Kentucky state officials decided there was no State law to prevent the sale of beer there and unearthed an old statute to tax the beverage ten cents a barrel.

A bill passed unanimously by the Alaskan House of Representatives and opposed by only one vote in the territorial Senate is signed by Governor Parks repealing the territorial bone dry law.

GANGSTER CHIEF FOUND MURDERED

Racketeers in War Over Control of Rum Fleet — Two Suspects Arrested.

Midletown Township, N. J., March 24.—(AP) A gingham murder struggle for control of a rum fleet was today last night of Alexander (Al) Lillien, called a master liquor runner.

Sudden death by bullets came to Lillien in his hideout stronghold from which he could peer out over Sandy Hook where rum vessels ply.

A mysterious telephone call to the Midletown Township police sent them dashing up the highway to the house, once the home of Oscar Hammerstein, opera-impresario. On the floor in the big front hallway, sprawled Lillien, three .32 calibre bullet holes through his skull. No one else was in the great house.

Crime Reconstructed
Detectives reasoned that the killers drove in an auto to the front door, rang the bell and shot Lillien dead when he answered it.

They sought to find the connection between Lillien's sudden end and the killing of Charles "King" Solomon, Boston racket leader known as a partner of Lillien's.

Chief Detective Harry B. Crooks announced that Walter Gerleit, called Lillien's bodyguard, and William Feeney, caretaker of the mansion, were being held as material witnesses.

The former Hammerstein house, Federal agents charged, had been headquarters and control point for a large rum fleet.

Gerleit, the reputed bodyguard and Feeney were the first to discover Lillien's death. They said they returned about 8 p. m., from a trip out of town and found the house dark, the radio going and the door open. Inside they came upon the body.

ORGANIZING GENIUS

Newark, N. J., March 24.—(AP) —Al Lillien, who fell before enemies' gunfire in the picturesque old Hammerstein mansion at Atlantic Highlands last night, had been described by the United States government as the organizing genius of one of the most efficient rum rings ever to operate a ship-to-shore business.

But Lillien, sleek, well-barbered and red checked, was acquitted with 38 others in July, 1931, on indictments charging violation of the prohibition laws.

The long fight of the government to break up a ring that landed thousands of cases of liquor coast-to-coast from other ships many miles out in the ocean, began when a Department of Commerce radio specialist, Forest Reeder, was sent to the Metropolitan area to trace code messages.

Germany May Expel Jews in Palatinate

Berlin, March 24.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler's legalized four-year term as dictator began today with one western German state taking action which it was thought in some quarters, may lead to the expulsion of all eastern Jews within its borders.

The legislative bodies of both the German Reich and its greatest unit, Prussia, have indefinitely suspended. The signature of President von Hindenburg to decrees Hitler may desire to enact no longer is necessary as a result of the Reichstag's action yesterday. In granting Hitler adequate power.

The Hitler government's commissioner in the Palatinate, lying between the Rhine and France, has ordered that no bank or postal funds be delivered to eastern Jews until they settle all business obligations.

Most of the eastern Jews in Palatinate have emigrated there from Poland since 1914. (An estimate two-fifths of the eastern Jewish population of Europe, 5,500,000—came under Polish domination after the war, and this total decreased by nearly one million.)

An embezzlement charge brought a Nazi official into custody last night. Guenther Gereke, Nazi state commissioner for job creation was arrested on suspicion of diverting funds for his own political uses.

The executive of the Reich's Federation of Industry, headed by Gustav Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach, prominent industrialist, pledged his support to the Hitler regime in a resolution last night which criticized the "vacillating" policy of former governments.

Although not stating any plans for the Reichstag to meet again, Chancellor Hitler announced yesterday that neither his resignation, that of the Reichstag, the state council which had to approve legislation before it was introduced in the Reichstag, were "endangered."

MITCHELL INDICTED BY FEDERAL JURY

Prominent New York Banker Charged With Evading His Income Tax.

New York, March 24.—(AP)—Charles E. Mitchell, former chairman of the board of the National City Bank, was indicted by a Federal Grand Jury today on a charge of willful evasion of his income tax for the year 1929.

The indictment charges that in 1929 Mitchell's net income was $2,823,405.95, whereas he reported a net loss of $48,000, and therefore paid no tax.

He was charged in the indictment with evading payment of a tax of $372,312.51.

Mitchell resigned the chairmanship of the board of the National City Bank and also of the National City Company and other affiliates of the bank during the period in which he was a witness before the Senate banking committee in its investigation of the stock exchange.

The indictment returned today charged that his income tax for 1929 was erroneous in that it reported a loss from sale of stocks of $1,484,067.53, instead of a profit of $1,388,237.97.

Not a Real Sale
The indictment is represented by a loss set up by Mitchell from the sale of 18,300 shares of stock of the National City Bank. The government contends this was not a bona fide sale.

This was the stock which Mitchell testified before the banking committee that he had repurchased from his wife at $212 a share, the price at which she sold it to Mrs. Mitchell, although the stock at the time he repurchased it—March 24, 1929—was then selling in the open market at $40 a share.

For the past three days U. S. Attorney George Z. Medalle and two assistants have been presenting evidence to the Federal Grand Jury, which resulted in the indictment handed up today.

Medalle began his investigation the day after Mitchell testified before the Senate banking committee concerning the sale of the stock to a member of his family for the purpose of taking an income tax loss on his 1929 return.

During the investigation Medalle's assistants examined a large number of bank accounts and made an exhaustive study of the history of the securities transactions of both Mitchell and his wife for a number of years back. Witnesses from various banks, attorneys and certain other witnesses who were brought from Chicago and Florida and whose names were not disclosed, were examined in the course of the investigation. Medalle, it was said at the Federal building, also investigated the question of how the income tax return was passed at the time it was examined.

OUTS OFF THE LEGS OF KUBBY'S TROUSERS

Somerville, Mass., March 24.—(AP)—A Somerville housewife settled the question of keeping her husband home tonight by cutting off the legs of his one and only pair of pants.

Just to be sure she would keep his company the husband jockeyed the best dresses into the kitchen range and the battle was on.

A small son of the couple dashed for police. Patrolman John F. Burlingame termed the husband no content, after he had hunted up a pair of overalls for the lord of the manor.

BAY STATE READY FOR BEER'S RETURN

Brewing Started a Few Hours After Governor Ely Signs Emergency Measure.

Boston, March 24.—(AP)—Beer flowed into vats today, bar-tenders sprang to aprons and the stage seemed set for the singing of the Stein Song in Boston and Massachusetts on April 7.

Brewing was underway a few hours after Governor Ely signed the bill yesterday authorizing the manufacture of 3.2 per cent beer in Massachusetts. An emergency preamble to the bill made it effective immediately.

A few hours later the old Boston Bartenders' Union came to life, but under a new name in keeping with the trend of the Times. It was to be known from now on as Beverage Dispensers Local No. 34, an affiliate of the Hotel and Restaurant Employees Local No. 34. More than 100 members of the old bartenders local No. 77 joined the revived group.

Gov. Ely pointed out, as he signed the bill, that it provided merely for the manufacture and not for the sale of beer.

"This permits the brewers to get the bottles ready so we can empty them later," he said with a smile.

Measure Rushed
Senate and House worked with remarkable speed in pushing the measure through after it had been reported unanimously by the committee on legal affairs.

The one remaining barrier and the one most difficult to overcome was to provide legal authority for the sale by dealers in cities and towns. That phase of the liberalization of the prohibition laws was contained in measures still before the Legislature.

The plan of the liquor control commission, headed by Bentley W. Warren, was that beer could be sold at restaurants and hotels, to be drunk on the premises and at grocery and drug stores by the bottle and case for home consumption.

It was considered doubtful today if the legal affairs committee will report to the Legislature as to sale before Tuesday. Opposition forces (Continued On Page Three)

LABOR LEADER PROTESTS BILL TO MAKE JOBS

Green Calls Roosevelt's Plan One That Smacks of Hitlerism, Facism and a Form of Sovietism.

Washington, March 24.—(AP)—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, called the Roosevelt reforestation plan one smacking "of Fascism, Hitlerism and a form of Sovietism" today in asserting he had deep apprehension of its effect on wage levels.

Appearing before a joint session of the House and Senate labor committees, Green said labor also disliked the measure's "regimentation of labor."

Earlier, General Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff of the Army, had denied the bill was a "Draft Act" by which men would be picked up in the streets and forced to go to camp whether they wanted to or no.

Lewis Douglas, the budget director, testified that all new public works contracts had been subjected to a "temporary stop order" by the administration to save funds to finance the proposal.

Green cited the proposal to send the men to Army posts to support his claim it was a "regimentation of labor" and said he saw no need for that sort of military organization and control.

Asserting that the proposal was "highly objectionable to labor," Green said it "violates the very spirit of voluntarism and freedom of personal action."

HEARING CONTINUED
Washington, March 24.—(AP)—Director Lewis Douglas, of the budget, told a joint Congressional committee today, $40,000,000 of unobligated public building funds would be available for Roosevelt's reforestation plan.

Douglas disclosed the administration had ordered the government departments to cease making obligations from the public building funds.

He said, however, that this did not necessarily mean permanent abandonment of the building projects which would have been paid for out of the fund.

The administration's move was described by Douglas as "a temporary stop order" to give the government time to plan a co-ordinated program for relief of unemployment.

Douglas estimated it would cost about $250,000,000 to finance proposed civilian conservation corps for a year, but that the $40,000,000 would finance it for the remainder of this fiscal year.

The administration is now working on a large range of complete relief program, together with plans for financing it, Douglas said.

Chairman Cawley of the House labor committee, asked if the projects from which the funds have been withdrawn would be abandoned.

Douglas said most of them probably would be "in complete and co-ordinated program now being worked out."

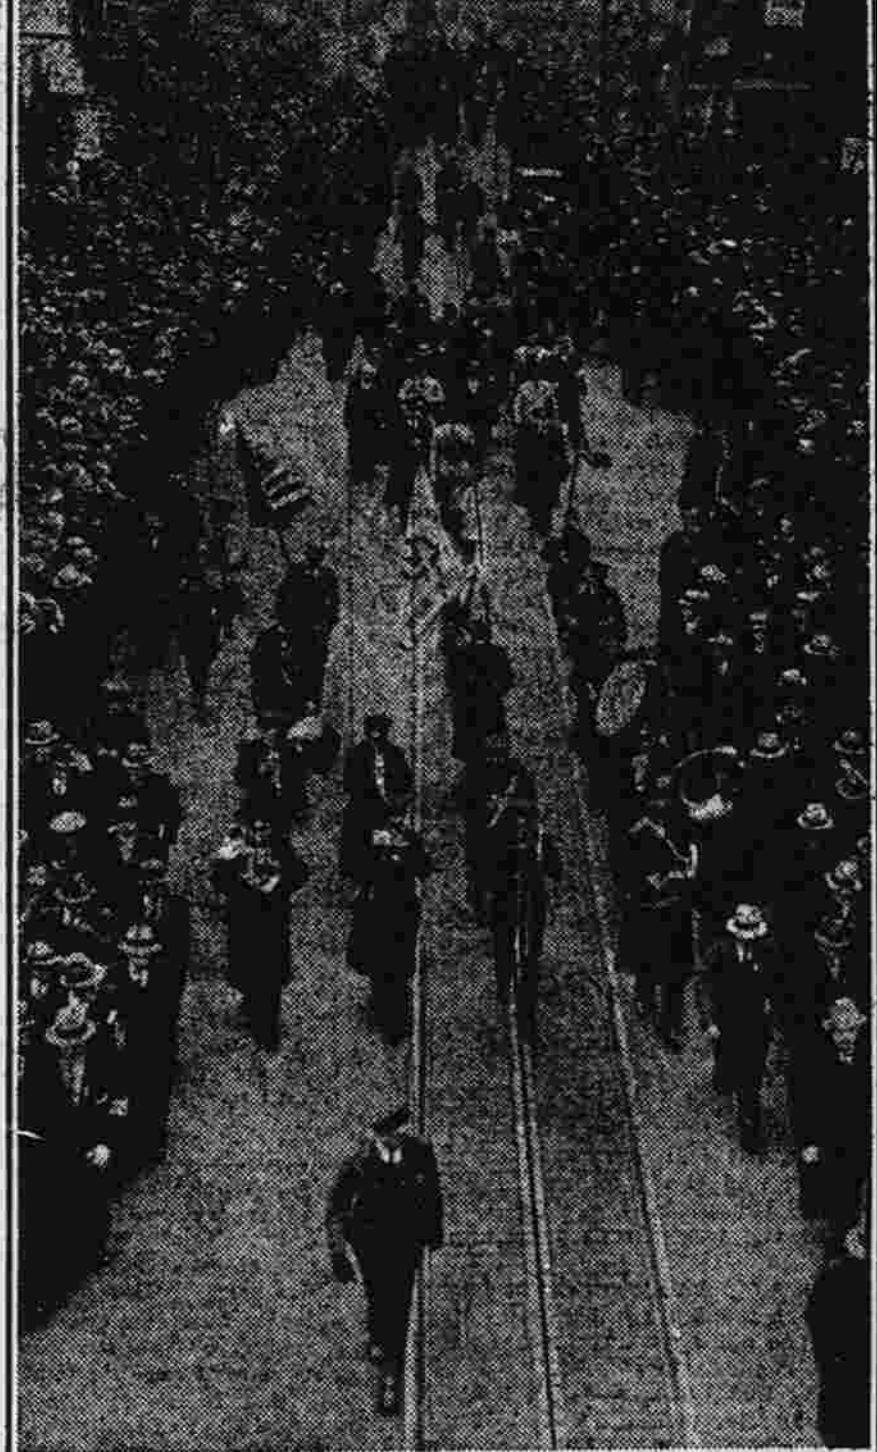

"Do you plan to replace this money diverted from the public building fund?" Senator La Follette (R., Wis.), asked.

"I can't say it will be replaced in toto," Douglas said.

Questioned by members of the committee, Douglas said the administration (Continued On Page Three)

SHAW 'JOSHES' SCRIBES IN FIRST U. S. INTERVIEW

Famous Playwright Says He Knows More About America Than Any of Its Own Inhabitants.

San Francisco, March 24.—(AP)—George Bernard Shaw, 77 year old British playwright arrived on the American mainland today for the first time with the abrupt announcement that he "knew more of America" than its inhabitants.

He told a mass of interviewers and cameramen that American electry, their public officials "because the candidates had their pictures taken with a baby in their arms."

During a discussion of the Tom Mooney case, Shaw stated Americans "were romanticists in their treatment of the whole criminal system."

"You Americans can get romantic about 20 to 30 years in prison," he said, "but to a man in prison six months is terrible. I hesitate to express an opinion regarding Mooney. Generally, I would say to bury a man alive in a vault for 17 years is extremely foolish. I am a foreigner and as such would not criticize your courts or police. But if Mooney is not fit to live, have the courage to shoot him. It would be a great relief to me if the governor of your state would pardon Mooney. He has unfortunately been made a political mart; and I would like to see him—but my interference would only harm him."

HOOPER'S VISITOR ARMED WITH GUN

Offered To Check Revolver With Guard But Flees When Police Are Called.

Palo Alto, Cal., March 24.—(AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover today asked police to disregard as far as possible the visit to his home Wednesday of a man with a loaded revolver, but authorities continued surveillance of the man, William Campogiani, 55, former wrestler.

Campogiani, according to the guard who stopped him before he entered the Hoover property offered to check the gun with him during his proposed visit with the former executive, and ran away while the guard was telephoning for police.

The ex-President's visitor no longer has the revolver. Authorities took it away from him yesterday after tracing him to his Birmingham home. He has lived in the community many years, doing odd jobs and janitor work.

The visit to the Hoover home, he explained, was to inquire whether the former executive had received all the money Campogiani says he brought him while he was in Washington, and to ask for a job with the Hoover Service.

He carried the revolver, he declared, because he had $90 with him and was afraid of robbers.

Old Georgia Gold Mines Are Being Worked Again

Atlanta, Ga., March 24.—(AP)—Aly purchased as the rush gained headway.

Few of the southern gold hunters are making much money, but they are living, and there's always the hope of a "break" and a fortune.

Years ago, there were mines at Dahlonega, Ga., and Charlotte, N. C. They handled income taken from the hills around Dahlonega and Auraria in Georgia and the Uwarrie mountains of North Carolina.

Then the westward rush started and the southern gold was abandoned. The mines closed and the north Georgia field was virtually forgotten.

Now again, however, little colonies of tents and shacks have sprung up in the caves and hollows of the mountain country.

JAP ENVOY WARNS U. S. TO TAKE FLEET FROM THE PACIFIC

Japan No Vassal of America, Declares Matsuoka, And Appeals To Nation; Withdrawal of Our Ships Would "Improve Feeling," Bolting Geneva Delegation Watched By Chinese As It Lands In New York; Student With Gun Arrested.

New York, March 24.—(AP)—Yonuke Matsuoka, head of the Japanese delegation to the League of Nations, arrived in America with five fellow delegates today and asserted that Japan was "not appealing to anyone, for it is not a vassal state to America or any other nation."

He also suggested that Japanese-American feeling might be improved if the United States would withdraw its fleet from the Pacific ocean.

He said he did not know whether or not Japan intended to withdraw from the League of Nations. In answer to a specific question, he declared that Japan had no intention of relinquishing the mandated islands whether or not it remained in the League.

A crowd of Chinese were gathered in the street outside the pier as the Levianton docked with Matsuoka and his fellow delegates. They had congregated to protest against what they said was Matsuoka's intention to engage in a campaign of propaganda while in America.

A police guard of about 150 uniformed men and detectives had been assigned to the dock to prevent possible disorder. One Chinese, Lin Nap Hin, a student, was held for questioning after police found that he had a revolver with him. He displayed a permit to carry the weapon.

