Speaks on Growth To Lincoln PTA

How the process of growing could be explained in schools and other groups was demonstrated by Dr. Hilda Standish, through the film "Human Growth," at the meeting of the Lincoln P.T.A. last night.

Standish emphasized the fact that much of this information should be first come from the parents, "for it is the parents," she said, "who should be the children's first teachers."

One of the important points she stressed was the importance of honesty and wholesomeness growing up in an atmosphere of love and respect for one another.

During the business meeting, Mrs. Leonard was elected to the position of secretary, a vacancy which was created by the resignation of Mrs. Lewis Banning. Mr. Alfred Anderson, first president of the Lincoln P.T.A. and a diligent worker for many years, was elected to the recognition and farewell, as he is leaving town.

The film, "The Littlest Angel," will be shown at the next meeting, which will be held Dec. 6.

Sled Dog Races In Avon Sunday

Members of the several sportsmen clubs in town and others will be interested in the New England Sled Dog Club races at Avon Old Farms Sunday, Nov. 14, at 2 p. m. in view of the fact that the races are for the purpose of raising money for the benefit of the Connecticut State Hospital for the Deaf, which is making an effort to raise $500 to replace funds borrowed from the National Foundation.

This sum was needed to place a deep freezer for whole blood and plasma in Dr. Wallace's headquarters in Hartford for the use of boys in the state who are hemophiliacs.

At least three are known to be suffering in this town with hemophilia, the medical term which means that blood fails to clot, and whole blood and plasma helps to clot the blood. One of the boys spent some time at the hemophilia foundation in the fact that the foundation is located in New York.

Four children will be admitted to bleed for these boys, in addition to making blood donations to the Red Cross.

Nelson and Jean Butler, race committee chairman, and I. J. Nelson and four other racing sleds during the afternoon on the grounds at the Avon Old Farms School.

Four children will be admitted free, school-age children half price. A great many are giving of their time and money to transport the sleds and teams for this worthy cause. Tremendous support is being given to this, in the sporting world, is a "Connection Point."

The Stanley Juggs, 68, Branford St., has a supply of tickets.

Diabetic Drive Here Next Week

Manchester residents are again being asked to take advantage of the first week for diabetes which will be offered all next week during the annual state-wide drive to detect diabetic cases.

During the drive, Manchester Memorial Hospital will run tests on all urine samples submitted on all urine samples submitted. Where sugar is found, the person involved will be referred to his personal physician for further diagnosis.

As in the past, it is expected that local drug stores will participate in the drive by donating the urine specimens. The drug stores will also furnish jars to those who wish to use their own specimens.

The State Dept. of Health recommends that specimens, which are collected in a thoroughly clean container, should be taken about three hours after a meal.

Last year, only a little over one percent of the state's population took advantage of the free tests for diabetes, but even with the small proportion, 443 persons were found to have sugar in their urine.

The Health Dept. points out that there are many persons who do not realize they have diabetes and that if the disease can be detected early enough it can sometimes be controlled by diet and exercise alone, or by the use of insulin.

In some cases, silent people are spreading their minds.

Dr. Fuller Speaks To PTA on Math

Dr. Kenneth Fuller of New Britain Teachers College told the Bowers P.T.A. last night how to help children with arithmetic. He said that parents can help by assisting with additional drill practice if needed, after first checking with the teacher to see if a stage has been reached in the child's education where he needs practice. Parents can also help by making as many opportunities as possible for the child to use arithmetic in his daily life.

The most important change in arithmetic is the shift of emphasis from rote learning to meaning and understanding, said Dr. Fuller. He explained that pupils are not social beings of arithmetic. He said that arithmetic has been simplified in its teaching, and that fractions in particular are made easier even to be taught in decimal form. While drill is still necessary, full explanation precedes the practice and drill is only considered necessary when it is needed.

The motoramic Chevrolet for '55

It's the valve-in-head V8 as only the valve-in-head leader can build it!

