Thatcher pressured to end fighting

By United Press International

Black-clad Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, devastated by the Argentine attack that killed 30 British sailors and knocked out the destroyer HMS Sheffield, met with her war cabinet today amid stepped up American and U.N. pressure to end the fighting for the Falklands.

Mrs. Thatcher, who vowed to continue the fight to regain the Falklands, faced mounting pressure on the fifth day of hostilities with Argentina from domestic opposition and European allies calling for a ceasefire.

The diplomatic moves followed Tuesday's attack on the Sheffield, which was hit by missile fire from Argentine fighters in response to the sinking Sunday by a submarine of the Argentine cruiser General Belgrano.

British warplanes also made a bombing raid Tuesday on airstrips in the Falklands. Argentina said two Harrier jets were shot down, but Britain said only one plane was lost.

A grim-faced Mrs. Thatcher, dressed in black, met for two hours with her war cabinet before her Number 10

Downing Street office announced a full cabinet meeting. The Times of London reported that Britain has launched a new diplomatic move. Quoting authoritative sources, it said Foreign Secretary Francis Pym sent a "constructive" reply to Secretary of State Alexander Haig on the proposals which have been put to military authorities in Buenos Aires. The Argentine junta previously rejected the peace plan.

The U.N. Security Council delayed discussion today on a call for a cease-fire to await British and Argentine responses to a U.N. peace plan.

Irish Ambassador Noel Dorr requested the meeting of the 15-member body after his government warned Tuesday the fighting represented "a serious threat to world peace."

An Argentine news agency, Diarios y Noticias, said Foreign Minister Nicanor Costa Mendez planned to travel, possibly today, to New York to seek U.N. help. He met Tuesday with the military junta to discuss the U.N. peace plan.

Diplomatic sources said the U.N. plan calls for an immediate cease-fire, withdrawal of Argentine troops from the islands seized April 2 and international administration until negotiations achieve agreement on sovereignty.

British Defense Secretary John Nott was to meet with Defense Secretary Casper Weinberger in Brussels today or Thursday during a Common Market meeting at which Britain faces Ireland's call to lift Common Market economic sanctions on Argentina.

Weather conditions over the South Atlantic battle zone worsened today. "The clear weather of late Monday and early Tuesday was replaced early today with dense cloudiness and a chance of precipitation," a spokesman for the U.S. weather satellite station said.

U.S. intelligence sources said the Sheffield was hit by a French-made Exocet missile, one of naval warfare's most lethal weapons, fired from a plane launched from the British-built 25th of May aircraft carrier, which Argentina ordered to sea one week ago.

"On the horizon I could see thick smoke billowing from the stricken vessel," a reporter aboard the aircraft carrier HMS Hermes said. "The Sheffield's crew battled for several hours against the fires, which broke out when the missile struck."

Deputy leader of the opposition Labor Party, Denis Healey warned that the loss of life on both sides has "sobered people up" in Britain and increased the urgency of using diplomacy to resolve the crisis.

"I warned the government last Thursday that if it was thought that we were responsible for a serious loss of life, the international support which has been the most valuable asset we've had for the last few weeks would melt away like snow in the sun," Healey, a former defense minister said on ABC's Good Morning America.

Clocktower work may be delayed

By Nancy Thompson Herald Reporter

Conversion of the Manchester Modes' building to apartments could begin before work starts on the conversion of the nearby Clocktower Mill, the chairman of the Cheney Brothers National Historic Landmark District said Tuesday.

A high-ranking official of First Hartford Realty Corp., which revealed Tuesday it will handle the conversion of the building at Pine and Pleasant streets, said work on the renovation could begin late this year or early in 1983.

William E. Fitzgerald, Cheney Commission chairman, said that start could beat the beginning of construction on the Clocktower Mill. Plans for the renovation of the Clocktower and Weaving mills were announced last August, but work has been delayed while developers wait for interest rates to fall.

"The Manchester Modes' building — formerly the Cheney Brothers Ribbon Mill — will be converted into 110 apartments, the spokesman for First Hartford said. First Hartford is headed by local developer Neil Ellis.

MANCHESTER MODES, a women's apparel manufacturer which employs about 150 people, will relocate to the Manchester Industrial Park, the spokesman said. He said the company does not currently have space in the industrial park. Both Manchester Modes and the industrial park, as well as First Hartford, are controlled by Ellis.

The spokesman would not place a price tag on the conversion of the three-story brick building to one- and two-bedroom apartments. He said plans for the exact number of one- and two-bedroom apartments still remain to be worked out. He also said that the rental prices of the apartments has not been decided.

The project will be financed with private, conventional financing, the spokesman said. The developer has applied for the loan to be insured by the Department of Housing and Urban Development, according to David Bearce, chief appraiser for the Hartford-area HUD office.

Bearce said HUD will solicit input on the plans from the state historic commission. In addition, local groups and officials have until 5 p.m. May 14 to make comments to HUD, he said.

Fitzgerald said the Cheney Commission will consider the plans at a meeting at 4:30 p.m. Thursday at the Municipal Building. The commission will make a recommendation to the town Planning and Zoning Commission, which will have to approve the conversion.

A 1980 preservation and development plan for the Cheney Historic District gives the Ribbon Mill high priority for conversion. According to Fitzgerald, the building is suited for conversion to apartments rather than condominiums because it does not have

U.S.: Sinkings call for peace

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States says the sinking of an Argentine cruiser and the wrecking of a British destroyer underscore the need for a "peaceful settlement" in the embattled Falklands.

