Food prices drop

Inflation rate 9.1%

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Inflation fell below double-digit rates in January for the first time since last summer, helped by the first drop in grocery store food prices in nearly a year, the Labor Department reported today.

The rise in the Consumer Price Index for January was 0.7 percent. That works out to a 9.1 percent inflation rate on a compound annual basis — the amount prices would rise if the monthly rate continued a full year. The January figure compares with a 13.4 percent annual inflation rate in December. The last time inflation ran below two digits was last August, when the rate was 9.6 percent.

However, even the reduced January rate made big inroads in the purchasing power of working Americans.

The Labor Department said the "real spendable earnings" — after taxes and inflation — of an urban, blue-collar family of four with a non-working wife and two children fell 0.1 percent in January. The same family's earnings have fallen 4 percent during the past 12 months.

Such a family is no longer typical, because more and more wives have gone to work, but it is still used by the department to measure changes in buying power.

The consumer price index stood at 260.5 in January, which means that goods costing $100 in 1967 now cost $260.50. To put it another way, one 1967 dollar has shrunk in buying value to 38 cents.

Slowing food and housing costs accounted for nearly all the overall improvement in January.

Food and beverages together registered a zero increase. Prices of food bought at grocery stores actually fell 0.4 percent in January, the first monthly drop since a 0.5 percent decline in February 1980.

Prices of meats, poultry, fish, eggs and fresh fruits and vegetables all contributed to that decline.

Despite the apparent drop in the inflation rate, Murray Weidenbaum, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, was not optimistic.

"January's moderate increase in the CPI, although welcome, provides little basis for optimism with regard to the underlying rate of inflation," Weidenbaum said today.

"The slight decline in food prices was counterbalanced by a sharp rise in energy," he said. "With January's reading, 11.7 percent above a year ago, we are still in a double-digit inflationary environment."

The cost of housing rose 0.8 percent a month, with gas prices up 1.7 percent above a year ago, as mortgage rates rose more slowly and house prices fell.

Energy prices soared, rising a full 3 percent over the month, with gasoline up 3.8 percent and household fuels up 2.7 percent.

Greek quake kills 12

ATHENS, Greece (UPI) — The official death toll rose today to 12 with scores injured in an earthquake that collapsed four hotels in towns around Athens and forced residents of the capital to sleep outdoors or flee the city.

The earthquake, recorded by the Athens Seismological Institute at 6.8 on the open-ended Richter scale, struck Tuesday night and was followed by a series of strong aftershocks.

Police reported 12 persons died because of the earthquake and 55 were injured.

With the exception of government offices, where many failed to appear for work, all offices, schools and banks in Athens were shut today. The only shops open were food stores.

Four hotels collapsed near Corinth. A railway bridge connecting Athens with the region was closed and landslides forced detours on the highway to the area.

Villages and small towns between Athens and the epicenter suffered more than the capital. One of the 12 people known dead was killed in Vrahati, a town along the Corinth Gulf coast, when an eight-story hotel crumbled. One person was missing and feared dead in the ruins.

In Megara, 30 miles southwest of Athens, four people died and 10 were injured by falling masonry, authorities said. In Ialiskos, one woman was killed, and in Vrahati, a woman was found dead under debris.

In Athens, a woman died of a heart attack in the middle of the street and another was killed when she jumped from her second-floor window, police said.

Tuesday's rain caused this flooding on Parker Bridge Road in Andover. The road was officially closed but this driver pays no heed. (Herald photo by Cody)

Town manager leaving Coventry

COVENTRY — Town Manager Frank Connolly resigned Tuesday night at an emergency meeting of the Town Council.

The resignation, to take effect March 27, was delivered by Connolly to the council in an executive session during which time he read a letter addressed to Chairperson Roberta Koonz outlining his reasons for resigning.

Connolly said last night his resignation is "purely a career move" that has been developing for several months.

Mrs. Koonz said last night that she was not surprised at the move, saying that she knew Connolly was considering relocating.

Connolly's letter of resignation states that "It is with regret that I submit my resignation as town manager. I have received a favorable offer and I have accepted the position of assistant town manager for the Town of Newington."

Connolly expresses his gratitude to the council "for the confidence they have shown in me, and the support they have provided to the town manager's office. This has been evident in the myriad of issues, sometimes controversial, that have come before the town. I feel the council-manager relationship has been a good one and that there has been a mutual respect of the responsibilities on both sides."

Connolly said he is "very excited about the move," and is "ready for a new challenge." He said that he has been working for the town for "a long time," a time that may be above normal, "particularly for a small town."

Connolly's letter adds that during his eight and one-half years in Coventry, as part-time planner, planner and town manager, "I have seen many changes occur within the community, and have been involved in one capacity or another with those changes. I have enjoyed working with the town, and with the three town councils that have held office during my tenure."

He said that by the time his resignation is effective, the council "will have in hand the town manager's budget."

Council member Chris Cooper said that the council discussed procedures for locating a replacement in executive session, but said the council members have no one specific in mind.

Mrs. Koonz said that although she was "kind of expecting" the move, she said the "reality of it" caused a feeling of surprise.

She added that she had "learned a lot" in her three and one-half years on the council.

She said that she felt the resignation was "purely a career move," adding that a "larger city will present different types of management" for Connolly.

She also said that she considered Connolly to be an "excellent administrator, very cooperative" and said he has been "very dedicated to the town itself."

Ten days of record high temperatures and heavy rains have turned many of Vermont's ski areas into mountains of mud, slush and ice as this skier at the Sugarbush ski area in Fayston, Vt., discovered. (UPI photo)

Poor conditions depress skiers

STOWE, Vt. (UPI) — Rain drummed down steadily as John Himmelman of Halifax, Nova Scotia, headed out of the muddy parking lot at Mount Mansfield, "Ski Capital of the East."

"Fourteen hours of driving for this!" he said, gesturing at the patches of brown grass and slushy snow on the mountain.

"They told us two days ago they had four feet of snow. We were definitely misled — and we won't be back," he said.

Inside the base lodge, skier Karen Knipfel of Toronto looked up from her paperback book and said, "I'd like to pack it in right now and go home. This is so depressing."

Her depression was shared Tuesday by skiers and ski resort owners around the Northeast.

A week of record temperatures in the 40 to 50 degree range, accompanied by heavy rain, shut down 76 of the 90 ski areas in the six-state New England region.

Skating at the remaining 14 resorts was limited to a few trails covered spottily with machine-made snow, which melts more slowly than natural snow.

The early spring is particularly disheartening because resorts were counting on a strong 1981 season to make up for last year's snowless winter that drove skiers up the walls and many operators to the verge of bankruptcy.

"We have to get some cold weather in the next three or four days, or that's it for the year," said Ralph Deslauriers, owner of Vermont's Bolton Valley Resort.

He estimated the industry already has lost $3 million to the spring-like temperatures.

To the south, some areas were close to giving up.

"Hello, we are now closed and waiting for a natural snowfall," said a telephone recording at the Blue Hills ski area in Canton, Mass.

"If we don't see you until next year, we have a wonderful summer," it said.

In Stowe, the preferred attitude was to keep a stiff upper lip.

"Let's say we have spring-like conditions," said Mount Mansfield spokesman Polly Rollins.

Then, she glanced at the rivulets of water streaming down her window.

"God, it's dismal out there," she said.

Down the road at the Innsbruck Motor Inn, owner John Drollet was fielding cancellation calls. Friday, nearly all his 28 rooms were full.

But snow has come

By United Press International
Skiers rejoiced today as much-needed snow fell in northern New England where springlike conditions over the past few weeks had cast a pall over the winter resorts.

In southern New England, rain was expected to change to light snow flurries later in the day, but forecasters predicted there would be little accumulation because of warm ground conditions.

"The ground is so warm, I wouldn't look for it to stick," said Harry Terban, a spokesman for the National Weather Service in Boston.

The situation was different in parts of Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine where residents woke up to find up to eight inches on the ground.

Educators form board for youth

MANCHESTER—The Board of Education approved on Monday the formation of a Youth Service Advisory Board comprised of representatives from public agencies with statutory responsibility for youth, and private sector organizations representing community social institutions.

Seven members have agreed to work on this board for a period of one year. They are Lieutenant Patricia Graves of the Manchester Police Department, Andrew Vincens, vice principal of Illing Junior High School, Dr. David Moyer, school psychologist, Attorney Thomas Lombard, Madeline Robinson and Joan Gates, community representatives; and Rhonda Tuttle, MCC student.

One of the conditions under the state grant which the Youth Service Department receives is the formation of the advisory board. The board will be responsible to the superintendent of schools and will meet four times a year in an advisory capacity.

Until this year, the state had accepted the Board of Education as the advisory board, but this year they required the establishment of a separate organization.

MCC offers many courses

MANCHESTER—There is still an opportunity to participate in Manchester Community College's course offerings for spring. Several non-credit courses have late semester starts in March and April and registration is still open.

MCC's Community Services Division is offering a cross-section of non-credit courses including "Introduction to Writing Grants," "Investments and Financial Planning," and an "Introduction to Japanese Culture."

For opera buffs, there will be a course called "Puccini's Women," a look at the heroines of opera. "Sights and Sounds from American History" will include a slide show from the department's American history collection. "Domestic Architecture" will explore by tour and lecture samples of classic American architecture in Connecticut.

An addition to the samplings being offered in cooperation with the Manchester Area Conference of Churches will be a course called "Discovering Prayer."

Registration for these and other late start courses is available through the Community Services Office. Call 646-2137 for information.

Unseasonable heavy rain boosts reservoir supplies

By MARTIN KEARNS
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER—Town reservoirs have been fed with over 4 inches of rain in the last 10 days pushing water supplies to just below the 100-day mark which is used by the state to measure water emergencies.

Robert Young, water and sewage treatment manager, said today the town has a 99-day supply of water. In addition, town reservoirs are filled to 85 percent of their capacity—up markedly from the 52 percent recorded in January.

Last week the town received two-and-a-half inches of rainfall, which Young said was bolstered by at least another one-and-a-half inches Tuesday.

Three town reservoirs are now filled to capacity—the two Lyall Street reservoirs in addition to the Buckingham Reservoir. The Water Department has also begun transferring about 600,000 gallons a day into the Globe Hollow Reservoir.

