

TODD SEEN ALIVE ON LAST FRIDAY

While Police Were Searching for Him He Was in New Haven Store, Two Clerks Testify.

Norwalk, April 20.—(AP)—How Arthur Todd could come from New Haven on last Friday and get into his house to change his clothes, while he was the object of a search by the authorities and members of his family, is just one more question added to the confusing maze of theories which shroud the drowning of Arthur Todd in mystery.

Todd, whose body was found in Long Island Sound last Saturday, was positively identified by two New Haven store clerks as being in New Haven Friday. His son, Kenneth Stanley Todd was at the Bell Island home on Friday morning looking for his father and later in the day the police were called into the search. When the body was found, it was clad in overalls and Todd was dressed differently when he was supposed to have been seen in New Haven.

Police in House Neighbors say that Todd could not have come to the island on Friday, entered his house, walked the several hundred yards to the spot where his body was found, without being seen. The police were at the house Friday night and he certainly could not have got by them.

Coroner John J. Phelan today received a report on the death from Medical Examiner William H. McMahon of Norwalk. The report states that death was due to drowning and that the cause was either suicidal, accidental or homicidal. A question mark follows the date of death, April 18. Coroner Phelan said he would hold an inquest "if and when developments warrant."

Meanwhile a report from H. T. Leavenworth, state toxicologist, who is examining the contents of the dead man's stomach to determine if he was drugged or poisoned, is awaited momentarily. State Police Lieutenant Leo Carroll has not divulged a report on the fingerprints which were taken from various articles in Todd's house.

TODD'S WILL FILED New Haven, April 20.—(AP)—The will of Arthur J. Todd, mysteriously drowned in Long Island Sound off Bell Island, Norwalk, leaves all property except two small bequests, to his son, K. Stanley Todd.

The only property mentioned in the will filed yesterday in Probate Court, is real estate in Orange valued at $4500. No estimate of the 70 year old man's personal property was made, pending a search for safe deposit vaults in New Haven banks.

Todd's only son, executor of the estate, was accompanied to the court by his wife, Anna Gertrude Todd, her father, Pasquale O. Gaudio, Lieutenant Leo S. Carroll of the Ridgefield state police barracks, in charge of the investigation into

TRADE KEEPS UP, REVIEW REPORTS

Merchants Cheerful Regarding Future; Peak Expected Late in May.

New York, April 20.—(AP)—The maintenance of steady consumer demand thus far this year, said the weekly Dun and Bradstreet trade review today, has had an increasingly stabilizing effect on all basic trades, and merchants generally are taking the most cheerful attitude regarding the future that has been in evidence in three or four years.

With spring temperatures yet to appear, asserted the review, "it now seems certain that the peak of the season's buying will not be reached until the latter part of May, with much of it to be carried over into June.

Retail Sales Good "Retail sales in nearly all lines are reported as the best for any spring season in three years, with gains averaging from 20 to 40 per cent over the totals of last April. Unfavorable weather conditions had a retarding influence on the sales of women's coats, suits and millinery, but the movement of men's clothing and furnishings was enlarged, while demand for shoes, furniture, rugs, housewares, hardware, paints, farm implements and automobiles more than offset any slack that appeared in the apparel divisions.

Wholesale Markets "The wholesale markets became more active this week with orders for summer goods taking precedence over the all-in requirements of spring merchandise, and fall needs beginning to press for attention. Summer buying budgets have been set about 20 to 30 per cent from those of a year ago."

BANKHEAD BILL SIGNED; CURBS COTTON CROPS

Sec. Wallace Objected to Measure; Act Restricts Sale to 10 Million Bales During Next Year.

Washington, April 20.—(AP)—The signing of the Bankhead cotton bill by President Roosevelt today signalled an Administration step along what Secretary Wallace himself terms the "abhorrent" path of compulsory control of farm production.

Written by Bankhead brothers, Alabama Democrats in the Senate and House, in response to demands from a large group of southern cotton farmers, and passed despite often-repeated objections by Wallace, Administrator Chester C. Davis, and Oscar Johnston, cotton sales to 10,000,000 bales in 1934.

Many expect it to be tested immediately in the courts. Large cotton operators in Arkansas and Texas already have said they will seek injunctions to prevent enforcement of its provisions by Secretary Wallace.

Expect Legal Tests Charges of unconstitutionality probably will center the legal tests. During the Congressional debate the measure frequently was attacked on that ground. Backers sought to draft its taxation section in such a way as to assure its being upheld by the courts.

One argument raised has been that the 1934 cotton crop is now in the ground and many planters already have contracts on the futures market to deliver a specified number of bales next fall. Some will question whether such legislation can interfere with contract obligations.

With the voluntary sign-up campaign now completed, the Administration has obtained 954,766 contracts from producers who have agreed to rent 15,353,646 acres to the government, bringing the base

PRONOUNCED DEAD, WOMAN IS ALIVE

Attendants at Morgue Are Frightened — "Corpse" Asks for a Drink.

Mexico, D. F., April 20.—(AP)—Margarita Hernandez Bernal stabbed herself and jumped from a hotel window.

They picked her up, pronounced her dead. Yesterday, morticians tolled among the corpses in a morgue.

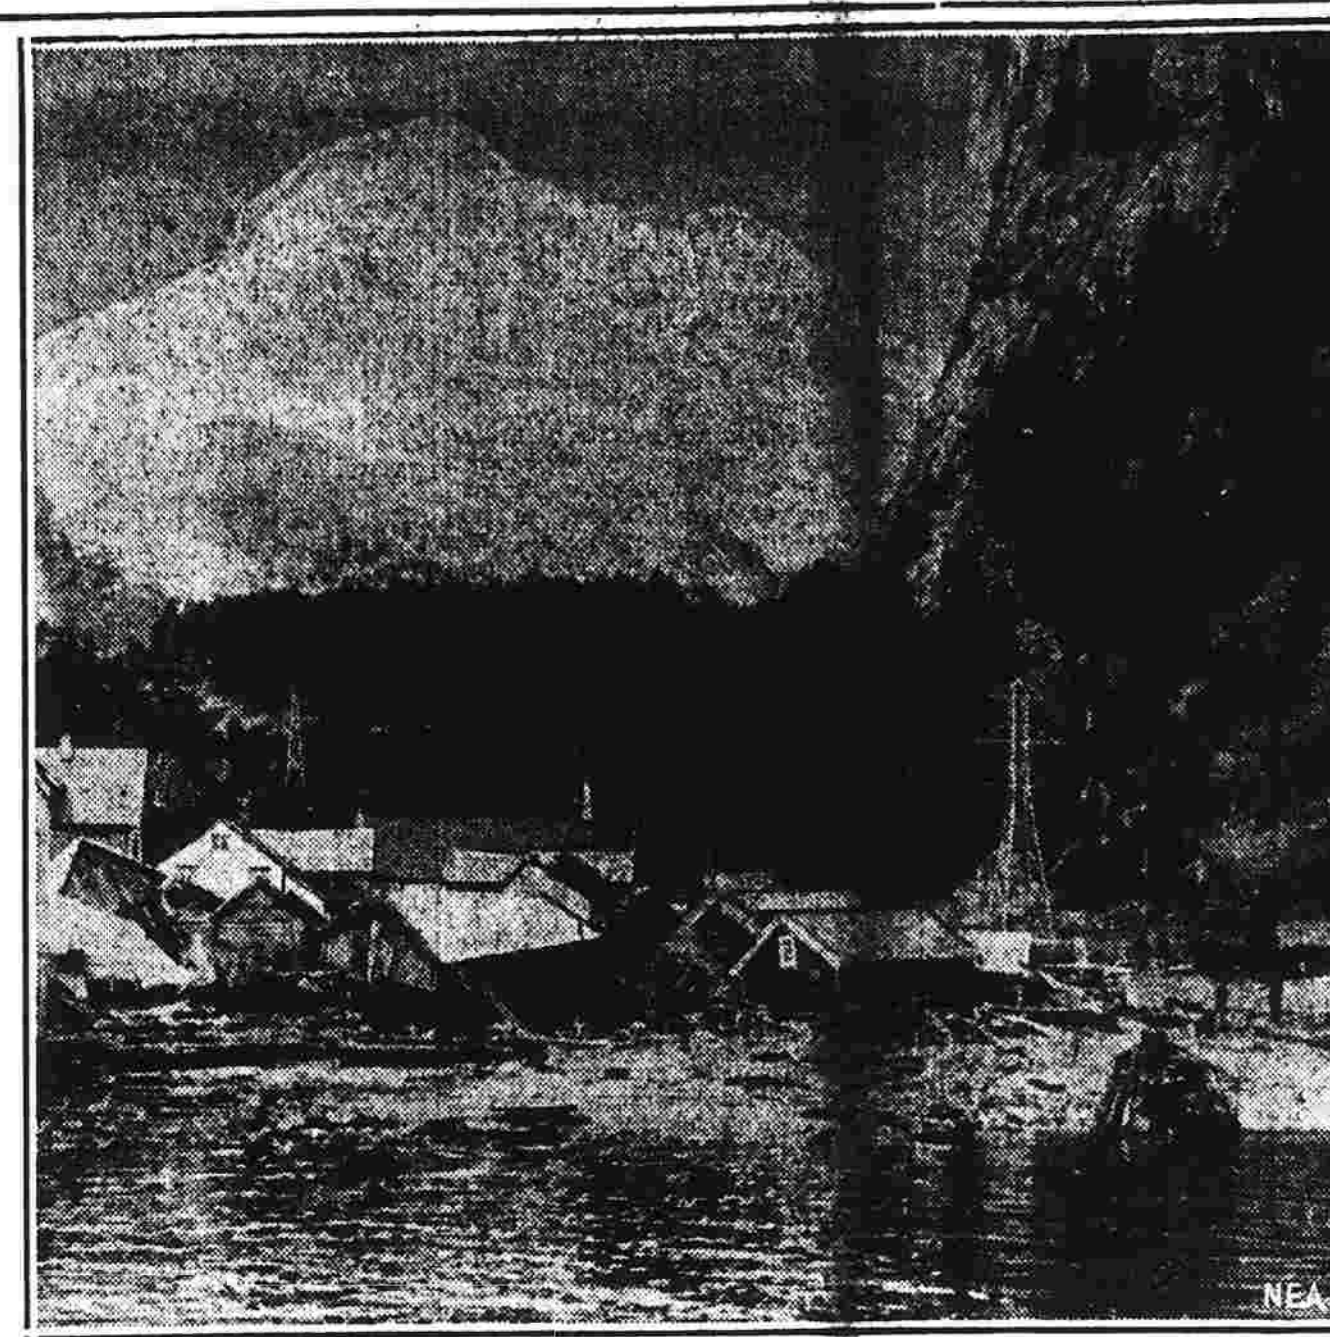

Now and then one would glance toward the slab where, between two other bodies lay that of the 25-year old woman.

The attendants would shake their heads. "It is too bad," they would say. "She was young."

See Figure Move Then, one of the attendants stood wide eyed. He had seen the feminine figure move. He shouted. He and his fellows started, looked to him mobility by fright.

"Please," breathed Margarita Hernandez Bernal, sitting upright between the two corpses. "Please give me a drink."

Norwegian Town Crushed By Mountain And Sea

A strange contrast of chaos and calm, this striking picture shows the ruins of the colorful Norwegian village Tvedestrand after thousands of tons of rocks, crashing from the mountain sides into the deep waters of the fjord below, caused a tidal wave in which more than 40 men, women and children perished as they slept. The crippling of the power station, whose towers are seen rising behind the wrecked houses, plunged the village into darkness.

INDISCREET INTERVIEW OF KAISER PUBLISHED

Talk He Had With American Reporter in 1908 Is Made Known — Believed to Have Been Destroyed.

Editor's Note: The Kaiser gave an indiscreet interview to an American newspaperman in 1908. The German foreign office, according to the story, blue penciled much of the dialogue. The expurgated version was announced for publication in the December 1908 Century magazine. Before it appeared, however, the foreign office requested suppression, and sent a cruiser to New York to pick up the pages and consign them to Davy Jones' Locker. When the crates containing the sheets failed to sink, the papers were fished out and the copies fed to the flames. The "Lost Interview" is now published for the first time.

PRESIDENT GIVES SILVER OPINION

Says One Nation Alone Cannot Take Up Problem — It's for Whole World.

Washington, April 20.—(AP)—It was made known today at the White House that President Roosevelt feels the answer to the silver problem lies in the economic conference where all nations would fix definite reserves of silver in ratio to their gold supply.

This would bring for the first time in history a fixed ratio throughout the world between gold and silver. It was proposed at London that the nations establish silver reserves up to 25 per cent of their gold supply.

As a result of this informal exposition of the President's attitude it was believed today Mr. Roosevelt would stand pat against any mandatory legislation at this session regarding silver.

All Must Co-operate As explained at the White House, Mr. Roosevelt feels it is impossible for one nation to get anywhere in rehabilitating silver without the cooperation of all countries.

One problem, it was said, is that there is an unknown quantity of silver in the world—unlike gold which can be figured to an almost exact total.

How far negotiations for an international agreement have progressed since the London parity is generally unknown. Nor is there any indication of an immediate new world economic conference for consideration of silver alone. Presumably informal discussions are going on, however.

The President will confer tomorrow with the Senate silver advocates on the whole problem.

The committee reported several weeks ago recommending that Goss be seated because the contestant allegedly had not proven fraud in the conduct of the election.

sign office spokesman attempted to somewhat allay the fears of Washington and London that Japan plans to flout the nine-power and other treaties, but the note of defiance to white nations still is dominant.

After saying Japan "does not desire to interfere with China's independence, or intrude upon existing treaties," the new pronouncement adds:

"Japan shares responsibility for maintenance of the peace in East Asia only with Asiatic powers, particularly China."

"The time has passed when other powers or the League of Nations can prosecute their policies for the exploitation of China."

Although official utterances back up the strong terms of the statement of April 17, some highly-placed Japanese elements regret that the policy should have found blunt and tactless expression at this juncture.

peaceful development of the Far East.

Two Explanations Regarding the first point, League circles said that the relations between Dr. Rajchman and Japan were not of the best; in the matter of the second point, it was said that Japan's view is that the League of Nations may innocently be led into political ventures in China through a lack of understanding of the exact situation.

The Japanese feel that they are left out in the cold on the League project for the reconstruction of China but that they should be consulted. As Japan has resigned from the League and does not sit in the Council, it is not represented.

A League Council committee on Chinese assistance, which includes the United States, will meet in May to consider Dr. Rajchman's plan.

The Japanese likewise are preparing to tell the League that they are trying to negotiate a de facto recognition of their self-created state, Manchukuo, by Northern China.

TO REPEAT WARNING

Geneva, April 20.—(AP)—Japan was understood today as preparing to repeat its warning to the League of Nations that the League's technical assistance to China may become political and hence harmful.

The occasion for the warning, as explained by responsible Japanese, is twofold:

(1) Dr. Ludwig Rajchman, the League's envoy to China, who is returning to Geneva bearing a plan for Chinese assistance which, to Japan's mind, may be inimical to China's best interests; and

(2) Japan desires to explain the Japanese doctrine concerning the department, or to the Attorney General. We haven't any case against a large manufacturer that would stand up in the courts," Johnson said. "Some are skating pretty close to the line."

Johnson told the editor that "if you help, the objective of NRA will be more quickly achieved."

"But if you hang around like vultures and swoop down on every mistake, it will take longer," he said.

"I would like to have your co-operation because I think the National Recovery program inaugurated by President Roosevelt is the only way to get the country out of the economic depression. And if you think we are out of our difficulties, you are very much mistaken," he continued.

"We have been accused of a political desire to impose a censorship on the press and the radio. Considering the articles and speeches in opposition to the President's program we certainly have made the poorest kind of mess, if control on the agencies of publicity was one of our objects."

"As a matter of fact, the Constitutional prohibition against interference with the press has been taken into account with every draft of the newspaper code since the first appearance of the publishers' committee in the matter. We might as well have put in the Ten Commandments and probably would have done so had the newspaper committee requested a positive reassertion of the decalogue."

