Court approves industrial park

Summary

TANJUNG KAPANG, Malaysia (UPI) — Soldiers and police today searched for bodies in dense mangrove swamps on the southern coast of Malaysia where a hijacked Malaysian Boeing-737 crashed with 100 persons aboard after a gun battle and explosion in flight Sunday.

There were no known survivors among the 83 passengers and seven crew members. Twenty of the passengers were foreigners.

It was not immediately known whether any Americans were aboard the plane.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — United Mine Workers President Arnold Miller said today his union's 130,000 members will strike at midnight, with no chance a last-minute settlement can avert a walkout.

Arriving at today's negotiating session, Miller said the situation is "not too good. We're not getting any closer."

Is there any chance a strike could be averted?

"No."

What are the chances of a walkout?

"There will be one."

LONDON (UPI) — Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Beilin said today that his country recognizes the Palestinian Arabs and seeks a "dignified solution" of their problem.

"Their Problem should be solved," he said in an interview with Britain's Independent Television News. "What we want is a right and dignified solution to their problem."

HAMILTON, Bermuda (UPI) — Two hundred combat-hardened British troops have arrived in Bermuda to help enforce an all-night curfew, apparently ending three days of racial riots over the hangings of two convicted murderers.

Three firebombings were reported Sunday night and police said 21 persons were arrested for curfew violations.

Thousands of Connecticut welfare recipients lined up before dawn today at state Social Services Department district offices to apply for an emergency winter clothing allotment of $25 per child.

The funds to be distributed on a "first come, first serve" basis were authorized by the Legislature which provided payments for fewer than half of the estimated eligible recipients.

LONDON (UPI) — Most of Britain's 35,000 striking firefighters have resigned themselves to a bleak Christmas but are determined to hold out for more money even though no settlement is in sight.

The firefighter's union executive council was to meet Tuesday but sources said chances were slight they would accept the government's offer of a 10 percent pay increase and go back to work.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Labor Department proposed today the abolition of 1,100 "picayune" worker safety regulations such as decreasing the shape of toilet seats or how far fire extinguishers must be hung off the floor.

In a move described as unique in the history of regulatory agencies, the department's proposal is a follow-through on a promise made earlier this year by Eula Bingham, head of the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, to do away with nitpicking regulations and concentrate on major workplace hazards.

Ugandan pilots get U.S. training

By LEE RODERICK

Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON — Scripps League Newspapers has learned that the U.S. company now training nine Ugandan government helicopter pilots in Fort Worth, Texas has contracted to train 40 more Ugandans next year.

The nine were part of a contingent of 24 members of President Idi Amin's Police Air Wing issued priority (A-2) visas at the U.S. Embassy in Nairobi, Kenya on Sept. 28. Two of the 24 subsequently were refused entry at New York's Kennedy Airport, but the continuing presence of the other 22 has acutely embarrassed the State Department. They are being instructed at various U.S. sites in

Hardline Arabs break relations with Egypt

By United Press International
Hardline Arab leaders signed an accord today freezing diplomatic relations with Egypt and setting up a new military command. Reports in Israel said Secretary of State Cyrus Vance would visit the Middle East this week on a peace shuttle mission.

Official sources in Tel Aviv said the object of Vance's trip would be to try to get more Arab countries to attend the Cairo meeting called for next week by Egyptian President Anwar Sadat. The State Department had no immediate comment but suggested there might be an announcement later today.

The accord of hardline Arabs angry with Sadat was signed in Tripoli, Libya, by Algeria, Libya, Syria and South Yemen, along with the Palestine Liberation Organization. But the success of the meeting called to try to isolate Sadat was marred by

Iraq walked out of the Tripoli conference early today because it felt the anti-Egyptian measures were not strong enough.

The new military pact was called the "Front of Steadfastness" in the document signed in the former royal palace of Tripoli and stipulated that "an attack on one is an attack on all."

A Libyan spokesman said he understood the freeze did not mean a full break in diplomatic relations except in the case of Libya.

"Libya had already made a complete break in diplomatic relations with Cairo before today's signature and that will not change. I understand that Algeria, Syria and South Yemen, however, will only recall their ambassadors for the moment."

Sadat has already recalled his ambassadors from Moscow and the Arab states taking part in the Tripoli conference. The Egyptian leader has brushed aside the anger of the hardline Arabs and called on Israel to make concessions at the Cairo parley he has called for next week.

Libya's official Jamahiriya news agency said the Tripoli conference also expelled Sadat from the three-man leadership of the Federation of Arab Republics. The Federation, established in 1971, groups Egypt, Libya and Syria but has been dormant through most of its lifespan.

Official sources in Tel Aviv said Vance will visit the Middle East by the end of this week in an effort to get wider Arab participation at the scheduled Cairo talks on the Arab-Israeli conflict, official sources said today.

Town pleased; appeal planned

By GREG PEARSON
Herald Reporter

Superior Court Judge T. Clark Hull has ruled that the state's approval of the proposed industrial park in Manchester is valid. An appeal of the decision apparently will be filed.

The judge issued his decision this morning in the case of the Manchester Environmental Coalition et al vs Edward Stockton et al.

The plaintiffs in the case, the Manchester Environmental Coalition, Michael Dworkin, Edith Schoell, said that Stockton failed to prepare a proper environmental study of the J. C. Penney Co. project. J. C. Penney has planned a two million square foot catalog distribution center that would be the major building in the proposed industrial park in the Buckland section of Manchester.

"Commissioner Stockton's approval of the project plan for the Manchester Industrial Park is found valid and legal in all respects," Hull said in his decision.

Attorneys Anthony Pagano and Bruce Beck who represented the plaintiffs said that they will appeal.

Town Manager Robert Weiss said that he was pleased with the news of the judge's decision.

"Despite a cloudy day, the sun is shining brightly. I would hope now Penney would be in a position to proceed with the project," Weiss said.

Judge Hull ruled that the Manchester Environmental Coalition was not a proper plaintiff in the case. He also ruled, however, that Dworkin and Mrs. Schoell did have standing to file the suit.

In his 61-page decision, Hull ruled that Stockton was not required to prepare an environmental evaluation.

"The court finds that the plaintiffs have not proved that actions initiated could have a 'major impact' as so described and that therefore despite the other conclusions reached in this section Commissioner Stockton was not required to prepare such an environmental evaluation," Hull said.

He also ruled that an evaluation prepared by Stockton was inadequate.

"Under the circumstances, with 20-20 judicial hindsight it would have been better off if it had not been made," Hull said of the evaluation.

"In many obvious respects it is mere window dressing or going through the motions and as such can not be a precedent for such evaluations in Connecticut," Hull said.

The judge also said, however, that a validating act passed by the State Legislature is constitutional and OKs the environmental review of the project.

Hull also said in his decision, "One message loud and clear should emerge from this litigation: The parties responsible for the development of the Manchester Industrial Park carry a heavy burden of responsibility to faithfully carry out the various reasonable proposals made during the planning of the project to reduce automobile traffic to the park and minimize any adverse affect on air quality."

The judge recommended that state administrative procedures concerning environmental matters be "tightened up."

"There is a Ma and Pa Donut Shop quality about certain aspects of Connecticut state administration. The failure to adopt regulations make the laws requiring it of little value and invites law suits," the judge said.

He said that his remarks were not aimed at any particular administration but in a statement of present in past state procedures.

Nation faces hard choices

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation may have to make some hard choices in the next five years as to which goals — full employment, a balanced budget or new government programs — it wants most, the head of the Congressional Budget Office said today.

Alice Rivlin told Congress' Joint Economic Committee that only under the "most optimistic" economic assumptions could all those goals be achieved at once.

In order to begin making such choices, she said, Congress should begin setting federal budget targets several years ahead.

CBO, a research arm of Congress, released a report looking at the fiscal years 1979 through 1983.