Matsuoka received newspapermen in his stateroom aboard the Levianton. He was friendly and affable.

The first question was: "Is it true that you are to be ambassador to the United States?"

"They make all sorts of speculations about me," he replied.

Then he explained that he would spend four or five days in New York, go to Washington and sail from San Francisco about April 13.

"I will be traveling all the time that I am here," he said.

He was asked if he planned to confer with President Roosevelt, and he answered:

"I would like to, but I know that he is a very busy man at this time and I don't like to intrude."

His League Gesture
Then he was reminded that when he walked out of the special session of the League of Nations with his delegation he had said, "and we won't be back," and he was asked: "Did that mean that Japan was withdrawing from the League?"

He replied: "I made it plain that so far as the Japanese delegation was concerned it had walked out of the special session on the Manchurian questions with no intention of returning for that discussion. I can't say whether Japan has withdrawn from the League. On that I am waiting for word from Tokyo. My part is done."

Then Matsuoka, who is a graduate of the University of Oregon, was asked if he felt that the Japanese are misunderstood in this country.

"I feel that way," he said.

"Is that why you are here?"

"No, I am just on my way home, a private citizen. Officially I am still an M. P. Member of Parliament. Of course, while I am here, I shall see many old friends."

He drifted to discussion of the Manchurian situation.

"It is always very hard, very difficult," he said, "for people, such as Americans, 5,000 miles from the scene to understand actual conditions. It would be difficult for our people, who have not interests over here, to understand you."

"We Japanese are poor propagandists, as is well known; that is why we are misunderstood."

Make No Appeal
"We are not appealing to anyone. We are not a vassal state of America or any other country."

Then he went on to explain that in his opinion the greatest enemy of peace, ignorance and lack of understanding, and he said that for that reason Japan hopes to have the happenings in Manchuria understood by the world.

RAYMOND STEVENS COMMITTS SUICIDE

Former Millionaire Indicted Short Time Ago On Embezzlement Charge.

Chicago, March 24.—(AP)—Closing acts in the drama of the rise and fall of the once powerful Stevens family were being enacted today as Raymond W. Stevens, 59, lay dead from what police said was a self-inflicted bullet wound while his 80-year old father was believed to be on his deathbed following a stroke of apoplexy.

Both had been indicted some time ago with another son and brother Ernest J. Stevens, on charges of embezzlement in connection with the failure of the $130,000,000 Illinois Life Insurance company of which they were former officials.

The death of Raymond occurred yesterday afternoon in the sun room of his brick Colonial mansion in suburban Highland Park.

News of his son's death was kept from the elder man, James W. Stevens.

The rise of the Stevens family began forty years ago, at the time of the last World Fair. They sprang from the rank of small merchants to control of the Illinois Life Insurance Company and two of Chicago's largest hotels, the Le Salls and the Stevens.

Stevens Heel
James W. Stevens founded the Insurance Company and became chairman of the board. Raymond W. was the president and Ernest J. was president of the hotels.

Then six years ago they built the Stevens hotel—one of the world's largest—and then began to decline. The hotel with its overhead operating expense of $50,000 daily became a financial "white elephant."

Last December both it and the Le Salls, which Clobridge receivership followed shortly by similar action of the insurance company which had 76,000 policyholders on its books.

A Grand Jury investigation and the indictments charging the three men with embezzlement of $1,200,000 of the insurance company's funds for use of their hotels followed.

HOUSE DISPUTES OVER UTILITIES

Democrats Take Sharp Issue With Statement of Judiciary Committee.

Hartford, March 24.—(AP)—Democratic representatives took sharp issue today with statements of Republicans of the judiciary committee that their committee should never have been bothered with "an absurd legislation dealing with the public utilities of Connecticut."

"Did Representative Feil feel that legislation absurd in 1917 when the rights of the people in the streams and waters of Connecticut were handed over to Henry Roman back?" demanded Representative Samuel George, Democrat, of New Britain.

The debate started during consideration of the unfavorable report of the judiciary committee on a bill proposing a flat rate of five cents for telephone calls between Newtown and Danbury. The committee had previously reported unfavorably on bills asking for investigation of public utility rates.

The Newtown-Danbury telephone rate bill was introduced by Representative William A. Honan of Newtown. Speaking against the unfavorable report, Honan said that "it is about time that the Legislature begins to represent the interests of the people and not of the public utilities."

ASSEMBLY RECEIVES BUDGET ESTIMATE

State Board of Finance Recommends $67,029,717 For Next Two Years.

Hartford, March 24.—(AP)—Proposing use of highway department receipts to meet possible deficits in the general fund, the Board of Finance and Control has recommended a total budget of $67,029,717 for the ensuing biennium.

Estimated receipts for the general fund and special funds during this period are $67,278,407. The proposed budget, submitted to the General Assembly appropriations committee includes suggestions for reduction of all state salaries, and reductions in state services and state grants, some of which have been rejected or reported unfavorably in the General Assembly.

All proposals for capital outlay except for construction at State institutions were eliminated. No mention was made of proposed construction of the new veterans' home at Rocky Hill, for which an appropriation of $2,250,000 is under consideration in the Legislature, or for construction of the Connecticut river bridge at Hartford.

The general fund is allotted $36,738,082 for the two years, while appropriations of $28,495,183 from the highway fund are recommended. Other special state funds make up the difference. During the current biennium when a deficit in the general fund was imminent borrowing from the highway fund was authorized.

The report recommended elimination of five services in the department of education, promotion of nature study, art education, and character education, editing publications, promotion of adult education and supervision of adult education. Other educational economies proposed included reduction in the enumeration grant, already rejected by the General Assembly, and reduction in the transportation grants in which the Education committee has reported unfavorably.

Bureaus Discontinued
In the department of health the temporary elimination of the bureau of mental hygiene and occupational diseases and in the labor department the discontinuance of the free employment bureau were proposed.

The wage cut bill which sponsors had hoped to have in effect by March 1, has been delayed through a partisan battle over the question of salaries for the tuberculosis commissioners.

Senator William H. Hackett, chairman of the appropriations committee, has said that committee might include clauses providing for the wage reduction when reporting the budget to the General Assembly.

OBITUARY

DEATHS

Jeremiah Maher
Jeremiah Maher, age 78, died this morning at 1:30 at his home, 39 Mt. Nebo Place, following a weeks illness of a complication of illnesses. Mr. Maher, formerly a coachman employed by the Rugh Cheney family and later proprietor of a confectionery store and express business here, was very well known to the older residents. He was a charter member of Campbell Council, Knights of Columbus. He was a lover of horses and many Manchester people received copies of "Black Beauty," his favorite story, from him at Christmas time when they were youngsters.

Mr. Maher leaves one sister, Mrs. Joseph E. Carroll, of East Hartford, and several nieces and nephews. He had resided in Manchester all his life having been born in Buckland. The funeral will be Monday morning at Holloran's funeral rooms at nine o'clock and at 9:30 at St. James' church. Burial will be in St. James' cemetery.

Frank Coan
Frank Coan died at his home in Bolton near the Coventry line yesterday afternoon after a protracted illness. He was born in Boston 64 years ago and came to Coventry to live in 1908. He was a carpenter and built his present home six years ago. He leaves a sister, Mrs. Henry Barnes of Coventry.

The funeral of Mr. Coan will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at the funeral parlors of Thomas G. Dougan, 59 Hill street, Manchester. Rev. L. H. Austin of the Congregational church in Coventry will officiate.

Mrs. Claus L. Anderson
The funeral of Mrs. Claus L. Anderson of 162 Maple street was held yesterday afternoon with private services at the home and a service at the Emanuel Lutheran church with Rev. E. Erickson officiating. The bearers were Emil Svanstrom and Carl Swedberg of Hartford, Gustaf Florin, Erik Nelson, Fritz Johnson and Fred Schwartz of Manchester. Burial was in the East cemetery.

ARREST AUTO TRIF
Danbury, March 24.—(AP)—Antonio Cellupia, 18, of 24 Bergen street, Englewood, N. J., was arrested in Danbury early this morning while driving at the roadside in an automobile that had been stolen from the street in this city yesterday afternoon. The car belongs to Col. Charlop, a jeweler. Cellupia, who has been brought here, admits, the police say, that he took the car for the purpose of returning to his home in Englewood. The arrest was the result of a teletype broadcast after police had received a notice of the theft of the car.

REPRESENTATIVE'S FUNERAL
Greenwich, March 24.—(AP)—The funeral of Representative Stephen L. Radford who died from influenza on Tuesday, was held this afternoon from the Second Congregational church. The Rev. Dr. Oliver Hubbell officiated.

The delegation from the House of Representatives were Mrs. Alice Rowland of Ridgefield, William Lyons of Norwalk, Stanley Mead of New Canaan, Edward Brennan of Stamford and Mrs. Helen B. Kitchell of Greenwich.

JOB DISAPPEARED
New Kyo, Durham, Eng.—Relief workers in this district will have to turn their efforts to other occupations. The administrators of emergency jobs found themselves to be the jobless ones when 1,200 miners, who had been receiving the aid of the relief bureau, returned to work.

FARM RELIEF BILL TO BE REWRITTEN

Senate Committee To Hear Secretary Wallace Before Changes Are Made.

Washington, March 24.—(AP)—The Senate drive for drastic re-writing of the administration farm bill was launched today at a closed meeting of the Senate agriculture committee, but Secretary Wallace said he had not yet given approval to any substitutes for the original, sweeping measure.

Senator Smith, (D. S. C.), chairman of the committee, presented a substitute bill, making material modifications which earlier he had predicted would prove acceptable to the administration. Wallace, however, said the proposed changes would be gone over later in the day at a session of the Cabinet with President Roosevelt. He will appear before the committee tomorrow.

The Smith plan, on which the committee took no immediate action, would reduce the amount of the processing tax to be levied to the bare amount needed to lease lands to take them out of the production. The allotment and licensing features of the administration bill would be struck out entirely, but the cotton option plan would stay intact.

While Wallace was reserving opinion on these changes, he undertook in conferences with other officials to set in motion President Roosevelt's plan for a world-wide agreement to curtail wheat production, to bring it in line with consumption.

After receiving the Smith plan the Senate committee called in for brief hearings John A. Simpson, president of the Farmers Union, and George Peck, of Moline, Ill.

After hearing Wallace tomorrow, committee members hope to be able to set out full discussion of the program and the Smith substitute. Senator Kendrick (D., Wyo.), indicated the attitude of most, saying: "In my opinion, we will not know definitely what form the bill will take until after we have heard Secretary Wallace tomorrow."

HOUSE SLOWS DOWN IN PASSING BILLS
After Reforestation Measure Is Disposed Of Committees Will Consider Bills.

Washington, March 24.—(AP)—The newly-formed Democratic steering committee in its first meeting today decided against putting any more bills through the House without committee consideration.

It also agreed, members said, to support the program of the President, and elected Cresser of Ohio chairman and Gregory of Kentucky secretary.

Means of convincing the 150 new Democratic members that they should follow leaders also were discussed. It was decided that instead of threats, diplomacy would be used to achieve this end.

New members will be told that for the sake of the party, the opinion of no one man should be allowed to stand against that of the majority, said Sabath of Illinois, one of the steering committee.

The decision against rushing new legislation through was reached because, Sabath said, of "some friction that has arisen in the last few days."

"Scottsboro Negroes" In New Trial For Life

Here are the nine Scottsboro (Ala.) Negroes who again face trial for their lives on charges of attacking two white girls two years ago. Pictured in their cells in Jefferson county jail, Birmingham, pending their trial at Decatur, they are, standing, left to right, Clarence Norris, 19, Atlanta; Ocie Weems, 20, Atlanta; and Eugene Williams, 16, Atlanta. Seated, Andrew Wright, 19, Chattanooga; Charlie Olen Montgomery, 17, Monroe, Ga., and Willie Robinson, 19, Atlanta. Eight were convicted and sentenced to the electric chair, but the U. S. Supreme Court reversed the verdict and ordered new trials for all.

TWO BLAZES KEEP FIREMEN ON TOES

soundly and the fire had gained considerable headway when the family was awakened by a loud noise. Dense clouds of smoke filled the house and its occupants were nearly overcome before they could make their way outside through windows on the ground floor. Anderson awakened his son, Oscar, age 18, who was also sleeping on the ground floor and then hurried upstairs to awaken his other son, Edward, age 22. The Andersons hastily gathered together a few articles of clothing which they donned on reaching the outside.

The fire, which seemed to have started between the first and second floors, ate its way about a large chimney, opening off to four fireplaces on the first floor and four on the second. These fireplaces were in use and were plugged up. The house burned rapidly and was practically a total loss before telephone calls brought the firemen.

Save Other Buildings
Hose Company No. 3 was sent to the fire, although the location was outside of the department's district, about a half mile west of the Manchester-Bolton town line. The firemen confined their efforts to saving the barn which stood close by the house. The building was an old one, the frame being supported by wooden spikes. The fire ate through this and the frame crumbled. The place is known as the Sweetland property to old-timers in Manchester.

To the rear of the house is located a cow barn, a garage and a small one story family house. These were in danger. All that was saved by the Anderson family was a mattress, a blanket, a quilt and a pair of sheets torn from one of the beds, and a radio and two lawn chairs. Mr. Anderson also carried to safety his insurance papers and other documents of value, which he kept near his bedside.

Insured
The house was insured for $3,000 and the household furniture for $500. Until a year ago the house was covered to $4,000 but poor results secured from the farm caused the owner to reduce his insurance. Mr. Anderson has owned the property since 1919. It is expected that the full amount will be paid as the house was a total loss.

Arrangements were made to care for the family at the homes of neighbors, when it was evident that the house could not be saved. Because of the early hour of the fire only a few persons were at the scene.

Chief Albert Foy and Foreman Thomas Hasset stood guard until the chimney fell in. James O. McCaw, superintendent of city alarms, was also on hand and cut away hanging wires from the street.

Oakland St. Fire
When the Anderson home had been reduced to smoking embers, an alarm came from the station located north of St. Bridget's cemetery on Oakland street. The Manchester department responded. This fire had also gained headway and efforts to save the building, owned by Frank Coburn, proved unavailing.

The shed was situated at the rear of the house occupied by Fred Domenico, his wife and three children, John White and his three children, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Foss and Raymond, a stockweaver and baby. Smoke filled the ground floor rooms and Domenico hurried upstairs and woke the other occupants of the house.

said that he agreed with the committee reports feeling that the judiciary committee is not equipped to handle such a technical question. He added that he would have plenty to say later on the matter of the bill to have the governor appoint a commission, to consider the utility situation.

Representative Peck then made the remarks which precipitated the debate.

"The whole situation is ridiculous," he said. "These matters should not be given to the judiciary committee. They deal with technical matters which are not legislative. We have a public utility committee to consider these questions and we cannot deal with such matters. The entire matter is absurd."

He also criticized the manner in which the bills were drawn. Representative Sullivan of Enfield took issue with the remarks saying the Legislators had been told to have all bills drawn by the engineering clerk. But "later when the Republicans want to knock them down, they say the bills are poorly drawn. They should remember that a highly paid Republican official has drawn those bills."

He continued: "It is a shame and disgrace that only a part of the judiciary committee was present at the hearing on these bills and then immediately decided to reject them. If we do not go to the judiciary committee with our troubles where shall we go? The public rates are unfair and it is up to the Legislature to help the people. Yet we are told to go to the public utilities commission which is entirely out of order with the state and does not protect the people."

Time Getting Short
Majority Leader Raymond E. Baldwin said that everyone has a right to enter bills and could not be criticized for doing so. He expressed the belief that the subject is too great for consideration by the committee. He said that the time of the session is becoming short and that he intends to call a meeting of the House committee chairman next week to ascertain what progress is being made.

Representative John P. Kiely of Ansonia, said that if the Republicans believe that the Legislature is not the place to consider the people's troubles, it is time to educate the voters and let them know just what is going on.

"Let us be practical," pleaded Representative Googel. "We know that any bill of this kind is doomed. We know that the Republican Party is part and parcel of the Connecticut Light and Power Company and the rest of J. Henry Roraback's holdings."

"Where was the gentleman from Bristol when the 1917 Legislature gave the water rights of the people of Connecticut to Roraback? Did he think that bill absurd? Where was he when the constitutional rights of the people were handed over to the Republican boss on a silver platter?"

Leaves Geneva

As the Geneva disarmament conference refused to adjourn and proceeded to discussion of the British arms plan, Hugh Gibson, American delegate and U. S. Ambassador to Belgium, announced he was leaving for Brussels and London. Gibson is shown above in a new photo from Geneva.

Siouxonously, Norman H. Davis, head of the American delegation to the conference, called from New York for London.

The debate later was renewed during consideration of a bill abolishing the flat rates charged by utility companies.

Googel asked if the bill could be voted by secret ballot.

ASKS AMENDMENT OF FARM AID BILL

Congressman Koppelman Seeks To Increase Base Price of Tobacco.

Washington, March 24.—(AP)—Representative Koppelman of Virginia conferred today on an amendment to the farm relief bill designed to aid tobacco growers by preventing the importation of tobacco raised by forced labor.

Koppelman said he would ask Senator Lorigan of Connecticut to offer the amendment when the Senate considers the measure, approved this week by the House.

The Connecticut Democrat also is seeking to fix the tobacco base price in the bill according to grade and grades rather than the general 12 cents a pound price now included.

A survey he has just completed, he said, indicates the base price for Connecticut valley wrapper tobacco should be about 19 cents a pound.

will educate the world eventually," he said.

"What will those developments be?" he was asked.

"Too Many Questions
"You are putting too many questions," he said.

"If you will put your questions in writing so that I can collect any thoughts, I will be glad to answer them later."

Then it was that he was asked about the American fleet in the Pacific ocean, and whether or not Japanese relations would be improved by its withdrawal.

"I think so," he answered quickly. "The continued presence of the fleet in the Pacific at this time is causing misgivings among some people."