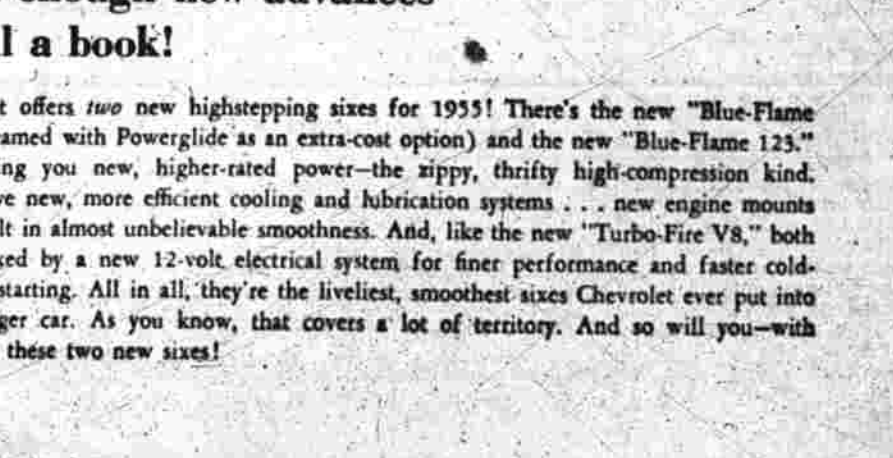

You'd expect Chevrolet to out-V8 the field—and it has! Chevrolet's new "Turbo-Fire V8" puts a brand-new kind of excitement under your foot. The excitement of 162 horsepower! The excitement of an 8 to 1 ultra-high compression ratio that squeezes more fire out of a gallon of gas than you ever dreamed possible! The new "Turbo-Fire V8" is so wonderfully efficient that it requires only four quarts of oil instead of the usual five or more. And it has the shortest piston stroke in the low-price field, for longer engine life. But we can't even begin to give you the whole story here. Come in and let the new "Turbo-Fire V8" speak for itself. You'll like what it has to say!

With enough new advances to fill a book!

Chevrolet offers two new high-stepping sizes for 1955! There's the new "Blue-Flame 151" (traced with Powerglide as an extra-cost option) and the new "Turbo-Fire 151." Both bring you new, higher-rated power—the zippy, thrifty high-compression kind. Both have new, more efficient cooling and lubrication systems... new engine mounts that result in almost unbelievable smoothness. And, like the new "Turbo-Fire V8," both are sparked by a new 12-valve electrical system for finer performance and faster cold-weather starting. All in all, they're the liveliest, smoothest-size Chevrolets ever put into a passenger car. As you know, that covers a lot of territory. And so will you—with either of these two new sizes!

Innocent, But Punished

Secretary of State Dulles, in dismissing from the State Department John P. Flinn, Jr., seems to have been guilty of a lack of courage.

The original charges against Flinn, from which he was dismissed, were that he was a spy for the Communist Party.

Each of these grounds is highly debatable. In fact, one could venture to make out a much better case for the judgment of Flinn's dismissal than for the judgment of Flinn's dismissal.

Nothing Flinn did, in fact, was so innocent, or as much at odds with what was supposed to be official foreign policy, or as indiscreet, as some of the things Mr. Dulles has done.

The real reason for the dismissal is, of course, not given. It is not that Flinn is more unreliable, or lacking in judgment, or discretion than other members of the State Department.

Yet there is still a possibility, lurid indeed, but something they cannot ignore, that they have already exploded too many bombs. It is a lurid possibility that, even if they should stop exploding bombs now, their own remarks might discover, four or five years from now, that detectable damage to the system of life on earth has already been done.

Some of them, the more voracious among them, are already calling for a cessation of bomb tests, thinking we may have run risks enough already. These are obviously faint-hearts.

But because he did not see what was about to happen in China, and warn against it by predicting it, he has become one of those held responsible, by the machinery of logic, for what did happen in China.

Now Secretary Dulles has decided this, has refuted the charge of disloyalty, and yet, in an act which must be considered sadly deficient in morality, has acceded to a process in which other charges are trumped up against Flinn and made grounds for his dismissal.