It was unclear today, however, whether mounting death and destruction in the South Atlantic were drawing the two sides closer to a cease-fire or an escalated war.

Argentina sank its first British ship Tuesday, the destroyer Sheffield, and shot down a British jet in a sea battle inside the 300-mile blockade zone around the Falklands. Britain said 30 sailors were feared dead.

On Monday, the British sank the Argentine cruiser General Belgrano, carrying 1,042 crewmen. More than 350 were feared dead.

In Washington, following Tuesday's combat, a State Department spokesman said "These additional casualties underscore the urgent need for an early and peaceful settlement of this tragic conflict in the South Atlantic."

Secretary of State Alexander Haig held an unscheduled, 2½-hour meeting Tuesday night with a grim-faced Sir Nicholas Henderson, Britain's ambassador to Washington, to discuss the worsening war.

Haig was at Andrews Air Force Base in suburban Maryland, preparing to fly to New York for an awards dinner, when he received Henderson's request for an meeting. He complied.

It was not immediately known if Henderson asked the United States for greater assistance than President Reagan has indicated — fuel supplies and possible air transport — or for Haig to renew his diplomatic peace efforts.

Earlier in the day, Haig told Congress the loss of Argentina's second largest ship could harden the bargaining position of the junta in Buenos Aires for sovereignty over the archipelago ruled by Britain for 146 years.

Appearing before a Senate Appropriations subcommittee, Haig said, "The president believes, and I believe, the situation must ultimately be resolved by political negotiations."

Chief quits in Coventry

COVENTRY — Police Chief Gary L. Sousa resigned today to become chief in Plainfield, the town manager's office said at midday.

Sources today said Sousa resigned to take the new job, but that he would have stayed if Coventry had matched the salary offer. Sources said he will be making about $22,000, about $2,800 more than what he makes now.

One source said the Town Council turned down the salary offer Monday night in executive session. Sousa could not be reached for comment.

AREAS TO BE SPRAYED SHOWN BY SOLID LINES
faint cross-hatching shows areas for which waivers are sought

Lack of forms not likely to delay moth spraying

The Manchester Property Owners Association is having a little trouble with its gypsy moth spraying plans, but Betty Sadloski, coordinator of the project, expects it will get under way on schedule.

The problem, she said, is that in some areas the necessary waivers from property owners were not completed and she has been trying to get all the waivers the state Department of Environmental Protection will need before it can approve areas for spraying.

Mrs. Sadloski has turned over to the DEP forms for properties in about 322 acres of Manchester land. Forms for about 200 acres have not yet been turned in.

Meanwhile Mrs. Sadloski has asked all canvass captains to turn in payment checks. The checks will not be cashed, she said, until the first of the two sprayings is completed, and one gypsy moth.

That is because, in the final stage, it will be the helicopter pilots who decide what will and what will not be sprayed. It may not be economical to spray small isolated areas and it may be too difficult to spray in areas where owners of properties close by have not signed waivers.

Lingard won't vote on schools

By Paul Hendrix
Herald Reporter

Republican Director Joan V. Lingard said Tuesday night she will not vote tonight on the education portion of the town budget, to avoid the appearance of a conflict of interest.

Mrs. Lingard works as a social worker in the school system. She said she doesn't believe there would be an actual conflict of interest if she did vote on the school budget, but she decided it would look bad if she did.

During last year's town election, Democratic Town Chairman Theodore E. Cummings charged it would be a conflict of interest for Mrs. Lingard to vote on the school budget.

"How can that person vote on the school budget — which is 60 to 65 percent of the town budget — if she is employed by the Board of Education?" Cummings asked last October. "She is in a position that is no good. The leadership should not have put that fine lady in that position."

Under state law, teachers and other educators may hold public office. The only restriction is that they may not serve on the Board of Education which is their employer.

"I held off for a long period on this decision to be sure I would not be devaluing someone in an education position's right to be involved on the vote," said Mrs. Lingard. "I was very confident with the idea that my position as a director would not be weakened (by abstaining in the vote)."

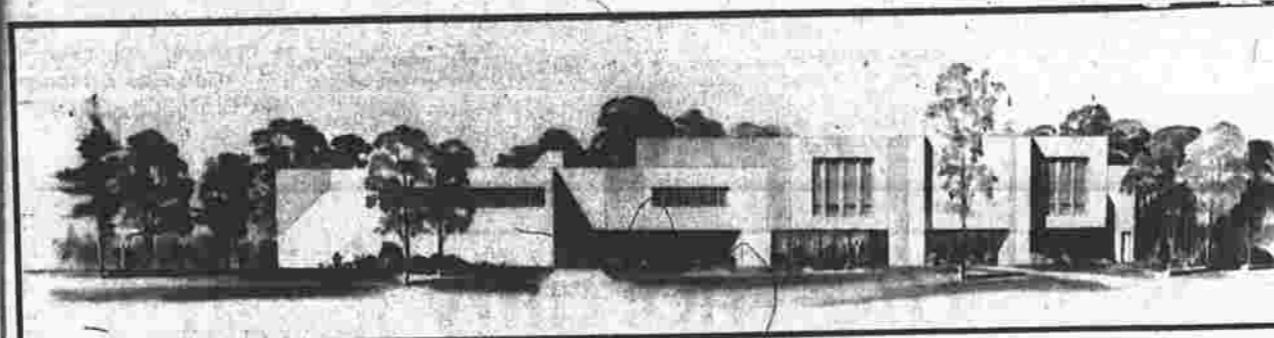

Mrs. Lingard said she will vote on the rest of the town budget.