"Has the government any misgivings?"

"I don't think so," he said. "He said also that he did not think that recognition of Russia by the United States would have any effect upon the Far Eastern situation, and thereupon went back to a discussion of Manchuria."

"Our people regard Manchuria as the life line of Japan," he said. "That means that Manchuria is the first line of defense to Japan. Japan stated her all her very existence, 30 years ago to recover Manchuria for the Manchurian dynasty. We sacrificed 100,000 men and 2,000,000,000 yen to get it back from Russia—that was a staggering burden to Japan at the time."

Have you visited the Mary & William Hat Shop, Cheney Hall, yet? They have just received a new collection of spring hats so smart they could "make" any costume.

Three-in-One
Want to know how the three-in-one dress is achieved? It starts with an ankle length dress, which is a simple, graceful evening gown for formal occasions. An elbow length cape, perhaps of contrasting color, is worn over the dress for afternoon. The same dress becomes a dinner suit when you put on a long-sleeved, buttoned-down-the-front jacket.

A newly received lot of high-grade upholstery and decorative samples are now on sale at Cheney Hall Salesroom for 50c up. These fabrics are unusually beautiful, and are suitable as furniture covering for all kinds of chairs, pillow covers, hangings, table covers, etc. Many of the patterns have a number of duplicates, and can be used for sets of chairs.

Sweet Potato Plant
We received to call the other day from a young lady who hadn't had success in making a sweet potato plant grow. We told her to try setting a good healthy looking potato in the neck of a jam jar or vase so that the lower part of the potato is in water and the upper half in the air. It may take a couple of weeks to sprout, but sprout it will.

Emergency Biscuits
Home economics experts have found out that too much baking powder is as disastrous as an insufficiency. Two golden rules for the use of baking powder are: First, always follow directions given on the can for the amount of baking powder to use. Second, measure baking powder carefully—a level teaspoon means that you must level off with a knife. These biscuits take no time to make.

2 cups sifted cake flour
2 teaspoons combination baking powder
1-2 teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons butter or other shortening
3-4 cup milk.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and mix again. Cut in shortening; add milk all at once and stir carefully until all flour is damp. Then stir vigorously until mixture forms a soft dough that clings to sides of bowl. Drop from teaspoon onto ungreased baking sheet. Bake in hot oven (450 degrees F.) 12 to 15 minutes. Makes 12 biscuits.

LABOR LEADER PROTESTS BILL TO MAKE JOBS

stration had stopped making contracts for all public works not already contracted for.

To Pass Next Week
Meanwhile, Representative Byrns, of Tennessee, the Democratic leader, told newspapermen "the House will pass the President's employment bill Monday or Tuesday."

"I expect the bill we pass will be just about like the President proposed," Byrns continued.

"If the committee changes it materially, the action of the House Democratic majority will depend on the President's attitude."

Democratic leaders are contemplating letting members have an opportunity for freer action on the employment bill than on any other presidential proposal that have been jammed through.

At the hearing, the Army's part in the plan was described by Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff.

He said the Labor Department would select the men to be recruited and turn them over to the Army.

The Army would collect the men in camps for about a month for rehabilitation, shelter, food and clothing, preparatory to shipping them to the work camps.

Conroy pointed to the wording of the bill and asked if it did not amount to a "Draft Act" similar to war time.

"I don't think so," MacArthur said. "How can you get away from it?" Conroy asked, "the bill says the President may 'select' the men."

Is Voluntary
"It seems to me it is entirely voluntary," MacArthur replied. He said if the men did not comply with discipline they would be dropped, rather than court-martialed.

"In all fairness," Representative Ramspeck (D., Ga.), interjected, "the President told us at the White House the other night that he was willing to have the bill amended to make it clear this is a voluntary proposition."

Green said he recognized "the human considerations of those sponsoring the measure," but voiced unyielding opposition.

"Would it not be possible to make the language more specific so that it would apply to non-competitive work?" Senator Copeland (D., N. Y.), asked.

"That would be a great improvement," Green said. "I hope if the bill finally passes, those changes will be made."

The labor spokesman asserted the plan was not primarily a relief project, but an employment measure.

Miss Frances Perkins, the secretary of labor, put the opposite interpretation on it yesterday.

"As sure as this bill is passed, this Congress will go down in history as the Congress that set the $1 a day standard for public projects," Green added.

"You would never get away from that. No fair-minded man would defend such a rate of wages."

Green also criticized the provision for "an involuntary allotment" out of the worker's pay for support of his family.

Even if all the pay were sent to the family, he said, it would be inadequate.

"It seems to me we are establishing living standards on a mighty low basis," he commented.

Green also objected to the use of funds that were appropriated for public works at regular wages.

"We are taking money that was to be used for regular wages and transferring it to a fund to regiment an army at $1 a day," Green asserted.

Green expressed fear that the money would not be replaced.

SPEAKER PRAISES AMERICAN PRESS

L. H. Sloan Says Editors Told Strict Truth During the Bank Crisis.

New York, March 24.—(AP)—Laurence H. Sloan, vice president of the Standard Statist's Company, in an address before the Columbia School of Journalism today said that generally the newspapers have printed news of the depression strictly on its merits as news.

"They have done this," he said, "without lending a very sympathetic ear to outside influences which have tried to get the bad news toned down and the good and pseudo-good news played up."

"The story I am trying to tell would be deceptive and incomplete," he said, "were one to omit reference to the numerous attempts made in various quarters in Washington, as the depression progressively deepened, to imbue the press with a false, hollow optimism."

"This, of course, was a mistake in public policy. Doubtless it was an honest, patriotic mistake. But it is here recorded, to the everlasting honor of American journalism and as a sterling tribute to the intelligence of those who direct it, that through the long dark hour of his country's economic travail the responsible leaders of our press never yielded one inch toward surrender of the principle that a newspaper is a vehicle where truth and only truth dares ride."

"And thus was the confidence of the public in the press maintained as we were catapulted toward the final stages of one of the most serious crises in our economic history. Thus was the unnecessary pre-crises hysteria avoided."

"It seems to me obvious that in the handling of the news of our great business depression during the past few years, and especially during the last 18 months of most intensive travel, our first line American press has again definitely and irrevocably demonstrated its competency and right to the leadership which is its natural heritage."

ASSEMBLY'S DEADLOCK COST STATE $90,000

This Sum Represents What State Would Have Saved If Wages Had Been Cut.

Hartford, March 24.—(AP)—The situation created by the deadlock between the House and Senate relative to the so-called salary reduction bill has already cost the state of Connecticut approximately $90,000 it was pointed out at the State Capitol today, this sum representing the sum the state would have saved in the matter of salaries to be paid state employes for services during the month of March.

The provisions of the salary reduction bill which have been made effective as of March 1 but when the Senate declined to pass the bill which had received the approval of the House and necessitated the appointment of a committee of conference, which even now has the bill under consideration and which appears to be as deadlocked as their respective branches of the Assembly had been, the effectiveness of the bill was lost at least as far as saving to the state in salary reductions. . . .

submitted to two examinations, and was examined for almost an entire day, having voluntarily offered to submit to an examination.

The indictment contains one count, as there is only one act of evasion charged. The maximum penalty provided for a conviction in such a case is a term of imprisonment for five years and a fine of $10,000, although either imprisonment or fine in any term or amount under the maximum may be imposed at the discretion of the court.

The amount of the taxes which the government charged should have been paid is about $54,000 less than that given in a complaint of Assistant U. S. Attorney Thomas E. Dowey. A warrant based on the complaint was issued early in the week and Mitchell was arrested. He was released in $10,000 bail for a hearing before a commissioner on March 22.

Mitchell was not in the Federal building when the indictment was received by Federal Judge Goddard, nor was his attorney, Max D. Steur. Medall said the case would be moved for an early trial.

ed cities, when a man gets sick from excessive hours of labor, he takes alcohol.

"I am a teetotaler but I can't expect the United States to come up to my standards. I don't like it, I don't need it."

"Are there any happy people?" a questioner asked.

"Yes, there are in the cemeteries, I suppose."

"Don't you know how Hitler will turn out," he answered a questioner. "The whole German people are in a state of suspense and chaos. They are trying out Hitler like you are trying out Mr. Roosevelt. In four years I will be able to tell you about them."

Dictator Needed
Sparring with a questioner, Shaw declared "we couldn't get anywhere without a dictator."

"No one is responsible, otherwise, Don't fear a dictator. Make him responsible and fix it so you can get rid of him if he goes wrong."

Shaw accused the American people of giving no thought to the qualifications of their candidates.

"Why," he said, "it was Roosevelt's baby that got him elected."

"But Roosevelt had no baby," an interviewer said.

"Well, that's serious, then, whose baby was it that Roosevelt was photographed with?" Shaw today was to go to San Simeon as the guest of William Randolph Hearst, publisher, before joining his ship at San Pedro to continue a round the world cruise.

TEACHERS GO UNPAID
Danbury, March 24.—(AP)—For the first time in the history of Danbury this town today found itself unable to pay its school teachers, whose monthly salaries became due today. When a similar situation threatened last December, the late Harry McLellan, one of the leading hat manufacturers of the city and a member of the board of education, advanced $30,000 to meet the teachers' salaries and took the town's notes to that amount, to wait collection of taxes. The difficulty is due mainly to the fact that the town's fiscal year commences several months before taxes become payable and money must be borrowed to bridge the gap. Legislative action to remedy the situation is pending.

inventory. In other words the American people have lost their equity in their own country. To restore it either we must reduce all debt by fiat or by some trick or else by controlled inflation restore values till the inventory of wealth is well in excess of the debt account.

STATE PENSIONS

The recommendation of the State Commission on Pension Systems that no further legislation be enacted at the present session of the Legislature covering the granting of pensions to the employees of the state will, we feel sure, be received not only with satisfaction but with gratitude. It is rarely indeed that any such group is this, as it purports the study of its special subject, does not eventually become so infatuated with it as to have it take on a disproportionate aspect of importance with relation to other matters of the times. That this commission, after devoting some two years to diligent investigation of the subject of state pensions, retains such clarity of vision and such a sense of proportion as to arrive at this conclusion does credit to its poise as well as its intelligence.

Certainly this is no time for the consideration of pensions to state employees. There are any number of people who doubt if there ever has been, or is likely to be soon, any such time.

It seems to such people that the first question to be answered with relation to pensions for state employees is this: What reasons are there for state pensions to state employees as distinguished from state pensions for everybody? If no such reasons can be established there would seem to be considerable difficulty in seeing why the subject should be pursued further. We must confess that we can see no such reason.

To pension everybody—that is, of course, everybody who has been engaged in some sort of useful work for a prescribed number of years—would be to conform to a purely socialistic ideal. It would be very nice. How it is to be done, short of communism, we haven't the slightest idea.

The proposal to pension state employees would be to bestow the socialistic benefits of universal pensions upon a favored group while denying it to the rest of the workers—which would constitute a perversion so serious as to destroy the principle of the thing altogether.

It is perfectly clear that under the existing organization of society or anything like it we cannot set up a universal pension system. There is no way of financing it. The general theory of our civilization is that the worker must, during his active years, save enough of his earnings to provide for the declining years when he can no longer earn. If he fails to do this he becomes a charge upon his relatives or friends or charitable organizations or, in some cases, upon the public purse. No better system than this has been evolved as yet.

What is there about employment by the state which equitably demands that a different system should be set up exclusively for the benefit of state job holders and at the cost of these others who are not to share in the benefits? Do state employees make some special sacrifice that other workers do not make? Is their pay so much lower than that of other workers of the same grade that they are deprived of equal opportunity to provide for their own futures? Do the drive and rush and perils of their labors wreck their health and shorten their periods of gainful activity beyond other men and women? Are they dragged from safer and healthier and more profitable occupations by a draft or by some lofty call of patriotism? Or do they figure that they rate this pension pay just because they think that maybe, if they pester long enough, and loudly enough, they can get it?

To our way of thinking the time will be fully ripe for the pensioning of state employees on the same day and at the same moment that pensions are provided for all workers—and not a split second earlier under any system that takes away a nickel of the other workers' money.

FOR EXPANSION

An interview with Secretary of Agriculture Wallace published today by Collier's Weekly, may turn out to be the most important political document since President Roosevelt's inaugural address.

That Mr. Wallace is deeply in the confidence of the President would be proven, if proof were needed, by the latter's selection of the secretary to be the administrator of the unprecedented powers that will be imparted by the farm bill if it passes the Senate. So that when Wallace comes out with a public declaration in favor of a controlled inflation of the currency, as he does in the Collier's article, it is a fair inference that he is speaking not for himself or his department alone but for the administration.

This is a matter of tremendous importance. The inference is not only fair; it is practically unescapable. There is no longer any reason to doubt that Mr. Roosevelt recognizes the impossibility of bringing to pass the fiscal emancipation of the debtors, the solvency of millions of farmers, industrialists, merchants and home owners, without effecting a reasoned and safe expansion of the currency. And it is exactly on that point that the country has needed definite reassurance.

Wallace speaks in no doubtful terms. He not only advocates expansion but a definite form of expansion. He would adopt the device employed many times in history and frequently quite recently by gold standard countries of Europe—the reduction of the gold content of the money unit. In other words by cutting the number of grains of gold behind the dollar from 23 to 15 or 16 grains.

It is not commonly understood but it is true that the United States is the only gold using country in the world that has not lowered or is not definitely contemplating lowering the gold content of its money unit. In Great Britain it is expected that the sovereign will soon contain 85 to 90 per cent less of the yellow metal. All the other European gold standard countries including Holland, where every dollar of paper money is backed by 107 per cent of gold and where gold is more extensively used in daily transactions than in any other country, the guilders having been devalued at least once.

Says Wallace:

The larger bankers hold up their hands in horror and speak about the greenbacker and the free-silverite and invoke the shades of 1896 to help them in their battle against the evils of inflation. Every intelligent man who notes that the money fight this time is being conducted in a much different way than it was in the 30's, 70's and 80's of the last century.

The farmers this time are better led and are standing for a controlled rather than an uncontrolled inflation. Moreover this time the farmers are fighting side by side with a number of prominent manufacturers and members of the United States Chamber of Commerce. Even some of the insurance executives—who are contemplating what will happen to them if farm mortgages are cut down and railroad rates are cut while at the same time they are compelled to pay their policy holders in full—are eager to see a controlled restoration of values by a sound expansion of both credit and currency. The battle will undoubtedly be a strenuous one but it is to be hoped that it will be settled definitely one way or the other within six months.

If that does not show us where this administration stands on the subject of currency expansion, what does it show?

It is the position that this newspaper for more than three years has been contending would have to be taken before the country could get on its feet. The total of debt of all kinds in the United States right now practically equal the national inventory. In other words the American people have lost their equity in their own country. To restore it either we must reduce all debt by fiat or by some trick or else by controlled inflation restore values till the inventory of wealth is well in excess of the debt account.

And Wallace says: "Within six months." That is big news.

Jews in Germany

The tragically threatening situation in Germany, where in full sight is flickering the spark alongside the powder magazine that warns of peril of another worldwide explosion, is overshadowed by the multitude of rushing events in America. At any other time the European crisis would be commanding the attention of the people of this country as completely as did that of the summer of 1914.

Only one group of Americans can be said to be displaying an interest in German affairs: in any degree commensurate with their importance—those of the Jewish persuasion. They, naturally, are keenly alive to these dire perils to their race in Germany that are inherent in Hitler's anti-semitism; and they are deeply agitated.

There is no unreason in the fear of a pogrom in Germany, though there are a thousand reasons why the institution of such a horror would react to destroy those who might instigate it. Hitlerism is a variety of madness in itself—and capable of any insane act. It is not to be wondered at, then, that there is rapidly coming into force in this country a movement for the letting down of the immigration bars in the interest of refugees Israelites driven from Germany in peril of life, limb and liberty.

Nor would it be at all surprising if, in a sudden revulsion of feeling against the outrageous policy of Nazi Germany toward the Jews, the generous heart of America should be led toward the opening of this nation's arms to the persecuted victims.

That would be magnificent. Also it would be suicidal. This nation cannot be magnificent toward the persecuted peoples of other lands at the expense of the security of its own children. The policy of making of the United States a sanctuary for the downtrodden of the world, carried to the point of self forgetfulness, contributed enormously to our present economic problems. America is carrying in her arms right now millions of Europe's refugees. She can carry no more.

Whatever pressure this country can exert to help insure the safety of Germany's Semitic population; whatever influence this people can bring to bear through public protest; whatever measures can be adopted and whatever contributions this nation can make to a world's efforts to prevent Germany from lapsing into barbarism—these things we should and would give to the Jews of Germany.

But America must not be asked to surrender her own security defenses to insure the security of distressed, even imperiled aliens. Her first duty is to her own children.

Principle Remains

Obviously, that's a lot different from the regimes imposed by Benito Mussolini and various other European and Latin-American dictators who depend on their armies to hold them in power. Congress is giving up many of the prerogatives which it heretofore has jealously reserved but the principle of popular representative government is retained and may even be strengthened in the process.

One result may be the rehabilitation of Congress in the public esteem. It needed that. Partly because of ignorance on the part of the voters and partly because of its inefficiency under the handicaps of its unwieldiness, a lack of leadership, the absence of party control and the customary subservience of its members to local or sectional interests, Congress has become more than ever a target for popular contempt.

IN NEW YORK

New York, March 25.—The bets about town are 10-1 that, if Mrs. James J. Walker gets her divorce from the former Mayor of New York City, Betty Compton, the actress who is with him on the Riviera now, will ditch Jimmy. Reports are conflicting about Jimmy's financial situation, the majority asserting that he is flat and adding that "He has cost Betty Compton plenty already."