But while the picture has certainly brightened, Young warned the water emergency was not yet over, and speculated that the dry, cold air which is now forecast could bring a temporary extension of this winter's drought.

"If it doesn't rain in March, April or May, we could be in big trouble," said Young who added, "we've been making up for lost time."

As part of a social studies unit on ancient civilization, several Grade 6 students at St. James School, Manchester, made projects to go along with the unit of study. Outstanding projects and their makers include from left, Erwin Tan and Lynn Bassett, heads of early man and Denise Stockman, the Great Sphinx. (Herald photo by Pinto)

Defense resting on census report

MANCHESTER—The census figures that will determine a portion of the town's defense in the Community Development lawsuit will be released by April 1, census bureau officials have said.

The law firm of Bayer, Phelan and Squatrito, who are defending the town, plan to use the figures to show Manchester's black and Hispanic population doubled during the past decade.

But since the census reports were completed last spring, the results have not been released, as cities across the country are challenging the data. Final population counts and Manchester's minority count will be released by April 1, census bureau officials said Tuesday.

The trial, stemming from a lawsuit charging Manchester discriminated by withdrawing from the Community Development program, will begin March 24 in U.S. District Court in Hartford.

The program prompts integration by providing housing for lower-income families. Since the vote that sparked the lawsuit, the town decided again, in a second vote last November, not to rejoin the program.

The 1970 census figures placed the minority population here at less than 2 percent. Dominic Squatrito, the town's chief counsel, estimated the minority population has grown to about 4 percent.

A court deadline for the town to admit or deny hundreds of assertions and allegations was missed Thursday. Squatrito said recently however, that he expected the trial to begin as scheduled.

Health advisers vote dental plan

MANCHESTER—The Advisory Board of Health Tuesday approved and passed on to the Manchester Dental Society a counterproposal for providing dental care to the poor. It will be taken up by the society when it meets Tuesday.

The proposal differs from the one submitted by the society chiefly in that it does not require applicants for the program to attend a dental education class. Members of the advisory board were adamantly opposed to such a requirement and argued that such education should be carried individually in the offices of participating dentists.

When the proposal was first discussed at Tuesday's meeting it differed from the dentist's suggestion because it mentioned a minimum fee but did not mention a maximum fee. Dr. Howard Kott, representing the society, objected. He said mentioning a minimum fee might be considered illegal fee setting and not mentioning a maximum would leave the program open to potential abuse and complaints to the board which might endanger the program.

The proposal was charged before the end of the meeting to satisfy Dr. Kott's objections. The fee statement originally proposed by the society was substituted for board's. It calls for setting fees at no more than one and one half times the fee set under the Title 19 schedule. Fees for services not listed under Title 19 would be set at the discretion of each individual participating dentist at a level reflecting appropriate reductions from normal fees commensurate with the fees for listed services.

Twenty-two Manchester dentists have agreed to participate in the program if it can be set up satisfactorily.

Past efforts to provide dental care to those who cannot afford to pay regular rates have run into a number of snags.

Under the current plan, the town would screen applicants and issue eligibility cards. Persons would be eligible if their income is at no more than one, a half times the most recently established poverty level.

In place of an education program, the Advisory Board of Health proposed that the Health Department and the dental society write guidelines to hand out to patients. They will stress the importance of keeping dental appointments.

The society would report at the end of a year on how well the program is working.

Country club war flares again

Price fight gets violent

By MARY KITZMANN
Herald Reporter

MANCHESTER—A scuffle and what some members report as harassment outwardly signify the internal strife at the Manchester Country Club.

Members are dividing into camps over the year-long dispute centering on the club's management, two consecutive requests for 10 percent dues increases, a minimum spending requirement at the bar, and management's desire to renegotiate its lease with the town. The club rents the land from the town for $25,000 and the Board of Directors retain the right to approve dues increases.

Some members vehemently and vocally oppose the moves, saying mismanagement is causing the club to outpace Manchester residents from belonging. Other members, including James Moriarty, the new president, ask that the new administration be given a chance to clear the club's troubled finances.

The dispute goes beyond the specific increases in a deep-seated conflict that the Manchester Country Club is no longer for the average resident as the Cheney brothers originally intended, but is becoming an establishment for the wealthy.

The proposed dues increase would hike fees by about $44, bringing a single membership to $398, and family to $596, a year. Also proposed is a minimum spending requirement of $30 a month which has sparked a smaller controversy over whether the requirement should include elderly members who generally are on fixed incomes.

The tension erupted a week ago when William Ogden, who gathered about 75 signatures opposing the dues increase, reported he was not verbally needed, but punched. "I went sailing against the wall to avoid it," he said. "But I was hit."

Ogden said, and another source verified, that one of the club's Board of Governor's members, Linwood "Woody" Clark, of Glassbury, lost his temper following a board meeting. Clark denied he punched Ogden, and said he doesn't remember anything about the incident. "I think the whole thing has been blown out of proportion."

The outburst evidenced the Board of Governor's extreme agitation over Ogden's crusade to stop the dues increase. Moriarty, club president, sees the opposition as hindering the club's efforts to get the club back in the black. The club has operated the last several years at a deficit, finishing the last fiscal year $22,000 in the red.

"The petition is hurting us," Moriarty commented recently.

"We're trying to rectify the situation, and we can't."

Moriarty notes at the club's annual meeting about 152 members voted for the increase, and about eight against. He also said many of those who signed the petitions did not fully understand the implications.

Moriarty admits he has been personally questioning those who signed the petitions. And Ogden sees this as intimidation.

"He's stopping people in the parking lot," Ogden said. "What are they supposed to say?"

If speaking to members personally, sometimes curily, is defined as harassment, Moriarty replies, then the answer on whether he intimidated members is a "definite yes."

"I simply ask them to tell me why they signed the petition," he said.

Moriarty explained besides the dues increase, which the Board of Directors will discuss in March, members are also divided as to whether elderly should be included in the minimum spending requirement. A vote among club members passed the proposal, but many are strongly opposed to any exemptions. The Board of Governors met Tuesday in the Municipal Building with town leaders over its desire to renegotiate and extend the club's lease. The agreement expires in 1990. According to several sources, the governors believe the rent is too expensive and want assurances that it will be allowed to remain. The club owns the building and equipment, paying personal property taxes of $38,000 a year.

The club would like to dredge its water pond and enlarge the clubhouse.

The club management said the dues increase is needed, and an increase in the greens fee charges non-residents and members, to finance the improvements besides clearing the deficits. The greens fee would rise from $10 to $11.

Ogden, who has secured the prepared budgets, suggests that rather than increases the club should cut its equipment and employees costs.

"They're spending money, but not watching where they can cut," he said. He cites the salary of the greenskeeper who receives $27,500 a year plus a vehicle, a greens budget of $211,200, and fertilizer costs of $9,200 as high.

"We're going to price the Manchester residents right out of belonging," Ogden said. "They keep jacking up the price so blue collar residents can't afford to join."

James McCavanaugh, Democratic Board of Directors member, who is working with the club, commented recently he was unhappy a finance committee was not formed after the directors requested it last year to monitor spending. He repeated that, before giving the club another increase this year, he wants assurances of better club management.

A finance committee was formed recently, but has not yet met. It includes Ogden, as the Board of Directors requested last year.

And he says he will continue to oppose increases, despite the uncomfortable position he finds himself at the club.

The Rev. James Meek, left, vice president, and Patricia Riley recently took the helm of the Manchester Area Conference of Churches. The Rev. Meek is from Community Baptist Church. Mrs. Riley is a member of St. James Church, past president of the parish council, a graduate of Boston University and the mother of two daughters. At the annual dinner Feb. 6 at Concordia Lutheran Church new officers were installed at a worship service by the Sacred Dawn Choir of Center Congregational Church. Patricia Brown was installed as secretary, Sister Julia Lydon as treasurer and Adelaide King as assistant treasurer. (Herald photo by Harry)

61 seek summer jobs

MANCHESTER—A total of 61 persons between the ages of 14 and 31 applied for summer jobs at the Youth Services Center last week according to Robert Digan, its coordinator.

The jobs, part of the Employment Training Administration program, are of an agricultural nature or are in non-profit organizations such as schools, hospitals or recreation departments, Digan said.

Manchester area youth who did not take the opportunity to apply last week, may now go to the state employment office on Main Street for the applications.

However, the deadline for these applications is March 25 and after that time, the jobs will be no longer available.

There will be other summer work available through SAM (Summer Activities for Manchester), according to Town Personnel Director Steven Werber. Youth who are town residents may apply directly to the personnel office at town hall for these positions. Some jobs will require youth to be over 16, others might require a specific skill such as typing.

Prosecutor not ecstatic

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (UPI) — Prosecutor George Bolen said he was not ecstatic about the murder conviction of Jean Harris was "right," but he was not ecstatic about winning his case.

"No prosecutor worth his salt says he's ecstatic about a murder conviction," he said Tuesday after a jury of eight women and four men found Mrs. Harris guilty of fatally shooting Dr. Herman Tarnower, 69, her lover of 14 years.

"We always had faith in our case and the jury came in with the right verdict," Bolen said.

Asked whether he thought Mrs. Harris, 57, harmed her case by testifying in her own defense, he replied: "They convicted her of second-degree murder. What does the verdict say about what Jean Harris said?"

Reporters crowded around Mrs. Harris' attorney, Joel Aurnou, after she had been taken to the Westchester County Jail in a police car. How was his client taking it? they asked.

"About as well as anybody could," he said. "Intellectually, she knew it could happen, but I don't think she, anyone than I, thought it would happen."

He added: "I think she's a great lady. And I think it's a tragic end to what would have been her vindication."

Arnou and Mrs. Harris spoke after the verdict, he said, but the conversation was private "and that will stay with me for the rest of my life."

The lawyer said he would immediately "sit down and assess the errors" that could constitute an appeal and added, "I hope Mrs. Harris will have the strength to survive a successful appeal."

"He noted she was still taking drugs to sedate her and he was concerned for her physical, mental and emotional state" in jail.

Judge Russell Leggett said he had spoken with the jurors after the verdict.

"They did what the evidence and the law told them to do," he said. "They did what they had to do."