Because of the progressive nature of the federal income tax, which keeps putting everyone in higher brackets, she said, the amount of money the government takes out of the economy during that period will rise faster than the amount it puts back in the form of wages, purchases and payments to individuals.

Unless policies are changed, the report said, this will exert a "fiscal drag" interfering with economic growth and efforts to reduce unemployment.

Under moderate economic assumptions, Mrs. Rivlin estimated that $115 billion in additional budget stimulus — tax cuts or spending increases — would be needed by 1983 to offset that drag.

In turn, that would mean a budget deficit of $19 billion in 1983, under moderate assumptions as to performance of the non-federal economy, she said.

The further the nation wants to reduce unemployment, she indicated, the harder it will be to balance the budget.

CBO suggested Congress could freeze federal spending as a percentage of gross national product, or could provide automatic tax cuts geared to inflation.

CBO's look ahead showed several things that will happen to federal programs by 1983 if current policies are unchanged:

- Defense will rise from 24 percent of government spending to 25 percent.
- Payments to individuals will rise from 32 percent to 36 percent, largely because of increases in the number of Social Security and Medicare beneficiaries.

- Grants to state and local governments will fall from 12 to 10 percent as some countercyclical programs phase out.
- Individual income taxes will rise from 44 percent of federal revenues to 52 percent.

- Corporate income taxes would remain a little over 14 percent of revenues.
- Social insurance taxes would fall from 31 percent to 30 percent, assuming enactment of pending Social Security legislation.

Civic is professional

By MICHAEL ORFITELLI
The Manchester Civic Orchestra, under the direction of Dr. Jack Heller, continues to present fine performances, which have become progressively more professional in their choice of material and the ability to perform their selections. Last evening's concert also featured a gifted pianist, Anne Kosciely, a graduate of the Eastman School of Music.

The program began with a piece by Jean-Baptiste Jully titled "La Marche Des Sacrificateurs." The fanfare style of this work made an appropriate item to begin the program.

The next item, "Symphony No. 3 in E Flat" (Eroica) by Ludwig Van Beethoven, showed signs of being well rehearsed in a day of political scandals and disillusion with elected officials, this work seems so relevant. Beethoven's devotion to the rights man, and his determination that they tend to diminish the strength of the section. Dr. Heller should be complimented on his ability as an orchestral trainer, as was made evident by the control and discipline demonstrated throughout the evening. At times, however, this control seemed to fall short of the glories of Beethoven and the power of this work.

Julie Budd

Area students to solo at Chaminade program

Two Rockville High School music students will be soloists at tonight's Chaminade Musical Club concert at Trinity Covenant Church on Hackmatack Street.

The first movement was an enormous section. The constantly improving orchestra should be commended on a tremendous overall performance. Special mention should be made of the woodwind players who were brilliant in some of the solo and ensemble passages throughout the entire work. Intonation problems of the strings were unfortunate in that they tend to diminish the strength of the section.

The orchestra captured the joy of the third movement, a scherzo. The French horns deserve recognition here for their technique and flexibility in its orchestral passage where they are featured choir.

Jimmy Durante

Area students to solo at Chaminade program

Tracy Anne Jackson, flutist, will play three movements from "Sonata" by Paul Hindemith. She will be accompanied by her sister, Sharon, on the piano.

Miss Jackson, a freshman, has studied the flute for four years at Julius Hart School of Music. She is a member of the Greater Hartford Youth Orchestra. She participated last year with the Hart School Orchestra when it performed in Washington, D.C. Her sister, a sophomore at University of Connecticut, accompanies the university concert choir.

Chris Inguanti will play Weber's Concertino, Opus 26, for clarinet. He has played with the Greater Hartford Youth Orchestra, the All-Connecticut Band and the All-New England Band. He was a first place winner of the Hartford Auxiliary/Connecticut General Competition for Woodwinds, Brass, Strings and Piano in the woodwind category. He also studies at the Hart School of Music.

The concert will begin at 8. The event is free, but a free will offering will be taken to benefit the club's music scholarship program.

Program set on Spain

Guitarist James Dina of South Windsor will present a program of Spanish guitar music and will show slides of Spain Wednesday at 8 p.m. at the college dining room on the main campus of Manchester Community College (MCC).

Sponsored by the MCC Spanish Club, the program is open to the public free of charge. Dina will use the flamenco style in presenting a perspective of Spanish music as it has evolved from the 1500's to the present. He gives private instruction on guitar to students at MCC and teaches at the Hart College of Music of the University of Hartford.

Home is the sailor

The long voyage is over for a 54-year-old Australian grandmother who set off for England 2 1/2 years ago, and wound up sailing alone around the world.

Mrs. Anne Gash piloted her 27-foot yacht, Ilmo, into Sydney harbor Sunday amid a welcoming throng of small craft. She refused to tell her family where she was going when she set off for England because she was afraid they would talk her out of her globe-girdling trip.

Yuletide trucker

Edward Humbert and his wife, Myrna, have drawn a presidential mission. They're delivering the 700-pound, 34-foot noble fir that will serve this year as the White House Christmas tree - hauling it aboard a 45-foot refrigerated trailer from Olympia, Wash.

The Denver couple will cross 11 states on their 2,700-mile trip to Washington, D.C. First Lady Rosalynn Carter will accept the tree Thursday.

Big Apple paranoia

Singer Julie Budd has changed her Manhattan address, and she's keeping the new one stamped top secret.

For years, she lived on the city's west side, but a burglar broke in, stole several thousand dollars and wrecked what valuables he couldn't carry away. Then the scary mail started coming - including death threats.

Grasso defends decision for woman on top court

NEW HAVEN (UPI) - Despite criticism, Gov. Ella T. Grasso says she'll stick by her decision to make Ellen Ash Peters the first woman Supreme Court justice in Connecticut history.

The name of Mrs. Peters, 47, who has been on the Yale Law School faculty since 1956, has been sent to Mrs. Grasso's ad-hoc judicial screening committee. If the appointment is made, and it appears likely, it would violate the tradition of naming the most senior member of the Superior Court to the high court. However, it would not be the first time someone not on the bench was chosen.

Elm City faces suit on firefighter tests

NEW HAVEN (UPI) - One of 13 women who failed New Haven's firefighters' test is considering suing the city.

"I think that what they are doing is they are using a test that discriminates against women," Phyllis Gelman, attorney for the woman, said Sunday. "There is no evidence to show the test they are using actually predicts they will select good firefighters."

Ms. Gelman of the Connecticut Women's Educational Legal fund declined to identify her client, but said she was one of the 13 who failed the qualifying exam at Studio One in Los Angeles.

The women were among 465 persons who took the written part of the exam. Five of them failed the written test, with the rest qualifying for the physical exam. Only five showed up for the physical test and all failed. A total of 108 men passed both the physical and written tests.

The six-part physical ability test was prepared by two University of Connecticut faculty members. Ms. Gelman said some parts of the test were discriminatory, while others were not.

John E. Billing, who helped draw up the exam, said "probably the average female is not physically capable of doing the work of a firefighter."

MACC news

For the very first time we have a MACC Seasonal Sharing Center, thanks to Ken Burkamp of the Manchester Mall. At the back of the Mall (located in the old Grand Building, 211 Main St.), Ken has set aside for our community Christmas giving, a whole section which we hope to fill with toys, food, and gifts for the elderly and shut-ins.

For your convenience, there will be volunteers staffing the Seasonal Sharing Center at the Mall every day except Sunday between noon and 8 p.m. They will be happy to help you with gift ideas for elderly and shut-ins, for patients in our convalescent homes, and for needy children. You may also, of course, drop off your new or good-as-new toys and food for Christmas baskets. Extra nice to have are special Christmas treats particularly for baskets going to families with children or to the elderly.

We have been asked to make the center a drop-off point for those who wish to leave gifts for the children of men serving terms in Somers Correctional Institution. These gifts will be given to the men to send to their own children as gifts from Dad. For those of you who wish to reach out in this special project to both fathers and children, bring your unwrapped new toys or gifts in a bag marked Somers. A special loving touch - include wrapping paper, ribbon, and a tag.