This is much more disillusioning for the country, and for the foreign service, than it would have been if Dulles had been found guilty of the original charges against him.

Some Scientists Worried

Our scientists thought they knew about the hydrogen bomb before they exploded it. They found out, after they had exploded it, that it was a little more powerful, and spread its damage

Connecticut Yankee

By A. H. O.

On election day this commentator held forth as follows:

"Unless the voters of this country, in their discharge of their duty in many states and districts, accomplish some kind of miracle of selective rebuke, this election is going to be very costly to America."

We were referring to the fact that, this year, even some very high level candidates had suddenly descended to the realm of smear and personal attack on their opponents.

It is obviously an imperfection in our political system. There are times, perhaps, when the actual politician settlement of a state may have changed between the time of a senator's election and the necessity for an appointment to replace him.

There are times, too, when a senator may have been elected as an individual against the normal political trend of his own state, so that it might be fair to assume that a miracle did occur against the nation, and that it was precisely that "miracle of selective rebuke" our election day comment did not consider possible.

Here in Connecticut, the weakest and most regrettable phase of the Republican campaign was its individual candidate, who took over the individual who is now Governor.

In New York, it was the normally high level Irving Lurie who suddenly became a thrower of mud and did not win by it, who, in New York, it was the Democratic side conducted the most lurid and savage campaign, and who became the one Republican candidate who stood against the sudden descent to the mire.

In New Jersey, Clifford Case was the target of smears of unprecedented ferocity, coming not from the Democrats, but from elements within his own party. And these smears were so powerful that his defeat was expected by everybody, except, perhaps, someone who has an extreme faith in the ability of the American electorate to penetrate smears.

Finally, the victory of Senator Douglas was perhaps inevitable, but, in any case, was not halted by the rough tactics used against him.

So this columnist who, on election day, thought the system was almost certain to leave good citizens everywhere something to worry about, has to make the happy admission that good citizens seem to have taken good care of the situation on election day. Now, what, then, the columnist would like to see is a permanent effect of the big answer win. The voters did not detect a "miracle of selective rebuke."

Perhaps some system by which governors would be required to appoint upon the recommendation of the organization of the party involved, or upon the action of a state convention of that party, or upon the result of a party primary, would prove more feasible than any other.

One principle, at least, would seem entitled to govern, and that is that people who vote to represent themselves in the Senate for six years one way should not be represented the other way unless they themselves have changed their minds.

Filling Senate Vacancies

When Robert A. Taft, distinguished Republican United States Senator from Republican Ohio, died, he was succeeded in the United States Senate by a Democrat. The only reason for this was that the state of Ohio happened to possess a governor who was a Democrat.

He appointed a man from his own party. He may have had instincts to do otherwise, but his own party would have slaughtered him if he had named a Republican.

The nation's present political situation also sees large stakes involved in the election, by which the governors of states have the personal power to make appointments to succeed members of the United States Senate who die or resign before their terms are up.

On the one hand, Democratic control of the Senate is imperiled by the fact that the Democratic membership contains several men of advanced age, and one who is ill, and by the accompanying fact that some of these instances, appointment of a successor would devolve upon a governor who happens to be a Republican. On the other hand, the Democrats, by picking up seven new governorships in the recent election, protected themselves against the interim loss of Senate seats from these states and gained control over the disposition of vacancies in such vacancies should occur.

This all happens in accordance with the provisions of the United States Constitution, which empowers the local state legislatures to empower their governors to fill senatorial vacancies in preference to the procedure of holding special elections.

It is obviously an imperfection in our political system. There are times, perhaps, when the actual politician settlement of a state may have changed between the time of a senator's election and the necessity for an appointment to replace him.

There are times, too, when a senator may have been elected as an individual against the normal political trend of his own state, so that it might be fair to assume that a miracle did occur against the nation, and that it was precisely that "miracle of selective rebuke" our election day comment did not consider possible.