Speaking of the former James J. Walker reminds me of the perplexing problem facing Sardi's, Sardi's restaurant on 44th Street just West of Broadway, gathering place of Broadway celebrities, has its own "400." This "400" consists of that number of caricatures of famous habitués, chosen and done in color by one artist, Alex Gard, former Russian naval officer, all framed and hung in a three tier freize about the main dining room. Over the entrance door, in solitary state and lighted by a special powerful globe, still hangs a picture of ex-Mayor Walker, catching him at his best, debonair, smiling, as if he had just cracked one of his best ones.

"We don't know what to do about Walker's picture," John Brass, the manager told me. "You see we didn't take it down when everybody jumped into Jimmy and now we can't very well move it. Gard has a scheme which we all hope works. He thinks if we

Behind the Scenes in WASHINGTON

'NEW DEAL' IS A NEW GAME — AND CONGRESS IS LIKING IT!

By RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Writer

Washington, March 24. — The "new deal" is more than that. It's an entirely new game.

The way you play it is merely to deal all the cards to Franklin D. Roosevelt. He has changed the face of the cards in advance and may play them as he likes.

The most astonishing thing about this game is that those who have participated in previous games with equal rights — meaning Congress — are quite content with the new rules which give them little to do except deal the cards, while 120,000,000 kibitzers lean forward and demonstrate a strong majority enthusiasm.

But the "new deal" is not a dictatorship. What happens is that Congress is giving Roosevelt and his cabinet members certain wide powers over certain fields in a national emergency — banking, federal economy and reorganization, agriculture and unemployment relief.

No "man on horseback" has appeared to seize power and hold it for Roosevelt and the overwhelmingly Democratic Congress were elected by an unprecedentedly huge majority of the American voters through an old-fashioned process of popular government. The Congress which grants him these enormous powers is directly responsible to the people and has every reason to believe that it is acting in accordance with the wishes of its constituents. If it isn't carrying out their desires its members can be booted out of office next year. And meanwhile if Congress isn't satisfied with the way Roosevelt carries out its mandates it can revoke them at will.

Strong Party Rule

What we're having, meanwhile is the first demonstration of strong party government in 14 years. It has long been argued, both by Republicans and Democrats, that a government of parties must have party government — at least, occasionally, if only to show how it works.

Party government went out when the country irred against Wilson in the Congressional elections of 1918. Other than the president had been able to operate with party majorities reinforced by Republican support in the war emergency.

There was a semblance of party government under Harding, but even then the farm bloc and the Republican progressives were beginning to build up a balance of power which flourished in the Coolidge administration. Congress did about as it pleased with the Coolidge measures and after Hoover came along the Senate's Republican progressives were able to balk the White House by aligning with the Democrats. Hoover for his strong Republican House for his first two years, but a mere paper majority in the Senate. In his second two years the Democrats had control of the House and he really had hostile majorities in both branches. He had considerable success in putting through his "reconstruction" program, but that was because — in an emergency — the Democrats had no more of a program than the Republicans seem to have now.

FORWARD WITH NATURE BETTER THAN BACK TO NATURE

Right now we are hearing a lot about the conflict between man and machines. There is also springing up a strong "Back to Nature" movement. It has always seemed to me that the best way of living is to combine the advantages of machines and the advantages of natural living. If you, for example, tried to live as close to Nature as did the pioneers you would find yourself suffering from many diseases which in a modern city do not attack you at all. You might be troubled by an impure water supply or any of the diseases which our grandfathers knew and which we have along without a bath tub, or even a good cook stove. You would live in a rude log cabin. If you wanted to get even closer to Nature and went back to the cave-man style of living you would probably go hungry, your feet would be full of thorns and you might have cramped muscles from sleeping in trees.

It is equally true that a man who is cooped up in a city suffers from special handicaps. He gets stooped-shouldered and near-sighted from bending over a desk and his skin exercises enough and gets constipated. The skin lacks sunshine and shows it in a pale tint. During times of depression he may lose his job.

It doesn't cheer him up very much to be told that primitive man also had plenty of troubles such as rheumatism, decayed teeth, a fractured skull from being hit over the head with a club, as well as a food supply which did its best to run away from him. If you will study pictures of some of the savage peoples of today you will see that many of them are scrawny, pot-bellied, and show the effects of a make-shift diet of grubs, roots, shrubs, or any other kind of food they can get. The mothers are often forced to nurse their children two or three or even four years, due to the uncertain food supply, and may nurse two or more at the same time. Look at these pictures carefully and you will see that out of a whole tribe only a handful of young people have well-built bodies. The city dweller who worries because he is not at the peak of physical health need not envy these savage peoples.

Somewhere between the savage who is a child of nature and has plenty of fresh air and exercise but too little food and the modern man who gets too much food and too little exercise there must be a golden mean.

I would not advise any of my readers to go back to Nature to the extent that these savages know her

But we should work out some way whereby we keep the advantages of modern machines and conveniences and the advantage of healthful outdoor living with its blessing of sunshine and physical activity.

A trend in this direction is the new part-time-farm movement where the worker lives in the country and raises nearly all of his food but has a part time job with a salary. It is doubtful whether thousands of these could produce enough food for themselves and gain in health while doing it.

This is more than a "back to the land" or "back to nature" movement—it is a plan to go forward with the benefits of modern living while enjoying the results of living more naturally. This type of living solves the health problem and the financial problem. It combines the best features of our machine age and natural living. It would all be going forward with Nature rather than back to Nature.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Veins On Nose)

Question Carolyn asks: "Can anything be done about tiny veins that appear around the nose? Can anything be done about them?"

Answer: The ice treatment is sometimes effective in reducing these veins. This treatment consists of simply holding a piece of ice against the enlarged veins. Creams should last two or three minutes and be repeated two or three times a day. Also, wash the face several times daily with cold water in order to keep the skin clean so that the appearance of these heads will not be necessary.

AREA RATE CUT COSTS IN HALF

Pres. Ferguson Tells Legislators Price Was Reduced By Plan.

Through the use of the area form of electric rate, the average price received for electricity in the territory of the Hartford Electric Company has been reduced from 9.6 cents per kilowatt hour in 1921 to 4.5 cents in 1932, a reduction which could have been accomplished under no other form of rate, Samuel Ferguson, president of the company, told the Judiciary Committee of the General Assembly yesterday in appearing in opposition to bills designed to make use of the area rate illegal.

Mr. Ferguson's statement to the committee was in part as follows: "While my remarks have to do particularly with the Hartford Electric Light Company, they are equally pertinent relative to the similar rates in effect elsewhere in the state, not of course to the same degree everywhere, since generally where the rate has been in effect the longest, the progress toward lower prices has been the greatest."

Canadian Situation "In 1921 I visited Canada and studied the situation in Ontario with respect to the reasons why they were able to render domestic service at the extraordinarily low rates which were and are famous the world over. I found four principal reasons, namely:

- (1) Power from Niagara Falls—a unique natural resource. (2) Freedom from taxation. (3) Operation at cost. (4) The use of area rate.

"Much to my surprise I discovered that, of these four conditions of difference between Ontario and Hartford, it was the fact that the area form of rate had existed from the start that made the greatest difference. "Applying the effect of each of these four items to Hartford conditions, I found that the form of rate had made more difference than any combined two of the other three advantageous factors.

Expected Attacks "I realized perfectly that this form was strange, that it was not easily understood, and would, therefore, be subject to more attack when used by private companies than in the Canadian Municipal operations, but the possibilities for lowered prices were too great for me to deprive Hartford of the benefit of the area rate just because I feared the attacks which were sure to follow from those not conversant with the nature of electric costs.

"So in January 1922 the area form of rate was introduced and the anticipated results obtained—both as to the lowering of prices and as to attacks on the method. How great has been the reduction in 10 years is shown by the following comparison: "Average price received in 1921—9.6c per kilowatt hour. "Average price received in 1932—4.5c per kilowatt hour.

"Under no other form of rate has there been any such reduction in the period anywhere in the United States; but in every place where this rate form has been adopted similar results have been achieved.

Two Comparisons "In order to show a little more personally how well we have succeeded in comparison with territories who have not given their customers the benefit of this form of rate, I would cite the fact that two members of this Judiciary Committee are our customers. I have looked up their payments for the last year and find that if they had lived in Boston, where they would have paid a charge, they would have paid 35 per cent more dollars for the service they received.

"This place is not appropriate for a technical argument as I will simply point out a few incontrovertible facts which will show that the rate is both logical and equitable. Electricity for light costs more to make and deliver than for other purposes. This is recognized in many Court and Commission decisions in which the propriety of a higher rate for light has been recognized over and over again. This difference can readily be shown by different meters on the light and power circuits, but to do it this way involves the customer in the expense of wiring his home with two circuits which would involve an expenditure of many millions of dollars in Hartford alone.

"If the use of light was the same in all homes, a single circuit and meter could be used with a meter rate appropriate to the amount of power used, plus a fixed charge which would compensate for the amount of undercharge on those kilowatt-hours used for light.

Requirement Increases "Inasmuch as an experience has shown that the amount of light for essential requirements increases proportionally to the floor area to be lighted, it is possible to substitute for the previously suggested fixed charge a graduated charge which is larger or smaller according to the size of the area to be lighted. This graduated fixed charge added to the power price charged by the meter for the kilowatt-hours used for average lighting make a lighting price for light; and power price for power without the customer having to pay the cost of separate circuits in his home. It is thus both equitable and advantageous."

BIG SEVEN DAY SALE AT McLELLAN STORE

Extra Merchandise Secured To Meet Shoppers' Demands—Variety Feature of Store.

Tomorrow McLeLlan Stores will inaugurate a special seven-day sale that will be one of the biggest merchandising events of the year for that store. Special preparations have been made and extra special merchandise has been secured in order that the people of Manchester and surrounding towns would find it worth while to trade at this store during this sale.

If one is not acquainted with McLeLlan's it will certainly pay them to visit this place of business for they will surely be amazed at the variety of merchandise to be found. It is impossible to even attempt to list the various lines but a partial checkup includes ladies', misses', and children's ready-to-wear, domestic, a complete line of housewares, canned, notions, cosmetics and soap, hardware, electrical merchandise and many other items. The manager, Mr. McInnis, is enthusiastic over the prospects for Spring business and says that the Manchester store is more than holding its own in rank with other stores of the same size in cities comparable with Manchester.

D. A. R. CONVENTION ON IN NEW HAVEN

Over $2,000 Collected In Mite Boxes For Maintenance of Constitution Hall.

New Haven, March 24.—(AP)—Mite boxes used by the chapters of the Daughters of the American Revolution, to receive contributions toward maintenance of Constitution Hall in Washington were opened at today's session of the Connecticut chapter in annual convention in Center church. The boxes yielded $2,045.

Miss Emeline A. Street, state regent, in her report told the 400 delegates present that Connecticut had spent $42,086 during the year on various phases of the Connecticut D. A. R. work in spite of the depression. Membership fell from about 6,500 to 6,244 but she believed many withdrawals are temporary.

All 54 chapters had paid their national quotas in full and all but one, the state's quota, the report showed. The list of officers offered for election follows: State regent Miss Emeline A. Street, New Haven; State vice regent, Mrs. Frederick P. Lathimer of Hartford; chairman, Mrs. George Maynard Miner of Waterford; councilors, Mrs. William C. Bristol, of Bridgeport; Mrs. Sheldon Lord Seelye of Washington, Conn., and Mrs. F. H. Ingalls, of Hartford.

CURB QUOTATIONS

SEEKS RETURN OF VIOLIN

Bridgeport, March 24—(AP)—Harry Sackman of Stamford today filed suit in Superior Court here against James L. Dashiield, a music teacher of that city, for the recovery of a valuable Amati violin which he alleged was obtained from him by fraud. He seeks damages of $10,000. It is charged that in 1932, Sackman asked Dashiield to repair the instrument and appraise it. He alleges that Dashiield concealed from him the true value of the violin and succeeded in inducing Sackman to exchange it for a bow.

ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

Danbury, March 24—(AP)—Brooding over his arrest on complaint of a neighbor, following a dispute about a dog, J. Edward Adams, 38, shot himself in the heart last night after he was released from custody and returned to his home on the outskirts of this city. He was able to walk into the hospital and his condition today is not serious.

HEADS BASEBALL TEAM

Middletown, March 24—(AP)—Liarry S. Allen of Philadelphia has been elected captain of the Wesleyan basketball team. He is a junior, plays center and has been a high scorer.

Allen holds the Olin Scholarship in his study courses, and is captain elect of the soccer team.

OPEN TRADE SCHOOL COURSE TO JOBLESS

Facilities of Institution Available At No Cost, Says Director Echmalian.

Director John G. Echmalian, today announced a plan providing training opportunities for Manchester's unemployed men and women at the Manchester State Trade School. This institution, in conjunction with other similar schools throughout the state, is striving to be of some service to the people who are out of work.

The Trade school also wants to further acquaint the general public with its many facilities. Any line of instruction is open to those wishing to enroll. A person does not necessarily have to take a full course but may if he wishes. For example, he may have the privilege of unit instruction in any phase of a trade. There will be absolutely no charge to anyone wishing this training.

The only stipulation is that a person must take at least four hours of study a week and cannot take more than forty. This corresponds to a day and a full trade school week of study. This opportunity affords any man or woman the chance to master any particular phase of a vocation about which he may be lacking some qualifications.

The Trade school has the backing and approval of the Vocational Educational Department of the State Capitol in its new venture, Director Echmalian announced. Any persons interested in enrolling in existing further particulars should get in communication with the Trade school any day while school is in session.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, March 24—Contracts awarded for heavy construction in the week ended March 20 totaled $9,384,000 against $8,339,000 in the previous week, says "Engineering News-Record." Many scheduled openings scheduled for March have been postponed until next month.

Underwood-Elliott-Fisher Co., operated at a profit in January and February compared with losses in the latter part of 1932, says President Wagener. There has been a falling off in business this month. Dividends, he told the stockholders' annual meeting, will depend upon conditions current when the decision has to be made, but the management hopes to be able to continue a payment on the common through the depression if this can be done without weakening the company's financial position.

Stocks of zinc in the United States at the end of February totaled 134,440 short tons compared with 120,600 on January 31, says the American Bureau of Metal Statistics. World production was 76,819 tons last month compared with 79,222 in January.

E. R. Brown, president of Magnolia Petroleum Co., has been made chairman of the board, a position heretofore unfilled. D. A. Little, formerly vice president and assistant general manager, becomes president.

Preferred stockholders of Central Public Service Corp., have been notified that the time limit for depositing their securities for shares in Central Public Utility Corp., have been extended from April 1 to June 5.

WAPPING

All those who are interested in cleaning up the ruins of the former Parish House, will please report for work Saturday morning at eight o'clock.

Several members of the Federated Sunday school at Wapping are planning to attend the mid-year conference of the Hartford County Council of Christian Education at the Asylum Hill Congregational church in Hartford this evening. The banquet is to be held at 6:30, with conference following that.

Miss Lois Foster of Foster street, entertained her Sunday school class at her home on Wednesday evening. They had a fine time making scrap books for the Beginners class. Refreshments and games followed.

Rev. J. B. Ackley of 34 Larrabee street, Burnside, who passed away at his winter home in Florida early in the winter will be brought to the Wapping cemetery for burial in the family plot, next Saturday afternoon about 2 o'clock.

Next Sunday morning at the Federated church here, Rev. Sherrod Soule, secretary of the State Congregational Missionary Society will preach at 10:45 o'clock.

NEW SWINDLING GAME UNEARTHED BY POLICE

Danbury, March 24.—(AP)—Rudolph H. Buhler, also known, the state police say, as J. Brown, given his address as 213 East 40th street, New York, was arrested in Trumbull yesterday by state policemen of the Ridgefield barracks on a charge of uttering a forged instrument with intent to collect money by fraud. He is being held here in default of $1,000 bail.

The arrest, the police say, follows a long investigation of an alleged racket connected with the sale of shields for automobile headlights. These articles were placed for sale at garages and roadside stands and a supposed receipt taken for them. Later, the police assert, the proprietors of places at which the shields had been left received from their banks notification in regard to trade acceptances which apparently they had signed. The signatures of these documents are said to have been forgeries. Victims of the game in Fairfield county are said to be numerous.

Buhler appeared at the roadside stand of Joseph Venus in Ridgefield yesterday and demanded that Venus sign a trade acceptance purporting to have his signature. Venus notified the state police, who traced the man to Trumbull where he was attempting to make a similar collection to enroll a person desiring to buy a day and a full trade school week of study. This opportunity affords any man or woman the chance to master any particular phase of a vocation about which he may be lacking some qualifications.

The Trade school has the backing and approval of the Vocational Educational Department of the State Capitol in its new venture, Director Echmalian announced. Any persons interested in enrolling in existing further particulars should get in communication with the Trade school any day while school is in session.

HITLER MAY ASK ISLANDS' RETURN

Japan Now Claims Ownership of These Lands in the Pacific.

Washington, March 24.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler's ambition to recover the colonies wrested from Germany by the Allied Powers apparently has added to the Japanese apprehension over their mandated islands in the Pacific, an apprehension first aroused by the suggestion that Japan's resignation of the League of Nations would make it necessary for them to relinquish the islands.

Yoshike Matsuo, Japanese delegate to the Geneva disarmament conference, due to arrive in this country today enroute to Japan, has strongly defended Japan's mandate, saying it was granted by the Supreme Allied Council, not by the League of Nations, and that membership in the League is not essential to its validity.

Claim Ownership Japan's conception of mandated territories is at variance with that of other powers. Japanese spokesmen repeatedly have said their mandate over the hundreds of former German islands scattered along the route between the Philippines and Hawaii is equivalent to ownership.

President Wilson subscribed to no such conception at the Versailles conference. However, Japanese spokesmen insist Britain and France agreed to it.

Great Britain already has given Iraq, for which it held a mandate, complete independence and France is planning to free mandated Syria.