Regional government, regional zoning, regional education and regional taxes are terms that may be new to you but they will affect everyone in the future. Regionalism is a well planned attempt by the Federal Government to destroy the power and independence of the suburbs. HUD is encouraging the City of Hartford to buy land in the suburbs to build low income housing. This is a prime example of Regional Government. The Capital Council of Regional Government is the agency that will administer this new policy. This plan was tried in New York City and was called "Scatter Site Housing." We all know what has happened to New York City.

Florist will show art of Christmas

Paul Buetner, florist, will be the guest speaker at the Manchester Green Chapter No. 2399 of American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) Thursday in Fellowship Hall at Community Baptist Church, 586 E. Center St.

DON'T LET IT HAPPEN HERE

MANCHESTER PROPERTY OWNERS ASSOCIATION MEMBERSHIP DUES FOR 1978 - $5.00

The meeting will begin with a potluck at noon. Members are asked to bring their own place setting. Buetner will demonstrate the construction of Christmas decorations.

There will be group singing and a Christmas grab bag exchange.

YWCA volunteers will be "on the spot" also between 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday and 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday to receive your donations of toys (or money if you prefer). Only money given to this Toys for Joy collection will be earmarked for toys. All other donations to the MACC Seasonal Sharing Fund are set aside for warm clothing and shoes and boots.

Each year we have a special problem securing gifts for the children over 11 and 12. Several people have pointed out that by this age children understand when a family is having a hard time and really don't expect much at Christmas. True - true! We know some of these children and they don't expect much, and most of them certainly are not going to add to their parent's problems and sorrows by asking for anything. (Some of the younger ones, of course, expect Santa to be as kind to them as he is to everyone else.)

All the same, it is our belief that sometimes it is even harder at Christmas time to be 11 or 12 and be so "outside" of the excitement and general fun of giving and receiving that at this season is going on all around us.

For those outside

For those of you who are a special interest in providing a merry Christmas for one of our not quite children but not quite adults we suggest:

• Gift certificates to a store or a eating place, or even to the movies.
• Billfolds (and a crisp $1 bill), scarves, stretch mittens, hats, craft sets, models, paint sets.
• Games for older children, chess, backgammon, scrabble, yaltzee - monopoly.
• And for those who want to really go all out.
• Inexpensive transistor radios.
• Colorful sleeping bags that can also be an everyday quilt.
• Study lamp.
• Inexpensive watch.

First things first

It's tough working for the federal government. With every change of administration, if not often, you have to break in a new boss and teach him the realities of the Washington bureaucracy. Charles D. Ferris, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, found out about those realities when he announced that he was going to change the agency's working hours from 8 a.m.-4:30 p.m. to 9 a.m.-5:30 p.m.

that the agency's 1,285 employees were almost unanimously opposed to this disruption in their working and living styles. They cited a number of objections, but the one that touches us most is that later hours put employees on the street after dark, exposing them to criminals. Well, before communications broke down entirely at the communications agency, Chairman Ferris backed off and said he would postpone the change for two months. In that time, "considerable flexibility and discretion" would be given to bureau chiefs to work out arrangements with employees to allow them, if possible, to keep their current schedule. Lesson learned. The federal bureaucracy does not exist to serve the needs of the public; it exists to serve the needs of federal bureaucrats.

Nix to xylitol

Life in this technological world seems to be more and more a matter of choosing the lesser of two evils. A minor but quite typical example has to do with a once-promising sugar substitute called xylitol. Hailed as rather a miracle substance only a few years ago, xylitol has been found to cause — you guessed it — cancer and other problems in test animals. On the basis of the finding, the State University of New York has halted a barely begun project to test a xylitol-sweetened chewing gum as a cavity fighter among 150 Long Island school children.

can get. It occurs naturally in the human body and in a number of vegetables and has nutritive value. With cyclamates banned and saccharin under suspicion, xylitol was for a time considered an ideal substitute for sugar. Alas, it looks like we're stuck with cavities. Most people, of course, given the choice, would take dental caries over cancer. Or even diabetes over cancer. And it goes without saying that there cannot be the slightest doubt about the safety of any ingestible substance that would be used by children. But just once, couldn't we have a sugar substitute that didn't turn sour?

Environmentalists fill Carter ranks

By Lee Roderick
WASHINGTON — When President Carter proposed to zap 30 federal water projects earlier this year — some of which had been under construction for a quarter century at a cost running to the hundreds of millions — protesters flocked to Washington to see who was pulling the levers on such a monumental decision. What they found was nearly as startling to some of them as the decision itself: One key hand on the levers belonged to 27-year-old Kathy Fletcher, formerly of the Environmental Defense Fund and now one of three energy/environment specialists on the White House domestic staff.

"I think we must be concerned when we see a wholesale movement of dozens of these people into the second, third, fourth and fifth slots in the administrative agencies and regulatory boards...and then begin to reflect on what will happen in the future as they are the ones who make decisions...pass regulations...and formulate policy option papers that go on up to the people above them in the hierarchy..." One doesn't have to look far to see why McClure and many of his congressional colleagues, especially from the West, are concerned about such influence on the administration's policies. These individuals, who have been brought in from the cold by Carter, already have helped formulate a wide variety of controversial proposals which will inhibit growth in industry and agriculture — especially in western states highly dependent on the use of federally developed water and federal-owned lands.

Public interest figures Here is a cross section of other leading public interest figures now in key government posts. James Moorman, former Sierra Club attorney, now the attorney in charge of land and natural resources at the Justice Department; Gus Speth, former staff attorney at the Natural Resources Defense Council, now a member of the Council on Environmental Quality; Barbara Blum, former president of Save America's Vital Environment (SAVE) now deputy head of the Environmental Protection Agency. Also: Barbara Heller, staff member at the Environmental Policy Center, now Deputy Under-

Secretary of Interior; Cynthia Wilson, Washington representative of the National Audubon Society, now assistant to the Secretary of Interior; and Carlton Neville, former head of the Georgia League of Conservation Voters, now staff assistant to the Secretary of Agriculture. But the premier environmentalist in the Carter administration didn't come from the ranks of such groups. He is Secretary of Interior Cecil Andrus, plucked from the governor's chair in Idaho, a state 67 percent owned by the federal government. Idaho's high dependence upon friendly Washington policies has led many western interests to denounce Andrus as a turncoat.

"What we are attempting to do is right the wrongs of the past," Andrus recently told a Washington newspaper. "The department doesn't just belong to the miners and the oil companies; it belongs to the miners, to the oil companies, the hunters, the fishermen, the outitters and birdwatchers, the citizens of America." Although Andrus has become the lightning rod for complaints over the administration's environmental moves, Cabinet secretaries, like presidents, come and go while the bureaucracy lives on. Long after he and Carter have departed, the administration's legacy will live on in the former public interest outsiders who suddenly find themselves part of the bureaucratic establishment.

Energy giants feel heat

By Martha Angle and Robert Walters
WASHINGTON — (NEA) — They had a little birthday party the other day for the toughest 2-year-old in town. There were scores of well-wishers, but the oil companies were definitely not among them. Standard of Indiana, Mobil, Gulf and the rest of the industry giants would have much preferred a funeral service for Energy Action, the tiny tot in question. Almost from the day of its birth, the self-styled public interest group has been driving Big Oil around the bend. And there is no relief in sight.

Originally founded the organization are still actively involved in its growth. They provide a large part of its operating budget and help raise the rest from small contributors, leaving Flüg and his staff free to concentrate on harassing the oil industry. It is difficult for any public interest group to sustain its enthusiasm and financial backing, since those who benefit from the labors of such organizations are ordinary people who may not even know their champions exist. But Energy Action appears to be thriving as it enters its third year, and that is good news for American consumers.

