Shopping for a gift for dad

Shopping for a Father's Day gift can be confusing especially when you check the price tags, but four-year-old Keith Mosher thinks he's found the right item to please his dad. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Mosher of 665 Dart Hill Rd., Vernon, Keith browses in a downtown Manchester store.

Heavy fighting delays exodus of Americans from Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI)— Heavy fighting along the roads surrounding Beirut today forced a 24-hour postponement of a convoy taking hundreds of Americans and Britons out of Lebanon.

A British spokesman urged everyone to be ready Sunday for what he said might be the last chance to get out of the city.

(In Washington, President Ford arrived at the National Security Affairs office at the White House at 1:45 a.m. EDT and stayed about 75 minutes.

"We were told adequate security could not be assured along the road by the people who were supposed to be providing the security," White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said. "The decision was made for us."

Announcement of the postponement, coming minutes before the convoy's scheduled departure, brought groans from crowds of Americans assembled at the Riviera Hotel and from Britons and other nationals at the British Embassy waiting for the long ride to Damascus.

"We have heard from the escort forces that conditions along the route are such that there is insufficient security for the journey to safely take place," a British Embassy official announced over a bullhorn.

"Therefore, the departure of this convoy is being postponed by 24 hours until the same time tomorrow. This may be the last convoy organized on an intercommunal basis and therefore everyone is urged with the utmost urgency to take it," the spokesman said.

Meanwhile, fighting between rightists and leftists and Palestinian and Syrian troops flared on Beirut's suburbs and around the countryside.

Palestinians charged that Syrian artillery overlooking the eastern outskirts of Sidon, 30 miles south of the capital, shelled two of their refugee camps overnight. In southern Beirut, Christians led ground assaults on Palestinian and Moslem left-wing strongholds.

The first Damascus convoy, with the bodies of two slain American diplomats, covered the winding, 70-mile trip through opposing lines Friday without incident, although one U.S. Embassy officer said the evacuees heard gunfire and shelling.

There were 1,965 persons in the American community, including foreign dependents, when President Ford ordered departure plans organized Friday.

Because of the deteriorating conditions, all foreign embassies have strongly urged their nationals to join the convoys and to take along plenty of food and water.

Ford maintains shaky lead over Reagan in Iowa tally

By LEWIS LORD

United Press International

President Ford's shaky lead over Ronald Reagan in the GOP presidential race widened by two votes today as a result of a close contest at the Iowa Republican caucus.

Republicans in six district caucuses Friday night at the Des Moines convention chose 10 national convention delegates for Ford and eight for Reagan. Eighteen more were scheduled to be picked today from the convention floor.

The Iowa caucuses raised Ford's delegate count to 1,023 — 107 short of nomination — and boosted Reagan's to 903. Ninety-two uncommitted delegates have been chosen, and 241 remain to be picked, including 80 this weekend in Iowa, Washington State, Delaware, Texas and Colorado.

Jimmy Carter, meanwhile, stretched his decisive margin in the Democratic race when a poll of delegates to the Texas state convention added 21 national delegates to his column. That put his delegate total at 1,556 — 51 more than is needed for the nomination.

Carter's headquarters announced he plans to retain Robert Strauss as Democratic national chairman. There had been speculation Carter would drop the Texan.

Carter ended a five-day vacation at Sea Island, Ga., and scheduled talks today to two church groups — the African Methodist Episcopal Church conference in Atlanta and a session of the Disciples of Christ at Lafayette, Ind.

Jerry Brown told reporters in Washington he was curtailing his campaign for the Democratic nomination and would concentrate on being governor of California. But he said he hadn't abandoned all hope of being nominated.

"I recognize the arithmetic," Brown said. "It is obvious to me that Carter, barring some unforeseen circumstance — which I will not as yet foreclose — seems to have the nomination in hand."

Administration may appeal ban on food stamp changes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz is expected to decide by early next week to appeal a court order that derailed the Ford administration's plan to cut government spending by dropping more than four million Americans from the food stamp program.

"We are now stopped in our tracks," Butz said in Spokane, Wash., after a federal court judge in Washington ruled Friday in favor of a suit by a massive anti-hunger coalition.

"The food stamp program now absorbs $6 billion and next year it's going to be $8 billion," Butz said. "President Ford's plan would have saved $1.2 billion."

"I don't mind telling you that I'm getting tired of feeding students whose parents drive around in new Buick automobiles," Butz said.

"I'm tired of feeding able-bodied men who voluntarily walk off the job paying them $5 an hour on strike."

"I don't think the taxpayers have any business feeding people like that. Our people are getting fed up to their neck with the abuses in this program."