"Worm Wearing an Angora Sweater"

Like all Droodles this one is perfectly logical when you know the facts. For instance you may ask: "Why is a worm wearing an Angora sweater?" Answer: "Because she couldn't find her Cashmere sweater. That's why she's wearing this wool sweater. There's a joke in that last line someone (I thought) but if you disagree here is an alternate line suggested by Victor Borze: 'A FIVE HOT DOG FOR COLD FOOTBALL GAMES.'"

Bolton

Co-op Kindergarten Opens With 19 Children Present

Bolton, Nov. 9 (Special)—The Cooperative Kindergarten and Nursery held a successful opening session for the kindergarten at the school yesterday.

The group will meet again tomorrow. Opening of the nursery program has been delayed a day because of the weather.

The playhouse was made by the equipment committee of the school. It is a large room with a rug on the floor and a table in the center.

The Rev. J. Richard Veeger of United Methodist Church may rightfully be considered as the founder of the kindergarten.

Intensive meetings since Sept. 23, the group has organized, adopted by-laws, hired a teacher, bought and made equipment and contented with innumerable details of operating the kindergarten and nursery.

A great deal of appreciation is due the trustees of United Methodist Church, who in spite of their own pressing space problems, agreed to offer its facilities to house the school.

The evening concludes with the nationwide celebration of 4-H Achievement Day on Nov. 9.

A meeting of all adult and junior leaders in the local program will be held tomorrow night at the home of Mrs. Frank Paggiolo.

STATIONERY LEADING BRANDS AIRMAIL - NOTES Arthur Drug Stores

Now—Gulf refines out the "dirty-burning tail-end" of gasoline—the No. 1 trouble-maker in high-compression engines. Then Gulf specially blends new Super-Refined No-Nox for top economy in the kind of driving motorists do most.

The "gunk" that takes the "go" out of your engine! That tar-like, gummy residue is what's left after evaporating a single gallon of the "dirty-burning tail-end" of gasoline... the part that Gulf refines out in making new Super-Refined

NO-NOX. There's at least that much "dirty-burning tail-end" in a tankful of ordinary gasoline! This material, when deposited in your engine, is harmful to engine parts, impairs their performance, leads to costly overhauls.

See the difference Gulf super-refining makes: Instead of trying to fight harmful deposits with so-called "miracle additives"—inside your engine—Gulf believes in preventing them from forming in the first place, removes the cause—the "dirty-burning tail-end"—at the refinery. Just look at the plates in the unetched photo at left and see what a difference Gulf super-refining makes!

What's more, besides giving your engine more complete protection, new Super-Refined Gulf NO-NOX gives you extra gas mileage in the short-trip, stop-and-go driving motorists do most... no knock, no pre-ignition... stall-proof smoother... plus instant starts and fast, fuel-saving warm-up.

Innocent, But Punished

Secretary of State Dulles, in dismissing from the State Department John P. Flinn, Jr., seems to have been guilty of a lack of courage.

The original charges against Flinn, from which he was dismissed, were that he was a spy for the Communist Party.

Each of these grounds is highly debatable. In fact, one could venture to make out a much better case for the judgment of Flinn's dismissal than for the judgment of Flinn's dismissal.

Nothing Flinn did, in fact, was so innocent, or as much at odds with what was supposed to be official foreign policy, or as indiscreet, as some of the things Mr. Dulles has done.

The real reason for the dismissal is, of course, not given. It is not that Flinn is more unreliable, or lacking in judgment, or discretion than other members of the State Department.

Yet there is still a possibility, lurid indeed, but something they cannot ignore, that they have already exploded too many bombs. It is a lurid possibility that, even if they should stop exploding bombs now, their own remarks might discover, four or five years from now, that detectable damage to the system of life on earth has already been done.

Some of them, the more voracious among them, are already calling for a cessation of bomb tests, thinking we may have run risks enough already. These are obviously faint-hearts.

But because he did not see what was about to happen in China, and warn against it by predicting it, he has become one of those held responsible, by the machinery of logic, for what did happen in China.