Under the direction of James F. Flüg, a 38-year-old former top aide to Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., the fledgling public interest lobby is exerting influence out of all proportion to its size on both the administration and the House conferees who are battling to preserve Carter's program. Flüg & Co. are trying to keep the president on key, singing the tune which Carter himself wrote for an acceptable energy package. It isn't easy, with Russell Long and Senate colleagues sitting there playing Big Oil's song in conference. Over the Thanksgiving recess, Energy Secretary James Schlesinger murmured to a press conference that the administration might be prepared to accept still higher oil and gas prices if that's what is necessary to get an energy bill. Flüg hit the ceiling first, and then

Thought

What to expect when at church
Yesterday was the Lord's Day. I presume you were in your place at church. I wonder, do you remember what the minister said in his message? They say that people only remember the illustrations — and forget most everything else. Today, in this brief thought for the day, I will use no illustrations, so perhaps you will forget everything I will say. I hope not!

In the second place, you should expect the minister to exalt Christ as the Son of God and the Savior of the World. The Apostle Paul in his letter to the Philippians, spoke of Jesus in these words of truth. "Wherefore God also hath highly exalted him, and given him a name which is above every name."

AFS club hosts 10 students

The American Field Service (AFS) Club at Manchester High School hosted ten foreign exchange students in Connecticut and two domestic exchange students last weekend in a round of activities that began with a potluck at the high school and included sports and roller skating. The host family brothers and sisters participated in the event. The exchange students stayed until Sunday afternoon with families in Manchester who are interested in the AFS program.

Foreign countries represented in this group are New Zealand, Australia, Greece, Japan, Spain, Sweden, Columbia and Brazil. The domestic exchange students were from New York State and California. Any Manchester family interested in hosting an exchange student for the 1978-79 school year may contact Mr. and Mrs. George Garman, 643-5393.

About town

The Women's Home League of the Salvation Army will meet Tuesday at 1:30 p.m. at the Citadel. Christmas party plans will be discussed. Mrs. Harold Williamson is the hostess.

Photographs by students taking basic and advanced courses in photography at Manchester Community College are being displayed this month in "The Picture Place" in the basement of the Hartford Road campus of the college. The display will be changed occasionally because more photographs were chosen than can be accommodated at once in the space available. The display is open to the public Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 10 p.m., and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., now through Dec. 22.

Green Manor Construction Co.

Green Manor Construction Co. thought it had possibilities. The chamber put out its inquiry. Green Manor, however, explored it even more deeply. Neil Ellis and his sister, Constance Kaplan, owned property off Broad Street near the proposed site for the heliport — between St. James Cemetery and about 600 feet from the Post Office Substation at Broad and Green Manor Boulevard.

Does Manchester need a heliport?

That question was once asked of Manchester. It was explored, and later abandoned. The story began about 1958 when the Manchester Chamber of Commerce was asked to "obtain a sampling of reactions" to a possibility of helicopter mail service from Boston and New York to Manchester via Bradley Field — now Bradley International Airport.

Strike vote reversed

SOUTHINGTON (UPI) — Unable to convince other workers to join them on the picket line, aircraft mechanics and machinists at Pratt & Whitney Aircraft's Southington plant have overwhelmingly reversed their previous vote to strike. A week ago, the 2,400 Southington members of the International Association of Machinists, District 91, voted by a 7-1 margin to go on strike. But Sunday, the workers voted 1,465 to 77 to rescind that strike vote and accept a new five-year contract.

However, in subsequent votes, employees at the other two plants were unable to muster the two-thirds vote needed to go on strike. Southington workers continued to report to work last week. Pratt & Whitney officials gave the workers a seven-day extension on their old three-year pact to give them time to reconsider their strike vote. In a last-ditch attempt, Southington union leaders asked national IAM officials if Middletown workers could take a second vote. The international turned down that request Friday. The Southington union leadership then recommended the workers accept the contract even though they viewed it as unacceptable because the five-year pact did not contain sufficient job security. "The people made their choice and that's it," local president Tom Shea said Sunday. But local vice president Ray Dungan said he expected all three locals to be better organized when the contract came up for renegotiation. "We'll be ready in '80 and '82 to take the company on again," he said. "There's no doubt that in '80 or '82 we'll be able to take this company out." Although the contract is a five-year one, the salary for the fourth and fifth years is to be negotiated in three years.

Report says Maine is welfare capital

PORTLAND, Maine (UPI) — Maine has become the nation's welfare capital, where a higher percentage of general revenues comes from federal welfare checks than any other place in the United States, a report by a midwestern research group says.

Researchers at the Academy for Contemporary Problems in Columbus, Ohio, said Maine's percentage growth in per capita federal welfare payments led every other state between 1970 and 1975, the most recent year for which complete figures are available.

Only New York City averaged more in actual dollars, the report said.

The report, published in the Maine Sunday Telegram, also indicated Maine's position among welfare recipients should not be surprising. In 1975, the state ranked 42nd in the country in median family income, averaging about $11,839.

Although 1975 data could be considered old, researchers said preliminary data for more recent years doesn't indicate much change in the rankings of welfare recipients.

In 1975, 13.2 percent of total general revenues in the state came from federal welfare payments. Disbursements to the state had increased from a total of 9 percent in 1970, when Maine was rated 13th in the country.

The report said in 1970, Maine's per capita distribution of federal welfare money, at $50.05, was rated 16th in the country. Five years later, the figure more than doubled to $125.55.

That year, only New York State, at $156.50, had a higher per capita distribution of federal money for the poor. Still, it much more than Maine's, because of the higher cost of living in New York.

In 1975, Maine also ranked first in the ratio of federal welfare aid to personal income. Payments averaged $27.87 per $1,000 of personal income.

Northeastern states moved from third to first place among the four regions in federal grants per capita for all aid, researchers said.

Increased welfare payments to the poor in decaying cities played a big part in the rise. But if welfare contributions were removed from the calculations, the Northeast still would rank third, the report said.

The academy also said differences among various regions in receiving federal grants — for such things as defense, agriculture, health, education, law enforcement and transportation — are becoming better balanced.

Caring topic for Emanuel

"Caring for Each Other" is the theme of the Christmas meeting of Emanuel Church Women Tuesday, in Luther Hall of the church beginning at 6:30 p.m. with a traditional Swedish smorgasbord.

Elsie Swanson and Marion Buckmaster are in charge of refreshments. Anne Reed and Pearl Hullman will be greeters.

A special musical program starting at 7:15 p.m. will feature Cheryl and Jerry Hadley, young musicians who are members of the church. It has been arranged by Jean Scott and Lorraine Johnson, co-chairmen for the meeting. Cheryl comes to Emanuel from Muscatine, Iowa, and her husband, Jerry, from Peoria, Ill. Both have just completed requirements for a master's degree at the University of Illinois. Jerry is teaching at the University of Connecticut and plans to participate in the Lake George Opera Festival in the spring. The Mittens and hats to be displayed on the Mitten Tree and later to be donated to Manchester Conference of Churches should be brought to this meeting.

Members are reminded that there will be no executive board meeting in December.

Protein rip-off

DEAR DR. LAMB—My friends and I are taking protein powder twice a day, along with Vitamin E and B-6. This is supposed to help us lose weight. We are wondering if there is a danger in taking too much protein, and how much is too much? Also, are the Vitamins E and B-6 necessary?

We belong to a new club and are using the products the club is selling us. Are we harming ourselves in any way?

DEAR READER—If you don't mind throwing your money away, you are not harming yourself. The protein rip-off is widespread. Your body only uses a limited amount of protein each day to replace tissues or form compounds such as enzymes that are made up of the amino acids in proteins.

For women without any bizarre protein losing disease and who are not pregnant, the Recommended Daily Dietary Allowance (considerably more than the Minimal Daily Requirement) is less than 50 grams of protein a day. You will get that much in a half pound of lean meat, chicken, or fish, without counting the protein in milk and other foods.