The Japanese navy captured the German oceanic liner in the Marshall Marianne and Carolina groups soon after Japan entered the war on the side of the Allies. Their strategic position makes them important to Japanese naval defense.

"The government is issuing vast quantities of new money hot off the presses," says a Washington patch. "Let's hope it won't be hot enough to burn a hole in the pocket."

HALE'S FOOD FAIR ATTRACTS CROWDS

Big Merchandising Event Proves Great Success; Continues Tomorrow.

To conduct a sale under present conditions requires courage, to say the least, but when one has launched such a thing and is rewarded with a good measure of success it is most creditable and satisfactory indeed. This has been the case with Hale's Manufacturers' and Packers' sale now going on in their popular Self Serve grocery. It is indeed proof of the fact that there is business to be obtained for those who seek it. The sale represents the culmination of weeks of planning and careful buying. The prices at which the merchandise was presented to the public and response there was forthcoming yesterday, the first day, was proof that the Self Serve again is a leader in food merchandising in Manchester.

There was a steady stream of customers all day and for the first time there was an opportunity to test the added advantage of the extra checking aisles just created. That they afforded a great advantage in passing the customers through the most rapidly cannot be minimized. Gordon Thornton, manager of the Self Serve, said last night that he was more than pleased in the way this part of the store had worked out.

Country Club Soda is being sampled with generous glasses. A piping hot sample of Underwood Clam chowder tastes good too, judging by the large amount served yesterday.

The My-T-Fine people have an attractive display as well as the National Biscuit Co. who are featuring a very large number of their products.

The Beschnut Packing Co. has Mrs. Harris there for three days, from their plant in Canajoharie, N. Y. She is an expert dietitian and is introducing their new line of special baby foods. These foods are packed in neat and attractive containers under the supervision of chemists and experts. These foods are also especially good for elderly people who are on a diet.

The Silver Lane Pickle Co. has three barrels of delicious looking pickles open from which they are supplying samples and sales alike. They smell appetizing and taste equally as good.

Fresh paint spots may be removed from clothing by saturating with turpentine and spirits of ammonia.

GARDENERS ENTHUSE OVER BOSTON SHOW

Manchester People Who Attended Horticultural Exhibit In the Hub Describe It.

Manchester Garden club members, six of whom attended the 63d spring flower show of the Massachusetts Horticultural society at the Mechanics building, Boston, give glowing reports of the exhibit which was considered one of the best in the history of the society. The grand hall contained many large exhibits. The stage was covered with beautiful yellow acacias, and many had the novel experience of dining under acacia trees in full flower on the second floor. Every day lectures on gardens, landscaping, birds and kindred subjects were given by outstanding authorities in the different lines.

One of the unique exhibits was the village street, set up by garden clubs, with many young apple trees and lilacs in full bloom, and wisteria vines clambering over quaint house fronts in Cape Cod type. In the same miniature community was a small greenhouse filled with old-fashioned flowers.

The cut-flowers were gorgeous, according to the local enthusiasts—orchids, the nee. Godfrey calls, marvelous new roses, including the Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, yellow lilies, carnations, whole gardens of snapdragons, tulips and other popular bedding flowers. Transvaal daisies or Gerberas in all their lovely pastel shades were much in evidence at this exhibit. Run-off seats and wheel chairs were provided for attendants at the show and well patronized. Art students improved the opportunity that the lovely garden scenes and retreats afforded for pictures.

A. N. Pionon of Cromwell had a prize winning display of roses. Enormous lemons weighing 1 1/2 pounds each raised in Connecticut greenhouses were objects of interest. The illusion of gardens and deep wooded retreats was all the more realistic by the song of many canaries placed in cages among the forced Japanese larches and other evergreens.

Flowers were brought by airplane from California, and limestone from Cornwall, England, 20 tons of it was used in the construction of the rock garden which won the president's cup and gold medal of the society. The garden was the work of Ralph Hancock of Montclair, N. J. who was once gardener for Princess Victoria. This was a marvelous arrangement of rocks over which blossomed beautiful Al-pines, vines and mosses, with a brook and tiny waterfalls, brightened with golden English primroses.

An interesting collection of aquariums stocked with different kinds of oxygenating plants and dozens of specimens of tropical fishes in jewel-like hues fascinated everybody.

Match From Air Rifle RUPTURES BLOOD VESSEL

Meriden Brothers Play With Gun They Find Wounded Boy Not Seriously Hurt.

Meriden, March 24.—(AP)—Andrew Kincaid, 8, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Kincaid, of Old Colony road, suffered a ruptured blood vessel, in the head about 7:30 a. m., today when he was shot by his brother Frank 16, who was playing with an air rifle.

The boys found the rifle in a dump a few days ago and took it home. Since then they have been playing with it using burned matches for ammunition. This morning the younger boy was in bed and his brother securing the rifle loaded it with a burnt match and fired. The match struck Andrew in the head and ruptured a blood vessel.

Dr. H. DeForest Lockwood, medical examiner, and police were summoned by neighbors but the authorities were satisfied the shooting was an accident. Dr. Lockwood stated that the boy was not seriously injured.

Washington, March 24.—(AP)—Chairman Smith, Democrat, South Carolina today laid before the Senate a substitute for the Roosevelt farm relief plan, which would eliminate the allotment and licensing features of the bill, retain the cotton option plan, keep provision for leasing land but would modify the processing tax.

The committee took no immediate action on the substitute.

Kellsboro Jack Wins Grand National

CHAMPIONS CONFIDENT OF RETAINING HONORS

HEARTBREAK HILL FALLS; WAS AMERICAN ENTRY

Dusty Foot Ridden By George Bostwick Also Falls; Really True Is Second, Slater Third; Winner Owned By New York Woman.

Aintree, England, March 24.—(AP)—Kellsboro Jack, owned by Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark of New York and Aiken, S. C., today won the Grand National.

Really True, owned by Major N. Furlong was second and George Whitelaw's Slater, recently sold by John Hay Whitney third.

Heartbreak Hill favorite fell and Dusty Foot, ridden by George H. (Pete) Bostwick fell and were eliminated.

The victory of Kellsboro Jack was the third time in the history of the race that an American owned horse has won. Sergeant Murphy carried Step on Sanford's silks to victory in 1923 and Jack Horner won for a C. Schwartz in 1926.

Kellsboro Jack ridden by David Williams was quoted at $3 to 1. Heartbreak Hill remained the favorite in the betting as post time neared although the high hedges and cruel obstacles which wreck all form at Aintree when the meles occur challenged all the opinions of the experts.

The afternoon program began with Captain W. P. Ahern's Double Bell winning the Bridgeman plate a fast race run over a mile and five furlongs.

As the Grand National proceeded in front of the grandstands the conditions for the race remained perfect. The visibility from top of the stands brought the far turn of the course at Becher's and Valentine's Brooks into view with glasses against a haze of hills beyond.

KEEN COMPETITION IS LOOKED FOR AS MERMEN VIE TODAY

Experts Place Results In 8 of 9 Events In Doubtful Column As National Meet Opens At Yale.

New Haven, March 24.—(AP)—On the basis of previous performance turned-in by the crack field of contestants, the keenest of competition was looked for in the National Collegiate Athletic Association swimming championships opening at Yale today.

Experts placed the results in eight of the nine events very definitely in the doubtful column and crossed their fingers as they pointed to Dick Degener of Michigan as the probable winner of the high board diving championship now held by Mike Riley, Degener is National A. U. champion and was on the United States Olympic team last year.

The time margins which separate contestants in the fifty yard free style, and hard freestyle, 150 yard backstroke, 200 yard breast stroke and the two relays are similarly narrow.

Basketball

After leading 10-6 at halftime, St. Mary's school of East Hartford defeated the All St. James basketball five, 27-15. The St. James Five were very slow in getting started and did not take the lead until late in the third quarter.

Steadied Sox Shoot For First Division

LEW WILL TAKE A PERSONAL PART AT FIRST BASE IN THE WHITE SOX' COMEBACK EFFORT.

LEW FONSECA THE CALIFORNIA CANARY... MANY THINK HIS WHITE SOX ARE THE MOST IMPROVED TEAM IN THE AMERICAN LEAGUE.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the 13th of a series of articles surveying the major league teams as they prepare in training camp for the 1933 pennant campaign.

New York, March 25.—Of the athletes who graced the roster of the Chicago White Sox in 1930 only four remain on the payroll—Red Faber, Ted Lyons, Vic Frasier and Young Ed Walsh.

In the last three years the team has undergone a tremendous turnover. Last season 55 players performed, or failed to perform, for varied periods. Of that number 28 batted back into the bushes.

Now, with important acquisitions through trades and purchases, the White Sox appear to be ready to settle down and play ball. Lew Fonseca is manager of what, on paper, is the most improved team in the league.

Last year Mister Fonseca sat on the bench keeping a card index on his athletes. This year he will play first base. That means an important added punch to the Sox attack.

CARDINALS OPPOSE GOLDEN CYCLONES IN COURT FINALS

Red Birds Defend Title Against Dallas Cagers In A. A. U. Women's Tourney; Seek 62nd Straight.

Wichita, Kas., March 24.—(AP)—The feminine basketball title of the United States today lay between the Cardinals of Oklahoma Freshyria College for Women and the Dallas Golden Cyclones whom the speedy Cardinals defeated twice this season as clincher evidence of the superiority with which they took the title from the Texans at Shreveport a year ago.

Champions and former champions tangled at the forum tonight in the finals of the A. A. U. women's tournament after breezing through the semi-finals with sparkling demonstrations of scoring power—rarity, it is ever, equalled in men's competition—that left the opposition hopelessly in the lurch.

The Cardinals tagged Steuben Club of Kansas City as the 61st consecutive victim of a two-seasoned campaign, 48 to 14, and the Cyclones advanced with a 36-23 decision over the Wichita Thurstonas.

The Cardinals tagged Steuben Club of Kansas City as the 61st consecutive victim of a two-seasoned campaign, 48 to 14, and the Cyclones advanced with a 36-23 decision over the Wichita Thurstonas.

There is only one left-hander on the roster and he is rookie Fieber, a tall lad from San Francisco who pitched well for Oakland last year.

Lowell, Mass.—Matros Kirilenko, Russia, defeated A. Mercier, Montreal two falls to one.

Camden, N. J.—Charley Strack, Springfield, N. Y., defeated Sam Stein, Newark, (Stein hurt in 9 minutes).

CATHOLIC QUINTETS FIGHT FOR HONORS

St. Patrick's Given Slim Chance To Retain Title Against St. Xavier.

Chicago, March 24.—(AP)—St. Patrick's, of Chicago, fighting to retain its National Catholic High school basketball championship, needed more than the Shamrock today.

Face to face with St. Xavier of Louisville, Ky., they needed all the basketball shots in their record books to turn back the Kentuckians.

To the spectators, who saw both teams in their opening games, St. Xavier was about a 100 to one favorite over the champions, weakened by the loss of four 1932 stars.

De Paul Academy, city champions of Chicago, rated as heavy a favorite as St. Xavier to reach the final. Last night they defeated St. John's surprising team from Milwaukee and faced another strong team in Central Catholic of Ft. Wayne, Ind., tonight.

Indiana led the field by placing five teams into the second round but outside of Cathedral of Indianapolis, State Catholic champion, no Hoosier team was given more than a fighting chance.

Other strong teams left, however, were plentiful as the quintets lined up for the finish of the first round drives and the opening of the second round today. Among them were St. Catherine, Dubois, Pa.; Crestin of St. Paul, and Augustinian of Carthage, N. Y.

The championship campaign ends with the finals Sunday night.

Expect To Be In Top Form For Final Battle At State Armory; Recs Have Fine Chance To Regain Championship; Game At 9 O'Clock; Good Preliminary Also.

Arguments that have been raging ever since the unexpected outcome of the opening game, will be settled tonight at the State Armory when the Rec Five and the National Guards battle for the basketball championship in the third and deciding encounter of the annual tournament series. The game is scheduled for 9 o'clock.

Baseball Briefs

Bradenton, Fla., March 24.—(AP)—Frankie Frisch, the "Fordham Flash," is back in the Redbird flock.

There is only one left-hander on the roster and he is rookie Fieber, a tall lad from San Francisco who pitched well for Oakland last year.

Lowell, Mass.—Matros Kirilenko, Russia, defeated A. Mercier, Montreal two falls to one.

Camden, N. J.—Charley Strack, Springfield, N. Y., defeated Sam Stein, Newark, (Stein hurt in 9 minutes).

Chicago, March 24.—(AP)—With eight of the twelve blocks gone, Willie Hoppe of New York today was far out in front of Walker Cochran, world's three cushion billiards champion, in their 600 point special match.

The New York star took both blocks yesterday to build up a lead of 400 to 347 in 380 innings. He won the afternoon clash, 50 to 48 in 38 innings, and outpointed the champion, 50 to 25, in the night block which went 51 innings. Each had won four blocks.

ROSENBLUM FAVORED OVER GODWIN TONIGHT

New York, March 24.—(AP)—There will be a middleweight championship bout in Madison Square Garden tonight when Maxie Rosenbloom and Bob Godwin clash over the 15 round title route.

Godwin, 21 year old youngster from Dayton, Fla., holds National Boxing Association recognition as king of the 175 pounders and Rosenbloom is recognized by the New York State Athletic Commission.

There will be no disputing the claim of the winner.

Rosenbloom, a veteran of ten years of constant ring warfare during which he has fought some 200 bouts against the world's leading middleweights and light-weights, rules a 2 to 1 favorite.

The three closing games last night were unimportant as the places of the six playoff teams were settled after last Tuesday's game.

ICE PLAYOFFS START TOMORROW AT BOSTON

New York, March 24.—(AP)—The National Hockey League season has ended and now it's the Boston Bruins against the Toronto Maple Leafs, the Montreal Maroons against the Detroit Red Wings and the New York Rangers against the Montreal Canadiens in the battle for the Stanley Cup.

The three closing games last night were unimportant as the places of the six playoff teams were settled after last Tuesday's game.

The playoff battles begin tomorrow night at Boston and Montreal and Sunday at New York.

San Francisco, March 24.—(AP)—Manager Charlie Grimm of the Chicago Cubs, is almost out of patience with Lyle (Bud) Thinning, a great prospect and author of some better than average right handed pitching last season.

Thinning has not been able to take off a ough weight to keep pace this year. He has shown almost nothing to indicate he will stick when the cutting time comes.

San Jose, Cal., March 24.—(AP)—Manager Lew Fonseca of Chicago's White Sox, only hopes his team will keep right on hitting against southpaws the way they have in training games. Yesterday, led by Al Simmons who connects for a double and three singles against Seattle, the Sox trimmed a pair of left-handers, Phil Page and Dick Freeland, for fourteen runs.

Edwin McCure, Louisiana state golf champion, recently set a new record for the Broadmoor course at Shreveport, with a card of 65.

PRESIDENT'S BANK POLICY ENDORSED

New England Council Head Says Impairment of Money Would Hurt This Area.

Providence, R. I., March 24.—New England business must "stand by the Chief Executive in support of sound money, sound banks and the national credit," President Henry D. Sharpe of the New England Council declared in his opening address at the Twenty-Eighth Quarterly Meeting of the Council here today. "Now that the banking crisis is past and our national policy has been defined," President Sharpe declared, "I feel that there is only one position that New England business can and should take in respect to our banking and currency. That position is to stand squarely behind the President in the course he has laid down and is now pursuing."

Is Fundamental
"There is nothing more fundamental to a capitalistic industrial society than its circulating medium and its banking structure. Any impairment of our money will strike at the very vitals of New England's economic organism. Therefore, in the weeks and months to come, as occasion may require, we should impress upon our Senators and Representatives at Washington the fact that regardless of party or personal views, New England demands and expects that they shall stand by the Chief Executive in support of sound money, sound banks, and the national credit."

Reviewing the work of the New England Council in helping to stabilize New England Business in the recent weeks of the depression, President Sharpe summarized the Council's action in supporting President Roosevelt's request for broad powers to balance the Federal budget, including assurance of support to the President, telegrams from the Council to every New England Senator and Representative, communications to the more than 200 agricultural, commercial and industrial organizations in New England, urging them to act similarly as organizations and through their individual members, action by the several state divisions of the Council as organizations and through their members, circularization of the more than 7,000 members of the New England Council, urging them to act as individuals in support of the President, co-ordinated activity with all other economic agencies supporting the President and the suggestion to the State Federation of Women's Clubs in New England that they publicly support the President's economy message.

Reduce Public Costs
Declaring that the major project of the New England Council at this time is the reduction of public expenditures in New England communities and states, President Sharpe reviewed the two years' program of the Council in this field, and declared that it has proved of the greatest benefit to all business throughout New England. The second major project which the Council is conducting this year, President Sharpe said, is its national advertising campaign to build New England's income from recreational visitors.

"Through this campaign the Council is bringing new dollars into New England just as much as the sale of our manufactured products or the sale of insurance policies in other sections brings cash into New England. New England has no agency other than the Council that could possibly organize, finance and conduct this national advertising effort in the interests of the entire New England community," he asserted.

Queer Twists In Day's News

Van Buren, Ind., March 24.—(AP)—Linemen for the Indiana Service Corporation reported a break in the power line, but no customers complained of interrupted service.

Here's how it was, they said: The line broke, a cow touched the wire, a dog touched the cow, a possum touched the dog, all three were killed; but the possum also touched the other end of the break and completed the circuit.

Chicago.—From postmaster of Chicago, to president of a brewing company is to be the lot of Postmaster Arthur C. Lueder. A Republican, he is subject to displacement any time now, but announced he was all ready to step into his new job in the brew business.

Kenosha, Wis.—Esther Kavisco, 6, watched curiously while firemen searched through ashes of her home for her body. Then she explained to the fire chief she hadn't been burned. She had been visiting a neighbor.