After reading from notes Johnson invited questions and Arthur J. Sinnott of the Newark Evening News said: "Our main kick is that you are shooting too fast. It makes us all dizzy."

"It seems like you're trying to get a heaven on earth—a code for this and a code for that," Sinnott added. "I didn't know newspapers were sweat shops."

Johnson said "nobody" had called newspapers a sweat shop but confessed to an adroitness of expression in connection with the newspaper code.

When Sinnott suggested that the NRA could have found more acute problems in other lines without taking in newspapers so quickly, Johnson said he had easily proved unnecessary to cover industries as rapidly as possible since they all compete for labor.

Johnson denied reports of censorship on NRA policy. He said it had been found necessary to change news through a publicity department.

Miss Rosalie A. Cheney Married To John Fiske

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank D. Cheney
Wed To New York City Man Here
This Afternoon.

Miss Rosalie Amory Cheney, ivory satin, woven especially for her, and made on princess lines, her veil was of rare old point lace and her bridal bouquet was of white orchids and lilies of the valley. The bridesmaids wore similarly attired in gown of aquamarine chiffon with chiffon sashes of yellow and brown, and brown hats. Each carried an arm bouquet of spring flowers.

The ceremony was followed by a reception for members of the family and close friends. The Cheney home was artistically decorated with spring blossoms.

The bride is a graduate of Milton academy. Her paternal grandfather was the Rev. Horace Bushnell and her maternal ancestors the Amorys and Otis's of Boston. Mr. Fiske, who was graduated from Harvard College in 1921, is a grandson of John Fiske, the historian. His maternal ancestors are the Higginsons and Lees of Boston. Mr. and Mrs. Fiske will make their home in New York City.

Ward Cheney Camp, U. S. W. V. will hold its annual "Muster Night," Thursday, April 26 in the state armory. A supper will be served at 8:30. A program of entertainment and speaking has been arranged by the committee.

Mary Bushnell Cheney auxiliary and Ward Cheney camp, United Spanish War Veterans are combining forces on the large card party this evening at the Hollister street school for the benefit of the monument fund. Bridge, whist and set-back will be played with prizes in each section and a door prize, all in cash. Refreshments will follow the games.

Miss Grace M. Adams will give the third in her series of radio recitals, Sunday afternoon. Advanced piano pupils who will have a part in the musicals include Clifford Sault, Donald Fisher, Beulah Quinn, Merle Kelsey, Anita Glinck, Dorothy Benton, Herbert Chase and Stella Krieski. The assisting musicians will be Earl Hunt, banjoist; Mrs. Estelle Keith Olson, soprano, and Mrs. Edward Gilman of East Hartford, contralto.

Newsstand proprietors who put their newspapers on benches outside their stores hold them down usually with bricks wrapped in paper. Fred Woodhouse, proprietor of the State Soda Shop at Main and Biessell streets, nearly lost one of his paper weights yesterday.

A man with arms loaded with packages was waiting outside a paper store. He selected one, put his packages on the bench and went into the shop to pay for the newspaper. He was in a hurry and ran out of the store, picked up his packages and dashed to a waiting automobile.

He returned in just as big a hurry. "I exchanged one of your wrapped up bricks for a couple of pounds of hamburger," he explained when he came back to the store.

WINDOW SASH BROKEN AT HILLIARD'S SHED

A window sash, 6 feet long and 18 inches wide owned by E. E. Hilliard and used for covering tobacco seed from which the tobacco plants are grown, was found yesterday in an open lot off Adams street. All lights of glass had been broken. The sash is used not only in the growing of the tobacco seed, but is also used in the sorting room.

The sorting room, located on Adams street near Middle Turnpike, west, was entered recently. It was not considered the work of boys as it was necessary to pry the glass frame off from the position it was in and planks were found nearby which were evidently used in ripping off the frame.

In addition to breaking the frame and the sash, a shed located nearby, was also entered and a set of harness that is used in connection with heavy team work was removed and thrown out of doors into the lot. It rained the night before last and the harness was wet when found yesterday. The trouble was reported to the police and an investigation is being made.

FLORODORA SEXTETTE REMAINS A MYSTERY

Identity of Kiwanians Who Will Play Roles of Women Is Kept a Secret.

Despite repeated queries, William B. Halsted today refused to divulge the identity of the Florodora Sextette that will be featured in the forthcoming Kiwanis Club presentation, "There's Gold in Them Thar Hills," to be given at the Hollister Street School on May 8 and 9 for the benefit of the Kiwanis Kiddies Camp at Hebron. Mr. Halsted, who heads the committee in charge of the show, did reiterate, however, that the parts of the six beautiful young women would be taken by prominent local business men.

Rehearsals are now being held each Wednesday and Friday noon and the show, in which the Community Players will assist, is expected to be given at a burlesque on the Gay Nineties, will be the finest ever presented by the club. Rehearsals will be held next week Wednesday and Friday and it is expected that the identity of the cast will be announced in the near future.

Phagan, a factory employe of Atlanta, appeared at first to be a crime of only local importance. But the fight of Frank and his friends to clear his name developed nationwide interest in the case.

The Phagan girl was slain April 26 1913, on a southern holiday in observance of Confederate Memorial Day. Shortly after noon that day she was seen to enter the penicillin factory, where she had gone to collect wages due her. Her body was found next morning in a basement of the factory, a cord tied about her neck.

Frank was superintendent of the factory. He was arrested three days later.

Fellow Members of Scandia Lodge Make Presentation Following Regular Meeting.

Elmer H. Thoren of 234 West Center street, who will marry Miss Loretta Lobutus of Hartford at the Emanuel Lutheran church on Saturday, April 27, was presented with a living room chair at Orange Hall last night, following a meeting of Scandia Lodge, No. 23, Order of Vasa, of which he is a past president.

The presentation was made by John E. Johnson, vice district master of the state, who made a brief speech in which he lauded Mr. Thoren's work in the lodge. Words of praise were also spoken by Algot Johnson and John Benson. Mr. Thoren is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl E. Thoren. Miss Lobutus is the daughter of Mrs. Frank Champ.

LOW BIDS FEATURE MAIL CONTRACTS

Some Airlines Bid as Low as 19 Cents a Mile—41 Cents Limit.

Washington, April 20.—(AP)—Speakers whistled in surprise when Postmaster General Farley ripped open the envelopes and read the bids today for carrying airmail on the 21 routes the government intends to place in private hands for at least the next three months.

Some of the companies bid as low as 19 cents an airplane mile in offering to fly the mails. The maximum range stipulated in the specifications was from 41 to 45 cents per airplane mile.

The small room where the bids were opened was jammed with Post office and Justice Department officials and aviation men.

Meantime, while the Senate was getting ready to debate the airmail bill which would provide for a Congressional commission to study the whole aviation situation, Senator Black (D., Ala.) said the chief officers of the International Mercantile Marine Corporation would be summoned soon for questioning by his investigating committee.

Reads Clipping

Discussion of the International Marine came up in the Senate after Robinson had read a newspaper clipping charging that Kermit Roosevelt, who was on the Astor yacht Nourmahal with President Roosevelt recently, had received radiograms from the steamship company giving him instructions as to what to tell the President.

Answering a question of Senator Robinson (R., Ind.), Black said he would be glad to call Kermit Roosevelt, vice-president of the line, or Vincent Astor, whom Robinson called a large stockholder, and permit the Indiana Senator to question them.

Robinson asked Black if it were true that the committee had copies of the messages purported to have been sent to Kermit Roosevelt. Black did not answer the question directly, but asserted that an attempt was being made to convert the committee into a semi political body for the purpose of delaying its inquiry.

Investigation into the affairs of the International Mercantile Marine would have already been under way, he added, if the course of the inquiry had not been "diverted."

publicans for the measure. Two Democrats and six Republicans were opposed. The roll call follows:
For: Democrats, Fletcher, Glass, Wagner, Barkley, Bulkley, Costigan, Byrnes, Bankhead and Adams. Republicans, Norbeck, Cousins.
Against: Democrats, Gore and Reynolds. Republicans, Goldsborough, Townsend, Walcott, Carey, Steiwer and Keen.

Senator McCadoo (D., Calif.), a former secretary of the Treasury, was the only member not recorded. He was absent because of illness.

Chairman Fletcher said Steiwer indicated he might vote for the bill in the Senate but was not inclined to favor some of its features.

No important changes were made in the bill at the final session, though several efforts to modify it were beaten.

A motion by Senator Gore (D., Okla.), to substitute a bill he has drafted on the basis of the recommendations of President Roosevelt's inter-departmental committee report was rejected without a record vote.

The committee also defeated 10 to 8 a motion by Senator Townsend (R., Del.) to modify the section providing for reports from corporations.

On the final vote, nine of the committee members were recorded by parties. They were Glass, Wagner, Barkley, Costigan, Adams, Norbeck, Walcott, Carey and Cousins.

MURDERER IS KILLED IN FIGHT WITH COPS

Experiment, Ga., April 20.—(AP)—W. M. Ward, a mill nightwatchman, was fatally wounded today by machine gun fire from Atlanta officers who were called here after the watchman had killed a 10-year-old boy and then defied police who tried to arrest him.

Ward was shot down by the Atlanta officers after they had routed him from the house with tear gas where he had defied local police for several hours, holding them at bay with pistols, a shotgun and a rifle.

A detachment of Atlanta police headed by Chief T. O. Sturdivant, armed with machine guns and gas, responded to the call for help.

Ward retreated into the house and locked the door. He then ran out of the back door and leveled a gun at the chief who had gone to the back of the house.

Officer Bailey, who had accompanied the chief, brought his machine gun into action and was fatally wounded with several bullet wounds in his body.

CHENEY OFFICIAL CITES CODE COST

K. B. Blake Gives Insight In- to Expense to Industry at Hearing.

K. B. Blake of Cheney Brothers, a member of the Silk Code Authority, at a code hearing in Washington Wednesday gave an idea of the cost to industry of operating under the code. He said:

"At the time of approval of this code, there were 322 members of the Silk Association of America who would operate under the code and, therefore, be subject to such an assessment. In addition 178 other employers returned signed ballots for members of the code authority.

Fair Apportionment

"These ballots contained an agreement to pay a fair proportion of the cost of administering the code. These two groups constituted the only ones assessable under the code as approved and totaled 500 employers. According to the present records there are approximately 1500 employers receiving benefits under the code. Therefore, under the widest possible interpretation of the code now in force 33 1/3 per cent of the industry would be called upon to bear the entire expense of administration.

"After considerable discussion in the code authority, it was decided, with the approval of the government representative, that an assessment should be made on all members of the industry on the basis of the net dollar sales for the first six months of 1933. Questionnaires requesting this information were mailed to the entire industry. Where information was not forthcoming, sales were estimated from available reports of productive machinery in operation.

Only 25 Per Cent Pay Assessment

"The assessment as approved by the code authority, indicated the actual code expense for 1933, one-half of a duly approved budget for 1934 and a twenty-five per cent allowance for contingencies such as incorrect listing of employers, incorrect statistics as to sales and amounts uncollectible. This amount, when distributed on a basis of the sales figures, gives an assessment of 5.56 cents per $100.00 sales. The annual total cost of administration thus figures approximately 1-40th of 1 per cent of the industry's yearly sales. In our opinion a very reasonable assessment.

On February 5, 1934, assessment bills were mailed to 1247 firms. Through April 10, 354 firms or 25.8 per cent of those so assessed had paid their assessment. Total money received amounted to 35.3 per cent of the dollar assessed.

Borrow To Pay Expenses

"This return is not sufficient to cover the expenses of administering the code up to this time. It is only by borrowing from our trade association that we have been able to pay our bills.

"The silk textile code is an extremely difficult one to administer due to the inclusion of a large number of small units. Many of these are so poorly organized that it has been necessary for us to do much educational work and to set up local bureaus to assist in making the report on wages and hour of production considered necessary to the proper control of the industry. The statistical work of checking and tabulating these reports may be readily imagined from the number and nature of units involved. Investigation of alleged violations has necessitated a small staff of field men to cover the industry which is spread well over the entire Eastern States.

Small Units Benefit

"It is the feeling of the Code Authority that the real benefits from the code will come to the small units not heretofore associated with our trade association and who, up to now, have had no method of knowing accurately trade conditions. They have, therefore, been most subjected to severe unfair competition in price and overproduction. Unfortunately it is difficult to reach these many small units individually to convince them of their advantages under the code and get them to pay an assessment in proportion to their size.

1. The present method of assessing the cost of administration of the code against all members of the industry without a specific clause in the code to this effect, does not provide sufficient funds.

2. An increased assessment against those now obliged by the code, sufficient to provide the amount required would be eminently unfair as the burden of the entire industry would fall on the shoulders of the few who have already sustained the trade association for many years and who so order their business the wages and production that they have the least to gain from the code.

NEW STAGE PLAY FOR MISS HOLMAN

Torch Singer to Return to Broadway Next Fall, Pro- ducer Reports.

New York, April 20.—(AP)—Libby Holman's return to the Broadway stage is scheduled for a musical comedy to be produced this fall by Dwight Deere Wiman, he announced just before he sailed for London.

It was Wiman who brought the seduced Miss Holman to her first fame when he cast her in the first "Little Show." Later she appeared in "There's a Crowd," and then was married to the late Smith Reynolds, whose mysterious death at his Winston-Salem, N. C., estate, caused Miss Holman to go into a long retirement.

The musical show will have a book, and is being written by Howard Lindsay, Howard Dietz and Arthur Schwartz.

Wiman and Lindsay are now on their way to London to stage a production of their comedy hit, "She Loves Me Not."

Albert Bein has written a new play called "Let Freedom Ring," based on Grace Lumpkin's novel, "To Make My Bread." Bein is the young writer who turned out "Little Ol' Boy," a play about reform schools which attracted much attention last season, although it survived only for a week.

Channing Pollock has withdrawn the play he wrote about his novel, "Synthetic Gentleman." In abandoning the project, he explained, "I had three offers to produce the play but decided, as I did with 'Wake Up, America,' that I should only be working for the stagehands. One 'Mr. Moneybags' is enough in a lifetime."

"Mr. Moneybags" was produced by Pollock several seasons ago, but it required so many stage hands that their salaries ate up all box office receipts.

The newest Isben impresario is Nathan Zatkun, erstwhile dramatic editor who later became a press agent. He is producing "The Lady from the Seam," Moffat Johnson will be in the cast.

A production of "Hamlet" with an all negro cast is scheduled for Broadway soon.

Irene Rich, the movie actress, is rehearsing a new play which comes to New York in about a fortnight.

CINEMA ACTRESS PLAYS CHECKERS

Favorite Sport of Ruth Chat- terton; Kay Francis Likes Football Games.

Hollywood, April 20.—If anybody asked you what you like or disliked you might be one of those who on being faced with such a question, suddenly discover that you have neither a hobby nor a hate in your daily life.

But not so the members of the film colony. This crowd is quite definite about its personal feelings. In fact, the players have become so accustomed to having their own way that they are quick to voice their opinions.

They're like a lot of spoiled children in that respect.

Kay Francis, for example, will tell you that she likes acrobats, football games, card tricks, furniture auctions, mountain climbing—and popcorn. But she doesn't like crossword puzzles, jewelry, the smell of fresh paint, nor wet feet.

Keeping Young

Ruth Chatterton would stay home almost any night to read a good murder story. Or she would pass up a premiere at Grauman's Chinese theater to go to the beach and ride on a roller coaster.

She also likes to play checkers, read comic pages, go to baseball games, and sit in front of roaring fires.

Leaping over to the other side of the fence, she can get along very nicely without alarm clocks (couldn't we all?) scrapbooks, ukuleles, puns, and fish.

Veree Teasdale is particular, too. She likes harp music, shower baths, cold weather, volcanos, shopping, chocolate eclairs—and Adolphe Menjou. But she harbors a hearty dislike for red automobiles, cats, elevators, airplanes, and tooth paste ads.