Now Secretary Dulles has decided this, has refuted the charge of disloyalty, and yet, in an act which must be considered sadly deficient in morality, has acceded to a process in which other charges are trumped up against Flinn and made grounds for his dismissal.

This is much more disillusioning for the country, and for the foreign service, than it would have been if Dulles had been found guilty of the original charges against him.

Some Scientists Worried

Our scientists thought they knew about the hydrogen bomb before they exploded it. They found out, after they had exploded it, that it was a little more powerful, and spread its damage appointment of a successor would devolve upon a governor who happens to be a Republican. On the other hand, the Democrats, by picking up seven new governorships in the recent election, protected themselves against the interim loss of Senate seats from these states and gained control over the disposition of vacancies in such vacancies should occur.

This all happens in accordance with the provisions of the United States Constitution, which empowers the local state legislatures to empower their governors to fill senatorial vacancies in preference to the procedure of holding special elections.

It is obviously an imperfection in our political system. There are times, perhaps, when the actual politician settlement of a state may have changed between the time of a senator's election and the necessity for an appointment to replace him.

There are times, too, when a senator may have been elected as an individual against the normal political trend of his own state, so that it might be fair to assume that a miracle did occur against the nation, and that it was precisely that "miracle of selective rebuke" our election day comment did not consider possible.

Connecticut Yankee

By A. H. O.

On election day this commentator held forth as follows:

"Unless the voters of this country, in their discharge of their duty in many states and districts, accomplish some kind of miracle of selective rebuke, this election is going to be very costly to America."

We were referring to the fact that, this year, even some very high level candidates had suddenly descended to the realm of smear and personal attack on their opponents.

It is obviously an imperfection in our political system. There are times, perhaps, when the actual politician settlement of a state may have changed between the time of a senator's election and the necessity for an appointment to replace him.

There are times, too, when a senator may have been elected as an individual against the normal political trend of his own state, so that it might be fair to assume that a miracle did occur against the nation, and that it was precisely that "miracle of selective rebuke" our election day comment did not consider possible.

Here in Connecticut, the weakest and most regrettable phase of the Republican campaign was its individual candidate, who took over the individual who is now Governor.

In New York, it was the normally high level Irving Lurie who suddenly became a thrower of mud and did not win by it, who, in New York, it was the Democratic side conducted the most lurid and savage campaign, and who became the one Republican candidate who stood against the sudden descent to the mire.

In New Jersey, Clifford Case was the target of smears of unprecedented ferocity, coming not from the Democrats, but from elements within his own party. And these smears were so powerful that his defeat was expected by everybody, except, perhaps, someone who has an extreme faith in the ability of the American electorate to penetrate smears.

Finally, the victory of Senator Douglas was perhaps inevitable, but, in any case, was not halted by the rough tactics used against him.

So this columnist who, on election day, thought the system was almost certain to leave good citizens everywhere something to worry about, has to make the happy admission that good citizens seem to have taken good care of the situation on election day. Now, what, then, the columnist would like to see is a permanent effect of the big answer win. The voters did not detect a "miracle of selective rebuke."

Perhaps some system by which governors would be required to appoint upon the recommendation of the organization of the party involved, or upon the action of a state convention of that party, or upon the result of a party primary, would prove more feasible than any other.

One principle, at least, would seem entitled to govern, and that is that people who vote to represent themselves in the Senate for six years one way should not be represented the other way unless they themselves have changed their minds.

At Boston the normal maximum temperature during this period is 50 and the normal minimum temperature is 39.

Filling Senate Vacancies

When Robert A. Taft, distinguished Republican United States Senator from Republican Ohio, died, he was succeeded in the United States Senate by a Democrat. The only reason for this was that the state of Ohio happened to possess a governor who was a Democrat.

He appointed a man from his own party. He may have had instincts to do otherwise, but his own party would have slaughtered him if he had named a Republican.

The nation's present political situation also sees large stakes involved in the election, by which the governors of states have the personal power to make appointments to succeed members of the United States Senate who die or resign before their terms are up.

