Neighborhood Store Becomes
A Town Leader in 12 Years

"Pinehurst" Has Grown from Small Sectional Store to Largest Service Meat and Grocery House in Manchester.

Walter P. Gorman's meat and grocery store, known to all who buy "good things to eat" as "Pinehurst" is today observing its 12th anniversary. The store, located in the center of the neighborhood, has grown from just a small meat market to a full-service grocery store.

Mr. Gorman, who opened the store 12 years ago, attributes its success to the hard work and dedication of his employees. He has found that efficiency in service goes hand-in-hand with increased patronage.

In 1925, "Pinehurst" was just a small store, but today it is one of the largest in the town. The store has grown to include a meat department, a dairy section, and a variety of other departments.

The store's success can be attributed to its location. It is located in the heart of Manchester, and is easily accessible to residents.

The store's employees are trained to provide excellent service and are always willing to help customers.

The store's success is also due to its commitment to quality. "Pinehurst" is known for its fresh produce, high-quality meats, and a wide selection of other products.

In conclusion, "Pinehurst" has become a leader in its community and a staple for residents of Manchester.