Flea Fan

Fawn Blundell would rather go to a flea circus than almost anything else (I said "almost"). She also gets a big kick out of decorating Christmas trees, riding elephants (she actually rode one once), rummaging around old book stores and sleeping with her light on.

However, she doesn't like dentists, child prodigies, popular novels, or speeches.

Probably the longest list of likes and dislikes is set forth by Bette Davis. In fact, her list is so long that I'm going to give only a part of it.

Among the things she likes best are picnics, golf, sleeping late in the mornings, listening to the tick of an old-fashioned clock, and perfume.

And she has no use whatever for people who spank babies, early morning phone calls, slammed doors, dolls, painted china, or weddings.

On Good Terms Again

Hollywood's strangest foursome these days is made up of Johnny Weissmuller, Lupe Velez, Gary Cooper and Sandra Shaw. They can be seen dining together at least twice a week.

And only a couple of years ago the entire film colony was expecting to see Gary and Lupe take the big leap almost any moment.

When they decided to go their separate ways, they really went. But now that each is married, everything seems to have been smoothed over.

And then there was that incident which occurred at the party given by Patricia Ellis. A couple of the

JOHNSON SCORED BY MRS. PINCHOT

Wife of Pennsylvania's Gov- ernor Says NRA Head Ignores Nation's Workers

Pittsburgh, April 20.—(AP)—Firing another blast in her feud with General Hugh S. Johnson, Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot charges the NRA chief "has ignored the workers' interests and done everything he could to increase Wall street's dividends."

Addressing the 59th annual convention of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers last night, where she was introduced by President Michael F. Tighe as "a modern Joan of Arc and a friend of the common people," the wife of Pennsylvania's governor said:

"When General Johnson talks of self-government, he means government by the industrialists or by one or two per cent of the population x x x."

"When he failed to make the owners of the 'captive' mines toe the mark, big business knew his social orders need not be taken seriously."

Johnson's Reply

Mrs. Pinchot, recently criticized Johnson at a hearing in Washington, pointing to numerous alleged abuses in labor management in Pennsylvania. To this Johnson replied by asking "Who is the governor of Pennsylvania?"

"We are going to have a real fight all along the line before we can put the New Deal over," she warned the steel men last night. "I hope your amalgamated union will be organized 100 per cent in every

WALL ST. BRIEFS

CONSCIENCE MONEY

Torrington, April 20.—(AP)—The Torrington police department today received $3 in "conscience money" from an anonymous individual in Hartford. The writer said that over a year ago he was "unjustly" arrested and fined $2 for passing a stop sign. The officer who gave him change made a mistake and handed him $5 too much. In returning $3 he explained that he's keeping $2 of the $5 because the fine "was never yours honestly."

STRESS CAUTION IN KITE FLYING

Parents Urged to Warn Chil- dren Many Dangers in Sport.

Kite flying, the healthful outdoor sport of childhood, may result in injury and even death unless it is practiced in the proper places and with a generous amount of precaution, officials of the light and power companies in Connecticut warned today.

The danger lies in the fact that kites or the strings to which they are attached may easily come into contact with or become entangled with electrical wires. Parents should guard their children against this and make certain, if they indulge in the sport of kite flying, that it is done in places free from danger and with equipment that will not subject them to electrical shocks.

If the following suggestions are observed, there is little danger for the young enthusiasts:

Do not fly your kite near electric, telephone or trolley wires.

Do not use wire or twine of any sort—use cotton string and

LEARN OF MANCHESTER NEWS IN DISTANT CITY

Tom Webb, Former Local Man, Gets Word of Folks Here in Visit to Havana.

Tom Webb, former local soccer player, now living in Miami, Florida, often thinks of Manchester and his friends here, but he had to go to Havana, Cuba, to find out about some of them.

Webb was on a trip to Nassau in the Bahamas recently going from there to Havana. One extremely hot day last week he was seated on a bench in one of the beautiful harbor front parks of the Cuban city when he noticed an English language newspaper on the bench beside him. He picked it up and unfolded it to read the news.

It was a copy of the Manchester, Conn. Evening Herald.

ROCKVILLE SAXOPHONIST ON STRONGEST STATION

Jack Keeney Being Heard Nightly from Crosley Experiment Station in Cincinnati.

Jack Keeney of Rockville first saxophonist with Jean Goldkette orchestra directed by Henry Boggs originator and organizer of the famous Casa Loma orchestra of Detroit has just concluded a six weeks engagement with the band at the Kentucky Hotel, Louisville, Ky., and opened Tuesday at the Gibson Hotel Cincinnati, Ohio, where the orchestra of sixteen members including soloists are being featured three times daily with the final session in the beautiful Florentine Room of the Gibson from 10:30 to 1:30. Young Keeney is being heard on the air nightly with the band being one of the three vocal soloists, through the Crosley Experimental station of 500,000 watts at 4 p. m. and over station WLW 7:45 p. m.

The Crosley Experimental station at Cincinnati is the strongest and most powerful in the country and is heard it is said on governmental test authority, around the world. The band has three weeks engagement at the Hotel Gibson in Cincinnati at the conclusion of which they are scheduled to come east for a summer tour of the principal ball-rooms of New England. The orchestra is rated by critics as one of the first six dance orchestras of the country and have been a sensation on their five months tour of the south and middle west.

ROCKVILLE

LIONS CLUB ANNUAL MEETING WEDNESDAY

Dr. Clarence E. Peterson, President for Several Years, Plans to Retire This Year.

At the meeting of the Rockville Lions club, to be held at the Rockville House Wednesday evening, May 2 following the semi-monthly luncheon, members will have an opportunity to hear Joseph F. Lamb, an executive officer of the Y. M. C. A., Leaders, Frary & Clark, of New Britain.

Mr. Lamb, who is widely known as a traveler, will deliver a talk on "Alaska," illustrated by many attractive slides.

The annual meeting of the Lions club will be held Wednesday evening, April 25, at which time the nominating committee will make nominations.

Dr. Clarence E. Peterson, president, is to retire this year after having held the office of presiding officer for several years. Several prominent business men have been mentioned as his successors including Dr. E. Harrison Metcalf, now vice-president and Luther A. White who has been very active in all affairs conducted by the club.

The report of the committee on the "Milk Fund" which recently conducted the musical comedy "Prince Charming," will be made at this time. It is expected that close to $100 will be realized from the entertainment held last week.

Spring Vacation Starts

The spring vacation of the public schools of the town of Vernon started this noon and will continue for a week. The graded schools closed after completing the morning session.

The Rockville High school also held but one session today, committing the two last periods so that the students could go to their homes at 12:15 o'clock.

The schools will reopen Monday morning, April 30, for the fourth quarter of the school year.

Increase in Motorists

An increase in the use of motor vehicles in the city of Rockville during the past few months is now in evidence with the report of the Motor Vehicle Commissioner Michael A. Connor showing many more local licenses issued.

The report of the commissioner shows that there was an increase for the first three months in issuing drivers' licenses in Rockville of 190.9 per cent over the first three months of last year. The net total of examinations in Rockville was 32 examinations for this period, being conducted in the Police Court room each Monday afternoon.

Observe Anniversary

Rising Star Lodge, No. 49, I. O. O. F., and Mayflower Rebekah Lodge, No. 38, jointly celebrated the anniversary of Odd Fellowship last evening with exercises in Odd Fellows hall.

The exercises commemorated the 115th anniversary of the founding of Odd Fellowship and the 40th anniversary of the founding of Mayflower Rebekah Lodge of Rockville.

A very interesting program was presented under the direction of a joint committee, after which the members and guests were entertained at a buffet luncheon.

Much credit is due the various committees in charge which consisted of the following: entertainment committee, Mrs. Gisela Read, Miss Anna Waltz, Miss Freida Tennstedt, Mrs. Otwell Pfund and Miss Charlotte Drescher; luncheon committee, Mrs. Helen Friedrich, Mrs. Lillian Sharp, Mrs. Gertrude Staudt; I. O. O. F. committee, Nelson C. Read, chairman; Edward Miller, Harry Bartley and Everett Smith.

Funeral of Mrs. Mary Lynch

The funeral of Mrs. Mary Scanlon Lynch, 78, widow of the late James H. Lynch of Center street, who died on Monday, was held from her late home Thursday morning at 8:30 o'clock and from St. Bernard's Catholic church at 9 o'clock.

As the body of Mrs. Lynch was being borne into the church Mrs. Anna Mas Pfunder rendered the selection, "Priceless Love of Jesus." Rev. Francis C. Hinchoy, assistant pastor, officiated at a solemn high requiem mass.

At the officery of the mass, Mrs. Pfunder rendered "Ave Maria" by Wiegand and during the recessional gave, "When Evening Comes," by Rev. Father O'Neill.

Burial was in the family plot in St. Bernard's cemetery, with Rev. Father Hinchoy conducting the committal service. The pall bearers were: Clarence J. McCarthy, George LaChappelle, Frank Dowd, Michael O'Connell, Edward E. Jackson and Arno Yanke.

I visited the Play School for pre-kindergarten children which Miss Emily House is conducting at 201 East Center street and was especially interested to note how eager and interested the children were in their program. Mothers who would like to enroll their children for the remainder of the spring, or see the school in operation, can make an appointment with Miss House by calling her at 4456.

Here is a novel recipe for fruit salad: Allow one banana for each person to be served. Cut them lengthwise, remove pulp and arrange the skins on crisp lettuce on a huge platter. Mix one-half cup of grapefruit pulp and one-half cup of white grapes with one-half cup of diced orange pulp. Add a few chopped nut meats and all of the banana pulp that was scooped out to make the boats. Moisten the mixture with French dressing and fill each boat with it. Garnish with maraschino cherries and serve with toasted cheese crackers.

For the best fitting made to measure corsetry wear a Spirella. Lulu M. Bidwell, resident corsetiere, Dial 6091.

The chemists are finding out things about parsley—such as that it has higher percentage of iron than spinach, for instance, which was a great surprise to most of us. The dietitians, however, stand pat on their declaration that this flavorous green can never be eaten in such large quantities as spinach. Though, for that matter, you wouldn't need as much of it to get your daily iron quota.

Cooking in ancient Greece recognized and made use of the pungent parsley. The Carthaginians found it in Sardinia and introduced the herb to the inhabitants of Marselles. The Romans used it as a symbol of mourning, and even today there are various quaint superstitions connected with parsley in England and Scotland.

Tomorrow's the day. Cheney's Print Sale opens and what lovely remnants you'll see—dress lengths in printed chiffon and flat crepe, loads of beautiful 2 yard lengths of one which would make just the blouse for your suit, and the most attractive rayon prints in any color you choose. Don't miss it!

It's not much fun to have nice silverware if it's always tarnished and black when you want to use it. Why not invest in a tarnish-proof silver chest that will keep your flat pieces shiny and clean for months at a time?

FOUR WOMEN IN TOWN FISHING ENTHUSIASTS

At Least, That's the Number That Took Out Licenses Here for This Year.

Believe it or not—there ARE some women fishermen in Manchester. Not as many as there are men, naturally, but some, nevertheless.

Inquiry at the town clerk's office today led to the revelation that two women had applied for fishing licenses this year, a fact unheard of a few years ago. They are Miss Marjory Cheney, of Hartford road, and Miss Mathilda Muske, of 16 Bigelow street.

At the offices of the Blish Hardware company, where fishing licenses also are issued, it was stated that licenses had been given this year to Mrs. Ralph Chapman, of 24 Moore street, and to Mrs. Malcolm Mollan, of 790 Main street. Reports say that women have made some mighty good catches at the state women's fishing reservation at Branford. Game wardens also have noticed an unusually large number of women anglers casting for trout in streams in Hartford and Tolland counties.

"Wedding Song" Is Another Story Of Disillusion

In case any of you don't know that this nation has been harboring a Disillusioned Young Generation ever since the war, you can gain plenty of enlightenment by reading David Burnham's "Wedding Song."

Here is one more novel in the long succession dealing with the bright young boys and girls who lost their souls somewhere between 1916 and 1920 and have been exceedingly vocal about it ever since. It has to do with a brother and a sister, children of an American capitalist, who are living in Europe. The girl is married to an insouciant Italian prince; the boy is drifting about, drinking, falling with assorted mistresses, and reminding himself how much he hates his father.

By and by father gets married, his first wife having been dead these many years. His loving son thereupon conceives a plot to ruin him. He organizes a stock market pool to depress the price of papa's securities, and plays the market so

Another Saturday special at Norton's! First quality chiffon and service silk stockings at 59 cents a pair and two pairs for $1.10—two pair to match is always a wise buy.

Evelyn Venable, playing the romantic leading role in Paramount's "Double Door," worked for days without sitting down during production of the picture because some of her gowns are so delicate that once creased they couldn't be repaired.

It's spectacular that's what it is—this ten day Housecleaning Sale at Watkins. I walk with them to a group of occasional chairs that had tags with their original prices anywhere from $17.50 to $19.95 marked over and a $9.85 sale price was put in their places. Do take advantage of this sale for the bargains are wonderful!

Colors for beach costumes vie with the hues of the rainbow. You can go in for bright yellows, greens, reds, blues and purples, or, in true 1934 fashion, combine several tones in one ensemble. It's smart to have shorts in one shade, shirt in another and little three-quarters swagger coat in still another tone.

The sports shorts, in gayly striped knitted pique, fit sleekly. Three large pearl buttons at each side add a decorative note. The pullover sweater blouse worn with them is of white mercerized ribbed cotton and requires no ironing after being washed. Mexique, smoke brown, taupe tan, and other smart spring colors are featured in the hosiery sale at Hale's—pure silk, full fashioned service and chiton at 59 cents a pair. The sizes run from 8-12 to 10-12—all first quality.

Whether it's at the beach or hoing in your own back yard—be smart in the smartest. Here's a comfortable outfit—sports overalls and matching three-quarters length coat are made of fine knitted cotton. They come in bright colors or in the cream shade of fannel and are styled for comfort on the beach or for the deck of a vacation cruise liner. The overalls are decorated with bright buttons and a belt in contrasting shade. The little sports cap and socks, also of ribbed cotton, have vivid-toned bands that match the overalls belt.

CATHOLIC, PROTESTANT AND JEW WIN AWARD

Priest, Minister and Rabbi Did Most to Advance Jewry in 1933.

New York, April 20.—(AP)—"The American who did most for Jewry in 1933" is three men—a Presbyterian minister, a Catholic priest and a Rabbi. The three, the Rev. Everett R. Clinchy of New York City, Father J. Elliot Ross, of Charlottesville, Va., and Rabbi Morris S. Lazarus, of Baltimore, Md., will receive the Gotthel Medal, cast in triplicate, the Beta Beta Tau fraternity announced today. The medal usually goes to one man adjudged winner of the year. The three men won it by virtue of a pilgrimage trip, on which they advocated understanding among Catholics, Jews and Protestants in America. They visited thirty-eight cities. "Their efforts proved an antidote to anti-Semitism in America," the committee said in announcing the award.

WHITE COLLAR MEN TO BE ORGANIZED

Pittsburgh Insurance Broker Has a Scheme to Aid Middle Class Jobless.

Pittsburgh, April 20.—(AP)—A call to arms for the long-suffering "white collar" workers, the millions of middle classmen who are flanked on one side by capital and the other by labor, was sounded today by Eugene A. Holland, Pittsburgh insurance man.

Announcing the formation of the White Collar League of America, a non-profit, incorporated organization designed "to work in the interests and for the welfare of that great group of United States citizens commonly known as the 'White Collar Class,'" Holland said the idea was born from watching a "two-year parade of hopelessness."

"For two years I watched a steady stream of white collar men, straining their last resources by cashing in on their life insurance. It was disgraceful."

"There are 15,000,000 potential members in the white collar class. Many have drained all of their resources but you didn't find them in the bread lines; their middle class pride prevents them from making any appeal."

Holland, president of the organization, described the league as follows:

"This is no racket. It is a straight, clean-cut proposition. The wheel that squeaks gets the most grease. That's why so much publicity has been given to the capitalist, the laborer and the farmer. The long-suffering and silent white collar class must be protected."