What happens to the extra protein—surprise, surprise. Your body simply uses it for its caloric value, and a gram of protein has the same caloric value as a gram of carbohydrate. If that increases your calorie intake more than your body uses, the extra calories are converted to body fat. Isn't that just great for a reducing program! You are really taking a food supplement.

Proteins are made up of amino acids and these can be converted to glucose. Scientists call this process gluconeogenesis (forming new glucose) by the liver, and the excess glucose can be converted to fat. Other amino acids from protein are converted directly to fatty acids and used as fat. These we call ketogenic. But gluconic, ketogenic, or what have you, the important thing for all to remember before being had by the protein rip-off is that the amino acids in protein that you don't use for building are simply converted to fat and glucose, and used like all the other sources of fat and carbohydrate in your food.

Taking extra protein, then, is just an indirect way of consuming more fat and carbohydrate.

If you are serious about losing weight, you need only follow a good, sensible program of a well balanced, low calorie diet and a good daily exercise program. I am sending you The Health Letter number 47, Weight Losing Diet, to help you. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of The Manchester Herald, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Vitamin E has no role at all in helping a person lose fat. In general, it is an inactive substance. Most of the benefits some people think they get from it are all psychological. You might as well put distilled water in a capsule and sell it to most people. A well balanced diet will provide all the vitamin E you need. Vitamin B-6 will not cause you to lose fat either. It has been included in a number of fat weight reducing schemes, but your body will only use so much vitamin B-6, and the excess is eliminated in your urine. The protein powders and does the job.

New drugs can fight viruses

CHICAGO (UPI) — The development of two antiviral drugs could herald a new class of drugs to eliminate presently untreatable viral diseases, an editorial in this week's edition of the Journal of the American Medical Association said.

Journal Editor Dr. William R. Barclay said the two drugs already developed show it is possible to create medicines to selectively destroy viruses without damaging human tissue.

"The development of antiviral agents has regenerated the excitement that follows a major breakthrough," Barclay said. "and perhaps a cure of diseases for which we presently have no treatment."

Barclay said the development could help people live longer.

"If we should enjoy the same success in developing additional antiviral agents in the future as we have in developing antibacterial agents in the past, then we will have conquered most of the diseases that shorten the normal life span," Barclay said.

"What will be left are those diseases that man inflicts on himself through carelessness, greed, laziness and stupidity," he added. "For these traits in man, there are no cures as yet in sight."

Barclay said the two antiviral drugs are amantadine hydrochloride for the treatment of influenza, and vidarabine for the treatment of herpes simplex infections.

Plan would raise phone rates 70 to 95 cents

HARTFORD (UPI) — The Public Utilities Control Authority has tentatively approved a rate structure that would raise the monthly telephone bills of Southern New England Telephone Co. customers by 70 to 95 cents.

The regulatory panel also tentatively decided: Not to increase the cost of a pay telephone call from 18 to 20 cents as SNET had requested.

Homes lost in attic fire

Vernon
A fire in the attic of a three-family house at the corner of Thompson and Ward streets, Rockville, forced the families to seek other quarters for the night.
The fire was reported shortly before 4 p.m. and was under control in about 35 minutes. No injuries were reported.
There was no fire damage to the floors below the attic but the attic rafters and roof were damaged. Fire officials said, however, that water was dripping from the attic, to the floors below and there was heavy smoke in the building.
The cause of the fire is still under investigation. The Red Cross assisted the families in finding housing.

Ladies Night set by Lions

The Manchester Lions Club will conduct its annual holiday Ladies Night on Tuesday at The Colony in Tauntonville.
Following dinner, members and their guests will be entertained by Mood Jingo, a barbershop quartet from the Greater Hartford area. The group was formed in the spring of 1976 and entered the Sweet Adelines competition in 1977. It is a member of the Mountain Laurel chorus which recently won a blue ribbon for the fourth time and will enter competition in Los Angeles in October 1978.

Hearing tonight on church plan

A public hearing will be held tonight on the proposed housing for the elderly project that is planned for the Hartford Road campus of South United Methodist Church.
The hearing will be at Robertson School, 45 N. School St., at 7:30. The proposed housing would consist of 100 residential units for elderly people. The plans for the housing were first presented to the Planning and Zoning Commission in June 1976.
Since that time, the proposal has been the subject of a controversy among town residents as well as church members.
In July, a public hearing was held for a change in the zoning regulations that would permit housing for the elderly or handicapped as a special exception in most zones.
About 150 people attended the hearing. Supporters spoke about the town's need for housing for the elderly. Opponents expressed concern about a weakening of town zoning.
The PZC approved the change, and this has permitted the applicants to seek housing for the elderly at the Hartford Road campus across from the church.
The applicants for the proposal are South United Methodist Church and the Wesley Retirement Center Inc.
The proposed housing, if approved, is expected to receive federal funding through the Department of Housing and Urban Development.
Property Interest Committee has formed to oppose the proposal. Members are expected to attend tonight's session.
The proposal has received support from Manchester's Commission on Aging, the Manchester Housing Authority and the Organization of the Handicapped.

At conference on downtowns

Two Town of Manchester employees and an executive from the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce are attending a conference in Boston on Main Street revitalization.
The conference, which is steel-framed aluminum contains about 28,000 square feet. Lombardo eventually plans to have it also house a roller skating rink and a pro shop.
Lombardo plans to name the facility "Slokin Heaven" and to have it have facilities for novices, amateur and expert skateboarders. It will have facilities for the five basic skateboard styles.
The two-day event is for representatives from communities in New England and New York and will focus on the needs and possibilities of redeveloping downtown areas.

Town spends $158,853 in anti-recession funds

The Town of Manchester spent $158,853 in anti-recession funds during the 1976-77 fiscal year. Town Controller Thomas Moore said Friday.
The anti-recession funds are federal monies provided to communities. The amount that a town or city receives is based on several factors, including population and unemployment.
The money during the last fiscal year was spent in the following categories, Moore said: administration, $70,844; roads, $32,800; sanitation, $21,500; housing and urban renewal, $18,900; park and recreation, $10,000; cemetery, $5,000.
Some of the expenses were for group insurance, $52,500; housing for the elderly on Spencer Street, $18,900; and the dredging of Center Springs Pond, $10,000.

Thrifty's becomes skatepark

Vernon
Vernon will be the site of the first outdoor skateboard arena to be developed in Connecticut. This will be on Route 83 in the building formerly occupied by Thrifty's Building Center.
At one time the town considered buying the building for a police and fire complex, but the price was too high.
Frank Lombardo of Tolland is developer of the facility. There are about 200 other such facilities throughout the country. There is an outdoor skateboard park in Colchester and another indoor one is being planned for the New Haven area as well as one in Torrington.
Lombardo expects the local center to be ready in about two weeks. The building, which is steel-framed aluminum contains about 28,000 square feet. Lombardo eventually plans to have it also house a roller skating rink and a pro shop.
Lombardo plans to name the facility "Slokin Heaven" and to have it have facilities for novices, amateur and expert skateboarders. It will have facilities for the five basic skateboard styles.
When school closes
During winter storms, which may indicate a possible closing of Vernon schools and no transportation to Howell Cheney Technical School in Manchester, the following radio stations will carry the announcement from 6:30 to 8 a.m.: WVIC, WRBC, WINF, and WFOF.