Butz earlier had used the term "bleeding hearts" to describe the coalition of 26 states and scores of church, labor and civic groups who challenged the Ford plan. He had speculated they might find a "soft-headed judge" who would rule in their favor.

U.S. District Court Judge John Lewis Smith Jr. ordered a preliminary injunction blocking use of the Agriculture Department's tightened set of food stamp regulations pending a full trial of charges the changes are illegal and unconstitutional.

Butz said he will decide by the first of the week whether to appeal. Ford earlier had indicated the administration would go to the Supreme Court if necessary to implement its plan.

Ronald Pollack, director of the Food Research and Action Center of New York, which coordinated the lawsuit, said Smith's decision to issue the injunction may mean the contested regulations will never go into effect.

Before the long legal process is concluded, Pollack said, Congress may have passed its own softer stamp reform bill or a new administration may withdraw Ford's plan.

Interdependence stressed by Sen. Weicker at Rham

By EVELYN CROSTON

Sen. Lowell Weicker told students of the 1976 graduating class of Rham High School that at no time in history do Americans need to be more mindful of the fact that not one person in America made it, or is making it, on his own hook.

Weicker spoke at Friday evening's graduation exercises for 167 graduates held outside under sunny skies and before a capacity crowd.

Weicker said that in some measure, what each of us has given to us by someone else.

Some say that a wave of conservatism is sweeping the country. If that were all of it, I'd accept the verdict, he said. But much of what is termed conservatism is just plain selfishness on the part of people who by virtue of their own experiences in this country ought to know better, said Weicker.

He told those assembled that he was there to make a point not to finger-point.

He said that he earns approximately $65,000 which is high enough to possible assume that it was achieved with no help from anyone, but this assumption is untrue.

Weicker pointed out various matters in his life, including his legal education paid for by the GI Bill, his son's life saved in part by equipment developed with government research funds, and mortgage interest which is tax deductible. He said these all included other Americans.

History shows that America has never been a "me" country, said Weicker.

He said that too many of his generation are trying to change the rules of the game in this country, because they are ahead. He said he hoped everyone will reject such chicanery.

Weicker cited some historical thoughts which included, "all men are created equal," "it is the right of the people to institute new government," and "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or abridging freedom of speech or of the press or of people peaceably to assemble."

He said the thoughts he mentioned were contained in the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States which were written by the wealthy, the educated, the religious, the powerful and the establishment.

They meant the end of a world — theirs, and the beginning of ours, said Weicker.

Diplomas given 73 at Bolton rites

By DONNA HOLLAND

Following traditional commencement exercises of past years, 73 young men and women were graduated from Bolton High School Friday.

Members of the Class of 1976 wearing somber expressions marched in near perfect step to Edward Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstance."

Junior class marshals Kathleen Leiner and Robert Peterson led the march.

The young ladies wore white gowns and caps with blue and white tassels. Each carried a single long-stemmed red rose.

HARTFORD — Bus drivers in Hartford, Stamford and New Haven are threatening to strike unless progress is made soon in their contract negotiations. The 570 drivers of the state-owned Connecticut transit system made the threat Friday, but managers downplayed the possibility of a strike which could affect 85,000 passengers who use the system each day.

HARTFORD — Gov. Ella T. Grasso has asked that 1,289 state employees be reclassified so their salaries can be raised. She said Friday reclassification has been held up since June 19, 1975 because of the state's financial problems but the situation has now improved making the additional $658,433 per year expenditure possible.

HARTFORD — Elvis Presley isn't expected here for six weeks, but fans spent the night and thousands stood in line in 80-degree heat for tickets Friday to see him sing. The tickets were sold out by day's end.

Regional

PORTLAND, Maine — The owner of a Japanese fishing vessel has paid $130,000 penalty after admitting in U.S. District Court to a violation of the 12-mile fishing limit in September 1974. The vessel and crew were detained two months before being released on a $425,000 bond.

BOSTON — Massachusetts Police may be called in to man prisons and National Guardsmen may be called to duty as a strike by some 50,000 state employees appears imminent. The state workers were to meet at noon today to vote on a final offer from state officials. Neither side was optimistic about a settlement.

BOSTON — The Boston Roman Catholic Archdiocese recognizes the disease of alcoholism and has its own program to treat alcoholic priests, according to Cardinal Humberto Medeiros. He said Friday the Priests Recovery Program was available to all members of the religious order.