The league proposes orderly action for relief and a fight against "additional burdens by using the power of mass protesting."

Kansas City—Joe Carr, M. K. T. railway station agent at Angola, Kas., has a surprise in store for him.

Matthew S. Sloan, new chairman of the railroad board, was examining equipment here and called the Angola station.

"This is M. S. Sloan, the new chairman of the board," the receiver told Joe.

"Oh, yeah? So's your grandmother," Joe responded.

"No kidding," Sloan replied.

"All right, come tea me some time."

"All right, Joe, I'll stop in to see you," the railroad chief promised.

Sloan arranged to have his special train stop at Angola today.

WATCH ELM TREES EXPERT'S WARNING

As Soon as Foliage Wilts, or Tops Die Notify State Officials.

(The Dutch Elm Disease carried by the European Elm Bark beetle which has been fought for years, menaces elms of New England, entomologists claim. This final article by Edward A. Connell of the Connecticut office of the Control unit deals with elms and their values).

Stamford, Conn., April 20.—(AP)—Why should Connecticut be so concerned with any threat to American elms? So far as the Dutch elm disease is involved there are four definite reasons: the first is that the disease has been found within the state boundaries and increasing infections have been reported from adjacent Westchester County, New York; there is no known cure for the disease once it enters the tree; a survey has shown alarming infestations in Connecticut of the European elm bark beetle, carrier of the disease; and fourthly, a reason for concern among tree lovers is the tremendous elm population of Connecticut and all New England.

Natural features in Connecticut, mountains, beaches, ancient landmarks, etc are duplicated in other sections, but there is one identifying mark peculiar to this section—the elm-lined streets. Litchfield, New London, Hartford, Greenwich—the Gothic arches along the streets of New England towns are the one outstanding identifying and attractive mark which is offered tourists. There are towns like Oberlin, Ohio, and Swanton, Illinois, which have elm-lined thoroughfares but it is in New England elms are a continuous and uninterrupted feature, not an attractive exception.

Outstanding Tree

The American elm was voted the "outstanding shade tree of the United States" in a nation-wide poll four months ago taken by the National Life Conservation Society. It is the recognized dean of shade bearers. To have seen the stately dignity and towering grace of the elms of New Haven, Watertown, Hartford and Greenwich is to have seen American shade trees at their best. For wide streets and broad avenues it has no superior.

The American elm, however, is more than an artistic asset to Connecticut. It represents a cold, practical dollar-and-cents asset to real estate. Definite proof of this is found in efforts of real estate men to give property added beauty by

CHURCH BASEMENT NEWLY DECORATED

Everything Will Be Ready for St. Bridget's Card Party Monday Night.

The redecorating of St. Bridget's church basement to be used as a hall, will be completed tonight and everything will be in readiness for its first public use on Monday evening when the weekly card party will be held and the formal opening take place.

In order to accommodate the large gathering expected to be present, it has been found necessary to remove all of the stationary benches. A large space in this way will be provided for the tables used in the card playing.

The walls have been painted an ivory and buff and modern electric light fixtures have been installed, consisting of crystal domes which greatly add to the general lighting of the hall. A completely equipped kitchen has been added, which will be of much assistance to those who have charge of the serving of the refreshments. A new dressing room for the women has been built and furnished to the last detail by the women of the parish. Two new lavatories have also been installed.

There are other details that still remain to be completed, but this part will be taken care of by the committee arranging for the party next Monday. Although there has been large crowds in the past at these parties a record crowd is looked for at the gathering Monday.

At the party on Monday, there will be special prizes of a high order given and for one of the prizes Mrs. Elizabeth Pallier has donated a pair of hand made pillow slips which will be given as the door prize.

continuation of the status quo, with a promise of subsequent readjustment.

AAA Gets Mumps
An epidemic of mumps is hampering the AAA and the U. S. Public Health Service is on the job. Thus far the ailment is confined to the 8 a. m. to 2:30 p. m. shift of the large check-maling, record-keeping staff dealing with mechanics of the crop reduction phase.

All members of that shift are required to leave by a door separate from that used by the incoming staff and to be out of the building before any of the latter arrive.

CAPONE TO TRY AGAIN TO GET HIS FREEDOM

Washington, April 20.—(AP)—Al Capone is going to make a bid for freedom April 25 in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at New Orleans.

Frank J. Wideman, assistant attorney general, will resist the Chicago gangster's latest effort to get out of the Atlanta penitentiary, where he is serving an eleven-year sentence for income tax evasion.

The proceedings are in the nature of an appeal from a decision of the United States District Court of Northern Georgia, which dismissed an application for a writ of habeas corpus December 9, 1933.

Capone's contention then was that the indictment on which he was convicted was brought after the expiration of the three-year statute of limitations.

THE KINGDOM OF GOD
Our God is building a Kingdom.
Building through Jesus His Son,
And He will have the dominion;
His will in all things be done.

They had this in mind long ago,
Or ever the earth was made
And for this great purpose we know.

The earth's foundations were laid.
The sun, moon and stars of heaven,
He made to give heat and light;
The firmament too was given,
Summer, winter, day and night.

The heavens declare the glory
Of God and Jesus His Son,
The firmament tells the story,
His handiwork under the sun.

This Kingdom is made up of children,
That in God's likeness shall be
Saved through the blood of redemption;
Enabled, His kingdom to see.

For Christ, the King of his Kingdom,
Came down to live here on earth;
Paying the price of our ransom,
That all might have the new birth.

Poured out His own blood on the cross;
Atonement for sin He made,
To purify from their hearts all the gross;
Their guilt on Him was all laid.

Put the law of life in their mind,
And wrote His law in their heart;
The blessings of righteousness find,
And then with Christ have a part.

In that Kingdom of God up there,
His will, our will, will be one,
To dwell and to reign with Him
where
His will forever is done.

God must have His way in Heaven,
To carry out this great plan,
His riches of grace be given,
Through Jesus, The Son of Man.

FIVE HURT IN CRASH
New Castle, Pa., April 20.—(AP)—Five passengers were injured, none seriously, when a bus bound from New York to Chicago overturned west of Bessemer, Pa., today. All continued on to Chicago.

The driver said he had to swerve at a sharp curve in trying to avoid hitting a pedestrian, and an approaching car forced him into a ditch. The superstructure of the bus was badly damaged, but the driver was able to take it on.

SUES MULLER ESTATE TO RECOVER $300,000

Protégé of Wealthy Silk Magnate Said He Agreed to Give Her That Amount.

Bridgeport, April 20.—(AP)—Gertrude Schultheiss, 28, of New York, protégé of the late Richard Muller, silk magnate of Norwalk and founder of the Gloria silk mills in Rowayton, today filed suit in the Superior Court to recover $300,000 from his estate. The action is directed against Morris Blau of New York and William Becker of Bolton, N. Y., who have acted as executors of the $1,500,000 Muller estate.

It is alleged that, for carrying out a certain agreement in regard to property transfer, the silk manufacturer agreed to leave $300,000 to Miss Schultheiss upon his death. When his will was admitted to probate in Norwalk it was found that the entire Muller estate was divided among relatives in Germany.

The New York petitioner claims that on August 24, 1928, Jose Mundet, sole owner of the Insulation Realty Company of New York, gave her a clear title to property valued at $300,000 and located at Ditmars Boulevard and 38th street, in Queens. The property, it is pointed out in the action filed today, had an annual income of $12,000. On the same day as the offer was made by Mundet, Muller came through with another, according to the writ. This offer from the aged silk manufacturer was that if his protégé did not accept the gift from Mundet, Muller would see that she was properly cared for for the balance of her life and upon his death he would leave her the sum of $300,000 as recompense for not accepting the gift of the property. According to the papers in today's action, Miss Schultheiss on September 14, 1929, relying on Muller's offer, returned the deed to Mundet.

Youngster Shows Way To Veteran Fishermen

Little Freddie Turkington Hooks Beauty In Brook Near His House With Home Made Rod And Back Yard Worm.

While sportsmen of years experience let loose their finest equipment and practiced their pet theories on trout fishing, with few if any of the wary morsels responding, little Freddie Turkington, five-year-old son of Town Clerk Samuel J. Turkington, played the typical school-boy role and hooked a speckled beauty with home-made tackle and no theory.

Yesterday Freddie whittled himself a willow rod, found some store string around his home at 127 Henry street, uncovered one of his father's discarded hooks, dug a few worms, and then proceeded to the little brook that feeds the Starkweather ice pond just off North Elm street. In less time than it takes to tell it, Freddie had hooked a trout. He knew nothing about playing the trout. He just knew he had to get it out of the water. And that's what he did.

When Freddie brought the fish home to his mother she measured it and found he had an eight and a quarter inch trout. The youngster informed his mother that he, himself, would dress and fry that fish. So Mrs. Turkington got the knife for Freddie so that he could start his job.

"Oh, no," was the youngster's rejoinder. "I'm going up and get Daddy's basket he puts over his shoulder and I'm going back and get a mess of those fish. It's a cinch."

BEHIND THE SCENES IN Washington

Business and Industry Put on the Heavy Pressure ... Borah Offends Heavily Again ... Rail Strike is Unlikely ... AAA Gets Mumps.

By RODNEY DUTCHER
Manchester Herald Washington Correspondent

Washington, April 20.—It isn't the heat, the humidity, or even the cold weather. It's the pressure.

Everywhere you turn in this turbulent capital, you notice the pressure. It weighs heavily on the President, on the New Deal headlines, and on Congress.

Big business and industry lead in applying this pressure—against the stock market, Wagner, Tugwell, tariff, unemployment, insurance, munitions investigations, and other bills.

Business and industry are by far the most powerful force today. They forced revision of the Wagner, stock market, Tugwell and tariff bills, made Roosevelt rebuff the A. F. of L. in the auto settlement, and sponsored the idiotic Wirt Furber.

They dominate NRA and balk New Deal or brain trust efforts at least once a week.

Political pressure is exceptionally strong on Congress. So many members face primary or election fights. The high-assured veterans' lobby led Congress to administer Roosevelt his first major legislative defeat. Patronage pressure was never heavier. Members even encountered potent pressure from their secretaries and henchmen in Federal jobs when the issue of restoring the Federal pay cut came up.

Many are frantically grabbing at publicity chances in strange ways—they'd turn cartwheels up and down Pennsylvania avenue if it would get them favorable mention in home town newspapers.

Labor pressure seems weak, though it may yet influence Congress importantly. Farmer pressure isn't up to par, as for every dissatisfied farmer there seems to be a farmer contented and hopeful.

Even so, these old-time forces contribute to the pressure felt from all directions, as every organized group seeks to bend the New Deal toward its own interests ... Down to the poorest paid stenographer, pressure is felt in one way or another.

Borah's In Bad Again
Senator Borah's lone-wolfishness has other aspects than his political independence. His resolution for continuing the 15 per cent Federal pay cut wasn't his first heinous offense of the sort, in the eyes of his colleagues.

Several years ago, when Congress raised its pay from $7500 to $10,000 a year, Borah embarrassed them by protesting loudly and by subsequently refusing the additional $2,500 until his term was up.

Railroad Co-ordinator Joe Eastman assured Roosevelt there wouldn't be any railroad strike. Some brotherhood leaders have since felt their demand for restoration of the 10 per cent wage cut—under which they've worked for the last year—should be intensified.

Following the vote of Congress to restore the Federal salary cut. But a strike continues to be unlikely.

Strike sentiment is confined largely to the younger employees—and there aren't so many of them, as unemployment and seniority rules have required the older men be kept on the job during the long period of railroad layoffs.

Nevertheless, Roosevelt probably will have to settle the current dispute as between railroads which ask a still further wage cut and unions which ask a 10 per cent raise, as well as the restoration.

The result probably will be a con-

FRIDAY, APRIL 20.

ANOTHER DEWDAD

The latest administration furrow for doling up the economic situation into a semblance of real prosperity, while less exasperating and discouraging to people of sense than the device of distributing wealth by destroying it, which has been adopted by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, is almost pathetic in its obvious futility. Briefly the newest White House plan is to have still another instrumentality set up by authorization of Congress, a corporation whose business shall be, not to lend money, but to guarantee loans to be made, by any bank or other lending agency, to home owners for purpose of renovations. Such loans would range from $200 to $2,000 and would run for ten years. The proceeds would be required to be expended in repairs, alterations and refurbishing of homes. The idea is, of course, to provide a market for materials and opportunity for labor.

It is all very nice and there is no possible question about the need of hundreds of thousands of homes of fairly extensive repairs of the dilapidation into which so much of this type of property has fallen during the years of the depression. But when an administration which has set its face with the utmost obstinacy against any and every measure of retiation, and which is now as stubbornly deflationists as any pawnbroker, seriously proposes to the home owner that he borrow money to improve a home whose cash value is slowly shrinking away to nothing it convicts itself of a complete ignorance of public psychology as well as of economic blindness.

This is not to say that, if such a corporation be set up and offers of guaranteed loans are made to home owners everywhere, nobody will avail himself of the opportunity—there are plenty of people without whole shoes on their feet who would buy a chenille monkey with rhinestone eyes if you offered to trust them for it till next year. But after setting up the elaborate and costly machinery—hundreds of offices and thousands of checkers and investigators and appraisers and "experts" and millions of forms and formulas and rules and regulations, changed every week—the high probabilities are that the monthly total of the loans accepted wouldn't equal the payroll.

It is gradually being borne in on the people of this country that this administration is extraordinarily prolific of nice little ideas, dainty theories in pastel shades, about trimming up the edges of the vast economic problem while leaving its roots and heart untouched.

It is extremely doubtful that Congress will much longer continue to palter with these amiable but utterly superficial artificialities. It is even improbable that this newest dewdad of a special machine for renovation loans can be jammed through both houses without eliciting a storm of criticism along the lines here suggested. The country has had about enough of the trimmings. What it desperately needs now is some of the real substance of restored values which President Roosevelt promised and which are still as far away as ever.

THAT NAVY PICTURE

The enterprise of the newspaper photographers suffered a lapse when the picture hunters failed to get a shot at that painting by a CWA artist, Paul Cadmus of New York, which has so stirred the indignation of Admiral Hugh Rodman, U. S. N., retired, that Secretary Swanson has banished it from the Navy Department. It is now pretty late for any attempt to give the public an idea of what the picture is like, as to composition and drawing, for the canvas has been sent to the home of Col. Henry L. Roosevelt, assistant secretary, and it is doubtful if he will let the photographers get a peep at it.

All this is regrettable because there are a good many folks in the seaport towns of this country who would like a chance to judge for themselves whether "The Fleet's In" does really slander the American gob as cruelly as Admiral Rodman affects to believe it does. The admiral in high indignation says:

It represents a most disgraceful, disreputable, drunken brawl, wherein apparently a number of enlisted men are consorting with a party of streetwalkers and denizens of the redlight district. This is an unwarranted insult to the enlisted personnel of our navy, is utterly without foundation in fact and evidently originated in the sordid, depraved imagination of some one who has no conception of actual conditions in our service.

Possibly the picture conveys ideas that Admiral Rodman shrinks from even hinting at. But if it does no more than he says in his letter of protest—that is, if it no more than shows a group of sailors drunk and disorderly and consorting with disreputable women—then the good admiral is himself seriously offending by referring to the artist as a person of sordid, depraved imagination and proving quite conclusively that it is he and not the painter who "has no conception of actual conditions in the service." Because the enlisted personnel of the United States Navy or any other navy, on mass shore liberty, can at any time provide, and always has provided, plenty of models for that kind of a picture. If the admiral doesn't know it he doesn't know much about his own men.

Granted that the United States Navy personnel is better behaved than that of any other navy, and much better than it was twenty-five years ago, there are men in every squadron and in every ship who, on shore leave, will get drunk and turn to the company of lights-o'-love as the sparks fly upward. And everybody who lives in a naval port of call or ever has lived there knows this as well as he knows the inside of his hat.