Vernon council to meet

The Vernon Town Council will meet tonight at 7:30 in the Memorial Building. This will be the first Monday meeting. For the past two years the council has been meeting on Tuesday nights.
It is expected newly elected Mayor Frank McCoy will name the town attorney and ask the council's approval.
The mayor will also discuss the status of the Youth Services Director. The former director resigned a few months ago to go into business for himself. Mayor McCoy will ask the council to ratify the appointments of David M. Maker and Caroline Forster to the Vernon Fine Arts Commission.
The council will also be asked to appoint a council subcommittee to formulate guidelines for the Investor-Owned Rehabilitation Program.
In connection with the program, the council will discuss withdrawing the Freedom of Information appeal which had been filed by the former Democratic administration. The FOI Commission ruled that the town should allow a local newspaper to see addresses of participants in the rehab program and the Democratic administration contended that it would be an invasion of privacy.
During the election campaign, McCoy promised, if elected, that he would release the names.
Other items scheduled on tonight's agenda include a report on the Environmental Health Department's activities; the auditor's report on the Community Development Block Grant Fund programs; the monthly report from the director of administration on new hires and action on several resignations from boards and commissions.

of metal pipe on Route 6 in Bolton Saturday, struck a utility pole and severed it, police said. No action was taken against the driver, Michael J. Joanna Obshinsky, 16, of 117 Pond Lane, Manchester, was charged Saturday with fourth-degree larceny (shoplifting) on complaint of Sage-Allen's in Vernon. She was released on her promise to appear in court Dec. 28.
Lillian J. Rice, 41, of 325 Kelly Road, Vernon, was charged Saturday with failure to grant the right of way at a private drive and driving without a license. She was involved in a two-car accident on Route 83. Her court answer date is Dec. 22.
Desmond McGinn, 50, of Ellington Road, South Windsor, was charged Saturday with improper passing. He was involved in a two-car accident on Ellington Road. His court date is Dec. 16.
William A. Graham, 17, of 27 Columbus Circle, East Hartford, was charged Saturday with failure to drive in proper lane and driving an unregistered motor vehicle. Police said he lost control of his car on Ellington Road and struck a utility pole. His court date is Dec. 16.

Area police report

Vernon
Police are investigating a holdup reported at the Gasland Service Station, Union and West streets, Rockville, Saturday night.
Police said the attendant said a lone male approached him, and handed him a note demanding all of his money. The attendant complied, and the robber ran off, on foot, to the rear of St. Joseph's Church.
The male was described as being about six feet tall and weighing about 165 pounds. He was wearing a brown three-quarter length coat, a navy blue ski cap and dark slacks.
The Special Services Squad of the police department is investigating the incident. Any person who might have been in the area about 10 p.m., and who might have information, should contact the police station.
Daniel Prince, 17, of Ward Street, Rockville, was charged Friday night with breach of peace. Police said Prince became abusive when they were called to Ward Street to investigate a noise complaint. Prince was released on a $100 nonsurety bond for appearance in Common Pleas Court, 10, Rockville, Dec. 28.
Harold M. Caron, 17, of 21 Spring St., Rockville, was charged Saturday with fourth-degree larceny (shoplifting). A tractor-trailer truck lost its load

South Windsor PZC sets public hearings
The South Windsor Planning and Zoning Commission will hold a public hearing Tuesday at 8:30 p.m. in the Council Chamber of Town Hall to consider the following applications:
• Donald E. Muller and Glenn E. Schukei for a one-lot subdivision of property located about 500 feet southeast of Robert Drive and Abby Road with 60 feet of frontage on the east side of Abby Road, in an RR zone.
• Allerton Construction Co., Essex, for a zone change from RR-1 to residential on 19.5 acres located near the intersection of Sand Hill and Ellington roads.
Friendly books program
A "Friendly Books" Program for children 3 to 5 years old will be held at the Clubhouse of the Pleasant Valley Apartments Wednesday from 10:15 to 11 a.m. This free program is being offered by the Friends of the South Windsor Public Library.
Enrollment will be limited to 20 so that all children can be assured personal attention. Preregistrations will be accepted by Mrs. Brad Alpers of Birch Road and Mrs. Roger Cottle of Clinton Drive.
Cotter's office visits
The mobile office of First District Congressman William R. Cotter will be at the Sullivan Avenue Shopping Center, Sullivan Avenue, Tuesday from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Bolton meeting tonight

Bolton's Annual Town Meeting will be tonight at 8 at the Community House. Reports of various officers and boards will be heard.
Residents will be asked to accept deeds for 23 acres of land and three roads. The roads are Westridge Drive, a portion of Brian Drive and Mount Summer Drive.
Residents will be asked to release to Thomas Witherspoon any interest the town has in or to a 12-foot drainage easement and temporary turnaround crossing on a lot on Mount Summer Drive.
Opposes land deal
The Republican Town Committee has opposed purchase of the Alton property on Hebron Road for use as a town facility. The Board of Selectmen recently discussed that possibility.
Robert Morra, Republican town chairman, said maintenance and cost are two reasons the committee is opposed. He said the town once again would be spreading out its facilities instead of consolidating them.
Morra said it would be wiser to go with a new facility instead of an old one.
Members of the committee will be distributing a 10-page booklet containing information about the town beginning this weekend. Each household in town will be given a booklet.
Morra said he feels the information will be displayed at the Community Hall for new residents.
Ornaments sought
Friends of the Library is once again inviting Bolton residents to contribute handmade ornaments for the community Christmas tree that will be displayed at Bentley Memorial Library.
The tradition of having a community Christmas tree began last year. Sue Gorton, of the Friends of the Library said this year's tree will be bigger than last year's and will be displayed on the floor of the library, not in the showcase.

She said the group is trying to purchase an artificial green Christmas tree but will be happy to accept one if anyone cares to make a donation.
Persons wishing to donate a handmade ornament are asked to have it represent a character from a book. Donations may be brought to the library anytime.
For further information call Mrs. Gorton at 649-3838.
Evening bazaar
The Bolton Elementary Center School PTO will have an Evening Bazaar Tuesday from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Elementary School All Purpose Room. The public is invited.

Commuter bus expected

Covertry
Covertry will have a commuter bus to Hartford next fall if the recommendations of two state Department of Transportation (DOT) planners are accepted by the deputy commissioner of research and the Finance Advisory Committee.
Planners Jim Sanders and Dick Martinez told a dozen residents this week at a public hearing called by the town's Conservation Commission that they are recommending a six-month trial run for two commuter buses at a monthly fee of $35 per passenger.
The Town Council inquired about the possibility of bus service as early as two years ago. This summer the council and the Conservation Commission conducted a survey which received 415 returns indicating that 486 residents were interested in commuter bus service. "But buses are questioned. Sanders pointed out that each operation is only funded to the amount of $60,000 of a total annual budget of $200,000 and that private bus companies negotiate different contract terms in each area."
Councilman Harold Crane feared that some commuters will not use the bus service because they estimate it costs only $45 per month to use their own cars. "Commuters must pay through the nose whether they go by car or bus," he contended. But Sanders countered that the rate might be lowered if patronage is high. He said car pools were even better and that the state is trying to encourage them by establishing commuter parking lots in heavily populated regions. "But buses are a viable alternative," he stated.
Of the 138 responses, 94 percent came from Covertry residents, with the remainder from surrounding towns. Most preferred taking the buses from the Meadowbrook Shopping Plaza on Route 44A, but some said St. Mary's is more suitable. There are 50 parking spaces available at Meadowbrook and 250 at St. Mary's.
Buses would leave Covertry between 6:40 and 7:50 a.m. and arrive at destinations between 6:46 and 8:25 a.m. They would leave the Hartford area between 4 and 5:40 p.m. and return to Covertry between 4:35 and 6:30. One bus would make two runs, and the second would make one run. If the trial period is successful, service could be expanded.

Giants had that old win feeling, result was 27-7 upset of Cards

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (UPI) — Under the circumstances, the New York Giants had no right to feel so confident about their chances Sunday against the St. Louis Cardinals.

Earlier this season, St. Louis easily beat the Giants for the seventh straight time, 29-0. The Cardinals also had the motivation of the playoffs, for which they could qualify by winning their last three games, starting with the 4-7 Giants. Adding to these unfavorable conditions for New York was a case of intestinal flu that swept the team last week, leaving at least five starters running for the bathroom with various symptoms.