Opinion Section 14 (b)'s repeal would wrong a right

Every Democratic presidential candidate since, and including, Harry Truman in 1948 has campaigned against the Taft-Hartley Act, more or less. No candidate today, of course, advocates outright repeal of the 1947 labor law in toto. Even Truman did not hesitate to invoke its 90-day cooling-off provision when the public interest was threatened by a strike in a major industry. Even the union movement has learned to live with Taft-Hartley and may grudgingly admit that it has its uses.

It's Section 14 (b) of the law that continues to stick in the craw of organized labor and whose repeal this year's Democratic hopefuls, to a man, have said they favor—or in the case of Jimmy Carter, he said they would sign if it were placed on their desk.

This is the section which allows the states either to permit or to prohibit compulsory union membership in the form of the closed shop, the so-called "Right-to-Work" section. Since 1947, 19 states have enacted Right-to-Work laws banning compulsory union membership as a requirement for employment where unions have won contracts with management. A total of 32 states currently forbid the forced unionization of public employes, though some have made exceptions for teachers.

Fire fighter defends Eighth District

To the editor,
Well here we go again—Mr. Gluton for Punishment has opened his mouth and put his foot in it.
To begin with, we have six men who live at the firehouse. Out of those six three are drivers and pump operators.
Very good observation—now look at the number of false alarms that come in from a street box in the south end compared to the ones that come in on our phone.
Every time one is pulled, men's lives are at the mercy of a sick person. Believe it or not, there are some major cities in this country actually discontinuing street box alarms.
You mentioned instead of spending money on a rescue truck we need a tanker or a foam truck. Why on earth would a city with a hydrant system need a tanker truck? Unless we change Main Street into a runway, why does either department need a foam truck?
I think we have a great police department but which is better—a policeman tending to a broken leg or arresting the person who has just broken into your house.
We also know that the medical service on East Center Street is excellent, that's why we have a direct line to them. So Mr. Vaughan, three strikes and you're out and the count is 0 and two.
Respectfully yours,
William A. Parke Jr.,

The Press and the American Revolution

By Dr. Francis G. Walett

American Antiquarian Society
It is hard, if not impossible, to overstate the importance of the press during the American Revolution. Not only did newspapers and other publications greatly aid in formulating opinion and supporting the Patriot cause, but they also gave to the new nation the conviction that freedom of expression was a vital ingredient in our democratic process. It remained for others to determine, however, exactly what liberty of the press would mean in the United States.

Isaiah Thomas

This print of Isaiah Thomas was engraved by Stephen A. Schoff, drawn by Hammat Billings, and first printed in Buckingham's Reminiscences (Boston, 1850). Thomas founded the Massachusetts Spy in Boston, on the eve of the battle of Lexington and Concord. This staunch Patriot became a leading publisher of the new nation. He founded the American Antiquarian Society in 1812. (Courtesy, American Antiquarian Society.)

...of the assembly; and Gov. Thomas Hutchinson tried to drive Isaiah Thomas, the fiery Patriot printer of the Massachusetts Spy, out of business in the 1770's. But in general, the press held on to its greater liberty. The question of freedom of the press inevitably became involved in the new role of American publishers. Although it ran contrary to the contemporary English common-law doctrine of seditious libel, Patriot journalists argued strongly for unrestricted discussion of public issues and the right of criticism against the government in the press. One way or another, Whig writers managed to escape punishment for publishing diatribes against British policy.

Liberty vs. license
When the Patriots became powerful enough, however, they unthinkingly suppressed the Loyalist press. Bringing up the difficult distinction between liberty and license, they condemned Tory writings. When they were unable to silence their enemies by legal means, the Patriots intimidated them or attacked them violently.
Quite obviously freedom of the press had different meanings. It would be some time before American theorists could work out a reasonable, clear concept of it that could be supported by law.

Wings of evening
The other night at a Red Cross "appreciation evening" I had the privilege of awarding certificates to many, many people whose volunteer services extended from one year to thirty.
I imagine that what means here in our community—in miles driven, hours spent, needs met, suffering alleviated, or entertainment given. What a colossal pitcher pour out the spirit of helpfulness into the empty cups of misfortune in our area! The impulse for these "good works" lies in the Judeo-Christian background of our culture.
Although I cannot give you local statistics on the amount of money given for charitable causes in our community, I came across the $32 billion figure in a Wall Street article last week. It is a complicated list of statistics that need not be repeated here. Suffice to say that the American Association of Fund Raising Counsel informs us that philanthropic giving rose last year to $28.88 billion with the largest percentage for religious causes. It also estimates that:
"...Americans put in early six billion hours of volunteer philanthropic work last year. It values that time at $25 billion."
It is an encouraging report even though the complaint is made that "Philanthropy is not keeping up with escalating costs."
"Payment in full"
Have you ever tried to cash a check only to find that the signer had stopped payment on it? To say the least, it is embarrassing. This may well be the lot of some who will present themselves at the Celestial Bank in heaven feeling that something is due them for helping the poor, or praying for God. They have forgotten the author Elbert Hubbard (born on this day in 1859) said, "If you work for a man, in heaven's name work for him."