Then there was a courtroom spectator, a woman in her 40s who was in tears at the verdict and appeared to be part of the group of supporters who came to the trial almost daily and saw part of themselves in Mrs. Harris.

"You'll have to stop identifying with her," the judge told her. "You'll have to start living your own life."

Cummings blasts GOP legislators

MANCHESTER — Ted Cummings, Democratic Town Committee chairman, blasted Manchester's Republican state legislators today for not raising their voices to oppose the $122,000 education cut resulting from a state miscalculation.

"They haven't said anything of importance to anybody," Cummings said of the three legislators' performance in the election in November.

"They just have a lot of sweet-sounding comments on things that everybody supports, such as more elderly care and nursing home care."

Two Republicans won election campaigning on those topics. Freshman state Rep. Elsie "Big" Swenson campaigned for, and now serves on the Human Relations Commission to increase elderly care, particularly "at-home" services.

Rep. Walter Jopko, who wrestled the District 12 seat from Cummings in 1978, has become a watchdog of the health department activities, and allowed cars to be used for school children.

Cummings criticized the legislators, including state Sen. Carl Zinsler, also a freshman member, for not providing leadership on the state miscalculation that leaves school education budgets across Connecticut without funds that were included in the budgets.

And two, because if a mistake is made it shouldn't favor your side, Cummings said.

Last week state Education Commissioner Mark Shekel revealed a $29.9 million error in calculating school aid grants. The mistake was in calculating the cost of school lunches paid for with federal funds as local funds and mistakenly credited towns with money they did not spend.

Democrats keep same nominators

MANCHESTER — The Democratic nominating committee, that will forward candidates for the November Board of Directors and Education elections, has not changed from the last election.

The same district representatives who recommended the last slate of candidates will convene again to propose candidates to the Town Committee.

Ted Cummings, town committee chairman, said district leaders told him there had been no changes in representatives.

The nominating committee consists of 10 persons, one from each district. They are: District 1 - Kevin D'Elia, town attorney; District 2 - Walter Sinn; District 3 - Walter Schardt; District 4, former Mayor John Thompson; District 5, Thomas Cronan; District 6, James Fraser; District 7, Raymond Damato; District 8, John Lynch; District 9, Paschal Prignano; District 10, Anthony Pietranonico.

Cummings said the committee would meet in June to consider candidates. The Town Committee must vote on candidates during the first three days of August.

All five last state slate of Directors are expected to seek re-nomination, including Mayor Stephen Penny, Deputy Mayor Robert Gathorn and Secretary Robert McCavagh, Barbara Weinberg and Arnold Kleinschmidt.

In the Board of Education race, the incumbents are re-nominating but not seeking re-election. Although there are five incumbents for the Board of Directors the Mayor's party may field a slate of six, leaving one vacant post.

James "Dutch" Forgarty has already expressed an interest in the vacant post, but he has been coolly received by the party leaders.

Police arrest man fascinated by TV

EAST HARTFORD — A man who apparently became fascinated with a closed-circuit television camera Monday ended up in jail.

Kevin Dalton, 21, of 130 S. Main St., was standing in the East Hartford Police Station lobby early Monday morning, according to Officer Jay Kerling. "He noticed we have a TV camera monitoring the hallway," Kerling said. "He became amused and began making gestures at the camera."

Kerling said after a few minutes of making gestures, the man exposed himself to the television camera.

Kerling said several officers saw the action and decided "It was a no-no." Dalton was arrested and is scheduled to appear March 2 in Manchester Superior Court.

He is charged with public indecency and breach of peace.

Lawyers want aid plan

MANCHESTER — The Manchester Bar Association is seeking a meeting with town directors to consider a proposal to reestablish a legal aid program in town.

The town has been without such a program since residents voted in April of 1979 to withdraw from the federal Community Development Act grant program, but Sanford Piepler, president of the Manchester Bar Association, today said there is a recognized need for legal aid.

The bar association met last night, and Piepler said that while the local group is prepared to lead the way, the town's legal help, there nonetheless exists the need for some kind of funding for the program.

According to the bar association's proposal, which will be pursued by a sub-committee consisting of Bruce Beck and Joseph Lester, student volunteers from Manchester Community College would be asked to staff telephones to receive the calls from persons seeking assistance. While an undetermined number of association members are prepared to provide their services voluntarily, Piepler said funds would be needed for the cost of operating the phones.

To date, the association has about $600 which could be contributed to the operation of the program, but the sub-committee is reportedly prepared to seek some kind of matching funds from the town's Board of Directors.

Under the preliminary plan, students working the program's phones would also contact participating attorneys to notify them of the need for their services.

No timetable has been set up for the association's discussions with the town's directors, but Piepler speculated the issue may not need another meeting of the attorneys.

Eagles avenge loss to Tribe

By LEN AUSTER
 Herald Sportswriter

Remember your youth when two friends would be talking to each other and the conversation would get heated and one would finally say to the other, "okay, I dare you."

Well, that's how East Catholic played Manchester High in the second half last night at Clarke Arena. The Eagles, packing their 53 some tight inside the foul lane, "dared" the Indians to shoot from the outside.

The strategy proved most successful as Manchester was only 6-for-30 from the field the final 16 minutes as East annexed a 42-38 victory in the regular season finale for both clubs before a good crowd of 1,100.

"We packed the zone a lot tighter," voiced East Coach Jim Penders. "Pat Silver was killing us on drives the first half. We didn't adjust until the second half. Without (Joe) Maher we knew its perimeter shooting was not that strong."

Maher, the Eagles' second leading scorer, missed his third consecutive game because of an ankle sprain while teammate Bill Anderson was sidelined for his second straight outing, also with a banged up ankle. Maher is expected back in the line-up Friday night for the opening round of the CCIL Playoff while Anderson's return is still unsure.

East was without the services of 6-foot-7 center Russ Radant, sidelined with a charley horse. He could've played but Penders wasn't taking any chances, not with the all important HCC Playoffs starting Thursday night.

The Indians had an opportunity to draw close with 2:25 left but a weary Silver missed three consecutive tries, the hat trick, from the charity stripe. He received an extra try on a lay up.

The second half the kids passed up some shots. It seems they became a little afraid and I don't know why," stated Indian Coach Doug Pearson, who saw his quietest slip to 17-3 with its second consecutive loss.

"We took some good shots and some bad shots but when we shot we missed. It was awful hot in there and I think the kids got tired. Only used six players," he reminded.

"Greg Williams had a good first half but then he popped out, his shots were coming up short. We did not play as slow as we did but the kids were tired after a while," voiced Pearson.

Williams and Silver each finished with 13 markers for Manchester. The Indians were 13-for-35, 37 percent, from the floor. Galligan finished with 16 tallies and Bond 14, in the second half, for East. Bond grabbed 9 rebounds to lead East to a 20-18 edge in that department. It was the first time Manchester was outscored, Pearson offered.

"We didn't have an inside game without Radant and they did not have a key guy for us the second half," Penders remarked. He's been a big difference for us from a month ago. East was 16-for-32, 50 percent, from the field. He gives us an added dimension along the baseline and inside."

East's next action is against Northwest Catholic at South Catholic

Playmaker still missing

Never was it more evident than in the University of Connecticut's double overtime 74-70 loss to Villanova last Monday night at Storrs that the backcourt once again failed to do its job.

After 25 games its obvious that the highly-heralded freshmen guards Vern Giscombe and Karl Hobbs, and the veteran backcourt — Bobby Dalin and Glenn Miller — still haven't mastered the art of getting the ball into the big men underneath.

Time after time the Huskie frontcourt operators, Chuck Aleksians and Cory Thompson, particularly, maneuvered themselves into position only to see the ball mishandled in some manner in the backcourt.

True, UConn has copped 19 decisions against only six setbacks, a record most coaches would be most happy to boast, but it could have been better and some of the wins could have come easier if the backcourt lived up to expectations.

If Coach Dom Perio can't uncover that playmaking guard the chances of doing well in the upcoming Big East Tournament in Syracuse will be slim and if he didn't find such an operator in the first 25 games it's not likely he can come up with one at the 10th hour.

UConn has the good men men, plus a hot shooter in Mike McKay and an ever-improving Normie Alley and Bob Weir, a St. Pete resident.

The trio arranged a golf date and talked over old times when all three were Manchester schoolboys more than 45 years ago.

Weir is currently employed as an assistant pro for former PGA tour member Tommy Bolt at the Tannock Woods Country Club while Foster is a former club champion at the Manchester Country Club.

Recent reunion on the golf course at St. Petersburg, Fla., featured a threesome from Manchester, one member of the 1955, 1956 and 1957 Portland golf teams.

Tuck Foster, now residing in St. Pete, had a chance meeting at the Thunderbird Motel on St. Pete Beach with Manchester High grad, Fred Barakat, who was in the area for a golf date.

Five seeds victims including McEnroe

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Five seeded players — including a surprisingly passive defending champion John McEnroe — were upset victims in the U.S. National Indoor Tennis Championships.

Trey Walker, 25, posted a 6-3, 6-4 win Tuesday over McEnroe, who entered the tournament immediately after losing a challenge match to Bjorn Borg in Sydney, Australia.

Walker, a 5-11, 145-pound right-hander, will meet 15-year-old hometown player Jim Brown today in the $300,000 tournament at the Memphis Racquet Club. Brown received a wild card and had a bye in the first round.

The straight-set victory thrilled Walker, ranked as the world's 51st player.

"This has to be my biggest win," he grinned. "I've beaten players in the top 10 before, but I've never beaten McEnroe. (Jimmy) Connors or Borg before. I'm really excited."

McEnroe, the world's second-ranked player, whose sluggish play gave Walker the openings he needed, said he and McEnroe bothered him at the tournament.

"There are a million reasons that you can think of, but it all comes down to the fact that I got beat," the 22-year-old New Yorker said. "I'm disappointed. I'm disappointed because I didn't play well and I like to play well in every tournament I enter."

"It wasn't used to the lights and that might have bothered me. But I'm just not playing as well as I was a great year ago."

Although he is out of the singles play, McEnroe and partner Peter Fleming will compete in doubles.