On the one hand, Democratic control of the Senate is imperiled by the fact that the Democratic membership contains several men of advanced age, and one who is ill, and by the accompanying fact that some of these instances, appointment of a successor would devolve upon a governor who happens to be a Republican. On the other hand, the Democrats, by picking up seven new governorships in the recent election, protected themselves against the interim loss of Senate seats from these states and gained control over the disposition of vacancies in such vacancies should occur.

This all happens in accordance with the provisions of the United States Constitution, which empowers the local state legislatures to empower their governors to fill senatorial vacancies in preference to the procedure of holding special elections.

Droodles

By ROBERT PRICE

"Worm Wearing an Angora Sweater"

Like all Droodles this one is perfectly logical when you know the facts. For instance you may ask: "Why is a worm wearing an Angora sweater?" Answer: "Because she couldn't find her Cashmere sweater. That's why she's wearing this wool sweater. There's a joke in that last line someone (I thought) but if you disagree here is an alternate line suggested by Victor Borze: 'A FIVE HOT DOG FOR COLD FOOTBALL GAMES.'"

GAME OF THE WEEK
Biggest college football game in this part of Saturday afternoon will be played on Andrus field in Middletown when Wesleyan University is host to undefeated Trinity.

As has been the case in past years, the Monday preceding the battle between the arch rivals, the rival head coaches address members of the Connecticut Sports Writers' Alliance. Yesterday was no exception. Wesleyan played host to the scribes.

Wesleyan is in a good start against Middletown. They were bumped by Tufts, 26 to 6, and Worcester State, 20 to 6, and Andrus field, 14 to 0, before hitting the victory trail against Swarthmore, 13 to 0, and Williams, 17 to 0, in its last two games.

Monday Morning Class For Football Coaches

New York, Nov. 9 (AP)—The old professor stood straight as a pine, which was appropriate as his Monday morning class of football coaches was being given in the new building of the beautiful new stadium.

Old professor—Come, come, no more leidy, please. I told you I was holding a class for you. You're bound to get hurt now and then when you're watching a class. I did last Saturday in the second half. We got a number of new faces.

"We know our season isn't over. We have never been underdogs in the Connecticut Sports Writers' Alliance. Yesterday was no exception. Wesleyan played host to the scribes."

Expect Owner To Hire Field Skipper Today

New York, Nov. 9 (AP)—The four-month fight to purchase the Philadelphia Athletics and transfer them to Kansas City won, Indiana's Arnold Johnson today turned the contract of hiring a field boss and general manager.

The new general manager, executive secretary and president of the club, Arnold Johnson today turned the contract of hiring a field boss and general manager.

Johnson yesterday said he had an open mind as to the managerial situation. He said he was not sure of his own mind as to the managerial job but that he had had correspondence with some candidates.

Inside Track on Job
It was learned however, that Lou Boudreau, depoted manager of the Cincinnati Reds, was the inside track to the field manager job. Parry Carroll, business manager of the Kansas City Club, said he was sure Boudreau would be hired.

Johnson's architect has been working and is ready to start work on the new stadium, which will be built on a 70-acre tract near the old stadium.

Watkins, McCarthy Clash In Senate Censure Debate

Washington, Nov. 10 (AP)—Sen. Watkins told Sen. McCarthy today the only way to get a completely neutral person on the censure issue would be to pick "a deaf, dumb and blind person and a moron."

Watkins, head of the special committee which recommended censure of McCarthy, boasted that threat when McCarthy suggested there was prejudice on the committee.

The two Senators quickly slipped into a dueling exchange of words after the Senate got down to formal debate on re-buking McCarthy, Wisconsin Republican.

Watkins, Utah Republican, laid his committee's conclusions on the case for censure before the Senate and McCarthy promptly challenged that "you are not giving the facts as they are."

From there they swung into a long exchange which revolved chiefly about McCarthy's conduct in relation to a Senate Elections subcommittee which looked into financial affairs in 1951 and 1952.