Today's thought
God said, "I am the Lord, thy God; thou shalt have no other gods before me."
The relationship is defined—not argued, not defended, not persuaded, not justified, but stated as a given, as a fact, as a truth. When we separate ourselves from God we do not cut ourselves off from the source of all goodness, we cut ourselves off from goodness itself, not from the source of love but from love itself, not from the source of life but life itself. God is love. God is truth. God is goodness. God is life. "I am."
The basic separation from God, the original sin, lies in the human desire to be God, to adopt the "I am" for oneself. I create my own universe with me at the center, dispenser of goodness, truth-giver, lover, judge, and object of worship, my own and others. I write my own com-

Chuckles
We have called many sayings for this column from Dick VanDyke, who writes:
"If you're in a state of confusion. Whatever the wages of sin may be, those at the rectory are modest indeed. This situation gives rise to stories people tell me. Like the one about the minister's wife who was going through the coins in the collection plate after the Sunday service. What are you doing? asked her husband. "What do you think I'm looking for a button to sew on your coat."
Then there is the one about a young minister about to say grace at dinner, who lifted the cover of the candelabra prepared to by thirty wife from countless left-overs. He paused. "I don't know," he said rather dubiously. "It seems to me that I've blessed all this before."
Musings
Albert Einstein: "Science without religion is lame, and religion without science is blind."
Orin Madison: "Live and let live is not enough; live and help live is not too much."
Today's thought
God said, "I am the Lord, thy God; thou shalt have no other gods before me."

Loyalist papers could be issued only in places occupied by the British. Newspapers suffered during the American Revolution from the lack of an effective postal system and the absence of any regular newsgathering service; they depended almost completely on private sources of information and communications that chanced to come their way. As a result of the disruptions of war, news coverage was quite haphazard, and in some cases important events were not reported at all in the press.

Chronic paper shortage
One of the problems faced by newspapers in this period was the chronic shortage of paper. Before the war most paper had been imported from Britain and, now that this supply was cut off, printers had to depend on the output of several small American paper mills. Newspapers constantly advertised for rags, out of which all paper was then made, and there was official encouragement of paper manufacturing. The supply was never adequate, however, and the proceeds in this country were generally of an inferior quality. Several publishers, like the Sutters of Germantown, Pa., Hugh Gaile of New York and William Toddard of Baltimore, tried to solve the problem by establishing their own paper mills.

Another vexing problem that publishers had to contend with was severe inflation. Constantly rising costs of production made it necessary to raise the price of subscriptions and the cost of advertisements. With depreciating paper money plaguing them, printers at times questioned what was due them in all sorts of material goods.
In spite of all the difficulties faced by the press during the American Revolution, it emerged from the period in stronger condition than before the war. It is clear, too, that journalism had experienced a revolution of its own. For the first time newspapers had generally begun to answer to questions about the vital matter of public opinion. While there was great discussion of freedom of the press, no immediate answers to questions about this matter were reached. The experience of the American Revolution was to lead, however, to the eventual conclusion that our democratic society required through both custom and law a free press.

PARIS, June 19—Gen. de Gribouval, French director of artillery, advised a supplier working with the Americans that there were between 300 and 400 artillery pieces in government arsenals which could be shipped to the colonies by way of Spain and Cuba once their official markings were filed off.

"Sing with the Wind"
This is the title of a lovely book of poems published in South Windsor. The words by Winston Abbott are delicately illustrated by Bette Eaton Bosson. Here is one of our favorites:
"Were I to live this life again I'd still find loneliness and pain—but what are trivial things like scars to one who shares the night with stars—Beauty and love—these are the priceless things—that feed my hungry soul and give it wings—"
Musings
Albert Einstein: "Science without religion is lame, and religion without science is blind."
Orin Madison: "Live and let live is not enough; live and help live is not too much."