But there was also this other condition. Call it a premonition: The Giants had that, for a chance they were feeling to do things right.

"Despite all the sickness, we had a feeling all week long that this was our hallday," said halfback Bobby Hamilton after the Giants' 27-7 victory over St. Louis, stalling the Cardinals' drive for a playoff berth. "It's an indescribable feeling, but you know."

The Giants, controlling the ball for nearly two-thirds of the game, gained 234 of their 318 yards on the ground and took advantage of some key St. Louis mistakes to deal the Cardinals' second straight loss. "It's a Bill Bryant returned an intercepted Jim Hart pass 94 yards for a touchdown to send New York ahead 17-7 early in the third quarter. Late in the period Joe Pisarcik, who completed only three passes, connected with tight end Gary Shirk for 64 yards to set up Willie Spencer's 5-yard TD plunge on the next play.

"This is the first time since I've been here that all gears meshed," Giants' coach John McVay said.

"I'm baffled," St. Louis offensive tackle Dan Dierdorf said. "I don't know what it is. It seemed everything happened to us this week. You can't make the mistakes of the magnitude we made and expect to beat anyone in this league."

The Cardinals, who have given up 82 points in their last two games, permitted the Giants' their highest point production of the season.

A pair of fourth-quarter St. Louis drives were stopped by turnovers. New York linebacker Dan Lloyd recovered Terry Metcalf's fumble in the end zone after the Cards reached the two and linebacker Brad Van Pelt, who nearly didn't start he was weakened by the flu, intercepted another Hart pass after St. Louis moved to the New York 19.

Pisarcik, Hammond, fullback Larry Coonka and wide receiver Jimmy Robinson were the other New York starters suffering in varying degrees from the flu.

"They beat us in the most fundamental way," St. Louis coach Don Corcoran said. "They let us have the ball. They took it and stuck it in our ear, and we couldn't get the offense going."

Hammond capped an 80-yard drive on the game's opening possession by slanting 15 yards off right tackle to give the Giants a 7-0 lead. Hart's TD pass to Harris tied the game early in the second period before Joe Danolo kicked the first of two field goals, a 20-yarder, sending the Giants ahead 10-7 just before halftime.

St. Louis must win by 11 or more points next week against Washington, which beat the Cards 24-14 earlier in the season, and then defeat Tampa Bay for a chance at the NFC wildcard berth.

"I'm baffled," St. Louis offensive tackle Dan Dierdorf said. "I don't know what it is. It seemed everything happened to us this week. You can't make the mistakes of the magnitude we made and expect to beat anyone in this league."

Grogan didn't despair and Patriots still alive

ATLANTA (UPI) — Most of the nearly 58,000 fans in the stands felt the Atlanta Falcons had an upset in hand, but New England quarterback Steve Grogan didn't despair.

The Patriots, trailing 10-6, were backed up to their own 11-yard line with barely nine minutes to play Sunday. The defensive-minded Falcons, desperately battling to keep alive their flickering hopes for an NFL playoff berth, had stopped them cold on four previous series.

But Grogan was confident New England could win and keep its own playoff chances alive.

"We'd been moving the ball (earlier) and we knew they'd be coming with the blitz," said Grogan, who was sacked only once all afternoon. "We picked up what they were doing on defense. It's no secret."

New England, now 6-6, had gained a net of only 28 yards and had not been inside the Patriots' 45-yard line.

But the Patriots' defense, which went into the game rated No. 1 in the NFL, came through with a pass interception and a blocked punt late in the game to enable Atlanta to take the lead.

The interception, by Rick Byas, put the ball at the New England 14 and two plays later Steve Bartkowski threw a 15-yard touchdown pass to Wallace Francis. That made it 9-7 New England with 3:57 left in the third period.

With only seconds remaining in the period, Edgar Fields blocked a punt from the Patriots to a 16-10 victory over the Falcons.

"When you're down, they like to come with the blitz," said Grogan, who was sacked only once all afternoon. "We picked up what they were doing on defense. It's no secret."

New England, now 6-6, had gained a net of only 28 yards and had not been inside the Patriots' 45-yard line.

But the Patriots' defense, which went into the game rated No. 1 in the NFL, came through with a pass interception and a blocked punt late in the game to enable Atlanta to take the lead.

"From our point of view, it was a good victory since it keeps our playoff hopes alive," said Patriots coach Chuck Fairbanks. "It would appear that if Miami won (tonight), it would be in our favor."

New England beat Atlanta at its own game Sunday — defense. The Patriots sacked Bartkowski eight times and intercepted four of his passes. The Falcons intercepted Grogan three times, but had only that one sack. Grogan has been sacked only twice in the Patriots' past six games.

"New England has as good a defensive team as we've played against," said Bartkowski. "Ball control was our game plan, but when you get a breakdown on two of three plays, you lose ball control."

Atlanta, which now has only 89 points in 12 games, still has a good chance to wind up with the lowest scoring yard since the NFL went to a 14-game season. The record for 14 games behind Miami in the AFC East with Baltimore playing at Miami tonight. The Patriots host Miami next Sunday, then close their regular season a week later at Baltimore.

"At that point, I thought we would win," said Falcons' coach Leeman Bennett. "I was really surprised when New England drove as far as it did (actually 99 yards because the Patriots had a 10-yard holding penalty) to score. They deserved to win from behind like that in the final quarter."

The victory leaves New England 1-2 games behind Baltimore as the half game behind Miami in the AFC East with Baltimore playing at Miami tonight. The Patriots host Miami next Sunday, then close their regular season a week later at Baltimore.

The Patriots' defense, which went into the game rated No. 1 in the NFL, came through with a pass interception and a blocked punt late in the game to enable Atlanta to take the lead.

Jets capitalize on errors and tack loss on Saints

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Archie Manning looked like he had been crying. He sat quietly in the dressing room, a red puffiness around his eyes, and shook his head.

It had been the sixth close game for the New Orleans Saints this season. As usual, they were on the losing end of the score. Dropped passes, penalties at all the wrong times, too many sacks — mistakes Manning had been through so many times before.

"I'm just disappointed we didn't play better," the veteran quarterback said. "We've been so close so often this season. It's just like having a little ridge we have to get over."

The New York Jets capitalized on the Saints' errors — and recovered from several of their own — to break a seven-game losing streak and take a 16-13 victory over New Orleans Sunday. They won on three field goals by Pat Leahy and the passing of returning quarterback Rick Todd.

After New Orleans took a 13-0 lead early in the fourth quarter, the Jets turned the game around on a 40-yard chip shot in his first attempt and a 49-yard field goal kick return of 48 yards on his second, put the Jets ahead permanently with a 20-yarder with just over six minutes to play. The score was set up by a pass interference call against Clarence Chapman, giving the Jets a first and 10 on the Saints' 15.

Todd, who opened the scoring with a 40-yard pass to Jerome Barkum in the first quarter, returned after an injury layoff of nearly three weeks. He completed eight passes in 21 attempts for 161 yards.

"It felt especially good in the first half," he said. "I'm still a little rusty and I didn't set up good a couple of times."

The Saints, whose other score came on a 9-yard strike up the middle from Manning to Henry Childs, took their ninth loss of the season against three wins — their sixth by a margin of one touchdown or less.

The Jets, who opened the season by closing the team locker room briefly to reporters after the game, forcing cancellation of a post-game radio show.

The Saints, at the bottom of the NFC western division, next week host the winless Tampa Bay Buccaneers. The Jets face the Buffalo Bills.

"I hope to have more days like this," said Dorsett, who now has 865 yards. "If my linemen block like they did today, I'll have a thousand yards."

Morton's TD pass of 13 yards to Riley Odems and Rick Upchurch and Jim Turner's 42-yard field goal in the third period gave Denver a 17-7 lead.

Houston countered with a 29-yard TD pass from Dan Pastorek to Ken Burroughs that Morton came back after an injury to set up backup quarterback Norris Wiese's 5-yard run for the clinching TD.