Admiral Rodman has been talking rubbish. Inland people who never see a Navy sailor unless he is home on leave to visit his folks may accept such a statement at its face value; but those who see the gob often and in numbers know plenty better.

It is just as ridiculous for Rodman to pretend that the Navy is full of Boy Scouts and Sunday School leaders as it would be for some one else to assert that all sailors are drunks and libertines. A thousand sailors go ashore and fifty of them get soused and disorderly that is one out of twenty for the wild list. But which crowd will attract the most attention and make the better picture for an artist, the 950 inconspicuous orderlies or the fifty conspicuous disorderlies, all lit up and making noise?

STOCK EXCHANGE BILL

The Stock Exchange Bill, as due to be reported today by the Senate Banking Committee, is not one of those measures which he who runs may read. It is complicated in its nature and involved in its phraseology and there is room in its many long sections for a hundred jokers and loopholes. On their own, the people of the country have very little to go upon in the forming of an opinion as to its merits or probable usefulness. Perhaps the best guide available in the circumstance is the opinion of Ferdinand Pecora, who as counsel for the Senate investigating committee brought out the amazing revelations which led to the introduction of the bill. Mr. Pecora is quoted as saying, "With the possible exception of Section 7, on margins, it will give the public protection that the investigation conducted by the committee shows the public should have."

The margin section referred to places the establishment of brokers' margin requirements in the hands of the special commission instead of in the hands of the Federal Reserve Board, as proposed by the House bill. This will probably contribute somewhat to public confidence in the Senate measure.

At all events it is plain that hereafter the stock exchanges and the banks are not going to have the free hand in the promotion of frenzied stock speculation that they have had in the past. The bill appears to be a serious attempt to curb the extent of stock gambling and to keep the public from being victimized as flagrantly as in the past. Perhaps that is as much as could have been expected of a first try at regulation of an activity that heretofore has had no law but its own sweet will and the theory that the public is a sucker to be led.

From Despair To Pulpit, Follows Conversion Here

Six Months Ago A Profligate Local Man Will Soon Be A Licensed Preacher In Nazarene Church Assembly.

Six months ago a profligate whose despairing ways during were the despair of members of his family and the focal point of opprobrium on the part of neighbors, a member of the Nazarene church today is a clean-cut, upstanding follower of Christ by reason of his conversion to the faith through the uplifting ministrations of Rev. Mabel Manning, a delegate to the New England Nazarene Conference being held this week in Manchester.

Not only has this man pulled himself by the bootstraps out of the drags of iniquity to embrace the Christian religion, but he also has so far advanced himself in the tenets of Nazareneism that he has applied for and been granted a license to preach in the Canadian Province of Nova Scotia.

Revealed at the revival meeting last night as a drunkard and dope fiend the newly acquired convert first saw the light while attending a service conducted by Rev. Mabel Manning. He marched to the altar, accepting Christ without equivocation and thenceforth has been a pillar of the church and a devoted disciple of the Master.

"Baby" Church

Tucked away in a tiny room in a hall in Woonsocket, R. I., is the "baby" church of the Nazarene group in New England. Established only three weeks ago, it lays claim to a membership of only 14 persons. Rev. Ralph Earle, a student pastor, who will be ordained here Sunday, has been the minister and will continue there in that capacity.

Rev. Mr. Earle was educated at the Eastern Nazarene College in Wollaston, Mass., and is a graduate of Gordon College in Boston.

The largest church in the Nazarene group is the Nazarene Church of Malden, which has a membership of 804 men, women and children. Rev. Seiden Dee Kelley is the pastor.

Oldest Church

The oldest church in the People's church of Providence, R. I., which was organized in 1886 and has functioned actively ever since. Rev. George D. Riley is the pastor, but he is leaving this year to accept the pastorate of the Nazarene Church of Brookton, Mass. Rev. Mr. Riley has put in nine years of faithful service at the Providence church. He is to be succeeded by the Rev. Kimber Moulton, of Augusta, Me.

The Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Nazarene churches in New England last year raised $10,000 to carry on missionary work. This sum compares with $7,000 obtained the year before. The general financial condition of the Nazarene group also has been reported as excellent.

"How is it done?" an inquiring reporter asked one of the church officials today.

Thinking System

"Simple enough," was the reply. "All of our finances are secured through what we term the 'storehouse thinking' system. This means that every member is expected to contribute at least 10 per cent of his weekly income to the church. Of course, more is sought if additional money is needed for a special expenditure, but the 10 per cent covers running expenses."

FOREIGN MISSIONS ASSEMBLY TOPIC

Educational Rally to Be Held Tonight in the Nazarene Church.

The second day of the business sessions of the New England District Assembly of the Church of the Nazarene closed with a great Foreign Missions Rally.

Satisfying Reports

In the morning the devotional service was led by Rev. Russell V. DeLong. The reports of the pastors and the elders without a charge continued during the day. Thirty-two pastors evangelists and licensed ministers gave reports in the course of the day. Most of these reports brought great inspiration to the listeners as they heard of the battles fought, the sacrifices made, and the victories won during the year. Of special interest was the reporting of the new churches organized at Franklin, Mass., and at Woonsocket, R. I. A report was brought from Rev. Arthur Ingier, the composer of the famous song "The Pearly White City," who is very ill. In honor to him, Rev. Mabel Manning requested that the song which proved a great blessing to the congregation. Rev. Mary Cove, the General Second Vice-President of the Women's Missionary society, reported over 1200 children in the Junior Missionary society. There is also a group of children called Junior Reserves. The growth of the group has been remarkably increasing from 1250 to 3000 in four and one half months. Each year this group buys a boys' and girls' school building in a different foreign field. Last year the children raised about $2000.

One of those reporting was Mrs. Minerva Marshall, a returned missionary from Africa. While there she translated scores of songs and hymns of the church into the native Zulu language.

During the day and evening several special songs were sung by Rev. Mabel Manning, Mrs. A. F. Gallup, Prof. Haldor Lillenas, and the male quartet from the Eastern Nazarene College of Wollaston, Mass.

Church Schools

An important item on the program in the afternoon was the report of the Church School Committee. Rev. S. D. Kelley the chairman, reported that in the past year the Nazarene Sunday schools in this district contributed $2771 to the General Budget of the church, for all purposes the 78 Sunday schools raised $11,490. From these Sunday schools 208 members were received into the Nazarene church in the New England District. Prof. Lillenas gave a short talk on the proper use of music in the Sunday school. He said that appropriate songs for all planned for each department; gospels songs and short choruses were best for the children. Prof. Russell V. DeLong, former president of the Northwest Nazarene College located at Nampa, Idaho, said that the purpose of the Sunday school was to prepare the child's heart that finally he may be brought to a knowledge of personal salvation, and that the work should be sustained and conserved. He quoted from several sources showing the need of religious education; his first quotation was from former President Hoover who said: "America will go where the youth determined to go." Again quoting, "Let one generation refuse to accept the religion of the Lord Jesus Christ and the world will return to paganism." Another quotation was: "If the coming generation is not more spiritual than the present generation I have failed." And again: "A church that cannot save her young people can never save the world." He ended by saying that it was necessary to fill up the subconscious reservoirs of youth with good things to insure strong moral character at maturity.

Rev. C. E. Strang emphasized the bringing into church membership of the Sunday school scholars after they have accepted Christ as their Savior. The children will take their membership seriously. Dr. Chapman, the presiding officer then spoke a few words saying that the Sunday school was a great medium of publicity for the church. It is the best place to supply the minimum of religious knowledge, to bring to him about personal salvation.

Rev. Gould Speaks

At the evening missionary rally Dr. J. G. Morrison the General Secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions, shared the pulpit with another great missionary enthusiastic in the person of Rev. J. Glenn Gould, pastor of the Church of the Nazarene at Baltimore, Md. Rev. Gould gave the missionary creed from Romans 1:14, 15, 16 "I am not ashamed, I am ready, I am not ashamed for I believe in the transforming experience brought about by the power of the gospel. I am ready by all means

Return From Vacation In Bermuda

Here are Mrs. Lundberg and Dr. G. A. F. Lundberg, aboard the incoming Purcell liner, S. S. Monarch of Bermuda, in New York yesterday returning from a sojourn in Bermuda. Dr. Lundberg resumed his practice of medicine and surgery here today.

within my hands to preach the Gospel anywhere. Are you ready? Are the fires of missionary passion burning low in your heart? We need a renaissance of passion for a needy world. We must not withhold our prayers, or our gifts, or our children from the work of the Kingdom in foreign lands. Paul said he would risk every hazard, and pay any price to preach the gospel. May God give us this missionary creed in our hearts in such power that it will work out in our lives."

Three banners were then given to the Junior societies giving the most money during the year. The Springfield society received the first banner, the South Portland, Maine received the second, and the Leicester, Vt. society received the third banner.

Dr. J. G. Morrison then delivered the last address basing his remarks on the Great Commission as found in Matt. 28: 8-20. In part he said: "All nations of the earth have just barely been entered with the Gospel and there are yet millions who have never heard of Jesus Christ." The Nazarene church has missionary work in Japan, China, India, Jerusalem, Ceylon, South Africa, Scotland, Cape Verde Islands, and South America. The sun never sets on our Nazarene work. We have in all twelve mission fields. There are over 5000 members in these stations and 6000 more on the waiting list and 6000 more who have died in the victory of the Gospel. These fields are calling constantly for more Bible training schools, more workers, and more money but our hands are tied. Where there is a will to supply these needs there are twenty ways. We must carry the burden more and work harder to forward this work that is so near to the heart of God. Our missionaries have paid the last full measure of devotion. They are ready to endure hardships, sacrificing all comforts, and ready to die in the foreign fields in the will of God than to be in America enjoying the comforts outside the will of God. The sun never sets on graves of the Nazarene missionaries."

Many Visitors

Due to there being a holiday in Massachusetts, a large number of visitors attended the sessions yesterday. Among those were Dr. and Mrs. J. Howard Sloan. Dr. Sloan is the District Superintendent of the New York District of the Church of the Nazarene.

Tonight there will be a great Educational Rally in the interests of the Eastern Nazarene College at Wollaston, Mass. There are to be several speakers, Dr. J. B. Chapman, President R. Wayne Gardner, Rev. E. G. Anderson the financial secretary, and others. The Nazarene male quartet will sing at this service.

LATEST STOCKS

New York, April 20.—(AP)—The Stock Market was a highly indolent affair today and unimportant price changes generally seemed to indicate that most traders and investors were in a waiting mood.

Little attention apparently was paid to grains which were still a bit easy after recovering from an early decline. Silver and rubber improved, but cotton was inclined to follow the cereals. Foreign currencies exhibited renewed strength against the dollar. Bonds maintained their firm position.

Utility shares drew a following, with Consolidated Gas, Public Service of New Jersey, North American and American Water Works advancing sizable fractions. The gold mining group steadied after yesterday's reversal. Silver issues, however, were somewhat lower. The motors and rails were virtually motionless. Some of the alcohol dropped. American Telephone, U. S. Steel, Western Union, United Aircraft, and American Can were about unchanged.

A more than seasonal gain in freight car loadings was helpful to sentiment. For the week ended April 14, loadings showed an increase of 20,950 over the previous week and 80,655 over the corresponding 1933 period. The seasonal gain should have been about 5,000 cars. The fact that most of the increase was in miscellaneous shipments was seen as evidence that the forward pace of trade and industry was still vigorous.

The financial sector was pleased by the vote of the Senate banking and currency committee to report the amended stock regulation bill. The measure, in its present form, sets up an independent board of five members to administer the law and leave the question of emergency up to this board.

Market commentators generally held the view that an important movement in securities could be expected pending the final disposal of current legislative proposals. Public participation was said to be still at a minimum and foreign interest in American securities was lukewarm.

BREWERY UNDER PROBE

Hartford, April 20.—(AP)—The second brewery to be summoned before the state liquor control commission since the new liquor laws went into effect was the Lagay Brewing Company of Waterbury, which was before the commission on Thursday for alleged violation of regulations.

The hearing was continued until next Thursday. It is claimed the brewery has a "drop" or storage place in the city of Norwich from which shipments are made to customers in that section of the state. The place however, is said not to have had the approval of the commission and consequently is being illegally used.

NO STRIKE SETTLEMENT

Hartford, April 20.—(AP)—Strikers at several Hartford county plants and employers, continued conferences today with no intimation being given as to whether definite progress was being made or whether settlements could be effected in the near future.

Officials at the Arrowhart and Hegeman Company where employees are demanding a 25 per cent increase in wages, would not comment on the situation other than to say "It remains in status quo." At the headquarters of the strikers it was declared that conferences would continue "all the time" and that if the company did not yield to the demands of the workers "we'll spend the summer out in the open air and sunshine."

PROF. HEDLEY SPEAKS AT SUNDAY SERVICE

Newly Organized Church To Be on Program at Second Congregational Church.

Professor George Hedley of the Hartford Seminary foundation will be the speaker, and the newly organized men's chorus will sing. Numbers at the evening service Sunday at 8 o'clock in the Second Congregational church. Professor Hedley has become a very popular speaker in this vicinity and is conducting various teachers' institutes, including the one in this town now being held for five consecutive Monday evenings. He has also been chosen as one of the speakers for the state Christian Endeavor convention in Torrington on the 4th, 5th and 6th of May.

His subject Sunday evening will be "For Such An Age as This." The church orchestra will play, and a large attendance of the members and friends is hoped for.

ARMY PLANE DAMAGED

Toledo, April 20.—(AP)—An Army bombing plane, flying from Cleveland to Chicago, was damaged last night at the Toledo Transcontinental Airport, when a signaling mechanism in the ship failed to indicate that its retractable gear was not in position for landing. The pilot, Lieut. Merl Estes, Cleveland was not injured.

The ROMANTIC RUNAWAY

by KATHARINE HAVILAND-TAYLOR

BEGIN HERE TODAY

PABLITO, a handsome youth who has been accused of a murder he did not commit, escapes from Key West to Havana with two thieves, BEAU and LOETIE. MARCIA TREADWAY, who could prove Pablito innocent, takes scandal and remains silent.

In Havana Pablito, under the name of "Juanito," becomes celebrated as a boxer and he and Beau open a gymnasium.

Pablito loves ESTELLE FIELD, daughter of rich JIM FIELD, and she loves him. They meet and plan to marry, but Field takes Estelle on a yachting cruise. Two years later, believing Pablito lost to her, she becomes engaged to ALEC DAVIDS.

SIE AUBREY, a staid Englishman and Pablito's father, has been carrying on a search for him, and is playing BILLINGS, New York detective.

Believing Estelle faithless, Pablito spends months in aimless travel and then returns to Havana. He asks Lottie to marry him.

Meanwhile Field has lost his fortune. David breaks his engagement to Estelle and she and her father decide to return to Havana. Marcia Treadway, learning Pablito is in Cuba, joins them to clear him of the murder charge.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLIV

At last, thought Marcia, she was on her way to tell the story that, kept secret, had been such a terrific burden. For a moment she closed her eyes and opened them, she saw above a flower-laden window sill one of the tiny lights that burns always below a shrine in so many Cuban homes. The shrine, together with the loveliness of the landscape, impressed her and brought a softening of mood. Marcia, on her way to confession, thought of Cuba as she never had before—a land that kneels to the forgiving, gentle Virgin; that feels the sunlight and sings often. A warm land. A happy land.

The taxi cab lurched, avoiding a go-cart and her kid. A moment later it almost brushed a group of bare, brown babies, playing in the dust. Soon they left behind the crowded houses and narrow, twisting streets touched here and there by the sun. They were following a road of red soil that wound past the thinning dwellings to reach the country where houses were merely grass-thatched huts.

"It is here that he lives," the taxi cab driver said, as he halted the cab before a grocery store. "Upstairs."

She got out and looked about. The grocer's force came hurrying out to see the stranger. While being thus inspected Marcia rang the bell.

Lottie peered down the stairs through the grilled gate at the new-comer. "Whatcha want?" she inquired sullenly.