Wings of evening
The other night at a Red Cross "appreciation evening" I had the privilege of awarding certificates to many, many people whose volunteer services extended from one year to thirty.
I imagine that what means here in our community—in miles driven, hours spent, needs met, suffering alleviated, or entertainment given. What a colossal pitcher pour out the spirit of helpfulness into the empty cups of misfortune in our area! The impulse for these "good works" lies in the Judeo-Christian background of our culture.
Although I cannot give you local statistics on the amount of money given for charitable causes in our community, I came across the $32 billion figure in a Wall Street article last week. It is a complicated list of statistics that need not be repeated here. Suffice to say that the American Association of Fund Raising Counsel informs us that philanthropic giving rose last year to $28.88 billion with the largest percentage for religious causes. It also estimates that:
"...Americans put in early six billion hours of volunteer philanthropic work last year. It values that time at $25 billion."
It is an encouraging report even though the complaint is made that "Philanthropy is not keeping up with escalating costs."
"Payment in full"
Have you ever tried to cash a check only to find that the signer had stopped payment on it? To say the least, it is embarrassing. This may well be the lot of some who will present themselves at the Celestial Bank in heaven feeling that something is due them for helping the poor, or praying for God. They have forgotten the author Elbert Hubbard (born on this day in 1859) said, "If you work for a man, in heaven's name work for him."

One of a colorful guy

One of baseball's most colorful characters, Jimmy Dykes, died in Philadelphia earlier this week at the age of 78.

Dykes, who launched his major league career with Manager Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics in the American League in 1918, spent nearly 50 years in baseball as a player, coach and manager.

Kuhn village idiot-Finley

Chicago (UPI) — Calling Bowie Kuhn "more like a village idiot than a commissioner of baseball," Oakland A's owner Charles O. Finley says he will go to court to complete his sale of 30 players to the Boston Red Sox and New York Yankees.

Noting Kuhn's decision to void the sale, Finley Friday said, "I think it was a very idiotic decision on the part of Bowie Kuhn. He sounds more like a village idiot than a commissioner of baseball."

When last seen on that particular day, Dykes wore a grin from ear to ear and was just lighting up a cigar as he headed for the dressing room.

"I told you guys that I would be ready after 1 and I've always been a man of my word," Dykes chuckled. Dykes was one of the principals in one of Connie Mack's biggest deals when he decided to break up his great Athletic team. Dykes, along with Al Simmons and Mule Haas, both outfielders, were peddled to the Chicago White Sox for a combined total of $150,000 in 1923.

Battle of leaders won by Phillies

NEW YORK (UPI) Mike Schmidt Friday night drove in three runs with a fifth-inning home run to lead Philadelphia to a 6-5 victory over the Cincinnati Reds in a battle of National League divisional leaders.

Yawkey regrets Kuhn's decision

BOSTON (UPI) — Boston Red Sox owner Thomas Yawkey says he can't figure out why Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn vetoed his $2 million deal with Oakland owner Charlie Finley, but says he's not surprised and won't go to court to keep A's stars Joe Rudi and Rollie Fingers.

National League

highlighted when the next batter, George Foster, hit his second homer of the night to move Cincinnati to within one run of the Phillies.

"It was the best play I've ever made," said Bow, well known for his defensive wizardry. "I don't see how I made it myself. Perer hit it hard and I was amazed when I got there. I never saw a standing ovation for an infielder. If that's an indication of what a World Series is like, I want to be there."

Scott hospitalized

BOSTON (UPI) — Boston Celtic guard Charlie Scott has completed the final stages of an operation he underwent more than two years ago.

The lanky guard had two metal plates and 11 screws removed from his left forearm Friday in an operation at Boston University Hospital. His arm was expected to be in a splint for six weeks, doctors said.

Baseball executives support Kuhn

NEW YORK (UPI) — Most baseball executives not involved in the sales of the three high-priced Oakland A's players were generally supportive of Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's stunning decision to overturn the deals although one St. Louis Cardinals President August A. Busch Jr. — feared for the precedent it may have set.

"If I were Mr. Finley, I'd be up in arms and I think I'd probably go to court," Busch said. "It's his money. It's pretty tough for any commissioner to be able to rule on what the owner of a baseball club can do and can't do."

Los Angeles Dodger President and Owner Walter O'Malley, a long-time spokesman for National League owners, said Kuhn's decision was "probably right." O'Malley, who said he goes along with the commissioner, saying the ruling will be dominating the league.

Finley sold relief pitcher Rollie Fingers and outfielder Joe Rudi to the Red Sox and pitcher Vida Blue to the Yankees just before the trading deadline Tuesday night, each for a $1 million price.

"Precedent has been established for many years, when Babe Ruth was sold to the Yankees, when Joe Cronin was sold from Washington to Boston, so many, many times on players being sold," Finley said.