In other upsets, unseeded Jeff Borowiak beat eighth-seeded Brian Gottfried 7-5, 6-4; Terry Moor defeated 10th-seeded John Sadri 6-7, 6-4, 6-2; Bruce Manson upset ninth-seeded Eddie Dibbs 6-3, 6-1 and Tim Wilkerson downed 16th-seeded Rolf Gehring of West Germany 6-4, 6-4.

Two seeds advanced easily to the second round of play. Fourth-seeded Brian Tischer defeated Ben Testerman 7-5, 6-3, while fifth-seeded Roscoe Tanner took an easy 6-2, 6-1 victory over Bernie Mittet of South Africa.

In other matches, No. 7 seed Eliot Teltscher defeated England's John Lloyd 6-1, 6-2; 14th seed Mel Purcell beat Tim Gullikson 6-3, 7-4, and 12th seed Thomas Smith of Czechoslovakia defeated Pat Dupre 6-1, 7-5.

Andrew Pattison of South Africa handily defeated Bob Lutz 6-4, 6-3; Tom Gullikson beat Pascal Portas of France 7-6, 7-4, and Yarnick Noah of France won over Nick Saviano 6-3, 1-6, 6-0.

HARTFORD (UPI) — Athletes in Control, a Long Island, N.Y.-based soccer club, is seeking an American Soccer League franchise in Hartford, its director says.

Mark Steffens said he was working to line up financial backing for the franchise, which might be used in an indoor soccer club.

"We have people who could spring the whole thing for us," he said. "It's a big project, a religious group which sponsors amateur basketball teams, was seeking an indoor soccer franchise and a marriage between the two groups might be worked out in Hartford," said Steffens, who played in the ASL.

ASL Commissioner Mario Machado suggested Steffens try to secure a berth in Hartford, calling the city "a strong market for us."

Machado said the league was "80-90 percent" in favor of a franchise in Hartford, which would have the necessary financial backing.

He said a decision "has to be made" by March 2.

Czech star in win; Austin withdraws

SEATTLE (UPI) — Hana Mandlikova, an up-and-coming tennis star from Czechoslovakia, downed Sue Barker of England in a first-round match of a $150,000 women's tennis tournament, but Tracy Austin's painful back problem forced her to make a final withdrawal from the event.

Slow-starting Wendy Turnbull, seeded third, also defeated Iva Budarova of Czechoslovakia 1-6, 6-1, 6-1, and Pam Shriver, the fourth seed, got past Beth Herr 6-4, 6-2, in other first-round matches Tuesday.

Mandlikova, the No. 2 seed before being tiring Budarova the first set. Austin dropped out, won the first set and handily defeated the Beavers rallied on to win the second set 7-5.

Austin, the No. 2 player in world rankings and seeded first in Seattle, told tournament sponsors she practiced for about three hours Monday at her home in Rolling Hills, Calif., then awoke Tuesday with a very sore back and would not be able to appear.

Austin is bothered by a sciatic nerve problem and hasn't played competitively since winning a tournament during the second week in January.

Her place in the 32-player field was taken by Maria Redondo.

After holding serve only once in the first set, Turnbull dominated the tiring Budarova the first set. Austin dropped out, won the first set and handily defeated the Beavers rallied on to win the second set 7-5.

Julie Harrington of Spokane, Wash., beat Leslie Allen of New York 6-2, 3-6, 6-1.

Harrington, playing before her family and friends for the first time in two years, fought off a bad case of butterflies to overcome Allen.

"I don't know if it was my biggest victory," said Harrington, "but it was one of my biggest."

Allen, a cause celebre on the tour for a month after becoming the first black woman in 23 years to win a major title (in Detroit), not only lost her serve six times but double faulted nine times in the match.

Allen, supposedly bothered by stomach cramps, refused to use the alibi as an alibi.

"I think you people have heard enough about players getting sick," she said. "We should just talk about tennis."

Her remark referred to the withdrawal of the world's top four players from the tournament due to various injuries.

In their first-round matches Tuesday, No. 5 seed Kaye Rivington defeated Glynis Coles 6-1, 7-5. No. 8 seed Bettina Bunge eased past Marieanne van der Torre 6-2, 6-1; Stacy Margolin whipped Kim Sandis 6-1, 6-4; and Ann Kiyomura was 7-5, 6-4, 6-4 winner over Susan Leo.

In the only doubles match of the day, Proizer and Ann Kiyomura defeated Rene Blount and Kate Latham 6-2, 6-4.

Cheney Tech loses but gains tourney berth

Falling behind by a 21-6 count at the turn, Cheney Tech could not fully recover and bowed, 68-68, to Coventry High in Charter Oak Conference basketball action last night at the Beavers gym.

The Patriots finish 12-4 in the conference and 14-6 overall with the triumph while the setback sends the Techmen to 6-11 in the COC and 6-13 overall.

Cheney has more contest on its regular slate, Thursday evening against RHAM High in the 8 o'clock. The Techmen are assured of a state tournament berth in Class M Region III at St. Paul, 5-15, dropped its season finale.

The Techmen will face either top-ranked St. Thomas Aquinas or second-seeded Kennedy High of Waterbury in its first round clash either Monday or Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock.

Tournament rankings and pairings will be announced Saturday at the Cheshire High at noon.

Coventry maintained its lead at the top of the standings with Jim Morris 16, Tom Morris 15 and Jerry Jameson 14 to pace Coventry. Scott Cable poured home a game-high 27 points to pace Cheney. He also added 10 rebounds while shooting 50 percent from the field.

Isaac Williamson added 14 points for the Beavers, hitting on 66 percent of his field goal tries. Williamson added 8 rebounds. Cal Gotberg, shooting 58 percent from the field, totaled 15 points and 10 rebounds for Cheney.

Coventry (69) — Lane 6-6-18, T. Morris 5-11-15, Jameson 6-2-14, Szabo 1-0-2, J. Morris 8-0-16, Thalacker 12-4, Totals 27-45-69.

Cheney Tech (65) — Williamson 7-0-14, Carpenter 1-0-2, Cable 10-27-27, Eaton 2-1-5, Gotberg 7-1-15, T. Eaton 1-0-2, Totals 29-65.

Players refuse to give in to club owners

NEW YORK (UPI) — The major league baseball players are refusing to give in to their owners. They will vote to strike Wednesday in Tampa, Fla., if they can't hit the owners where it hurts most — in the pocketbook — by forcing cancellation of the Memorial Day double-headers.

Compensation for free agents is the key issue, really the only issue.

The owners feel they should be compensated for any player they lose in the annual re-entry draft with a "premium" player from the selecting club. What actually constitutes a "premium" player is the point of contention between the players and owners.

A players' strike was forestalled last May 23 when settlement of the compensation issue was put off so it could be studied and worked on by committees on both sides. The owners were given time to come up with a compensation proposal that would be mutually acceptable.

The time is up and there has been no agreement.

Marvin Miller, the head of the Players Association, left here Tuesday to meet with the various major league player representatives in Tampa Wednesday. At the conclusion of their meeting, they will announce that the owners' present proposal is unacceptable to them, and if no agreement is reached within the next 90 days, they will strike.

"It is extremely unlikely the players will vote to accept the owners' present proposal," said Don Fehr, general counsel for the Players Association. "No one has given me any reason to believe the players will accept what they haven't up until now."

Anticipating the action by the players, Ray Grebey, Director of the Player Relations Committee and spokesman for the owners, said: "The players' action in scheduling a strike would be most regrettable. Any players who take responsibility for their action to the 26 major league clubs is without foundation. There is no 'smoking gun' in the hands of the clubs. The clubs aren't calling the strike. The free agent compensation plan, which is at issue, was written in discussion between the clubs and the players last May and was implemented in accordance with our May agreement."

Also from the owners' side, George Steinbrenner of the Yankees said he has never seen them more solidified in their stand than they are now.

"I don't want a strike," he said. "Nobody wants a strike, but I'm convinced the owners aren't going to give in this time. They feel they should be reasonably compensated for the loss of any of their free agents."

Meanwhile, in St. Petersburg, Fla., where he's in spring training with the New York Mets, catcher John Stearns, their former player rep, said there was virtually no change in the players' voting for a strike Wednesday.

"I'd say there's a 99 percent chance we'll vote for a strike," said Stearns, who plans to attend the Tampa meeting. "The players are 110 percent unified on this issue."

Stearns phoned the Players Association office here Tuesday to clear up certain remarks made by him at a published Monday. He said they had been "misconstrued."

"They," he said, meaning the NFL, "have hundreds of free agents every year and to all intents and purposes, no free agents are ever signed by other clubs because of their rigid formula. Pete Rozelle, the NFL Commissioner, steps in and awards the team losing a free agent a No. 1 draft and sometimes more. That's why no free agents are ever signed by other teams in the NFL. As a consequence, it's the player who suffers."

So we proposed they set up a cash fund. "Take cash for equity," he said, "but they said no."

"We also proposed to help set up a trading system whereby a club could receive equitable talent in trading a player," he said. "We didn't want to do that either."

Stearns agreed it would be difficult for the fans to sympathize with the players' stand, but he thought they would if they realized all the implications involved.

"The players are not greedy," he said. "We're not fighting for money, we're fighting for a right we won legally five years ago, a right that was tantamount to granting all players free agency immediately. We didn't have to make any concessions, but we did, agreeing that a player had to wait six years until he became a free agent. We didn't want the game to become chaotic, so we did that, but neither do we want to see the free agency we fought so hard to get weakened in any way now."

"We feel this basic proposal to the baseball owners have on the table now is similar and it would have the same effect on our system that it does in the NFL. Mr. Grebey and management have said we haven't offered no counter proposals and that's not true. We've offered several. The owners say they need equity for a player lost through free agency."

It was stretching time in the camp of the Boston Red Sox yesterday at Winter Haven, Fla., when spring training officially opened.

College basketball roundup

Slowdown tactics fail can't beat Arkansas

NEW YORK (UPI) — The SMU Mustangs knew they had only one chance to beat 16th-ranked Arkansas, but even a slowdown offense couldn't deter the Razorbacks from clinching the Southwest Conference title.

With Arkansas leading by 13 points in the first half Tuesday night, SMU went into a stall and kept the half-time difference to 30-25. But the Razorbacks patiently picked their shots in the second half and easily scored a 47-33 victory at Fayetteville, Ark.