Chicago.—At two years and 11 months, Allen Paul Cooper, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Cooper, is amazing folk by reciting the alphabet backward and forward, counting to 100 and spelling out many polysyllabic words some persons would stumble over.

San Francisco.—San Franciscans, during the bank holidays, gave the park commission $3,238 in small checks for golf course and tennis court fees.

"We have expected a percentage of these checks would 'bounce'" said Captain E. P. Lamb, secretary of the park commission, "but we just completed clearance of them, and not a one has come back."

Oklahoma City.—Beer, Mrs. L. Lezo told the court, keeps her husband home.

Speaking in behalf of her spouse, charged with possession of the brew, Mrs. Lezo said:

"Why, he doesn't even know how to make it, but so long as I keep the beer and give him a couple of bottles a day he won't leave home to drink with the boys."

Judge Mike Foster fined Lezo $11. Chicago.—Mrs. Lydia Rowland, 68, was sent to jail by Judge J. G. Van Keuren following representations by Dr. John O'Neil, physician, that she gave him a defective mortgage on her home in part payment for a bill for his services. He obtained a judgment and the court issued the order committing the aged woman to jail under a malice clause in the verdict.

Waukegan, Ill.—Precisely what Mrs. Irene Castle McLaughlin, society leader, thinks would be the very best diet for pigs to make them healthy and strong, remained a secret today, officially at least.

She was asked what she considered a nicely balanced diet by an attorney in William Schroeder's $10,000 suit against her for alleged false arrest but her own attorney objected and was sustained by the court. The litigation followed an inspection of Schroeder's pig sty and allegations by Mrs. McLaughlin that he wasn't treating his pigs as pigs should be treated.

Pittsburgh.—Deputy sheriffs took Joseph Micucci into a crowded courtroom and announced he intended to plead guilty on a robbery charge.

The court called Micucci's case, and the deputies turned to produce the defendant.

Then they blushed; Micucci had walked out.

They're still blushing; Micucci hasn't been seen since.

Chicago.—Joseph Di Lella told a court he didn't object when his wife collected his pay check and allowed him only 30 cents a day for carfare, lunches and cigarettes, but that when she refused to give him 50 cents for a haircut he slammed the glass door so hard it broke. His wife, on the other hand, said he was a violent man and asked he be judged insane.

But the judge said it would be all right for Joseph to remain free.

BEER ADVERTISEMENTS ARE NOW PERMITTED

Attorney General Says He Will Not Prosecute Brewers of Nation.

Washington, March 24.—(AP)—Beer advertisements in newspapers are permitted today for the first time in 13 years.

An interpretation by Attorney General Cummings that "innocent anticipatory" advertisements would bring no prosecution from his department gave brewers their cut to go forward with plans to line up the trade in states where beer may be sold at one minute past midnight April 7.

At the same time Cummings indicated a passive attitude toward those few papers which hopped to the front yesterday even before his ruling by printing ads banned by the prohibition laws.

Attorney General Cummings told newspapermen that the expectation of Pacific coast dwellers that they would have beer at the same time as the east, was unfounded. Reversing opinions of other legal experts, he ruled the beer bill would become effective at the stroke of midnight in each locality and not simultaneously the country over when the clock strikes 12 in the east.

REALISTIC TEST

Montreal.—Sirens screamed, police cars dashed wildly down the street, and a squad swooped down on the Bank of Montreal branch at St. Peter and St. James streets. Cops piled out, rushed up the steps of the bank two at a time. In a twinkling the sidewalks were crowded with curious spectators who visioned a big bank robbery. But one of the policemen shattered their dreams when he said "Nothing wrong, boys. This is just a test to see how fast we could get here."

ROME CELEBRATES FASCIST BIRTHDAY

Mussolini Grooms Widows and Mothers of Fascist and War Dead.

Rome, March 24.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini today received the homage of a huge black shirt army congregated in Rome to commemorate the 14th anniversary of the formation of the party.

In the midst of the festivities the premier took occasion to emphasize the solemn responsibilities attendant upon membership in his organization by personally receiving several hundred widows and mothers of Fascist and war dead.

A column of party founders, veterans and a vanguardist, or young black shirts, who arrived from Milan after celebrating the occasion in that city yesterday, formed at the Piazza Venezia at 9:45 a. m., as a signal for the anniversary ceremonies to commence. They were joined by Roman units of the organization and the war veterans.

They marched with bands playing and the various standards flying to the Fascist revolutionary exposition building, and then filed past the altar of the fatherland to the Piazza Venezia, where Mussolini has his offices.

While the black shirts ranks were filing into the Piazza Venezia, Mussolini, dressed in full Fascist regalia, received widows and mothers of the war dead in the Salon of Battles in the Palazzo Venezia. Duce received the women cordially and spoke feelingly of their sacrifices for Fascism and Italy. Afterwards Mussolini reviewed the massed black shirts in the Piazza Venezia.

The commemorative ceremonies were concluded later this afternoon with solemn inauguration of the war dead chapel in Verano cemetery, and reception for Fascist leaders at the Capitol by Prince Francesco Boncompagni-Ludovisi, Governor of Rome.

The subject of the Sunday morning service at the Tolland Federated church Professor A. J. W. Meyer the speaker will be "Why God does not speak to us."

Mrs. William Senk, Sr., who has been in Rochester, N. Y., with relatives, has returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Broadbent have had as guest, Mrs. Broadbent's step-father, Mr. Baxter of Northfield, Mass.

It is expected that a large delegation from Tolland will be present at the fourth of a series of meetings to be held next Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the South Willington Community church with visitor Samuel Vinton of Rosale, N. J., will be the speaker. These meetings are sponsored by the Tolland County Council of the Young Men's Christian Association.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Pearson of Hartford were recent guests of relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Newman have had as guests several of their relatives from Hartford.

The regular meeting of Tolland Grange was held in the Federated church, social rooms Tuesday evening, March 21st, with visitor Samuel Vinton of Rosale, N. J., present from Willington, Vernon neighboring Granges and a patron from Northfield, Mass. Grange was also present. The Lecturers hour was devoted to the subject fruit, music and games. Refreshments were served during the social hour.

The Tolland Grange whist will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bushnell next Tuesday evening, March 28. The public is invited to attend.

Mrs. Keat Burgess returned to her home in West Hartford Thursday evening after a short visit with friends in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Von Deak who have been guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Emile Von Deak and family have returned to their home in Washington, D. C.

William Sumner Simpson has returned to New York City after time spent at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Simpson. Mrs. Simpson and son Billy are to remain in Tolland for an indefinite period.

Charles C. Talcott went Friday to Cradell, N. J., for a visit with relatives.

BREWERS TO SPEND OVER 400 MILLIONS

Since December Plants in East Have Already Spent Fifty-Eight Millions.

New York, March 24.—(AP)—L. Seth Schmittman, chief statistician of the F. W. Dodge Corporation estimated today more than $400,000,000 will be spent in the next few months for new breweries and necessary additions to old ones.

The estimate was based on reports from 37 states east of the Rockies and on statistical calculations for the far western states.

The figure did not include expenditures for building and rehabilitating retail establishments. It covered only a small proportion of the sums to be spent for brewery equipment, and none of the other expenses incidental to starting the brewing industry. The total has been estimated by the United Breweries Association at $400,000,000.

Schmittman said 170 reports of brewery construction had been received since Dec. 1, covering 37 eastern states. The total for these states was $28,000,000 and he believed another $7,000,000 at least would be required for the western states.

Deaths Last Night

New York—Edgar Mack Williams, 58, vice chairman of the finance committee of the United Electrical Light and Power Company and wartime railroad adviser to former Secretary of the Treasury William Gibbs McAdoo.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

When JANET HILL learns ROLF CARLYLE has been breaking engagements with her to meet BETTY KENDALL, a society girl, she tells him her marriage is off. Janet is 35, pretty and secretary to BRUCE HAMILTON, advertising manager of Every Home Magazine.

She still loves Rolf and cannot forget him. JEFFREY GRANT, young engineer who lives at the same rooming house as Janet, appears one night just in time to save her purse from a holdup man. Janet becomes interested in the SILVANI family, almost destitute. Jeff helps provide food and clothing for them and later they find a job for PAT SILVANI, the father.

Jeff and Janet become close friends. He asks her to help him select a gift for a girl and they buy a purse. When Janet sees in newspaper headlines that Rolf has eloped with Betty Kendall she tells Jeff about her broken engagement and says she will never care for anyone else.

A few days later Bruce Hamilton tells Janet he is leaving the magazine. The staff is to be reduced and her job will be gone. Hamilton says his sister, MRS. CURTIS, needs a social secretary and that he has recommended Janet. She goes to see Mrs. Curtis and is hired.

On Saturday she moves to her new home. She is unpacking when the maid announces there is a call for her on the telephone.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXVI.

Janet looked up, puzzled. "Why, who could it be?" she asked. "I don't know who could be calling me."

"I don't know, Miss Hill," the maid said. "I didn't give his name. There's only one telephone on this floor and it's in Mrs. Curtis' room. You can use the one downstairs in the library."

Janet hurried down the stairs. Was it Jeff, she wondered? Who else would know where to reach her? And why had he called?

"Hello," she said. "This is Janet speaking."

But it was not Jeff Grant's voice that came to her. It was Bruce Hamilton and he had a message for Mrs. Curtis. He would not, he said, be able to keep an engagement for dinner the next day but he would be out later in the afternoon. He asked Janet how things were going and seemed pleased with her report.

"I'll see you tomorrow," he said. "I'm getting away tomorrow night. Deuce of a lot to do yet, too!"

Janet said good-by and went up the stairs again. She felt a disappointment she would not quite admit. She hadn't expected Jeff to call her. There was no reason why he should. And yet the big house seemed deserted and lonely.

"It wouldn't be like this later," she assured herself. "I'll get used to it—and besides I'll be busy."

She returned to her room, unpacked, folded lingerie and laid it away in the chest of drawers. She hung her dresses in the closet and arranged the top of the dressing table with two crystal bottles that were prized possessions, and a china powder box.

When she had taken everything out of the trunk and traveling bag she slipped off her dress and ran warm water into the tub. She had a lazy, luxurious bath and then, wrapped in a negligee, lay down on the bed. But she did not sleep.

There were too many things to think about. She was still in Lancaster and yet she might almost have been a thousand miles away. Everything seemed so different. All of the people about her were strangers.

How was she going to like this new life? How would these strangers like her? Would she be happy here?

What, Janet wondered, was happiness, really? Something in your own heart instead of what went on around you, she thought. Something you couldn't see or explain but could only feel. But happiness was not what Janet was looking for. She had put that behind her. All that she wanted now was to forget.

The most impossible thing in the world it seemed to achieve—forgetting.

After a while Janet decided it was time to dress. She arose and put on fresh underclothes. What dress should she wear? The maid had said something about "dressing for dinner." Did that mean she was supposed to wear a formal dinner dress? She didn't own one. She could put on the blue crepe from last summer.

Janet looked at it and then shook her head. She took down the black silk that was her newest office dress. It had been freshly cleaned and there was a touch of lace at the throat that was flattering. She had just slipped the dress over her head when there was a knock at the door.

Janet said, "Just a minute!" and then opened the door. It was Mrs. Curtis who stood outside.

"I'm so glad you're here!" she exclaimed. "Is everything all right, my dear? Sorry I couldn't be here when you came. I told Lucy to see that you had everything you wanted."

Mrs. Curtis was dressed in heavy brown satin and wore a small brown hat.

The clasp that held the necklace of her dress contained a half dozen sparkling stones and two diamonds gleamed from a ring on her finger. Yet Mrs. Curtis, in this glittering array, looked no more imposing than the first time Janet had seen her.

Everything was quite all right, Janet assured her. She remembered Mr. Hamilton's message and repeated it.

"Poor Bruce—he does work so hard," the older woman lamented. And then, "By the way, there will only be you and I for dinner this evening. No need to dress. Well, I'll leave you now."

At dinner an hour later Janet learned more of the household. There were four servants—the cook, two maids and a chauffeur. It was Lucy, the younger maid, who had met Janet at the door. She learned that Bertha, the older maid, was a housekeeper in all but title, that the cook had been with Mrs. Curtis 14 years and that the chauffeur's name was Frederick.

Mrs. Curtis talked a good deal about her daughter who was married. Janet didn't ask questions but she gathered that the daughter was now living somewhere in the East. She was an only child and obviously the idol of her mother's heart.

They went into the living room after dinner and played two-handed bridge. The game was new to Janet who had to give all her attention to her cards. Buster, the Persian cat, wandered into the room and watched the players from his post on a nearby chair.

At 9:30 Mrs. Curtis decided she had had enough of cards. Janet selected a magazine from the reading table and went to her room.

It was the first of many evenings that were to be similar. Janet in the beginning felt that her new duties were no duties at all. She soon changed her mind. It was true that there was no routine in an office. There were no long hours of dictation or typing but there were small important details—dozens of them—to be attended to.

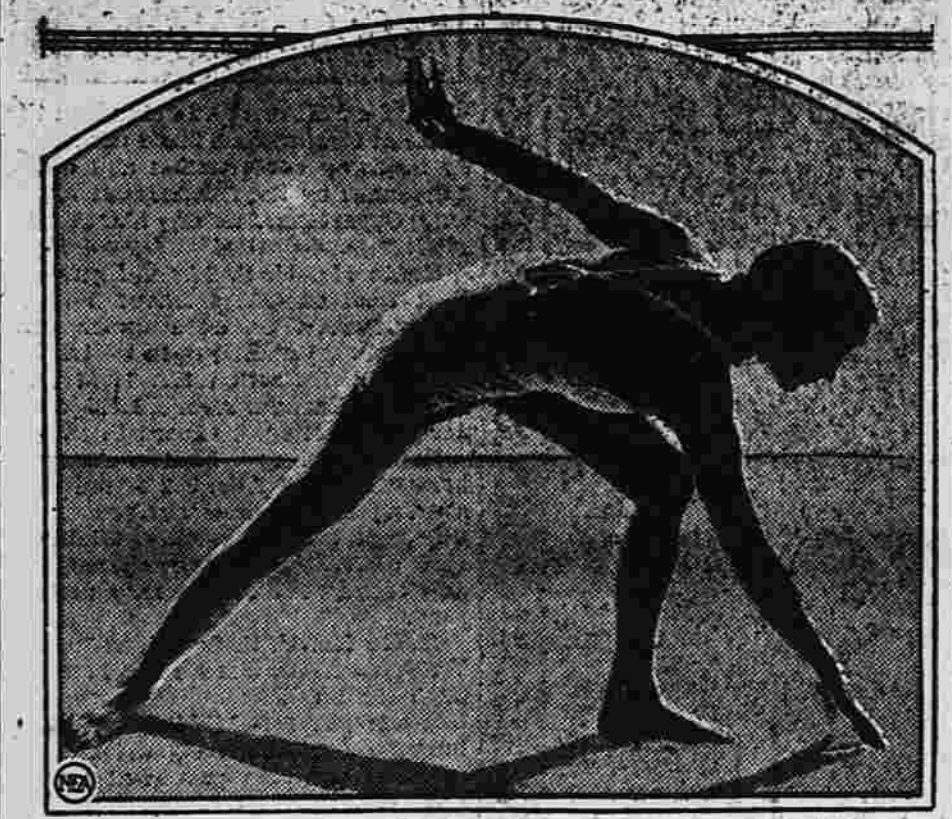

Janet was up each morning at 7:30. When Mrs. Curtis appeared at the breakfast table an hour later her letters were waiting for her. Janet was always present the daily interview with Bertha over menus and marketing. Sometimes the rest of the morning would be devoted to telephoning members of Mrs. Curtis' committee of the Wednesday club. Sometimes there were errands to do down town—difficult errands such as choosing books Mrs. Curtis would enjoy, ordering a bon voyage gift and making sure the package would reach the boat, finding out from the electric company why the venting in the kitchen didn't work as it should.

It was worrying over just such things, Mrs. Curtis said, that had given her those dreadful attacks of "nerves." It was no wonder she couldn't sleep at night. Mrs. Curtis regarded Janet as a marvel, able to solve any difficulty.

She was considerate in many ways. There were always fresh flowers in Janet's room just as there were in Mrs. Curtis'. When the car wasn't needed for any other purpose and Janet had an engaging moment Mrs. Curtis urged her to call Frederick and have him drive her where she wished to do. She took Janet with her to a luncheon at the Three Arts Club at which a well-known novelist spoke.

At first Janet tried to make her

NOW TO PULL IN THAT WAISTLINE ROLL!

Swing your right hand forward, touching the floor by your left foot.

Center your attention on your waistline, when you do your next exercise.

Stretching through your waistline is the way to pull in that extra roll you don't want.

Too many women slump when they sit down. Your waistline must be stretched up and down, not only for your spine's sake but because of the vital organs that need space for stretching too.

This exercise is excellent to open up that area lengthwise through the waistline.

Stand erect, breastbone lifted, shoulders easy, breathing deeply, with windows open. Place your feet far apart. Now stretch yourself up through the waistline, raise your arms above your head and bend forward, keeping the waistline stretched, and touch your right hand to the floor, beyond your right foot or to your left foot. If you can't reach farther.

Swing back to position, stretch again, swing your right hand forward, touching the floor by your left foot. Each time your other hand should swing out backward.

Do this 10 times. If it tires you the first day, do it just twice; then each following day, add two more stretches; then each following day, add two more stretches, until you get the 10.

Breathe deeply as you do this exercise. Don't hold your breath. After you have stretched, don't you feel more alive? You should, for this exercise gets all those little muscles through your back and waistline that are crying out to be given a chance to play but your sedentary habits prevent it.

HEALTH

MOST DANGEROUS EYE INFECTION IS AN ULCER

This is the start of a series of articles on diseases of the eye by Dr. Fishbein.