On today's market, Simmons alone would command at least a million dollars. Simmons, a power hitter, has been in baseball's Hall of Fame since 1953. He posted a lifetime .334 average in 20 seasons.

The American Basketball Association lost a reported $40 million during its one-year history. Wally Yonkers came up with a suggestion that the softball diamond at Robertson Park be named after the late Bill Brainard, an outstanding athlete and baseball umpire for years on the local scene. The last place finisher in the Indianapolis 500 auto race Memorial Day was guaranteed $50,000. Lou Filippelli of Wetherfield will be one of the referees in the July 1 basketball exhibition at the Hartford Civic Center featuring the U.S. Olympic team and an all-star NBA team headed by Julius Erving. Former Manchester resident Gene Sturgens will be one of the whistle blowers the previous night when the two teams collide at the Providence Civic Center. Town Director Vivian Ferguson will toss out the first ball tonight at 8 o'clock when the Media All-Stars face the New England Whalers at Fitzgerald Field for the Connecticut State Association. Bill Merrill, former catcher with Moriaris, has been replaced as head baseball coach at Quinnipiac College in Hamden. Joe Ianni to the latest golf pro to join the GHO field of entrants. Imani capped the recent Kemper Open. Mark McMahon was the only East Catholic High baseball player named to the all-Hartford City Conference squad for 1975. A first baseman, McMahon was selected as an outfielder. During the heat wave last week, Mel Siebold reports attendance at the Globe Hollow swimming pool for the seven day period in which includes 1,565 adults. Have a nice weekend.

Angelenos nipped Montreal, 6-5 tonight. Hector Cruz and Lou Brock each hit inside-the-park home runs off 12-game winner Randy Jones to snap his seven game winning streak. Cruz's homer capped a four-run fourth inning, while Brock, celebrating his 37th birthday and a return to the lineup after missing three games with an injured right hand, homered in the fifth following Don Kessinger's single. It was Jones' first loss since May 7 and left him at 12-3.

Ed Kranepool blasted a two-run homer and John Miller added a solo shot to back the two-hit pitching of Tom Seaver, who raised his record to 7-7. Seaver allowed only a fifth-inning leadoff home run to Darrell Evans, his second and a sixth-inning, run-scoring triple by Derrel Thomas.

Bill Madlock blasted a seventh-inning, grand-slam homer off reliever Max Nearing's second pitch to power the Cubs over the Braves and hand winner Carl Morton his sixth loss.

Dodgers 6, Expos 5
Bill Buckner triggered a three-run, eighth-inning outburst with a run-scoring single to carry the Dodgers over the Expos. Mike Marshall worked one inning of relief to gain his fourth victory in seven decisions.

Red Sox star Red Killebrew's .327 batting average was the highest in the league. Killebrew hit a three-run homer in the seventh inning to help Dennis Leonard gain his seventh victory.

Orleans 9, Rangers 4
Three-run homers by Lee May and Andre Mora and a solo shot by Reggie Jackson enabled Rudy May to pick up his first win as an Oriole.

May was acquired in a 10-player deal with the Yankees Tuesday night and made his first start for Baltimore, pitching 8 1/3 innings in raising his record to 5-3.

Tigers 4, Twins 2
Ron LaFlore and Bill Freehan collected three hits to help Dave Roberts gain his sixth victory in 11 decisions. Roberts scattered 11 hits for his seventh complete game. Freehan's solo homer in the fourth was the winning run.

Red Sox 3, Angels 1
Jim Rice's two-out double drove in the go-ahead run and he scored an insurance tally on Rico Petrocelli's single for a two-run, ninth-inning rally that gave reliever Tom Murphy his first victory since being acquired by Boston from Milwaukee.

St. Louis Cardinals President and Owner Walter O'Malley, a long-time spokesman for National League owners, said Kuhn's decision was "probably right." O'Malley, who said he goes along with the commissioner, saying the ruling will be dominating the league.

The rich teams would have all the players and the poor teams would have none," he said. "These things escalate and you end up charging $5 or 20 bucks to go to a ball game." he added.

Nobody would be able to live with the economics these things produce," O'Malley continued. "All the players would be free agents and it would be harmful to baseball and against the public interest. It was a tough decision to make and I must say I would go along with him."

E.J. "Buzzy" Bavasi, vice president and general manager of the San Diego Padres, called Kuhn's action a "courageous move."

"We're in the baseball business," he said. "It's not Charles Finley who owns the club (A's), but I think baseball has a duty to the fans."

"I feel that in the present situation, it allowed to continue, will alienate the fans of the game and bring about a material deterioration of their confidence in the integrity of baseball," Fetzer said.