While Arkansas coach Eddie Sutton said his team was caught off guard by the strategy of his counterpart, Dave Bliss, he was proud of the way the Razorbacks responded.

"I guess Coach Bliss realized that when it was 28-15 in the first half, we could have blown the game open," Sutton said. "I know for our fans it wasn't the most interesting game, but it doesn't take away from our championship."

"Every championship is special, but this team showed a lot of courage to come back from 23 in the conference. I think very few clubs could have done that."

The Razorbacks, in winning their 10th straight game, captured their fourth SWC title in the last five years, running their league mark to 13-3 and season record to 21-6. Mike Young and U.S. Reed, two seniors playing their last home game in front of 9,283 fans, came up with 16 and 10 points, respectively.

An excited Young said, "Our goal is the national championship, and this is our last crack at it for the seniors. We're going to work hard at it." Reed added that the Mustangs' spread offense "was a little frustrating, but I'm glad we won."

SMU, which held the ball for three minutes without taking a shot at one point in the second half, finished its regular season with a 3-13 league record. The SWC post-season tournament begins Monday night.

There were no other ranked teams in action. In other games of national interest, Houston beat Rice 83-55, Texas topped Texas Tech 62-54, Texas A&M nipped TCU 59-57, Oklahoma State pounded Oklahoma 100-88, Marquette nudged Loyola 111-82, American edged St. Joseph's 84-83 in overtime, and Penn downed Princeton 52-43, and Northeastern defeated Boston University 82-78.

At Houston, guard Rob Williams, the sixth-leading scorer in the nation, scored 19 points to help the Cougars, 16-5 in the SWC, beat their cross-town rivals, Rice. Pierce scored 21 points for Rice, 7-8.

At Austin, Texas, center LaSalle Thompson scored 18 points to lift the fourth SWC title in the last five years, running their league mark to 13-3 and season record to 21-6. Mike Young and U.S. Reed, two seniors playing their last home game in front of 9,283 fans, came up with 16 and 10

Spurs' coach evicted but enjoyed contest

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stan Albeck had been thrown out of the game in the third quarter and rather than waste all that precious time off, he figured it was a fine opportunity to practice his elbow-bending.

"I watched the rest of the game from the Spurs Corral," said the San Antonio coach, who hoisted down a few cold ones in the arena bar while watching his Spurs roll to a 131-126 victory over the Golden State Warriors Tuesday night.

While his men were sweating it out on the court, Albeck sat back in comfort and watched George Gervin score 26 points to lead the way. But it was George Johnson who brought the biggest smile to his coach's face, recording a team-record 13 blocked shots that also represented an NBA high for this season.

"George Johnson was unbelievable tonight," said Albeck. "We didn't see him here as a shot blocker and he hasn't disappointed anyone."

Bernard King, whose troubles seem well behind him, scored 17 points for the Warriors, who rallied from a 22-point deficit in the third quarter to narrow the gap to 116-111 with 1:33 to play in the game. The Spurs then used layups by Silas and Gervin to raise the lead to 121-111. Golden State had taken a 34-32 first-quarter lead behind King's 16 points, but Ron Brewer came off the bench to score 16 points in a 44-point, San Antonio second quarter — the most productive period by the Spurs this year.

"Anything we do defensively will help us in the playoffs," said Johnson. "I'm established as the No. 1 shot blocker in the league, then other teams will say you can't hit the layup on San Antonio so they'll have to do something else."

Golden State also got 30 points from center Joe Barry Carroll but only nine of those came in the second half as Johnson blocked several of the rookie's shots inside.

"The Spurs scored at will during the first half," said Warriors' coach Al Attles. "We played much better in the second half but they were just too tough. You have to put pressure on a team like the Spurs and we did, but they were're behind by that many points you can't make the mistakes we made."

In other games, it was New York 120, Atlanta 117 in overtime; Los Angeles 107, Chicago 97, Seattle 102, Dallas 84; Denver 140, New Jersey 123; and San Diego 121, Portland 107. Golden State 82-53 and San Diego 23-21 at Atlanta, Bill Cartwright scored 28 points and Mike Glenn added four points in overtime to lead New York from a 13-point, fourth-quarter deficit to its 11th victory in the last 13 games.

Lakers 107, Bulls 97. At Chicago, Norm Nixon scored 24 points and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Jamal Wilkes each scored 23 to lead Los Angeles to its fifth victory in the last six games.

SuperSonics 102, Mavericks 84. Fred Brown scored 22 points and led a second-half surge that dropped Dallas to its seventh straight loss at home. Vinnie Johnson added 18 points for Seattle and Dallas was led by Jim Spanarkel's 15 points.

Nuggets 140, Nets 123.

At Denver, Dave Robisch scored a season-high 27 points and Dan Jasek added 26 to spark the Nuggets. Isael, returning to the lineup after missing two games with a thumb injury, scored 11 first-quarter points before aggravating the injury. The veteran was relieved by Robisch and he added 15 first-half points. Cliff Robinson led New Jersey with 32 points.

Clippers 121, Trail Blazers 107. At Portland, Ore., Brian Taylor scored 26 points to lead San Diego in the battle for berths in the Western Conference playoffs. Portland is 33-83, Golden State 22-33 and San Diego 23-21. At Atlanta, Bill Cartwright scored 28 points and Mike Glenn added four points in overtime to lead New York from a 13-point, fourth-quarter deficit to its 11th victory in the last 13 games.

Introductions necessary as Cardinals launch camp

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The St. Louis Cardinals officially open their spring training camp Thursday and one of the biggest jobs will be to make introductions.

"I haven't met some of the new guys," Herzog said Tuesday, "but I've got them in the locker room to everybody to wear on the first day of practice."

Herzog, the team's manager and general manager, cleaned house after the Cardinals' fourth-place finish last year, sending 13 players to other clubs and getting 10 in return. Gone are such familiar Cardinals as Ted Simmons, Ken Reitz and Pete Vuckovich. Now with the club are Bruce Sutter, Darrell Porter and Sixto Lezcano.

Sixteen roster pitchers and six non-roster pitchers, including former Kansas City ace Steve Busby, and six catchers are to report Thursday to the Cardinals' spring training complex in St. Petersburg, Fla. The rest of the squad is due Monday.

"I feel good," Herzog said by telephone from St. Petersburg. "We had to make some changes and we did. I'm enthusiastic."

Herzog's first chore of the spring will be to put pitching staff together. Only three pitchers — starters Bob Forsch and Larry Sorensen, acquired from Milwaukee, and Sutter, obtained from the Cubs — are sure of their jobs.

"If somebody can come through, that will enable us to put Bob Sutter in the bullpen with Sutter," Herzog said. "I'm sure the ability's there. We just have to put it together."

"I'm not above going with kids over people who have had a chance but haven't done it. In fact, I kind of like it myself."

Herzog will have plenty of pitchers to choose from. Also in camp will be veteran Jim Kaat, rookies Andy Rincon and John Martin and several pitchers batting back from arm injuries, including Silvio Martinez, Bob Sykes, Mark Littell and John Fulgham.

"I think the one thing we need is for one of our starting pitchers to emerge as a stopper," Herzog said.

Speaking of Guidry, Steinbrenner said the left-hander would "not be part of any trade talks. I expect him to pitch for the Yankees this year and for several years after."

Asked to comment on the players' meeting in Tampa, Fla., Wednesday and the possibility of a strike, Steinbrenner said, "The Yankees are in a position where we can say compensation is necessary. We've used the system and we have benefited from it. But we feel there should be compensation. If there isn't, we're going to have trouble."

"It's not fair to the public. The public is going to get turned off one of these days. If people are looking for the Yankees to bluff, they're looking in the wrong place. We're going to stay in the game and we're going to (owners) committee on whatever it does. If it means not playing the season, well, that's it. This is not a threat, it's just how we feel."

Steinbrenner clears up all loose talk

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — In his first visit to the team's training camp Tuesday, New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner explained the team's release of Luis Tiant, clarified his stand on Reggie Jackson's future and reiterated he has no intention of trading pitcher Ron Guidry.

Steinbrenner said that, contrary to charges by Tiant that it was Steinbrenner who didn't want the veteran right-hander to return, he had been voted down "by my baseball people who felt it would be wrong to retard the development of our young pitchers."

He also said "there has been no invitation to Jackson to join the Yankee owner in his other business."

"Somebody has misinterpreted something," Steinbrenner said. "Reggie is the type of guy who can go on to become a Yankee tradition, but some of the things that were said might have been misunderstood."

One more familiar face will be back shooting for the $400 first prize money in the 11th annual Manchester High in its 1980-81 regular season finale last night at the Hornets' gym.

The Bulldogs with the setback wind up 1-17 in the COC and 1-19 overall. The victory moves the Falcons to a final 7-11 mark in the league and 7-12 overall while East Hartford winds up 2-18 in COC action and stands 3-17 overall.

The Hornets wind up their regular season Thursday evening at home against Southington High at 8 o'clock.

Ferni had a 19-15 lead at the turn and 22-31 bulge at the half. The visitors extended their margin to 48-30 after three periods with Tom Timon and Bill Fotos registering 8 and 6 points respectively in the third stanza for Ferni.

"We missed some inside shots in the third quarter and they out-rebounded us," cited Hornet Coach Neil Guerin.

Fotos had 28 points, Timon 21 and Bill Provencher 12 to pace Ferni. Jim Statterly dishied out assists. Sean Campbell had 20 points and Wendell Williams 14 to pace East Hartford.

Fotos had 13 points in the fourth quarter as Ferni built a 78-67 lead. The Falcons were 19-for-28 from the charity stripe while the Hornets were 8-for-12 in free throw tries.

Ferni (77) — Bergstrom 4-19, Provencher 5-21, Fotos 9-10-28, Slattery 1-3-5, Timon 9-3-21, Wingen 0-0-0, DeLoach 2-2-2, Totals 29-19-77.

Canadiens, Blues play to stalemate

NEW YORK (UPI) — Somebody ought to tell those two teams that the Stanley Cup playoffs are still six weeks away.

Tight checking and an abundance of good, clean hitting trademarked Tuesday night's 2-2 tie between the Montreal Canadiens and St. Louis Blues, and if all games were played like this, the NHL would have no financial problems whatsoever.