The Board of Directors is scheduled to approve a budget tonight at 8 p.m. at the Senior Citizens Center.

MCC plans groundbreaking party

Mark Sunday, June 27, on your calendar. That's the tentative date of a "come one, come all" party for the groundbreaking for the new Manchester Community College permanent campus.

"We're going to have a community party," said MCC President William E. Vincent. "We're going to have a big cocktail and invite everyone in the community. We would like to celebrate ourselves and everyone in the community who has an interest in the college."

Vincent said June 27 was selected because it will be the second day of the MCC New England Relays, which annually draw crowds and community participation.

Vincent emphasized that the date is tentative. Bids for construction of the building still must be approved by the Board of Trustees of Community Colleges, the state Board of Higher Education and the state Bonding Commission.

Approval of the plans has been put on the agenda for the May meetings of both boards and all the paperwork for the bonding commission has been completed, Vincent said.

The low bid for construction of the new campus came in last week at $9.4 million, well under the $11.5 million allocated by the General Assembly.

VINCENT SAID he is optimistic the college will be able to keep the surplus money to renovate the existing library and science laboratories into classrooms. He said he has spoken to state officials about that plan, and the chances for its success appear good.

James Sullivan, state bond commission coordinator with the Office of Policy and Management, has said the Legislature has approved such action in the past in regard to state colleges, who have been allowed to keep surplus construction funds for general repairs and renovations.

Vincent noted that the new building will have features to benefit the community, including expanded food services facilities which will be larger and more attractive than the current ones and a community room which will be open to community groups.

The college expects to occupy the building by September of 1984. Actual construction will take about 18 months, Vincent said.

VINCENT NOTED that, under state law, 1 percent of the total cost of the building must go for art. He said a committee will be formed to choose art for the school, possibly a fountain or sculpture.

The new building will include classrooms, a student center, a library, an auditorium, a day care center, a cafeteria and administrative offices. The three-winged structure, connected by a central core, will be located above the current administration building, between the parking lot and the tennis courts.

Murder trial delayed

VERNON — Trial proceedings on the felony murder charge against Edward F. Boyle, originally expected to start today, have been postponed until May 12.

Boyle, a Manchester native, was indicted last month by a Grand Jury for the felony murder of 20-year-old Louisa Scott on May 31, 1980. Besides being charged with strangling

Ms. Scott, the 21-year-old also faces charges of attempted sexual assault in the first degree and sexual assault in the third degree.

The state had pursued an intentional murder charge, but the grand jury didn't agree to the indictment. Boyle is serving a 6- to 12-year sentence on rape charges in Manchester the summer of 1980.

House approves ethics bill

HARTFORD (UPI) — The House has given final legislative approval to a bill that would make it illegal for state officials, employees or candidates to accept gifts worth more than $50 from lobbyists.

With no discussion, the lower chamber voted 141-1 Tuesday to adopt a Senate amendment creating a 10-member commission to study the entire area of ethics involving lobbyists and lawmakers.

The House earlier approved the bill but it was returned after the Senate attached the amendment.

Gov. William O'Neill has promised to sign the legislation. Rep. Rufus Allyn, D-Mystic, the lone dissenter, had voted against the bill when it first came before the House, saying it would be "deceiving the public to say that we can legislate morality."

Allyn said lobbyists could get around the law by making a contribution to a lawmaker's campaign, rather than a direct gift.

The legislation stemmed from the disclosure in March that 11 lawmakers — five senators and six representatives — were wine and dined on a Cape Cod weekend in the summer of 1981 by Plainfield dog track lobbyist William Roper.

The state Ethics Commission found "probable cause" that Roper committed 56 violations. The track has agreed to pay an $11,000 fine.

Currently, it is illegal for a lobbyist to spend more than $55 annually on a lawmaker but it is not illegal for a lawmaker to accept such gifts.

There is no limit now on gifts or money officials can accept from lobbyists.

Panel will study two-plate system

HARTFORD (UPI) — The Connecticut Legislature has approved legislation that would create a panel to study whether the state should return to a two license plate system.

The House Tuesday went along with the Senate's decision to create the study panel instead of requiring conversion to the two-plate system by 1984 as had been proposed originally.

Going back to two plates, which were dropped in favor of one only three years ago, was estimated to raise about $5 million for the state. State police pushed for the return to two plates, arguing one plate has hurt their ability to nab criminals.

The bill also would exempt from personal property taxes any vanpool vehicle owned by the state's ride-sharing organizations.

It was returned to the Senate because of an amendment creating a separate license plate classification for medium-sized buses. The Senate quickly endorsed the change.

Also sent back to the Senate with a minor amendment after House approval was a bill exempting television and radio stations from paying the state sales tax on syndicated programs, music, weather services and other recorded programs.

Broadcasters had argued for several years that they deserved the same tax relief as newspapers because they provided the same service to the public.

Currently, newspapers don't pay sales taxes on supplies and capital equipment.

The bill was approved on an 85-50 vote with critics saying it was unfair to exempt any business from the sales tax.

Sometimes you can legislate morality

WASHINGTON — Recently a friend's teen-aged daughter confided in him that a former boyfriend had tried to take liberties with her, adding she was glad that the friendship broke off and she no longer had to ward off his advances.