"This situation calls for mature consideration, temperate understanding and serious negotiation to solve the difficult questions confronting us — without any further aggravation of the current turmoil," he added.

Finley said he believed there was "nothing I can do other than take it to court." Finley said.

Finley said he did not think Kuhn had to involve himself in the decision, and charged it was a "personal vendetta" against Finley. Figurehead title shelved by Kuhn

NEW YORK (UPI) — Throughout the first eight years of his tenure as baseball commissioner, Bowie Kuhn represented little more than a figurehead, a pawn in a man accused of being afraid to make a controversial decision at was until Friday.

Kuhn issued a statement, being hailed by many as a landmark decision that could very well shake the basic foundations of baseball, when he vetoed the sale by Oakland owner Charles Finley of Vida Blue to the Yankees for $1.5 million and Joe Rudi and Rollie Fingers to the Red Sox for $1 million each.

Kuhn conceded the ruling would touch off a series of lawsuits from the clubs and players involved but that the sales were "inconsistent with the best interests of baseball, the integrity of the game and the maintenance of public confidence in it."

At the crux of the matter, Kuhn objected to the Yankees and Red Sox buying contracts of star players in the prime of their careers for cash sums.

"If such transactions now and in the future were permitted, Kuhn said, "the door would be opened wide to the buying of success by the most affluent clubs, public opinion would be aroused, traditional and sound methods of player development and acquisition would be undermined and our efforts to preserve competitive balance would be greatly impaired."

Finley called Kuhn a "village idiot," but instructed his attorney, Neal Pappano of Los Angeles, to institute suit against the commissioner and baseball in federal court Monday charging restraint trade.

"Precedent has been established for many years, when Babe Ruth was sold to the Yankees, when Joe Cronin was sold from Washington to Boston, so many, many times on players being sold here and then with him step in and do something about it."

"He says it's not in the best interest of baseball. What about all these other sales? Only a few years ago I paid the Washington Senators and he's got it. Kuhn is going to be heard for many, many things."

"This man has been out to get me for some time. This is just another attempt. I think it's a personal vendetta on his part against me."

"I can still hit it out," Aaron said after the game. "and I can still play this game on my merits, not on my past record..."

Aaron's homer, his fifth of the season, was the third by the Brewers in the game. George Scott belted his sixth homer leading off the fourth inning and Bernie Carbo rapped his 18th with one out in the seventh.

"That man thrills me every time," said Milwaukee Manager Alex Grammas. "He means so much to us, not just his hitting — he's a great all-around person. The younger players love him; they think he's the greatest, which he is. I'm lucky to be managing him in my last year."

Roy White hit a sacrifice fly with one out in the 14th inning to score Fred Stanley from third base to extend New York's winning streak to four games and the Chicago's losing streak to eight.

Royals 5, Indians 3
Cookie Rojas drove in three runs, including the decisive one in the seventh inning, to help Dennis Leonard gain his seventh victory.

Orleans 9, Rangers 4
Three-run homers by Lee May and Andre Mora and a solo shot by Reggie Jackson enabled Rudy May to pick up his first win as an Oriole.

May was acquired in a 10-player deal with the Yankees Tuesday night and made his first start for Baltimore, pitching 8 1/3 innings in raising his record to 5-3.

Tigers 4, Twins 2
Ron LaFlore and Bill Freehan collected three hits to help Dave Roberts gain his sixth victory in 11 decisions. Roberts scattered 11 hits for his seventh complete game. Freehan's solo homer in the fourth was the winning run.

Red Sox 3, Angels 1
Jim Rice's two-out double drove in the go-ahead run and he scored an insurance tally on Rico Petrocelli's single for a two-run, ninth-inning rally that gave reliever Tom Murphy his first victory since being acquired by Boston from Milwaukee.

St. Louis Cardinals President and Owner Walter O'Malley, a long-time spokesman for National League owners, said Kuhn's decision was "probably right." O'Malley, who said he goes along with the commissioner, saying the ruling will be dominating the league.

The rich teams would have all the players and the poor teams would have none," he said. "These things escalate and you end up charging $5 or 20 bucks to go to a ball game." he added.

Nobody would be able to live with the economics these things produce," O'Malley continued. "All the players would be free agents and it would be harmful to baseball and against the public interest. It was a tough decision to make and I must say I would go along with him."

E.J. "Buzzy" Bavasi, vice president and general manager of the San Diego Padres, called Kuhn's action a "courageous move."