Von Lambert scored with 6:35 remaining in the game to extend Montreal's unbeaten streak to 19 games. The Blues carried a 1-0 lead into the third period on a goal by Blair Chapman midway through the second, but Montreal's Steve Shutt tied the score 1:07 into the third period while the Blues' Bill Stewart was serving an interference penalty.

"You can't ask a team to play better than the way we played in the third period," said Montreal coach Claude Ruel. "We played tonight like you have to play in the playoffs."

Wayne Gretzky broke the tie with his 43rd goal of the year, tying a club record for most goals in a single season, 3:38 into the period when he took a centering pass from Bernie Federko right in front of Montreal goalie Michel Larocque.

"That's the way Montreal always plays," said St. Louis goalie Mike Liut. "When they get momentum, it's see you later time. We played two super periods but we seemed to die a little in the third."

The Canadiens, who fired 16 shots at Liut over the first 12 minutes of the final period, finally connected on

Skating coverage questioned

HARTFORD (UPI) — A federal judge was asked Tuesday to order suspension of next week's World Figure Skating Championships to allow ongoing television news coverage of the event.

WFBS-TV requested that Richard Ahles said the Travelers Insurance Co. and Skating Club of Hartford had told the station it would have to stay in the building until after the competition had concluded, Ahles said, WFBS, a CBS affiliate, wanted to televise news coverage as the events occurred.

Ahles said WFBS believed the conditions violated its rights under the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution by "imposing restrictions on television news coverage."

ABC didn't plan to televise its coverage until after the competition had concluded, Ahles said, WFBS, a CBS affiliate, wanted to televise news coverage as the events occurred.

Penney finishes in style

Led by its four seniors, co-captain Andy Sylvester in particular, Penney finished in style by whipping Glastonbury High, 65-59, in the regular season finale for both clubs last night in East Hartford.

The Black Knights captured their last six in a row to finish 14-4 while the Falcons wound up 3-17 with the setback. Nevertheless, Glastonbury has qualified for the State Tournament in Class II, Division Region III and will be involved in a playoff with Newton for the eighth and final spot.

Bolton loses lead and game

Leading at the half, Bolton High couldn't keep the upper hand and dropped a 59-51 verdict to Rocky Hill High in its 1980-81 regular season finale last night in Bolton.

The Bulldogs with the setback wind up 1-17 in the COC and 1-19 overall. The victory moves the Terriers to a final 14 in conference play and 4-15 overall.

Rocky Hill had a 17-15 lead at the turn before Bolton moved out to a 25-30 half-time bulge. Rocky Hill regained the edge after three periods, 42-39, with the Bulldogs unable to pull it out in the fourth quarter.

Connie Winalski and Fred Bachelier each had 15 points for the Terriers. Six-foot-2 junior Travis Cassels led Bolton with 20 points and 21 rebounds while sophomore Drew Brown chipped in 10 markers in the losing effort.

John Campbell 12 for Simsbury, which finished also 17-3 in regular season play. Rockville annexed the COC crown while Simsbury shared COC honors with Manchester.

Jim Moulton had 12 points and Larry Sielmas 10 for South Windsor, which finished 9-11. Public goes to 11-16 in the win. The Owls were paced by Mike Adams' 26 points.

Brewers minus skipper

SUN CITY, Ariz. (UPI) — Milwaukee Brewers manager Paul Hetherington was named Tuesday as interim skipper of the team.

Smith, 22, scored seven goals in 45 games for the Flames earlier this year but has been playing with Birmingham in the Central Hockey League of late. He was drafted by the Vancouver Canucks in the fourth round of the 1978 NHL amateur draft and was traded in Atlanta in February 1980.

Ironically, the Red Wings signed the Birmingham team folded Tuesday because of poor attendance and rising travel costs.

Hellions win home finale

HARTFORD (UPI) — The Hartford Hellions snuffed a seven-game losing streak with a 5-2 victory over the Denver Avalanche Tuesday night to close out their home season at the Hartford Civic Center.

Robert Gaudes led the Hellions attack with two goals while Alex Teronico added a goal and an assist, carry Hartford to its 12th win against 24 losses this season. Denver fell to 13-22.

The Hellions, who were eliminated from contention for the Major Indoor Soccer League playoff on Sunday, will play next on Thursday in Baltimore and will close out their season on March 8 in Buffalo.

Housing starts slump

NEW YORK — Marking the worst period since 1975, construction of new housing units in 1980 slumped 25 percent from the year before, it was reported today by the F.W. Dodge Division of McGraw-Hill Information Systems Co.

A total of 1,328,016 new housing units were started, against 1,764,637 in 1979, according to the firm, an authority on the construction market widely known for its Dodge Reports on construction activity, Sweet's Catalog Files of building product information, and building cost information systems.

"After a precipitous decline in the first half of 1980, a housing recovery began in the third quarter which carried into the fourth quarter, despite rapidly escalating mortgage rates," said George A. Christie, vice president and chief economist for F.W. Dodge. The number of new housing units rose to 374,913 in the final quarter of 1980, a 10 percent gain over the 360,284 units in the year-earlier period.

"In an inflation-plagued economy, the Federal Reserve is prompting to pursue a much more restrictive monetary policy this year than in past housing recoveries," the Dodge economist observed. "Home buyers will continue having to adjust to high levels of mortgage rates and erratic availability of mortgage credit. These conditions will continue to stifle the housing market through most of 1981, limiting the year's improvement in residential building to less than 10 percent over 1980's depressed total of housing starts," stated Christie.

Once again Houston led the nation in new housing units, with a total of 36,864 for the year. Among the ten most active standard metropolitan statistical areas in 1980 were: Los Angeles/Long Beach, 33,792 units; Dallas, 28,835 units; Phoenix, 28,827 units; San Francisco/Oakland, 25,139 units; Tampa, 24,231 units; Atlanta, 22,540 units; Miami, 20,543 units; Riverside-San Bernardino, 17,452 units; and Ft. Lauderdale/Hollywood, 17,311 units.

In the final quarter of 1980, these were the top ten housing areas: Houston, 10,841 units; Los Angeles/Long Beach, 10,032 units; Dallas, 9,658 units; Phoenix, 8,452 units; Tampa, 7,243 units; West Palm Beach/Boca Raton, 7,223 units; Atlanta, 6,453 units; Washington, 5,357 units; Miami, 5,075 units; and Seattle/Everett/Wash., 4,963 units.

Wall Street

Market pulls back

By BILL BLANKENBURG
Advest Inc.

Wall Street showed high hopes before Mr. Reagan's budget message last week. Then once he formalized all the portions of his program that had been leaked in advance, investors discovered no surprises and promptly took the Dow Jones Industrial Average down over 13 points. Because the stock market tends to discount in advance, such pullbacks are "normal events".

In general, business news that surfaced last week didn't support any sharp stock market pullback. Housing starts rose 3.4 percent, industrial production gained 0.5 percent. Two major auto makers announced rebate plans, and interest rates softened a little. Friday's money supply figures were totally acceptable, short interest contracted nominally and a flurry of cuts in broker loan rates occurred. Overseas, the Poles and the Soviets seemed to find some near term common ground to avoid disaster. Here at home, the question was whether a budget slashing president and a skeptical Congress could get along as well. In such an environment, the Dow Jones Industrial Average gained 4.33 points for the week as 140 NYSE common stocks gained one point net or more.

Business news this week is led by the advance report of January's durable goods shipments and orders. At midweek the January Consumer Price Index and real earnings should be released. Thursday we'll learn about fourth quarter productivity and January labor turnover. To close out this week, Friday there should be reports on January work stoppages, import-export merchandise trade, mid-February agriculture prices, and January's leading economic indicators.

While the market has continued to meander in the tight 930-950 range, statistics we compile weekly suggest that the Federal Reserve considers 12 percent inflation and rather flat money supply growth to be too restrictive in an economy already subdued by the uncertainty of the Reagan team's economic program. Specifically, the key reserve bank credit statistic is rising again, which would make the credit picture easier. Last week in an Advest conference call I urged investors to prepare a shopping list of stocks. Under cover of the squabble between the administration and the House over specific spending cuts, I would now selectively commit some reserves. I believe our early 1981 buying opportunity is building up.

WINTER BREAKAWAY

Taste Travel the Caribbean Islands

If a Caribbean cruise doesn't fit your budget, plan an economical breakaway "taste tour" of flavorful island dishes to bring new interest and excitement to family meals.

Thrifty cooks in the Caribbean stretch food dollars by extending small amounts of meat with rice plus a wealth of fruits and vegetables. In the face of today's rising food costs we can benefit from this practice in dollars saved and improved nutrition. Rice is a basic staple for over half the world's population, and it plays a significant part in the cuisine of the Caribbean Islands, an ethnic melting pot of native, Spanish, Dutch, British and French inhabitants.

Sausage is another Caribbean favorite, and the choice of budget-conscious consumers everywhere who find that its hearty flavor can be stretched to make a greater number of satisfying servings than other meats. Busy cooks appreciate the fully-cooked convenience and no-waste economy of smoked sausage. Once considered strictly family fare, smoked sausage now finds its way to the table for special company meals, as well.

Smoked sausage and rice dishes can provide an island tour of good eating for family and guests. For best results, select a rice which has undergone the special "parboiling" process, producing perfect results every time. This unique process, used with UNCLE BEN'S® CONVERTED® Brand Rice, removes surface starch to insure that each grain of rice cooks up plump, firm and separate, never sticky or mushy, and remains that way, even when refrigerated or frozen and reheated. Vitamins normally lost in milling with regular rice are pressure forced back into the grain during this process, so CONVERTED® Brand Rice retains more natural rice nutrients. A real budget-stretcher, this special rice produces more cooked rice per cup of uncooked rice than other products.

The romance of the islands will grace your table when Caribbean Island Sausage and Rice stars on the menu. The elegant "island" of peanut-flecked rice with optional bananas is easily molded—simply spoon hot cooked rice into a bowl or mold, wait a few moments, then invert onto a serving plate. The sweet-sour mélange of sausage, pineapple and green peppers, served with the rice mold, is a delectable tribute to the lively cuisine of the area that Columbus once thought to be the Garden of Eden.