"I have come to see Senor Juanito."

"What for?"

"That my child, is hardly your affair," Marcia answered coolly. "Is he in?"

"Subduing this amazing creature would have been simple enough for Marcia if they had been on the same level. Looking up made it more difficult.

Lottie appraised the visitor as frankly as had the grocer and his clerk. "He ain't here," she said loudly, for Pablito and her answer and appeared behind her.

"No," Marcia questioned, smiling. She drew back the grilled gate which Lottie had clicked open from above at the touch of the bell. Marcia stepped from the glare of the sunlight and began to mount the stairs.

Pablito recognized her and lost color. Lottie's lips set in the meer she always summoned as a cover for fright. She did not like this. She had a definite feeling that something was wrong.

Marcia, now on the level with Lottie and Pablito, spoke quickly. "You may not remember me, Pablito," she began. "But—"

"I remember you very well, Miss Treadway," he answered honestly. "Will you sit down?"

"Thank you. I want to speak to you alone, please."

"I think you'll find it more comfortable by the doorway," Pablito suggested. He had always had that courteous manner, Marcia remembered as she sat down. She saw him glance appealingly at the girl who stood, sullen and obstinate, her eyes narrowed and her head a little drooped.

"Lottie, if you don't mind—" he began gently.

"Say, I ain't dirt!" Lottie answered in a shrill voice. "She can't come here and wipe her feet on me!"

He shook his head and suddenly the girl was sullen and silent.

"If you don't mind, Lottie," he said again and more gently.

"Oh, all right!" she said, moving toward a doorway with opaque glass panes. A moment later the panes were threatened as she slammed the door noisily.

Pablito faced Marcia Treadway then. He settled in a chair that was sufficiently close to hers for a low-voiced talk, and waited. As he waited he saw that something was making it difficult for her to speak.

"If you don't mind, I'll smoke," she murmured. "Odd, isn't it, how smoke clears the mind as it clogs the lungs?"

"Will you have one of these?" Pablito rose as he spoke and brought a small humidor which he laid open before her.

"English!" she commented.

"Yes, I learned to like them from an English friend of mine. You may care for them. I hope you are well, Miss Treadway?" He could not see for the life of him, imagine she had brought her.

"I'm quite well, thank you."

Marcia answered. "But—to explain my visit—"

Speaking was even less easy for her now, he saw. He waited patiently. Her cigarette hardly lighted, had gone out. Nervously she crushed it in a tray and took another. He struck a match and held it for her.

His assurance made the matter all the more difficult. She thought suddenly. "He could not possibly have committed such a crime! How could they have accused him of it?"

Then she said, "I have been trying for years to find you. Oh, don't be afraid! You have nothing whatever to fear from me! It's rather the other way—"

Falteringly but bravely she told her story. Half way through the narrative he broke in to say, "But the old man was beating the child—?"

She testified that you were not alone. He said there were two other people with you; a man and a girl—"

"He testified?" Pablito echoed stupidly.

"Yes, yes! You didn't think—?"

"I thought he was dead," he answered and for a moment closed his eyes.

Before Marcia left Lottie sought Beau. She said excitedly, "I've been listening."

"Whatcha talkin' about?" Beau demanded shortly.

She told him. "She's still in there," Lottie finished with a backward nod of her head. "Says she wants to tell the whole thing."

He was on his feet instantly and after one hunted look about the room began throwing clothing into a yawning traveling bag. Lottie sank to the edge of the bed.

"What about Lou?" she asked.

"Don't you tell her until I'm on my way!" Beau said emphatically. "Understand?" For an instant he turned to glare at her.

"There's a boat outa Santiago tomorrow mornin'," she suggested.

"That's too late."

"That's not all," she said but what said for Key West and New York."

"Oh, shut up! I don't need a nurse."

"There's a little boat sailing fer the Isle of Pines. If you wasn't afraid of waitin' around there a week you might try that."

"Listen, kid, you book your own reservations. I'll make mine. Wonder if I got everything?" He looked around quickly.

"I'd hate to see you sent up, Beau."

"Say—they'll never get me!" He picked up the bag, his hat and a light coat. "So long, kid," he said. "Maybe we'll meet in hell if not before."

"We been together a long while, Beau."

"Sure have!" he agreed. With a little emotion that made his voice rough he added, "Well, kiss me."

She raised her face.

He descended the rear staircase and stepped into the taxi cab that was waiting for Marcia, smiling as he did so. The lady, he told the driver, had decided to remain indefinitely. "Ah!" murmured the driver. He looked over his shoulder slyly and he and Beau exchanged a fraternal, understanding wink.

But Beau's self-confidence dwindled as they neared Havana. The get-away was not going to be so easy. "Damn it," he muttered half-aloud. "This is what comes of neglectin' business. I'm as scared as when I quit Sing Sing."

The memory of Lottie's goody-bag clung to him, too. Lottie was a good kid. "An awful good kid," Beau reflected mournfully. "If I'd married her it would have saved me a lotta trouble." He was thinking of Lou.

When I was in the west I drove to the earthquake coast to see what the recent shock had done.

Naturally much of the damage has been repaired, debris has given way to new buildings and except in a few cases there was little evidence of the holocaust of a few months ago.

But the school houses as a rule presented the same stark gauntness that the horror-stricken citizens beheld at six o'clock on that historical fatal evening. At five-thirty the earth shook, an hour or so after dismissal. At six it was all over. The only school children hurt or killed were in their homes, on the streets, or in the stores.

"Why," I asked my guide, "have not the schools been rebuilt, or restored? And where are the children going to school?"

"They are," he pointed out, "in temporary quarters wherever there is room. Some are in tents."

"Haven't they had time to do something about these buildings?" I asked.

"Some of them look as though it would take very little money to fix them up and make them safe."

But, according to my guide, thereby hangs a tail. As everybody knows now, school funds are low. They not only permit no new building, but even the necessary repairs. And to add a bit of gossip it seems that some of the buildings were discovered to have been under par according to safety standards even before the quake.

So there they stood, gaunt ghosts of misfortune representing millions of dollars in tax money that probably can never be matched again. And the children are going to school where they may.

The buildings may have been safe. One has to discount the careless word of a bystander. An earthquake is no respecter of columns or carvings. Yet within stone throws were high apartment buildings that did not lose a tile or a cornice. Steel reinforced—solid, impregnable.

Beautiful school buildings are one thing—safe ones another. Only God himself got those children out before the roofs and walls crashed into the rooms where hundreds of little children were singing "Our Country 'Tis of Thee" only an hour before.

Thinking it over I have come to a conclusion. We may have bronze statues, swimming pools and murals in our most expensive schools, but are they always safe? Earthquakes occur only in certain sections of the land, but fires play no favorites, or even tornadoes.

Is the fire hose rotten? Are there regular fire-drills?

Is the heating system safe? Are there regular inspections for leaks? Are roofs inspected to bear the weights of heavy snows?

Are the stairs safe? And what is the foundation like? When buildings settle—look out. Is the cement good? Sand without enough cement is about as safe as putty.

It doesn't matter what a school building looks like. What does matter is its safety.

Before long new school will be out. In some rural districts it is already dismissed. This is the time for building inspectors to make an honest report and for school boards to harken to expert opinion.

It is the unexpected that happens. Then there is a flurry of explanations and alibis.

There is no alibi where the lives of children are concerned. It does not do to take it for granted that "The Titanic Is Unsinkable." Regular inspections of buildings are the most necessary things in our whole educational system.

DISORDERS OF THE GUMS

The number of people with some type of disorder affecting the gums would surprise you, if you could stand here beside me and look over my shoulder while I am reading the letters sent to me each day. It is said that at least four out of five people develop some kind of gum disorder.

One kind of common trouble with the gums is that known as Trench Mouth. It was given this name because the soldiers suffered from it in the trenches. Its rapid spread is aided by the fact that it is contagious and one with a mouth with lowered resistance in the gum tissues may easily catch it.

Pyorrhea is the name of another troublesome gum disorder. The popular name for these gum diseases is "Pink Tooth Brush."

The normal gum is a faint pink, firm, does not hurt or bleed, and grips the tooth closely, performing its normal function of supporting the tooth structure. Sick gums are either the opposite; they are often a dark red, showing an excessive congestion of blood, or are grayish around the edges; they are soft and spongy; a painful sensation may be present; they bleed easily; and instead of holding the tooth properly, they shrink away from it.

Gum disorders impart a bad odor to the breath but a more serious result is that in advanced cases, they may bring about the loss of all of the affected teeth. The presence of unhealthy gum tissue may easily cause symptoms elsewhere in the body when the poisons from the pus pockets which often form, are absorbed. Many stubborn forms of rheumatism are made worse through the absorption of pus caused by a gum infection.

The most important cause of any kind of gum disorder is poor diet. After continuing on a diet which is wrongly combined, and also lacking in certain elements, the patient first develops a mild case of hyperacidity which goes unnoticed and then gradually the gum disorder starts.

Lack of vitamin C in the diet is an important cause of gum troubles as a host report and for school boards to harken to expert opinion.

It is the unexpected that happens. Then there is a flurry of explanations and alibis.

There is no alibi where the lives of children are concerned. It does not do to take it for granted that "The Titanic Is Unsinkable." Regular inspections of buildings are the most necessary things in our whole educational system.

All God's chillun' got the blues this spring.

Whether it's to give our feelings the lie or to publicize them we're wearing all shades of that flattering color from the palest azure to the deepest midnight. The pure originality of contrasting lingerie touches, however, onset any monotony the eternal blues may give us.

The jacket dress at the left of the sketch is of navy crepe with a high neck and removable vest on the frock of pale blue waffle pique. The jacket has huge cuffs and lapel facings of the same pique. Square navy buttons fasten the coat and trim cuffs.

In the center, navy is again used for a jacket and frock ensemble of crepe with an enormous collar of natural linen. The jacket is two-third length and swaggers with wide cuffs on the rather short sleeves. Bunches of gray artificial fruit placed at either side of the neck add color to the outfit.

A light dull blue crepe forms the suit at the right of the sketch. Narrow pleating bands the skirt and jacket at intervals. The sleeve fullness is released from inverted unpressed pleats stitched down to midway between the shoulder and elbow. The cuffs and the very unusual double collar are of white cotton braid stitched together in a loop pattern. A pert little bow of brown grosgrain finishes the neckline.

IN NEW YORK

By PAUL HARRISON

New York, April 20. — Twenty-seven handsome girls sat around the large room and dined.

"I wish they'd hurry up," complained a tall titan to a slinky brunette. "Every time I go to one of these things I have to sit around while they pick somebody else, and then I just got time for a sandwich before I have to rush to the theater."

"Yeah," murmured the brunette, gracefully crossing her knees as one of the judges looked in her direction.

It was a contest to select the most beautiful girl in the Ziegfeld Follies. Officials: assorted press agents and six artist-judges, the Messrs. Howard Chandler Christy, Jeff Machamer, Penryn Stanlows, Dean Cornwall, Ben All Haggin and Russell Patterson. Spectators: newspaper and movie photographers, reporters, gate-crashers. Scene: private lounge in a big hotel.

"Will you ladies please stand up a minute," said Mr. Christy. The ladies arose languidly, smoothed dresses, touched coiffures, struck Pose No. 35-A. "Thank you; you may sit down," said Mr. Cornwall. The ladies melted into their chairs. Twelve lit cigarettes. Nine faintly flashed the cherries out of their Manhattan cocktails and nibbled at them. None drank more than a sip. A blonde turned a 10,000 candlepower glare on me and said: "I'm so glad you're one of the judges. I've always just dored your illustrations. I expect to be an artist myself some time. I think you draw the most beautiful girls of anybody. Twelve lit cigarettes. Nine faintly flashed the cherries out of their Manhattan cocktails and nibbled at them. None drank more than a sip. ## LEADING AMATEURS OF NATION SAIL TOMORROW FOR GOLF WARS ABROAD

Walker Cup Team to Meet Great Britain in Eighth Renewal of Series; Confidence of Keeping Slate Clean; To Be Feted Tonight.

New York, April 29.—(AP)—Nine leading amateur golfers of the nation, including the U. S. open and amateur champions, gathered in New York today preparatory to starting an ocean voyage which ultimately will lead to St. Andrews in Scotland for the international Walker cup matches with Great Britain, May 11 and 12. The team sails tomorrow noon on the Caldonia.

Francis Oulmet, the team captain came down from Boston; Chandler Egan, the 50 year old, marvel arrived from the Pacific coast; Gus Moreland came up from Texas. They were joined by George T. Dunlap, Jr. and Johnny Goodman, amateur and open kings, respectively, Jack Westland of Chicago, Johnny Fischer of Cincinnati, Max Marston of Philadelphia and Lawson Little of San Francisco.

Together they are considered one of the strongest aggregations of the United States Golf Association has ever sent abroad. Oulmet has played on every Walker Cup team. Marston, Westland, Dunlap and Moreland also have played in previous cup matches.

The matches to be played over the famous royal and ancient golf course will be the eighth renewal of the series, with the British yet to score a victory.

The members of the team will be the dinner guests tonight of Herbert Jaques, president of the U. S. Golf Association. The only outsider expected to attend is Bobby Jones.

"I don't see any reason why the boys should not keep the slate clean," Bobby said.

VENZKE TO OPPOSE CUNNINGHAM AGAIN

Ace Runners to Clash in Special Mile Race Tomorrow in Kansas Relays.

Lawrence, Kas., April 29.—(AP)—Track stars from 40 western colleges and universities along with Gene Venzke, long contender from the East, started their legs today in preparation for the first major test of the outdoor season—the twelfth annual Kansas relays.

As the record seekers flocked in and the experts wondered whether Venzke's presence could press Kansas' own Glenn Cunningham to a new world mark for the mile tomorrow, a field of eight plunged into the first half of the Missouri Valley A. A. U. decathlon. The ten-event test will be completed Saturday morning.

Among the scores of competitors are several members of the 1932 U. S. Olympic team. They include Ivan Fuqua of Indiana and his teammate Charley Hornbostel, who equaled the world half-mile record at Chicago last year; and Cunningham and Clyde Coffman, both of the University of Kansas.

The Indiana aces are the principal threats on the Hoosier relay teams which set a new meet record of 317.2 for the mile baton-passing event here last year.

Cunningham will run a special invitation mile race tomorrow, including Jay Berwanger, University of Chicago sophomore football hero; Arnold Preheim, Yankton, (S. D.) college, who placed sixth in the National A. A. U. at Chicago last year, and Russell Pearson of the Central Missouri State Teachers college.

ELECT BOB COLEMAN HOLY NAME MANAGER

Church Baseball Team to Practice Sunday Afternoon at Hickey's Grove.

A baseball team has been organized by St. Bridget's Holy Name Society and at the first meeting of the organization last night Robert Coleman was elected manager and William Miner, publicity manager. The team will practice at Hickey's Grove Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. All members and others intending to try out for the team are requested to be present at the practice session.

4th Sweepstakes On Tap At Charter Oak Tonight

The Charter Oak alleys on Oak street will be the scene of the fourth in a series of seven one-ball sweepstakes tonight, when another large entry list of the town's leading pin-topplers is expected to compete for the cash awards, that total $10. The first three events have been most successful, drawing an average of over sixty entries at each.

The winners to date have been John "Sparky" Saidella, Joe Twaronite and Guido Giorgetti. Still competition is expected tonight to keep this trio from placing first again. A three string mark of better than 195 is almost certain to place in the money, while a single of 80 is figured to clinch the singles award.

WINNER OF BOSTON RUN TRAINED ON SNOWSHOES

Dave Komonen, 35 Year Old Mine Carpenter, Tells How He Got Stamina to Lead Crack Field of 193 Entries Over 26-Mile Course.

Boston, April 29.—(AP)—Finnish runners are supposed to know all about distance running but Dave Komonen, 35-year-old mine carpenter, had to immigrate to Canada to learn how to win the famous Boston A. A. marathon.