'Mundo Real' filming

Connecticut Public Television has launched studio and location production of a second season of "Mundo Real," a continuing drama series about Puerto Ricans living on the mainland United States. The bilingual television series is funded by a grant from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare and is intended to help Puerto Rican youngsters integrate their own cultural heritage with mainland customs.

Bit parts
Earl Nightingale, whose daily radio program, "Our Changing World," is heard on Manchester's WINF, is the recipient of the 1976 Golden Gavel Award of Toastmasters International.

Taking aim

Medal commemorates just one day

By RUSS MacKENDRICK
On July 3, 1776, crusty old John Adams found himself to be in a pretty good mood about the morrow and wrote to wife Abigail in this vein:
"Succeeding generations will celebrate with pomp and parade, with shows, games, sports, guns, bells, bonfires and illuminations from one end of the continent to the other."

Stamps and coins

We don't know about the rest of the continent, but Washington, D.C., should be just as the letter predicted from the coming second of July through the Fourth — one mammoth block party for three days!
There is to be "the greatest parade in the history of the nation's capital" and a display of fireworks ("illuminations") so enormous it has to be split into two parts — at the Tidal Basin and the Reflecting Pool. Hundreds of thousands of visitors are expected.

The medal shown here was struck to commemorate just one day, the Fourth, the peak of the Bicentennial. The face shows fireworks streaming around the Capitol dome. The reverse shows Lincoln, the Washington Monument, and Jefferson's Monticello.
It is a production of the busy busy

Medallic Art Co. of Danbury, Conn., and is sold by Happy Birthday USA, 1700 Pennsylvania Ave. N.W., Washington, D.C., 20016.

Visitors at the binge will also be able to pick up the medal in silver-plated blize for keychains and pendants.
At last, the crescendo, the living end — all downhill from here.

A better tip

"Stamps" magazine has a weekly column called "Stamp Market Tips" by John Ross. Usually his tip-of-the-week is like the famous purple cow (you can never hope to see one) but in the June 12th issue, it's a little better. He gives the U.S. Scott number C46, the 80-cent airmail, which can probably be picked up in town on Main or Maple St.

This stamp had a first-day on March 26, 1952, at Honolulu. It was contrived especially for shipping a package of orchids from Hawaii to the mainland. The color is just right for that — pink on pink (Scott says "red-violet"). The design, framed by palm trees, shows a four-motored plane flying over the water near the extinct volcano, Diamond Head, which overlooks Waikiki Beach.

We are to imagine the airship laden with exotica — cattleyas and cybidiums, headed for promotions in the Hollywood area.

The price of a single mint C46 stamp is $7.50 in Harris, up from $3.95 two catalogs ago. This week, Linn's has ads offering it from $4.00 to $4.75, with the plate block going from $3.50 to $4.00. The Ross column says it wholesales singly for $2.75 and large shipments have been going to Japan lately to firm up the price.

Society meeting

The next meeting of the Manchester Philatelic Society will be at Mott's Community Hall on the 22nd, 7 to 10 p.m.

Several members attended the Interphil and came away flabbergasted by the mob scene and the displays. Tom Jay described the vista at the Philly Civic Center as being like a football field with rows of stamps exhibits for five-yard lines. Ed Bushnell kept an eye on our frames throughout the reports that they survived the turmoil. (The Interphil Committee had to borrow frames from everywhere to make up the 3,000 they needed).

Red Book ready

The new Red Book should be on the local dealers' shelves. It was released on the 14th. ("A Guide Book of United States Coins," by R.S. Yeoman, 30th edition). The first edition, which came out in 1947, now brings about $75.

'Choirboys' headed for screen

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Joseph Wambaugh, the ex-cop who is making a good thing out of writing about cops, has a new one, and "The Choirboys" is headed for the big screen.

In fact, Wambaugh is going to write the screenplay himself. He wasn't happy with the movie made from his first novel, "The New Centurions," nor with the TV film made from his second, "The Blue Knight." So this time he's taking no chances and will write "The Choirboys" himself.

He's still story consultant on the TV series, Police Story, which he created, and will serve in the same capacity on the new series, The Blue Knight, based on his book.

"I imagine," Wambaugh says, "I'll have to fight the same battle on The Blue Knight that I fought on Police Story — attempting to get them to concentrate more on character than on action."
"If they go for action on The Blue Knight," he says, "it will be a failure. If they say, 'Well, there is a show about a cop on the beat now — Joe Forrester — so we have to have more action than they do,' well, then The Blue Knight will be a flop. It's a character show and it could be about any aging man, not just a cop."

Wambaugh says he isn't sure if he has another book on cops in his system. He thinks he may have gotten it all out with "The Choirboys."