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

The most dangerous infection of the eye is the ulcer on the eyeball. This may be due to any kind of infection, but the worst forms are those due to the germ that causes pneumonia, the pneumococcus, and the one that causes gonorrhea, the gonococcus.

In both of these types there is rapid destruction of the tissue of the eyeball. If there is penetration or perforation due to such destruction, the interior of the eyeball is also infected, and then there is complete loss of vision.

There is another type of infection of the cornea or covering of the eyeball which occurs most frequently in young children who are undernourished and have frequent colds, and particularly those who have tuberculosis. In such cases there is an excessive flow of tears and a great aversion to light. This symptom is called photophobia. Because of the aversion to light, the patient is likely to keep the eyelids shut on the inflamed eye. If the eye is studied, it will be found full of little flecks or material deposited by the inflammation. Another type of inflammation of the cornea is due to the scellitis. This is a most serious condition as when it affects any other part of the body. For this reason, the physician who treats the disease treats not only the eye, but also the infection as it concerns the rest of the body.

It must be remembered that there are various ways in which germs can attack the eye. They may come in from the outside or from the inside. The same germs that cause inflammation in the joints or in the nervous system, coming from infection in the tonsils and the teeth, or the throat, may also be carried by the blood to the eye and bring about serious infection there. Under the circumstances, the mere healing of the condition in the eye is not sufficient. It is necessary to find the systemic cause responsible and to take care of that as well.

People with tuberculosis, infections of the teeth, the tonsils or the sinuses, with high blood pressure, kidney disease, or diabetes may have symptoms affecting their eyes directly related to the other diseases that have been mentioned, and the disease of the eye will not be improved by the other conditions are brought under control.

Screen Star and Marquis Return

Lovely as ever and obviously happy to be home again, Constance Bennett, popular motion picture star, is shown with her husband, the Marquis Henri de Valdes, as they returned to New York after a leisurely voyage from California to Liverpool.

Hard To Find That Hepburn Girl; She Runs Away After Every Film

Hollywood—Gone again, here she goes again—Katharine Hepburn! But only for a time is she gone again, back east, away from Hollywood, but not from the pleasant scenes of her success in films.

This slim little red-haired girl whose performance in "A Bill of Divorcement" captured the interest of Hollywood will be "here again and gone again" as long as she is in pictures, she says.

In Her Contract "It's in my contract, you know, that I may leave after each picture," she explains. "I like Hollywood and picture-acting, but I still believe it's healthy to run away regularly."

She "ran away" this time just before preview of her second picture, "Christopher Strong," and her departure was accompanied by more misgivings, she declared, than she suffered before when she left convinced that she was a film failure.

"Then I thought I was bad, but it didn't matter," she said. "Nobody expected anything. But people have said so many nice things about me that I'm sure they'll expect a lot more—so I'm proportionately less confident."

Free, vital, determined, delightful.

She was "kicked out" of "The Big Pond," "Death Takes a Holiday," "Jane Crowl's" "Art and Mrs. Bottle," and "The Animal Kingdom," in turn. Even from "The Warriors Husband," the play which made her for Hollywood, was she "kicked out"—but they called her back.

And was she crushed by the numerous slaps in the face of her ambition? Didn't it take courage to keep on trying despite rebuffs? "No," she denies gravely. "It didn't."

Well, you be the judge of that!

Women Changing-Men Standing Still, Says Fannie Hurst Predicting Equality

New York (AP)—Men have remained on the same level the last fifty years, thinks Fannie Hurst. All the changes have come to women.

Miss Hurst talked at length about women, with all the assurance that perfect grooming gives a woman.

She was curled luxuriously in the corner of a velvet divan which in its turn occupied a corner of the two-story living room of her huge apartment.

All around were the trophies of an illustrious and profitable career in letters—vast carved chairs, jeweled boxes, above her head the dimly glorious paint of a priceless early triptych. Yet, said Miss Hurst through the smoke of an especially blended cigarette:

"I've never talked with a successful business woman who thought the game worth while.

"The trouble is with the women," continued Miss Hurst, whose latest novel, "Imitation of Life," deals with a business woman. "They are still sex-conscious, and that being so, the men are made sex-conscious too. But there is no stopping this rebirth of women, however painful it may be.

"It will end in perfect equality. And it won't result in a war between race of men, or any of that sort. Why should it? And it won't dynamite the American home. Why should it?"

"The gadget age freed woman; an intelligent woman in an ordinary house can do the work and have most of the day left over. Why should she spend it waiting for her man to come home?"

"I'll go further, and say most women are rotten mothers anyway. Motherhood is not something you are born into; it's a study. A woman with a gift for something; for decoration, kid-jumping, sewer engineering, whatnot, can surely hire better care for her children than she can give them herself."

NEEDED A HOME El Paso, Tex.—Thieves steal the strangest things. It was discovered that several of them had dismantled and carried away the back porch of a vacant house. Detectives also reported that the thieves had stripped the house of all plumbing fixtures.

CHINESE STUDENT TO BE SPEAKER SUNDAY

Alfred C. T. Li Comes Here Highly Recommended As Orator and Entertainer.

Alfred C. T. Li, native of China, educated both in China and the U. S. A. will be at the Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon to lecture on the Chinese-Japanese situation. Mr. Li is a graduate of Ohio State University and N. Y. University also, having received his Ph. D. from the latter school. Mr. Li holds the honor of having been elected Penfield Fellow in Diplomacy at New York University. He is also a member of Phi Beta Kappa. He will speak at 8:30 Sunday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. under the auspices of the two North Main street churches and the Y. Prof. Henry R. Spencer of the Ohio State University says that he has rarely found the equal of Mr. Li. The Y. M. C. A. of New York City states that Mr. Li is a born orator, witty and humorous in giving facts. W. B. Horner, principal, Washington High school, Washington, Pa., says that Mr. Li's lecture was one of the best they have had in years. A silver offering at the door will let any one in. This is not a money making scheme but to get the facts from one who has recently been in China and is one of them.

"AND MARY DID" TO BE PRESENTED TONIGHT

All is in readiness for the presentation of "And Mary Did," a comedy in three acts, by the Epworth League of the South Methodist church at 8 o'clock tonight. The play will be given in the banquet hall of the church and the advance ticket sale indicates that a good attendance is assured.

The leading roles are taken by Miss Helen Gardner and Fred Milford. Others in the cast include Marjorie Wilson, Bertrice Harrison, Tom Coynder, Ann Lutzon, Walter Holman, Grace Legg, Virginia Loomis, Ethel Brookings and James Lewis. Miss Florence Scheldge is coaching the production.

PROTEST PRESENTED

Washington, March 24.—(AP)—Representative Koppelman, (D., Conn.), placed before Congress today a protest on Jews in Germany. "The conscience of the whole civilized world has been shocked," said Koppelman in a statement accompanying the resolution. "A wave of sympathy for the plight of Israel in Germany is sweeping across this country."

LATEST STOCKS

New York, March 24.—(AP)—The Stock Market was a waiting affair today, with prices backing and filling in desultory trading, with an irregularly downward trend.

The sweeping improvement shown in the Federal Reserve statements had been anticipated, and indications in mercantile reviews of some further pickup in wholesale trade were inadequate to generate new enthusiasm. Wall street seemed more interested in the progress of farm relief legislation than in anything else, although European developments still commanded much attention.

Scattered selling carried a number of issues temporarily off a point or two, including American Telephone, Case, U. S. Steel, American Can and Allied Chemical, although these losses were reduced and in some instances cancelled by early afternoon. Ralls fluctuated uncertainly, but in the main showed a fairly good tone. Union Pacific, rose more than a point, lost its gain, and again pushed up more than a point. Wood stocks, some of the merchandising issues, wet shares and New York tractions, had intervals of firmness. The tractions have been helped by latest unification steps.

The weekly review of Dun and Bradstreet said a real spurt had started in wholesale buying, in preparation for Easter trade, but in discussing general business, said "already hesitation has appeared in some divisions because of pending farm legislation, the lack of sustained price advances in agricultural products, and the delay in reopening small banks throughout the country."

Most Wall street analysts agree that most steps taken thus far by the new administration, such as weeding out the weak banks, and reducing expenditures, have been deflationary, and they are awaiting "inflationary" or "reflationary" moves to offset the effects of these steps. The proposed farm legislation has been interpreted by some as potentially inflationary, with much depending upon its administration. With the measure apparently in for an overhauling in the Senate, and so extremely broad in its original provisions, however, there was little inclination here to try to foresee developments in this direction. In the meantime, the textile trade found the uncertainty over the price outlook for raw staples troublesome.

International banking quarters were inclined in the main, to take a hopeful view of the Central European situation. One international banking house received a cable from what it described as a very trustworthy source in Berlin saying that the immediate policy of

Dr. Schacht, new Reichsbank president, would be more liberal in expanding credit internally. No change was foreseen in the policy of service on external dollar bonds, although it was pointed out that should the recent shrinkage of export surplus continue, the transfer problem would become severe.

BRIDGEFORD DIVORCE

Bridgeport, March 24.—(AP)—Elizabeth William Dairymple of Stamford today filed a divorce action here against Beatrice Dairymple Dairymple of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., alleging desertion. Mary Wisniet of New York and Frederick D. Wisniet of the same place for a divorce, alleging cruelty and desertion. Helen Mary Deppal of Stamford and Charles N. Deppal of Syracuse, N. Y., alleging intemperance, cruelty and desertion.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS TO MEET IN MERIDEN

State Convention To Be Held In Silver City Beginning Sunday, May 7.

The annual convention of state organizations of the Knights of Columbus will be held in Meriden. On Sunday, May 7, there will be a special mass celebrated and a class of about 100 will receive the third degree. This will be opened at three o'clock in the afternoon and will be in charge of District Deputy Charles Lewis of West Haven.

The cost of Pillsbury's Best in the average recipe is about a third of a cent more than that of cheap flour. If you use the cheap flour you may save a third of a cent, but you take a chance of losing the cost of the whole recipe. One spoiled baking may cost more than you would save on the whole sack of cheap flour.

Remember, flour is by far the cheapest food you can buy. It's wiser to do your economizing on more expensive things, where the saving really amounts to something—and where you don't take such a chance of real loss in the long run.

ECONOMY BILL HITS SPANISH WAR VETS

Only Those Permanently Disabled Will Continue To Get Pensions.

Approximately three-fourths of the Spanish-American War veterans of this town will be affected by provisions of the President's Economy Bill which was recently enacted into law by Congress. So far as is known, only eight veterans of the Spanish-American War are living here over the statutory age limitation of 62 years. According to the provisions of the act, all those not permanently disabled in action in the Spanish-American War, the Philippine Insurrection and the Boxer Rebellion will lose their pension.

The widow, child or children, dependent mother or father of any person who dies as a result of disease of injury incurred or aggravated in line of duty in active military or naval service will be protected under the new act as will the widow or child of any deceased person who served in active military or naval service during the Spanish-American War, including the Boxer Rebellion and the Philippine Insurrection.

The average pension paid by the government to the 40 Manchester veterans of the Spanish-American War is $25, although several local veterans are receiving $12 a month. It is not definitely known how many local World War veterans are receiving disability allowances or compensation from the government. The act does away with the two terms "disability allowance" and "compensation" upon its enactment. The provisions of the act will not be placed in effect until July 1, 1933.

lyn, heard and decoded messages from ship to shore, from shore to ship. Then he set to work to find where the shore station operated, by triangulation, he discovered the station was operating in the vicinity of Atlantic Highlands. The station finally was found to be at the home of Malcolm MacMasters, 33 Shrewsbury avenue, Middletown Township, and not far from the Hammamstein place.

This was in 1929. In October of the same year, government agents raided the Hammamstein place, found to be a veritable arsenal and rounded up many of the men allegedly involved in the $2,000,000 rum ring. Fifty-one men were indicted, and 39 appeared for trial.

Intercepted Messages
Redfern testified he had intercepted messages, hundreds of them, from the shore station to the ships Lucky Strike and Shawnee, giving directions on the landing of liquor. But the defense, through Frederic M. P. Pearce as counsel for Lillien, showed that Redfern had filled in the messages in some blank spots, with information given him by the Coast Guard. His testimony was to be taken with a high degree of caution by the jury, Federal Judge J. Lyles Glenn of South Carolina said.

Also, no search warrant had been obtained for the radio station raid. Of this, the Court said, "I cannot see why the arresting officers did not get a search warrant. Any United States commissioner would have given one. The showing of messages, as revealed in this trial, would have been sufficient. I can't for the life of me see why none was obtained."

United States District Attorney Phillip Forman, now a Federal judge, said he believed Redfern's testimony was admissible because the seizure of the station and MacMasters' arrest were simultaneous. For more than three weeks, a parade of 125 witnesses took the stand. Before the close of the trial, 16 of the defendants were ordered acquitted by Judge Glenn. On July 11 the last was freed after the jury had deliberated seven hours.

HOSPITAL NOTES

Frederick Lileb of 24 Madison street was admitted and Percy West of Wapping, Mary Pike of Coventry, Mrs. Teresa Hughes of 27 East Middle Turnpike were discharged yesterday.

Miss Gemma McLoughlin of 92 East Middle Turnpike and Mrs. Anna Pallein of 223 Spruce street were admitted and Daniel August of 31 North Elm street, Lois Patterson of 34 1/2 North Main street and Mrs. Joseph Handley of 217 North Elm street were discharged today.

FIRE WARNING

New Haven, March 24.—(AP)—A warning against endangering state forests by fire went today from the Connecticut Forest and Park Association. R. M. Ross the secretary said the fire permit law is now in effect. It provides no person shall build a fire in the open without a permit. A recent report of state forester Hawes showed there were 678 forest fires in April and May of last year. These fires swept over 8,850 acres of land.

TEACHERS GET PART OF PAY BY CASH

Not To Give Salaries By Check Until Manchester Trust Co. Is Opened.

A small cash payment was made today to each of the employees of the public schools of Manchester. They will not receive their checks until such time as the Manchester Trust Company is open and money is available to cash the checks.

Supt. F. A. Verplanck is still holding the checks which became due March 10. Today another pay check was due and in an effort to help the teachers and other school employees "get by" until such time as the checks may be cashed, Town Treasurer G. H. Waddell furnished enough cash to pay each employee a small amount.

FIREMEN TO HEAR DETECTIVE HICKEY

To Tell Local Group About Taking Fingerprints — To Meet In Nathan Hale School.

Although firemen were kept on the alert the greater part of last night because of local fires, it did not hinder preparations for the get-together planned for tonight, when the South Manchester Fire Department will be host to the members of the Manchester Fire Department and the officers of several other companies in this vicinity.

County Detective Edward Hickey will be the speaker. His talk will be illustrated with slides and moving pictures. The get-together will be held in the Nathan Hale school and the social session will adjourn to Hose Company No. 3's headquarters across the street.

Marriage License
Antonio Muscillo, 62, and Frances Makuliska, 65, both of this town, applied for a marriage license in the town clerk's office yesterday afternoon. In their application Muscillo and Mrs. Makuliska declared that each had been married twice before, the former having been divorced from his former wife.

FEDERAL CONTROL OF LABOR NEEDED

Horace B. Cheney Favors Limiting Work Week To 30 Hours In Industry.

Endorsement of Federal legislation forbidding the employment of any person in industry more than 30 hours a week during the present existing emergency has been endorsed by the board of managers of the Silk Association of America, Inc., upon the recommendation of Horace B. Cheney of Manchester who is chairman of the legislative committee of the association.

Would Mean Amendment
In commenting upon the matter today in his office at Cheney Brothers, Mr. Cheney said he felt that state control of the labor laws is unsound and that such control should come under Federal supervision. Such an enactment so far as permanency is concerned, would require an amendment to the United States Constitution inasmuch as the states have not given the Federal government the right to control the labor situation.

Twice Congress has tried to assume this control, Mr. Cheney said, but each time it was unsuccessful, the Supreme Court of the United States ruling that such an enactment is unconstitutional. However, regardless of whether or not it is constitutional, Mr. Cheney declares, temporary Federal control during the emergency period is vitally necessary.

Would Increase Work
Passage of such legislation is being urged in the interest of increasing employment and alleviating present conditions. Mr. Cheney and the Silk Association of America as well, feel that the shorter working week affords the only solution to the present unemployment situation. It is claimed that such a measure would restore the idle to work, would raise the morale of those who have been obliged to accept relief and also would decrease the burden on industry.

The resolution points out that widespread suffering and distress

"exist throughout the nation by reason of the fact that there are 10,700,000 unemployed, about 25 per cent of those gainfully employed in normal times" and that "the ordinary dictates of humanity and social justice require that all available employment should be more widely distributed so as to avoid suffering among those now unemployed."

Six Hours a Day
In the event that Congress passes a law limiting the working hours of an individual to thirty, plants may employ several shifts of six hours each depending on the amount of work on hand. The maximum that one person can work will be five days a week and six hours a day, making the 30 hour total. Due to operating far below maximum ability, Cheney Brothers would be able to conform with this requirement without any drastic changes, Mr. Cheney stated.

Cheney Brothers also went on record yesterday as conditionally approving a bill limiting the working hours of women in Connecticut to 48 hours a week. Speaking for Cheney Brothers, Howell Cheney offered an amendment to the bill in a hearing before the Legislature's Labor Committee in the State Capitol at Hartford. As originally drawn, and supported by the Connecticut Federation of Labor, the bill included a clause providing for appeal to the governor for extension of hours when the manufacturer believes it necessary. The governor would grant such an order if the Labor Commission after an investigation found it was desirable and the order would not be effective for more than eight weeks in any one year. When the bill was first presented, all manufacturers except Cheney Brothers disapproved because they claimed it would make it impossible to meet orders for quick or seasonal delivery.

Mr. Cheney proposed instead the organization of a board of industry to whom all requests for extension of the hours would go, to issue a permit for a period not to exceed 60 days, after a report from the Labor Commissioner. "If the committee could see its way to adopting that principle," Mr. Cheney stated, "we could approve the eight hour day and 48 hour week." At present women may be employed not more than 10 hours a day, not later than 10 o'clock at night and not more than 55 hours a week.