In your taste travels, savor the flavors of Trinidad with Party Paella. This economical, crowd-sized variation of the traditional Spanish dish teams savory Eckrich Smoked Sausage with minced clams, chicken, colorful vegetables and satisfying rice for an easy-to-fix dish with universal flavor appeal.

Honey-Glazed Sausage Kabobs, served impressively over Paradise Pineapple Rice, recall the relaxed mood of the islands. Prepare the kabobs indoors now, and outdoors as weather allows. The hearty goodness of West Indies Skillet Supper will make it a favorite with cooks who appreciate the excitement of the cuisine of faraway places combined with fast at-home preparation.

CARRIBEAN ISLAND SAUSAGE AND RICE

- 1 can (8 ounces) pineapple chunks in unsweetened juice
- 1 cup UNCLE BEN'S® CONVERTED® Brand Rice
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/3 cup peanut halves
- 1 medium banana, coarsely chopped (optional)
- 1 pound Eckrich Smoked Sausage, cut in 3/4-inch pieces
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 1/2 teaspoon ground ginger
- 1 tablespoon vinegar
- 1/2 cup apricot preserves
- 1/2 cup water
- 1 green pepper, cut in 1/4-inch strips

Drain pineapple, reserving juice. Add enough water to juice to make 2 1/2 cups liquid. Bring to a boil in large saucepan. Stir in rice, 1 tablespoon of the butter and salt. Cover lightly and simmer 20 minutes. Stir in peanuts and, if desired, banana. Remove from heat and let stand covered until all liquid is absorbed, about 5 minutes. While rice is cooking, brown sausage in remaining butter in 10-inch skillet about 5 minutes. Combine cornstarch and ginger, stir in vinegar. Add preserves and water, mixing well; add to skillet. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until sauce is thickened and clear. Stir in pineapple and green pepper; cook and stir over low heat until rice is crisp and tender. Spoon hot cooked rice into 4-cup bowl; unmold in center of serving platter. Arrange sausage mixture around rice. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

PARTY PAELLA

- 1 1/2 pounds Eckrich Smoked Sausage, cut in 1/2-inch pieces
- 1 tablespoon olive oil or vegetable oil
- 1 can (16 ounces) tomatoes
- 2 cans (6 1/2 ounces each) minced clams
- 2 cups UNCLE BEN'S® CONVERTED® Brand Rice
- 2 cups coarsely chopped cooked chicken
- 1 teaspoon garlic salt
- 1 green pepper, cut in 1/2 x 1/4-inch strips
- 1 package (10 ounces) frozen peas, thawed
- 1/2 large cooked shrimp (optional)

Fry sausage in oil in 12-inch skillet until browned; drain off drippings. Drain and coarsely chop tomatoes, reserving juice. Drain clams, reserving juice. Combine juices; add enough water to make 4-1/4 cups liquid. Stir liquid, tomatoes, clams, rice, chicken and garlic salt into skillet. Bring to a boil. Cover tightly and simmer 20 minutes. Stir in green pepper and peas; arrange shrimp, if desired, over rice mixture. Remove from heat and let stand covered until all liquid is absorbed, about 5 minutes. Makes 10 to 12 servings.

HONEY-GLAZED SAUSAGE KABOBS

- 1 cup pineapple juice
- 1/2 cup brown sugar
- 1/3 cup honey
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon dry mustard
- 1 1/2 pounds Eckrich Smoked Sausage, cut into 18 pieces (about 2 inches each)
- 24 fresh mushrooms (about 1 pound)
- 2 medium onions, cut into 8 wedges each

For honey glaze, combine pineapple juice, brown sugar, honey, lemon juice and dry mustard in a small saucepan. Cook over medium heat about 5 minutes. For kabobs, alternate sausage and vegetables on 6 skewers. Brush with glaze. Grill or broil about 4 inches from source of heat about 4 minutes on each side, brushing frequently with glaze. Serve with remaining glaze over Paradise Pineapple Rice. Makes 6 servings.

PARADISE PINEAPPLE RICE

- 1 can (16 ounces) sliced pineapple in unsweetened juice
- 1 cup UNCLE BEN'S® CONVERTED® Brand Rice
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon finely shredded fresh ginger, OR 1/4 teaspoon ground ginger
- 1 package (8 ounces) frozen pea pods, thawed
- 1/3 cup toasted slivered almonds
- 1/2 cherry tomatoes, cut in half (optional)

Drain pineapple, reserving juice. Cut pineapple into 1/2-inch pieces. Add enough water to juice to make 2 1/2 cups liquid. Bring to a boil in large saucepan. Stir in rice, butter, salt and ginger. Cover tightly and simmer 20 minutes. Stir in pineapple, pea pods and almonds. Remove from heat. Let stand covered until all liquid is absorbed, about 5 minutes. Stir in tomatoes, if desired. Makes 6 servings.

WEST INDIES SKILLET SUPPER

- 2 packages (10 ounces each) Eckrich Smok-Y-Links, cut in quarters
- 1 cup (16 ounces) butter or margarine
- 2 medium onions, sliced
- 1 can (13-3/4 ounces) chicken broth
- 1 cup UNCLE BEN'S® CONVERTED® Brand Rice
- 1 teaspoon garlic salt
- 1 cup shredded Edam, Gouda or Swiss cheese
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley

In a large skillet, brown meat in 1/4 cup water over medium-high heat about 5 minutes; remove from skillet. Melt butter in skillet; cook onions in butter until tender but not brown. Add enough water to chicken broth to make 2 1/2 cups liquid. Add liquid to skillet and bring to a boil. Stir in meat, rice and garlic salt. Cover tightly and simmer 20 minutes. Remove from heat. Let stand covered until all liquid is absorbed, about 5 minutes. Sprinkle with cheese and parsley. Makes 6 servings.

Health store offering spray-free products

By BETTY RYDER

A Manchester pharmacist, a long-time advocate of the importance of proper nutrition, has gone a step further by introducing a line of organically-grown produce in his health store.

Michael Dworkin, along with John Moretti, health store manager, purchase produce grown in California and Florida which includes oranges, apples, squash, carrots, pears, avocados, pears and potatoes.

At the store, which adjoins Liggett's Pharmacy in the Manchester Parkade, where Dworkin is pharmacist, he said, "Every Thursday morning a new shipment comes in and the customers are here early to fill their shopping baskets. By Monday, it's all gone."

The fresh produce is grown without the use of pesticides and grows in areas that have not been sprayed," he said.

Pesticides can accumulate in the body, Dworkin says, and one may find himself allergic from them five or ten years later.

He not only makes naturally produced products available to his many customers, but takes time out to chat with them about proper health care. "I believe in preventive medicine, not just seeking a cure after a person is ill."

The health store carries raw goat milk for people who don't want processed milk, fertile eggs from area farms, corn, corn meal, rice, barley whole grain, nuts and many other natural products.

"We carry meats, such as hamburger, and the animals from which it comes wasn't injected with any hormones to fatten it up and fed only organically-grown feed. Our hot dogs have no nitrates and our fish comes from Alaskan waters which are relatively free of pollution and from North Atlantic fresh waters," Dworkin said.

Moretti suggests a drink made from carrots, celery and beets, whipped in a blender, which he says cleanses the liver.

Prices at the health store are comparable to supermarket prices with carrots ranging in price from $12.50 to $14 for 25 pounds. Moretti says customers do by the 25 pounds of carrots which makes approximately three gallons of juice.

The store's frozen food locker contains prepared dinners such as Cheddar Chicken with Spaghetti, Peas in a Sauce, all of which are made from organically-grown ingredients.

"We also sell bulk honey. Customers can bring in their own containers and fill them up. The honey is made in areas where the blossoms are not sprayed with pesticides," Dworkin said.

The store, which opened in the pharmacy six years ago, offers a variety of non-caffeine teas such as Sleepy Time Tea (a herbal blend) and Red Zinger.

"We even have rice bread for people who can't tolerate wheat," he said.

In one section of the store, more than 300 books on health-related subjects are offered and another area features natural cosmetics.

A wide range of vitamins are available. Dworkin is cautious when it comes to diuretics. "Many people take diuretics to eliminate water from the body, but they also lose valuable minerals which should be retained or replaced by vitamins. Dworkin keeps abreast of the latest nutritional information and he and his wife, Ellen, attend seminars each year in various parts of the country.

Light wines may hit market soon

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The same changes that are sweeping summer tastes that swung America towards light beer are about to give birth to light wine.

As with the beer, light wine will have less alcohol and fewer calories. But whether winemakers will be allowed to use the word "light" in its name is still open to discussion among government regulators and perhaps even the courts.

A spokeswoman for Taylor Wines, a subsidiary of the Coca-Cola Co., says it will be the first national winery to market a light wine. Lake Country Soft is scheduled for test marketing beginning March 14 in Albany, N.Y., Atlanta, Raleigh-Durham, N.C. and Syracuse, N.Y., and in mid-May in Miami and Denver.

It comes in red, white and rose. Its alcoholic content ranges from 8.9 to 9 percent. Regular table wine is 12 to 14 percent.

Angela Seracini, Taylor's public relations manager, said there is no reduction in calories in the new wine because of its sweetness. Wine usually contains about 48 calories per four-ounce glass.

At the same time the company wants to market a wine it calls California Cellars Light Chablis. It has an 8 percent alcoholic content and, because it is a red wine, a 30 percent reduction in calories.

Its plans for test marketing the 8.9 percent chablis in San Diego, Seattle, Milwaukee, Nashville, Albany and Tampa, St. Petersburg are in Albany because of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms has not decided whether wine labeling should be allowed to use the word "light."

In December 1980 BATF, an arm of the Treasury, published proposed regulations that would allow wines to be labeled "light" if certain content information also appeared on the label. That provision is part of a larger package of proposals overhauling advertising rules for alcoholic beverages. It is its early stages and probably immediately.

As a result Taylor filed suit against BATF in Washington on Jan. 19 asking the court to allow it to use the "light" name.

Miss Seracini says consumers already have the correct image of what a "light" wine would be, and the proposed name is "completely truthful and accurate."

For example, leftover pork can be formed into patties and rolled in bread crumbs. Brown and then simmer in chicken-mushroom soup or chicken gravy. Serve with buttered acorn squash and a salad.