Lee Roderick
Washington Correspondent

I remembered her great sense of relief as I studied the ramifications of a new proposal by the Reagan administration to have parents notified when youth under age of 18 obtain prescription contraceptives from federally funded clinics.

They are confronted with an alterable law of human nature, indeed an uncontrollable force of the natural world.

Dr. Hofmann understands the problem but not the solution, however. She urges society "to help our young people avoid inflicting serious harm on themselves" when they engage in sexual relations. This is to be done by freely dispensing contraceptives to adolescents without notifying their parents.

University Medical Center, put it this way during the same hearing: "Childbearing too soon in a young teen-ager's life not only places her health and that of her infant in jeopardy but also forecloses her personal options for the future, too often consigning her to a life of poverty and unrelenting hardship."

Dr. Hofmann understands the problem but not the solution, however. She urges society "to help our young people avoid inflicting serious harm on themselves" when they engage in sexual relations. This is to be done by freely dispensing contraceptives to adolescents without notifying their parents.

age 18, nearly two-thirds of all women have had sexual intercourse and account for nearly one million births and abortions a year.

Where do we begin to turn back the tide? The administration's new parental notification rule is at least a start. It is quite true that some teen-agers undoubtedly will be more reluctant to seek contraceptives because of the regulation, and the reluctance of some will lead to pregnancy.

LOOKING TO BUY A NEW HOUSE OR CONDOMINIUM?

LOOK FOR THIS SYMBOL!

This unique symbol is your assurance that the home you are considering to buy is special. It's a home with energy efficiency built right in. It's an ideal combination of gas heating, gas appliances, and energy conservation measures throughout.

Not every home qualifies. To merit the distinction of being an Energy Efficient Affordable Gas Home, your builder or developer had to make an extra effort. And make sure that either thermal or storm windows were included, and there's insulation in ceilings and walls, and that the entire house has been weather stripped and/or caulked.

There are many other factors to consider when making a decision as important as buying a home. But energy efficiency today, surely is at the top of everyone's list. So look for this symbol and feel confident. That you are looking at a new house or condominium in which energy efficiency has been given the top priority. It makes good sense today. It will make even better sense tomorrow.

What did the primary mean?

Since the two factions of the Republican Party did not agree on what the primary fight yesterday was about, they could hardly be expected to agree on what the result proves.

One thing is very clear, however. It is obvious that Manchester Republicans cared about the issue as they saw it.

Twenty-three percent of the Republican voters turned out, surprising the leaders of both slates. The mandate is strong, but is it clear?

Did most of voters think of the endorsed slate as a pro-Weicker slate and vote in favor of it for that reason?

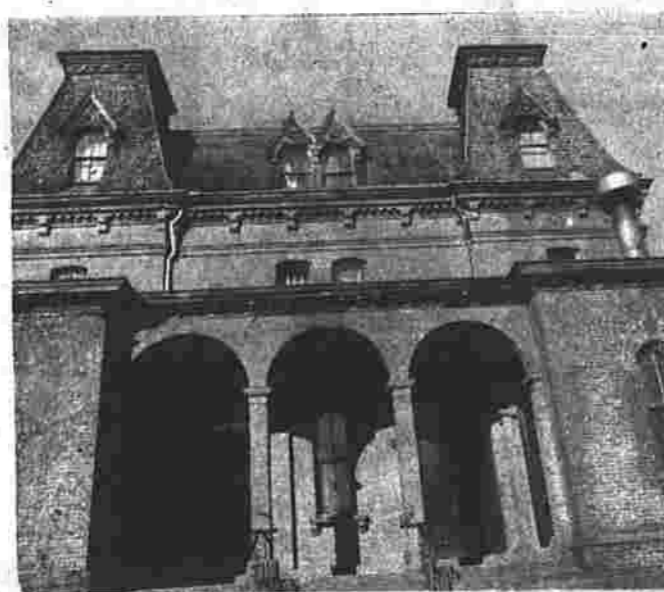

Or did most of the voters regard the Weicker-Bush question as a peripheral to the more local question of whether the leadership of the Manchester Republican party needed a vote of confidence over another challenge from outside the mainstream?

Think positive on Cheney Hall

Throughout the lengthy negotiations in which the Little Theatre of Manchester has been involved with the Town of Manchester over Cheney Hall, we have opted to deal directly with those involved rather than through the medium of the press.

CHENEY HALL. Do enough people care?

Each year when the Little Theatre faces with difficult hurdles — can we support the season with our subscriptions? Can we sell tickets and advertising? Can we cast the plays? Can we produce them successfully?

Can the Great Lawn be saved? It certainly won't be if we start out with the attitude that it can't be saved.

Can Cheney Hall be restored? You bet it can!

Is being a school guard worth it?

After reading the letter to the Manchester Herald written by a fellow guard, I would like to add a few things that I feel she forgot to add and are of importance.

This is not the first time — three years ago, a taxi nearly hit me and the kids. I think a lot of people will agree. Pine Street is a raceway.

So hats off to the rest of my fellow workers who I am sure do the same — I wonder if this is all worth it for $3.50 an hour.

Guerra, tacks on mileage competing on motorcycle

By Earl Vost Sports Editor

Gulliver had nothing on Bolton's Mike Guerra. He covers a lot of mileage each year.

Since March 21, Guerra has been competing in motorcycle motocross events in Vasselard and Gank, Belgium as well as Marlborough, England, in Holland, Switzerland, Spain and will return to Belgium next week.