This wiry runner, who has been living in Toronto and Sudbury, Ont., for five years, believes snowshoeing gave him the stamina needed to lead yesterday's crack field of 193 over the 26 miles, 385 yards of hills and lane that stretch from a Hopkinton farm to the B. A. A.'s clubhouse in the Back Bay.

"I trained for this race on snowshoes," he said through an interpreter, "running 15 and 20 miles a day. When you take them off and run on bare ground, your feet feel like feathers. Foot running is much easier than snowshoeing."

Komonen had only two real threats against his success, Johnny Kelley, young Medford runner who finished second, and Bill Steiner, cocky New York German, who placed third after leading the field for 16 miles.

Komonen was clocked in 2:23.55, Kelley in 2:36.50 and Steiner in 2:45. Pawson, 1933 winner, had dropped out after 17 miles, as did smiling Jimmy Henigan, the 1931 victor. Paul DeBruyn of New York, 1932 winner, ended in thirteenth place. Clarence Demar, a seven-times winner, finished in sixteenth place and old Bill Kennedy of Port Chester, N. Y., who won in 1917, was about three minutes behind him.

The first 37 finishers: Dave Komonen, Sudbury, Ont.; John Kelley, Medford; Bill Steiner, New York; Alex Burnside, Toronto; Carl Koski, New York; Gordon Norman, Beverly; William McManis, Pawtucket, R. I.; Percy Wyan, Toronto.

Dave Fagerland, New York; William Molloy, Medford; Mel Porter, New York; John Semple, Beverly; Paul DeBruyn, New York; Gus Johnson, Lansing, Kans.; Charles Welch, Medford; Clarence Demar, Keene, N. H.

Bill Kennedy, Port Chester, N. Y.; Harry Sherman, Cumberland, R. I.; Paul Cassano, Medford; Anti Jankela, Toronto; Jean Berthelot, New York; Johnny Mayne, Toronto; Charles Brederson, Pawtucket, R. I.

George Rolland, New York; William Ruckel, New York; Edward Wolowski, New York; Joe Plouffe, Toronto.

WITH THE WALKER CUPPERS Jack Westland

Chicagoan to "Come Back" To St. Andrew's As He Promised In 1929.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a series of articles on the careers and personalities of the eight members of America's 1934 Walker cup golf team.

By PAUL NICKELSON (Associated Press Sports Writer)

Chicago, April 29.—(AP)—A young American lingered hopefully at the starter's tent at historic St. Andrews five years ago, his entry in the British amateur golf championship refused, his heart broken.

"Well, I'll be back," he promised the starting officials as he strode away, dejected and weary.

And back to the ancient battleground of golf the same fellow is coming in May, not as a comparatively unknown, but as Jack Westland, a star member of America's 1934 Walker cup team.

If the American team needs an added incentive this year in the big cup battle at St. Andrews, Westland will supply it. Since that day in 1929 when the British tournament officials advised him his entry had been received 12 hours too late, Jack has been burning with an intense desire to play in the Walker cup matches and the British championships.

The Inspiration He Needed There is no rancor in his heart against the British, as he believes in golf rules, but he cannot forget that time when he made an ocean voyage over there only to be shut out by a late entry.

That incident probably did as much as anything to make a golf champion out of Westland. From St. Andrews he went over to win the French amateur title again a good field, which included his traveling mate, Johnny Dawson, who had gone to the semi-finals of the British amateur that same year.

Since then Westland has been Western amateur champion, finalist in the American national amateur in 1931 and Chicago's front ranking golfer—in fact, so superior to his Chicago field that he was this year given the unprecedented ranking of "plus one."

Westland, probably golf's most famous "poker face," claims the distinction of being one of the few amateur stars of today who did not learn the game from a professional. He is a Canadian now residing at Everett, Wash., taught Jack.

Peculiar Putting Stance A 70 shooter himself, the elder Westland took his son out golfing at the age of 12 and had him breaking before he was 17 years old. Today Jack is 29, tall, straight, equipped with muscles of steel and one of the best fighting hearts in the game. Westland can play a par tune with his woods and short irons, but his finest work is done with an old rusty putter he has kept in his bag for 15 years and one of the most peculiar putting stances in golf.

When he puts, Jack cocks his head around so far that only his left eye glimpses the ball, giving one the impression that he is about to putt away from the hole. How he can hit his putts so brilliantly with such an aim is a mystery of golf.

Office Fails Make It Tough Jack, who played on the University of Washington links team in his college days and won the Pacific Coast collegiate title in addition to placing in the finals of the national collegiate, also rates as the most silent of players. During a match he seldom talks or smiles.

Right now he can't talk much anyway. In the same brokerage office with him in Chicago are two former national amateur champions, Chick Evans and Bob Gardner. Each has played on three victorious cup teams, and they vow they'll run Jack out of the office if he and his mates lose this year.

"So how can I talk?" Westland wants to know.

AFTERNOON TILT DRAWS CROWD OF 34,000 FANS VICTORIES TIE THE SERIES

LITTLE AND KIPKE ANSWER GRID FOES Famous Coaches Do Not Believe Football Is Being Over Emphasized Now.

Cleveland, April 29.—(AP)—Any critics inclined to cry over-emphasis at college football are subject to a good hard tackle from Lou Little and Harry Kipke.

"Concerning the evils of gate receipts," Little told a thousand members of the Physical Education Association last night, "I think that bugaboo has been largely overgrown. The Columbia coach, whose team captured the Rose Bowl game this year was backed up by Kipke, whose Michigan squad took the Big Ten title last season. There have been times, said Kipke, when he has been tentatively subscribed to the over-emphasis charge, but now football is "remarkably clean, with few exceptions," he asserted.

"I am not what is known in some circles as a rah-rah coach," said Little. "I mean, I do not believe in preaching to football players that it is their duty to represent the college on the gridiron."

"If a boy loves the rugged contact and action of football, he should play. If not, he should not."

Indians Top Browns, 3-2 White Sox Edge Tigers, Yanks Drub A's, Giants Blank Phils, Cubs Down Reds, Bucs Trim Cardinals

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR. (Associated Press Sports Writer) The Boston Red Sox, picking Patriots Day, a strictly Bostonian holiday, as their starting point, already have begun to pay dividends on Owner Tom Yawkey's big investments in them.

Shagging Wins After dropping two tough decisions to Washington's Senators, the Sox made it all up yesterday by trimming the 1933 league champions in both halves of the holiday double-header, 5 to 4 and 7 to 3. Julius Roberts, big out-felder from Elmira, won the morning contest with a ninth inning home run.

The afternoon drew 34,000 fans, the largest crowd since the rebuilding process began. They saw the Red Sox pound three pitchers for 3 1/2 hits which Johnny Welch tossed in a five hit hurling job to make the victory sure.

The terrific clouting continued right down the American League line with the single exception of the Cleveland-St. Louis dual, and the Indians won the tie when Joe Vosselli clouted a 400 foot line homer with one on in the eighth. The score was 3 to 2.

Tigers Lose First Chicago's White Sox added the Detroit Tigers to the list of clubs which have lost one game pouncing on a 3 to 1 victory. The New York Yankees outwitted the Athletics in a home run dual, 10 to 4, as four batters by Bill Dickey and Tony Lasser proved more effective than a pair of Bob Johnson.

The world champion Giants played the National League heroes the day when they turned four hits, one a homer by Bill Terry, off Fidelity Phil Collins into a 3 to 0 victory over the Phillies.

Brooklyn and Boston provided one of the early season oddities in a 1-1 seven inning tie, a thick fog which rolled in obscure the outfield, forced the umpires to call the game. Walter Brook of the Dodgers allowed only three hits.

Pat Malone's five hit hurling plus some timely hitting against Paul Derringer gave the Cubs their third straight triumph over Cincinnati, 4 to 1. The Pittsburgh Pirates refused to follow the rest of the league and piled up 19 assorted hits to trim the Cardinals 14 to 4.

The meeting was told that a survey from 1922 to 1930 showed 2,120 accidents resulting from baseball on which $156,994 was paid in damage claims. Figures for football for the same period showed 373 accidents costing $24,400.

Damage Awards Many For Baseball Accidents

Pittsburgh, April 29.—(AP)—Baseball leads all major sports in the number of accidents resulting in damage awards while the more rough-and-tumble game of football trials at the end with the fewest.

Hunting, a less popular sport, heads the list in total damage claims, however, according to reports made to the Pittsburgh Safety Engineers Conference last night. The conference was arranged by the Western Pennsylvania safety council.

The statistics were given by W. H. Cameron, managing director of the National Safety Council.

FUN A-FISHIN'

By JIMMY DONAHUE NEA Service Sports Writer

Early season trout fishing is hard on the dry fly purist. This more or less smooty individual is out of luck as a rule when it comes to filling his creel, because water conditions at this time of year aren't conducive to catching trout with floating flies.

For this reason the logical way to take trout is by means of underwater lures — minnows, angleworms, bucktails wet flies, or nymphs.

Above is a minnow, favored food of trout in high, roily water. . . . center is a bucktail fly . . . and below is the same bucktail, which has taken on the shape of a minnow due to action of the water.

nymphs. And yet fly used during this period is taken as a nymph because, since there are no hatches, there are no dead flies in the water.

During this period of year, bucktails are exceptionally effective. Tied on long-shanked hooks, from size 8 to 12, they are especially appealing to the larger trout which lurk in deep water at the end of a run or under a cut-in bank.

The appeal in these flies is in their resemblance to minnows. When wet, the hair clings to the body and tapers off to the shape of a minnow, and it is this attraction that catches your trout—especially the big brownies.

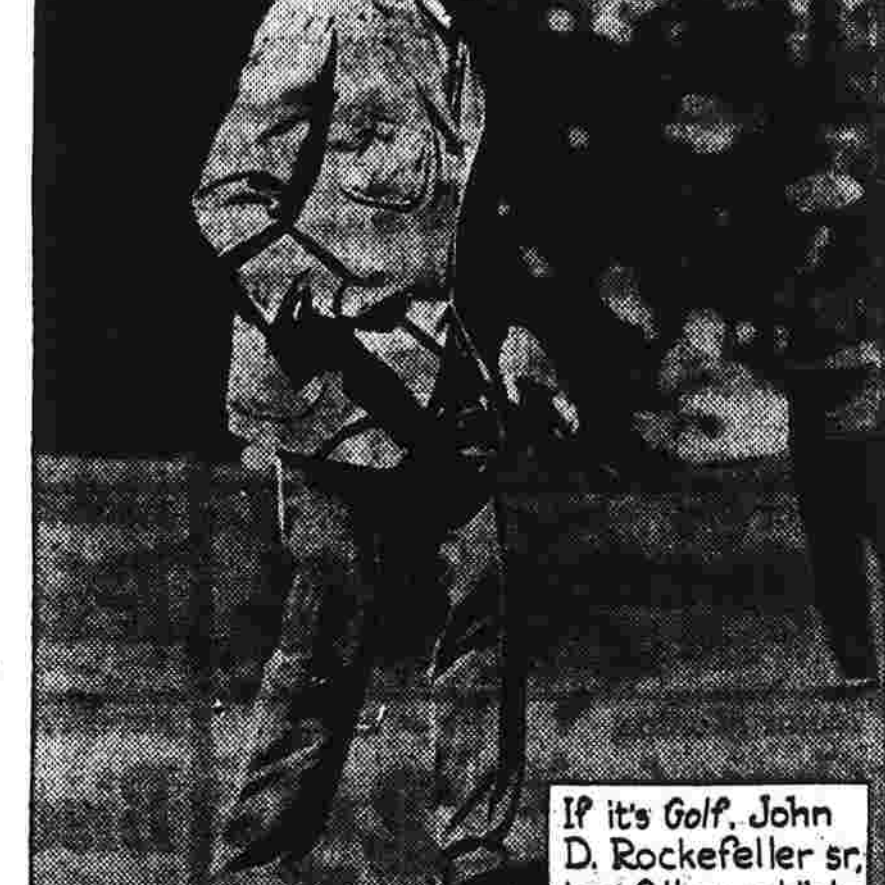

The same appeal is had in a streamer fly—the long feathers making up the tail of the fly cling together to form the minnow shape.

Fish the bucktail across and down during the spring. If heard up, it loses a lot of action until it washes down to a point where the line exerts a drag.

Local Sport Chatter

A scheduled practice game between the High School and a picked team from the West Side has been called off this week, as Coach Tom Kelly is devoting practice to stress on the fundamentals of the game.

As the High school will be out on vacation all next week, it is problematical how many more practices will be held before the season is opened against Rockville on April 30.

What with baseball team being formed in large numbers this season, the time has come to remind all teams that this department plans to cooperate imperially with all teams, providing the teams cooperate. All accounts of games must be turned in at the sports department immediately after the game is played and must be written on separate sheets.

Manchester High's track team is in action this afternoon at the West Side field against Hartford High, a team that pinned the first defeat in three seasons of dual competition on the locals last year.

Coach Pete Wiggen, whose genius has developed consistent winners over the last nine years, isn't given to optimism but if there's any talent available, he can certainly be depended upon to develop it to the limit.

O'Neil of the Manchester Rec soccer team will compete for North-ern Connecticut in a special game against Eastern tomorrow Sunday afternoon at Victory Field in Hartford at 3 o'clock.

Big Ed Walsh, one of the greatest figures in baseball, is assisting Coach John "Bud" Shaw to whip the Meriden High team into shape for the season. Walsh was formerly Chicago White Sox pitching ace and his years of experience should be of great value to Meriden, considered one of the strongest contenders for the C. C. I. L. title held by Bristol.

Two League games are slated today. West Hartford being host to Middletown and East Hartford host to Meriden.

Kebart In Brilliant Form As Local Pair Take Match

Charlie Kebart, town bowling champ, last night returned to the brilliant form that has brought him into the limelight as one of the state's outstanding pinners, to play the major part in the defeat of Gacek and Frisk, members of the Blue Ribbon team, in a special eight-game match at the Charter Oak alleys.

Faded with John "Sparky" Saidella, second only to Kebart in ability on the polished lanes, the local title holder hit the little maples for a splendid average of 134.3, his total pinfall for the eight games being 1078.

Kebart started off with a 162 and piled a 133 and 123 on top of that before he shipped and chalked up a poor 99. He came back to hit 123, 142, 119 and

BLUEFIELDS TO HOLD WEEK-END PRACTICE

All members of the Bluefields ball team and those wishing tryouts are asked to report to Bluefields club house tomorrow at 2 o'clock. Practice will also be held Sunday at 2 o'clock.

In addition to the Bluefields is Babe Trade school star, and from all accounts so far he is a valuable addition to the team. He is hitting the ball much harder of late and his fielding has improved tremendously.

Coach Foley believes in what he has seen from the boys, that he will have a smooth fielding and hard-hitting team this year that he hopes will give the Manchester fans something they have desired for a long time, action and plenty of runs.

INDISCREET INTERVIEW OF KAISER PUBLISHED

dent of the United States, was his hero—the dominating, militaristic leader he hoped he himself was. The course of history was largely determined — not by the clashing of social forces and economic trends, but by the deeds of great men and personalities.

Thus the Kaiser spoke. It was one evening in July, 1908, that he consented to the interview by Hale, close friend of Theodore Roosevelt. In the Atlantic Monthly, Hale writes that the Emperor voiced "the most amazingly indiscreet statements ever uttered by the head of a great nation."

The world situation was precarious at that time. The Russo-Japanese war was three years past. Germany had come to a cross roads and was a little off the path. She was carrying on a naval race with Great Britain, a military race with France.

The Algerian conference, at which England, Russia and Italy had opposed the Fatherland in agreeing to recognize the priority of French interests in Morocco, had left her somewhat of an Ishmael among nations. So the Germany foreign office evidently believed the Kaiser had spoken too freely.

The Hale interview was to appear in the Century magazine, December, 1908. Then it was decided the interview should be suppressed. It was, just before publication.

Theodore Roosevelt was supposed to have had a copy of the interview, but it has not been located. During the World War, Hale was urged to use the article as anti-German propaganda, but declined.