"It's gratifying to me, of course," said Morton. "But you have to understand this is a closely knit unit that has played together all year."

Other NFL games Sunday:

Dan Fouts passed for 227 yards and three TDs Sunday in San Diego and in Cincinnati. Fouts directed scoring drives of 72, 61, 72 and 61 yards.

Packers 10, Lions 9.
Green Bay stopped Detroit on the two with 4:48 left and the Packers held on to win.

There were those who doubted Heisman Trophy winner Tony Dorsett's ability to perform as a pro. They cited his lack of size and wondered whether he could withstand the punishment of a long season.

But Dorsett silenced his critics Sunday, when he capped a club-record 206-yard rushing performance with a dazzling 84-yard touchdown that propelled Dallas to a 24-14 victory over Philadelphia and brought the Cowboys a fifth straight NFL East title.

And there were many who questioned whether Craig Morton had the ability to be an NFL quarterback when he was with New York Giants. But he found new life in Denver and Sunday he threw two TD passes, then came off the bench after being injured to set up the clinching score in a 24-14 victory over Houston.

The win brought Denver its first playoff berth in the club's 18-year history.

Oakland tied the game with 4:43 left on a 21-yard TD pass from Ken Stabler to Dave Casper and veteran Errol Mann's extra point gave the Raiders a 14-13 lead. But the Rams, who intercepted four Stabler passes and recovered two Raider fumbles, came back to tie the game with a 40-yard pass to Jerome Barkum in the first quarter, returned after an injury layoff of nearly three weeks. He completed eight passes in 21 attempts for 161 yards.

"I felt especially good in the first half," he said. "I'm still a little rusty and I didn't set up good a couple of times."

All-America stars pace teams to win

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two of the best senior guards in the nation, All-America favorites Phil Ford of top-ranked North Carolina and Butch Lee of third-ranked Marquette, took command to lead their teams to victory Saturday. However, the emphasis will be on teamwork and history when co-No. 1 Kentucky hosts Indiana tonight.

Ford won on a three-minute, 11-point scoring spree Saturday night to put the Tar Heels ahead for good and lead them to an 89-82 victory over North Carolina State in the finals of the Big Four Tournament Championship — the first Big Four title for North Carolina since 1971.

Meanwhile, Lee scored 18 points to lead the Marquette Warriors to a 59-47 win over Western Michigan State. Lee scored on three straight jumpers midway through the second half to put an end to the Broncos' hopes of an upset.

There was one major upset in the top 10, with fifth-ranked San Francisco losing to Arizona State, 89-79, in the final of the Fiesta Classic tournament.

Roy Joshua scored 22 points for the Sun Devils, eight of them coming during a 10-minute stretch in the second half, in which Arizona outscored San Francisco, 29-12. The streak turned a 37-37 tie into a 66-49 Sun Devil advantage with 3:08 to play. San Francisco guard Chubby Cox led all scorers with 26.

Fourth-ranked Notre Dame defeated UCLA, 89-75, while sixth-ranked Valparaiso, 89-75, defeated the Bears.

Irish impressive routing Miami

NEW YORK (UPI) — In a celebration of All-America talent, Notre Dame closed its regular season with a flourish Saturday night and stood poised for its upcoming Cotton Bowl battle with top-ranked Texas on Jan. 2.

Tight end Ken McAfee, named last week to UPI's All-America first team for the third straight season, scored two touchdowns after the Notre Dame defense, led by first team All-America Luther Bradley Fry and Bob Goic, started the Irish rolling toward a 49-10 romp over Miami of Florida.

The Irish took a 14-0 lead in the first quarter on the strength of their defense. Fry blindsided Miami quarterback Kenny McMillan to force a fumble which led to a second quarter drive of six scores on consecutive possessions against Houston.

Houston, winner in three of its last four games, led, 7-3, with 4:38 remaining in the first half after Delrick Brown's 5-yard TD pass to Willis Adams.

Elsewhere, Texas A&M beat Houston 27-7. San Diego State edged San Jose State, 37-34, and Florida State topped Florida, 39-9.

At College Station, Texas A&M's freshman quarterback Mike Mosley entered the game late in the second quarter and directed four scores on consecutive possessions against Houston.

Mosley fought back to 14-10 on a 38-yard field goal by Chris Dennis and a 35-yard scoring pass from Kenny McMillan to tight end Steve Alvers before the Irish went ahead, 20-10, before the half when Ferguson took a touchdown and 42 yards to set up a 23-yard scoring pass from Montana.

level play last Wednesday at the Bolton Ice Palace.

Notes off the cuff
Despite being on a losing team in the championship game, Mark Dumas of Massachusetts Maritime was named the most valuable player in the annual Whaler Invitational Basketball Tournament at Coast Guard Academy last Saturday. The host Cadets tripped Maritime for the 11th time. Dumas, a freshman, poured in 23 points. Despite reports that Phil Rizzuto's contract would not be renewed as part of the New York Yankee broadcasting crew, the former Yankee shortstop will be back next year for a 21st season...UConn rebounded from its pasting administered by Syracuse by trimming Yale at Storrs with the big new Joe Whelton's 1,000th point. The 12th Huskie to reach that total, the ex-East Catholic stand-out tallied 18 points in the 75-57 success. Outdoor tennis season has just about ended but die-hard golfers were out in limited numbers on the weekend at both Manchester Country Club and Ellington Ridge.

Shots here 'n there
Billy Rodgers America's premier marliner, captured the Kibuka Marlin in Tokyo yesterday in 2:10:55. Team of Jerry Pate and Hollis Stacy held on from start to finish to win the Mixer Team Golf Championship in Largo, Fla., yesterday. The pair won $20,000. John Alexander outlasted Adriano Granata of Italy to give Australia the Davis Cup championship in a grueling match. The scores were 6-4, 4-2, 6-4, 11-9. The win was only the second in the last decade for the once dominant Australians. Jon Lindberg is sidelined with the Manchester Community College basketball team while a broken hand heals. The injury was suffered in pre-season practice...Former New York Knick Ken Mayfield, now a Manchester resident, paced the East Hartford Explorers with a 32-point performance against William's Nassiff Arms last night in a 117-107 decision.

Boater honored
Tim McConville, former East Catholic and Manchester Community College soccer player, has been named the most valuable player with the Barrington, R.I., College Soccer players. The night offering in several weeks is set tonight when Miami and Baltimore tangle at the Orange Bowl...Central Connecticut's great pass, catching end, Mike Diagne was named to the All-ECAC Division II team. The Norwalk senior has been scouted by several Division I schools. The New York Mets will not increase ticket prices red tape at the U.S. Embassy in Nairobi by a Bell Helicopter employee, according to an informed government source. Ugandas reportedly has 18 Bell helicopters — nine purchased in the U.S. before 1973, and nine more purchased since then from a Milan, Italy company called Agusta, which is licensed to build Bell helicopters.

In addition to the training at Bell, Oak Grove, and ACME, three Ugandans were scheduled for schooling at the AVCO-Lycoming Co. in Stratford, Conn. The firm manufactures engines for Bell. Because of the advanced technology involved, however, the State Department refused to allow the AVCO training.

The No. 2 official at the department, Deputy Secretary Warren Christopher, contacted Bell president James Atkins while the 13 Ugandan pilots were being trained at Bell's Fort Worth facility, to urge that the work be terminated. Bell's phase of the training was continued until its regularly scheduled termination on Nov. 18, however. The reason, according to a company vice president stationed in Washington, was that there were "only a few days left" in that part of the program when Atkins received the request.

Left unanswered is the question of why the department or Bell, which the department says is the "authorizing agent" for payments to ACME and Oak Grove, didn't move decisively earlier to stop the training at those sites.

Asked if ACME and Oak Grove were under subcontract to Bell, the firm's Washington vice president, Warren Rockwell, said "I don't think we have any subcontracts."