Also listed on the 1982 World 250cc Championship circuit are stops in Czechoslovakia, Poland, France, Great Britain, Russia, United States, Finland and Sweden.

The 23-year-old Guerra, a native of Cherry Point, N.C., is sponsored by the Husqvarna Motorcycling of Odesha, Sweden and Husqvarna Motorcycling Co. of San Diego, Calif.

This is Guerra's second full season on the Grand Prix Motocross Tour.

Gaining the top three finishers in West Germany, England and Holland, combined with consistent top 10 placings in other countries, assured Guerra of sixth place overall in the final 1981 World Championship standings, a lofty finish for a rookie racer.

While New England was digging out of winter snowdrifts, the transplanted Bolton resident was in Southern California where for five weeks he prepared for the competitive season.

Cross country running, weight lifting and both trail and motocross riding allowed Guerra to lead for Europe in top physical shape.

"I'm confident about my chances in the World Championship events and I want to be the first American Motocross World Champion," he said.

After the first two races this season, which included victory April 25 in Spain, Guerra found himself in second place among the contestants with the eighth stop on the 17-city tour set May 9 in Belgium.

Guerra competes at least every weekend and occasionally takes part in a second weekly meet on the tough European motocross circuit.

Hurst now ready for big league

By Logan Hobson UPI Sports Writer

Boston pitcher Bruce Hurst wasn't ready for the major leagues in 1980. Now it appears the major league ready for Hurst — or for the Red Sox either.

Hurst, Boston's No. 1 draft pick in 1976 who made a disastrous jump to the big leagues in 1980 from Double A ball, worked seven innings and gave up three runs — all unearned — to lead Boston to its fifth straight victory and 13th in its last 14 games, a 5-3 decision Tuesday night over the Minnesota Twins.

Hurst, who had a 9.10 ERA in 12 games two seasons ago, struck out three, walked one and pitched seven hits Tuesday night in his longest stint in the majors.

Hurst pitched for a while last year when he was with Pawtucket of the International League, but since Guerra competes at least every weekend and occasionally takes part in a second weekly meet on the tough European motocross circuit.

The Red Sox scored their other run in the first when Evans scored on a wild pitch by Redfern. The Twins, who have lost 13 of their last 17, scored all their runs in the second off Hurst. Kent Hrbek led off with a single to center, his hitting streak to 14 games and eventually scored on Gary Gaetti's sacrifice fly. One out left, Jerry Tenney booted a Ron Washington grounder, allowing Jesus Vega to score, and singles by Lenny Paez and Jim Eisenreich — who left the game in the second with a continuing nerve played — brought home the runs.

Gibson next baseball superstar?

You can put the superstar in the same boat with the dinosaur, the big car and the nickel candy bar.

He's gradually becoming obsolete — in baseball, anyway.

"You don't have any more superstars today," says Roger Craig, the Detroit Tigers' knowledgeable pitching coach. "Mike Schmidt is the closest one to it around now. There are no more Mantles, Mays, Musial or Kalines. You'd think there'd be more superstars now because you have more clubs than there were years ago, but it hasn't worked out that way. I don't know the reason for it."

Craig was talking about the disappearance of superstars because the subject was Kirk Gibson, the big, blond 24-year-old former All-American flanker from Michigan State, who hasn't quite shown himself to be "the new Mickey Mantle" yet that Sparky Anderson promised everybody he was going to turn into when he first came up with the Tigers three years ago. Like Anderson, Craig believes Gibson has a chance to be a superstar.

Gibson can run. Nobody argues that. He has much more power than you'd reasonably expect from someone built like him, even at 6-foot-3 and 215 pounds, and his .228 average last year strengthened the Tigers' belief he eventually will be the kind of tremendous hitter they had in mind when they originally signed him in the summer of '78.

Anderson still feels Gibson will be "the new Mantle." "That's all I talk," Gibson makes light of his manager's extravagant claims for him. "I hope I am what he says I'll be. I hope I live up to that name. I know how great a ballplayer Mickey Mantle was."

Gibson is like Mantle in his impatience with himself to do better. And Gibson has just as strong feelings about looking bad as Mantle did.

When Anderson suddenly pulled him out of the game with the Yankees two weeks ago after he had trouble on two consecutive plays in center field the same inning, Gibson was playing with injured legs, showed some displeasure by flinging his sun glasses against the dugout wall when he came in.

Following the game, which the Tigers won, writers who didn't know Tiger Trainer Pio Di Salvo had told Anderson Gibson's leg was injured. Gibson can run. Nobody argues that. While onions are cooking take the mushrooms, clean the caps and chop the stems and add stems to veal liquid. stantly until thickened. Beat the egg whites, add the cream and some of the thickened mixture. Add this to the rest of the thickened mixture. Stir. Do not let boil. Add the seasonings.

Spinach Salad
1 pound spinach
Salt
Garlic
1/2 cup peanut oil
3-4 strips bacon
3-4 green onions, chopped
1 raw egg
1/4 teaspoon dry mustard
2 shags Worcestershire sauce
1/4 to 1/2 tablespoon sugar
1 tablespoon grated parmesan
1 tablespoon sugar
2 tablespoons red wine vinegar
Wash the spinach. Rub the salad bowl with salt and garlic. In the peanut oil, saute the bacon which has been cut into 1-inch pieces. After bacon begins to brown, add the chopped onions. In the salad bowl, mix 1 raw egg, the dry mustard, Worcestershire, sugar and parmesan.
Toss the spinach in the egg mixture. Then, to the bacon and oil mixture, while still sizzling, add the wine vinegar and sugar and continue sauteing until sugar dissolves. Pour the dressing over the spinach and toss and eat quickly while it's still warm.