Crispy Pork Patties

1 can (10½ ounces) condensed creamy chicken-mushroom soup or chicken giblet gravy

1½ cups finely chopped cooked lamb, pork or chicken

¼ cup fine dry bread crumbs

1 egg, slightly beaten

Generous dash pepper

2 tablespoons butter or margarine

1 teaspoon lemon juice

¼ cup water

¼ teaspoon rosemary leaves, crushed

Mix thoroughly 2 tablespoons soup, meat, bread crumbs, egg and pepper. Shape firmly into 4 patties.

In skillet, brown patties in butter. Add remaining soup, water, lemon juice and rosemary. Heat; stir occasionally. This kitchen tested recipe makes 4 servings.

Changing habits can help

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I smoked cigarettes for nearly 10 years before I quit. I was up to over a pack a day. The way I quit was cheap. Instead of reaching for a cigarette I would reach for a glass of ice water. I carried a glass of ice water around wherever I sat, or in the kitchen where I was cooking. After two weeks I did not want a cigarette anymore.

I often recommend exercising when you have the urge to smoke. That helps to use calories and helps with weight control, which is something important after quitting smoking.

Many of the hazards of tobacco are discussed in The Health Letter number 2-6, Tobacco: Cigarettes, Cigars, Pipes, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. In general a heavy smoker tends to shorten his life expectancy by about 14 years.

Now about your great-grandmother. Smoking a pipe is not as dangerous to your children that she was going to die if she did not quit smoking. And some heavy smokers are lucky and do get by with the habit, just as some people play Russian roulette and don't shoot themselves.

Your great-grandmother did not die from stopping smoking. She died from not eating. That is particularly dangerous in older people.

DEAR DR. LAMB — A friend of mine who served in New Guinea in World War II claims he saw a native with his testicles in a wheelbarrow and that they weighed around 20 pounds apiece. Is that true?

DEAR READER — It happens. Sometimes the scrotum gets so large that it nearly drags on the ground. It is caused by a disease called filariasis, otherwise known as elephantiasis, because it also involves the legs which can be as large as the leg of an elephant.

It is caused by a worm that blocks the lymphatics in the leg or scrotum or both. The swelling from fluid and fibrosis causes the enlargement. The disease is transmitted by one type of mosquito. The tiny worms can be eradicated with medicines, and surgery can help correct the deformities. It occurs mostly in the warm climates of the world.

East Hartford Police nab owner — again

EAST HARTFORD — Curtis A. Heinz, the owner of East Hartford's Venus Lounge, was sentenced Tuesday for promoting obscenity only to be arrested on another charge Tuesday night.

Heinz was charged last night with tampering with physical evidence and hindering prosecution in the second degree, in connection with a stabbing incident at the bar early Sunday morning.

One of the dancers at the Venus Lounge is charged with stabbing a customer in the neck. The customer received seven stitches.

Police said Heinz failed to summon police or medical aid, hid the weapon behind the bar and locked the dancer, accused of the assault, in a back room, so she would be unavailable to police. He was released on $1,000 bond.

Earlier in the day, Heinz was sentenced in Manchester Superior Court to 90 days in jail, suspended after 10, a year's probation and a total of $2,000 in fines.

The probation is contingent on Heinz's adherence to all liquor commission regulations regarding live entertainment.

Heinz was convicted Monday on four counts of promoting obscenity. Testimony at the trial showed that the "exotic dancing" featured at the Venus Lounge included the dancers exposing themselves and having physical contact with patrons.

Prosecutor Rosita Creamer, deputy assistant state's attorney, urged Judge Jerry Wagner to impose the maximum possible four year prison sentence and $4,000 fine.

"I think the court when imposing a penalty should consider the purpose, whether it is punitive or deterrent," she said. "He took a calculated risk to make a profit. He took the risk and lost, so now it's time to pay the price. I think a fine is meaningless in this case. He'll just write it off as another business expense."

"I think it's clear from the testimony that the public is fed up with the filth at the Venus Lounge."

Defense attorney Vincent J. Trantolo vigorously disagreed and he urged a more lenient sentence.

"Your Honor has to dispense with this case as you would any other first offense misdemeanor," urged Trantolo. "I think it's clear that what the state instituted from the beginning is a witchhunt. I think what we have here is a town that wants to hurt one man by setting an example. Maybe what the state really wants is a cross with a man on it. When you have one minute of questionable activity, how can you give two years in jail? What the state wants to do is not only punish Mr. Heinz, but punish all the other bar owners. They want to start the ball rolling."

Creamer accused Heinz of a "lack of remorse" and she suggested the judge consider that when deciding on a sentence.

"I think it's pertinent to show that this is a pattern that has continued," she said. "I might note that all of this has been done in direct violation of the liquor commission regulations. That indicates that attitude of the defendant."

Trantolo countered that Heinz has never been found guilty of violating liquor commission regulations and he said it was improper for Creamer to refer to incidents for which there is no proof.

"I'm looking for a formula in lieu of absolute incarceration to insure that this is not going to happen again," explained Judge Wagner. He proposed the idea of the probation conditional on Heinz's strict adherence to liquor commission guidelines.

Judge Wagner explained his rationale for imposing the probation.

"It has not been shown to my satisfaction that you've really understood that these things are illegal," the judge explained to Heinz. "If you're in a high-risk situation where you're likely to find yourself in a criminal situation, then you've simply got to find a way to control things or disengage with that type of entertainment."

Trantolo said he plans to file an appeal on Heinz's behalf. Judge Wagner set bond for the appeal at $1,000.

Parking ban draws fire

EAST HARTFORD — A proposed ordinance which would ban the parking of motor vehicles on front lawns again drew fire at a public hearing Tuesday night.

The new version of the parking ban would allow exemptions for people who, because of obstructions or boundaries, are prevented from parking in their side yards or back yards. The ordinance would also allow citizens to lay driveways, "a hard surface consisting of asphalt, concrete or some other recognized material used for driveways," limited to 10 feet in width.

Handicapped persons would also be exempt from having to comply with the new parking regulations.

Those exemptions make the new ordinance more flexible than the outright parking ban from front yards proposed last autumn. But it still failed to satisfy many of the 50 citizens who turned up for the hearing.

Council member John B. Larson said the ordinance is important for aesthetic reasons. He showed a series of slides picturing cars and trucks parked in front yards to drive home the point.

But several town residents criticized the ordinance as being an intrusion into their private lives and a violation of their constitutional rights of property.

Some conceded that it might make sense to apply the regulation to new dwellings, but said it is unfair to impose retroactively on present housing.

While several citizens spoke in favor of the ordinance, the majority of those who spoke opposed it.

Bolton Selectmen hosting hearing on waste

BOLTON — The Board of Selectmen is hosting a public hearing tonight on the issue of solid waste disposal.

The town has been asked to consider two options: one, the installation of a transfer station at Freja Park, and the other, the hiring of a private contractor for town wide pickup of solid waste.

The consensus of the Board of Selectmen endorsed the transfer station, due to financial considerations.

According to the selectmen's figures, the estimated yearly cost of contracting a pick-up plan is $110,000.

Contrasted to this is the installation cost of a transfer station, $220,000, and its estimated annual operating cost, $70,000. State funds are available for the building of the station, which will lower the cost of it to about $110,000.

With a 20 year debt on this, the annual cost of the station would be the operating cost, about $83,000, plus the yearly payments, bringing the total annual cost to the $70,000 figure. In a few years, the selectmen figures, the compared savings will pay for the station.

In contrast to the Board's decision is a vote that materialized at the last Republican Committee's meeting that endorsed the option of town wide pick-up over the transfer station.

The committee felt that the Board had made a problematical assumption in that the almost 800 persons who have already hired a private contractor would switch to using the transfer station, once it is completed and town costs are considered. The committee felt that if the people did not switch, the figure already being paid to the contractor, about $40,000, would be added to the total cost for the transfer station raising the total town expenditure for solid waste removal to approximately that $110,000.

At the hearing, which by all indications will be well attended, the selectmen hope to formulate an idea about which direction the town wants to go.

One further item of discussion, that which arose only recently, is the pending meeting between the Andover Board of Selectmen and the Bolton Board of Selectmen on the possibilities involved in installing a transfer station at the Andover dump site.

No meeting date has been set, but the Andover Board has agreed to meet with the Bolton Board on the issue, which is a reversal of a previous decision.

Andover selectmen decided last month that a meeting between the two Boards would prove fruitless since they determined that Andover does not have an immediate solid waste disposal problem.

A recent letter from Morris Silverstein of Bolton's finance board prompted the Andover selectmen into reconsidering the meeting. Silverstein asked "only for a chance for both Boards to listen to each other." This chance has now materialized.

Vandals wreck buses

BOLTON — Six school buses were vandalized last night, causing the buses to run ½ hour late this morning.

Resident State Trooper Robert Peterson said that six batteries had been stolen, one from each of the buses, and an undetermined amount of gasoline had been siphoned out of some of the gas tanks.

Superintendent Raymond Allen said that last week some gas had been siphoned out of some of the buses.

He said that "as in the past, if they (the state police) find the person who did it, the Board of Education will want to prosecute."

He added that it is not uncommon for gasoline to be stolen from the buses during the winter months.

The administration did not learn of the incident until about 6:30, he said, and the radio stations were all alerted by 7:10.

The bus company from Colchester responded quickly, Allen said, bringing up spare batteries and another bus to compensate for the delay. He added that the morning delay will not cause a late dismissal time for the students.

Peterson said the incident is under investigation.

Abby

More Swimsuit Covering Will Stop Her Covering. DEAR ABBY: I love your column in the Jacksonville Journal, but I'd love you even more if you would find out why the bathing suit manufacturers don't make a suit for women over 20 years old.

Abby

DEAR ABBY: Today I received an invitation to attend a 25th wedding anniversary party given by three children for their parents. When I opened the reply card to respond, I found a small piece of paper which stated, "212.50 per person includes meal and gift."

Abby

DEAR ALICE: It's all right to have written it, but you should not have sent it. Even though it was a questionable taste to ask the guests to pay for their own "meal and gift," the children undoubtedly meant well.

Abby

DEAR ROOM MOTHER: The principal could send a notice to all parents stating that unless all the children in a room another day and inviting all the children except for those who weren't invited.