One ground on which the Watkins committee recommended censure was that McCarthy took a contemptuous attitude toward the elections subcommittee.

Chairman McCarthy "dishonored" the committee's activities were limited to the Senate Elections subcommittee which looked into financial affairs in 1951 and 1952.

Watkins said his committee had not gone into the charges before the Senate but into the question of the Watkins group program and set up its own cooperative atomic reactor project.

Ike Urges Senate Vote Asia Treaty

Washington, Nov. 10 (AP)—President Eisenhower today asked the Senate to ratify the Southeast Asia Collective Security pact as "an important link" in the free world's defense against any Communist aggression.

In a special message submitted to the Senate, the President said it is designed to promote security and peace in Southeast Asia and the Southwest Pacific by deterring Communists and other aggressors.

The Southeast Asia collective defense treaty complements other security treaties in the Pacific and constitutes an important link in the collective security pact of nations of Southeast Asia and the Pacific.

The Pacific pact was signed at Manila Sept. 8 by the United States, Australia, France, New Zealand, the Philippines, Thailand and the United Kingdom.

The States Russians Softer In Note over Plane Incident

Washington, Nov. 10 (AP)—The States Russians seem to be showing a somewhat more conciliatory attitude in the latest plane shooting incident than has been the case in earlier similar episodes.

The President told a news conference the American photo-making plane shot down by Soviet fliers of the Japanese coast on Sunday had a right to be where it was in this country's view.

"No Always Clear Cut" The President said he did not always see a clear cut as they seem and that he was not sure that the incident was a clear cut case.

UN Reactor Suggested By Romulo

United Nations, N. Y., Nov. 10 (AP)—Gen. Carlos P. Romulo of the Philippines suggested today that the U.N. go beyond President Eisenhower's atom-for-peace program and set up its own cooperative atomic reactor project.

Romulo said the United Nations should launch the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission project, inviting contributions of fissionable materials and uranium from every country able to provide even a token contribution.

Democrats See Little Hope for Tax Reduction

By CHARLES F. BARRETT Washington, Nov. 10 (AP)—Key Democrats who led a failed fight earlier this year for a big individual income tax cut held little hope today for any substantial taxpayer relief in 1955, even though the Democratic House control Congress.

They indicated a low favorable budget situation may postpone a new individual income tax cut until 1956, at best, perhaps a smaller cut than they advocated in the past congressional session.

All 10 holdover Democrats on the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee were polled for their views on a possible individual income tax cut next year.

Of the nine who replied, 1150 voiced doubts about the prospects for such a cut, three declined to make any forecast and only Rep. Dingell (Mich.) said the outlook was bright. Dingell on Monday announced he will introduce a bill early in the new Congress to boost individual exemptions for a cash taxpayer and to reduce the top rate from 91 to 88 percent.

When the Democrats tried to pass the bill, it was defeated 215-207.

Ex-Husband Sought In Death of Woman

New Canan, Nov. 10 (AP)—Chief of Police Henry E. Keller said today that a warrant had been issued for the arrest of Stanley Zdonick, in the death of his divorced wife, Margaret Ford George, who was found shot to death in the woods here Sunday.

The warrant, obtained by Town Prosecutor John B. Sturges, charges Zdonick with murder.

Keller said Zdonick has been sought for questioning since Mrs. George's body, buried under a pile of leaves, was found by a woman while walking her dog.

The body, clad in a blue and white dress, had been wrapped in a blanket. There was a bullet wound in the head.

Chief Keller said that Mrs. George was a 36-year-old businesswoman, who was a member of the United States National Rifle Association.

Abusive Letter Case Friday in Superior Court

Dispute over Evidence Builds Public Confusion

Washington, Nov. 10 (AP)—The package deal provides (1) a 10 percent increase retroactive to April 15, 1953; (2) a 10 percent increase effective Jan. 15, 1955; and (3) an improved holiday schedule.

It jumps together two wage increases that have been in effect for months in the union contract.