Crepes
2/3 cups flour
1 tablespoon sugar
Pinch salt
2 whole eggs
2 eggs yolk
1 1/2 cups milk
2 tablespoons melted butter
Mix together the flour, sugar and salt. Beat eggs and egg yolks together. Mix with dry ingredients. Add milk slowly and stir until smooth. Add butter. Strain through fine sieve. Let batter stand for 2 hours. Put small amount of butter in a very hot skillet. Pour in a thin layer of batter (about 1/4 cup per crepe). Cook until top batter is set and underside is golden brown. Flip and cook other side until golden brown. Makes 12 crepes.

Pot-au-Feu

2 tablespoons salt
1 carrot
1 large onion
1 bell pepper
Broccoli-cauliflower (optional)
2 tomatoes
1/2 cup vinegar
1/4 cup dry Vermouth

Cover chuck roast with water and bring to boil for 5 minutes. Discard water, rinse meat and wash pot. Place meat and chicken into pot and add water and salt. Bring slowly to boil and skim continuously to remove scum. Cook gently for 1 1/2 hours. Remove chicken and cook 1 hour. Cut vegetables into desired sizes and add to pot. Add seasoning. Cook for 3 1/2 hours longer. Pour off enough bouillon for serving. Remove and slice meat. Remove vegetables. Stir in remaining bouillon and save for stock. Serve all together in large soup bowls or keep bouillon separate. Save the chicken for the next day for Julia-the-Child's dish.

Julia the Child's Dish

Oranges and onions: a great marriage

The combination of oranges and onions in a salad may raise the eyebrows of some people, but actually it's one of the most gracious marriages that I can think of. If memory serves me correctly, the combination first became popular on the West Coast in the '30s where it was started, I believe, by that gifted cook Helen Evans Brown. But that as it may, the combination of California's superb naval oranges with mild, sweet red Italian onions is a good one — juicy, piquant and pleasing.

Peel and simmer gently for 1 hour. Add 1/4 cup imported Nicosie olives and continue cooking until tender, about 30 minutes longer. Remove meat to a platter and sprinkle with 1/4 cup chopped parsley. Pour sauce into a sauceboat, skimming off fat.

Serve with creamy polenta, or rice, and offer sauce separately. By the way, if the sauce should be too thin, remove the olives and reduce by rapid boiling, then return the olives to the sauce. Be sure to check the seasoning. The contrasting colors and shapes in the following salad make for a very attractive dish. Use a plain white platter if available, or arrange individual salads on plates. Don't be afraid to try cumin seeds if they are new to you, as they have a splendid, faintly exotic flavor.

Let batter stand for 2 hours. Put small amount of butter in a very hot skillet. Pour in a thin layer of batter (about 1/4 cup per crepe). Cook until top batter is set and underside is golden brown. Flip and cook other side until golden brown. Makes 12 crepes.

Pot-au-Feu
3 1/2 pounds chuck roast
4 1/2 quarts water
2 tablespoons salt
1 carrot
1 large onion
1 bell pepper
Broccoli-cauliflower (optional)

Bring slowly to boil and skim continuously to remove scum. Cook gently for 1 1/2 hours. Remove chicken and cook 1 hour. Cut vegetables into desired sizes and add to pot. Add seasoning. Cook for 3 1/2 hours longer. Pour off enough bouillon for serving. Remove and slice meat. Remove vegetables. Stir in remaining bouillon and save for stock. Herald cookshelf

Soup-to-nuts cookbook comes from South

Every single recipe month-to-month. The range of "Annual Recipes" is "soup to nuts." There are cooking-for-two recipes and party recipes, Mexican-style recipes and Oriental-style recipes, entrees and desserts, salads and breads, pickles and punches.

There are plenty of recipes with a decidedly Southern flair, but there are more which might have originated anywhere; and all of them have been tested by Southern Living for taste, appearance, ease of preparation and cost of ingredients.

Here are two to try:

Crunchy Sausage Casserole
1 (6-ounce) package long grain and wild rice mix
1 pound bulk pork sausage
1 pound ground beef
1 large onion, chopped
1 (8-ounce) can sliced mushrooms, drained
3 tablespoons soy sauce
1 (2½-ounce) package sliced almonds
Lemon slice (optional)
Parsley sprigs (optional)

Cook rice mix according to package directions; set aside.
Cook sausage, ground beef, and onion over medium heat in a large skillet until meat is brown, stirring to crumble. Drain off drippings. Add rice, mushrooms, and soy sauce; stir well. Spoon into an ungreased 2-quart casserole. Cover and refrigerate overnight.

Marinated Summer Salad

1 cup cauliflower florets
1 cup thinly sliced carrots
1 cup sliced fresh mushrooms
1 cup sliced brussels sprouts
1 cup thinly sliced yellow squash
1 cup broccoli florets
1½ cups thinly sliced zucchini
¾ cup lemon juice
¼ cup vegetable oil
3 tablespoons sugar
1 to 1½ teaspoons dried whole oregano
1 tablespoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ cup thinly sliced radishes

Combine first 7 ingredients in a large shallow container. Combine remaining ingredients except radishes, mixing well. Pour marinade over vegetables, and toss salad lightly.
Cover and chill at least 2 hours or overnight, stirring occasionally. Stir in radishes just before serving. Yield: 10 to 12 servings.