In the Atlantic monthly article, the original interview, before ex-purgation, is used. W. E. Hale found it after his father's death in 1918. The Kaiser's first remarks concerned Theodore Roosevelt. "What a man he is!" the Emperor told Hale. "Mr. Roosevelt is an aspiring example of the force of personality."

William II, then developed a thesis. "England is a traitor to the white man's cause," he asserted. "If that alliance of theirs with Japan is persisted in, I don't see how the British Empire can be saved from dismemberment."

Logical Combination The most logical combination of nations to act as "big brother" to China, the Kaiser said, was that of the United States and Germany. He had discussed this matter with Roosevelt, he said, and Roosevelt had agreed.

Religion was the next subject. Hale makes this comment: "Clearly he esteems himself a lord with spiritual as well as temporal responsibility." The Kaiser expressed dislike for the Roman Catholic faith, on the ground that it subordinated Jesus.

The Kaiser concluded with a eulogy on the white race. His shoulders squared, his eyes flashed, writes Hale. "The future belongs to the white race, never fear," the Emperor exclaimed. "It belongs to the Anglo Teuton, the man who came from northern Europe—where you to whom America belongs came from—the home of the German x x x."

"It belongs to the fair-skinned man, and it belongs to Christianity and to Protestantism. We are the only people who can save it."

Hates the White Man "We know this much about him (the Japanese)," the Kaiser declared. "He hates the white man worse than the white man hates the devil. The Japanese are devils, that's a simple fact. They are devils!"

Consolidation of the east constituted the chief threat to Occidental hisherbery on August 4. Dale was sentenced to death as the actual killer, and Mrs. Jarman and Minnie each were sentenced to 199 years imprisonment.

Francis was the last of the three to be arrested. On Sept. 18 a jury sentenced him to death for the murder of Joseph Hartel, a milk wag in Chicago. Evidence was given that Francis shot Hartel three times as he ran away.

Wore Black Mask Schack was taken into the execution chamber with a black mask over his face. He yielded to his guards without resistance. The current was applied and turned off 40 seconds later. Then a moment later it was turned on for another 40 seconds and Schack was pronounced dead.

Dale followed in the chair and the current was applied at 5:12. He was pronounced dead at 5:18. The current was applied to Francis at 5:21 1/2 and he was pronounced dead at 5:28.

"None of the money went for any belt buckle." The buckle was purchased in Switzerland, and the police lieutenant said that none of the $50,000 tossed over a cemetery wall by "Jafie," has turned up in Europe. Lardner, a former resident of Boston, is serving a three-year sentence for attempting to pass a counterfeit $100 bill at the Boston, Mass., airport.

Tried to Bribe Guard Enroute to Leavenworth, Lardner tried to bribe his guard to permit him to make a call to members of Roger Touhy's gang in Chicago. The prisoner produced a gold belt buckle, saying "they'll only take this away from me here, so you'd better have it. I bought it in Switzerland and it cost $30."

United States Marshal John J. Murphy, at Boston, said Federal agents had followed clues in the Lindbergh case to Switzerland.

Records of Lardner's arrest showed he was in or near New York at the time Dr. John (Jafie) Condon, Bronx educator, passed $50,000 of Col. Lindbergh's money to the purported kidnappers of the Lindbergh baby.

Marshal Murphy said yesterday a photograph of Lardner will be sent by mail to Dr. Condon, who had said he could identify the purported interviewer.

Do you love your dog enough to give him food that's PURE?

Because dogs cannot talk and tell their masters what they think, a few unscrupulous makers of dog foods have taken advantage of an opportunity and are marketing so-called foods that are not fit for consumption. COUNTY OLDER BOYS MEET THIS AFTERNOON
Two Day Conference Gets Under Way at Congregational Church in Berlin.
 The two-day sessions of the 10th annual Hartford County Older Boys Conference will get under way this afternoon when a group of older boys from all parts of Hartford County will gather at the Congregational church in Berlin, with registration at 8:30 o'clock. The conference program this year, following the procedure of the last several years, has been largely planned by older boys themselves—and represents their suggestions as to questions which older boys should be interested in having answered. These questions cover such topics as social problems in our towns, race prejudice, problems of our economic life, personal problems growing out of modern life, leisure, etc. A corps of men has been organized to consider these problems with the boys.

A feature of today's program is the trial runs at eight o'clock under the direction of Rev. Charles Stewart of New Britain—The World 10-day Before the Court of Youth, in which witnesses for the prosecution represent race prejudice, economic chaos, war, liquor, leisure, etc. A group of New Britain boys are assisting in this presentation. The conference is under the auspices of the County YMCA and cooperating agencies.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

WILL you ever forget the sulphur and molasses "spring tonic"? But times have changed. Today, we know that much of the listlessness of spring days results from common constipation.

This condition can be corrected by including plenty of "bulk" with meals. So today, instead of getting an unpleasant "spring tonic," you go to your grocer's for a package of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

Two tablespoonsful of this delicious cereal daily furnish the "bulk" needed to help promote regular habits.

ALL-BRAN also provides vitamin B, as well as a generous share of the iron you need in spring.

People who are really ill after the winter, of course, should consult their physicians. ALL-BRAN is simply recommended for common constipation—and is not a "cure-all."

The labels of bran cereals tell, now, whether they are all bran or only part bran. Get Kellogg's ALL-BRAN—and avoid disappointment! At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Keep on the sunny side of life. Kellogg

Weddings

Brace-Clegg

Mr. and Mrs. William B. Clegg of 40 Ash street announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Dorothy Alice Clegg, to Howard L. Brace, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Brace of Pittsfield, Mass. The ceremony was performed yesterday at noon at Larchmont, N. Y. The couple were attended by Miss Sally Jones of this town and Robert Almy, will of Pittsfield. Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Brace left on a motor trip to Washington, D. C. They will make their home in Pittsfield where the bridegroom is employed by the Berkshire Life Insurance company.

BANKHEAD BILL SIGNED, CURBS COTTON CROPS

average total down to about 35,000,000 acres.

Official Estimates

Officials estimate that producers farming approximately 3,000,000 acres did not sign contracts and they allow another 3,000,000 acres for increase in acreage since the base period—1928-32. Thus they estimate that approximately 29,000,000 acres are planted to raise the 10,000,000 bale crop.

About three acres are required to produce a 500 pound bale of cotton in a normal year, thus only about 9,666,666 bales would be grown on the estimated acreage, a figure safely within the limits of the bill. Success of the application of the act may depend, therefore, largely on weather conditions.

The Farm Administration has been busy for the past month distributing the 10,000,000 bales by states according to their production during the base period, setting up administrative machinery, and conferring with internal revenue officials who will be charged with collection of the tax.

The tentative allotment of production by states is: Texas, 3,225,000 bales; Mississippi, 1,063,000; Alabama, 858,000; Georgia, 847,000; Oklahoma, 756,000; Arkansas, 928,000; South Carolina, 584,000; North Carolina, 518,000; Louisiana, 508,000; Missouri, 152,000; California, 136,000; Tennessee, 327,000; Arizona, 87,000; New Mexico, 61,000; Virginia, 30,000; Florida, 24,000; Kentucky, 5,900; Illinois, 700; and Kansas, 490.

Such a revision of these figures will be made since the act exempts Missouri and California growers and producers of Pima cotton from all restrictions. A strict interpretation also would prevent farmers who raised their first crop of cotton last year from raising any this year.

To Make Exceptions The farm administration announced that in breaking down the state quotas by counties it would make exceptions for areas afflicted by unusual weather conditions during the base period by using a four-year average instead of five years, eliminating the year in which production was low.

The most immediate problem of administration, and a monumental one, is the finding, identification, and tagging of the approximately 10,752,587 bales of cotton from the 1933 and other crops now on hand in mills, gins, warehouses, farms, in transit, and tucked away in other odd corners.

Such cotton, in order to escape the 50 percent penalty tax on marketing all cotton over the 10,000,000 bale limit for this year, must be classified as grown prior to 1934 and so tagged, otherwise it cannot be sold. The act requires that all cotton must be tagged as 1933-grown, tax-exempt, or tax-paid.

Administration officials emphasized that they had accepted the measure under protest and declared in attempting compulsory control they were "taking the ball" from southern states which have attempted unsuccessfully since 1905 to control cotton production through individual and collective effort.

E. HARTFORD STRIKE HITS RENTALS HERE

Reuben McCann Reports Slump, But Says Single Houses Are in Demand.

There has been a noticeable slackening in the number of applications for rents in Manchester since the strike of aircraft workers in East Hartford began, according to Reuben McCann, rental specialist.

Mr. McCann said today that the strike unquestionably was the reason why people from Hartford and East Hartford are not looking for rents in Manchester. Prior to the strike there was a heavy influx of out-of-town people seeking to establish a residence in this town.

Where are all the single houses in Manchester? "I've had 200 prospects during the past two months," Mr. McCann declared, "but I've had to turn a majority of them down because of the dearth of single residences."

The demand for houses of this type this spring has been unprecedented, according to Mr. McCann, and applicants are willing to pay anywhere from $35 to $40 per month for such dwellings.

"If I had 50 single houses on my list right now," Mr. McCann said, "I could rent every one." Evidence that a "back to the farm" movement is well underway in this locality, was brought to light by Mr. McCann when he said several local and out-of-town families had moved onto farms during the past few months.

Many farms are for sale but few are offered for rent, however. Mr. McCann recently sold four farms in this vicinity.

A. E. DeGraw, of Providence, moved to 31 Arvine Place this week, he stated.

FLYING BOAT SHATTERS WORLD'S SPEED RECORD

Bridgeport, April 20 — (AP) — The giant Sikorsky flying boat S-42 built at the Stratford plant was today proclaimed the world's fastest flying commercial boat after achieving a record speed of 181 miles an hour in official tests. Builders of the S-42 laid claim today to the speed record as a result of speed tests conducted between Charles Island in Middletown and the Stratford lighthouse, a distance of 2.86 miles. The ship is powered by four Pratt and Whitney Hornet motors, super-charged for high altitude flying.

The speed tests were made late yesterday, but the final figures were not computed until today and they proved far in excess of the guaranteed speed under the contract requirements with the Pan-American Airways, for which the ship was built for use in trans-oceanic traffic.

BOARD TO CONSIDER MANY ITEMS TONIGHT

Special Meeting of Selectmen on Matters from Equalization Tax to U-Turns.

The Board of Selectmen will hold a special meeting this evening at 8 o'clock at which time the board will take action on the equalization tax, town insurance, home gardens and the report of Edgar K. Kates on the Manchester Electric company holdings.

A committee from the Manchester Chamber of Commerce, composed of Earl Seaman, Winner Wenden and Thomas Ferguson will appear before the board to protest the regulation voted by the board at the last meeting which prohibits U-turns on Main street.

NO RE-EMPLOYMENTS IN CCC SERVICE

Several Skilled Workers Have Applied at Office in the Municipal Building.

Several men formerly employed in the state CCC camps as skilled workers have applied for jobs under the provisions of the third enrollment. Instructions given them were to the effect that the government will not re-employ anyone in the service. The monthly pay of these skilled workers will be the same as the junior members. ### FRENCH ARREST WOMAN DESCRIBED AS A SPY

Police Say Suspect Had Obtained Naval, Aviation and Military Secret Plans.

Paris, April 20.—(AP) — Mme. Tjadina Ulfert, described by French police as a German woman spy, was arrested today on a charge of gathering French aviation, navy, and army secrets.

The woman, 45 years old, was charged specifically with obtaining the plans of France's latest model submarine, the Surcouf, by cultivating the friendship of several engineers whom she met in cafes.

TOBACCO GROWERS SIGN CONTRACTS

John Hackett, E. E. Hilliard and Hartman Firm to Cut Acreage.

Three of the largest tobacco growers in the Buckland district are to reduce the number of acres of land used for growing tobacco this year over what was planted last year. E. E. Hilliard, who grew a large number of acres of tobacco last year has signed an agreement with the government not to plant any tobacco at all. John Hackett, who last year had forty acres of tobacco land under cultivation is to sign this year to grow but 20 acres, which will be on what is known as the 50-50 plan of the government.

The Hartman Tobacco company is cutting the shade grown acreage from 160 to 122 acres, a total cut of 38 acres on this kind of a crop or 55 acres on the plantation.

In the Tolland turnpike, west section, there is a cutting down of acres planted to tobacco and along Burnham street are others doing likewise.

In the Hilltown district there will be a large number of acres not used at all for the growing of tobacco.

LETICIA DISPUTE NEARS CRISIS AT RIO CONFERENCE

Rio De Janeiro.—(AP)—What will happen if Colombian and Peruvian delegations, conferring here on the Leticia boundary dispute, do not manage an understanding within two months is preoccupying diplomatic circles.

A League of Nations commission's mandate over Leticia, the Amazonian collection of huts which is the focal point of the dispute, expires June 23.

Before that time the peace negotiators must reach an agreement or a basis for continuing negotiations.

Both Nations Wary

Members of both delegations state that the case will be decided without resorting to hostilities, but meanwhile both countries have increased military and naval strength since their near-war in late 1932.

Both sides are understood to be willing to prolong the negotiations, but only Peru is willing to extend the status quo with possession of the disputed territory in the neutral hands of the league.

Peru, which seeks revision of the 1922 treaty because of popular dissatisfaction, climaxed by seizure of Leticia by Peruvian citizens in 1932, yielded Leticia to the league commission last June, under a Geneva formula for the present Rio negotiations.

Try To Speed Pact

The negotiations started in Rio last October and have coasted along slowly. In the hope of getting progress the delegations, Colombian

MENUS For Good Health

A Week

SENSE and NONSENSE

Every knocker should be invited to hit the trail out of town.

Courtesy is the coin of which the more we spend the more we receive.

Prison Guard — Ten prisoners have broken out.
Warden—Have you sounded the alarm?
Prison Guard—No, I got a doctor. I think it's smallpox.

When duty calls a lot of folks suddenly become hard of hearing.

The chief drawback to the jury system is the difficulty of finding 12 men so dumb they haven't formed an opinion of a notorious crime.

Would-Be-Singer — Professor, do you think I'll ever be able to do anything with my voice?
Singing Teacher—Well, it might come in handy in case of a ship wreck.

When a slicker wants to clean you he uses a lot of soft soap.

It is so difficult to keep a good man, or a good weed, down.

Gertrude—Do you think Clarence will make a good husband?
Her Mother—Sure, dear; he's already educated to going down town for his breakfast.

Some men seem to have succeeded at everything they've ever undertaken except making a living.

Drinker—Say, what's this stuff? It tastes like kerosene?
Giver—Well, what does it matter? You wanted to get lit, didn't you?

Dear Column: I am a young man and very anxious to become an artist and paint pictures. I have procured the brushes and paints. Please tell me, should I name it first and then paint it, or should I paint it and name it later. — Young Artist.
Dear Young Artist: Name it first, and then don't paint it.—Column.

A customer was in a local hardware store. He coughed loudly to signify his impatience. Finally he attracted a salesman's attention.
Customer (sharply) — I want a mouse-trap. A good one, and please be quick, for I want to catch a bus.
Salesman—I regret, sir, that our mouse-traps are not guaranteed to catch buses.

If you are not sure that you are right then go ahead and find out.

Customer (in cafe)—I'm broke, and can't pay you for that meal. You can't get blood from a turnip.
Cafe Owner (rolling up his sleeves)—No, but you ain't no turnip.

Getting business is just like courting a girl, you must offer the right kind of goods and keep on calling.

Junior (reading aloud)—John appeared presently in immaculate evening dress. What does 'immaculate' mean?
Eight-Year-Old Sister—No gravy spots on it.

Many funny bones are in the elbow, but some go to the head.

Youth—Dearest, will you love me if I give up all of my bad habits?
His Sweetie—Oh, no; you couldn't expect me to love a perfect stranger, you know.

Spring Is Here! Let us absorb some of its beauty and strive for cleaner and better appearing yards, streets, stores and city.

The surest way to hold down a job is to stay on it.

New York City has a water consumption of 150 gallons per person per day.