ATTORNEY GENERAL GIVES HIS FIRST INTERVIEW

Old Reporters Cannot Remember When News Was Given Out So Freely.

Washington, March 24.—(AP)—The attorney general of the Roosevelt administration—like his chief—today was accepted by newspapermen as something of a precedent setter, so far as being interviewed is concerned.

After nearly a month of strict seclusion Homer S. Cummings held his first press conference yesterday and the old timers couldn't recall when news had poured so openly from the legal adviser to a President.

Obviously weighing his words carefully, the tall, distinguished appearing man sat behind his heavy mahogany desk and answered questions after question. When they ran down he chided the group about him and injected a statement or two of his own.

Banking, prohibition, beer, changes in department personnel, even the question of whether he would remain in his post or be sent to the Philippines as governor general, were injected into the discussion and it was only the last inquiry that he laughed off without answering.

Many who travel in administration circles believe now, however, that Cummings will remain where he is, but no direct suggestion has been given of President Roosevelt's intention.

POSTURE IS IMPORTANT
AID TO GOOD HEALTH

Defects in Posture May Lead to Serious Afflictions, Says Bulletin of Health Department.

One of the common defects found at the Summer Round-ups, at which children about to enter school for the first time receive thorough physical examinations and at which child conference examinations in faulty posture, the State Department of Health announced today in its weekly bulletin.

Even at such an early age, among pre-school children this defect appears in surprisingly large numbers due for the most part to incorrect habits of sitting or standing or during play.

Poor posture, the exact opposite of the above, is more often the rule, surveys taken both among children and adults have shown. The head is often marked forward, chest depressed, abdomen completely relaxed and protuberant, and back curves extremely exaggerated.

Left uncorrected, poor posture will undoubtedly affect lung capacity and so circulation and normal heart action, with crowding of abdominal and pelvic organs through lack of abdominal muscular support.

That the subject of proper posture is receiving increasing attention is shown by the demands in this State for the motion picture film "Posture," which gives a splendid picture of the problems involved. The film is available for groups on request to the State Department of Health.

A CORRECTION

Hartford, March 24.—(AP)—The Supreme Court opinion March 23 in the case of the Home Trust Company, trustee of the estate of Moses Wheeler vs. Bernard N. Bennett et al, in which advice had been asked by Judge Carl Foster as to disposition of trust funds, did not apply to the Home Bank and Trust Company of Darien. That institution was not and never had been trustee and the case was unknown to it.

The Associated Press in reporting opinions handed down gave this case as the Home Trust Company (Darien). The text of the opinion did not fit the place the trustee.

BRIDGEPORT SEES 35 MILL TAX RATE

Assembly Adjourns Without Taking Further Action On Refunding Bill.

Hartford, March 24.—(AP)—A tax rate of about 35 mills was expected in Bridgeport as a result of the adjournment today of the General Assembly without taking further action on a bill to permit that city to issue $1,600,000 in refunding bonds.

The time for setting the tax rate, repeatedly extended as the General Assembly struggled with the problem of that city's finances, ends tomorrow. City officials hoped the enactment of the bond bill, which was tied up by disagreement on a clause giving the board of apportionment and taxation broad powers to cut salaries and effect economies would make it possible to set a tax rate five or six mills lower.

As proposed, the bill included a clause extending the time for making up the rate book to April 22. With its defeat, no legislation has been enacted making it possible to delay the rate book beyond April 1, heretofore the legal date.

The bill with the clause extending the powers of the board of apportionment and taxation was reported Tuesday by the finance committee after having been approved by Tax Commissioner William H. Blodgett and Republican leaders. Senator Goldstein of Bridgeport, supported by the Democrats, succeeded in having the Senate adopt an amendment striking out the clauses giving such powers to the board.

In the House the bill was adopted as reported, and conferees were reported in each House.

Senator Goldstein, the Senate conferee, remarked today, when asked about committee that "there was no conference" but he was seen talking with the Representative of the House yesterday. Town Chairman Joseph J. Devine of Bridgeport said the conference attempt at compromise failed when the Republicans from the House refused to grant any concessions. It had been reliably reported the conferees might compromise by giving the mayor a veto power over the acts of the board of apportionment.

TRAPPED IN BATHROOM

Middletown, March 24.—(AP)—Mrs. Frank E. Abel of Glynn avenue, swooned in her bathroom today and falling, blocked the door. Her maid sent for the fire department and two ladder trucks responded. A ladder man went into the room through the unlocked window and moved Mrs. Abel so she could be cared for. Her fainting spell, the doctor said, would have no serious results.

FLIER DESCRIBES METEOR'S FLIGHT

Flaming Mass Crosses Path of Mail Pilot But 50 Miles Away.

Kansas City, March 24.—(AP)—The flash of a brilliant meteor across the Texas-New Mexico skies this morning was described today by Bill Coyle, air mail pilot, of the Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., as it appeared to him from what he termed "a ringlike seat 9,500 feet above the earth."

"It was the most spectacular sight I ever have witnessed," he said on his arrival here. "The meteor appeared out of the northeast traveling west by southwest. It was 5:10 a. m. Mountain Time, and I was over Adrian, Texas, 45 miles west of Amarillo.

"It first gave the appearance of a large flood light being turned on in the sky. In a second or so it grew too bright for me. We were at about the same altitude. In a moment I caught sight of its tail and could tell that it was going north of me.

"Its line of flight was probably 40 or 50 miles distant. At any rate it was so close, I could see fiery fragments of the meteor whirling away from it and dropping back into the tail.

"Before it struck or disintegrated the meteor had lost altitude and I was looking down on its long, horizontal trail.

"It appeared to be about the size of our Wichita bomber and shaped like a ball. It left a deep red trail with a bluish tint which hung in the sky until obliterated by daylight.

"Besides the pieces which appeared to explode into the tail, others exploded from the main mass and dropped to the ground, so it was impossible to tell whether the meteor gradually disintegrated or struck the ground.

"However, it faded from my view in what appeared to be the vicinity of Tucuman, N. M.

"I noticed that an extremely bright, fiery thread extended backward from the main mass before it spread out into the gaseous brilliantly shaded tail which may have been between 50 and 100 miles long."

12 STATES ARRANGE FOR DRY PARLEYS

By Associated Press

Twelve states already have arranged conventions to act on the question of repeal of the 18th amendment and legislation for such conventions is pending in 26 states.

Thirty-six of the 48 states must ratify the 21st amendment—providing for repeal of the 18th Amendment—before liquor again may be sold legally in the country.

The 12 states with conventions already provided for are Arizona, Idaho, Indiana, Michigan, Montana, New Jersey, Oregon, Utah, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin, and Wyoming.

Two of these already have set convention dates, Wisconsin, April 26 and Wyoming, May 26.

The states in which legislation is pending are: Alabama, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Florida, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana, Maryland, Massachusetts, Missouri, New Hampshire, Nevada, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Vermont.

A bill providing for a convention died in the Georgia Legislature. The other states as yet have taken no action.

What must you eat to have beautiful teeth?

Read what Mrs. Edna Riggs Crabtree had to say on this vital subject at the Manchester Herald
Cooking School

"REAL BEAUTY is impossible without good teeth. No matter how attractive you may be otherwise, the picture is spoiled by faulty teeth. Good teeth depend upon what you eat. There's no guesswork about it. Science has found that teeth, as well as the body frame, must be nourished—exactly the same as muscles, ligaments or vital organs."

Three vital food elements provide this nourishment. Two are plentiful—phosphorus and calcium—which you get in many foods. The third is extremely scarce. That's the sunshine vitamin-D, now so richly supplied by Bond Bread.

FIVE FARM BUILDINGS BURNED IN ENFIELD

Enfield, March 24.—(AP)—Five farm buildings owned by Stephen C. Bouchy on land that was formerly the South Family land of the Enfield 600 feet settlement were burned today. The loss was given by the owner at between $15,000 and $20,000.

The fire started in a stock barn 75 feet square and spread to a smaller barn and three sheds all in the 600 foot settlement. Tobacco was removed from the sheds yesterday.

With the barns went three horses, two pigs, ten tons of hay and farming implements.

The buildings formed one of the largest groups on any farm in Enfield. They were sold by the Shakers 20 years ago.

RIVER FALLING

Hartford, March 24.—(AP)—The rise of the Connecticut river, which has been increasing steadily for the past week, has been halted. Records of the weather bureau indicated it had fallen three-tenths of a foot since midnight and is now seven and one-tenth higher than normal.

Week-end rains are liable to cause it to rise again before the spring freshets arrive on the annual flow from the breakup of ice locked rivers and streams in the north.

ALMOST AN ENGLISHMAN

Napoleon narrowly missed being born an Englishman. England and France had been wrangling about possession of Corsica for several years, and it was just a few months before Napoleon's birth, in 1769, that the controversy was settled in favor of France.

Yesterday's market showed a somewhat better tendency on the upside although the volume was considerably less than previous days.

The last five days preceding yesterday have recorded losses in the market. Investors are pessimistic about the bottom of this reaction and should see better prices in the very near future.

A REAL SURPRISE.

A patient rang the bell of a doctor. The doctor's wife opened the door. "Can I see the doctor?" asked the patient.

"Could you come tomorrow night?" asked the wife. "Is he that busy?" inquired the patient.

THE LIQUOR QUESTION

It is just the opposite. Everything was on the bum now, but everything is on the bum now, very much doubt if I could borrow $1,000 on first mortgage from any bank in the state.

But, to get back to beer and light wines. Do not make the license fee so high that there will be no business. Give the hotels and restaurants a show, and especially the smaller hotels and restaurants.

In the discussion concerning liquor control, which is uppermost just now, we hear about licensing hotels. That's a wise move, but it strikes me common sense should apply here, or horse sense, as an old-time farmer might say.

As an example of how hard hit the hotel business is, may I be permitted to call attention to a small hotel, which I have owned for several years.

more cream if the mixture seems too heavy. This dressing, which is good over a salad of water cross and lettuce, the piquancy of the water cross seeming to blend well with the cheese flavor.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

(How Dust is Eliminated from Lungs.) Question: "Inquisitive" writes: "I have always been rather curious to know and understand just how the lungs eliminate the dust and other impurities that are carried into the body through breathing and have taken the opportunity to ask you."

Answer: Dust which is soluble is usually absorbed and carried away by the lymphatic vessels. Other particles of dust are caught by the mucus and gradually propelled by small hair-like cells until eliminated in the form of sputum from the bronchial tubes.

Question: W. asks: "Will kidney stones cause pains in the back of the neck and head?" Answer: The presence of kidney stones should have no effect on producing pains in the back of the head unless the stones have descended into the bladder.

Question: Jack S. writes: "Please tell me what causes my mouth, gums and tongue to bleed when I eat apples. Also, when eating grapes, is it necessary to take out the seeds? I always swallow them and have no bad effects."

Answer: You are undoubtedly suffering from pyorrhea or trench mouth and should see your dentist at once and have this condition corrected through local treatment. I advise using the entire grape, seeds and all, as this makes good roughage for the intestines.

(Bleeding Gums) Question: Mrs. Frieda MacF. writes: "I am interested in the subject of squabs and would like to know their food value. There is a big demand for them in other sections of the country, but down here they do not seem to be in demand."

Answer: You must be good eating as they are so often recommended for a sick person. Any information you can give me on this subject will be appreciated.

(Squabs Add Variety To Meals) Question: Mrs. Frieda MacF. writes: "I am interested in the subject of squabs and would like to know their food value. There is a big demand for them in other sections of the country, but down here they do not seem to be in demand."

Answer: You must be good eating as they are so often recommended for a sick person. Any information you can give me on this subject will be appreciated.

(Roasted Barley Water) Question: G. B. asks: "With the diet that you recommend could I drink water from roasted barley that I use as a substitute for coffee?"

Answer: The only drink I recommend with meals is plain water, but the water from roasted barley would be quite harmless if you do not use sugar and cream with it.

TRUCK IS HOBBER

New York, March 24.—(AP)—William Martin of West Haven, Conn., a driver for the Seaboard Freight line company reported to police today his truck containing $9,000 worth of cold cream was stolen today by three men who held him up at First avenue and 80th street.

One man, Martin said, got on the truck and he was forced to enter sedan and lie on the floor. He said he was driven around for more than two hours and then pushed from the sedan in Nassau Boulevard, Queens. The empty truck was found later at 12th avenue and 23rd street.

THE TINY MITE

real fun. The frog replied, "Gee, all I've done is jump around from here to there and then right back to here."

"I've lived beneath a lily pad. To you that may sound rather sad, but really it is lovely 'cause there's not a thing to fear."

"And now, if you will get three sticks, I'll show you lads some clever tricks. I am a real high jumper, which I'm going to prove to you."

"Hold two sticks high. The other one should stretch across. Then for some fun." The Times rumbled and found the sticks, which they were glad to do.

SENSE AND NONSENSE

Jasper Tightwad of Brushville has a scheme to aid unemployed people and has written his Congressman about it. Jasper would have the government own all the picture shows and admit everybody free, just as they do in postoffice lobbies.

Manager—A customer has made a complaint that the coffee tastes like mud.

Cook (facetiously)—Tell him it was ground this morning.

A man can get married on $10 a week, but if he stays married he has to get more than that.

Teacher—Does the giraffe get a sore throat if he gets wet feet?

Pupil—Yes, but not until next week.

"It is mighty easy to be an optimist when everything is going your way."

Cure For Seasickness: A plan you might try is to bolt down your meals.

"I want a job so bad," "that I would be willing to take a job of feeding raw meat to a man-eating tiger."

Clay Mudd, editor of the Brushville Eagle received from a lady who lives in Peas Ridge, a little poem entitled: "I Wonder if You Miss Me?" After reading it, Mr. Mudd returned the poem to the lady, with the following note: "Dear Madam: If he does, he ought never to be trusted with firearms again."

The world will never get any better, until children become quite an improvement over their parents.

Hunter (as he came panting up to one of the party)—Just met a great big bear in the woods!

Other Hunter—Good! Did you give him both barrels?

Hunter (wiping his perspiring brow)—Both barrels! I gave him the whole gun!

Windy Wolf—Did you ever taste moonshine whiskey?

Ragson Tatters—Certainly not. Anybody who can't swallow fast enough to keep from tasting it has no business trying to drink it.

Ever notice that the fellow who sits in the back seat at church usually lands in a front seat at the show?

Boy O Boy: If we could only go back to 1928, but shucks, we would probably do the same thing right over again.

Gladya (indignantly)—Smoke a cigarette! Good gracious, I'd rather kiss the first man who came along!

Edith—So would I, but have one while you're waiting.

Loose Change—It is about as hard to drag an old fellow out at night as it is to keep a young fellow in—Remember the robin, he sings in the rain—The only thing that travels faster than light to a woman's mind, is a run in her new chiffon hose—Some men cook their geese by getting stewed—Call it trail marriage, just as, if there were any other kind—Asked what he did when his wife started in to give him a lecture, the man said: "I listen"—Arguments make few friends—The man who comes home whipped at night is usually the man who went out whipped in the morning—Fools rush in where wise girls fear to wed—The more a man really knows, the less certain he is that he really knows anything.

Ye Shall Know the Truth And the Truth Shall Make You Uncomfortable.

We seldom go into a store where the proprietor is constantly indignant about one thing or another. We say this without comment.

THE USUAL HOUR.

Brown: Do you work long hours?
White: No, only the regulation length—sixty minutes each—Answers.

LUCK—BUT BAD.

First Tramp: Had any luck today, pal?
Second Ditto: No, just a couple of handouts and an offer of work—Pathfinder.

SEEKS $10,000 DAMAGES FOR ACCIDENT INJURIES
 Frank Fazzini Brings Suit Against Laundry and Truck Driver For Hartford Crash.

Seeking damages of $10,000, Frank Fazzini, 42 Oak street, manager of the Manchester Macaroni factory, has started suit against Kap/Schoch of Hartford and the Sunshine Laundry Company, also of Hartford, as a result of an accident on January 18, last.

Fazzini is represented by Attorney George C. Loomer of this town and Attorney Francis P. Pallotti of Hartford.

According to the writ, Fazzini was driving a Reo truck east on Capitol avenue, Hartford, and Schoch was driving a Chevrolet truck south on Eugene street. At the intersection, Fazzini had the right of way, the stop light being green, according to the complaint, and proceeded onward. Schoch also kept going and collided with the Reo, turning the machine over on its side. Fazzini was hurled to the ground and seriously injured, he states.

Shock and nervousness. He claims he will be incapacitated indefinitely, and charges Schoch with negligence and carelessness in failure to grant right of way. Schoch is a driver for the Sunshine Laundry Company, which is mentioned in the writ as co-defendant.

Y. M. C. A. Notes

We predicted yesterday that the Buckland smaller boys, if they were anything like the old groups that had been coming here, would give our Middlets a good game and the prediction came out true. They were able to win two games in succession defeating the Hawks by an easy margin and then turning around and doing the same to the Polish Chicks, 14 to 7.

The Cub's hour has been changed from Fridays to Thursdays from five to six o'clock. The Business Men are urged not to forget that their volley ball hours now include Friday from 8:15 to 8:45. If you cannot come today make it Monday at the same hour. Tonight from 6:30 to 7:30 the Orion's are scheduled to play a game with a visiting team which they have invited over.

At eight o'clock the first of the final series of three games between the Marx Blues and the North Ends will be played. This will be a real game and no doubt will create a great deal of enthusiasm. The Eagles will have the floor as soon as this game is over. Tomorrow the regular Saturday program that we have been having before the tournament games came along will be in vogue again.

The regular monthly meeting of the Army and Navy Club will be held tomorrow night. Following the business meeting an oyster stew will be served.