By JoAnn Dalton Herald Copy Editor

"Southern Living 1981 Annual Recipes" (Oxmoor House, Birmingham, Ala., 252 pages, $14.95), as its name implies, is a collection of the recipes which appeared in the 1981 editions of Southern Living magazine — all 1,200 of them.

The somewhat unusual organization of all these recipes — they are grouped by month as they appeared in the magazine — tends, at first glance, to give the otherwise handsome book a rather muddled look.

The arrangement has similar types of recipes — those designed for microwaving, for example — placed in different parts of the book. That could make finding a particular recipe difficult, except that "Annual Recipes" has three indices to eliminate any confusion.

One index is by recipe title, one is by month of publication and the third is a general index of cross-referenced food categories and ingredients.

BECAUSE MANY of the recipes come from magazine readers who want to share family favorites, most of them are for dishes that might appear on any family's table.

Crunchy Sausage Casserole, for example, could feed a crowd at a fancy brunch or a house full of hungry children at supper. Marinated Summer Salad could be carried along to a potluck supper or held in a refrigerator for days to spice up several meals in a smaller household.

The range of "Annual Recipes" is "soup to nuts." There are cooking-for-two recipes and party recipes, Mexican-style recipes and Oriental-style recipes, entrees and desserts, salads and breads, pickles and punches.

There are plenty of recipes with a decidedly Southern flair, but there are more which might have originated anywhere; and all of them have been tested by Southern Living for taste, appearance, ease of preparation and cost of ingredients.

Here are two to try:

Coventry schools stick to bare bones budget

By Lisa Zowada

COVENTRY — When the Board of Education saw more than $70,000 cut from its budget last spring, sports programs, aides, teachers, new equipment and repairs to the old equipment had to be dropped quickly to take up the slack.

Andover tax a compromise

By Richard Cody
Herald Reporter

ANDOVER — The finance board "compromised" Tuesday night and hiked next year's tax rate by two mills, five fewer than what was proposed at the town meeting Saturday, and seven fewer than what the board first came in with.

But the 25 residents attending their second meeting in three days Tuesday were still unhappy about the increase, saying the board wouldn't "listen to the people" and spread out payments for a new Hende Road bridge beyond five years. The residents wanted to bond the $167,000 for 10 to 20 years, they said.

"IN THIS day and age," said resident Robert M. Lacombe, "it would be to our interest to spread (payments) over the longest possible period." He said inflation would help soften the payments. He also said a 10- to 20-year program would mean more people would be in town

Parents seek to restore school cut

By Richard Cody
Herald Reporter

ANDOVER — Several parents said Tuesday they have enough signatures on petitions to make the selectmen consider calling for another town meeting to reverse the cut made to the school board's budget Saturday night.

Finance board member Susan Losee led the attack on the school budget, and said while making her motion that the money should be used to cut out the physical education teacher, the part-time reading consultant and part-time psychologist.

The cut, she said, would also reduce the number of aides and the music teacher in from four to two, and the art teacher's time from three to two days.

Supermarket shopper

Stores must live up to their guarantees

By Martin Sloane

as they cared to? I don't blame the employees for refusing to return to work after the two days of the supermarket strike. In my judgment they were stealing. What I can't understand is how you can suggest that the store manager should give them the right to lead into their grocery carts as much of this merchandise

"courtesy." — F.M. from Hastings, Neb.

DEAR F.M.: Vick Banner and Nancy Noren didn't just search out mispriced items without an invitation. The A&P stores in their area went to great lengths to advertise their correct-price guarantee. This guarantee invited all shoppers to come into the stores to see how accurate their prices were. Unfortunately for A&P, some of those prices were not accurate. That's why the duo received the mispriced items free.

DEAR NESTREIDA: Going to the supermarket isn't much fun when you are shopping with Gen. Patton.

But, in answer to my request for comments about shopping with a spouse, I also receive some letters from shoppers who said that they enjoyed it. I'll tell you more about them in my next column.

Rather than sheet tears for A&P, I would rather than those two brave women for bringing the mispricing problems to the store's attention in a very dramatic manner.

You might have thanked them, too, if you knew that the items you purchased were marked with a greater accuracy as a result of their efforts.

Supermarkets that advertise low-price guarantees or correct-price guarantees should be prepared to stand behind them in both letter and spirit, and do so with great courtesy. I have said this before, and it is likely that

NEW YORK (UPI) — Spring travelers through New York City's Grand Central Station are viewing a 1,000-square-foot wide photograph, the world's largest color transparency, of about 1 million tulips growing on the outskirts of a village in Holland.

The picture, part of the permanent Eastman Kodak exhibit in the Station, was chosen both to mark the advent of spring and the celebration in the city once known as Niuew Amsterdam of 200 years of uninterrupted diplomatic relations between the United States and the Netherlands, 1783-1982.

SEC steps up war on data profiteers

By Sylvia Porter

Syndicated columnist

The Securities and Exchange Commission, the government's policing agency for the securities markets, is greatly stepping up its war against insider information profiteers.

During the 44 years of the SEC's existence before insiders were brought. Since then, there have been 60 such cases — 13 of them in 1981 alone.

Recently the SEC brought a fraud action against the chairman and several current and former officers of the Franklin Mint Corp., alleging that they sold 33,350 shares of the company when they had inside information, not yet made public, that the company's sales and revenues were falling below target levels. To settle the defendants — without admitting or denying the allegations — paid back $283,738 in profits they had made on their transactions.

How much can it hurt the "little guy" who invests in stocks?

"Insider trading impugns the integrity of our securities markets," SEC chairman John S.R. Shad, a top securities cop, told my associate, George Bookman, during a talk a few days ago.

"In that sense, it hurts every market participant and the capital-formation process. Some individuals are overcome by greed, are willing to risk their jobs and prison terms to take advantage of inside facts."

Shad defines "insiders" as anyone who obtains information not available to the investing public. This could include lawyers, securities brokers, underwriters, accountants and even secretaries who may be privy to corporate secrets.

Analysts, traders and investors who dig out facts about a company before information is available to anyone willing to look for civil and criminal prosecutions."

The stock exchanges and the self-regulatory body for the over-the-counter markets maintain extensive electronic surveillance systems to identify activity that might be caused by insiders and they work closely with the SEC.

Device calls emergency aid

By Raymond T. DeMaio

Herald Reporter

The little rectangular pendant in George S. Rudeen's hands can do amazing things.

Rudeen squeezes the lower part of the pendant and a chain reaction sets in motion. An electronic box about the size of a car radio automatically dials a telephone number.

The call is to a local ambulance service.

Over the telephone, a prerecorded female voice enunciates clearly that there has been a "medical emergency at the home of M.E. Jones, 124 Main St. Dispatch medical personnel at once. Use forcible entry if necessary. Mr. Jones is a diabetic and is allergic to penicillin."

The voice clicks off and the box automatically dials another call, to the neighbor next door, repeating the same message. The next call carries the emergency message to the police department.

Mr. Jones is a fictitious person. But there are plenty of real people like him: people with medical problems who, alone and confronted with a medical emergency, need help immediately. It's these people, says Rudeen, for whom the Microlet pendant can mean the difference between life and death.

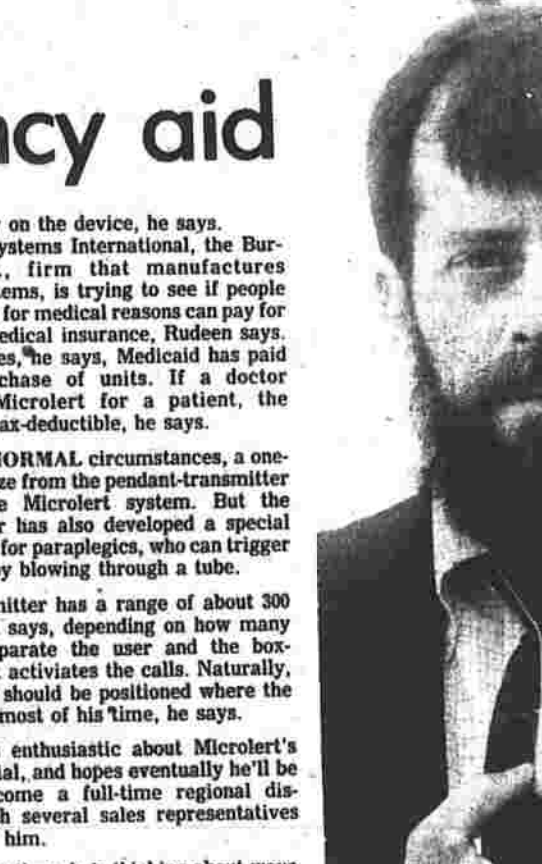

Microlet Systems International, the Burbank, Calif., firm that manufactures the Microlet systems, is trying to see if people who buy units for medical reasons can pay for them with medical insurance. Rudeen says, "In some states, the medical insurance paid for the purchase of units. If a doctor prescribes Microlet for a patient, the purchase is tax-deductible, he says.

Under normal circumstances, a one-second squeeze from the pendant-transmitter activates the Microlet system. But the manufacturer has also developed a special modification for paraplegics, who can trigger the system by blowing through a tube.

The transmitter has a range of about 300 feet, Rudeen says, depending on how many obstacles separate the user and the box-receiver that activates the calls. Naturally, the receiver should be positioned where the user spends most of his time, he says.

Rudeen is enthusiastic about Microlet's sales potential, and hopes eventually he'll be able to become a full-time regional distributor of the several sales representatives working for him.

In the meantime, he's thinking about ways more people could use the system. "This device can be used in any situation where you need to use the telephone," he says. "Its use is limited only by your imagination."

RUDEEN HOLDS LIFESAVING PENDANT which automatically triggers calls for help

What is the SEC doing about the problem?

"Insider trading is a commission enforcement priority," Shad replied. "The commission chiefly seeks civil injunctions to prevent future violations and dispersal of any profits. It also works with the Justice Department and other law enforcement authorities that may seek fines and jail sentences. Injured parties also may sue for damages."

The SEC is considering asking for legislation that would permit the courts to impose civil fines on violators, in addition to criminal penalties and giving up illegal gains.

"Of course, insiders are not always right," Shad stressed. "Speculative expectations often fail to materialize.

"Insider trading is a serious problem, but it is the exception, not the rule. The vast majority of investment decisions are based on publicly available information." But tiny as insider trading is, it's too much. The tougher the penalties on people who are no more than crooks, the better.
